A SAD FATAL ACCIDENT

By Which John R. Pierce Lost His Life Saturday.

A fatal accident happened on South Main street Saturday afternoon about 5 o'clock by which John R. Pierce, the second youngest son of the late Hiram Pierce lost his life. Mr. Pierce was driving home with a load of ground feed which was laid on the bottom boards of the wagon, he sitting on them. As he descended the hill toward the D., Y., A. A. & J. line two of the bags slid from the wagon and frightened the horses. Mr. Pierce was thrown from the wagon in such a manner that he landed on the tongue. This caused the horses to break into a run and they headed directly for the large electric pole nearby, one horse going one side of it and one the other. Mr. Pierce was thrown against the pole and was also caught between the wagon and the pole and received injuries from which he died in about 10 minutes. The horses only ran a few feet further after being released from the wagon and stopped to eat the grass by the roadside.

Mr. Pierce was an unmarried man, 34 years of age, of a quiet disposition and a hard worker. He lived with his mother, two sisters and a younger brother on the old Pierce homestead south of the village, where his father died only last February. Besides these he has three brothers and three sisters.

The funeral services held at the house Tuesday afternoon, were conducted by Rev. C. S. Jones, and were attended by a large number of relatives and friends of the family. The remains were interred in the family burying ground. Great sympathy is expressed for the family by all in their sad bereavement.

Something About Our Schools.

There are 730,101 children of school age in Michigan, while there were but 510,081 pupils enrolled in the public schools for the school year ending Sept. 2, 1901. There were 53,046 in private, select or parochial schools.

There are 13,240 positions for teachers in the public schools of Michigan of which 6,712 are in the graded schools and 6,528 in the ungraded. In the graded schools, 1,001 men and 5,857 women teachers are employed; while in the ungraded schools there are 2,039 men and 7,157 women employed. The total number of teachers employed in all schools was 16,954 so that 2,814 teachers find employment only for a part of the year.

The total amount of teachers' wages in the year was $4,736,779.14. In the graded schools the men average $73.94 a month and the women $44.91 a month, while in the ungraded schools the men averaged $31.12 and the women $26.04 per month.

Wants His Money Back.

E. E. Calkins, of Ann Arbor, has filed a petition in the circuit court of Cook county, Ill., asking for the appointment of a receiver for the Dominion company, 336 Dearborn street, Chicago. Mr. Calkins declares that he was induced to sign a contract providing that he should purchase $800 worth of books and publications from the company and be paid $1,500 a year for conducting a branch office in Ann Arbor. The books sent to him, he says, were old and unsaleable, and he was unable to realize any profits from the business. The complainant opened up an office in Ann Arbor, and after incurring $800 expenses discovered that the statements made to him by representatives of the concern were false. He then demanded, he says, a return of the $800 he had invested, but is still waiting for it.

Had Mr. Calkins made enquiries of most any newspaper man he could have learned a good deal about the Dominion Company.

The Old Stone Wall Regiment Will Have Its Next Reunion in Chelsea.

The annual reunion of the 17th Michigan Infantry was held in Ypsilanti yesterday. The old regiment had a great record in the War of the Rebellion and was known as the "Stone wall regiment," from the fact that in its first engagement it charged the Johnnies who were entrenched behind a stone wall and drove them back. Co. E of the 17th was known as the Normal company, having been recruited almost entirely with Normal school students. Of this company T. E. Wood and A. W. Chapman were members, and these gentlemen with their wives attended the reunion yesterday.

At the business meeting in the afternoon it was voted to hold the next annual gathering at Chelsea, Sept. 17, 1903. The association elected as officers Theodore E. Wood, of Chelsea, president, and George Harmon, of Detroit, treasurer. The president was authorized to name the local secretary and his choice was A. W. Chapman, of Chelsea.

RECORD OF THE PAST.

The best guarantee of the future is the record of the past, and over fifty thousand people have publicly testified that Doan's Kidney Pills have cured them of numerous kidney ills, from common backache to dangerous diabetes, and all the attendant annoyances and sufferings from urinary disorders. They have been cured to stay cured. Here is one case:

Samuel J. Taylor, retired carpenter, residing at 312 South Third St., Goshen, Ind., says: "On the 25th day of August, 1897, I made an affidavit before Jacob C. Mann, notary public, stating my experience with Doan's Kidney Pills. I had suffered for thirty years and was compelled at times to walk by the aid of crutches, frequently passed gravel and suffered excruciatingly. I took every medicine on the market that I heard about, and some gave me temporary relief. I began taking Doan's Kidney Pills, and the results gave to the public in the statement above referred to. At this time, on the 19th day of July, 1902, I make this further statement, that during the five years which have elapsed I have had no occasion to use either Doan's Kidney Pills or any other medicine for my kidneys. The cure effected was a permanent one."

A FREE TRIAL of this great Kidney medicine which cured Mr. Taylor will be mailed on application to any part of the United States. Address Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y. For sale by all druggists, price 50 cents per box.

CHANGE OF LIFE.

Some Sensible Advice to Women by Mrs. E. Sailer.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—When I passed through what is known as 'change of life,' I had two years' suffering,—sudden heat, and as quick chills would pass over me; my appetite was variable and I never could tell for a day at a time how I would feel the next day. Five bottles of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound changed all that, my days became days of health, and I have enjoyed every day since—now six years.

"We have used considerable of your Vegetable Compound in our charitable work, as we find that to restore a poor mother to health so she can support herself and those dependent upon her, if such there be, is truer charity than to give other aid. You have my hearty endorsement, for you have proven yourself a true friend to suffering women."—Mrs. E. Sailer, 756 1/2 Hill St., Los Angeles, Cal.—$5000 forfeit if above testimonial is not genuine.

No other person can give such helpful advice to women who are sick as can Mrs. Pinkham, for no other has had such great experience—her address is Lynn, Mass., and her advice free—if you are sick write her—you are foolish if you don't.

WILLIAM AND MARY.

William gazed on Mary Jane;
Longed to tell her that her eyes
Shone like small drops of rain
Falling from enchanted skies.
But poor William, scant of nerve,
Sought in vain these things to say;
Merely managed to observe:
"It is rather warm to-day."

Mary Jane will ne'er suspect
What a wealth of sentiment
Flourishing, despite neglect,
In that trite remark was pent.
Yows as steadfast as the pole,
Though as tender as the May,
He is uttering from his soul.
When he says "It's warm to-day."

William tries and tries again;
Baffled in his eloquence;
Weary quite is Mary Jane
Of ridiculous suspense.
But each time, just as of yore,
All his wits grow dark and dim.
William feels that he's a bore;
Mary quite agrees with him.

His Lady of Dreams

By Susan Sayer Yarmouth.

