Dispute Over a Chelsea House.

Argue: Homer C. Millen began suit in the circuit court Wednesday afternoon against Louis L. Emmer and Nellie Emmer for damages under $1,000. The suit is a Chelsea suit and the plaintiff alleges that he leased a house on Jefferson street, Chelsea, from Egbert G. Hong, then the owner, for one year from last September and expended $165 in repairs on it.
Afterwards the defendants purchased the house from Mr. Hong, appropriated the improvements and moved out the property of the plaintiff that was in the house.
He alleges that the house was the only house in Chelsea suitable for his purposes as a family residence, and that he has been greatly humiliated and disgraced, and because of his inability to secure another suitable residence in Chelsea has been and will be put to $300 extra expenses and railroad fares.

Farmers' Club.

Thursday, November 20th was a gala day for the lady members of Western Washtenaw Union Farmers' Club, which met with Mr. and Mrs. O. C. Burkhardt.
There was a large attendance, although several familiar faces were missed, owing probably to the amount of farm work yet unfinished, for the day was too fine to let onions and corn "lie still," but the absent ones missed a great treat and have gained nothing. As it has always been the rule for each lady to furnish what was assigned her even if she could not be present herself and as "It is a poor rule that will not work both ways" the male members are expected to work on the same plan. The dinner furnished by the gentlemen and served in courses, was a grand success; showing what excellent cooks the men are, and they certainly know how to serve a meal in fine style. Every one did ample justice to the feast placed before them, the stomach pump having to be called into request in only one case. The gentlemen being a little unused to washing dishes, made it rather late when the meeting was called to order, and as only one person was present whose name appeared on the program, it was thought best to omit the question and proceed to other business. After instrumental music and prayer, Mr. and Mrs. N. H. Cook were elected delegates to the state association, and Mr. and Mrs. M. A. Lowry, alternates.
A rising vote of thanks was given the gentlemen for the dinner so nicely gotten up and served, showing how highly it was appreciated by the ladies, who will expect it once each year as long as the club exists. The next, and annual meeting, for the election of officers and payment of dues, will be held with Mr. and Mrs. Dennis Spaulding, December 18th.
Let every member be present and any others who wish to join for the ensuing year. Bring your spoons for an oyster dinner.

THOMAS HOLMES, D. D., LL. D.

Monday evening, the ladies of the Congregational church tendered to Dr. and Mrs. Thomas Holmes, who for many years have been prominent and active workers in the cause of Christianity in this community, a public reception in the church parlors, the occasion being the 85th anniversary of Dr. Holmes' birth. From 7:30 until 10 o'clock the respected recipients stood in line and received the congratulations of some 300 of our citizens. The ladies served light refreshments, and the assemblage of friends left the great sum of $43 behind as a partial reminder of the high esteem in which they are held in this vicinity. All the participants in the affair returned to their homes hoping to meet the happy couple a year hence in good health at the work to which their lives have been devoted. Among the guests present were the Doctor's sister, Mrs. Amanda Wiley, nearly eighty-two years of age, his brother, Alfred H. Holmes and wife, and cousins Henry W. Norton and wife, all of Ann Arbor.

State of Michigan, party of the second part.

Witnesseth, That the said party of the first part, by virtue and authority of certain resolutions adopted by the Common Council of said Village of Chelsea, at a regular session thereof held in the Council rooms on the 19th day of November
A. D. 1902, a copy of which said resolutions are hereby attached and marked party and all electric lights and water needed by said second party in the management and operation of all buildings, machinery and offices, owned, used and occupied by said second party in its business of manufacturing, selling and shipment of its products, for the term of ten years from and after the 26th day of February A. D.

1903, for the sum of Ten Dollars ($10.00) per month payable on the last days of each and every month.

Second. The said second party, its successors and assigns, hereby agrees to pay to said first party, for the said power, electric lights and water, the sum of Ten Dollars ($10.00) per month, payable on the last days of each and every month while the said second party, its successors and assigns, shall use and enjoy the said service. Provided, however, that in case power, electric lights or water cannot be furnished at any and all times, by reason of accident or other unavoidable cause, pro rata deduction shall be made from the monthly payments for the time said power, electric lights and water are not furnished; and provided further, that in case said second party should shut down its work and not use the said power, electric lights and water for the period of one week or more, then it shall not be obliged to pay for the time such power, electric lights and water are not used.

Third. It is further understood and agreed by and between said parties hereto that this contract shall be and remain in full force and effect for the said period of ten years from and after the said 26th day of February 1903, unless cancelled and set aside by mutual consent of the parties herein named.

Fifth. This contract to be in full force and effect on and after the 26th day of February 1903.

Sixth. In witness whereof the party of the first part has by its President and Clerk hereunto set its hand and affixed the seal of the Village by virtue of the said resolutions of this Council, the day and year first above written, and at the same time and place the party of the second part has hereunto, by its President and Secretary set its hand and affixed its seal.

CHEETAHS AND CARTS

Hunting with the cheetah has been the sport of centuries in India. The animal is conveyed to the field in a low car without sides, hooded and chained like hunting-birds in the days of falconry. Deer and antelope are the game stalked by this "hunting leopard." The sport would be considered rather tame by the hunters of Europe or America, but is popular in India.

