Supervisors in Session.

The board of supervisors met Monday morning in the court house for the beginning of their annual session and Sumner Damon of Ypsilanti, was elected temporary chairman. Later George Walter of Bridgewater, was elected permanent chairman.

A committee consisting of B. C. Whittaker of Solo and Sumner Damon of Ypsilanti were appointed to arrange a special order of business.

They will visit the county house today and a report will be framed of the condition of things there. One of the members said there was an unusual amount of business to be transacted this year and that they would probably be in session longer for that reason.

People's Popular Entertainment Course.

THOMAS MCCLARY.

There are a very few men upon the lecture platform who have made as great a success as Thomas McClary. He has the humor of an Artemus Ward combined with the rare oratory and learning of a Wendell Phillips. He has done as much to make the lecture popular and at the same time instructive, as any man in the Lyceum field. Nature has endowed Mr. McClary with a face and figure like that of Sol. Smith Russell, and the same power with which to make an audience laugh or cry. His ideas are fresh, his illustrations apt and his wit keen. We most heartily endorse him.—The American Lyceum Union.

EUGENE V. DEBS.

During his stay in Boston Mr. Debs spoke in historic Faneuil Hall, where for generations the great topics of the times have been handled by the orators of Boston, and where Wendell Phillips so often hurled his eloquent wrath against African slavery. Faneuil Hall has a time honored custom of allowing no seats. The audience as well as the speaker stands. Of course this permits the largest possible attendance. At Mr. Debs' October speech there the "Old Cradle of Liberty" was literally packed to the sidewalk. The Boston dailies made detailed illustrated reports declaring that for two hours the great audience scarcely moved. Prof. Frank Parsons presided and John Clark Ridpath, the historian, was among the distinguished men present.

JOHN C. BOSTLEMAN.

John C. Bostlemann was born in Hannover, Germany, in 1857. At an early age he began the study of music and his choice of instruments was the violin. He showed remarkable talent for a lad, and coming to this country with his parents continued his studies. He became a member of Her Majesty's Opera Company, also the Mapleson Opera Co. In 1886 he made a tour of the United States and Mexico with Madame Adeline Patti.

A Card of Thanks.

We desire to thank those who assisted us during the sickness and death of our brother and uncle.

EUGENE MCINTIRE AND FAMILY.

Do not forget that G. H. Foster & Co. have new guns to rent. Also the best of ammunition for sale and the largest stock of guns for sale in the county.

HIS LIFE IN PERIL.

"I just seemed to have gone all to pieces," writes Alfred Bee of Welfara, Tex., "billiousness and a lame back had made life a burden. I couldn't eat or sleep and felt almost too worn out to work when I began to use Electric Bitters, but they worked wonders. Now I sleep like a top, can eat anything, have gained in strength and enjoy hard work." They give vigorous health and new life to weak, sickly run-down people. Try them. Only 50c at Glazier & Stimson's drug store.

FORTY YEARS' TORTURE.

To be relieved from a torturing disease after 40 years' torture might well cause the gratitude of anyone. That is what Dr. Wm. H. Bates' New Discovery did for C. Hancy, Geneva, O. He says: "Dr. Wm. H. Bates' New Discovery cured me of piles after I had suffered 40 years. Cure cuts, burns, wounds, skin diseases. Beware of counterfeits. Glazier & Stimson."

LOOK OUT FOR FEVER.

Billiousness and liver disorders at this season may be prevented by cleansing the system with Dr. Wm. H. Bates' Little Early Bitters. These famous little pills do not gripe. They move the bowels gently, but copiously, and by reason of the tonic properties, give tone and strength to the glands. Glazier & Stimson.

OUT OF DEATH'S LAWS.

"When death seemed very near from a severe stomach and liver trouble, that I had suffered with for years," writes P. Muse, Durham, N. C. "Dr. King's New Life Pills saved my life and gave perfect health." Best pills on earth and only 35c at Glazier & Stimson's drug store.

County and Vicinity

Mrs. Joseph Gauntlet of Milan, wife of the democratic nominee for sheriff, died at her home last Thursday evening.

The girls who have been employed at Manchester's canning factory went out on a strike the other day. Their demands were granted, and once more the wheels are moving.

It is confidently expected by the Y. M. C. A. of Ann Arbor that they will be able to move into their new building by September 1, 1903. Bids have been asked for on the same.

Three additional rural free delivery routes have been established at Saline, to take effect November 1st. They will be 7 1/2 miles in long, cover an area of 69 square miles and serve 1,598 people.

Col. H. S. Dean of Ann Arbor thinks that he has a remedy for the high price of fuel in that city. He wants the city to purchase a piece of timber land and set men at work clearing it up, selling the wood to the residents of the city at cost.

Because he did not receive his share out of his father's estate, Frank Cranston of Dexter out his brother and sisters when he came to make his will. He left $4,000 worth of property to the Webster township cemetery and the Webster Congregational church. His relatives names were not mentioned in the will.

Henry Giltner of Grass Lake was killed and a number of men seriously injured by the falling of the walls and cement floors of the new Otsego hotel which is in process of construction at Jackson, Saturday morning. It is not known what caused the accident, but the coroner's jury is making every effort to place the blame in the proper place.

Seneca Litchard, the Saline farmer who was the victim of an assault at Ann Arbor last spring, by which he suffered a concussion of the brain that caused a sleep unprecedented in medical annals, has been at Pontias asylum for some time. His mind is quite clear and he is able to remember his friends and incidents that occurred prior to his accident.

Milan's oil well was shot Tuesday, ten gallons of nitro-glycerine being used. The well had been drilled to a depth of 1,500 feet and the experts said that this was just the time for the explosion to occur. A considerable amount of rock and dirt was blown into the air, but no oil came. Milan now has a hole in the ground that will be disposed of very cheap.

The bean market so far as Manchester is concerned, is a dead one. Dealers offer $1.50 a bushel for new beans but there is none to be had, at least the farmers do not want to dispose of them at that price. It is the same way with onions, our local dealers say they can find no market for them and 50 cents a bushel is all they offer, yet those who raised onions say they have been offered as high as 70 cents.—Manchester Enterprise.

A traveling man says: "I do not know of any place of the size in the United States where the amount of tobacco used equals that here in Ann Arbor. It is a positive fact that we sell about twenty tons of the weed during the course of the year. There are other brands perhaps equally as popular as mine being smoked in Ann Arbor. In addition, also, you must remember that many of the boys smoke cigars and many more buy cigarettes by the packet."

The discussion of the plan of Col. Dean to have Ann Arbor's council call a special election to vote $20,000 for a municipal wood yard to supply the poor at cost this winter, has caused William Judson to take a hand in the matter. "There is no necessity for a special election or for the city to bond itself," said the state oil inspector. "I authorize the papers to announce that I will go out and buy $10,000 to $20,000 worth of wood myself and I will deliver it here and sell it to the poor and unprovided at actual cost. Further, I will place myself under good bonds to the extent of $100,000 that the people will get the wood at actual cost and I know that there is no man in the state of Michigan who can buy wood cheaper than I can. I will pay the spot cash for it and not charge any interest."

GOES LIKE HOT CAKE
"The fastest selling article I have in my store," writes druggist C.T. Smith of Davis, Ky., "is Dr. King's New Discovery for consumption, coughs and colds, because it always cures. In my six years of sales it has never failed. I have known it to save sufferers from throat and lung diseases, who could get no help from doctors or any other remedy." Mothers may rely on it, best physicians prescribe it, and Glazier & Stimson guarantee satisfaction or refund price. Trial bottles free. Regular sizes 50c and $1.

FROM ALL OVER MICHIGAN

The Building Collapsed.

By the collapse of the new hotel building, the Otsego, in process of erection on the site of the old Hubbard house, which occurred Saturday morning, one man was killed and four others seriously injured.

The walls of the building had reached the top of the fourth story, and a recent inspection had satisfied the architects that they were strong. They were 16 inches thick, and should have been capable of supporting a much greater weight than that which is supposed to have caused their collapse. The west wall fell first, carrying with it the floors and such scaffolding as remained to the ground.

At the time of the accident 13 men were upon the upper floor, one of them being the contractor, Mayor Samuel Pickles. They had little warning, but eight of them managed to reach the windows in the walls which stood, and other parts of the building, and were rescued when the police and fire departments reached the scene.

The masons at work upon the west side, however, were not so fortunate, and five of them were carried down with the falling wall. One of them, Henry Giltner, of Leoni, was buried under tons of debris, and it was 1:30 this afternoon before his body was rescued from the ruins. The others, Patrick W. Coughlin, W. Thomas, George L. Van Allen and William McVey were soon taken out and made as comfortable as possible at the hospital. Of these, Coughlin will probably die. He is badly bruised about the head, shoulders, and chest, and suffered internal injuries. The others are bruised, but not so seriously as to cause fear for their recovery. Van Allen's right arm is broken and his left shoulder crushed, and McVey's scalp was partially torn off.

The cause of the collapse is not known. The floors were built of wire and cement, from under which the false work upon which they had been laid was removed. The section of the west wall which fell is about 60 feet long.

What Jackson Got.

The tax rolls of Jackson county have been returned from the state tax commission, who reviewed them. Jackson city has been boosted from $12,583,800 to $17,044,485, an increase of $4,460,685, or about 36 per cent. Real estate in the city is raised an average of 30 per cent, but personal property was not given a level raise. The large holders of personal property find their assessments raised, and a reduction is the exception. The Jackson Gas Co. is raised from $179,000 to $205,000; Novelty Manufacturing Co., $33,500 to $105,000; others in proportion. All manufacturers and business houses are boosted. Township assessments are disturbed but little.

The Second Estate.

Ex-Judge E. S. Hough, recently appointed guardian of Mathias Secord, of Lapeer, has just taken an inventory of the estate. Secord was adjudged insane eight years ago, and in September Mrs. Secord was taken to the asylum also. The heirs petitioned the Probate Court to appoint Hough guardian. After conducting his inventory, he said: "I have been called upon a number of times to assist in taking stock, but the Secord inventory is the most peculiar of them all. The only scrap of paper, good, bad or indifferent, found in the house was a Bible. I am positive they never took a newspaper, and doubt if they ever had an almanac."