HE came suddenly into his sight,
Dispelling his brown study and interrupting his pipe. She stood beyond the table, beside the door, tall and slight, in a white gown that clung to her arms and shoulders and rounded waist, and swept about her feet in heavy folds. A cross swung from her neck by a long silver chain, and she wore a broad-brimmed hat with a gauzy white veil, so her face was in shadow. She leaned slightly toward Ashe as he clutched the arms of his big chair and sat forward in amazement.

"I am the Princess, Constantia Gregorius," she said gently.
"Of—of Russia?" he asked stupidly, trying to fan away the haze of tobacco smoke.

"There are other lands," she said indifferently. "And not so far away." "Great Caesar!" he breathed, bewildered, and his pipe dropped from his astonished fingers. With the feeling that it was the only bond between him and rationality, he stooped to pick it up, and as he rose he struck his head sharply against the corner of the library table. Dizzy from the blow, he staggered to his feet and looked toward the door. She was gone, as mysteriously as she had come. He rushed blindly around the table and across the room, stumbling over easy chairs and footstools, and sending a revolving bookcase spinning round. The hall was brilliant after the smoky library, and it was also empty. No trailing gown had turned up the edges of the rugs, nor could he hear any hurrying steps on the polished stairs. He blinked at the sun pouring red and purple through the painted window for a moment, and then turned back and sat down on the nearest chair. Good heavens! what a dream! Who was she? What was her motive in appearing and announcing herself in that royal way? And he hadn't seen her face! Well, if it was as pretty as her figure—oh, confound his head! and he was still feeling of it gingerly too dazed to think of more than one thing at a time, when he heard his friends cheerful whistle in the hall.

"Well, old chap," said Thurston, coming in.

"Phew! but that pipe of yours is a fright! If we don't air this room before the mater gets into it, your goose is cooked!"

"Why, what will she do?" cried the other, uncertainly.

"You'll never get another bid for Sunday," said the first, throwing open one of the windows. "Gee! I didn't realize how rank Cissy is getting. Retire her, Billy, and get another. But say, what's the matter old man? I left you composing a sonnet and going to sleep over it. What's wrong?"

Ashe looked down at his maligned pipe, and then up at his friend.

"Say, do you suppose she thought it was rank?" he asked.

"The mater?" said Thurston, puzzled. "She hasn't been here already, has she? If so, we'd better go back to-night. Did she wake you up?"

"No, I just dreamed it," said the owner of the pipe, and began to feel of his bump with a frown of pain. His friend looked at him for a moment curiously, and then aimed a heavy leather cushion from the nearest Morris chair at him.

"Wake up, you idiot!" he said. "This is no sleeping car." The idiot parried the cushion.

"Dick, has your sister a friend visiting her?" he inquired.

"No," said the other.

"Well, there was one here, any way," pursued Ashe.

"One what?" demanded Thurston.

"One princess," said the other. His host surveyed him in silence for a moment.

"Ashe, you're crazy!" he said at last. "Come out and take a walk."

Mr. Wilmerding Ashe was making for himself a rather neat reputation with readers of current magazines as a writer of clever little occasional verses. Among his friends at his club he was considered a good fellow, and they chose to assume that somewhere he kept hidden away the person who wrote his verses for him. His mother's friends approved of him because he paid his calls, and he was chiefly famous with the young ladies of his rather general acquaintance, as a master of arts of Welsh rarebit and badinage. But no one was prepared for the almost oriental beauty of his latest verses, which appeared in one of the best of the monthly periodicals under the name of "My Lady of the Realm of Dreams," and which would have done credit to a much more ambitious poet than Billy Ashe. Ashe himself thought rather well of them; he felt that in some way compensated for the nasty knock on the head that the lady had been the means of giving him, and that he had turned a most perplexing dream to very good account. It was better than taking it to the Society of Psychic Research, which he had thought of doing in the vividness of his first impression, but six months without any further developments, waking or sleeping, had dulled his keen conviction of its psychic value. Meanwhile a comfortable check from the magazine had seemed to take the thing out of the province of psychic research.

Ashe was a modest man, but not too much to find a little lionizing quite to his taste, and he went to afternoon teas and cotillions with a feeling that to-morrow would be someone else's day, and he must gather his roses while he might. So he entered Mrs. Foster's long drawing-room prepared to smile as he listened to her verses misquoted by fair flatterers; he retained that serene attitude of mind while he shook hands with Mrs. Foster, and not one minute longer. For beyond Mrs. Foster, and standing just outside the ring of light from a tall lamp, was the lady of his dreams, with her white gown that clung to her shoulders and rounded waist, and flared with heavy folds at her feet. This time she wore a fan on the long silver chain around her neck, and she had no hat nor veil, so Ashe could see that she was regarding him with the frankest interest from a pair of most attractive brown eyes. He flushed with surprise, and his remarks to Mrs. Foster died on his lips. She was not a dream, then, his princess! A sudden recollection of the check from the "Hundred Years" made him warm, and as a corollary came the realization of his narrow escape from the Society of Psychic Research—good heavens!

Meanwhile Mrs. Foster was saying graciously, "So good of you to come, Mr. Ashe, and not forget your old friends, now you are such a celebrity. And to reward you, I am going to introduce you to a very dear young friend of mine, Miss Gregory, who admires your poems so much." And Ashe found himself before his princess, while Mrs. Foster went on fluently, "Constance, my dear, this is Mr. Ashe," and turned to greet another guest. All remnants of his self-possession vanished at the sound of the names, and interrupting Miss Gregory's polite expressions of delight at making his acquaintance, Ashe asked abruptly: "Are you a princess?"

She opened her brown eyes wider and looked at him in surprise.

"Do—do you believe in telepathy and astral bodies?" he went on after a moment's pause. "Or are you only a dream?"

"Dear me!" said the girl. "Mrs. Foster said you were so nice, and not startling—that no one would know that you were a poet or anything else awe-inspiring, and here you have called me three alarming names in as many minutes. Is this poetic license, Mr. Ashe?"

"Did you really mind Cissy Loftus?" he asked anxiously. "You see she's my favorite pipe, but she's rather old, and I'm afraid she's a little too strong to be pleasant to strangers. But I didn't expect you, you know, when you came in so suddenly."

The girl's face was gravely puzzled, but her eyes looked amused. "I'm afraid Mrs. Foster has a mistaken idea of you," she said with a shake of her head.

"Where do you live?" inquired Ashe. "When you are not in dreams, you know—when you are not in Thurston's library."

"Well," said Miss Gregory, "I'm relieved. I am glad to find that I have at last taken an intelligent interest in the conversation. The Thurston's library isn't it a fascinating place?"

"You weren't in it long enough to find out," objected Ashe. "And do you think it was quite kind of you to make me bump my head?"

"Long enough! I've spent hours in Thurston's library," said the girl in mock indignation. "And I never made you bump your head."

