BASE BALL NOTES.

Another Jackson team went down to defeat before the Junior Stars on Thursday, August 14th. The game was fast and snappy, replete with sensational plays on both sides, the Stars winning by timely hitting and speedy base running securing no less than nine purlined sacks. Out of a possible 27 putouts the BeGole brothers secured 22. The ball seemed to be filled with a desire to do great bodily harm for several of the players, spectators and even horses had to make lively movements to keep out of its way. As it was Arthur Raftery received an awful rap on the cheek which compelled him to retire from the game and L. BeGole received a hard knock for about every pound of his body weight.

The following is the score:

The Pinckney ball team that was to have played with the Junior Stars at this place Saturday afternoon failed to put in an appearance as they promised. Possibly the Pinckney boys thought that it was hardly worth the trouble to come here and receive the defeat that awaited them.

The Ann Arbor Y. M. C. A. and the Junior Stars ball teams will again meet in a game of the national sport at this place on Saturday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock.

The Junior Stars will meet the Mohawks of Detroit, on Friday in two games, one in the forenoon at 10 o'clock and the afternoon game will be at 2:30. The Mohawks are the champion sixteen-year-old team of Detroit.

Mrs. Jennie Hoag Dancer.

A destructive stroke of lightning, in the center of our quiet town, could not have startled our citizens more than did the news of the sudden and untimely departure of Mrs. Wm. J. Dancer of Stockbridge last Friday morning, August 15, 1902.

Mrs. Dancer was the only daughter of Henry G. and Deborah G. Hoag, and was born in Columbia township, Jackson county, on the 25th of December, 1859. She came to Chelsea, with her parents in 1876; united with the Chelsea Congregationalist church March 19 of the same year; and was married to William J. Dancer on the 12 of May, 1885. The next year they set up their own home at Stockbridge, where they have since resided.

Their family, at the time Mrs. Dancer was called away, consisted of one daughter, their oldest child, and five sons, the youngest about three hours old. Thus at the very moment when, to all human appearances, her presence was most indispensable, one of the best of wives, mothers, citizens and friends, in the very midst of life's greatest responsibilities, has been called away. Well may we call to mind the words of the prophet, "My thoughts are not your thoughts, neither are your ways my ways, saith Jehovah."

Mrs. Dancer was a woman of exceptional excellences and virtues in all the relations of life. Her Christianity was not an empty profession, but a divine reality. It was manifest in every thing she did. She was one of the first to propose the organization of the Presbyterian church at Stockbridge, and one of its most active members. Her faithfulness and wisdom in the training of her most interesting family were the wonder and admiration of all who were acquainted with the admirable and happy circles. She will be missed in all the walks of life where her influence and helpfulness have been felt. Notwithstanding the interesting circle that yet remains, O how empty that home will be without her! The bereaved husband and motherless children have the sympathy of all who are acquainted with their irreparable loss and overwhelming sorrow; but no arm can support them, no sympathizing words sustain them, no consoling spirit comfort them, unless they lean upon the almighty arm, confide in the promises of the inspired word, and receive into their very hearts the sustaining influences of the divine Comforter.

Funeral services were held at her late home Monday afternoon, August 18th, attended by a large concourse of neighbors and friends. The casket and the floor beneath the casket were covered with flowers, expressive of the esteem in which she was held, and emblematic of both the beauty of her character and the frailty of her life. The discourse was by Rev. Dr. Holmes of Chelsea, a former pastor and intimate friend of nearly every member of the entire bereaved circle. Her remains were deposited in the Stockbridge cemetery, there to rest in undisturbed repose, until the resurrection morn, when they who sleep in Jesus shall awake to everlasting life.

Ann Arbor Newspaper War.

The answer of the Democrat Publishing Company and S. W. Beakes and D. A. Hammond to the complaint of Chas. J. Johnson, receiver of the Ann Arbor Printing Company, has been filed. It holds that the Argus plant was never a part of the company in a sense that it was owned by the company. It is claimed to have been leased for a certain length of time. Messrs. Beakes and Hammond claim that they never received the stock which the receiver charges was issued to them, and that they never represented for the purpose of getting credit that they were a part of the company. They ask Judge Kinne to dissolve the injunction under which they are held. Cavanaugh & Wedemeyer, Arthur Brown and Thomas A. Bogle are attorneys for Beakes & Hammond, while A. J. Sawyer & Son are looking after the receiver's interests.

Crop Report.

The Michigan crop report for July says the rainfall in the northern peninsula was normal but that in the lower peninsula there was a departure from 2 to 4 inches. The wheat throughout the state has suffered much by reason of the rainy weather making it so difficult to harvest it. The estimated yield in the southern counties is 16, central, 18, northern 17 bushels to the acre. Oats made a larger growth than in other years and the replaced corn throughout the state looks well. The percentage of the potato crop in the state is 78. The bean crop is averaged at 70; sugar beets at 72; clover 103, pasture 105; apples 69, and the peach crop is reported good in the peach belt. The Yellows, the prevailing peach disease, shows itself in many places.

Looking for Ann Arbor Young Man.

Arthur Brooks, son of Dr. Brooks, of Ann Arbor is wanted by Sheriff Gillen. He has been employed at the Pittsfield Junction depot, where he was learning telegraphy. The postoffice is located in the depot building. Monday morning the agent, upon opening up the depot, discovered that there was something wrong. Investigation showed that two mileage books valued at $30 each and $20 worth of postage stamps were missing. A penny in-the-slot candy machine was also rifled. Young Brooks had left and suspicion fastens upon him, as he had a key to the depot.

Chelsea to Four Mile Lake.

Times: It is stated that the million-dollar cement company which is going to locate at Four Mile Lake in the township of Lima has made arrangements with W. A. Boland to push his line from Chelsea to the lake.

The company desires to have some convenient means for its employees to go to and from Chelsea where most of the men will be quartered, and it is stated that they guarantee Mr. Boland a certain amount of business each year. If the road is built as far as Four Mile Lake it is probable that it will be pushed through to Dexter in a short time.

A Boland Open Car Demolished at Michigan Center Curve Sunday.

Jackson Patriot: Sunday afternoon one of the Michigan Center open cars of the Boland line, returning from the lake, was thrown from the track on the Phillips curve. The car was dashing along at a high speed and brought up against a large trolley pole, snapping it as though made of cardboard. The top portion of the pole fell on the car, carrying the trolley wire with it, so that for a time employees had a busy time keeping people away from it.

Passengers were hanging to the railings in clusters and all were thrown headlong. Several were bruised and scratched but none seriously injured.

One elderly woman carrying a babe in her arms, rolled on the ground for quite a distance giving her a bad shaking up and for a time it was thought she had been badly injured. The babe escaped unharmed. The running board of the car, so sharp was the impact, was driven into the pole a number of inches. The car, when stopped, was lying partially tipped, and the passengers state that all that saved the motor from rolling onto its side, and thereby creating havoc, was the presence of the pole, which acted the same as a bumping post on a railroad.

Anything and Everything.

Of the 50,000 tramps in the country about 3,000 get killed each year, largely by the cars and fights among themselves.

When the time comes that the American people will take as much interest in good roads as they do in a prize fight we will have better wheeling.

The successful dairyman will never figure on how cheaply he can keep his cows, but rather on how much nutritious, milk producing food he can get them to eat.

The rainy season "Into each life some rain must fall." If anyone has been omitted this year will they please manifest it by the usual sign of the order! —Batavia News.

One of the most provoking things on earth is a balky horse. One may class it among the trials to which belong a visit from ones mother in-law, or the absence of the hired girl.

The dairymaid of the twentieth century is a husky young fellow in overalls and rubber boots manipulating the complicated machinery of the modern creamery. No poetry about him.

Boarding house keepers and hotel men will still use oleo, buying the coloring matter and working the stuff over to suit the taste of their boarders. For ordinary family consumption this plan will not work.

The isolation and quiet of farm life are not always conducive to godliness, for some pretty mean schemes are occasionally hatched up by the son of toil as he works his fields and communes with nature.

After praying forty years for a baby, a New Jersey couple placed a want ad in a newspaper, and that same night a bouncing boy was left on their doorstep. Prayer is all right if you are not in a hurry, but for quick results use printer's ink.