The Blazing Forests.

Forest fires are fiercely raging all over the Menominee range. Many small towns are in danger. Fire reached the outskirts of Niagara, seven miles from Iron Mountain; but for the wind shifting the village and big paper mill would have been destroyed. Seven thousand cords of wood were destroyed that belonged to the paper mill. Florence was also in danger. Fires were very near the town and citizens were fighting them.

The danger from forest fires in the vicinity of Menominee is past and people who fled from their homes, are now going back, though many of them will find their homes burned. The village of Kells, twenty-eight miles west of here, was completely wiped out, though no loss of life is reported. Twenty thousand cedar trees, posts, etc., were burned there. Though several houses were burned at Koss, the village was saved from destruction by a change in wind. Many farms were burned over. Several lumber companies lost quite heavily. The loss caused by the fire is not known yet.

The Menominee Fires.

Fires are burning over a large territory west of Menominee and several villages and thousands of dollars' worth of property are in danger. A number of farm houses have been burned and everybody is fighting fire. Only a few houses were burned at Koss. The fire which raged in the forests jumped over the village. Most of the inhabitants, however, got out on a train, as it was expected that the town would be destroyed. The fire was started by farmers burning underbrush. The woods and swamps are dry as tinder. A high wind prevailed and the fires burned fiercely around Wausaukee, Middle Inlet, Bagley Junction and other places.

For Shooting a Shooter.

Otto Wenzel, the Menominee camp cook who shot Philip Arnold, the crazy man who killed Fireman Boncha in his engine cab, has been arrested and held on a charge of murder. It is now claimed that the shooting of the dead man was unwarranted. According to the testimony at the hearing, Arnold was approaching camp when Otto Wenzel and Chas. Olson ordered him to halt. Instead of doing so the crazy man ran away. The two men thought he was running to get a place from which he could shoot at them and fired.

Kalamazoo Taxes.

The state tax commissioners have returned the county tax rolls after a three days' session in Kalamazoo, and it seems large local firms are hard hit. The Henderson-Ames Company has been raised from $80,000 to $100,000; the Kalamazoo Corset Co., $81,000 to $213,000; the Kalamazoo Gas Co., $39,000 to $55,000 real, and $100,000 to $245,000 personal, including value of franchise; Lull & Skinner Carriage Co., $25,000 to $30,000; Michigan Traction Co., $137,000 to $136,000, mostly value of franchise. This company is also hard hit in several townships. The Superior Paper Co., $67,000 to $90,000; Upjohn Pill & Granule Co., $50,000 to $90,000; Williams Manufacturing Co., $10,000 to $45,000; Joseph R. Wyckoff-estate, $81,000 to $281,000; Francis Hull-estate, $26,000 to $83,000. All the banks had the stock boosted in value one-third to one-half. Citizens generally register a big kick against the increased valuation. Most of the heavy boosts are in personal property, real property getting an almost uniform raise of 15 per cent.

Hargraves Guilty.

After being out 22 1/2 hours the jury in the Hargraves case, tried in Traverse City, returned a verdict of manslaughter. Hargraves, last April, choked his invalid wife and beat her to death with a club in a bedroom of their home. The man had long been a victim of epilepsy, and the principal line of his defense was that, if he committed the deed, he did it while in a fit. He claimed to know nothing of the occurrence, save that, as he declared, his wife had a fit and he tried to hold her. They both fell, he alleged, and she struck her head and was killed. It was shown that quarrels between the couple had been frequent. The wife was jealous, without warrant so far as the testimony went to show.

In his charge to the jury the trial judge ruled out all consideration of first degree murder.

Printing Plant for University.

In addition to the bindery which is now operated by the University of Michigan, there is likely to be established soon a university printing shop, for the issuing of small books and pamphlets, written by university professors for use by students; also for printing annual reports issued by the university.

Considerable renown has been won by clever work done by the university bindery, and some fine examples of book covering and leather work have been produced. The regents at their meeting Friday discussed the feasibility of installing a press, and before the end of the year the plant may be in working order.

Shocking Death.

The mangled body of an unknown man was found Friday morning strewn for half a mile along the Chicago & Northwestern tracks near Menominee about daylight by a laborer. The bones, teeth, intestines, etc., were scattered here and there, and one leg and an arm were found a long way from the body. The face was also torn off. It is thought to be the remains of a man seen hanging around the depot at Menominee the night before, slightly intoxicated, with a companion. The companion said he was from Holmes's logging camp, but he cannot be found.

Sold the Tools.

The Jackson police have a novel case on hand, the stealing and pawnshop of a blacksmith shop. Isaac Edwards, blacksmith, went on a vacation, leaving his shop in charge of George Edwards and John McFarland. When he returned the building was still there, but the contents were missing. Investigation revealed that the two men had moved the whole outfit to Norris's second-hand store and sold it for $25. The plunder has been recovered, but the two men are still at large.

AROUND THE STATE.

Peter White, of Marquette, has been admitted to practice before the bar of the Supreme Court.

The New Haven township board has ordered a $1,000 soldiers' monument to be placed in the new Lathrop cemetery. It will be unveiled next Decoration day.

The Iron Mountain school board is about to engage in the printing business. They have bought a press, type, paper cutter, etc., and will do the school work.

Claude Parks, of Alden, the young man who is charged with assaulting Mrs. Russell Tewksbury, a lady of 54, was captured after a long chase by the sheriff and a posse.

While endeavoring to board a moving locomotive, brakeman Howard Osgood, of Marquette, missed his footing, and lost both legs under the wheels. He died in half an hour.

Burglars broke into the home of John Swen, an old man living alone in Gailen village, last night, and after sandbagging and knifing Swen in his bed, robbed the house, securing $287.

A live eagle was captured by two Coldwater young men on North Lake, near Oak Grove cemetery. The eagle measured five feet three inches from tip to tip, and is apparently a young bird.

Mrs. J. R. Fox was found unconscious in the yard of her home in Cedar Springs and died soon after of heart disease. When the news reached her husband, the shock caused a stroke of apoplexy. It is feared he cannot survive. Mr. Fox is a leading druggist at Cedar Springs.

Fred L. Chappell, attorney, alleges unlawful combination and conspiracy among the plumbers of Kalamazoo, and has petitioned for an injunction to restrain Plumbing Inspector Wm. H. Andrews from interfering with work at Chappell's house. The inspector stopped work being done by an outside firm.

Michigan Pensioners.

Washington, Oct. 13.—Michigan pensions were granted Saturday as follows: Originals—William Frost, Midland, $6; Augustus N. Randall, Manistee, $8; Edward Alling, Ionia, $6; Charles H. Dumont, Bay City, $12. War with Spain—August A. Rueter, Saginaw, $10; Dusty Rock, Saginaw, $12; George Bennett, Petersburg, $12; John Ellis, Grantville, $12; Clarence M. Clough, Mair, $17; Jacob Phillips, Flint, $30; Lorenzo Chapman, Sparta, $8; John Alfred, Fennville, $8; Victor M. Cromwell, Saginaw, $10. Widows—Julia A. Cole, Grand Lodge, $8; Mary A. Put to Flight.

Burglars attempted to gain an entrance to the residence of Rev. E. M. Oullinane, pastor of St. Mary's church, Niles, but he drove them away with a shotgun.

Hargraves Gets 15 Years.

John T. Hargraves, who murdered his wife and was convicted of manslaughter at Traverse City, was sentenced to 15 years in Jackson state prison at hard labor.

One Cement Company Quits.

The Pyramid Portland Cement Co., of Detroit, organized some months ago with an authorized capital of $320,000, has filed notice of dissolution with the secretary of state.

STATE NEWS CONDENSED.

Burglars broke into Walsh's general store at Downingtown and dynamited the safe, securing $2,500, of which $1,000 was in cash and $1,500 in certificates of deposit. They escaped before any clue to them could be secured.

Herman Lundin, surface man at the Aragon mine, Norway, while going to the shaft house, walked into a barrel of boiling water that was sunk in the ground, the top being on a level with the ground. He was badly scalded, and it is thought, cannot live.

Adam P. Pies, living at Vulcan, was found dead in the woods. He had been hunting and was shot in the stomach. His gun was found thirty feet from his body, where it is supposed he dropped it when it was discharged. He leaves a widow and three children.

Mrs. P. A. Hunt, an old lady aged about 71 years, committed suicide at Webberville by cutting her throat with a razor. She was found some hours after in the garden dead, the razor lying by her side. She lived with her nephew, H. W. Silsby.

The recent rains have practically ruined Michigan's bean crop. W. H. Wood, of Howell, makes an off-hand estimate of the loss to Michigan farmers at $1,000,000 to $2,000,000. The price of beans has risen from $1.50 to $2.25 or more a bushel.

The farmers who have beans of last year's crop on hand are in luck. In view of the price to which the product has soared on account of the failure of the crop this year, William Rolston, of Argentine, sold 2,500 bushels of his 1901 beans at $2 a bushel.

Thomas A. Steward, accused of manslaughter, was released from custody Saturday. George J. Barringer, while drunk, forced his way into Steward's house and insulted the latter's wife. Steward threw him out of the house so violently that death resulted.

During the trial of Ald. H. K. Haab, of Battle Creek, for alleged fraud against the city, the defense brought out the fact that city officials had a banquet at Gogneau Lake, at which cigars and liquid refreshments were served, the bills for the same being paid by the council.

The plant of the Schonberg Lumber Co., at Good Harbor was destroyed by fire Wednesday night. The loss on the mill will reach $15,000, on lumber $20,000, shingles $4,600, slabs $4,500, and Schonberg's residence $900. One-third of the loss is covered by insurance. The fire caught after the men had retired, it is thought, from sparks from a barge.

The National Get-Coal Convention, called by Detroit's mayor and common council, adopted strong resolutions demanding immediate action by the federal government and the governor of Pennsylvania. Present laws are considered fully adequate. The 300 representatives of a dozen states and dozens of great cities made a fine deliberative body.

