BASE BALL NOTES.

Junior Stars Defeated the Business Men, and the "Fats" the "Leans"—Other Games.

It was a great game of baseball that was played Friday afternoon between the Junior Stars and the Business Men. Up to the first half of the ninth inning the latter had the Juniors "scotched" by a score of 15 to 8, but in that half of the inning the Juniors went in and ran up a score of 12 runs, making their score 20. The Business Men did not score in their half of the inning.

The purse was $10 and the gate receipts were turned in to help fix up the new baseball park. After the game the Juniors were feasted by their seniors at M. L. Burkhardt's and in the evening the Chelsea Band serenaded the players, umpires and others. The line up was as follows:

Junior Stars—W. McLaren, c. f.; H. Holmes, 2d b.; A. Raftery, 3d b.; P. Bacon, 1st b.; Gus McGole, 1st b.; R. Cook, r. f.; D. Rogers, s. s.; L. BeGole, c.; C. Rogers, p.

Business Men—F. Leach, 2d b.; R. Strimling, c.; A. Gulde, 1st b.; G. Stefan, p.; B. D. Withersell, 3d b.; J. Cummings, s. s.; B. Turnbull, 1st b.; H. Fenn, r. f.; Wm. Bacon, c. f.

The score by innings was:
Junior Stars, 0 5 0 0 3 1 1 12—20
Business Men, 3 0 5 0 0 5 0 9—15

Saturday afternoon a game was played between the Junior Stars and a nine from the Glazier Stove Works, resulting in the defeat of the latter by the score of 18 to 10.

The game between the fat and lean men of Chelsea Monday afforded plenty of amusement to the on-lookers if not to the players. Each side played 10 men. The fat fellows ambled around the bases like goats, everyone of them making one or more scores, while three of the slands failed in that particular. Dan McLaren had a perfect record as assistant catcher neither making a hit, a run, a put out, nor an error. The feature of the game was Dennis Walker's fast double play in the last inning which prevented the Glaziers from tying the score. Bert Turnbull made some of his famous home runs. The fat fellows in the weeds out in left field Snyder thought he was having a consolation instead of a baseball, but he did not find until the whole nine got out and he hunted it up after Bert had scored a home run. The score was as follows:

THE SOVEREIGN RECEIVES HIS CROWN.

Ceremonies Attending Coronation of Edward VII. and Queen Alexandra at Westminster Abbey Are Solemn and Brilliant.

London, Aug. 11.—King Edward and Queen Alexandra were crowned in Westminster abbey shortly after noon Saturday. Though the ceremony was bereft of some of the elaboration and pageantry originally contemplated, it lacked little in the way of spectacular perfection. The whole ceremonial was of a magnificently decorative character, and presented a constantly changing panorama around the two central figures enthroned in their robes of velvet, ermine and cloth-of-gold, amidst the distinguished assemblage of actors, the fulfillment of whose various roles necessitated constant movement. The ceremonies commenced with the reconsecration of the regalia. The procession of clergy with the regalia then proceeded from the altar to the annex, all present standing up and the "Recognition," beginning: "Sirs, I here present unto you King Edward, the undoubted king of this realm," etc. Again the king and queen knelt, and the archbishop of Canterbury walked to the altar and commenced the communion. While the Gospel was being read the king stood erect, supported on each side by the bishops in their heavy embroidered capes. During the singing of the creed all the members of the royal family turned eastward. Administration of the Oath. The administration of the oath followed. Standing before the king's chair, the archbishop asked: "Sir, is your majesty willing to take the oath?" The king answered in firm, strong tones: "I am willing," etc., his replies being easily heard high up in the triforium near the roof. Then bishop's hands from the steps of the throne. The archbishop, who seemed to be in a faint, had to practically be carried to the altar. The incident created considerable excitement and several prelates rushed forward to help the primate.

Primate of Wales at King's Feet. The next person to pay homage to his majesty was the prince of Wales, who knelt until King Edward held out his hands, which he kissed after touching the crown as a sign of fealty. The prince of Wales then started to return to his seat, when the king drew him back and put his arms around him and kissed him.

The Queen is Crowned. The queen then rose and, accompanied by her entourage, proceeded to the altar steps, where, under a pall of cloth-of-gold, she was quickly crowned by the archbishop of York, supported by the bishops. She was then led to the throne beside that in which the king sat and the enthronization was accomplished.

The queen bowed to King Edward, and both walked to the altar and received the communion, after delivering their crowns to the lord great chamberlain and another officer appointed to hold them. The pages, while their majesties knelt, still held the queen's magnificent long train with the rest of the nobles present kneeling. The rest of the spectacle was impressive and was made more brilliant by the electric light.

By a great effort the archbishop of Canterbury was enabled to conclude the service and the king and queen repaired to St. Edward's chapel. Neither of their majesties returned to their thrones after the communion, but remained at the altar. The services, which were completed with the singing of Te Deum, was brought to a close without a hitch. The king exhibited no outward traces of fatigue.