If you gave your boy a pig or a calf and later sold it and pocketed the proceeds, don't join the church until you have squared up things with the boy. It will be a hard matter to keep him from playing with the cat's tail while you offer the family prayers if you do.

A lady in Kentucky who was in the bee business in a small way, keeping twelve swarms, did well with them until a distillery was started in her neighborhood. After that the bees would go off and get drunk and would not work, just like some animals—man, for instance.

In order to secure a coloring matter for their product the oleomargarine men are trying different experiments, hoping to find some plan whereby they can color the stuff and not violate the law. Here's one for them: They might have the steers whose tallow they use fed on carrots. It works with the cow and might with the steer, though he does his dairy business on a little different plan from the cow.

A newspaper man is an enemy to bulletin board advertising on general principles, but there are occasions when a bulletin board may bring better results than a paper. The editor of an exchange remarks that he observed one in front of a store in his city not long ago, which read: "B 4 U Buy Pants Come in and See Ours." He went in and there was not a confounded man clerk in the store, so he bought a fan and walked out.—Vicksburg Commercial.

Hessian Fly.

Of the 600 reporters who correspond with Director C. H. Schneider of the Michigan crop and weather service, but few give notice of the Hessian fly, which during the last few years cut down Michigan's wheat production from 33,000,000 bushels in 1898 to but little over 10,000,000 bushels in 1901. Had it not been for the excessive rains this season, the production per acre this year would have undoubtedly been normal. The crop service takes pardonable pride in the riddance of the Hessian fly, for by its advice farmers tried the experiment of late sowing in order to dispose of the pest.

TO MY FRIENDS.

It is with joy I tell you what Kodol did for me. I was troubled with my stomach for several months. Upon being advised to use Kodol, I did so, and words cannot tell the good it has done me. A neighbor had dyspepsia so that he had tried most everything. I told him to use Kodol. Words of gratitude have come to me from him because I recommended it.—Geo. W. Fry, Viola, Iowa. Health and strength, of mind and body, depend on the stomach and normal activity of the digestive organs. Kodol, the great reconstructive tonic, cures all stomach and bowel troubles, indigestion, dyspepsia. Kodol cures any good food you eat. Take a dose after meals. Glazier & Stimson.

LOOK PLEASANT, PLEASE.

Photographer C. C. Harlan of Eaton, O., can do so now, though for years he couldn't, because he suffered untold agony from the worst form of indigestion. All physicians and medicines failed to help him till he tried Electric Bitters, which worked such wonders for him that he declares they are a godsend to sufferers from dyspepsia and stomach troubles. Unrivalled for diseases of the stomach, liver and kidneys, they build up and give new life to the whole system. Try them. Only 50 cents. Guaranteed by Glazier & Stimson druggists.

The Daffodils

I wandered lonely as a cloud
That floats on high o'er vales and hills,
When all at once I saw a crowd,
Beside the lake, beneath the trees,
Fluttering and dancing in the breeze.

Continuous as the stars that shine
And twinkle on the milky way,
They stretch'd in never-ending line
Along the margin of a bay:
Ten thousand saw I at a glance
Tossing their heads in sprightly dance.

The waves beside them danced, but they Outdid the sparkling waves in glee;
A poet could not but be gay,
In such jocund company!
I gazed, and gazed, but little thought
What wealth the show to me had brought.

For oft, when on my couch I lie
In vacant or in pensive mood,
They flash upon that inward eye
Which is the bliss of solitude;
And then my heart with pleasure fills
And dances with the daffodils.

"Go way, childrun, de ci' man doan like tellin' no stories 'd'ay. Besides, he only came to de big house
to hol' a private reesepphun wid yoah
who gives de ol' man open house
day. Den, too, de heart am sad, an'
tongue am still in consequence."

"Wat! Yoah jest took it? Now,
pker yere, yoah youngsters, yoah
de Jess doan want nobody to stole him, even if 'tis tobacco. How-ah, seel'n 'tis heah, I guess mebbe at might effec' de loostation o' my seeh, so I'll tell yoah 'bout dat very son Jim o' mine. Nebber heard of well, well. Ol' Jess doan o' an ol' things wat make his heart jump
his wuthless brack breast."

"Yoah see, childrun, dis happened
when yoah gran'paw wah a young man must er been eround six years before yoah pap wah born. De trube
'tween de Noath and de South had broke out, an' de sogers wah fittin' all der de country. De niggahs on our face wah all satisfied, an' de did'n
abe no fool ideas erbout runnin' way to de Noath. De mahstah, yoah gran'paw, wah a shoah 'nuf angel, he ah, an' de niggahs eround er died fer
him, de would, indeed."

"De tattered coat sleeve touched the old man's eyes where a few drops of moisture had suddenly appeared.
"De hide of de ol' man am wrinkled an' cracked now, but in de happy days befoah de wah he can see de mahstah in his big cheer at de table,
all de fine ladies an' gemman
about him, an' de same table jes' a breakin' wid good eatin's. In dem days de cabins o' de field hands wah ebber widout der flap-jacks an' poak
eat, an' de feet o' de wimmen wah
brays er dancin'."

"Den, as I says, de trouble brecks
out. We didn't spect ter see no Yankee sogers in our part o' de valley, an'
de mahstah might er staid dere widout goin' ter fight at all. Course he didn't do nothin' o' de kind, but he one offered his services to de state to help whip de Yankees. It wasn't very long befoah he wah made a effen't, an' Jess doan followed him rough all. When de boss lef' foah de port he say to me an' de othah men:
"Jess, yoah are to go wid me if yoah likes. Othahwise yoah may fine yo' o' de othah han's wat might enter go Noath. I gives any one der freedom to leabe ef de wants ter go."

"Well, sir, not a niggah moved,
sept yoah Uncle Jess, an' he only sept up a little clusser to de ol' mahstah.

"Thank yoah all," yoah gran'dad
say quiet like. "I'll leabe yoah all to look care o' de place till I returns.
Come on, Jess, an' he went er ridin'
de mad down de road wid de tears
streamin' from his purty eyes. Well,

must have cost him foity dollahs."

Again de suspicious moisture glist-ened in the half-closed eyes and the contracted wrinkles drew the wizened
old face into a queer grimace.
"But wat of Jim, Uncle Jess; did
he get away, too?"

"Hush, chile, hush! Doan yoah see yoah poah ol' uncle am not well ter-

o' dat Jim o' mine cried softly:
"Oh, daddy, daddy! Git de mahstah erway quick. De sogers hab cotched all de han's in de bahn, an'
deys comin' here now fer de mahstah.
I jes' got out foah de took de bahn."

"Well, childrun, de brain of de ol'
man wucked purty fast den, yoah can bet.

"Yeah, Jeems," I says, 'Tse gotter
stay wid him, so yoah must help yoah dad ter save him. Lemme whisper in yoah brack year.' I tote him wat ter do an den turned ter mahstah, who wah sittin' at de table jes' like he wah dreamin'. Dat wah on account o' de sorrow touchin' of his soul, yoah
know.

"Mahstah, do wat I tells 'yoah
now an' foller ol' Jess' I said. 'Gimme dat purty sojer coat o' yourn a minute. Thank yoah, sah. Now, Jeems, take it, an' lemme kiss yoah
big thick lips fer yer an yoah mam-
my. Nox scoot."

"De boy, he wah only 'bout eighteen years ol', he wah, frew de big coat erbout him an' jes' as de sogers wah erbout to come in de front doah he jumped from de back an' started like a jack rabbit fer de woods wat leads inter Mahstah's swamp. He wah in plain sight, an' de sogers, seel'n de officer's coat by de light o' de bright moon, all trailed aftah him like a dog aftah a coon. Frum de windah I sah
some little dist specks jump up in de road neah de boys feet, but he kept on er dodglin' an' er dodglin' wid de
"cracks," "cracks" makin' music be-

The Senatorship.
When told that President Roosevelt would probably convene the senate in extra session in November, Gov. Bliss
said:
"Well, that may affect my position
with reference to filling the vacancy caused by Senator McMillan's death."
"Then you may name his successor?"
"Well, just say that the proposed
extra session may affect the situation.
It won't right away, but I'll think it
over."