Remedy for Hiccoughs Simple and Effective

"Yawning is about the best cure I know of for the hiccoughs," said an observant man in the New Orleans Times-Democrat. "and I have stumbled on the truth quite by accident. It was proved in my case a sure cure, and by reflection I am convinced that it is a perfectly logical result, a result explainable, too, on physical grounds."

"All kinds of remedies are resorted to by men who suffer periodically with hiccoughs, like stopping the ears and drinking a glass of water slowly and without a stop, or by holding the breath, or counting, or thinking intently on some subject, and in many other ways. I have tried all of these remedies, and at times have been fairly successful in checking the hiccoughs. Again, I have seen each one of these remedies fail. In my own experience, so far as these remedies are concerned, drinking a glass of water slowly and without breathing is the most satisfactory. But it is torturing enough. On the other hand, the yawn is not only efficacious, but it is absolutely without any of the torturing features. There is, as I said before, probably a good physical reason for the yawn being a good remedy for the hiccoughs. The hiccoughs is described as being a modified respiratory movement, a spasmodic inspiration, consisting of a contraction of the diaphragm, accompanied with closure of the glottis, so that further entrance of air is prevented. The impulse of the column of air entering and striking upon the closed glottis produces the sound peculiar to the ailment. It is reasonable to assume that anything that would relieve the contracted state of the diaphragm, and would reopen the closed glottis, or partially open it, so the air could enter in a normal way, would completely relieve the situation. It would seem that the yawn, which is nothing more than a deep, long breath, would bring about this result. While the yawn is supposed to be an involuntary movement, due to drowsiness, it is yet a fact that a man can yawn at pleasure. This being true, it is easily within a man's power to cure the hiccoughs by resorting to the very simple practice of yawning. Of course I cannot say that in all cases of hiccoughs the yawn will prove a good remedy. But I believe in all ordinary cases, where the annoyance is not aggravated, the yawn will do the work. At any rate, my own experience has convinced me of the fact, and, besides, there are the physical conditions to which I have referred."

instance, in this way: One shirt, two collars, two pairs of cuffs. He will go into a saloon when there is a rush on in order to further minimize the possibilities of the bartender's detecting the scribbling on the bill, and will call for a drink.

"The money is put in the drawer, the man gets his drink and his change, and walks out. Directly his partner walks in, calls for a glass of beer and tenders a $1 bill in payment. The bartender throws out 95 cents in change. 'You made a mistake, old man,' the purchaser will say. 'I gave you a $5 bill.' A polite wrangle follows. The fellow is insistent, says he only had one piece of money and that was a $5 bill, and he remembers to have jotted down a list of his laundry on the back of it. He calls for the boss, tells him of the dispute and asks him to see if he has a $5 bill with 'one shirt, two collars, two pairs of cuffs' written on it in pencil. Sure enough the bill is found, and the man gets his $4.95 in change. This is the scheme they worked on the man downtown, and he had no idea that he had been swindled until he thought over it for some time, and then the whole plot dawned on him. It is a clever scheme, but one that will not last, as bartenders are awfully quick to get on to tricks of this sort."—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

Latest Flim-Flam Scheme Ingenious and Successful

"The thing in the way of flim-flam now, and the real thing," said an old detective, "is a way ahead of any of the old tricks I know anything about. It has been worked but once in New Orleans, as far as I know, and if it has ever been worked in any other place I do not know anything about it. The business of finding a pocketbook, 'springing the pigeon,' as it is called; the lock trick, which, by the way, is one of the smoothest of the whole list, and all the others are cheap and clumsy in comparison with the clever scheme that was worked on a downtown barkeeper a few evenings ago. It shows one thing, and that is that the criminal classes are quite as active mentally and otherwise as men who are engaged in the decent calling of life. They are probably more active mentally than the men who are ground into narrow grooves because of ceaseless toiling in an effort to keep the wolf away. The new flim-flam scheme is wonderfully simple and is worked with paper money. A $1 and a $5 bill are needed. Of course, bills of higher denomination could be used, but the two men who worked the trick here used the bills of the first denomination—a $1 and a $5 bill. It is worked in this way: One of the men will write in thin lettering on the back of the $5 bill what is supposed to be a list of his laundry. For

How Navies of the World Will Compare in Year 1906

From the German naval year book for 1902, commonly called "The Nauticus," is taken the following summary of the navies of the world according to the latest statistics. To enable the reader to draw a proper comparison between England and the other powers the year 1906 is selected, when the French and Russian programs will be carried out, as well as the new additions voted in other states this year. Only battleships and large cruisers of over 5,000 tons which were not launched prior to 1882 and 1884 respectively are taken into consideration. According to this reckoning, in 1906 England will have fifty-seven battleships, fifty-two of them over 10,000 tons, with an aggregate displacement 765,650 tons, and seventy large cruisers, twenty-nine protected, with an aggregate displacement of 618,440 tons. France will have thirty-two battleships, twenty-three over 10,000 tons, totaling 349,720 tons, and twenty-eight cruisers, twenty-three protected, of 213,171 tons. Russia will have twenty-five battleships, nineteen over 10,000 tons, of 247,241 tons, and eighteen cruisers, five protected, of 100,606 tons. The United States will have twenty battleships, nineteen over 10,000 tons, of 248,294 tons, and sixteen cruisers, thirteen protected, of 176,155 tons. Germany will have nineteen battleships, eighteen over 10,000 tons, of 212,405 tons, and eleven cruisers, five protected, of 81,750 tons. Italy will have fifteen battleships, thirteen over 10,000 tons, of 189,267 tons, and six cruisers, all protected, of 39,813 tons. Japan will have seven battleships, six over 10,000 tons, of 93,501 tons, and six cruisers, all protected, of 58,776 tons.