THE ROYAL PROCESSION.

Description of Scenes To and From the Famous Abbey.

London, Aug. 11.—A brilliant sunrise promised perfect weather for coronation day, but long before the ceremonies commenced threatening clouds gathered, and the early arrivals on the route of the procession came provided against contingencies. The earlier crowds were in nowise as large as it had been anticipated they would be. Many enthusiasts, with camp stools and ample supplies of provender had spent the night on the best of vantage that could be secured, and were in the same position at one o'clock in the morning. At one hour the troops began to take up their positions, and policemen, three per cent, lined the route of the procession from Buckingham palace to Westminster abbey.

Procession Moves Promptly.

At one hour for the departure of the royal procession approached the excitement about Buckingham palace was most marked. Punctual to time the advance guard of the royal cavalcade, issued from the archway, the horses of the troopers curvetting nervously as they faced the wall of humanity that cheered their coming. Shortly afterwards came the prince and princess of Wales' procession, and, finally, within a few minutes, their majesties' state coach appeared at the gateway and the king and queen smiled and bowed in response to the mighty roar of cheers that dwarfed all previous welcomes. The scene in the vicinity was remarkable. On the roof of the palace were perched a number of fashionably dressed ladies, members of the household, and their cheers, with the fluttering of their handkerchiefs as the king and queen entered the royal coach gave the signal for the deafening plaudits of the populace which greeted their majesties as they emerged from the gates. The ovation was taken up by the crowds which thronged the Mall and was repeatedly acknowledged by the occupants of the state coach.

Appearance of the King.

The king looked pale and rather fine drawn and was by no means as brown and robust as previous reports had led one to expect, and while punctiliously bowing from side to side, he did so with a gravity very unusual to him. He seemed to sit rather far back in the carriage, and moved his body very little. His curious crimson robes and cap, the maintenance of which, simply a band of ermine with a crimson velvet top, doubtless gave him the unusual appearance.

King's Condition Satisfactory.

London, Aug. 11.—The following bulletin concerning the king's condition was issued Sunday:

"His majesty bore the strain of the coronation ceremony perfectly well and, experienced but little fatigue. The king had a good night, and his condition is in every way satisfactory. No further bulletin will be issued."

(Signed) "TREVES."

"LAKING."

King Edward and Queen Alexandra and the royal guests at Buckingham palace attended divine service in the chapel Royal of St. James palace Sunday morning. At the close of the service the national anthem was sung. Their majesties were loudly cheered by the crowds on the streets as they drove back to Buckingham palace.

NEW JUSTICE NAMED.

President Roosevelt Fills Supreme Bench Vacancy.

Justice Gray Resigns Because of Ill Health, and Oliver Wendell Holmes, of Massachusetts, Filled as His Successor.

Oyster Bay, Aug. 12.—President Roosevelt late Monday afternoon announced that he had appointed Hon. Oliver Wendell Holmes chief justice of the supreme court of Massachusetts, to be an associate justice of the supreme court of the United States, vice Mr. Justice Gray, resigned.

Judge Holmes, whom the president has selected as Mr. Justice Gray's successor, is one of the most distinguished lawyers and jurists of Massachusetts. His career on the bench, particularly as chief justice of the Massachusetts supreme court, has attracted wide attention. Like Justice Gray, he is a native of Massachusetts.

Resignation of Justice Gray.

The resignation of Justice Gray was due to ill health. Several months ago he suffered a stroke of apoplexy, which some time later was followed by another. He has not appeared on the bench since he was stricken the first time. His advanced age—74 years—told against his recovery with serious force. Realizing that he probably never would be able again to assume the place which he so long had filled with distinguished ability and honor, he decided a short time ago to tender his resignation to the president. With the exception of Mr. Justice Harlan, he served on the bench of the United States supreme court longer than any of his present colleagues. He was appointed an associate justice by President Arthur on December 19, 1881, his service extending, therefore, through a period of nearly 21 years.

Justice Gray has been at Nahant, Mass., his summer home, for some time. During his long career on the bench of the supreme court Justice Gray delivered a number of important opinions. He was remarkably exact and deliberate, and frequently spent considerable time in the preparation of his decisions. His specialty was will cases, although he participated in the consideration of many of the important issues which came before the court. Justice Gray was with the majority of the court in the decisions in the income tax cases and the insular cases. Another important cause of recent date was that growing out of the Spanish-American war, in which Justice Gray decided against the right of the government to seize certain fishing smacks, the property of Cubans, which the United States authorities believed were giving aid and assistance to the enemy. Judge Gray was always an ardent republican. Like his successor in office, he was chief justice of the supreme court of Massachusetts before his appointment to the United States supreme court.

The New Justice.