W. J. Bryan has written a letter in which he says: "I shall not be a candidate for the presidency in the next campaign, and I may add, I have no choice beyond the desire to see some one nominated who was loyal, not only to the ticket, but to the platform, in 1896 and 1900."

THE MARKETS.

A cattle dealer says: "Cattle will be lower for a time for the medium grades, but this winter they will be higher. Good cattle will remain steady, and will be in good demand.
You will find that next year there will be comparatively few poor cattle shipped in here, and the year after fewer yet. The reason for this is that the farmers of Michigan have quit raising scrub cattle, and started into blooded stock that will make beef and a profit for the owner. They realize that they have been feeding for nothing too long. Red Polls and Durhams are coming to be popular, because of beef qualities. You will find the thin and small cattle growing very scarce and none of the small breeds can be sold for breeding purposes at any price. I think this winter will be a good one for feeding. There will be less cattle got rid of this year than last on that account and therefore they will be higher."

PAWNING A $1,000 BILL

Of a man with a thousand-dollar bill in his pocket and no smaller amount of money, a story has been written that traced him through many experiences and took him to the verge of starvation. But, as a matter of fact, one man who had nothing smaller than a one-thousand-dollar bill got through the difficulty very easily in this city a few nights ago.

Ten of these coveted promissory notes of the United States had been paid to him in the afternoon. In the pursuit of business and a modicum of pleasure he had, after the receipt of his $10,000, spent the last dime he possessed other than the big bills.
He was with some friends, any one of whom could and would have accommodated him with sufficient money for his needs, but a discussion arose about what he would do if he were a stranger in the city and had no money other than that which was in his pocket.

"I wouldn't care if I were dressed
as a beggar," he said. "I can get all I want so long as I have a one-thousand-dollar bill in my pocket."

"You would be arrested or turned down if you tried to use it," said one.
"There are not many places where $1,000 in change is kept handy. Besides, most people would be shy of taking such a bill from any of us.
We don't look as though we carried one-thousand-dollar bills around in our pockets."

"Well," said the man with the $10-000, "I'll bet a basket of champagne with the bunch that I can spend my money as freely as though these were five-dollar bills instead of what they are, and I won't have any trouble about it, either. I'll get change the first time I try it, too, or lose the bet.

And I won't go to any man who knows
me."

The wager was accepted, and the man with $10,000, taking one friend
with him, walked out to a pawn shop.
He said to the clerk only this:

"I have received $10,000 in ten bills.
They are mine and were come by honestly. It is difficult for me, a stranger, to get a one-thousand-dollar bill changed. Here are the ten bills.
Look at them. I need some money,
and I want to pawn one of these bills for $25. If you are afraid of me, call up police headquarters and I will satisfy the people there by papers that I can show that I am honest. Or, if you like, call up Mr. —, who paid
the money to me, and he will tell you
if I am all right."

The pawnbroker looked at him
keenly for a second and then said:

"I never took money as a pledge,
but you are sober and seem all right,
and you can have the $25. Give me
the one-thousand-dollar bill."

The pawnbroker examined the bill carefully and then, to the astonishment of the others, took another one-thousand-dollar bill out of his safe and compared them. Then, just as he would make out a ticket for a ring
or a watch, he issued a ticket for a
"one-thousand-dollar bill," turned over the $25 and closed the transaction.—New York Tribune.

CANNON OF GEORGE III.

From deadly implements of war
turned by the enemy against the sons of the land in which they have for more than a century reposed to instruments useful in the furtherance of peaceful industrial pursuits in that same country, is the remarkable transition through which two large cannon now in the works of the Keystone Bridge Company have passed. Captured, it is supposed, by Gen. Gates at the battle of Saratoga, one of the most important engagements of the revolution, the cannon were placed in the Pittsburg arsenal early in the last century and remained there as scavengers until 1893, when they were bought by the old Shiffler Bridge Company and placed in the mill to be used as compressors. There for almost 33
years the old guns have done service,
and no better tools of their kind could be found.

In a dark corner of the dingy plant,
hidden from sight, the greater part of the time by the great weights surrounding them, and smeared with grease and grime, the old cannon still retain their usefulness, and beneath
all the grease the royal coat-of-arms
of the proud King George III. stand out, the sole reminders of the days in which they boomed in the service of the king. The royal crest is glossy to the old touchholes of the guns. Instead of powder there is now inserted in the touchholes of both pieces a prosaic water pipe that in no way seems to belong there. Before they enlisted in the industrial service of the Keystone Bridge company the heads of both cannon were removed, so that they are now open at both ends.

Through the great sixteen-inch bore water is pumped and is forced out by long cylinders that are burdened by 60,000 pounds of steel. This tremendous weight is released and, settling the cylinders, forces them through the bore of the cannon. Before them goes the water that is thrown through the pipes against a machine known as an "upsetter." At the other end of this machine the "T" bars used in bridge
construction are placed and the ends,
heated to a white heat, are locked into the "upsetter." The force of the water from the cannon pushes the machine
against the end of the bar and starts
the head, that is later finished in the big five-ton hammer. Day after day these huge guns have performed this humble work, and when one looks at the proud crest of the King of England he wonders if, were they possessed of life, they would not feel humiliated at this sad fall from their former calling—that of battling for glory and victory and empire.—Pittsburg Leader.

A MILLIONAIRE'S REPAST

Jones and Smith happened to meet at the same table in a restaurant.

"Do you dine at this place often?"
asked Jones.

"Quite often," said Smith. "It is moderate in price, at least for the common dishes; the cooking is excellent, the service good and everything is clean."

"It is pretty well patronized, too,"
observed Jones. "A good many merchants and stock exchange men come here for their meals."

"Yes. What are you going to order?"

"I think I'll take a steak, a glass of claret and a pudding, or something of that kind. A man on a small salary can't afford a swell dinner."

"That's a fact. We've got to curb our appetites. I'm going to try veal cutlets, breaded, a few vegetables, an omelet souffle, and a pint of porter. I can't spend more than three or four shillings for a mere lunch."

"That's about the figure for me.
Now, if I could afford such a meal as Tubbles over there at that table in the corner is about to order, I'd have something worth talking about."

"You bet. What do you suppose Tubbles is worth?"

"He's worth $1,000,000."

Jones and Smith looked enviously at the table in the corner, where the rich man, with the bill of fare before him,
was knitting his brows and pursing up his mouth in the effort to decide what he wanted. After studying the printed slip from top to bottom several times
he seemed to have come to a conclusion.

"Waiter," he said to the official standing respectfully by, "bring me a roll and butter and a cup of coffee."

PROGRESS MADE UNDER WOMEN.

Remarkable Coincidences in Reigns of English Queens.

It is worthy of observation that the three greatest periods of English literature and remarkable military conquest occurred under three women—Elizabeth, Anne and Victoria. The reign of Queen Elizabeth, which lasted forty-five years (1558-1603) received an unflattering luster from Shakespeare, Bacon, Sidney, Spenser and Ben Johnson, and is forever associated with the defeat of the Spanish Armada. Unlike her predecessor, Queen Anne was an indolent woman of ordinary capacity. But in her short reign of twelve years (1702-1714) we had Addison, Congreve, Defoe, Pope, Prior,
Swift and other authors; Newton and Berkeley, with their valuable discoveries in science, then truly in its infancy; the great Duke of Marlborough winning his brilliant victories, and the union of England and Scotland.

But it was in the reign of Queen Victoria—the longest in British annals—that the greatest advances were made in all departments of human knowledge, says the Boston Transcript. This reign of nearly sixty-four years witnessed great literary achievements, great contributions to art and music, tremendous progress

in medical science, the prolongation
of human life and the alleviation of human suffering, the abolition of ancient abuses and extraordinary strides
in education and philanthropy.

High Prices Paid Singers.

The highest figure ever paid to a singer at Covent Garden was the sum of $48,000, paid to Mme. Adelina Patti in 1870 for sixteen appearances. Mme.
Patti has, however, beaten this record
in her American tours, when she has obtained, as she did at New Orleans,
as much as $6,000 a night.