John, the 11-year-old son of Ira Huntley of Caledonia township, died of lockjaw Thursday. The boy stepped on a broken board about three weeks ago, and a silver, which was not removed, penetrated his foot for a depth of several inches. Blood poisoning set in. A few days ago, lockjaw followed, and no relief could be given the sufferer.

David Chassee, a farmer living on the banks of the Menominee river, has discovered a large bed of clam shells in front of his place, and tests made in Chicago show that they are very valuable. They are used for the manufacture of buttons. A number of valuable pearls have also been found, and Chassee will proceed to mine his wealth at once.

John A. Hargraves, of Traverse City, convicted of manslaughter, was sentenced to 15 years at hard labor at Jackson. In giving sentence, Judge Mayne said that from evidence given in the case Hargraves deserved the full limit. When asked by the judge if he had anything to say, Hargraves declared his innocence of the crime, and said that no angry word had passed between himself and his wife on the morning of her death.

The oil portrait of the late Justice Charles D. Long was presented to the Supreme Court Tuesday. The portrait, draped with black and embellished with wreaths of roses and a sheaf of ripened wheat tied with a white satin ribbon, occupied a place on an easel near the bench. The portrait was presented on behalf of the donors, who are members of the Michigan bar, by John J. Carlton, of Flint.

Grand Rapids is out in earnest to secure the state Odd Fellows' home, and at the meeting at Port Huron October 21 to decide upon a location for the institution will make an offer of forty acres of land free as a site.

TO SETTLE COAL STRIKE

By the authority of J. Pierpont Morgan, who, with his partner, Robert Bacon, and Secretary Root, were in conference with President Roosevelt Monday night, a statement was given out by Secretary Cortelyou, in which the presidents of the coal-carrying railroads and mine operators propose a commission of five persons to adjust the differences and settle the coal strike in the Pennsylvania anthracite regions.

The proposition is believed by the administration to be satisfactory to the miners, as it covers the proposition made by President Mitchell, with additional conditions, which it is believed the miners will accept.

The Coal Strike.

President Roosevelt is seeking every method by which there may be federal action in settling the coal strike. His cabinet advisers have been requested to look carefully into the laws which have a bearing on the subject and see if there is any statute under which he can proceed. So far nothing has been found. There is one ray of hope, but it is rather faint in view of the attitude of the coal operators. This is that some mutual ground for arbitration may be found.

That the president is very much in earnest is shown from the conferences on the subject that continue at the White House.

The American Federation of Labor, through its executive council, has issued an address to the public, appealing for financial and moral aid for the striking miners, and denouncing the attitude of the mine owners, on whom, the appeal says, must rest the responsibility for the hardships resulting from the coal famine.

A Nice School Board.

Three members of the board of education of South Omaha—A. V. Miller, president, and members J. L. Kubat and Theodore Schroeder—were arrested Saturday charged with receiving bribes. The specific bribes are in consideration of the latter securing increase in salary, and bribery in connection with furnishing typewriters for the board.

The charges are supported by twelve affidavits placed in the hands of the county attorney, and on which the warrants were issued. The investigation on which the complaints were issued has been in progress for some time, and it is said other arrests will follow.

The President Walks.

President and Mrs. Roosevelt went out for a drive in an open landau Saturday morning. For the first time since his illness the president reached his carriage unassisted. Instead of being carried down stairs in an invalid chair he came down upon crutches. He descended the steps in front of the house without assistance and crossed to the carriage. He held up his injured limb so that the foot did not touch the ground. A large crowd in front of the house applauded as he took his seat in the carriage. He acknowledged the greeting by raising his soft felt hat and bowing right and left.

Maniac's Awful Crime.

Charles Cawley, aged 17, of Homestead, Pa., killed his mother and one sister early Friday morning with an ax.

He also hacked four other sisters so badly that they will die. He then attacked an elder brother, but the ax glanced off his head and the brother awoke. He jumped out of bed when he saw his would-be assassin and knocked him down with a chair. He then took him to the police station.

Cawley was laboring under mental aberration, the result of the strain of perfecting an appliance for patents on an air brake, which are pending in Washington.

Paid for Broken Neck.

Thirty-five thousand dollars for a broken neck was the verdict in a Chicago Court on Saturday against the Union Traction Co. in favor of Frederick Thoeftell, a carpenter, formerly employed by that corporation. About a year and a half ago, while building a shed for the company, Thoeftell fell from a scaffold, his neck being broken. During the progress of the case in court, Thoeftell appeared with his head in what is known among surgeons as a "jury mast." He is also compelled to use crutches. The case is one of the few on record where the victim of a broken neck has lived.

Cuba Becoming Hostile.

The situation as to Cuba is such at present as to give officials at Washington great concern. It is feared that Cuba is drifting away and evidence is multiplying day by day to mark the growth of a spirit of indifference toward the cultivation of friendly commercial relations with the United States that almost borders on hostility.

Queen Lil Coming.

Ex-Queen Lillinkalan will leave Honolulu by the Ventura Nov. 11 for Washington, where it is understood she will press her claim for the crown lands. Her suit will be the same as last year, and she will make stops at Salt Lake City, Chicago and New York.

Mrs. Kate Houston and her four little girls are missing from Keokuk, Ill., and it is feared she has killed the children and herself.

Edward C. Carter, the athlete, who graduated from Harvard in 1900, has started for India to begin missionary work. He is to be supported by the students of Harvard.

Damages of $50,000 for breaking an engagement of 17 years' standing are demanded by Miss Mary A. E. MacDonald, aged 38, a well known author of Fall River, Mass., from Patrick Kiernan, aged 61, superintendent of the city waterworks.

Schultz Bound Over.

Ernest Schultz, charged with the murder of his wife, Minnie Schultz, was bound over to the Circuit Court upon examination before Justice Kelly at East Tawas Friday. John A. Simonson, of Bay City, represented him, and Prosecuting Attorney Jabraus appeared for the people. Nothing new was developed, and enough testimony only to bind Schultz over was introduced.

He will be tried at the next term of court, in December.

Stole a Million.

Further investigation into the affairs of the St. Wenceslaus Loan bank, of Vienna, in the funds of which a shortage of $500,000 was discovered, shows the amount stolen to be $1,000,000, and that the peculations had been carried on for 20 years. When Herr Drona was elected president of the bank he lived sumptuously and maintained two large villas. He has given large sums to his housekeeper besides living heavily on the hoards.

Sultan Wants War.

The sultan of Bagdad, Mindanao, has rejected the friendly overtures of Gen. Sumner, commander of the American forces in Mindanao, in a defiant letter in which he invites war. The sultan says: "The sultan of Bagdad desires war forthwith. He wishes to retain the religion of Mohammed. Cease sending letters. What we want is war. We do not desire your friendship."

Rebels Won Victory.

A dispatch from Cape Haitien says the rebel army won a brilliant victory Saturday at Montrois. The provisional government's gunboat Novelle Volodroge was sunk by the fort at St. Marc. It is reported the gunboat's crew was drowned. The Novelle Volodroge was recently commissioned to enforce the blockade of the revolutionary ports.

CONDENSED NEWS.

The next convention of the Brotherhood of St. Andrew will be held at Denver, Col.

Earl Bush and Frank Anspaugh were blown to atoms by an explosion of nitro-glycerine near Lima, O.

Two masked men held up and robbed four saloons in thickly settled portions of Denver, Col., Monday night. At one saloon they shot and killed Charles Boykin.

A great Masonic home, to cost $125,000, is to be erected in Monticello county by the grand lodge, A. F. and A. M. of Illinois, a tract of 120 acres of land having been bequeathed to the grand lodge for that purpose.

The Ferris wheel has made its last revolution in Chicago. Arrangements have been made to take it to the St. Louis exposition and it will be dismantled soon. Ever since it was removed from Jackson park, at a cost of $125,000, it has been a notable landmark of the north side.

Dr. G. B. Crawford, a prominent physician of Lovelock, La., shot and killed John A. Vickers in a saloon. Crawford's son and Vickers' had a dispute and Dr. Crawford says he shot to save his son's life as Vickers was advancing upon Crawford with a knife.

Buildings belonging to the Moore & Handley Hardware Co., of Birmingham, Ala., were destroyed by fire, entailing a loss of $200,000, 75 per cent of which is covered by insurance. The fire was started by an explosion, presumably of gasoline. Two men were seriously injured.

Two thousand men of the Bulgarian army reserves have been called out to strengthen the frontier guard in the district of Kustendil. In consequence of repeated attempts on the part of Macedonian revolutionists to cross the Bulgarian frontier. It is reported that a state of siege has been proclaimed at Dubnitza.

Three masked men held up the Pacific coast express train of the Burlington road four miles from Lincoln, Neb., Saturday morning. They used explosives on the express car, shattering it badly, and after wrecking the safe, rifled it of its contents, securing booty of an estimated value of $1,500. The robbers escaped.

A suit for damages, growing out of the operations of grave robbers in the cemeteries in and around Indianapolis, were filed against the Central College of Physicians and Surgeons in the Circuit Court Saturday by Mrs. Laura Johnson, the widow of Wallace Johnson, whose body is missing from the grave.

At Droyssig, Bohemia, on Monday, a village schoolmaster, 40 years of age, while talking to his class suddenly became insane, rushed to his desk, drew a revolver from it and let it amuck, shooting right and left among the terrified children. Three scholars were killed and three dangerously wounded. Villagers lynched the schoolmaster.

A dispatch received at Berlin from Caracas, Venezuela, says Adam Russell, a German subject and manager of the Venezuelan Plantation Co., has been found murdered and robbed on the road. The authorities charge the crime to the revolutionists.

Miss Barrymore's Gown.

Miss Ethel Barrymore is wearing a girlish gown of white net, striped horizontally with rose pink ribbon—the haydore striping thus made sultry her tall, slender form. The bodice blouses all around, and the ribbon used on it has a finely corded edge. It is perhaps three-fourths of an inch wide, and the bands are also three-quarters of an inch apart. There is a little lace around the neck, and from there to the belt the bands go round and round. The sleeves fit the arms, but not too closely; and are made of net and ribbon to match the bodice, and end a little below the elbow in a single ruffle, not over two inches wide. The bands of ribbon used to bar the skirt are of graduated width, that at the bottom of the scant, trailing skirt being three inches wide and the upper one the width of that used in the corsage; the width of net showing between is the same—three-quarters of an inch. Long white gloves, a small black and white ruche bon, and a flat black hat, not very large and trimmed with ostrich plumes, also black, complete this toilet.