"Well, perhaps not consciously," admitted Ashe, "but it was under your spell." Miss Gregory looked at him with a smile beginning to show at the corners of her mouth.

"You are certainly casting a spell over me," she said. "Really, Mr. Ashe, I don't know what you mean—I'm sure I never had anything to do with your bumping your head, but I'm not sure that it wouldn't do it good."

"Cruel!" said Ashe. "Well, since you won't admit it, let's begin again. I am very glad to meet you, Miss Gregory. Mrs. Foster is too good to me. Do you know your face is very familiar—haven't I met you before?" "Mrs. Foster has been kind to me, too," returned Miss Gregory prettily. "No, Mr. Ashe, I'm sure that I should not have forgotten it if we had met before. My home is not in New York, and I'm not here very much. But I have heard of you often, from Mrs. Foster, and the Thurstons in Morristown, and, of course, I have read your verses."

"How time must clamor at your doors to be killed!" said Ashe.

"Ah, now you are unkind to your little brain-children!" reproached the girl.

"You have been sufficiently over-kind to even up accounts in mentioning them at all," returned Ashe. "There, you see I can do the proper; now, for heaven's sake, Miss Gregory, tell me if I dreamed of you, or saw you, that day at Dick Thurston's?" The girl drew back.

"I don't understand you," she said, a little haughtily, and then she smiled at his crestfallen face.

"It can't be possible!" insisted Ashe. "The Princess Constantia Gregorius—and I was ass enough to ask of what! Don't you know, Miss Gregory—didn't you realize that you are my 'Lady of Dreams'?"

"I?" said Miss Gregory—"I your Lady of—oh, Mr. Ashe! Remember that I'm not a resident—not to the manor born, as it were. I'm just a country cousin from Binghamton. Do you think it's nice to make fun of me? Constantia Gregorius, indeed!" She laughed out, a merry little laugh.

"She comes from a land nor near nor far," said Ashe, guilty of the banality of quoting his own verses. Miss Gregory surveyed him with amusement.

"This is too fine a frenzy for me," she announced. "Aren't you hungry, Mr. Ashe? Shant we go and have something to eat?" Ashe followed her, mechanically.

"Don't you sometimes wear a cross on that chain," he asked.

"Sometimes," she answered, with lifted eyebrows.

"Weren't you in Morristown at the Thurstons' last September?" he pursued.

"Yes, I was in Morristown, but only occasionally at the Thurstons'," she returned.

"Then you did walk into the library one Sunday afternoon and tell me you were the Princess Constantia Gregorius," he said, positively.

"Mr. Ashe!" she said, reprovingly.

"Have you a twin sister?" asked Ashe, desperately.

"I am all the daughters of my father's house," she said lightly, but her eyes were dancing as she gave him his chocolate.

"Don't you remember the painful taking off of Sapphira?" he inquired, sternly.

Miss Gregory counted on her fingers. "A princess, Constantia Gregorius, an astral body—let me see! a dream, and now a liar!" she said. "Oh, fie, Mr. Ashe!"

"I have $50 that belongs to you," said Ashe, irrelevantly.

"I beg your pardon?" said the girl, blankly.

"By rights," assented Ashe, with a nod. "Half of what I got for that poem, you know. I calculate that my thought and labor are good for half, but you furnished the idea, you see." Miss Gregory sat down on the nearest chair and laughed aloud. Ashe sipped his chocolate meditatively and watched her.

"For a poet," she said at last, "you are most unexpectedly practical."

"When I've offered to share my income with a comparative stranger—a chimerical, elusive dream-lady at that?" he asked, raising his eyebrows.

"I'm not sure about chimeras, but I think they were monsters of some kind," said the girl. "And your income is too small to be alluring, Mr. Ashe. If you don't wish any more of that chocolate, won't you have something cold? No. Well, then come back to Mrs. Foster. I'm afraid you'll be borrowing money of me next, to say nothing of the way in which you are straining your poetic fancy to find flattering names for me." She took his cup and turned away. Before he could follow her was seized upon and carried off in triumph by some fair admirers, and a quick glance back showed him that a fortunate elderly gentleman had taken possession of her, so he resigned himself to the inevitable, and did not see her again until just as he was leaving. He had looked for her to say good-by, but in vain, and Mrs. Foster did not know where she had hidden herself, so he was starting off, disappointed, but resolved not to let the thing drop, when her voice stopped him with his hand on the door.

"Au revoir, Mr. Ashe," she said, leaning toward him from the lowest step of the stairway. "Au revoir."

"Thank you," he responded, heartily. "And very soon, most fair lady of the realm of my dreams."

"That is really a loving thing, Mr. Ashe," she said, "and I am very proud to think that you think that I had any part in it."

"But didn't you?" he demanded.

"Do I believe in telepathy?" she asked, mockingly. "Am I an astral body, or a bad dream?" He shook his high hat threateningly at her.

"The truth is not in you, Mademoiselle Sapphira," he announced.

"Hear the lion growl!" she retorted, with a saucy nod, and turned to go upstairs. He took a step toward her.

"Miss Gregory!" he said, imploringly. "Seriously, now?" she looked at him over her shoulder with dancing eyes.

"Do you know, until to-day, I always supposed it was Dick Thurston that I woke up that afternoon," she said, confidentially, and ran lightly up-stairs.—N. Y. Evening Post.

POLITICS IN IRELAND.

Illustrative Instances of the Feeling Existing in the People Towards the Leaders.

The tragic times in Ireland, when peasant was at open war with landlord and all were at war with English rule, are relieved by many good stories. As Mr. Michael MacDonagh says in his book, "Irish Life and Character," the mercurial Celt is whimsical even in time of trouble. When Mr. A. J. Balfour, the present premier, was chief secretary for Ireland, he met Father Healy at a dinner in Dublin.

"Tell me, Father Healy," said Mr. Balfour, "is it true the people of Ireland hate me as much as the nationalist newspapers represent?"

"Hate you!" replied the priest. "If they hated evil as they hate you, Mr. Balfour, my occupation would be gone."

Yet it was Mr. Balfour who a few years later had accomplished much toward the pacification of Ireland. His name became amusingly prominent in Irish families. A gentleman driving into the town of Westport, County Mayo, was stopped by a pig which ran in front of his horse. An old peasant shouted across the ditch to a boy who was watching the pig stupidly:

"Arrah, Mick, will ye stir yerself? Don't ye see Arthur James runnin' away?"

Struck by the name, the gentleman asked the old man about it, and found that in gratitude to Mr. Balfour, who had been the means of getting them the pig, the peasant had given the animal his name.

FICKLENESS OF FORTUNE.

Illustrated by the Remarkable Experience of a Rich Russian Prince With Cards.