M. Jean de Reszke holds the record for male singers; his contract for sixteen appearances being $36,000, while the famous Polish tenor never fails to stipulate for free hotel expenses and a certain sum for carriage and horses.
The famous Lasalle has always drawn his $2,000 a performance, and during the Golden Jubilee of 1887 he appeared with the two De Reszkes at one time on the stage, the aggregate of their nightly salaries amounting to
over $5,000.

The tree of knowledge is not the tree of life.

The Klondike Gold Mystery.

By JOHN R. MUSICK.

Author of "Mysterious Mr. Howard," "The Dark Stranger," "Charlie Allendale's Double," etc.

Copyright, 1917, by HENRY BOWMAN'S SONS. All rights reserved.

"We've got one on 'em wounded, an' he's make most out o' him we kin make. Let's not go an' get like a bull passel o' fools as don't know what we're doin' now. Save him an' we'll get Crack Lash's dust back an' we'll hang all four together; you all know that's much better'n hangin' one at a time."

The life of the captive was spared for the time being, and the miners proceeded at once to organize themselves into a vigilance committee, preparatory to stopping crime at the very beginning in their new settlement.

Lying on a low couch in one of the shanties was the hero of this story, known as the Klondike as Crack Lash Paul. His wounds were severe, and he was in a feverish condition. One of the miners who had some knowledge of medicine and surgery had extracted the ball and dressed the wounds. The name of the doctor who perhaps never been known. In the Klondike he was only called "Sawbones."

The patient's face was flushed and his eyes closed. His quick breathing and nervous movements indicated that he suffered mentally as well as physically.

"Be quiet," whispered "Sawbones" in the ear of his patient. "Here, take this." He raised the head of the wounded youth and gave him a spoonful of nerve-quieting medicine. He drank it off, and then lay back on his bed and slept. The doctor arose from the low stool at the side of the couch and went out.

He quickly turned his gaze toward every projecting branch within range of his vision. A look of disappointment came over his face as his eyes searched in vain for some object.

"What have you done with him?" he asked of a miner who was going by.

"Nothin'," was the answer.

"What, hasn't you hung him yet?"

"No."

"Why?"

"Glum Ralston said not."

"What's the matter with Glum?"

"Has he got bats in his belfry?" roared the infuriated doctor.

"Hold on, Sawbones; don't get off your trolley until something's on the track. I tell ye Glum's all right." He then proceeded to explain matters to the irate doctor, assuring him that he would yet have the satisfaction of seeing the robber lifted high enough to get a bird's-eye view of the new Jerusalem, but explained that in order to get the others they must keep the powers of speech in the one they had.

"Well, with that explanation I cave in," growled Sawbones. "But I don't want any feelin' o' sentimentality rooming around this camp. We don't come of a forgivin' stock, we don't." The patient slept for several hours, and when he awoke as evening began to draw near he was much improved. But he recovered slowly, and so did the prisoner. The latter's wound, however, was more severe than Paul's, and for a time his case seemed doubtful. The doctor impressed with the hope that some information would be obtained from the wounded man, used his skill to the utmost to bring about a speedy recovery.

When Paul was able to walk about he insisted on going to his shanty to investigate it, though he was so weak he had to sit down on a sluice box to rest before he approached the door.

When he had rested sufficiently he arose and, unlocking the door, entered the shanty. He searched the room carefully for some clue that might have been dropped by one of the attacking party after they entered the room, but for a long time found none.

At last he discovered in a narrow crack between the logs and chinking what seemed to be a bit of paper wadded up and thrust into the hole. He went to it, pulled it out, and it proved to be an envelope stained with blood.

The envelope was stuck in the crack near the corner where the wounded outlaw had fallen and Paul at once examined the put it there. He took the paper out of the envelope and gazed at the handwriting in amazement. It ran as follows:

"San Francisco, Sept. 1, 1895.

"Inclosed find transportation and money sufficient to pay your way to Jensen. Whatever you do, remember that Paul Miller is not to return to Fresno. Do him no harm if you can accomplish your ends without violence, but at all hazards keep him two years longer in the Klondike."

"L. T."

He read the mysterious paper again. He turned it over and looked on the back. Who was "L. T." and why should he wish to keep him in Alaska? There seemed to be something slightly familiar about the chirography, but he was not certain. Having a clue to the mystery, he sat down to study the puzzle.

The more he read the note the more he was puzzled and the farther he seemed to get from the solution.

"There has been a carefully laid plot to ruin me," he said to himself, as he sat upon the stool trying to study the missive. "Who is 'L. T.', and why should he wish me to remain in the Klondike?"

He left the shanty, carefully locking the door after him, and was making his way to the cabin at which he had stayed since the attack, when he met Glum Ralston.

"Hello, Crack Lash, gettin' under way again?"

"I am able to be out, Glum," he answered.

"Glad on it, boy—glad on it."

The ex-sailor was about to pass on when the young man said:

"I want to talk some with you, Glum. There was a deep-laid plot to rob and murder me. I have an enemy or enemies—I know not how many—who have designs on my happiness."

Ralston was not a man to be moved by emotion or jump at a conclusion. He sat a long time listening to the unquestionable evidence of the youth. When he had finished there was no longer a doubt that here was a conspiracy to injure Crack Lash, and perhaps take his life. A new light was breaking in on him and he became more interested in the youth than he had been.

"M-well, Crack Lash, I think we'd better run 'em down. Wonder how many we kin git to go with us."

"I want no one but you, Glum," said the youth. "You and I are enough, for I can trust you, which is more than I care to do with all. I believe that if I can capture those men they will not only tell me where to find my lost treasure, but also inform me who this enemy 'L. T.' is."

"Then by the trident o' Neptune we'll go an' never stop until we find them."

After consulting the matter, they decided to keep their departure a secret from their companions, and decided to start before they were awake next morning. During the night a snowstorm raged. Next morning long before the miners were astir our two friends were attired in furs, with several dogs, provisions, blankets and rifles, and set off on snow-shoes in search of the three men who had robbed and so nearly killed Paul several weeks before.

Glum Ralston had received reliable information that the men he wished to find were in a valley up the Yukon, and they acted on that information. They found the snow still falling, though it was not very cold. For several miles they trudged along on the snowshoes in silence. At last Glum said:

"Stop!"

"Why?" asked Paul.

"We'll rest."

"I am not tired."

"Ye don't think ye are, mate, but you'll have all the wind out o' yer sails afore ye know it. Set down."

There was a log lying near, and both sat upon it.

"I am sufficiently rested, so let's go on," said the youth, after a short rest, starting to his feet.

"Don't be too certain ye know ye kin stand it, lad. I tell ye it's a long voyage 'n you think, an' there's rough sailin' between this an' the Chilkoot."

They reached Dawson City next day at noon. As Paul was still weak, he secured a room in the hotel and went to bed to rest. Being overcome by weariness and the journey, he was soon buried in profound slumber.

He was awakened by some one shaking him by the shoulder and whispering:

"Tumble up, Crack Lash."

"What is it, Glum?" he asked, starting up and rubbing his eyes.

"They're here."

"Who?"

"The rascals that robbed ye, I saw 'em face of one o' them tellers we'd seen a-hangin' around our diggin's before you were robbed, an' I'd bet my wolf-skin cap 'th' others ain't far off."

Paul Miller hastily donned his furs and buckled his revolver about his waist. He realized how dangerous an encounter would be and he knew he might be a corpse in twenty minutes. He breathed a silent prayer for Laura, mother, and lastly himself, and whispered:

"I'm ready."

They went down to the room below, where they found a wild crowd carousing, but no sign of the man who was suspected of being an accomplice in the robbery.

"Wait at the door, Crack Lash," Glum whispered.

The ex-sailor left him and hurried away. He was gone but a few minutes when he hurried to his side, saying:

"They're gone."

"Where?"

"Up the Yukon; we'll find 'em in the valley."

"Let's go at once," said Paul. They set out for the upper valley. An Esquimaux was engaged to take them several miles on his dog sleds, and from there they traveled on foot, sleeping on the snow securely wrapped in their blankets.

On the morning of the third day they came upon the trail of these men and followed it until nightfall. Next morning they were early on their trail again, and after four hours' hard travel Glum Ralston said:

"There they are, Crack Lash!"