It is evident that England alone is, as far as battleships are concerned, superior to the combined Franco-Russian forces. France shows considerable progress in a strong fleet of protected cruisers, being only a little behind that of England, while Russia and Germany lay principal stress on battleships. The United States are quickly proceeding in both directions, but will hardly be able to man their ships as rapidly as they build them.—London Standard.

AN ANTI-TREAT LEAGUE.

Irish Organization Looks for Recruits in This Country.

In Ireland an anti-treating league has been formed. It has taken St. Patrick for its patron, and it induced the last convention of the Gaelic league held in Dublin to endorse its efforts as tending to eradicate "one of the most prolific sources of intemperance and a national evil."

The league does not attempt to hinder anybody from taking a drink himself if he pays for it, though it qualifies this by making its members promise "not to be guilty of the sin of intemperance." But the chief pledge that would-be members must take is "not to take a treat from another, nor to give one himself in any place where drink is sold, whether public-house, bar, hotel, or shebeen."

The pledge does not hinder a member from offering a drink to friends in his own house nor from taking one himself at the house of a friend. It does not prevent him from buying a drink for himself. It only bars buying drinks for others.

In token of these principles members are requested to wear the badge of the league, a shamrock leaf in green enamel with three small shields bearing the three initials of the Celtic title of the league. Total abstainers may wear cream-colored shields. All members are expected to renew their pledges on St. Patrick's day.

Efforts are being made to extend the field of the league's operations in this country. It was organized in County Wexford. It has a juvenile division.

Wedding Superstitions.

It is unlucky for the bride to enter the church before the ceremony at one door and leave after the ceremony by another door.

The bride should always cut the first piece of her wedding cake.

It is said to be unlucky to the shoes to any part of the carriage in which the bride and bridegroom go away.

In leaving the church the bride will do well to place her right foot foremost if she wishes to be happy, healthy etc., in the future, and she should always be the first to call her husband by name.

After the wedding breakfast and reception the bride should be careful to throw away and lose all the pins, if there are any about her. The bridesmaids should not keep the pins themselves, or they will retard their chances of marriage.

WEALTH OF WESTERN FARMS.

Bountiful Crops the Rule for Many Successful Years.

The big wheat farms of the Dakotas are being broken up into smaller holdings, and the conditions there are becoming like those of states farther south, where the average size of a farm is 250 acres. Out of it all the farmer is growing independent. Five great crop years have just been ended on the plains.

Beginning with the crop of 1897, the wheat has been good every year. Not always has it been a record-breaker in every community, but generally it has returned a great harvest. The farmer estimates the cost of his crop at $7.50 an acre; if he gets thirty bushels an acre and sells it for 50 cents he has a profit of $7.50 an acre. On 100 acres it is $750; on 1,000 acres, $7,500—and there are many hundred farmers with the latter acreage.

What have they done? A. Miner came to York county, Nebraska, ten years ago with just enough to buy eighty acres of land. He lived in a mud house, and lost everything in the hard times of the early nineties. Now he owns 720 acres of land, lives in a ten room house and has a bank account. A man named Harnady rented a farm in Seward county, that state, seven years ago; now he owns the farm and has $3,000 in bank. J. S. Hollinger came to central Kansas poor; he raised wheat chiefly; he died a few months ago worth with the accumulations of his family of boys, $100,000. The Miller brothers rented land of the Ponca Indians, in Oklahoma, five years ago, and put in wheat and raised stock. They are making $25,000 annually clear profit. Hundreds of instances might be mentioned of farms that have been paid out of the crops of one or two years.—Leslie's Weekly.

THE PINKHAM CURES ATTRACTING GREAT ATTENTION AMONG THINKING WOMEN.

Mrs. Frances Stafford, of 243 E. 114th St., N.Y. City, adds her testimony to the hundreds of thousands on Mrs. Pinkham's files.

When Lydia E. Pinkham's Remedies were first introduced skeptics all over the country frowned upon their curative claims, but as year after year has rolled by and the little group of women who had been cured by the new discovery has grown into a vast army of hundreds of thousands, doubts and skepticisms have been swept away by a mighty flood, until to-day the great good that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and her other medicines are doing among the women of America is attracting the attention of many of our leading scientists, physicians and thinking people.

Merit alone could win such fame; wise, therefore, is the woman who for a cure relies upon Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

CHAPTER I.—(Continued.)

On a lounge an elegantly dressed woman was sitting, reading a novel. "La, child!" she cried, "come here and give me a kiss. So you wear that sweet-fancied suit again. Is that the Dutch style, then, child? It must be extremely charming. La, here comes Richard! He is going to ask you to take a sail on the river; and I shall lend you my new green parasol. I do believe it is the only one in the country."