Justice Oliver Wendell Holmes is a son of the author, Oliver Wendell Holmes, and has been justice of the Massachusetts supreme court since 1882. He was born in Boston in 1841, and was educated at the public schools and Harvard college and Harvard law school. Immediately after his graduation from Harvard he enlisted in the Twelfth Massachusetts regiment, and was wounded at Antietam and again at Fredericksburg, where he was mustered out as brevet lieutenant colonel. He took up the law after the war and edited the twelfth edition of "Kent's Commentaries," and for three years was editor of the American Law Review. He was for a time one of the law faculty at Harvard. He served as associate justice of the supreme court until 1890, when he was made chief justice.

Will Accept.

Beverly, Mass., Aug. 12.—Chief Justice Oliver Wendell Holmes was informed of his appointment to the United States supreme bench at his summer home in Beverly Farms, Monday night. He was asked if he would accept, and he replied: "Oh, yes; I shall, no doubt, accept it." Further than that he did not care to talk.

BURNED HIS CASH.

Indiana German Kills Himself After Taking Queer Revenge on His Wife.

Rockport, Ind., Aug. 12.—Julius Hoffman, a German farmer, 65 years of age, committed suicide, but before doing so burned between $5,000 and $6,000 in money that his young wife, with whom he is said to have had frequent quarrels, might not enjoy its benefits. Hoffman was an eccentric citizen who had acquired the farm on which he lived and had saved considerable money, all of which he kept near him. When his wife found the body she also discovered the burning embers of the pile of bills her husband had so carefully saved and representing years of labor on the farm.

A TRYING CASE.

Suspected Man Put to a Test in the Bartholin Murder Case.

Chicago, Aug. 12.—With a look apparent fear in his eyes and his mouth twitching, Oscar Thompson, the former roomer at the Bartholin home, 4316 Calumet avenue, who is in the barn in the rear of Melburn's morgue, 5050 State street, Monday morning and viewed the remains of what are now positively identified as those of Mrs. Annie Bartholin, mother of the much-sought William Bartholin, who is thought to have murdered his mother and his sweetheart, Minnie Mitchell. The Chicago American has offered a reward of $1,000 for information which will lead to the discovery of the murderer of the two women.

At first Thompson said he thought it was the body of his former landlady that he saw. The features were almost extinct. When closely questioned by Inspector Hunt he said he was sure it was Mrs. Bartholin. At this a shiver was seen to pass over the man's body, and he turned away. Thompson is now asking the police to allow him to go to the county jail. The man is in such a nervous state that it is feared he will collapse. The police assert that the man has made no statement that will throw any light on the case, but from his condition Inspector Hunt believes he knows more than he has already told. The inspector has about 50 detectives working on the case under his command. A detail is at work looking up young Bartholin's actions since July 7, at which time it is believed the first murder, that of the mother, was committed. Detectives at the Englewood police station under Capt. Madden started out in the morning on the search for Bartholin.

FIREBUG AT WORK.

Applies the Torch to a Number of Buildings in Peoria, Illinois.

Peoria, Ill., Aug. 12.—The police and fire department were kept on the jump Monday by the operations of a firebug. The torch was applied to five buildings during the day, and though the actual fire loss will not exceed $25,000, with an insurance of about $12,000, the flames at one time threatened to sweep a large section of the city. The police arrested Edward Flanagan, 20 years of age, residing at 320 First avenue, and charged him with being the incendiary. They claim to have direct evidence against him. Shortly after his arrest the mutterings of the crowd made it necessary, as a precautionary measure, to remove the prisoner to the county jail for safe keeping. Since then Flanagan has refused to say a word.

The fire fiend began his work in Peoria about April 1. Up to date he has succeeded in suffocating and burning 55 horses and causing fire damages aggregating many thousands of dollars. When the Clark flouring mills fire broke out Monday Flanagan was seen looking in through a window, and was seen to throw something into the building and then walk hurriedly around the block. He was followed, and after the department had arrived at the fire he returned and watched them work. He was watching the fire when the police arrested him.

Building Blown Down.

Allentown, Pa., Aug. 12.—During a violent wind and rainstorm late Tuesday afternoon the new three-story brick store and residence of Frank J. Schroth was leveled to the ground and Mr. Schroth, who was at work on the roof, was thrown to the ground and instantly killed. Eight other men were at work in the building. All, however, escaped injury except John Kransley, whose ribs were crushed and shoulder squeezed between falling timbers, and Dice Gallagher and Harry Wieder, who sustained severe bruises. Mr. Schroth was 28 years of age.

No Damage by Frost.

Omaha, Neb., Aug. 12.—The thermometer registered 51 early Monday, and in the northern part of the state it went as low as 30. Light frosts are reported over the northern part of this state and southern South Dakota, but no damage was done.