New Bonbon Boxes.

Unique bonbon boxes are going to be a fad this winter. They are square or oblong boxes covered with pale blue satin, and they are not hard to make and cover. They are decorated with sprays or clusters of clover, daisies or forget-me-nots, or other small flowers. Then there are also the baskets of white satin straw with sprays of roses, forget-me-nots, looking as fresh as real field flowers, tied with chic bows of pale blue satin ribbon.

kitchen table and cabinet is an advantage. It also saves many steps in the preparation of a meal by keeping many needed articles within reach. It is made of hard wood, the top being 45 inches long by 30 wide, with directly underneath sliding boards for meat and bread. The flour bin is fastened with automatic hangings, while all waste space is avoided. The four large front drawers hold linen, kitchen dishes, cutlery, cook book, teas, coffee, condiments, sugar, meal, cereals, etc., while the locker will hold vinegar, syrup, etc. The zinc-lined bottom makes it positively mouse and rat proof.

Norfolk Coat.

Norfolk coats have acquired great vogue and are seen upon the smartest walking suits. This handsome model is shown in the fashionable "mannish" cloth of mixed gray and makes part of a costume, but the design suits the general wrap, all serges, cloths, wool canvas, and chevrons, including the new black and white mixtures known as "Queen's Mourning" equally well. The coat is made with loose fronts and fitted backs that are seamed at the center and includes applied box plaits that give the Norfolk suggestion. At the upper portion is an applied yoke the neck of which is finished with a wide band of white cloth.

TWO ATTRACTIVE EVENING COATS.

The black evening coat is of silk, lined with white, and having white moire, black velvet, and white lace for its trimmings.

After the candy has disappeared these dainty boxes and baskets form lovely resting places for handkerchiefs, laces or other dainty femininities.

The other evening coat is made of white broadcloth. The cuffs and collar are pale blue cloth, and the decorations are blue and silver buttons.

ished with regulation collar and lapels, and the coat closes in double breasted style.

The Shirred Skirt.

The new shirred skirts are exceedingly smart, made both in dark and light plain chiffons or muslins, and there are rows of the shirring three together at regular intervals from just below the waist to the top of the gathered or plaited sounce. The waist to go with these skirts has three rows close together, just above the belt, and between these the material is arranged in full, graceful folds. These "shirred" gowns, however, can be worn to advantage only by a slight and graceful figure. Deep-pointed yokes on the waist and skirt, formed by shirrings are smart.

Jelly Jumbles.

Cream $\frac{1}{2}$ cup butter, add gradually 1 cup sugar (1 use $\frac{1}{2}$ pint measuring cup), one egg, well beaten, $\frac{1}{2}$ teaspoon of soda (level measure) dissolved in $\frac{1}{4}$ cup of sour milk, $\frac{1}{2}$ level teaspoon of salt. Add flour to make a soft dough. Cull, shape with a round cutter, and on one-half the pieces put currant jelly. In the remaining pieces cut three small openings (I use a thimble without any top), put pieces together, press edges slightly, and bake in a rather hot oven that jumbles may keep in good shape.

Goblets Are In.

Rock crystal goblets fashioned after the long stemmed type of our grandmother's days, have taken the place of the flat tumbler that held sway for some time past. The daintiness and clearness of these new goblets appeal particularly to the chateleine who likes a delicate water glass.

Cost Him His Life.
Max Henry Fleischer, of Chicago, is dead as a result of an injury received in a football game six years ago. Until two months ago Fleischer's parents did not know of the accident, but as soon as his father learned of it he had an examination made, which showed that the young man's skull was depressed. The skull trephined revealed a diseased spot on the brain. During the last six years Fleischer had suffered from severe headaches. Several times he was found unconscious.

The Governor Injured.

Gov. Bliss's horse ran away with him in the G. A. R. parade in Washington Wednesday with results that might have been more serious than they were. As it is, he is confined to his bed at Arlington Hotel with his right ankle badly sprained, his right knee bruised, his left cheek and nose badly scratched and covered with court plaster, and a cut on his forehead which required two stitches to close.

The steamer Colonian from Liverpool brought from London orphan homes 320 boys and girls to be forwarded to homes in Canada and the west.

An automobile was run down by an Erie train at Youngstown, O., and Harry Tod, son of a prominent capitalist of that city, and grandson of the late Gov. Tod, of Ohio, was killed. Three other occupants of the auto escaped.

The sensational elopement of 10-year-old Ida Franz, of La Crosse, Wis., with a full-blooded Onondaga Indian, Thos. Beason, had a second chapter when the girl was found unconscious and apparently drugged in the attic of a log shack near Ashland. The girl claims the Indian hypnotized her.

Ed Hall, the butter maker at the Glendale creamery, met death suddenly Saturday. About 11 o'clock he told his wife he would take a gun and go out and shoot a woodchuck he had seen in the brush. Mrs. Hall heard the report of the gun soon after, but thought nothing of it until about 4 o'clock when she saw a fire in the woods and started in search of her husband. He was shot through the heart and his clothes were all afire and nearly burned off. It is not known how he came by his death. He was in good circumstances and only recently married.

Dr. F. W. Daykin, of Cleveland, O., charged with having given City Commissioner Charles A. Kohl a $2,000 bribe for his vote on a natural gas ordinance, was acquitted.

President Butler, of Columbia University, advocates the reduction of the term for the degree of A. B. from four to two years, the idea being to increase the number of students.

F. W. Relts, former secretary of the Orange Free State, in reply to an address of welcome at New York, declared he never would live under the British flag nor take the oath of fealty to that nation.

Fishing Time.

I cannot fix my mind to-day
On what I have to do;
A picture haunts my inner eye
Of waters swift and blue,
My fingers itch to cast a fly,
The bells of memory chime
And call me to the woods and fields,
For this is fishing-time.

I dream of mossy stepping-stones
In lazy amber brooks,
Of grassy banks with blossoms bright,
And silent, shady nooks,
Where I forgot the world of toil
And wash away its grime
In crystal depths of running streams
That sing of fishing-time.
I long to see the sunfish play,
The minnows' merry school,
The trout beneath the shelving bank
Or in his favorite pool,
And all the silver finny folk
That throng the watery clime;
So hand me out the old brown coat
I keep for fishing-time.
—Minna Irving in Leslie's Weekly.

Surprise With an Infernal Machine.
Think of constructing an infernal machine out of five wooden toothpicks! And when you get it all fixed and ready to be "touched off," it will make as much fun as any little device you ever heard of.

Here is the way to make it: Select five of the longest and smoothest toothpicks you can find, and place two of them on the bottom of a goblet or wineglass, turned upside down on a table, in the form of the letter X. On these two place a third one, so that it will lie lengthwise along the middle line of the letter.

Now place a pick at each end so that it will rest on top of the middle one and under the ends of the crossed ones. This will make a little bend in the middle pick, causing enough pressure to hold the device together. The picks may be more easily arranged if you get some one to help you.

Get a long cork and stick matches into it to represent arms and legs. An extra piece of cork may be carved into a sort of head for the figure, and the effect will thereby be made more grotesque. Or you may make the head with all the features out of new bread, which is malleable enough for the purpose. A little water color paint will make eyes, nose, ears and cheeks.

Now place the figure astride of the middle toothpick, at one end, and you have everything ready for the "going off" of the machine. To bring about the catastrophe you have only to touch a lighted match to the end of one of the crossed toothpicks, and just as soon as enough of it has burned to reach the point of junction the whole device will fly to pieces, and as the bent middle toothpick will spring up when thus released from pressure it will throw the figure into space dismembered.

The result is both startling and amusing.

Knot in Handkerchief.

The task is to fold a handkerchief lengthwise; to take hold of both ends with two hands and to make a knot in the handkerchief without letting go the ends. This is done with the knowledge of a trick.

Place the handkerchief before you, fold your arms a la Napoleon, and take one end of the handkerchief with the left hand, which is now to the right, and the other end with the right hand, now to the left. By unfolding the arms make a knot in the handkerchief and the trick is done.

About Your Lessons, Boys.

The boy who used to boast of getting the best of his teacher has been heard from. The same traits of character which tempted him to deceive his teacher into believing that he had solved his problems, and completed his tasks himself, led him to cheat his employer, to idle whenever his back was turned, and to shirk his day's work, until he finally lost his position. His lack of education—the result of cheating his teacher—has proved a perpetual handicap, and has lost him many a good situation. His dishonesty, which started in the schoolroom, has grown until nobody will trust him and he has no credit or standing in his community.

As a boy, he thought himself very clever in being able to dodge his lessons and impose upon his teacher; but he realized now that the person cheated was himself. In those precious days of youth he robbed himself of pearls of great value which he never will be able to recover.

The thief of time and opportunity often thinks he is enriching himself, but he awakes one day to the truth that he is poorer and meaner for the theft.

The Sun Curve in the Sky.

Get a smooth piece of board, say ten inches square. Get a sheet of ruled note paper and a piece of stiff cardboard about three inches long and half an inch wide. Fasten this card to the edge of the board with a tack. Place the board in a sunny window just before 12 o'clock and mark the place so that you can always place in the same position every day. Lay the sheet on the board so that the first ruled line touches the cardboard. At exactly 12 o'clock place the board so that the shadow of the card will cover the first ruled line. Just at the same minute of 12 mark the top of the shadow on the ruled line with a dot in ink. Do this every day; exactly 12 o'clock, using the next ruled line. Cloudy days skip a line. Mark the shadow on the ruled line for twenty days or longer, if there are more lines. When all are marked join all the dots together with an inked line, and you will see that the line is bent or curved. This curved line shows the curve in the sky the sun follows as the season changes.

A Punctual Bird.