"I came to sit with you, and work with my worsteds. Perhaps my mother might not like me to go on the river with any one."

But Katherine had no time to defend herself; for, with his cavalry cap in his hand and a low bow, Capt. Hyde entered the room. In a few minutes afterward she was going down the terrace steps with him; and he was looking into her face with shining eyes, and whispering the commonest words in such an enchanting manner that it seemed to her as if her feet scarcely touched the low, white steps, and she was some sort of glorified Katherine Van Heemskirk, who never, never, never could be unhappy again.

They did not go on the river. Capt. Hyde did not want a third party near, in any capacity. The lower steps were shaded by great water beeches, and the turf under them was green and warm. A sweeter hour, a lovelier maid, man could never hope to find; and Capt. Hyde was not one to neglect his opportunity.

"Let us stay here, my beloved," he whispered. "I have something sweet to tell you. Upon mine honor, I can keep my secret no longer."

The innocent child! Who could blame her for listening to it—at first with a little fear and a little reluctance, but gradually resigning her whole heart to the charm of his soft syllables and his fervent manner, until she gave him the promise he begged for—love that was to be for him alone, love for him alone among all the sons of men.

What an enchanted afternoon it was! how all too quickly it flew away, one golden moment after another!

In a few minutes Joanna and the elder came in. He had called for her on his way home; for he liked the society of the young and beautiful, and there were many hours in which he thought Joanna fairer than her sister. Then tea was served in a pretty parlor with Turkish walls and colored window-dresses, which, being open into the garden, framed lovely living pictures of blossoming trees. Every one was eating and drinking, laughing and talking; so Katherine's unusual silence was unnoticed, except by the elder, who indeed saw and heard everything, and who knew what he did not see and hear by that kind of prescience to which wise and observant years attain.

Joanna was talking to Nell Semple in the recess of a window; but Nell's face was white with suppressed anger, and, though he seemed to be listening to her, his eyes—full of passion—were fixed upon Hyde. Perhaps the young soldier was conscious of it; for he occasionally addressed some trivial remark to him, as if to prevent Nell losing sight of the advantages he had over him.

"The vera air o' this room is gunpowdery," thought the elder; "and one of the other will be flinging a spark of passion into it, and then the dell will be to pay. I'll e'en tak' the lassies hame myself; and I'll speak to Joris for his daughter—as good now as any other time."

Then he said in his blandest tones, "Joanna, my dearie, you'll hae to tell Nell the rest o' your tale the morn; and, Katherine, put awa' now that bit o' busy idleness, and don your hoods and mantles, baith o' you. I'm going to ta' you hame, and I dinna want to get my deathe w' the river mist."

"Pray, sir," said Hyde, "consider me at your service. I have occasion to go into town at once, and will do your duty to the young ladies with infinite pleasure."

"Much obliged, captain, vera much obliged; but it tak's an auld wisehead, wise-headed man like myself to walk safely between two bonnie lassies."

While he was speaking, Nell left the room. He was glad to escape from a position which he felt to be both painful and humiliating. He was in a measure Capt. Hyde's host, and subject to traditions regarding the duties of that character; any display of anger would be derogatory to him, and yet how difficult was restraint! So his father's interference was a welcome one; and he was reconciled to his own disappointment, when, looking back he saw the old gentleman slowly taking the road to Van Heemskirk's, with the pretty girls in their quilted red hoods, one on each side of him.

The elder was very polite to his charges; but he noticed that Katherine was silent and disappointed, and that she lingered in her own room after her arrival at home. Her subsequent pretty cheerfulness, her delight in her illness, her confiding claims upon her father's love—nothing in these things decided him. He saw beneath all the fluttering young heart, trembling, and yet happy in the new, sweet feeling, never felt before, which had come to it that afternoon.

But he thought most girls had to have this initiative; it prepared the way for a soberer and more lasting affection. In the end Katherine would perceive how imprudent, how impossible a marriage with Capt. Hyde must be; and her heart would turn back to Nell, who had been her lover from boyhood. Yet, he reflected, it would be well to have the matter understood, and to give it that "possibility" which is best attained on a money basis.

So, while he and the Van Heemskirks discussed the matter—a little reluctantly, he thought, on their part—Katherine talked with Joanna of the Gordons. Joanna had not a suspicion of the joy and danger that had come to the dear little one at her side. She was laughing softly with her, even while the fearful father stood at the closed door, and lifted up his tender soul in that pathetic petition, "Ach, mijn kind! mijn kind! mijn liefte kind! Almighty God preserve thee from all sin and sorrow!"

CHAPTER II.

Orange Boven.

"Well, well, to-day goes to its forefathers, like all the rest; and, as for what comes after it, everything is in the love and counsel of the Almighty One."

This was Joris Van Heemskirk's last thought ere he fell asleep that night, after Elder Semple's cautious disclosure and proposition. In his calm, methodical, domestic life, it had been an "eventful day." We say the words often and unreflectingly; seldom pausing to consider that such days are the results which months, years, perchance centuries, have made possible. Thus, a long course of reckless living and reckless gambling, and the consequent urgent need of ready money, had made Capt. Hyde turn his thoughts to the pretty daughter of the rich Dutch merchant.