King and Queen of Great Britain in Coronation Costume.

choir singing "O, God, Our Help in Ages Past." Preceding the regalia came the boys of Westminster abbey, followed by the children of the chapel royal and the choir in royal uniforms.

The Queen's Arrival.

The archbishop of Canterbury took his seat in front of the coronation chair, and the earl of Halsbury, the lord high chancellor, seated himself by his side. Several minutes elapsed, however, before the king and queen came in sight of those gathered about the inkstand was brought, and the king signed the oath. He did not advance to the altar, but sat in the chair he had occupied since the service began. While the choir sang "Come, Holy Ghost, Our Souls Inspire," the king remained seated and the queen stood up.

The Anointing Ceremony.

After the archbishop's anointing prayer a gold canopy was brought over the king's chair and his majesty divested himself of his outer robe and then walked to the ancient chair, while the choir sang Seadok's anthem. The anointing ceremony was scarcely seen owing to the canopy. The spectators were just able to discern the archbishop of Canterbury's motions.

After the prayer the king donned the colobium sindonis, then resumed his seat, and from a scarlet, silken roll on which the prayers were printed in large type and which was held by the dean of Westminster, the archbishop of Canterbury read the prayers and delivered the sword to the king, who did not go to the altar, the sword being taken to him by the dean of Westminster while his majesty remained standing. The armilla and the orb were then delivered to the king, according to the programme. When the king held out his hand for the ring, the archbishop of Canterbury had difficulty in finding it, but finally, with trembling hands, he placed it on the tip of his majesty's finger, reading the prayer simultaneously, the king himself completing the process of putting on the ring as he withdrew his hand.

The King Crowned.

Later the archbishop had similar difficulty, owing to near-sightedness, in placing the crown on the king's head. In fact, the choir started "God Save the King" while the archbishop of Canterbury was still striving to place the crown on the ruler's head, and a great shout went up and the electric lights were turned on.

Pay Homage to the King.

After singing "Be Strong and Play the Man" and the Bible having been presented, the king advanced and knelt while he received the benediction. He then walked to the great throne, where he stood on the dais for the first time, surrounded by nobles. The archbishop of Canterbury followed, the king being obliged to stand while awaiting the arrival of the archbishop. Having placed the king into his new throne, the archbishop knelt and paid homage, the aged prelate scarcely being able to rise until the king assisted him and himself raised the arch-the throne. Suddenly "Vivat Alexandra!" was shouted by the boys of Westminster, and the queen, walking slowly to the left of the throne, gained her chair and knelt at a silken prie dieu, her magnificent train of cloth of gold being lifted out of her way by six scarlet-coated pages.

King's Approach Delayed.

Two or three minutes later came the hoarse cry from the Westminster boys of "Viva rex Edwardus!" with blasts from trumpets. Yet there was another wait. "What has become of the king?" was asked by people who were shut out from sight of the nave. The queen waited patiently, the organ ceased and then resumed, there was another fanfare of trumpets, another chorus of "vivats" and King Edward appeared and walked to his chair in front of the throne, bowing to the queen as he passed, and then knelt down in prayer. After removing his somewhat unbecoming cap his majesty stood up and the archbishop of Canterbury, in a trembling voice, read the

A Miraculous Feat.

"It seemed that nothing short of a miracle could save my little daughter from an untimely death," says City Marshall A. H. Malcolm, of Cherokee, Kan. In the death of Senator James McMillan who died Sunday at his summer home at Manchester-by-the-Sea, Mass., the Republican party has lost one who has been looked upon as its leader for the past 15 years. He was a striking illustration of the powerful self-made men who are one by one dropping off. He was not only an orator, but he was nevertheless one of the most influential senators in the house, and his counsel and advice were largely sought not only by his colleagues in the senate but by both President McKinley and President Roosevelt. An able man has gone from among us in his death.

Unless some unforeseen contingency arises Governor Bliss will not make an appointment to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Senator James McMillan.

The Democrats of Sylvan township will meet in caucus in the town hall in the village of Chelsea, on the 16th day of August, A. Celebrated Her Silver Jubilee.

The silver jubilee of Mother Camilla, the Mother Superior of St. Joseph's Academy, Adrian, was celebrated at the academy Aug. 4 with considerable eclat. Solemn high mass was said at 9:30 a. m. and a sermon by Dr. Reilly followed.

Over 100 sisters of the Dominican order were in attendance coming from the different houses in the province over which Mother Camilla is the presiding authority, and which embraces the diocese of Detroit and a part of Ohio. At 8 p. m. a reception was held in the recreation hall of the academy, when an address was read by Sister Evangelista, some fine selections of music sung by the sisters, and then came the "Drama of the Habeas Corpus," a little farce written by Dr. Reilly, the "counts" embodied in this writ being exactly the same as the evidence established in the habeas corpus case instituted by Mrs. Smerling in the circuit court, wherein not only was every charge refuted, but the converse as positively proven.