What tempts the little hummingbird that we see in our gardens to travel every spring from near the equator to as far north as the arctic circle, leaving behind him as he does, for a season, many tropical delights? He is the only one of many hummingbirds that pluckily leaves the land of gayly colored birds to go into voluntary exile in the north, east of the Mississippi. How it stirs the imagination to picture the solitary, tiny migrant, a mere atom of bird life, moving above the range of human sight through the vast dome of the sky, says Nellie Blanchard in Country Life in America. He covers the thousands of miles between his winter home and his summer one by easy stages and arrives at his chosen destination at approximately the same date year after year.

Shadow Pantomimes.

This amusement makes lots of fun for the evening. Fix a white sheet across the room, or, what is better, over folding doors. Seat the company before the screen, without lights. The actors dance and act behind the sheet, on which their magnified shadows are cast by the lamp. Occasionally they jump over the lamp, and thus appear to the spectators in front as if they had jumped upward through the ceiling.

The Struggle on the Sheet.

Some amusing scenes may be contrived with a little ingenuity—chairs and tables may be called down from above by passing them across the light; a struggle between two seeming combatants may take place, and one be seen to throw the other up in the air on the same principle. Of course, the actors must promote the delusion by their gestures, moving their hands and feet as if climbing upward. Care should be taken to keep the profile on the screen as distinct; as possible, and practice will soon suggest some highly humorous situations.

Fun in a Clock's Face.

Some amusement may be had in a company of boys and girls by asking them to draw a picture of the face of a clock. Most of them would be likely to draw the letters IV. Instead of III, for four, and would forget, perhaps, that all the letters of the dial should stand with their base toward the center.

It is probable that most people read a clock dial by the position of the figures or letters and disregard the figures themselves. Some of the larger clocks now made for steeples have only a straight line at each hour place and they serve their purpose admirably.

It has been found, however, that while most persons have no accurate knowledge of dials, any marked departure from the usual method of marking them is at once detected. A dial bearing IV. Instead of the four straight lines attracts everybody's attention.

An Egg Experiment.

Place a large boiled egg in an egg cup in such a manner that it will not touch the bottom, and the circumference of the egg must be somewhat greater than the width of the cup at the top. If you now grasp the egg and the cup and, turning both upside down, strike the top of the egg against the table, the china cup will break and probably go to pieces; but the egg will remain intact, especially if it has a thick shell. Only the point or tip of the egg is to be brought into contact with the table, and the cup and egg must be firmly held while this is being done.

BONE FOOD

Soft and crooked bones mean bad feeding. Call the disease rickets if you want to. The growing child must eat the right food for growth. Bones must have bone food, blood must have blood food and so on through the list.

Scott's Emulsion is the right treatment for soft bones in children. Little doses every day give the stiffness and shape that healthy bones should have.

Bow legs become straighter, loose joints grow stronger and firmness comes to the soft heads.

Wrong food caused the trouble. Right food will cure it. In thousands of cases Scott's Emulsion has proven to be the right food for soft bones in childhood.

Send for free sample. SCOTT & BOWNE, Chemists, 409-415 Pearl Street, New York, N. Y. and all druggists.

Chas. Schafer left Chelsea with his family about six weeks ago for a visit, and has been having a run of hard luck ever since. For several weeks he was in the hospital at Jackson suffering from typhoid fever, while his wife was ill with malarial fever, and one of his children has had whooping cough. The family is once more at their home here.

The Twentieth Michigan Infantry will hold their reunion this year at Lansing, Thursday, October 23d. It is the thirty-seventh annual gathering, but the ranks are gradually being depleted as the years roll on. They marched to the war 1,000 strong, and now it is a remarkable attendance if more than ninety members of this brave regiment gather at the reunion. The headquarters will be at the Hudson house.

The Baptist State Convention convenes with the First Baptist church in Detroit from October 14th to 19th. On account of Rev. F. A. Stiles being absent in attendance at this meeting there will be no preaching service at the Baptist church next Sunday. The Bible school will meet as usual at 12 o'clock. In place of the regular evening service the Young Peoples Society have arranged a very pleasant and profitable program for that hour.

Texas Fever

Press bulletin 87, Oklahoma Experiment Station: The symptoms of Texas fever are usually characteristic but other conditions may give similar symptoms. When the disease appears among matured cattle there will always be some loss. A post mortem examination will show in a general way the following conditions: The liver is usually enlarged, soft and mottled in appearance; the gall bladder is always filled with a thick granular bile and the spleen is larger than normal, soft and very black. The bladder may contain bloody urine. If the animal lives several days after the fever begins, bloody urine may be passed and the bladder will be found filled with the same material.

While there is no specific remedy for Texas fever in the way of a cure there is no disease so easily stopped or with which one can work with any more assurance of success if it is handled in the right way. If there are no ticks on the cattle there will be no fever and if the disease is among the cattle it will stop as soon as the cattle are thoroughly cleansed of ticks. To counteract the high fever accompanying the disease it is necessary to give something to reduce the fever and keep the bowels open. Salts in one or two pound doses, repeated if necessary, will be effective. Any physic, as raw linseed oil or lard, may be used. Green feed such as corn is good to keep cattle in condition. At the first indication of fever the cattle should be given all the green feed they want and every one gone over carefully to remove all of the ticks. This is where so many fail in handling the disease. The sick animals should be doctored but at the same time the well ones should be gone over and the ticks removed. In this way the disease may be stopped. Any of the oils thoroughly applied will kill the ticks but it must be well applied, especially to the under parts of the body, inside the thighs, sides of the neck and chest. The large ticks may be removed by hand but young ticks are too small to be found among the hair, consequently they must be killed by applying some of the oils.

Information has reached the Oklahoma experiment station that parties in certain localities were going over the country vaccinating cattle to prevent Texas fever. Cattle may be immunized against Texas fever but not by any such process as is practiced by these parties. There is no reliance to be placed in any such treatment, and stockmen allowing themselves to be imposed upon in this way are hardly deserving of sympathy when they handle cattle and fail to inform themselves about so common a disease as Texas fever.

NOTES ON BLUE GRASS PASTURES

Every Missouri farmer who can should see the blue grass pastures on the University farm at Columbia. Those pastures are a revelation to the man who goes to visit the experiment station with the idea that Missouri is not a blue grass state. A Kentucky gentleman was visiting at the agricultural college. After looking over the barns and buildings, he remarked to the dean of the college, "Yes, you have everything in good shape here, and Missouri would only be a great stock-raising state; but you can't grow blue grass." The professor telephoned for his carriage and invited his guest to get in for a drive. He took him out to the pastures, and there the Kentuckian saw blue grass growing in luxuriance, and had to acknowledge that blue grass in Missouri is not a whit behind blue grass in Kentucky.

A representative of the Farmers' Review was recently over the pastures referred to. It was September, but the blue grass was standing two feet high then and was so densely matted that it was difficult to find the ground. Kentucky blue grass and Canadian blue grass were growing together. The Canadian blue grass is a little later in maturing than the other kind, and this fact is in favor of the combination. The Canadian variety also stands drought a little better than the other sort.

Though the grass was two feet long in September Dean Waters said that it should have been seen in June when it was at its best. It should not be forgotten that these pastures are constantly carrying stock and are by no means idle. Herein lies the secret of the success of these pastures—they are not overstocked. Too much cannot be said on this point. The reason why there are few good blue grass pastures in Missouri is that the pastures are stocked to death. Blue grass grows wild in that state and will in a few years take possession of any field where it is given a chance. The weeds have to be mowed once a year, and in some cases oftener.

Getting ahead of the weeds and small saplings is the hardest feat to accomplish. Prof. Waters experimented with a number of methods and for a number of years. He tried goats, and took pictures of his scrub land before and after goating. The second pictures showed the bare stalks of the saplings stripped of all foliage and of their tender laterals. But the next year those stalks were again in full leaf. So the "goating" was abandoned. Goats are good to put on such a place if they are to be followed by the grabbing hoe. The professor also tried to make way for the blue grass by spraying the shrubs and weeds. He used preparations so strong that their application would have meant sure death to any orchard tree; but the forest growths were not affected. Next he tried spraying with kerosene containing ten per cent of naphtha, with the intention of following the application with the torch. The naphtha, being very volatile, would cause the whole area to take fire at once and burn with a terrific heat. But the plan did not work out well. It might have worked on a day when there was no wind. On the day when the experiment was tried the wind was blowing, and as the naphtha evaporated it was blown away. When the fire was applied, the kerosene burned too freely to destroy the foliage. Thus the short cuts had to be abandoned, and the old methods resorted to to get rid of the new growths. At Columbia they have to deal only with hard woods that rot out in three or four years. Keeping down the suckers on these stumps results in their rotting in that time. The last time the man goes through with the scythe he knocks over the decayed stumps and they are taken away. The ground is then clear for the mower. After that there is no trouble in keeping down weeds, as it is a small matter to cut them with the mower.—Farmers' Review.

Influence of Feed on Health of Hogs

Bulletin 110 of the Ontario Agricultural College says: Where exercise is limited, the skill of the feeder is taxed to the utmost. There is probably no best meal ration for the hog—at any rate it is not known. Generally speaking, the greater variety of foods, the better. But if an exclusive meal ration is fed the danger point is always near, for digestive troubles are liable to occur. Dairy by-products are excellent, and lessen the danger to a considerable extent, but they are not always available. Roots, however, are available on nearly every farm during the winter, and they form an excellent regulator. It is a well-known fact that where hogs have access to pasture they are remarkably free from the various swine troubles and roots have an action somewhat similar to grass. In our experimental feeding, our most thrifty and vigorous hogs have been those which received roots. Our method of feeding roots is very simple. The roots are pulped and mixed with the dry meal ration, and then the whole mass is moistened with water, milk or whey, as the case may be. Sugar beets, mangels or turnips may be fed in this manner, but potatoes are probably better cooked. Of course, the other roots may be cooked if desired, but we have not found it necessary to do so. For growing pigs three to five months old, we have allowed the roots to constitute as high as 50 per cent of the weight of the total ration; that is to say, we have fed a pound of roots for every pound of meal. This may be regarded as extreme root feeding, and the pigs fed in this way were rather thin and did not make rapid gains; but they were remarkably healthy and gained rapidly when the meal ration was increased at a later period. Twenty-five to thirty per cent of the weight of the total ration may be regarded as a fair proportion of roots. If the animals leave some of the roots it is not necessary to decrease the proportion of roots in the mixture. The difficulty can be overcome by feeding a smaller quantity of the mixture, giving them only what they will eat up clean. In this way the danger of overfeeding is avoided. Roots may be used for all classes of hogs, and the quantity must be regulated by the condition of the animals. Some prefer feeding roots whole, as this gives the pigs more exercise. For feeding sows, or even for younger animals, variety may be given the ration by running some good clover hay through the cutting box, steaming it and mixing it with the meal ration. An occasional feed of this mixture is much relished and has a decidedly beneficial effect.