The fickleness of fortune, especially at cards, is well illustrated in this story, told in a new book by Count de la Garde-Chambonas, says the Chicago-Record Herald, which is attracting great attention abroad:

"Prince Galitzin, one of the richest of Russian nobles, was playing on one occasion with the most persistent bad luck. Estates, serfs, revenues, townhouses, furniture, jewels, everything had been swallowed up. He had nothing left but his carriage. That was waiting for him outside; he staked it—and lost that in a few throws of the dice. A few minutes afterward the horses were also gone."

"I did not stake the harness," he said. "It is all in silver, and has just come from St. Petersburg."

"His adversary nodded, and a game was begun for the harness. At that moment, though, the luck turned as completely in the prince's favor as a few moments previously it had been against him. In a few hours he not only won back the horses, the carriage and the family jewels, but everything else he had lost so rapidly, and that, thanks to the harness, which literally seemed to be attached to the wheel of fortune."

Reflections of a Bachelor.

By rounding out the years youth gets flat.

Love thy neighbors as they love themselves.

The safest thing for a man to do who is afraid of getting married is to fall in love with several women.

A woman's instinct makes her as sure that burglars have tried to get into the house as if they had left their cards.

You can never make a woman believe that the best way to play whist is not to measure out the cards as if she were making custard.—New York Press.

DIE IN FOREST FIRES.

Between Twenty and Thirty Lives Known to Have Been Lost in the Northwest.

Kalama, Wash., Sept. 15.—News has reached here that the forest fires on Lomis river have wrought sad havoc. D. L. Wallace, wife and two children, were burned to death. They were camping in the woods when caught by the fire. Their wagon was found burned up, the charred bodies lying near. A 12-year-old boy of Mr. Hanley's also is dead. Mrs. John Polly and baby, and a brother, name unknown, and Mr. Newhouse and Mrs. Graves are dead. Fifteen others were found without clothing except gunnysacks. The worst of the fire is on Lewis river, about 12 miles above Woodland. The country is well settled and there are doubtless other casualties.

A great fire is also raging on the Coweman, in the northern part of the county. Everything combustible in its path was consumed. The air is thick with smoke and falling ashes. Hill's camp is reported destroyed; Muckley brothers' No. 2 camp is also burned out; Moreland's camp is badly damaged. Seven donkey engines are ruined, two men from Barr's camp are reported missing, people are panic-stricken and many are almost crazed with grief over loss of property. Cowlitz county thought it was going to escape until to-day, when the reports came thick and fast, each worse than the last. Five people are dead and two missing with only partial reports from the burned district. The horrible news cast a gloom over the entire county that hardly can be described.

Portland, Ore., Sept. 15.—About 300 people are left homeless in Multnomah and Clackamas counties as a result of the forest fires that have raged for the past week. Fires have burned over a wide scope of country, but the greatest damage in this state appears to have been done in these two counties. In the fire that destroyed the town of Palmer, near Bridal Veil, two boys named Hamilton were caught while trying to escape from the flames and burned to death.

The Springwater region has been utterly swept by fires and those who have reached points in communication with the outside world say that immediate help must be sent in order to save the lives rescued from the devouring flames. Around Portland the fires are dying down and the people in the suburbs are resting easy for the first time since Thursday. In all parts of the Willamette and Columbia river valleys the smoke continues very dense and it is feared that the full extent of the losses will not be known until the districts now cut are heard from.

TERRIBLE DISASTER.

Twenty Caucasian Villages Swept Away by a Glacier—Seven Hundred Persons Killed.

St. Petersburg, Sept. 15.—A report was received from Tiflis from the officials appointed to investigate the terrible calamity in the Caucasus caused by the northern slope of Mount Kasbek descending on the valley below. Twenty villages were destroyed and nearly 700 persons killed, the damage to houses, cattle, etc., being estimated at 40,000,000 rubles (over $30,000,000). On the northern slope of Mount Kasbek, in an elevated valley, lies the watering place of Tmenkau, visited mostly by patients suffering from gout and scrofula. The hot springs came from beneath a glacier in close proximity. At five o'clock in the morning the glacier commenced to sway, but up to four p. m. the bathers, to the number of several hundred of both sexes, laughed at the idea of a catastrophe, and, in spite of distinct warnings, continued bathing.

At seven p. m. the whole valley was filled with a deafening noise like thunder, a subterranean rumbling was heard, and the stream swelled to a mighty torrent, carrying with it huge blocks of rock and ice. The bathers tried to save themselves, but it was too late. The entire northern slope of the mountain, with the glacier, began to move at a tremendous pace from village to village, destroying everything in its way. Within three minutes a valley over 12 miles long and half a mile wide was devastated. The wall of rock and earth which now filled the valley rose to a height of nearly 1,000 feet. Of the bathers only four were saved, and of the 700 corpses found in the whole valley there was hardly one not mutilated. All this destruction was the work of not more than three minutes.

Will Fight Meat Merger.

Omaha, Neb., Sept. 15.—The World-Herald quotes Gov. Savage as saying that any attempt to include the packing houses of Nebraska in a merger will result in a strong fight in the courts. On account of the large Nebraska packing interests an attempt of the state officials to prevent the combine from doing business in this state would probably have a serious effect on the proposed merger.

THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 18, 1902.

Sunday last was the first anniversary of the death of President McKinley and memorial services were held in the churches of many cities throughout the country. The addresses made were highly eulogistic tributes to the late president.

An Ann Arbor undertaker advertises himself as a "mortician." What does the gentleman mean? The ending "ian" denotes "agency through which." Can we infer that the undertaker wishes to be known as "an agency through which death comes"?

The Milwaukee Sentinel is credited with the remark that the difference between the Republican party and the Democratic is that "the Republican party does something and raises hell; the Democratic party raises hell and does nothing." That just about suits the condition of things in Michigan at all events.

General R. A. Alger's candidacy for the United States senatorship is meeting with the heartiest endorsement from the rank and file of the Republican party, and it is also looked upon with considerable satisfaction by the Democrats. In fact, he is the people's choice for the position. The reason for this unanimous sentiment in his favor is that he has always been true to the trusts imposed upon him. As a soldier he gained distinction through his gallantry; as governor of Michigan his administration was clean and business-like; as secretary of war at the period of the war with Spain he filled that difficult and trying position in a manner that satisfied all but those arrogant ones who can see no good in anything done by anyone but themselves; as a citizen his kind charitable deeds and innate goodness have endeared him to all. General Alger is par excellence the people's candidate for United States senator.