At the close of the reading of the habeas corpus, the Mother Superior was ordered to stand up, and she was deluged with a shower of $150 silver dollars from the barrel of a silver gun that had been prepared, and which was the sentence contained in the finding of the court on the counts contained in the writ. When Mother Camilla went to St. Joseph's Academy, she found it in debt $19,000, with 40 old people inmates of the hospital and a revenue of $40 a month to keep it up. The hospital was changed into a school in the fall of 1896 there being then 16 pupils, 13 of whom were from Chelsea and vicinity. Last year there were 160 pupils and two additions have had to be made to the buildings one of which is now being built.

Hard luck attended the Detroit News-Tribune that were intended for Chelsea subscribers last Sunday. The first lot were thrown off the paper train early in the morning and fell in front of an east-bound freight train, the wheels of the cars grinding them to pieces. A second lot was telegraphed for. They were carried through to Jackson on the fast express and sent back on an east-bound excursion train that did not stop here. The sack when thrown from the car struck a fence post and rebounded under the wheels of the train and these papers were likewise ground up. So, the News-Tribune readers had to do without their papers.

Charming Gowns for September Fetes.

MANY of the early fall gowns are now being made, and in fact a number are already completed. Judging from those I have seen, I should say the fall season at such places as Lenox, and others of the fashionable fall resorts will show a wealth of extravagance that has never before been equaled.

The fall season is enjoying a growing measure of popularity with each succeeding season, and more elaborate preparations are made for it now than was the case but a very few years ago. It is society's time out of doors, and it is safe to say the people of wealth enjoy the brilliant fetes they are constantly arranging to a greater extent than they do either the shut-in pleasures of the winter, or the hot weather gayeties at Newport and elsewhere in the summer.

The illustration is of a beautiful gown that has been made for a fair matron who will spend the fall season at Lenox, and it will certainly attract a great amount of attention even among the many elaborate wardrobes that are sure to be there. It is fashioned of white satin mousseline veiled with chiffon of a delicate tea-rose yellow, which lends a curiously lovely softness to the pure white Irish crochet lace, which is the dominant, and fashionable, fabric of the dress. And on this lovely lace comes a decorative device applique in fine white cloth outlined with a silken stitchery, and here and there combined with encircling wreaths of white roses, whose outer petals of cleverly folded satin ribbon inclose an inner softness of chiffon, the bordering wreaths of blossoms at the trailing skirt-hem drooping over an en forme flounce of shirred and gathered yellow chiffon. So much for the skirt, and then the novel bodice is made with bolero fronts cut short above a deep-draped waistband of shimmering golden tissue patterned with faintly pink and mauve flowers, while at the back the lace with its applique of cloth is continued in the form of two long coat tails, whose transparency reveals a lining of yellow chiffon. For the rest, there is a little yoke of the golden tissue outlined with a trail of the ribbon roses and then giving place to a vest formed of crossed folds of the softly gathered chiffon.

The Latest Novelties in Coiffures.

THREE OF THE LATEST COIFFURES.

BUT a few years ago for any one to intimate that a lady was wearing a wig, or that all the hair of her head had not been placed there by nature was to insult her grossly. Wigs were, in those days, counted an abomination, and while no doubt many wore them, few told of it. To-day the wigs have given place to the "transformations," which are the same thing under a new name, but "transformations" are fashionable and not to be dispised, and they are made up in all the latest coiffures.

The whirl of society has assumed such a swift pace that the overcrowded society maid or matron, and especially the later, had to find some solution for the difficult problem of hair dressing. The solution was the "transformation." It accomplishes a double purpose as it saves her an infinity of time and trouble, and gives her own hair a rest from the constant waving and curling which would otherwise be necessary.

The illustrations shown here are of three of the latest coiffures, and may be either "transformations," or the natural hair dressed in these ways. A popular style for evening is that in which the lightly waved hair is parted at one side in front, and drawn lightly and loosely across the forehead, and then at the back forms a deftly-twisted coil—ow in the neck, and escaping from the bondage of sundry tortoiseshell loop-pins, one soft curl falls over the left shoulder. It only remains to add that wreath of blossoms (whose pink and white petals glitter here and there with diamond dew-drops) to present to the admiring notice of all eyes, and the critical scrutiny of any operaglasses, a quite perfect and charming coiffure.

Pretty Modes in Early Fall Hats.

FIRST models of the early fall hats are beginning to appear at the more fashionable milliners, though it is not yet time to begin buying them, and will not be until about the 1st of September. In both shapes and trimmings Paris seems to be dictating what we shall wear to a great extent, but it is an easy matter to submit to the dictations of such an artist as Paris is proving herself to be this season.