Naming Children.

The decadence of nicknames and diminutives furnishes cheering evidence of a revival of good sense by parents in the naming of children and the return to popularity of the good substantial, old-fashioned names gives further occasion for rejoicing. Eddie and Jimmie and Nellie may be enduring, but when their juvenility is carried into middle life as often happens, for habits of speech are strong, it is belittling to all concerned. How much more reasonable it is for a Katharine to be called by that dignified name than to be Katie for perhaps the rest of her natural life. Wise parents, too, no longer load their children, particularly girls, with genealogical impedimenta in the way of collections of family names nor do they longer indulge their romantic fancy as did one mother of my acquaintance who freighted an innocent little daughter with Ivy, Joan, Alberta, St. Clara, to which was added the surname Smith. Life is not a picnic in this world at best, and children should have some consideration at the hands of parents, particularly in the period in which they are unable to defend themselves.

Dirty dairy products are a menace to the health of the people that consume them.

Present Condition of Creameries and Dairies

At the present time there are a few clean dairies and a few clean creameries and many dirty ones of both. We are certain that could some of the buyers of butter see the creamery in which their butter is produced they would at once refuse to eat butter made in that particular creamery and would stir themselves to find some creamery where the butter was made from clean milk and by cleanly methods. If we can waken the people to a sense of this condition reform will begin. It is not such a difficult matter as might be thought for every consumer to know the source of his butter supply. Once let the people get to investigating the sources of their butter supply and some of the creameries will at once go out of business. It is a fact that some of them are in such bad condition that they cannot be made useful. The only possible way of treating them is to dismantle them.

Floors made of wood and rotting away, filled with putrid remains of many batches of milk, churns permeated with four odors, vats that are the hiding places of all kinds of bacteria and malarious smells, are not things that can be cured by a daily washing. They need to be torn out altogether. There are some creamery buildings that are no better than barns ready to be abandoned. It is difficult to see how they can be retained in use. There are many creameries that can be made serviceable by putting in cement floors, new vats and new churns, by putting wire netting or mosquito bars in the windows and by using fly paper in the buildings during fly time. But there are other creameries that cannot be redeemed by even these methods.

At present some of the creameries are officered and manned by men so dirty in their habits that they cannot be considered good subjects for reform. The dirt habits are so thoroughly fixed in them that the only way to remedy the situation is to disperse with their services for all time. This applies to the creameries that make cheese as well as butter. When a man is so dirty that he will come into a cheese room with his hands reeking with mud and will begin to work with the soft curd without washing his hands, will permit the dirt to fall from his hands into the cheese and will make no effort to remove it, but will see it pressed into the cheese, such a man is too dirty to be used in the production of any food like cheese or butter. The writer has seen such a man within a week. When a maker of brick cheese cares so little about the cleanly condition of his cheese that he will permit swarms of flies to drop into the curd about to be pressed and will not remove them, but will press them into the cheese, what can be said and thought of him? Why, that he is too dirty to be tolerated. The writer has seen this within a week, and has seen hundreds of those same cheeses laid out to dry with hundreds of flies sticking out of them.

Moreover, the men at work in the places referred to, made no apology for the dirt, but seemed to think it quite the thing. It is evident that the whole system of butter making and of cheesemaking will have to be revolutionized from the bottom up.

Some of the farm dairies are so sent out for people to eat are fit subjects for the state board of health. In some cases not even common cleanliness is observed in the production of milk and butter. Barnyards reek with filth, water is drawn from wells in the barnyard or barn and are used for the washing of pails, cans and for the drink of the cows. Reeking with vegetable matter in a state of decomposition, all manner of disease germs lurk in it. Yet the owners brazenly sell their product for people to eat and declare it clean. At Winnetka recently the people have had a very lively illustration of this. An epidemic of typhoid fever is now raging there. Twenty-six persons have already come down with the disease, and one has died. In every case the disease was traced to a milkman who kept a few cows within a mile of the heart of the village. The authorities investigated his premises and found them filthy. In addition all his water for washing pails and cans was taken from a well under his barn. The authorities ordered him to use town water from that well, and of course all the people at once stopped buying milk of that milkman. But the authorities had no power to stop him selling his milk or butter. Being unable to sell his milk to the people of that village, the man may be even now shipping it to Chicago or making butter from the cream that rises on it. For, remember, the man still claimed that his well was pure and his milk good though all the evidence was otherwise. He thought it sufficient proof of his contention to say "My family have not come down with the disease."

Such men are a constant menace to the health of the people. Laws should be passed that will give local boards of health absolute power to control the situation. As it is in Illinois, it is doubtful if any of the local inspection laws, at least in the smaller towns, would stand the ordeal of being disputed in court. What has happened in Winnetka, is perhaps happening in other places in the state. Had not typhoid broken out, the people would never have had their attention called to this particular place. Nevertheless, it would have remained a source of diseases other than typhoid, for there are other diseases that have their origin under these conditions. Both dysentery and diarrhoea are germ diseases and generally water borne. They are increased and spread by just such agencies. Yet the people do not realize their source and take no measures to prevent their recurrence. So a single plague spot may exist for years, taking a life now and then with no one the wiser.

Isn't it time that the public took some little interest in the matter of the conditions under which a large part of their most valuable food is produced?—Farmers' Review.

Twisted Stomach Worms in Sheep

The exceptionally wet season has produced conditions that have been very favorable to the development of animal parasites. The eggs or young embryos need moisture for development, and this year there has been plenty. The effects are now being realized in the very great loss of lambs due to twisted stomach worms. The symptoms of stomach worm disease are not very characteristic and therefore do not admit of close description. They are dullness, loss of appetite, increased thirst, diarrhoea may or may not be present, a part may show an accumulation of fluid between the jaws, grinding of the teeth; there is a stiffness of the back and hind parts, and a lagging behind the flock. In acute cases there may be evidence of pain, as colic, eating unusual material, and much bleating. Some die suddenly without showing evidence of disease. The majority linger for a week or two and then die. Old sheep are not much affected.

The parasite causing the disease is found in the fourth stomach. It is small, being only about one-half inch in length, and threadlike. If a lamb be killed these worms may be seen to be pinkish from the blood they have abstracted from the stomach wall. If a lamb dies and the stomach be not opened for a couple of hours, the worms will be white and being matted together resemble the fiber of the food. The inexperienced will probably fail to recognize them, although thousands may be present.

The treatment is as follows: Take one part of coal tar creosote, and one hundred parts of water and mix well. With a two-ounce hard rubber syringe having a short bit of rubber tubing on each end administer one syringeful to each lamb. Use care not to hold the head high or to force the dose too rapidly, so as to cause strangulating. With such an arrangement a whole flock may be easily treated. One to three treatments given a few days apart may be necessary. It is also a good policy to turn the lambs off the regular pasture into the cornfield. They will do little damage to the corn, and in eating the lower blades and grass get food free from all contamination. Yarding and giving dry feed may also be resorted to. The main object is to get the sheep off the infected pasture.—A. W. Bittling, Veterinarian, Indiana Experiment Station.

Selling Fruit on Trees.

Year by year the practice of selling fruit on the trees is becoming more common. It is now reported that Senator Dunlap of Savoy, Illinois, has just sold his crop of apples for $9,000. The senator is an advocate of this manner of disposing of the crop. In a convention recently he said that he was always willing to let the other fellow take the chances, bear the losses and make the profits; he was willing to let go when he could get what he considered a good price for his apples. He declares that these look better when they are on the trees or at picking time than at any time after, and he thinks it pays to sell when they look best. This method is all right provided the seller gets a fair price for his fruit as the senator has doubtless done. But we have known men to sell the apples on their trees at ten cents a bushel, in a year that proved to be a very short crop year. No man can sell apples to advantage that does not look after his business in the most thorough manner.

Feed of Hogs Affects Bacon.

The Canadians, who make bacon that brings a high price both at home and abroad, know by experience that the feed of the pigs and hogs affects the quality of the bacon produced from them. Experiments have shown that excessive feeding of corn produces soft bacon, a product that does not sell well on any market. If the hogs have been fed on a nitrogenous ration through the growing period they may be finished on corn without detriment to the quality of the bacon. The trouble comes when the growing animals are fed on corn and are also finished on corn. Even a half ration of corn through the growing period is not to be advised, and even a one-fourth ration is not desirable. The Danes make as good bacon as any in the world and that is produced by feeding barley and dairy by-products.

A well-kept lawn adds greatly to the selling value of any farm home. It costs little to put trees here and there, but after they have grown they have an immense money value.

There is no danger of the horticulturist dying of ennui. The insects and fungi will keep him busy, when he has no more important objects to engage his attention.

TALE OF TWO DOGS.

How Newcomer Taught Old Fellow Becoming Modest.

Bill Dorgan used to own a pup, in which all breeds were well mixed up; a humped, yellow sort of cur, with fleas and sandbars in its fur. It was a scrapper in its way and licked some dogs most every day; and it, in course of time, did reach the verdict that it was a peach.

It used to loaf around the town, and show its teeth and wear a frown, and every now and then 'twould wail: "Why won't some dog step on my tail, or bite my ear, or bark or growl, or look me in the face and howl? Are all the dogs devoid of snap? I'm simply spoiling for a scrap."

One day a bulldog came to town; it was a sort of brindle brown, with bandy legs and sawed-off tail, and teeth that would eat through a nail. Its face was scratched, its eyes were sore, its tongue was like a cellar door. It paddled up the village street as though in search of stuff to eat, and when the mongrel saw it come, the latter cried: "A scrap, by gum! Now, doggies, see me go and muss the stuffing out of yonder cuss; I'll teach the ugly, lop-eared clown to push himself into this town."