"She is a homespun little thing," laughed the colonel's fashionable wife, "and quite unfit to go among people of our condition. But she adores you, Dick; and she will be passably happy with a house to manage, and a visit from you when you can spare the time."

It was in this mood that Katherine and her probable fortune had been discussed; and thus she was but one of the events, springing from lives anterior to her own and very different from it.

Also, in her father's case, the motives influencing his decision stretched backward through many generations. None the less was his influence potent to move him. In fact, he forgot entirely to reflect how a marriage between his child and Capt. Hyde would be regarded at that day; his first thoughts had been precisely such thoughts as would have occurred to a Van Heemskirk, living two hundred years before him.

Joris' age was not an age inclined to analysis, and he was still less inclined to it from a personal standpoint. For he was a man of few, but positive ideas; yet these ideas, having once commenced themselves to his faith or his intelligence, were embraced with all his soul. Semple's communication regarding Capt. Hyde and his daughter had aroused in him certain feelings, and led him to certain decisions. He went to sleep, satisfied with their propriety and justice. He awoke in precisely the same mood. Then he dressed and went into his garden. It was customary for Katherine to join him there; and he frequently turned, as he went down the path, to see if she were coming.

But this morning she did not come. He walked alone to his lily bed; but his face brightened when he heard her calling him to breakfast and very soon he saw her leaning over the half-door, shading her eyes with both hands, the better to watch his approach.

Lysbet was already in her place; so was Joanna, and also Bram. Joris and Bram discussed the business of the day; Katherine was full of her visit to Semple house the preceding evening. Dinorah was no restraint. The slaves Joris owned, like those of Abraham, were born or brought up in his own household.

And yet, this morning, Joris waited until Lysbet dismissed her handmaid, before he said the words he had determined to speak ere he began the work of the day. Then he put down his cup with an emphasis which made all eyes turn to him, and said:

"Katrinytje, my daughter, call not to-day, nor call not any day, until I tell you different, at Madame Semple's. The people who go and come there, I like them not. They will be no good to you—Lysbet, what say you in this matter?"

"What you say, I say, Joris. The father is to be obeyed. When he will not, the children can not."

Katherine had drawn her chair close to her father's and taken his big hand between her own and was stroking and petting it; then she answered she leaned her head upon his breast.

"Father, I like to see the English lady; and she is teaching me the new stitch."

"Schone Lammel! There are many other things far better for these to learn. In these things the best of all good teachers is thy mother."

"I can do these things also, father. The lady loves me and will be unhappy not to see me."

"Then, let her come here and see thee. That will be the proper thing. Why not? Always honor thyself, as well as others. That is the Dutch way; that is the right way. Mind what I tell thee."

His voice had gradually grown sterner, and he gently withdrew his hand from her clasp, and rose as a man pressed with affairs.

When he had left the room Lysbet instantly began to order the wants of the house. Katherine still sat at the table; her eyes were cast down, and she was arranging—without a consciousness of doing so—her bread crumbs upon her Delft plate. Roused from her reverie she comprehended in a moment how decisive her father's orders were intended to be. Yet in this matter she was so deeply interested that she instinctively made an appeal against them.

"Mother, my mother, shall I not go once more to see Madame Gordon? So kind she has been to me! She will say I am ungrateful, that I am rude, and know not good manners. Yes, mother, I may go once. A young girl does not like to be thought ungrateful and rude."

"More than that, Katherine; a young girl should not like to disobey a good father. You make me to feel astonished and sorry. Here is the key of the best parlor; go now and wash carefully the fine china-ware."

So Lysbet turned and left the room. She did not notice the rebellious look on her daughter's face, the lowering brows, the resentment in the glance that followed her, the lips firmly set to the mental purpose. "To see her lover at all risks"—that was the purpose; but how best to accomplish it was not clear to her.

She lifted the key given her and went to the parlor. It was a large, low room, with wainscoted walls, and a big tiled fireplace nearly filling it. The blinds were closed, but there was enough light to reveal its quaint and almost foreign character. The oval tables were full of curious bits of china, dainty oriental wicker-work, exquisite shells on lacquered trays, wonderfully wrought workboxes and fans and amulets. As she moved about among the strange carved toys and beautiful ornaments, she could think only of him—of his stately manner and dark, handsome face. She recalled every word he said to her as they sat under the water beeches. More vividly still she recalled the tender light in his eyes, the lingering clasp of his hand, his low, persuasive voice, and that raiment of fashion and culture which perhaps impressed her more than any other thing.

Among the articles she had to dust was a square Indian box with drawers. It had always been called "the writing box," and it was partly filled with paper and other materials for letter-writing. She stood before the open lid thoughtfully, and a sudden overwhelming desire to send some message of apology to Mrs. Gordon came into her heart. She could write pretty well and she had seen her mother and Joanna fold and seal letters; and, although she was totally inexperienced in the matter, she determined to make the effort.

All difficulties were overcome, one by one; and the following note intrusted to the care of Dietrich Becker, the old man who worked in the garden and milked the cows:

"To Mistress Col. Gordon—
"Honored Madam: My father forbids that I come to see you. He thinks you should upon my mother call. That you will judge me to be rude and ungrateful, I fear very much. But that is not true. I am happy, indeed. I think all the day of you.
"Your obedient servant,
"Katherine Van Heemskirk."