Black hats will be much favored judging from present displays, and of these the kind I like best are those of lamballe shape, with creamy white under the brim, plaited chiffon or white roses, etc., and with two black paradise plumes, one curving out from under the brim and the other from above the brim, one just over the other, and both drooping over the left side together. Another whim of the black hat is to sport a white plume—"to show the white feather," as was remarked; and this is a note of which the Parisienne is at all times peculiarly fond.

Such quaint turbans are coming from Paris also. I expect they are of Caroline Reboux's invention. The real genuine turban shape are some of these, but often embellished on the brim, or, one might say, applied with flowers; and sometimes these are of jet, in which case the turban would be white.

A charming picture hat that I have seen on the street within the last few days is of a fine black crinoline, trimmed with plumes of the new and fashionable bright green shade with black velvet ribbon. Another that is very much the same is of a crinoline trimmed all in black.

ELLEN ORMOND.

STORING WATER FOR CROPS.

Work to This End That is Being Done by the Geological Survey in California.

The state of California is particularly alive to the value latent in its running streams. This is largely due to the object lesson presented in the remarkable increase in land values and productive capacity of sections where the water supply has been intelligently utilized, says the Washington Star. Several thousand dollars were raised by private subscription for a thorough investigation of the supply to be obtained from certain watersheds in the state, and the subscribing organizations made application to the hydrographic branch of the United States geological survey for careful measurements of flow and other investigations relative to the existing conditions of forestry and topography upon three typical watersheds.

As a result of these studies, conducted by J. B. Lippincott, hydrographer of the geological survey in California, it was found possible to obtain an annual output of nearly 650,000 acre-feet of water, or enough to cover annually an area of that extent to a depth of one foot, the esti-

RIGHTS OF NAVAJO WOMAN.

She Alone, of All Indian Squaws, Enjoys a Portion of Great Social Independence.

The Navajo woman, who has made her tribe the most famous of all living Indian races by means of her great and excellent invention, the Navajo blanket, occupies a social position of great independence. Her property rights are carefully respected, she owns much of the wealth of the tribe, and her children belong to her alone. A woman may have hundreds of sheep when she marries, and not one becomes the property of her husband. Descent is traced through the female line. It is a survival of the primitive matriarchate, says a western writer.

The Navajo woman has no permanent home. The progress of the tribe has been greatly impeded by its dark superstition that every death is caused directly by Chinde, the devil, and that evil spirits linger about the dead body. The house is never occupied again. The corpse is buried in the floor, and the house pulled down over it, and a Navajo would freeze before he would make a fire upon the logs of one of these deserted heaps. So the Navajo "hogan" is a poor, temporary affair, JUDGE GEORGE H. DURAND.

Judge Durand, of Flint, who has been nominated for governor by the democrats of Michigan, is one of the leaders of the Genesee county bar and has lived in Flint for upward of twenty years. He was appointed to the supreme court bench in 1892 to fill a vacancy. He has been judge of his home county circuit court. He always has been in democratic circles, but in the last six years has not been active. He did not seek the gubernatorial nomination, but has accepted of it which he, as a loyal and good citizen, could not shrink.

mated cost of capacity being about $8 per acre. The water could be obtained in storage reservoirs and from pumping plants to be operated electrically by power generated by the neighboring streams.

It is believed that the addition to the resources of the state of this amount of water for irrigation purposes would be sufficient to support an additional 100,000 people, and would add in farm values fully $20,000 to the taxable property of the state, irrespective of the increase in town and city property which would of necessity follow.

a mere circular hut of logs and stones, with a hole in the roof for the smoke and a blanket for the door. In the summer the Navajo woman loves to move into a brush "wickiup," made of greasewood boughs. There she sets up her loom in the shadow of the rocks, and lives in the open air all summer.

Sudden Death. In Rice county, Kan., the other day, a 12-year-old boy was playing about the field where his father was harvesting. Presently a rabbit jumped up and the boy started after it. He had pursued the rabbit perhaps a hundred yards, laughing and shouting, when suddenly a bolt of lightning struck him dead.

HOW "PIE" STOLE THE MILK.

Odd as is the incident shown in the accompanying picture from the New York Herald, it occurred at least twice last summer on the farm of H. J. Launt, at Lake Cossayuna, Washington county, New York. The first time Mr. Piggy was observed nothing was said about the matter, as it was thought it would be necessary to produce evidence in order to prove him guilty. The second time he was seen engaged in his wicked performance a waiting camera was leveled at him and he was caught. The cow was then promptly removed beyond the reach of the greedy little porker.

With the shipment of 40,000 lumber out of the concern's yard at Kalamazoo, the Kalamazoo Lumber company has closed its rear as a manufacturer and shipper of lumber after 30 years of successful operation at this point. The company was organized in 1861, and has been shipping large amounts of lumber out of this port since that time. It was considered at one time to be the largest lumber manufacturing concern in the world and usual out of all three of its yards has been in the neighborhood of 1,000,000 feet per year. Last year with a cut of 50,000,000, the company cleaned up the last of its timber holdings and the small cargo it shipped has taken the last of the

THE STRIKE AT ROCKY BOTTOM

By J. A. CONWELL.