The mongrel, with upstanding wool, jumped then upon the vagrant bull; and then there came a cloud of dust, a crack as though some bone had bust, a shriek, a moan, a sickening thud, a gentle rain of fur and blood; and then the bulldog took his way, and nodded to the dogs, "Good day." The mongrel had been scattered round so all the chunks were never found; Bill Dorgan scraped up what he could, and planted them out in the wood.

Helen Moon's Case.

New Providence, La., Oct. 13th.—The wonderful case of little three-year-old Helen Moon continues to be the talk of the neighborhood and everyone is rejoicing with Mr. and Mrs. E. V. Moon, the happy father and mother.

It will be remembered that this sweet little girl was given up by the doctors with Dropsy. She was so far gone that her eyes were closed up and her body bloated till it was purple.

After everything else had failed Dodd's Kidney Pills were used and to the joy and surprise of everyone she commenced to improve.

This improvement resulted in complete good health and she continues to keep strong and well without the slightest symptom of the Dropsy left.

The doctors are as much bewildered as anyone at the wonderful cure of this desperate case.

Owens Maximilian's Coat.

A coat that is of great historical interest was discovered at Jackson, Miss., the other day, and is the property of Prof. Ad. le Maitre, an old Frenchman, who has been teaching the language to a small class there for several months. This garment is the one worn by the Emperor Maximilian just before his execution on the morning of June 18, 1867. Prof. le Maitre was one of the very few who witnessed the execution, and the unfortunate emperor pulled the coat off just before the word to fire was given, and handing it to le Maitre, told him to keep it. He prizes it higher than he does life itself, and though a poor man has refused large sums of money for it.

Look After the Hand Separators. No good thing is a success unless looked after. It is no argument against hand separators to say that unless they are taken care of they will in a year or so become unserviceable. One man urges against them that he has known people that did not wash their separators more than once a week, and that in the meantime the separators were a point of multiplication for all kinds of germs and perhaps disease germs that got into them. But no agent of a hand separator will want to sell a hand separator if he supposed the buyer would use so little intelligence in its care and handling. We are in a state of chaos as regards our dairy matters, and it is only slowly that we are working into a condition of order. But we do not believe that the hand separator is at all the cause of disorder.

CHAPTER XII.

"Dye know him?" Kate asked. "Yes, I have seen him." "Ye know no good o' him, I be bound, and I'm one as is not slow in expressin' my mind about such cat-tle." "Don't, Kate, I beseech you." All the while the marble white face of Theodore was unmoved. "Is this your hand-bag, Laura?" he asked, picking up the pretty, white bag where the porter had left it. "Yes."

"Let me carry it to the hotel for you. This good woman will assist you. Come, there is but one hotel in the place, and there is no missing it. It is a long way from the landing, with no cable line."

In a maze the unfortunate Laura was led from the landing back toward the hotel. She had left home, hoping to be rid of her persecutor, and found him waiting at the landing for her. She longed to know, and yet dreaded to ask him why he had come to Alaska. Her heart told her he was on his way to the Klondyke, and she felt a strange dread of him.

On reaching the hotel, which was a miserable affair made of boards and but roughly finished, she ordered a room and was taken to it. Kate was assigned a miserable little apartment near the kitchen, where she could smell the beef roasting and hear the cooks quarreling.

Laura had not been long in her apartment when there came a tap at her door, and a boy with tangled, red hair entered and said: "Ef yer please, mum, thar's a feller downstairs who gln me this heard fer ye, an' says he'd like ter chln ye a bit."

Laura took the small, neat card from the dirty hand of the boy and, glancing at it, read the name of Theodore Lackland. Should she see him? She knew the interview must come. In fact she wished for it on her own account, so why not have it at once, understand each other and have it over with?

She told the boy that she would see the stranger at once, and he bowed his red head and retired from the apartment. She nerved herself for the coming interview. There came a light rap at the door. "Come in," she said.

The door opened and Theodore Lackland entered the apartment. There was an insidious smile on his face, as he said: "You did not expect to meet me, did you?"

"I certainly did not," she answered, her eyes growing round with astonishment. "I hope my appearance did not cause any unpleasant shock to your nerves, and now that it is over I trust you will be glad to have a friend in this strange, wild land."

There was a short pause, after which he went on: "I will be frank with you, Miss Kean. I came that I might be near you."

"I am capable of taking care of myself," she answered. "But while I concede all that, I reasoned that you were coming to a land beset by many dangers, and could not feel comfortable in the thought that you were alone. I had leisure and means, and consequently why not devote them to your service? Oh, Laura," and he drew his chair a little nearer to her. "I know you spurn me. I know you believe me to be a deceitful hypocrite, but I am not so bad as you think. I am your friend—your best friend if you will only permit me."

"I cannot." "You have mistaken me all along." "Perhaps at times I have, but I know you now." "Laura, will you listen to me a moment—just one moment?" "Yes, I will have to do so, as I have no other choice."

His voice regained its calmness, but his manner was still agitated. "I may serve you even yet," he said. "I have done you much wrong—I know that—and him, too, I did you and him a wrong, knowing I would repeat it to the last hour of my life, but I was driven to it; I had no power to resist it—it mastered me then; it masters me now."

Theodore had risen and took a step nearer. "Laura," he said, and his voice fell to a broken whisper, "I love you so I can see you the wife of another if he can make you more happy than I. Do you believe there can be an unselfish love? I know it, and I swear that if you can be more happy as the wife of Paul Miller, then I will go with you all over the world to find Paul Miller, and if he be living I will find him and give him to you."

His words had produced a profound effect on Laura, and she could only gaze on him in wonder. Overwhelmed by the ardent manner of the man, she was speechless and dumbfounded. When she could regain her voice she said: "Heaven forgive me, Mr. Lackland, I have done you injustice."

"I freely forgive you. It is so difficult for us to understand each other that we are continually blundering and making mistakes. But now that my motives are plain, now that you see how unselfish I am, I hope you will treat me implicitly. You may think you have money sufficient to push this search and may be mistaken; all I ask of you is that you allow me to furnish the funds you need. You shall not lack means to find Paul."

It was favorable, and his delight at the discovery was almost diabolical. "Thank you, Laura. You have made me supremely happy by accepting my favor. I will endeavor to find Paul for you. We will go together, and do all that can be done to find him."

He bowed and went out. She bowed her face in her hands and wept. "My heart misgives me," she sobbed. "He talks fair and seems honest, but something within keeps saying: 'Trust him not!'"

Ben Holton, who had remained behind to look after her heavier luggage, arrived at the hotel, and went to consult with his mistress about some missing packages. On his way to her room he met Lackland, and was much astounded to see a man whom he thought in Fresno that he was half inclined to think himself mistaken.

"I say, Miss Laura, was a feller in here a minit ago?" he asked. "Yes."

"He looked just like Lackland." "It was Lackland." "Well, Miss Laura, I jist be dod gasted if he's here for any good. He's after grub staves, ye kin depend on et. Look out for him."

She then told her faithful employee the proposition he had made, and old Ben listened carefully to her, and at the conclusion said: "I'll bet my head for a football that it's a salted mine he's a-plantin'. Don't ye bite at his bait, Miss Laura; don't ye bite."

Laura was more distressed after the departure of Ben Holton than before. She began to realize how utterly helpless she was. There was quite a change in the expression on Lackland's face after he left Laura's room. All the benevolence and unselfish concern for the girl's welfare gave way to a look of selfishness, and he chuckled in triumph.

"I will have her yet. She will be wholly in my power. A few weeks more, another turn of the cards and the game is mine." At a low grocery in the town he found his two employees, Ben Allen and Horsa Cummins.

"Well, how are you faring?" asked Lackland. "Dry!" growled Cummins. "Come, Cummins, you remember the obligation imposed on you when you were employed—you were not to drink."

"Yes, but that makes me dry," said Cummins, with a wink. "Now, you have both been here before, have you not?" "Yes."

"Do you know where to procure good outfits?" "Right here is the best place in Alaska," declared Cummins. "How much will a first-class outfit cost?"

Cummins reflected a moment and said: "Well, I think it will take about two thousand dollars." Without returning a word his employer counted out the money and told him to go and procure it at once.

Cummins and Davis set out, and next morning reported that all had been secured. "It is well," declared the shrewd Mr. Lackland. "Be prepared to go whenever I give the word."

"We'll be ready." When his hirelings had gone Lackland went to the hotel and sent up his card to Miss Laura Kean. She admitted him, and he asked: "Miss Kean, when are you going to cross the pass and start for the Klondyke?"

"As soon as I can. I want to go with the first train." "There are some gentlemen ready to start in the morning." "Then I can get ready. I will go with them," she declared. "Would you like my services in securing you an outfit?"

"Yes, yes; if you can, secure me an outfit at once." "I'll do so. I would as soon start myself to-morrow as any other time. You will want Indian porters for your luggage and a sled and dogs for yourself. Have Ben Holton pack up all your effects and be ready," and he left.

Ben Holton was only a stupid fellow, but he declared he did not like the arrangements at all, and smelled a greatbig mouse somewhere. Nevertheless, Ben went to work packing up the goods and preparing for the journey.

Laura took her place on the sled, and the Equimau with big snow shoes came to strap her in and draw the robes and furs over her. "Are you strapped in securely?" Lackland asked Laura. "Yes."

"Do you think you will be comfortable?" "I know I shall." They were soon in the midst of a driving snowstorm, and Kate Willis declared that she "just knew that child would freeze."

They halted before reaching the summit and camped. Tents had been brought and every precaution was taken to provide for the comfort of Laura Kean. She and Kate were housed in a tent warmed by a gasoline stove, which made it quite comfortable. Next day they resumed their march, crossed the summit and began the descent.

Lackland was often seen talking with one of the Indians, who spoke English fairly well, and was a big, burly, villainous-looking fellow. One day two men came to their camp. They held long and earnest conferences, and when they went away that night the man named Ben Allen went with them. It is perhaps needless to inform the reader that the two men were Morris and Ned Padgett, who brought the information that Paul and the old hermit were prisoners in the cavern.