ODEST OF ALL FADS.

Lovers of the Day Seek to Have Their Pictures on Sweethearts' Shoes.

It is said that the fashionable girl of the present day carries the picture of the young man she most loves in her shoe and the secret of her heart may therefore be learned by looking at her feet. Hypnotism, mental telepathy and things of that sort are not concerned. If the girl is up to date all you have to do is to look at her feet, for there you will see the picture of the happy man.

She wears it in the buckle of her slipper, so that the best time to learn the truth is when she is at a dance. At a function of the kind in Wisconsin recently a half dozen of the girls had their sweethearts at their feet, which, according to amatory tradition, is right and proper.

When the miniature had originated the modish girls were pleased to wear the counterfeit presentments of their courtiers at their necks. Then they moved to the belt buckle, but it is the prerogative of a woman to change her mind, and man is once more lowered.

Already the new fancy is gaining supporters and many slipper miniatures are being made with the portraits of "matinee idols." This is for the accommodation of those girls who have not yet succeeded in finding a man to admire at close range.

Navigation of St. Lawrence.

The St. Lawrence river is frozen four months of the year, and its navigation is so difficult that an average of one steamer a month is wrecked in its waters.

THE BLOOD.

The blood is life. We derive from the blood life, power, beauty and reason, as the doctors have been saying from time immemorial. A healthy body, a fresh appearance, and generally all the abilities we possess depend on that source of life. It is therefore the duty of every sensible man to keep the blood as pure and normal as possible. Nature, in its infinite wisdom, has given us a thermometer indicating the state of the blood, which appeals to our reason by giving notice of its impurity. Small eruptions of the skin, to which we scarcely pay any attention, headache, ringing noises in the ears, lassitude, sleeplessness, are generally a sign that the blood is not in its normal state, but is filled with noxious substances. These symptoms deserve our full attention. If more attention were paid to those symptoms, and steps taken to remove them, then many illnesses from which we suffer would become unknown and the human body would become stronger and healthier. Attention therefore should be paid to those warning signs, and the blood can be purified and poisonous substances removed from it by the use of Dr. August Koenig's Hamburg Drops, discovered more than 60 years ago.

A Flowery Brief.

A brief for the state in an early Nebraska case indulges in the following prairie flowers of fancy:

"Plaintiffs in error are afraid that the honor and dignity of the state will suffer, and they invoke for the claimants broad principles of natural equity, and the claim that neither the laws governing courts nor the constitution apply to them. The logical sequence is this—that persons who hold claims against the state are a favored class, who can alone make wings of 'justice and right' to fly to that mystic region above and beyond the trammels of law, and where such unjust things as contracts and written constitutions do not exist; but where for them a straight and narrow pathway leads to the treasury, whose doors without stint or delay, turn softly or golden hinges to admit them. Yet if I do not very much mistake this court, 'these wings' will unfather in their flight, and claimants against the state must fall to a common level with all other litigants, and stand up to the rack where is fed that good old fender of 'justice and right' as administered by our courts."

Mrs. Hildebrandt's Discovery.

Lake Sarah, Minn., Nov. 24th.—Mrs. Hildebrandt of this place claims to have discovered a complete cure for Rheumatism and numerous people can testify that as Mrs. Hildebrandt had the terrible affliction and is now a well woman, she appears to have good grounds for her claim. Mrs. Hildebrandt speaks of her cure as follows:

"I had the Rheumatism in my arms so bad that I could not sleep at night. I was induced to try Dodd's Kidney Pills and before I had taken two boxes I was much better. When I had taken four boxes I was completely cured."

It is only fair to state that others have made the same discovery as Mrs. Hildebrandt and that for Rheumatism and other diseases arising from the kidneys, Dodd's Kidney Pills are recognized as the one sure and permanent cure.

A husband hovered at death's door so long his wife remarked that she supposed he was having his usual trouble finding the keyhole.

SUBSTITUTION.

Please listen to a short talk upon a most vitally important subject—one which is greatly disturbing the business world to-day.

You have doubtless heard of the word "substitution." You have probably read that "substitution is fraud." Tack that saying firmly in your mind and keep it there. It is worth something. It is true—almost invariably.

You call at a store and ask for an article of a certain brand or manufacture, one which has been thoroughly advertised for years, and which has earned an excellent reputation. The dealer says "here's something just as good for less money." That dealer thereby usually tells a direct falsehood. He knows that the article which he offers you at a lower price is inferior, but the point is that it yields him a greater profit; hence his desire to substitute.

You may ask if an article is superior just because it is advertised. Yes, it is, and here's why. The many well-known houses which spend millions of dollars every year in the good publications of the country are managed by men of brains and wide business experience, and these men know only too well that unless an article has merit there is absolutely no business sense in spending good money to advertise it. It does not pay to advertise any article of general use for a short time only. Every advertiser must wait some time before his advertising has created the desired impression and while he is waiting his goods must have time to prove whether or not they are good. If they are good, they stick; if not, they do not, and if they were not good and did not stick, would this experienced business man continue to spend good money advertising the goods—throw good money after bad as it were? Never! He has too much business sense.