The board of directors of the Rocky Bottom Mills, a corporation organized under the laws of the state of Ohio, met in session on Monday morning, the 10th inst., to consider the proposition that the works should close or not. Mr. White, president of the company and chief owner of the stock, was present. He was also present at the meeting of the board of directors on Monday morning, the 10th inst., to consider the proposition that the works should close or not. Mr. White, president of the company and chief owner of the stock, was present. He was also present at the meeting of the board of directors on Monday morning, the 10th inst., to consider the proposition that the works should close or not.

"There is a clause in the contract which suspends its operation during a shut-down occasioned by a strike or accident to the machinery," answered the president.

"But there is no strike, and the machinery is all right."

"Suppose, Brother Gray, that a cut of 10 or 15 per cent. should be made in the men's wages, what would be the result?"

"Superintendent Brown can answer that question better than I can," said Mr. Gray, turning toward that officer.

"The men wouldn't work an hour under such a cut," responded the superintendent.

"Just what I expected," continued the president, looking his fingers under his prominent abdomen and twirling his thumbs with satisfaction.

"We'll make the cut, the works will close, we shall avoid possible losses, and at the same time shield ourselves from trouble with the bridge company."

"But our workmen; are their interests not to be taken into consideration?"

"Business is business, Mr. Gray. I am here to look out for my own interests and for those of the other stockholders."

"The men are our neighbors, though not yours, Mr. White. Many of them are friends. Whether they strike or continue to work at the reduced wages, they and their families will be sorely pinched."

"Somebody must be pinched, in any event. If we continue to operate the works at a loss it will be us; if we make the cut it will be somebody else. I'd rather pinch than be pinched any day."

The cut was ordered and the president hurried away to catch the 4:30 train for the city. The remaining directors gathered on the sidewalk, where they were joined by young Harry Brown, an assistant under his father, and others, among whom were John Mason, one of the foremen.

Mason was king among the men in the works. They regarded him as their leader and followed whithersoever he led. Being an intelligent and observing man, he had suspected that the company was not making money and feared some such course as the one adopted. He was, therefore, not taken unawares.

"Of course, we can't work for such wages," said he to Mr. Gray. "We must go out."

"How are the men to live through the winter without work?" inquired the merchant.

"That is what I should like to speak to you about. If we can make some arrangement with you to help us till the winter rises and coal comes down, we'll be O. K."

"Half a loaf is better than no bread, Mason, don't act hastily."

"We should accept the cut it would be all up with us. Our wages'd never be put back to where they are now, never. Mr. White'd say if we can work through the winter for such wages, we can do it through the summer. But we can't do it and live half way decent."

"And if you strike?"

"He'd expect to start up at the old wages as soon as coal comes, and he'd be O. K."

"In what way do you expect me to help you?"

"You have your warehouse filled with everything that we'll need. There are about 400 of us, Mr. Gray, and you know there is not a black sheep among us. If you'll honor our committee's order for supplies we'll obligate ourselves, jointly and severally, to repay you as soon as we get to work again. And two weeks' work, maybe less, will pay the debt. We shall be very grateful for your help. Will you not do for us what you'd like to have some one do for you if you stood in our shoes?"

Gray knew the men, their wives and their children, and, being a man of few words, quick of decision in an emergency, and amply able to comply with the request, he answered: "All right, Mason, I'll do it. But I want you to countersign the orders. Then I'll be sure there's no extravagance."

"Suppose the works should not start up again, Mason?" said Superintendent Brown, a quiet listener till now.

"An improbable contingency. There's too much money in their operation ordinarily to allow them to remain idle very long."

"The old Vulcan mills across the river haven't had a fire lighted in them for five years," continued Mr. Brown.

"Because the concern's in court and can't run till the suit's decided."

Harry Brown and his father, more like brothers than like father and son, turned up a side street that led to their home.

"I think Mr. White must have a paying stone in his breast instead of a heart. What do you think, father?"

"I think, if you want to remain in his employ, you would better be cautious how you criticize him," answered the discreet elder.

"I know. I kept my mouth shut over there in the crowd. I want to open it now. Think of how many things the men and their families will be deprived of if they are forced out."

"Such as a half-day lay-offs, picnics, excursions on the river and so forth."

"Well, shouldn't they have these diversions?"

"Perhaps. But consider the other side a moment. Mr. White told me that unless there was a shut down he could neither take his family abroad next summer nor permit them to spend the season at Newport."

"Do you consider that a hardship?" exclaimed the young man, stopping and turning toward his father.