"It is lucky I learned of his capture," thought Lackland. "Curse him, why isn't he dead? For over a year he has been lost in the forest and thought to be dead; now, why isn't he dead?"

Lackland little dreamed that the very tools he was using were willing to betray him if they could make more out of it, and that they were trying by bribes and threats to extort from the prisoners in the cavern the secret of the cached treasure.

After Ben left the party to fulfil his orders they camped three weeks in a valley. Laura inquired why they delayed so long, but Lackland had abundant excuses, and assured her they would go on before winter set in, in earnest. Already lowering clouds had hung over the valley and covered it with snow.

At last they broke camp and were moving slowly toward the Yukon, when a dog was discovered coming toward them. Beyond a doubt it was the property of some of the Klondykers. Horsa Cummins discovered a strip of tanned skin about its neck and called the attention of Lackland to it.

He quickly removed it and read: "We are in the forest out of food and starving. Follow on the trail at once and find us. Paul Miller and Companion."

The bit of tanned skin dropped from the trembling hand of Theodore Lackland. He pressed his hand to his forehead and groaned. "What is it, boss?" asked Cummins. "Go into camp. We must start at once to find some men who are starving."

When they went into camp, after taking care to see that Laura was made comfortable, he took one man and three Indians and started on the back trail made by the dog. All the while he was thinking: "Paul Miller and one companion. Who can that companion be?"

CHAPTER XIII.

Clarence Berry and the Metlakathlans. Clarence Berry and his brave little wife Ethel continued to heap up their golden treasure day by day, but they had not forgotten their unfortunate friend, Paul Miller. One evening, as they sat in their shanty, before the great, blazing fire, they received the usual visitors, Long Dick and Gid Myers.

"Say, ef ye want t' see d' worst old geezers ye ever clapped yer lamps upon, ye want t' go down d' camp," began Dick. "Dun know, but it looks mighty t' me like it was some starved-out Egyptian mummies as had been resurrected from de pyramids."

"Where are they from?" "Metlakathla." "Where is that?" "An island far away across the mountains."

Clarence opened his book again, and, casting a casual glance over the pages, remarked that he did not see what they had to do with the peace of the miners of the Klondyke. Gid was about to speak when his friend began: "That's where yer off yer trolley, Clarence. They come without recommendation, but they spin mighty strange yarns, and old Gium he put this thing and that thing together and say they got some information."

OUR SOIL RICH IN GEMS. Where American Precious Stones Have Been Found by Miners. The report of the geological survey, just compiled for 1901, shows that during that year there were mined in the United States precious stones to the value of about $300,000. When talking about rare and beautiful gems one's thoughts naturally revert to South Africa or the orient or the mountains of Asia or Europe, or perhaps to South America, but one is not likely to think of our own land, yielding them; but the fact is, that no insignificant value in gems is taken from the soil right here at home. The report of the geological survey shows that during that year we mined in the United States precious stones to the value of about $300,000.

Diamonds represent only $100 of this amount, but the fact that they are found at all gives encouragement to the hope that paying fields of them may some time be found. Last year one diamond was found in Lee county, Georgia, where diamonds were not before known to exist. New Mexico furnished $118,000 in turquoises, and these have been placed on the market. Montana gave us $90,000 in sapphires, which come next. They come from Fergus county. Granite county is now being explored for fancy colored sapphires, that give evidence of being there in paying quantities. Fine and extensive rhodolite garnet deposits are found in Macon county, North Carolina. Many dark green, blue and yellow beryls, as well as amethysts and emeralds, were found in that state. There is hardly a state of the Union in which there is not some trace of precious stones and it appears not at all unlikely that before many years we may be competing with the old world in furnishing gems.

IN A COMEDY JAIL.

Prisoners Rarely Attempt to Secure Their Liberty.

Elizabethtown, the county seat of Essex, in the Adirondacks, possesses a comedy jail. It is small, having windows secured by wooden bars, and a jail yard inclosed by a solid fence of three-quarter inch boards which a healthy male could push over with his shoulder. But the prisoners rarely, if ever, attempt to escape.

Some good stories are told by residents. It is a custom to allow the prisoners out on parole, so that they may cut the grass on neighboring lawns, do garden work, or repair roads for the village or county. Recently one prisoner who should have returned at 6 o'clock did not apply for admission until nearly an hour later. The warden angrily demanded to know the reason, and added:

"Don't let this occur again or I will not allow you to come in. I lock the door at 6 o'clock and won't open it in the future for you."

Another, accused of and awaiting trial for manslaughter, overstaid his parole and pleaded as an excuse that as it was Saturday he thought he would go and spend Sunday with his wife, returning to the jail on Monday morning.

The Cranberry Crop.

From reports received from various sources it seems likely that the cranberry crop will be somewhat less than it was last year. One forecast says that Massachusetts, which last year shipped 240,000 barrels of cranberries, will this year ship only about 190,000. New Jersey, which last year sent out over 100,000 barrels, will this year have but about half that amount to sell. Wisconsin is fortunate in the possession of a crop of about 50,000 barrels, which is 10,000 barrels more than she had last year. It is probable that prices will be good, and that the eaters of turkey and cranberry sauce will pay a high price for their sauce this year, as they have been doing for a number of years. The fact is, the cranberry is yearly growing in favor, and the supply hardly keeps pace with that demand. It is not an easy matter to develop new bogs, though opportunities exist on every hand. Cranberry growing requires a good deal of brain force expenditure and a very great expenditure of muscle. Then, too, the business has not yet been reduced to a science, and we have yet to find out just how to fight some of the insect pest.

She was Persuaded to Try St. Jacobs Oil, and All Pain Disappeared Immediately. It is undoubtedly a fact beyond dispute that the strongest advertising medium the proprietors have is that of people who recommend others to use St. Jacobs Oil. People who have themselves experienced a happy result which invariably follows the use of this great remedy, show their gratitude by recommending it to those whom they know are similarly affected. This is the case of Margaret Lee, of 71 Brightfield road, Lee Green, Wis.

"Having suffered from muscular rheumatism for years, and not receiving any benefit from various remedies, I used St. Jacobs Oil; pain and soreness removed at once; no return of rheumatism." St. Jacobs Oil is sold in 25 cts. and 50 cts. sizes by all druggists.

SUFFERED SEVEN YEARS

With Catarrhal Derangements of the Pelvic Organs.

Miss Kate Brown.

Hundreds of Dollars Spent in Vain—Peruna Cured.

to you for Peruna."—Miss Kate Brown. A neglected cold is frequently the cause of death. It is more often, however, the cause of some chronic disease. There is not an organ in the body but what is liable to become seriously deranged by a neglected cold. Diseases of the kidneys, bladder and digestive organs are all frequently the result of a neglected cold.

Hundreds of dollars are spent on doctors and medicines trying to cure these diseases, but until the true cause of them is discovered, there will be no use in using medicine. Dyspepsia, medicine, diarrhea, medicine and constipation medicine is of no good whatever when catarrh is the cause. The catarrh must be treated. The cause being removed, the derangements will disappear.

Peruna cures catarrh of the digestive organs, the urinary organs or any of the internal organs. If you do not derive prompt and satisfactory results from the use of Peruna write at once to Dr. Hartman, giving a full statement of your case, and he will be pleased to give you his valuable advice gratis.

THE WORST FORM.

Multitudes are singing the praises of Kodol, the new discovery which is making new discovery which is making so many sick people well and weak people strong by digesting what they eat, by cleansing and sweetening the stomach and by transforming their food into the kind of pure, red blood that makes you feel good all over. Mrs. Cranfill of Troy, I. T., writes: For a number of years I was troubled with indigestion and dyspepsia which grew into the worst form. Finally I was induced to use Kodol and after using four bottles I am entirely cured. I heartily recommend Kodol to all sufferers from indigestion and dyspepsia. Take a dose after meals. It digests what you eat. Glazier & Stimson.

NATURAL ANXIETY.

Mothers regard approaching winter with uneasiness, children take cold so easily. No disease costs more little lives than croup. It's attack is so sudden that the sufferer is often beyond human aid before the doctor arrives. Such cases yield readily to One Minute Cough Cure. It liquefies the mucus, allays inflammation, removes danger. Absolutely safe. Acts immediately. Cures coughs, colds, grip, bronchitis, all throat and lung trouble. F. S. McMahon, Hampton, Ga.: "A bad cold rendered me voiceless just before an oratorical contest. I intended to withdraw but took One Minute Cough Cure. It restored my voice in time to win the medal." Eugene Field's Views on Ambition and Dyspepsia.

"Dyspepsia," wrote Eugene Field, "often incapacitates a man for endeavor and sometimes extinguishes the fire of ambition." Though great despite his complaint Field suffered from indigestion all his life. A weak, tired stomach can't digest your food. It needs rest. You can only rest it by the use of a preparation like Kodol, which relieves it of work by digesting your food. Rest soon restores it to its normal tone.

LaGrippe Caused Heart Trouble.

Nervous Prostration and Dyspepsia.

My Friends Know Heart Cure Cured Me.

Mrs. C. O. Hard, 118 W. Third St., Muscatine, Ia., is well known throughout her section of Iowa as an ardent worker in the M. E. Church. She says: "LaGrippe left me with a severe case of nervous depression and nervous dyspepsia, which soon affected my heart. I suffered from sleeplessness, headache, extreme nervousness and twitching of the muscles. The slightest exertion would cause shortness of breath, a numbness of my body and hot flashes with pain. I will tell you what I am constantly telling my friends—that Dr. Miles' Heart Cure cured me so that all these disagreeable symptoms left me. I may add that for several years I have never felt anything to equal Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills and think the Nerve and Liver Pills are a wonderful stomach remedy."

"Our son was stricken down with heart trouble in his twentieth year. For two months we got no sleep with him at night, so we commenced to use Dr. Miles' Heart Cure and Nerve and the Nerve and Liver Pills and today he is sound and well. In fact he passed a physical examination since his sickness and is with the Army in the Philippines. I desire to add that Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills have certainly been a boon to me. I am frequently troubled with sick and nervous headaches and I have never found anything that would relieve me so quickly and leave me feeling so well thereafter."—Mrs. Alice Mosd, Buffalo, Mo.