There is a loud outcry throughout different parts of the country over the ruthless manner in which fine shade trees on the sides of the public highways are being destroyed by telephone construction gangs. In one instance we read of a whole row of oak trees were cut down before their owner knew a thing about it, because they were in the road of the work of constructing the telephone line. With the coal barons holding up the natural supply of fuel in order to enrich themselves, the oil magnates skinning the people on the price of oil (now just twice the price it was 14 years ago), the harvester people combining to do the farmer up on the price of his farm tools, and the telephone companies cutting down and mutilating our shade trees, it is a question of "Where are we at?" or "Have the people any rights at all?" One thing is certain they will not have many rights that are recognized until some legislative action is taken to see that they are protected. But when the state and the national legislative bodies are in the grip of the corporations such legislation is not likely to be obtained.

The Washtenaw fair last week was well attended every day except Friday, when the extremely wet weather put a damper on everybody and everything. Thursday was the banner day in point of attendance.
A great many people from Chelsea and vicinity visited the fair Wednesday and Thursday. The main attraction was the races which were very good. Many who attended complain of the number of fake shows that found a place inside the grounds. As a result of Friday's wet weather the fair is $400 behind.

The reception given to Rev. W. P.

filled with the 100 ladies and gentlemen who were present. A dainty and appetizing supper was served, the tables being set three times to accommodate all. After supper a short time was spent in singing, music, and social greetings and conversation, after which all separated for their homes, glad to see their pastor back again from his holiday.

A GREAT RECEPTION.

President Roosevelt Mingles with His Neighbors.

Pleasant Event at Oyster Bay—Residents of Nassau County to the Number of 6,000 or 7,000 Are Warmly Greeted.

Oyster Bay, N. Y., Sept. 16.—President Roosevelt on Monday received his friends and neighbors of Nassau county, and between 6,000 and 7,000 people shook his hand. The reception was held at his country home on Sagamore hill, and from three o'clock until nearly six he was busy shaking hands and renewing old acquaintances. He met people whom he had not seen for 30 years, and shook hands with men who had known him when he was a child. The president thoroughly enjoyed the affair and was as fresh when it was over as when he began. He expressed his feelings to a woman in the crowd who asked him if he was getting tired. "Not a bit," he replied. "It takes more than a trolley car to knock me out or a crowd to tire me."

Finely Decorated.

Most all of the buildings and many of the private houses were adorned with flags and bunting. The most effective decoration was along the road leading from the center of the town to the road that winds up Sagamore hill. Here at a distance of every 100 feet were hung large American flags which formed a canopy of stars and stripes under which the people rode on the way to Sagamore hill.

The crowds began to arrive early from points on Long Island, and by noon the village streets were crowded. Delegations came in from many of the places near here, and several special trains added their quota to the crowd. At one o'clock the members of the committees, headed by a band, started for Sagamore hill, and they were followed by vehicles of all descriptions filled with Long Islanders, many of whom had come a considerable distance to greet the president.

Precautionary Measures.

The precautions to guard the president against any possible harm were of the most thorough character. In addition to Sheriff Johnson's 30 special deputies, who had been sworn in for duty, a large number of secret service men and policemen from New York, in plain clothes, were on the porch and about the grounds. No one was allowed to go past the president with a camera or a stick of any description. Cameras, valises, canes, umbrellas, and in many cases overcoats and women wraps were taken from their owners and piled up under a tree near the porch.

Reception Begins.

It was 2:45 o'clock when the reception began. President Roosevelt stood on his porch and shook hands with all. After passing him the visitors passed off the porch, along a road leading to the side of the house, where lemonade was served, and thence by another road out of the grounds. On the porch with the president were Mrs. Roosevelt, Mrs. William Roosevelt, Miss Christine Roosevelt, Miss Lorraine Roosevelt, Mrs. E. Reed Merritt, Frank E. Travis, Assistant Secretary Loeb, Father Powers and Rev. Henry Homer Washburn. All sorts of people in all conditions of life filed by the president. White and black, poor and well-to-do women with babes in arms, and several with dogs, small boys and little girls. All got a pleasant smile and a shake of the hand. Many were in line who had known the president most of his life, and their delight in renewing an old acquaintance was apparent.

Greets Old Servants.

But none gave the president more pleasure than the greeting of two old family servants, Maggie and Bridgett Mitchell, who had been servants in his father's family. They came from New York, where they now live, to greet the president and to show him a photograph of his father and one of himself when he was four years of age. The president was delighted to see the pictures, and the old servants, and presented the sisters to Mrs. Roosevelt.

Plenty of Music.

During the reception a number of bands, stationed on the lawn, in front of the porch, discoursed music. "Garry Owen," "There Will Be a Hot Time in the Old Town To-night," and "America," seemed to be the favorites, for they were repeated a number of times. The Hicksville battery, at the foot of the hill, also did its share to make the affair a success, and fired a continuous salute. A pleasing incident occurred toward the close of the reception. The New York policemen wanted their picture taken with the president. When the request was made of the president, he complied at once. "This is one time I really want a picture taken," he said. "I know these men, and I admire them. I am proud to have my picture taken with them."

Before the reception closed, the bands, which came from Brooklyn and villages on Long Island, filed past the president. He shook each by the hand and thanked him for the music he had made.

COAL BEING MINED.

Some Collieries in Panther Creek Valley Resume Operations Under Heavy Guard.

Tamaqua, Pa., Sept. 16.—Monday morning the Greenwood colliery, situated at the western end of the Panther Creek valley, resumed operations. It is impossible to learn exactly how many men are at work, as the place is very heavily guarded and the operators, the Dodd Brothers, will give out no definite statement. They say, however, that they expect to wash about 300 tons of coal a day.

Monday the Lehigh Coal & Navigation company claims gains in the Panther Creek valley. An official of this company said that it was expected that the daily output from the No. 4 and No. 12 collieries would now be increased from 1,400 to 1,800 tons a day. The leaders of the mine workers ridicule the claims of the company. They say there are no more men at work Monday than there were last week.

Wilkesbarre, Pa., Sept. 16.—Sheriff Jacobs and a large number of deputies assembled at the courthouse at an early hour Monday morning in anticipation of trouble occurring at some of the mines. But outside of an outbreak at Old Forge, in which an Italian was badly beaten by strikers, the day was a very quiet one in the strike region. National Board Member John Fallon went to Nanticoke early in the morning to head off any trouble in that section and other prominent officials of the United Mine Workers went to other parts of the county to advise against any marches on the collieries. But no marches were attempted, neither was there any effort made to resume work at any of the big mines. It is said that the attempt may be made when least expected, probably some day this week.

RUIN IS ENORMOUS.

Twenty Lives Lost and Property Worth $1,500,000 Destroyed by the Forest Fires.