The average article which you see advertised month after month in good publications is itself good. Buy an advertised article. It is the true safe way.

When you are buying ask for what you want and get what you ask for. Remember! "Substitution is Fraud."—Pearson's Magazine.

A PASTOR WHO WAS BEFRIENDED BY AN EMPEROR SAVED BY PE-RU-NA.

Rev. H. Stubenvoll, of Elkhorn, Wis., is pastor of the Evangelical Lutheran St. John's Church of that place. Rev. Stubenvoll is the possessor of two bibles presented to him by Emperor William of Germany. Upon the fly leaf of one of the bibles the Emperor has written in his own handwriting a text.

This honored pastor, in a recent letter to The Peruna Medicine Co., of Columbus, Ohio, says concerning their famous catarrh remedy, Peruna:

Gentlemen: "I had hemorrhages of the lungs for a long time, and all despaired of me. I took Peruna and was cured. It gave me strength and courage, and made healthy, pure blood. It increased my weight, gave me a healthy color, and I feel well. It is the best medicine in the world. If everyone kept Peruna in the house it would save many from death every year."—H. STUBENVOLL.

Thousands of people have catarrh who would be surprised to know it, because it has been called some other name than catarrh. The fact is catarrh is catarrh wherever located; and another fact which is of equally great importance, is that Peruna cures catarrh wherever located.

If you do not derive prompt and satisfactory results from the use of Peruna, write at once to Dr. Hartman, giving a full statement of your case and he will be pleased to give you his valuable advice gratis.

The fact may not be generally known that Uncle Sam is in the chrysanthemum business and that his exhibits in this line are something altogether gorgeous and almost unique. The chrysanthemum show which the secretary of agriculture has been giving in Washington has even excited the envy and admiration of the Japanese colony there, who allow that they never saw anything more beautiful at home. The specimens which have been grown under the direction of the agricultural department's experts rival the rarest of their kind in the world. Whether or not the raising of chrysanthemums is of any practical value to the science of agriculture, it is gratifying to know that the department is producing the best in the market.

LOST ARTICLES IN HOTELS.

Carelessness and haste on the part of guests responsible for loss of many belongings.

One of the foremost hotel managers of this city, said lately that it was impossible to restrict a large proportion of the loss of portable articles in hotels, reports the New York Herald.

This loss is not so much due to theft as to carelessness and hurry on the part of maids and men and women, who carry off the teaspoons they have been using in their rooms, pack up the hotel towels by mistake and break a good deal that is only missed when an inventory is taken. This manager said that a large hotel collects napkins, spoons and towels stamped with the names of almost all the other large hotels in the country and of names in Europe. The spoon packed away with the child's medicine by a maid in Paris is, perhaps, next brought to light in a New York hotel, where it is sent down to the kitchen when no longer needed.

Thus these little but costly things travel about and defy safekeeping. There is a great deal of theft, of course. Servant women wrap table cloths and sheets around their persons, waiters pocket forks, spoons, knives and napkins, and bartenders and their helpers carry off bottles of liquors. So far as possible large hotels board and house their help, because that makes it more difficult for theft to be practiced.

A Needlework Wonder.

Philadelphia claims to possess the most marvelous specimen of needlework in the world. It is a tapestry measuring 27 feet in length and 13 feet 6 inches in width. The ground work is silk and it is superbly embroidered with figures telling the history of America from the landing of Columbus until 1892. A Polish artist was engaged six years on the work.

Curious Fact About Immigrants.

It is a curious fact that two out of every three Irishmen who come to America remain in the eastern states, while two out of every three German immigrants go west at once.

TRADING IN FURS TO-DAY.

Some Interesting Particulars of the Business in the Hudson Bay Country.

First of all, when an Indian arrives to trade at a Hudson Bay post, then, furs in the pack must be sorted, silver fox worth $500 separated from cross fox and blue and white worth from ten dollars down, according to quality, and from common red fox, worth less. Twenty years ago, says an article on Hudson Bay company, in Frank Leslie's Popular Monthly, it was no unusual thing for the Hudson Bay company to send to England yearly 10,000 cross fox skins, 7,000 blue, 100,000 red, half dozen silver. Few wolf skins are in the trapper's pack, unless particularly fine specimens of brown arctic and white arctic, bought as a curiosity, and not for value as skins.

Against the wolf the trapper wages war as against a pest that destroys other game, and not for its skin. Next to muskrat, the most plentiful fur will be that of the rabbit or varying hare. Buffalo was once the staple of the hunter. What the buffalo was, the white rabbit is to-day. From it the Indian gets clothing, tepee covers, blankets, thongs, food. From it, the white man who is a manufacturer of furs gets gray fox and chinchilla, and seal in imitation. Except one year in seven, when a rabbit plague spares the land by cutting down their prolific numbers, the varying hare is plentiful enough to sustain the Indian.

MEMORIAL BELL FOR AUTHOR.

Maine Pastor Who Wrote Memorial Lines Remembered in a Unique Manner.

"To live in hearts we leave behind is not to die," said the poet most truly. It is an immortality which comes in larger measure to but a chosen few. One of these lives in the heart of every school boy who has declaimed from the rostrum on Friday afternoon the stirring words of "Spartacus."