He pointed down a narrow valley which diverged from the main valley, and three specks could be seen upon a slight elevation.

Glum Ralston was an experienced scout, and began at once to put in play his woodcraft. They crept forward to some trees and advanced rapidly, keeping themselves screened from the observation of the men they were trying to overhaul.

Night fell again without coming up with them, but a glimmer far up the mountain-side told them they had camped there. The pursuers slept and rested a few hours and then again started on the trail.

At last they came in sight of the three men not over two hundred paces away. Raising their rifles, they aborted to them to halt. The fugitives cast quick glances behind, and then, with defiant yells, fled.

Two darted around one side of a huge, projecting cliff that formed the extreme spur of the mountain, and one went the other way. Two rifle shots rang out on the mountain, and one bullet whizzed through the air.

"Ye winged yer man, Crack Lash," cried Glum. "Follow him and I'll give chase to the others."

Paul needed no second command but darted after the man at whom he had fired. The fugitive threw away his gun and fled for life, and for an hour Paul was in doubt whether he was gaining or him or not. At the end of that time, to his great chagrin, he saw him dash into a thick forest of pines and firs.

When next he saw him he was creeping along a ledge five hundred feet above him. With no other thought than the capture of the fugitive and recovery of his treasure, Paul threw off his snowshoes and clambered up the steep precipice with great labor and no little danger. Up he went, heedless of everything but the solution of the mystery which threatened his life and happiness of himself and Laura. He reached the fork and began to climb the great dead limb of a tree which touched the coveted ledge. At that moment he heard a crackling at the root of the tree and became conscious of a descending motion in the limbs to which he clung.

He knew he was falling, and that with the vast mass he must descend into the valley beneath. He left himself rushing downward through the air; he closed his eyes; there came a horrid crash on his ears, and he knew no more.

When Paul regained consciousness he was lying on a pile of skins and furs in a cavern.

A man clothed wholly in bear and seal skins stood over him, gazing at him with a pair of strange gray eyes. His hair was long, falling to his shoulders, and his beard, which was almost white, came to his waist. He had a half-savage and half-civilized appearance.

Paul gazed into the strange, wild face and asked:

"Who are you?"

The stranger, without taking his eyes off him, asked:

"Who are you?"

"I am a miner from the Klondike who was robbed. I was in pursuit of the robbers when the accident befell me. You found me?"

"Yes."

Paul at first supposed that some of his limbs were broken or dislocated, and dared not move, but after a few moments he discovered that he had suffered no greater injury than a severe shock. He had fallen into a deep snowdrift, which had broken the fall and no doubt saved his life.

"Won't you tell me who you are?" asked Paul after a few minutes' gazing into the face of the mysterious stranger. The man turned away for a moment as if he wished to avoid the answer and then slowly turning back answered:

"I am a hermit; will that suffice?"

"Do you live here?" Paul asked.

"Yes."

"How long have you lived in this mountain?"

Then came a longer silence than usual, when the hermit of the cave answered:

"What difference can that make to you? I found you in a perilous condition and brought you here and saved your life. Is that not enough without telling all the secrets of my life?" He turned slowly about and went to a small fire that smoldered on the stones some distance away, and began to toast some slices of moose steak. Paul closed his eyes and tried to reason that he could be in no immediate danger. If the man had intended to kill him, he would no doubt have done so while he was unconscious. He also reasoned he might have some design in saving his life.

HE LOVED HIS HORSES.

Owner Wept When Compelled to Part With Them.

An incident which illustrates the strong attachment that forms between a man and a good team occurred at a public sale four miles south of town, Wednesday. It was noticed that the owner immediately withdrew from the crowd upon the bringing forth of a fine pair of blacks, but returned later when called upon to describe the team. Among other things, their age, etc., he stated that he had raised them from colthood; that they were true, kind and faithful. Here he could say no more, and crossing his arms on the one nearest him, he sobbed like a child. The intelligent animal, evidently realizing that something was wrong, turned his head and gently pushed his nose against his old master's face. Such scenes are not witnessed every day in this hard old world, and a glance at the crowd of farmers disclosed scores of moist eyes as he proceeded with the sale of the old friends. No man need be ashamed of such weakness, if such it may be termed. It is one of the finest qualities attributable to mankind.—Jefferson Bee.

Sowing Wild Oats.

"Sense them city boarders got to comin' here our Johnny has been goin' to the bad," said Mrs. Hayseede to Mrs. Clovertopp.

"You don't say!"

"Yes, indeed! He's got to stayin' out late at night. Why, last Sat'day night he went off down town and never came home until half after 9. I've got a mind to ask the preacher to talk to him on the error o' his way."

ON A HOSPITAL SHIP.

THE hardest medical practice in the world is in swing again. While most of us are dreaming of hammocks and cool drinks, only a few days' sail from our northern Atlantic ports a little steamer is rolling and tumbling through great seas and fields of ice floes. And never-castaway sailor saw delivering ship approach with such prayers of gratitude as rise from men's lips when the hospital ship Strathcona is sighted working her way along the terrible coasts of Labrador.

Men and women and little children—white, Indian and Eskimo—are straining their eyes seaward while you read this, looking for the only help that ever comes to them in their solitudes, where ice and gale lock them away from all their human kind. Scattered along more than one thousand miles of coast, fishing smacks, crowded not only with men but with women who are driven by need to fish for a living, half the little ship as the only place of refuge for any who become ill or maimed in the hard calling.

There is no spot on the globe where life is harder or serious accidents of all kinds are more frequent than along that stormy stretch of coast from St. John's, Newfoundland, to Cape Chidley at the opening into Hudson strait. The intense cold, far below zero for the greater part of the year, causes innumerable cases of frost-bite, that, with no surgical help, soon develop into gangrene.

Every year there is a lack of food, and starvation weakens the people until they are easy prey to typhoid, consumption and intestinal diseases of almost all the painful kinds known to medical science. The only methods for obtaining food are seal hunting, whaling and fishing. Generally they are carried on in poor craft, and frightful injuries, from broken bones to gunshot wounds, are necessarily frequent. For nowhere is the pursuit of either animals or fish so fraught with difficulty and peril.

Yet, although the barren land is inhabited by nearly twelve thousand persons, while from twenty to twenty-five thousand sail to it every year in June and July to fish for cod, there was not a single doctor to be found in all its thousand miles until ten years ago, when the Royal National Mission to Deep Sea Fishermen sent a little 37-ton sailing vessel, the Albert, there under Dr. Wilfred Grenfell.

Month after month the little Albert worked her way through ice and snow and gale, through hundreds of miles of uncharted and unlighted waters, over reefs pounded by mountain seas, seeking out whom she might succor. When her sail was seen men came in skin kayaks, in birch canoes, in all sorts of craft, crazy or stanch, bearing their sick and wounded to the visitors.

Too often the visitors were too late to do more than ease the dying moments of some poor wretch. They found whole settlements that had been wiped out by diphtheria. In one place they saw the rude graves, scooped into the hard Laurentian rocks, of twenty-nine persons who had died absolutely without any attempt at saving them. They found one man whose little one had frozen both her feet. There was rotting in the whole settlement with which to help her, and before long both feet began to gangrene. And when the Albert returned to St. John's she carried back the terrible story of how the unhappy father had been forced, at last, being in utter despair and knowing that it was the only hope of saving the child from a death of torture, to take a hatchet and cut off both the little one's feet.

With such knowledge as this to sustain him, Dr. Grenfell and his band of doctors and nurses—Drs. A. O. Dobard and Elliot Curwen and the Misses Cecelia Williams and Ada Carwardine—fought their way through the long seasons on the coast, and then, on their brief visits to civilization, fought to arouse men to help them in their efforts. Bit by bit they obtained assistance. First they got a rowboat. Then somebody else helped them to buy a steam launch. Finally another sailing vessel was added to their fleet. But still they knew that all this was merely a scratching at the outside of a mountain of misery. And they fought on until now they have the little but beautifully equipped steamship Strathcona, given largely through the efforts of Lord Strathcona, while two hospital ships are stationed on the coast, and one is open in northern Newfoundland, where the conditions of life are almost as hard.