Portland, Ore., Sept. 16.—Twenty lives have been lost and it is roughly estimated that $1,500,000 worth of property has been destroyed during the past week by forest fires in Oregon and Washington. Many more people are missing, but it will not be known how many are dead until reports from remote districts come in. The estimate of the property loss does not include standing timber, but covers sawmills, houses, barns, shops, cordwood and farm implements. Thousands of acres of timber have been burned over, but the destruction of great timber has not been heavy. Relief is being hurried from this city, Tacoma, Seattle and Vancouver, Wash., to those who have lost their homes and crops. The districts where the greatest destruction occurred are Lents, Springfield and Bridal Veil, in Oregon, and Fifty Plain, Lewis River and Elma, Wash. In all the places it is estimated there are about 500 people without food and shelter.

SEVENTEEN ARE DEAD.

Terrible Result of Explosion of Gas and Powder in a West Virginia Colliery.

Bluefield, W. Va., Sept. 16.—Seventeen men were killed in the Big Four mine of the Algoma Coal and Coke company by an explosion of gas and gunpowder Monday morning. Eleven bodies have been taken from the mine, and six more have been located, and will be removed as soon as the mine clears a little. The bodies so far recovered are those of negroes, except that of one white engineer named James Lester. It is almost certain that the 17 men now accounted for and two who escaped are all that were in the workings.

The explosion is said to have been caused by an accumulation of gas catching on fire from the lamp of a miner who was going to work, and this in turn fired six kegs of blasting powder that had been stored back in the mines. The explosion knocked down all of the brattices for a quarter of a mile back towards the mine entrance.

DIES OF PARALYSIS.

Horace Gray, Former Supreme Court Justice, Passes Away at Nahant, Mass.

Lynn, Mass., Sept. 16.—Justice Horace Gray, who retired from the United States supreme bench recently, died at his residence in Nahant Monday morning of paralysis. He had been in poor health for some time. Since his retirement he had been staying at his summer home.

Judge Gray was born in Boston, March 24, 1828, and was graduated from Harvard college in the class of 1843, and from the law school in 1849. He was admitted to the bar in 1851. He was reporter of the supreme judicial court of Massachusetts from 1854 until 1861. He was appointed associate justice of that court in 1864 and chief justice in 1873. President Arthur commissioned him as associate justice of the supreme court of the United States December 19, 1881.

LOAN BILL PASSED.

Cuban House Authorizes President Palma to Borrow the Sum of $35,000,000.

Havana, Sept. 10.—The loan bill passed the house of representatives Tuesday by 48 votes to 2. President Palma is authorized to make a loan in the name of the nation for the amount of $35,000,000, the minimum price of issue to be 90 and the maximum rate of interest to be five per cent. According to the bill the loan is payable in 40 years, payments to begin ten years after the date of issue. Four million dollars of the loan is to be devoted to the encouragement of agriculture and the cattle industry, and the sum of $31,000,000 is for the fulfillment of obligations contracted during the revolution and the payment of the Cuban army. The army is to be paid in accordance with the decisions of the governing council of the revolution set forth in the decrees of October 24, 1895, and September 14, 1896, and after the army lists have been rectified and classified by congress.

RAIN SINKS A BARGE.

Boat Loaded with Crushed Stone Meets with Peculiar Accident at Detroit—Two of Crew Perish.

Detroit, Mich., Sept. 10.—The steam barge H. Houghten, owned in this city, sank at her dock at the foot of Dubois street, early Tuesday. Two of the crew were drowned in their berths. The names:

William Daniel, aged 16, no home. Edward Close, aged 18, Harbor Beach, Mich.

The Houghten arrived Monday night from Kelly's Island, in Lake Erie, with a load of crushed stone. It is thought that the cargo of crushed stone absorbed so much water during the heavy rain Monday night that the weight of the water caused the vessel to careen and finally tip and sink. The Houghten is owned by Capt. Degg and Henry Houghten, of this city. Capt. Degg was aboard the barge, but managed to scramble ashore before she sank.

IN FULL ERUPTION.

Volcano on the Island of Stromboli, Sicily, Pouring Forth Fire and Stone.

Rome, Sept. 10.—The volcano on Stromboli island is in full eruption and is throwing up great columns of fire and torrents of stones. The island is shrouded in smoke. Mount Vesuvius is showing signs of activity. Stromboli is the northernmost of the Lipari islands, in the Mediterranean off the north coast of Sicily. Its area is eight square miles. It is wholly of volcanic formation and has a constantly active volcano 3,040 feet high, with an extinct crater on top, but an active one on the side at the height of about 2,150 feet. On the east side of the island lies the small town of Stromboli. The population of the island is placed at 500 persons.

THE CANDY COMBINE.

It Embraces Eighteen Western Firms, with an Annual Output of 100,000,000 Pounds.

New York, Sept. 11.—A combination of candy manufacturers just incorporated in New Jersey under the name of the National Candy company, with a capital of $9,000,000, will, according to the Journal of Commerce, embrace 18 western candy houses, having an annual output, as claimed by the promoters, of nearly 100,000,000 pounds of confectionery, mostly of the cheaper grades. The corporation comprises concerns at Cincinnati, Chicago, St. Louis, Buffalo, Detroit, Indianapolis, Louisville, Minneapolis, Grand Rapids and one or two other western cities.

SARGENT'S RESIGNATION.

Fendered to Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Accepted by That Body.

Chattanooga, Tenn., Sept. 10.—The convention of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen was called to order Tuesday morning at nine o'clock. Two hours later, Grand Master F. P. Sargent came to the convention hall and was received with enthusiastic applause as he walked on the platform. His resignation as grand master was read from the platform by Grand Secretary and Treasurer Arnold and it was accepted.

Oregon Forest Burning.

Portland, Ore., Sept. 13.—Forest fires are burning over the Cascade and Coast ranges from British Columbia to the California line, destroying millions of feet of timber, many farmhouses, barns and much livestock. Two people are known to have lost their lives, others are missing and scores are hurrying to places of safety. At Bridal Veil, Ore., Friday, the Palmer sawmill and the Brewer mill was burned. Elsie Palmer, proprietor of the Palmer mill, was burned to death, and a man named Trickey is missing. About 40 mill hands are in danger of being surrounded by fire. On Mill Plain, near Vancouver, eight farm houses were destroyed, and Mrs. Hendrickson and her two children are missing.

CROP CONDITIONS.

Secretary Wilson Tells of His Observations in Several of the Western States.

Washington, Sept. 13.—Secretary Wilson, who returned Thursday from a trip through the west, has summarized the agricultural conditions in the states he visited. These states included Nebraska, Kansas, Iowa, Illinois, Indiana and Ohio. He said there was a great abundance of crops generally in that region. "There will be a good corn crop," he said. "Corn now is substantially out of the way of the frost. The corn crop in parts of Kansas, Nebraska and Indiana are probably the finest on record. There has been more hundreds of millions of dollars depending on the ripening of this crop this year than the ordinary person has ever realized. The wheat crop of the west this year is also very fine, and what may be considered as really the most important crop of all—the grass crop—is exceedingly good. The census tells us there has been a great increase during the past ten years in the number of cattle in the United States. This information, taken together with the fine crop of grass, insures lower prices of meat. I don't believe the price of meat, however, will ever be as low as it has been in the past, for the simple reason that the American people are more prosperous than ever before and are eating more meat than ever before. However, the exceedingly high prices of meat will be a thing of the past as soon as the present 'feeders' get fattened up to a beef condition."