"Why shouldn't it be? The poignancy of one's disappointment depends upon how one has been reared. May not this be felt quite as keenly by his wife and daughters as the wives and daughters of our men will feel the loss of their brief outings? And if somebody must meet with disappointment and deprivations, you surely do not expect Mr. White to shield the men and their families at the expense of his own wife and daughters. A man must look out for his own first."

"Mr. White looks out for his own first, last and all the time. I can hardly think it right for him to run the risk of bringing suffering to the families of 400 men in order to prevent his wife and four daughters from putting because they can't go to Paris next summer."

The strike had been on for a month. Mr. Gray had disposed of his stock in the works and was no longer treasurer. One evening a number of the idle men had gathered in his store, where he also kept the post office. The river was rising rapidly and the men were discussing the probability of cheap fuel in the near future and the consequent reopening of the works.

Harry Brown was there, too. He had had a good deal of business to transact with the cashier in the store when the works were in operation and the business hadn't seemed to lessen any since the shut-down. The cashier was Mr. Gray's daughter.

While Harry was talking to Miss Gray through the opening in the glass partition behind which was her special domain there was a commotion among the men at the other end of the room. Superintendent Brown had come in with others and appeared to have some interesting information. Harry was called, much to his disgust, and joined the group.

Mr. Gray had received a letter from the president of the Broadway Bridge company. Among other things, he had written:

"I have bought the old Vulcan mills from the litigants and propose to start them as soon as they can be put in shape. I am sure you will do me the favor, Mr. Gray, to accept the presidency of the new company. I know that the best workmen will flock to your standard. I have done with the Rockybottom works."

"Mr. White will certainly sue him for breach of contract," interposed Superintendent Brown.

"Wait a minute, Brown," said Mr. Gray, looking over his spectacles, "and maybe you'll change your opinion." And he continued to read:

"I have bought the old Vulcan mills from the litigants and propose to start them as soon as they can be put in shape. I am sure you will do me the favor, Mr. Gray, to accept the presidency of the new company. I know that the best workmen will flock to your standard. I have done with the Rockybottom works."

CONGRESSMAN ALDRICH ENDORSES THE TONIC, PERUNA

Says: "It Will Build Up a Depleted System Rapidly."

Hon. W. F. Aldrich, Congressman from Alaska, writes from Washington, D. C.:

"This is to certify that Peruna, manufactured by The Peruna Medicine Co., of Columbus, O., has been used in my family with success. It is a fine tonic and will build up a depleted system rapidly. I can recommend it to those who need a safe vegetable remedy for debility."—W. F. Aldrich.

H. S. Emory, Vice-Chancellor and Master of Arms, K. P. of Omaha, Neb., writes from 218 North Sixteenth street, the following words of praise for Peruna as a tonic. He says:

Catarrh of Stomach.

"It is with pleasure I recommend Peruna as a tonic of unusual merit. A large number of prominent members of the different Orders with which I have been connected have been cured by the use of Peruna of cases of catarrh of the stomach and head; also in kidney complaint and weakness of the pelvic organs."

"It tones up the system, aids digestion, induces sleep, and is well worthy the confidence of sufferers of the above complaints."—H. S. Emory.

Nervous Debility.

Everyone who is in the least degree subject to nervousness, sleeplessness, prostration, mental fatigue or nervous debility in any form, finds the hot weather of June, July and August very hard to bear, if not dangerous.

The only safe course to take is to keep the blood pure, digestion good, and sleep regular. No remedy equals in all respects, Peruna for these purposes. If the system is run down and weakened by catarrh, Peruna renovates and rejuvenates the nerves and brain.

A book on the catarrhal diseases of summer will be mailed to pay address, upon request, by The Peruna Medicine Co., Columbus, Ohio.

The above testimonials are only two of 50,000 letters received touching the merits of Peruna as a catarrhal tonic. No more useful remedy to tone up the system has ever been devised by the medical profession.

"Well, there's that other straw hat," replied the daughter. "He doesn't wear that one or when he goes to town, he hasn't had it on for two years."

"But it's a nice hat," objected Mrs. Jerome. "It cost a dollar and a half."

"But he doesn't use it, ma," said the daughter. "My dear," said Mrs. Jerome, "you young people are altogether too extravagant in your ideas. I'm not going to let you father wear a good hat in the field, and I can get him one good enough to work in for 50 cents."

Geography and Poker. According to Representative Kyle, this episode happened in Pickaway county, O.:

There is in the county a certain crossroads where a patient teacher struggles daily with the development of the young idea. One morning she was giving the school a lesson in geography.

"What is a cataract?" she asked. There was absolute silence in response, and she explained the meaning of the word.

"What is a cape?" This was better. One of the children knew it was a point of land jutting out into the water.

"What is a strait?" Over in the corner a hand went up. "I know, teacher," said a small boy.

"Well, what is it?" "It beats three of a kind," was the triumphant answer. — Washington Post.