Yet, still the service can only reach a percentage of those who need it. For through the winter months even the brave hearts on the Strathcona cannot force her through the ice that girdles the coasts as with an iron ring. Then the doctors must sail out in dog sledges to pay their calls, and often they go for a hundred miles to find their patient.

From Nov. 14 to March 29 Dr. Macpherson of the Battle Harbor hospital traveled 1,833 miles by sledge, snowshoes and boat and paid 680 visits. He missed scarcely a hut or a tent on the whole coast from Paul's river, above the Straits of Belle Isle, to Rigolet, under latitude 55. He found twenty-six dying persons, some of whom he saved, while he made the last hours at least easier for the rest. He found a woman who had been walking around for two weeks with a broken and unset arm. He stitched up the forearm of a fisherman who had been in agony from a great gash made many weeks before that never healed.

Scurvy, another affliction that curses the dwellers on the inhospitable coast, was found in many places. One case had gone so far that it had produced internal hemorrhage and required extensive operation. A crippled girl was found and sent by dog team to the hospital, where she was cured sufficiently to enable her to move around freely. A woman was treated who was dying from cancer. She had never been seen by a doctor or indeed by any one except poor, ignorant persons like herself, who had not tried to do anything to relieve her agony.

TRANSPLANT FISH IN LAKES.

Experiments in Wisconsin—Canvasbacks Driven Away by Carp.

The Wisconsin Fish Commission has experimented largely in the matter of transplantation and while its work has been highly valuable it has met with many failures, particularly in the way of Pacific Slope trout, both of the ordinary and steelhead varieties. Rainbows have been brought over, Dolly Vardens, the Mount Shasta trout, which, in its native water is a very vicious steelhead indeed, Montana trout and other sorts of salmonids, but nothing has been put into Wisconsin water yet which is as good as the native brook trout.

Moreover the state has many amateur pisciculturists who put fish into the water with beneficial intent and leave other folk to have trouble with them. Some of them are in the class with men who brought English sparrows to this country, the San Jose scale, the Russian thistle and such things.

Some time ago one of these well-meaning persons put a lot of German carp into Lake Koshkonong. Koshkonong five years ago was the greatest inland water for canvasback ducks in the world, since it was matted with wild celery and the big fellows came to it from a thousand miles afar.

The carp have eaten all of the celery, as well as forty million tons of mud, and loaf about, rotund, sleepy, happy and worthless, but there are no canvasbacks.

Played Joke on Kitchener.

Years ago Kitchener was in command of raw Arab troops at Korosko, on the Nile. There with a few other English officers he schooled in civilized warfare Sheikh Arnold and his wild tribesmen throughout the long summer months. And during the schooling some one put up a joke upon the Arab chieftain and taught him and all his men to heave a harmless and unwitting insult at their distinguished leader. The whole band, yelling wildly, used to dash down toward the Nile bank, on which was Kitchener's tent, and halting suddenly to salute in these words: "Kitchener damfool! Kitchener mufin man!" It was a harmless imbecility, and its object was as much amused by it as any one, though, of course, the salute had to be altered.

Lord Roberts in Fiction.

A character called Lord Roberts, and representing the British Commander-in-Chief, is the villain of a romance entitled "Gold Fever," now running in the News-Wisconsin Journal of Vienna.

Here is a specimen passage: "Lord Roberts went suddenly pale, almost sallow. He knew that everything depended upon the successful carrying out of his plans; but in spite of this he soon regained his composure. Only an extremely careful observer would have noticed the evil flicker of his beast-of-prey-like eyes."

Needless to say "Lord Roberts" is hopelessly in love with the heroine, for whom he plays the piano.

In Comewhats of a Hurry. Harry Furness tells of a testy but popular Scotch lecturer who, on a tour of the Lowlands, met with a chairman so impressed with the importance of his office that, in introducing the visitor, he actually talked to the audience for an hour. The gathering, a large one, bore it all patiently. This was the chairman's peroration:

"It is unnecessary for me to say more; so, I call upon the distinguished gentleman who has come so far to give us his address to-night."

The gentleman who had come so far across, stepped forward, bowed, pulled out and looked at his watch, and then said:

"You want my address. It is 322 Rob Roy Crescent, Edinburgh. A letter will find me there. Good night!" Saying which he left the stage and the hall before anybody could interpose.—Philadelphia Times.

Couldn't Live Without Them. New York City, Aug. 18th.—Mr. Charles Back of 64 Rue de la Victorie, Paris, France, relates a most interesting experience:

"Ever since I was about three years of age I have suffered severely with Kidney Disease."

"Last year I spent some time at the baths at Carlsbad (Bohemia), but I came back after five weeks' treatment with a severe pain still in my kidneys."

"My doctors in Paris and Hamburg could do nothing for me."

"I was obliged to start from Paris to Montreal, Canada, and when I arrived in the Canadian city I was half dead."

"I read an advertisement of Dodd's Kidney Pills in a newspaper there and began to use this remedy and after two days' treatment I felt that my pains were leaving me and in a week I had no pains at all."

"Dodd's Kidney Pills are the most wonderful remedy in the world. I keep them always with me for I believe I could not live without them."

Deafness Cannot Be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever. Nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

INGENIOUS DEVICES TO SAVE TIME AND LABOR.

Cuban "Cigarette Cartridge" May Appeal to Smokers—Convenient Barb-Wire Stretcher—Cause of Volcanic Explosions.

Cuban "Cigarette Cartridge." Smokers who enjoy a small cigar or cigarette better than a large cigar may find the "cigarette cartridge" shown in the accompanying drawing to their liking. It is the invention of Alfred Leblanc of Havana, Cuba, and the idea is to provide small cartridges of tobacco, ready to be inserted in a non-combustible holder, the cartridge being thrown away after the contents are burned.

Cartridge Inserted in the Holder Ready for Use.

The holder consists of a metallic or asbestos tube, with a coiled spring mounted at the base of the opening and air ducts leading from the mouthpiece to the outer end of the tube. The outer end is fitted with a conical cap having slanting sides to hold the tobacco in the cartridge against the pressure of the spring inside the tube. The cartridges are to be furnished in quantity, either loaded or empty as a smoker may desire.

To place a charge in the tube the outer cap is removed and the cartridge inserted and pressed downward until the spring is contracted, when the cap is replaced. The cigarette is then lighted through the perforation in the cap and the smoke drawn through the air ducts to the mouth. As fast as the tobacco is consumed the spring forces the ashes out of the cap and renews the supply of the weed in proximity to the air ducts. When the cartridge has been emptied the cap is again removed and the empty tube thrown out. The tubes are made with a slight taper toward the rear end, in order that the spring may slide the tobacco from the tube without clogging.

Barb-Wire Stretcher. A barb-wire stretcher, which weighs only 12 ounces and can be carried in the pocket is the invention of Col. James H. Birch of Plattsburg, Mo., formerly member of Congress from the 4th district. The features claimed for this device are its simplicity, cheapness and effectiveness. With a bar of wood inserted in the ring to give the necessary leverage the wire can be drawn as tight as a drumhead and securely fastened in that position, the weight of the body being used to keep the lever in place, while both hands are left free to drive the staple. A staple-puller is a valuable feature of the device.

Water Supplies in Texas.

The flow of Texas rivers has been studied by the hydrographic parties of the United States Geological Survey. Daily records of water heights and frequent measurements by current-meter of the velocity and volume of water carried by each stream are made. The economic value of such hydrographic surveys is well illustrated by two examples. The flow of the Brazos River at Waco was the lowest on record during the past season and the "Waco dam, with a head of 30 feet, developed only 130 horsepower. The minimum flow of the Colorado was found to be only one-fifth of what was popularly estimated at the time the bonds were issued for the dam at Austin. The comparatively small cost of such surveys repays taxpayers and investors a hundred fold.

Causes of Volcanic Explosions.