SHOWS ACTIVITY.

Gratifying Progress is Shown in Industrial Lines—Review of Trade.

New York, Sept. 13.—R. G. Dun & Co.'s Weekly Review of Trade says: "Industrial activity is greater than at any recent date. Many new factories and mills have been added to the productive capacity, facilities are being increased at old plants, and idle shops resumed through the settlement of labor controversies. Despite the rapid development of transportation facilities the nation's needs have grown still faster, and the situation is distressing for shippers and consumers. Large crops are being harvested and the greater abundance in food-stuffs caused a decline in prices of commodities during August of 3.5 per cent., as measured by Dun's index number. Retail trade is large with a bright outlook for the future in jobbing and wholesale business. There are few of the cancellations so numerous at this time last year, while collections are improving. Low stocks of wheat and poor grading of receipts, together with fears of frost in corn sections, sustained quotations when a decline would have been imminent if full confidence were placed in official returns of condition. Failures for the week numbered 205 in the United States, against 193 last year, and 22 in Canada, against 18 a year ago."

A DOUBLE MURDER.

Nebraska Man Kills His Former Wife and Her Mother.

Pierce, Neb., Sept. 13.—Thursday night Gottlieb Niengenfinnd shot and killed his former wife, Mrs. Anna Peters, shot six times at Albert Breyer, her father, who died Friday morning, and shot the wife of Breyer in the shoulder, seriously and perhaps fatally wounding her. After the shooting Niengenfinnd left the house and, meeting Mrs. Peter's sister, Lena Breyer, attempted a criminal assault. Mrs. Peters had been divorced from her husband two years, and he was thought to have left the country. He appeared at Pierce Sunday, however, and later paid several visits to the Breyer farm, where his former wife was living with her parents. He went to the Breyer farm Thursday evening and committed the crime.

Wife of Senator Stewart Killed.

San Francisco, Sept. 13.—Mrs. William M. Stewart, wife of the United States senator from Nevada, was killed Friday at Alameda, Cal. Mrs. Stewart was riding in an automobile with Henry Foote and a young man named Taylor. Through an accident the machine ran into a telegraph pole. Mrs. Stewart was thrown against the pole with great force and was so seriously injured that death soon followed. Her home was at Washington, D. C.

Beaumont, Tex., Sept. 13.—The fire which started at 12:50 o'clock Friday morning in the northeastern part of the oil field swept away ten acres of derricks, which stood as thick as trees in a forest. The damage is roughly estimated at $200,000, although this is considered a very conservative figure.

Wages Advanced.

MICHIGAN STATE NEWS.

Charged with Murder.

Upon the evidence brought out in the inquest over the body of Joseph LaBarge, of Toledo, the man who was arrested, charged with the murder. LaBarge was the man who visited Mrs. Walter Lemarand, an on being chased from the house by Lemarand was pursued by a man and shot. The important evidence at the inquest was given by Hansberger, a retired farmer who lives near the scene of the shooting. He swore that Bloodgood shot LaBarge while the fugitive was in stooping posture and that LaBarge did not threaten his pursuers. The jury held Bloodgood responsible for the man's death. The warrant was sworn to by William LaBarge, brother of the dead man. Bloodgood, who is a money lender, 40 years old, was held in $500 bail for examination.

Bank Robbed.

The bank at Fremont was entered by burglars and the vault and contents of the building were completely wrecked by charges of dynamite. The burglars gained entrance to the bank by prying open the front door and then dug through the brick wall into the vault. The dynamite was inserted in the safe and the door blown against the counter. The glass window in the front of the building was blown to atoms. The noise of the explosion awakened people living near by, and when they started to investigate they were met by armed men, and at the point of revolvers were made to stay in their houses. A large amount of currency was in the safe, but the robbers overlooked the larger part of it and only secured a small amount in change. The men, six in number, made good their escape.

Death in Powder.

Bailey Kerekas, a Hungarian living on a small farm near Lowell, has been arrested on a warrant issued in Ionia county charging him with an attempt to poison George Merritt, of Saranac, by means of a sample headache powder which he doctored with strychnine before sending to his intended victim by mail. Merritt is one of six persons living in the vicinity of Lowell who in the past year have received sample headache powders, and he nearly died from the effect.

Crop Outlook.

The weekly crop report of the Washington weather bureau says for Michigan: Dry, cool weather greatly retarded growth of corn and late potatoes, which now indicate short yields; plowing progressing very slowly on account of dry, hard and lumpy soil; bean planting begun; buckwheat and sugar beets continue promising; apples, peaches and pears yielding well; corn needs at least two weeks of favorable weather to mature.

Health in Michigan.

Reports to the state board of health from 83 observers in various portions of the state indicate that during the past week influenza and remittent fever increased and smallpox and pneumonia decreased in area of prevalence. Consumption was reported at 223 places, measles at 23, typhoid fever at 92, whooping cough at 23, scarlet fever at 53 and smallpox at 25 places.

Dropped Dead.

An abrupt end came to the family reunion held at the home of William Branch in Port Huron. A large number of relatives had gathered and Mrs. James Branch was one of the party, together with her husband. She complained of headache and in a few minutes dropped dead. Heart disease was the cause.

Some Noticeable Traits of the Rapid Woman

G. B. Burgin, Noted English Novelist, Discusses This Form of Femininity.

"MY DEAR lady," protestingly remarked a celebrated physician to a patient who had annoyed him by suddenly getting well, "you are a rapid woman." For the time in his life, he realized that a rapid age—an age which produced the "Rapid Woman." At the moment, he did not relish the discovery. Then, he reflected that the "Rapid Woman" would probably do more harm than good, and felt comforted.

In this humdrum world, which does not properly value the charm of the unexpected, the Rapid Woman has altogether received her due of appreciation. A man once in his brutal, manly way, that there was no such thing as bad wine. Wine was good, but some kinds were better than others. Similarly, the life of modern fiction, there is one thing as a really bad woman. She is "better than others;" and the women were reduced to a level of dull, unemotional goodness, the last but one." Before we had gone another hundred yards, it was the last but two; but the Rapid Woman certainly kept us occupied so much that we were intensely surprised to find that we had been out for three hours. We returned in a farmer's wagon, the remains of the cart not feeling up to bringing us back. "Rapid work, wasn't it?" said the girl's husband, as he came into my room with a bottle of embrocation; "but then my wife's a rapid woman."