In the Archives des Sciences Physiques et Naturelles M. Brun sets forth a theory of the causes of volcanic explosions based on the experiments of M. Gaudier and himself. A few of his results, only, can be referred to here. They have a direct bearing on the phenomena lately displayed in Martinique. His experiments at Stromboli showed that the lava flowing from the crater was at a temperature not above 1,230 degrees C., and that the explosions arise in the superficial layers. Those of M. Gaudier prove that all rocks of the earth's crust when heated above redness give off gases, principally hydrogen. The hydrogen is the principal cause of the explosions. Heated to about 1,000 degrees in the crater, it becomes explosive the moment it is mixed with air. A rock containing a 4 per cent constituent of water is shown by calculation, to give off enough hydrogen to throw twice its weight for a distance of three miles. The results quoted indicate the main lines of the theory proposed. For its full development the original paper must be consulted.

The Tuberculosis Bacillus. According to cable telegrams Prof. Behring has just printed a book in Berlin proving that the bacilli of human and bovine tuberculosis are identical, the seeming difference between them resulting from the capacity of the bacilli to accommodate themselves to the organism in which they live. The writer announces that he has successfully infected cattle with viri from human beings, producing in this way fatal animal tuberculosis. He also declares that he has rendered cattle immune to tuberculosis by vaccinating them when they are young. Further reports of these experiments will be anxiously awaited.

Divides the Poultry Roost.

The illustration shows a novel device which will recommend itself to the poultry keeper for two reasons—first, because it will prevent the fowls from crowding each other off the roosts, and secondly, owing to the provision it makes for bringing a vermin destroyer within close proximity to the fowl while roosting, without the latter touching it. These devices can be brought into use in connection with the roosting poles already in position in the henhouse, and consequently there is no expense for changing the roosts. The invention is a simple one, consisting of a single piece of wire, which is formed into a loop near one end, with the shorter end formed into a screw to aid in inserting it in the wooden roost. The longer end is not bent to its final position until after the screw is inserted in the wood, when the loose end is twisted into the location shown, below the roost. It is an easy matter to attach a small rag or a piece of sponge to the depending end, which can be saturated from time to time with any liquid vermicide, and the vaporizing of this liquid will serve not only to keep the vermin from crawling over the roosts, but drive the lice from the bodies of the fowls, as the odor will permeate the feathers when the birds are on the roosts at night. The inventor of this device is John H. F. Evers, of Walla Walla, Wash.

Prepares Solid Foundations.

It is not entirely new to render loose soil, such as sand and gravel, stable enough for building purposes by impregnating it with thin fluid cement, which binds with the sand and forms a sufficiently hard concrete mass to serve as a foundation; but this process is always dependent upon certain conditions. Thus, for instance, the soil must contain no water, because the water fills out the interstices of the sand and renders the penetration of the cement difficult, and, in addition to this, the water still further dilutes the cement, which is thin fluid already, so that it is impossible for the cement to bind and form a good foundation. Now comes a Russian inventor with an apparatus to exhaust the water from the soil simultaneously with the forcing into it of the liquid cement. This enables the cement to be properly distributed and also renders it possible to force it into the soil with less pressure than when a single forcing tube was used. As seen in the drawing the two smaller tubes pour the cement into the sand, while the larger central pipe is connected with a suction pump or other exhaust apparatus. This draws the water from the soil and allows the liquid cement to replace it readily, also serving as an indicator to show when the soil has been impregnated by drawing the cement into the tube after the water has been exhausted. The pipes have pointed heads to aid in their insertion in the earth. Nicolas Schietkiewics of St. Petersburg, Russia, has the patent on this apparatus.

Impregnating Sand With Liquid Cement.

Air. "I tell you," said the landlord of the summer resort near the top of the mountain, "a man can't get too much of this pure air."

"No!" gasped the tenderfoot, who was unused to the elevation. "I can't get half enough of it!"

HUMOR OF THE DAY

JOKES AND WITICISMS THAT HAVE PLEASANT FLAVOR.

Youngster's Ingenious Device for Keeping Baby Quiet—Bachelor's Idea of the Family Scepter—Her Reason.

The Bachelor's Idea. "Of course," said the bachelor, thoughtfully, "there can be no such thing as joint rule in a family. Someone must be the head."

"True, but the scepter passes from one to another."

"How?"

"Well, at the beginning of married life the husband holds it; then it gently and unobtrusively passes to the wife, and he never gets it back again."

"She keeps it for ever?"

"Oh, no; the baby gets it next."

An Oxygenarian.

"There is an acquaintance of mine," remarked the doctor, "who gives himself airs because he was given up to die thirty years ago and has kept himself alive till now by taking oxygen."

"How old is he now?" asked the professor.

"Over 80."

"He's what you would call an oxygenarian, is he?" said the professor, looking at him with half-shut eyes.

Plausible Supposition.

"Isn't it awful how thin Mr. Henpeck is now?" remarked Mrs. Gabbie to her husband. "And he used to be so stout!"

"Perhaps," chimed in little Willie, remembering his trouble with his bicycle tires—"perhaps his wife forgets to blow him up regular, like you said she used to."

When You Put It That Way.

Argumentative Person—It seems to me this theory of the immortality of the soul is based merely on a selfish hope. It has no philosophical basis. Can you see any reason why I, for instance, should be perpetuated in another state of existence?

Conciliatory Person—No, I confess I can't.

His Private View.

Wederly—Here's an item about a man who kept his bank account in his wife's name.

Mrs. Wederly—That's as it should be. All men are not fools.

Wederly—Of course not, my dear. There are still a few old bachelors left.

His Blunder.

"Say!" she cried suddenly, as the bashful young man backed into the nearest chair, "you must think you're a bird."

"Beg pardon," he stammered, "I don't understand what—"

"You're on my hat!" she shrieked.

Couldn't Go Too Soon.

Fond Mother (listening to baby's cries): "What a sweet-toned voice she has, dear! She'll be a splendid singer. We must send her to Italy and have her voice cultivated."

Husband (irritably, from behind the evening paper): "Send her now."

Knew It Was a Fraud.

He (doubtfully)—There's a little freckle on your cheek, don't you know. I—I have heard that freckles can be removed by kissing.

She—Oh that is a fraud. Cousin Tom and I have been experimenting on that all summer.

A Catastrophe.

A prim maiden lady of Gloucester Met a bull which ran after and taunted her;

Though she landed all right, She was near dead with fright And the shock to her feelings it counteracted.

Reason Enough!

Justice (refusing to marry couple because the man is drunk)—Are you not ashamed to marry a man in such a state?

Lady—But he won't come here when he's sober.

Perhaps Meant for Sarcasm.

"Yes," said the head of the firm, "Miss Addie is a good bookkeeper, but she makes some queer mistakes."

"What, for instance?" asked the silent partner.

"Well, she enters our messenger boy's wages under the head of 'running expenses.'"

Overcrowded Already.

"She's just crazy to go on the stage."

"Then she's better not. What the stage needs most is sane actors."

Positive Proof.

Judge—What proof have we that this man is absent-minded? Attorney—Why, he actually stopped his automobile at a watering fountain.

Evidently Used Up.

Mrs. Meadowland (early morning)—I guess that city gentleman we took to board for the summer ain't much used to travelin' in the cars? He must a' been all fagged out when he got here yesterday, though he didn't say nothin' about it.

Farmer Meadowland—He looked cheery enough.

Mrs. Meadowland—Yes, but here it is 'most 4 o'clock, and breakfast all ready, and he hain't waked up yet."

The Skin and the Graft.

"Truly," says the patient who is being skin-grafted, "surgical science is a wonderful thing."

"It is," says the friend who is helping out with the required skin. "First they skin me and then they graft you; but after you get well and they send in the bill you'll find that you've been skinned for their graft."—Judge.

Keeping Him Quiet.

"What are you making that terrible noise for?"

"I'm keeping baby quiet."

"Where's the baby?"

"Under the tin."

Careless Girl.

"Such carelessness is little short of criminal," thundered Dr. Price-Price, angrily.

"Oh, doctor," sobbed Mrs. Sassetty-Lieder's nurse girl, "do you blame me for the baby's illness?"

"Most assuredly. You should know better than to leave it alone in the care of its mother even for a moment."

Nothing to Live For.

Mrs. Benham—The paper tells of a bad accident.

Benham—What kind of an accident?

Mrs. Benham—A woman's dress took fire and was ruined and the woman was so badly burned that she will not recover.

Benham—I don't suppose she wants to recover if her dress is ruined.

His Sympathetic Nature.

"Well, I'm glad this rag-time music is getting out of date," remarked the business man. "I'm sure it gave me indigestion."

"Nonsense!"

"Fact. The orchestra at the restaurant where I take my lunch always played it, and I couldn't help keeping time with my jaws."

Cane Vs. Beet.

"Why do you call him Cain?" inquired Adam.

"Because the little darling can't be beat," replied Eve, with feminine logic.

Thus was the Sugar Controversy started in Paradise; the young man's subsequent career leaving it an open question.

Recrimination.

"Do you suppose that it was a crab apple?" asked Eve as they were discussing the unfortunate contre temps.

"No," sneered Adam, with a pointed glare. "It was a lobster apple!"

Cuffing little Abel, he passed out into the night, while Eve wept bitterly, realizing that slang was now to be added to her other troubles.

The Small Brother.

"I heard him call you 'Duckie,'" announced the small brother.

"Well, what of it?" demanded his sister defiantly.

"Oh, nothin' much," answered the small brother. "I was only thinkin' maybe it's because of the way you walk, but it ain't very nice of him."

And the Joke Was Ruined.

The facetious boarder had the train all laid for a killing joke.

"It's a wonder," he said, "that you didn't serve up this duck feathers and all."

"The next time," said the landlady with marked emphasis, "I'll serve her up bill and all."

Sensible Resolution.

"What," asked the dreamer, "would you do if you could be a king for a day?"

"I?" answered the practical man: "I'd borrow enough money to live on for the rest of my life."

Frisly Shoulder Shape.

Among very fashionable people both here and abroad the boa in all its guises has in a great degree given place to the frilly shoulder cape finished with very long scarf ends of handsome lace, or of accordion-plaited net of chiffon tied with velvet bows, or brightened here and there with clusters of roses or soft fluffy silk poppies. Costly models are formed of real chintilly lace with the scarf ends woven in very fine patterns, portions of both the cape ruffles and scarf ends showing intricate details of the choicest silk embroidery in Armenian, Flemish, Louis XIV. and other designs.

"I SUFFERED TERRIBLY WITH FEMALE WEAKNESS,"

SAYS MRS. ESTHER M. MILNER.

"I Had the Headache Continually—Could Not Do My Work—Pe-ru-na Cured."

Mrs. Esther M. Milner, DeGraff, Ohio, writes:

"I was a terrible sufferer from female weakness and had the headache continually. I was not able to do my housework for my husband and myself. I wrote you and described my condition as near as possible. You recommended Peruna. I took four bottles and was completely cured. I think Peruna a wonderful medicine and have recommended it to my friends with best results."

—Mrs. E. M. Milner.

Miss Mamie Groth, Plattville, Wis., writes: "Accept a grateful girl's thanks for the wonderful help I have received through the use of Peruna. Although I looked well and strong I have for several years suffered with frequent backache and would for several days have splitting headaches. I did not wish to fill my system with poisonous drugs, and so when several of my friends advised me to take Peruna, I asked my physician what he thought of it. He recommended it and so I took it and am entirely without pain of any kind now."

—Miss Mamie Groth.

Dr. S. B. Hartman, President of The Hartman Sanitarium, has had over fifty years experience in the treatment of female catarrhal diseases. He advices women free of charge. If you are suffering from any female derangement write him a description of your symptoms and he will give you the benefit of his experience in the treatment of women's diseases.

If you do not derive prompt and satisfactory results from the use of Peruna, write at once to Dr. Hartman, giving a full statement of your case, and he will be pleased to give you his valuable advice gratis.

BABY'S DELIGHT — MOTHER'S COMFORT

FOR IRRITATIONS, CHAFINGS, ITCHINGS, Rashes, Heat, Perspiration, Lameness, and Soreness no other application so soothing, cooling, and healing as a bath with CUTICURA SOAP, followed by gentle anointings with CUTICURA, the Great Skin Cure. It means instant relief for skin-tortured babies and rest for tired mothers.

No amount of persuasion can induce mothers who have once used these great skin purifiers and beautifiers to use any others for preserving, purifying, and beautifying the skin, scalp, hair, and hands of infants and children. CUTICURA SOAP combines delicate emollient properties derived from CUTICURA, the great skin cure, with the purest of cleansing ingredients, and the most refreshing of flower odors. Together they form the only speedy, economical, and infallible cure of itching, scaly, and crusty humors, rashes, and irritations of the skin, scalp, and hair from infancy to age. Guaranteed absolutely pure.

IT NEEDS A TONIC.
There are times when your liver needs a tonic. Don't give purgatives that gripe and weaken. DeWitt's Little Early Riser expels all poison from the system and acts as a tonic to the liver. W. Scott, 581 Highland ave., Milton, Pa., says: "I have carried DeWitt's Little Early Riser with me for several years and would not be without them." Small and easy to take. Purely vegetable. They never gripe or distress. Glazier & Stimson.

County and Vicinity

Dexter expects to have a new electric lighting plant in the near future. Jackson has a case of small pox according to the report of the health officers.

Col. DeLand is preparing for publication a history of Jackson county from its earliest settlement.

It is reported that more than 2,000 of Jackson citizens took in the Grocers excursion to Detroit one day last week.

Among the speakers who have agreed to be present at the picnic to be held Labor Day, by the members of St. Joseph's parish, may be mentioned Hon. George Monaghan of Detroit and Dr. Whalen of Baltimore, Md.—Dexter Leader.

Dr. Wyman of Detroit, was here Sunday to examine the injuries sustained by Chas. Malcho, who was badly injured by a cow a few weeks ago, and has been in a critical condition. We understand that no hopes of recovery were given.—Stockbridge Brief

Sup. Stansell expects to start the canning factory on corn next Tuesday. Several men came here from Dowagiac Monday to assist in teaching the help how to do the work. The machinery and tools are now in good order and if plenty of tomatoes and corn were ready a good season's business could be done.—Manchester Enterprise.

Preparations are under way to start the canning factory, beginning on sweet corn. It is thought that another week will mature the crop, when operations will begin at once. Mr. Carpenter, who is to have charge, is already on the ground and anxious to begin. The tomato crop is backward and promises a small yield.—Ypsilanton.

An aged lady of 93 (summers and as many winters) of Dundee, is canvassing Milan selling numbers for 10 cents on a quilt that she pieced when she was 92 years old. Her name is Dunmore and she has taken this way to raise money to purchase her winter clothing. This is an unusual sight. Mrs. Dunmore seems bright and quite active for a lady of her years.

At a meeting of the official board of the Methodist church Monday evening Dr. C. T. Allen, the pastor, was unanimously and most cordially invited to remain their pastor, and a motion was passed unanimously asking the Bishop for his return. Never in its history has the church been more satisfactorily served, and the society fully appreciate it, as the remarks and vote showed on this occasion.—Ypsilanton.

It was in April 1837 that H. M. Russell, one of Salines' pioneers, ate his first Michigan grown apple, it was a sweet bough, and so pleased was he with its variety that he planted the seeds on his farm he now owns south of town. The following spring when the sprouts came up he selected one and cared for it carefully for several years. Wednesday he brought to this office two fine specimens of fruit picked from this tree which is still alive and in a thrifty condition. The fruit however is much changed, resembling the sweet bough much in appearance, but quite sour. This is doubtless one of the oldest apple trees in the state.—Saline Observer.

Dr. Miles' Nervine

HASTING, NER.
"Our little boy, Harry, had spasms for 3 years and we feared the disease would affect his mind. Though we doctored continually he grew worse and had ten spasms in one week. Our attention was directed to Dr. Miles' Nervine and we began its use. When he had taken the fourth bottle the spasms disappeared and he has not had one for five years. His health is now perfect."

ALL WERE SAVED.

"For years I suffered such untold misery from bronchitis," writes J. H. Johnston of Broughton, Ga., "that often I was unable to work. Then, when everything else failed, I was wholly cured by Dr. King's New Discovery for consumption. My wife suffered intensely from asthma, till it cured her, and all our experience goes to show it is the best cough medicine in the world." A trial will convince you it's unrivaled for the throat and lung diseases. Guaranteed bottles 50c and $1.00. Trial bottles free at Glazier & Stimson.