There is another kind of Rapid Woman, who is always in a hurry to make friends, and to get rid of them with equal speed. She claims that she prevents her relations from feeling dull; they claim that as a nerve-destructor she is equal to an earthquake or a typhoon. The Rapid Woman lives in such a hurry that she has no time to think. She will "put a drachma on a gee-gee" because it has a long tail, or plunge recklessly at Monte Carlo if she suddenly dreams of an infallible system for breaking the bank. There was a Rapid Woman at Monte Carlo last year who thought of a scheme, and lost all her own and her husband's money. Their landlord wanted security until remittances arrived, but generously consented to pay for a telegram to a London banker. Then he significantly remarked that he must have "Milor's" diamond ring as security until the money came. The annoyed Rapid Woman said unkind things to the landlord—things which incensed him so much that he insisted on having the ring deposited with him. "No ring, no dinner," he said, inexorably. Fortunately, the remittances arrived, after three days of misery. "Milor" sent down the money to the landlord, and haughtily demanded the return of his ring. Everyone was lunching at the time. Suddenly the door of the dining-room crashed open, and an immaculately-dressed waiter appeared, carrying a huge tray covered with a white cloth. In the center of the tray reposed "Milor's" ring in solitary state. The Rapid Woman and "Milor" got away from Monte Carlo as swiftly as possible. People seemed to be smiling all over the place, and they did not feel happy at the rude world having been taken into their angry landlord's confidence. The Rapid Woman is always in a hurry, and, consequently, never has time to get her hair done properly. If she is in the country, she is much worried by the attentions of birds who, mistaking it for a bush, want to nest there. She rushes through life as if she were catching trains, or missing them, and will not even give herself time to die properly, but suddenly collapses in public with three gasps and a jerk. She is well on her way to the next world before a policeman can take her name and address, and summon her for creating an obstruction in this.

The Rapid Woman is more deadly than absinthe, more objectionable than the patriots who encouraged England's enemies in the late war, more confusing than a Christian Scientist, more restless than a three-year-old baby, more nerve-destroying than a motor car. Unlike the motor car, however, she never punctures her tires, and so is not forced to stop. The only time she is ever quiet is when she is playing bridge whist. Sometimes, however, she plays bridge in her sleep, and her husband wishes she were dead, or that he could fold his tent like the Arabs and as silently steal away.

The woman with a past is objectionable because she expects too many presents; the woman with a present makes one uncomfortable because she never realizes it until it is past; the woman with a future pains one's sense of the picturesque because she generally dyes before it overtakes her; but the Rapid Woman ought to be sent to the rifle range to be used as a target instead of the running deer. It would cost a good deal in ammunition before she got hit; but the practice to the sportsmen in shooting at so rapidly moving an object would be almost valuable enough to justify the experiment.

G. B. BURGIN.

KING WANTS AMERICAN WIFE.

Alfonso XIII, of Spain Sees in Matrimony a Chance to Mend Spain's Finances.

King Alfonso continues to startle the nobility of Spain by his eccentric actions. He has disregarded all the proposals of his councilors that he marry a European princess, and has announced his intention of wedding the daughter of some South American capitalist to mend the shattered state finances; reconcile the republican element by taking a plebeian consort and restore Spanish prestige in Latin America.

The king has instructed the representatives of the Spanish crown in South America to forward him full details of the millionaires possessing eligible daughters. The king has thrown a bombshell into the ranks of the nobility by stating his intention of dissolving the grand order of the Annunciade, the oldest order in Spain, and substituting for it the new order of Alfonso XIII.

A PLAY ON WORDS.

The Marriage of Miss Weeks to Mr. Day Affords Opportunity for Amusing Couplet.

An English paper records the recent marriage near Cornwall of Miss Jane Weeks to Mr. Thomas Day, and adds:

A Day is gained,
A Week is lost—
But time cannot complain;
For soon there will
Be Days enough
To make a Week again.

This, comments the Chicago Record-Herald, will doubtless come as a shock to Prof. E. Benjamin Andrews, who says some means must soon be found for limiting the earth's population. Perhaps Prof. Andrews can, by filing an early protest with the Days prevent the impending disaster.

Feat of a Somnambulist.

From Lewistown, Pa., comes the report of the recent remarkable feat of a somnambulist. Frank McNitt, while asleep, arose from his bed and walked out of the second-story window of his house and fell to the ground, a distance of 25 feet. The next morning dents to the depth of four inches were found in the ground where his hips and elbows had struck. McNitt's younger brother, who saw him get out of bed, walk to the window and deliberately step out, took a light and ran down the stairs, expecting to find his brother with his life crushed out by the fall, but he was much surprised when he saw him standing on his feet looking about him in a dazed manner and uninjured. He drank a glass of water that was tendered him and then quietly walked up the stairs and resumed his slumbers. Although he admitted feeling sore the next morning he says he does not remember anything of his remarkable fall.

Dog's Fine Digestion.
The dog of a sweet girl graduate from a Rhode Island high school ate up her diploma while it was still brand new, and its late owner is inconsolable. A good many other things are tried on a dog, but this is the first time that one has tested the filling qualities of a high school education.—Seattle Post-Intelligencer.

For forty years Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry has been curing summer complaint, dysentery, diarrhoea, bloody flux, pain in the stomach, and it has never yet failed to do everything claimed for it.

"Faint Heart" Won.
"I can never marry you," said the beautiful blonde.
"But," pleaded the wealthy old man, "won't you make my life happy for the short years I will be here? I am troubled with a weak and faint heart."
"In that case I accept you."
And yet they say faint heart never won fair lady.—Nashville American.

Not to Be Bluffed.
"I will have to have three more days out a week, and receive my company in the parlor," said the cook lady firmly.
"Bridget," replied the mistress of the house, "I warn you not to push me too far. You seem to forget that I belong to the Housewives' union No. 17!"—Cincinnati Commercial Tribune.

IN BED THREE MONTHS.

Oolitic, Ind., Sept. 15.—Mr. W. A. Terry, of this place, suffered for months with a very severe case of Kidney Trouble.

He was so very bad that he was almost confined to his bed for three months.

He tried many medicines but says he could not get any relief till he commenced to use a remedy introduced here some time ago as a cure for Kidney Trouble, the name of which is Dodd's Kidney Pills.

Mr. Terry says that the second day after commencing to use this remedy he could notice a very marked improvement in his condition and in a short time he was able to go about again.

He is naturally filled with gratitude to Dodd's Kidney Pills for the immense amount of good they have done him and says:

"I would recommend Dodd's Kidney Pills to every sufferer from kidney or bladder trouble for from my experience I am sure they are the best medicine to be had for all diseases of this nature."