He may not know whose brain fathered the lines he is making embryonic oratory out of, but the author lives on, nevertheless. The late Rev. Elijah Kellogg, for 50 years pastor of the Congregational church in Hallowell, Me., was the writer of those oft spoken verses, says the New York Herald.

In recognition of his writings, as well as his long pastorate, a memorial bell to his memory has been recently hung in the belfry of the house of worship whose pulpit he filled so long with his kindly presence. His ministry extended over a wide field in the pastorate along the shore of Casco Bay, and many out on the deep, as well as those safe in the harbor of refuge, will hear the far sounding deep tones of the new bell and glow with remembrance of a good man gone to a well-earned rest from his labors.

COSTLIEST DRINK ON RECORD.

One That Queen Victoria Took When She Conferred the Title of Duke on the Earl of Fife.

What is probably the costliest drink on record, cost its recipient $1,750, says the Philadelphia Press.

When the earl of Fife—as he was then—became the husband of Princess Louise of Wales, Queen Victoria, at the wedding breakfast which followed the happy ceremony, drank to the "health of the duke of Fife."

The drink cost the semi-royal bridegroom the amount of his letters patent confirming the dukedom.

Letters patent accompany the conferring of a title on an individual.

They take the form of a royal mandamus, and the issuing of the documents is a costly matter, which has to be borne by the ennobled; $500 is practically the amount of the fee a new knight has to pay for the letters patent conveying the royal authority. A baronet's liabilities are about the same.

When a "Mr." or "Sir" is advised of the royal intention to elevate either to the dignity of baron, the letters patent conveying the royal authority carries with it a fee of $750; of a viscount, $1,000, an earl, $1,250, a marquis, $1,500 and a duke, $1,750.

WILL NEVER LACK COAL.

There is Enough in the Mines of the United States to Supply Us Indefinitely.

The basis of all iron and steel making is reliable coking coal and iron ores suited to the Bessemer or the basic process of producing steel. The Connellville district in western Pennsylvania carries the largest known seam (nine feet) of high grade coking coal. But the district is distinctly limited, and at present rate of mining will be exhausted within a generation. Nature, however, was lavish in providing reserves. The developments of the past ten years among the vast bituminous coal regions of West Virginia, southwestern Virginia, southeastern Kentucky and eastern Tennessee, have revealed deposits of high-grade coking coal that would seem to be ample to supply the blast furnaces of the world for centuries to come. It is only a question of building railroads, opening mines and constructing coke ovens. Not all good bituminous coal will make coke. Indeed, in all the great coal fields of Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Missouri and important coal sections of Tennessee and Kentucky, there has not been found an acre of coking coal. Draw a circle around the Connellville section in Pennsylvania, including the so-called "Mountain" operations adjacent on the east; another around the section where Virginia, West Virginia, Kentucky and Tennessee meet; another around the Warrior coal fields in Alabama, and a fourth around a newly-developed district in Colorado and Utah and you have all the known sources of fuel supply for iron and steel making in the United States.

It is true that anthracite coal is still used in connection with coke in the blast furnaces of eastern Pennsylvania, but it is a small and diminishing factor. The circles above indicated, however, embrace deposits so reliable and so extensive that a rate of consumption many times greater than the present could go on for generations without raising the first question of exhaustion.

WITNESS' CLEVER REPLY.

Retort Courteous of the Same to Bailiff Upsets the Dignity of a Row of Judges.

Recently, during the hearing of a charge of felony, a young man was called to give evidence on behalf of accused, and was about to be sworn, when the inspector informed their lordships that the witness had disobeyed the order for witnesses to leave the court.

The bench were almost inclined to refuse his evidence in consequence, but the witness, in the most innocent manner, caused a burst of laughter which even the dignity of a whole row of judges was not proof against, and the position was saved.

The inspector, addressing the bench, said: "In order that there should be no mistake, I distinctly said: 'All witnesses on both sides must leave the court until they are called,' and then, turning to the witness, he said: 'You must have heard the order.'"

"Yes," at once responded the witness, according to the Detroit News-Tribune, "I did; but I am not a witness on both sides!"

Women Railroaders.

There are now in the United States 45 feminine locomotive engineers and firemen and seven female conductors. Add to these 31 brakemen—or, to be correct, brakewomen—ten baggage women.

Peas in Colorado.

The beds of peas in Colorado sometimes include as many as 2,000 acres, and there is one bed exceeding in size 2,500 acres.

The Left Lobe.

The left lobe of the brain, governing the right side of the body, is known to be superior to the right lobe in its influence upon the bodily functions. Dr. Phelps, a recent investigator, insists that the left brain is also the intellectual half. He has studied nearly 300 cases of brain injury and disease, and has found that the right side may be severely injured without materially affecting the thinking powers.

The new track will be ready for traffic in about two weeks.

In many places the town man with his gun, out to kill something, becomes a veritable terror to all forms of wild life—woodchucks, squirrels, even the little red ones, and the chipmunks, doves, quail, hawks and owls, night hawks, robins and song birds, all become marks for him to shoot at. We do not blame any man for posting his land and shutting this sort out from entering on the farm. No man on the farm can afford to have this wild life thus destroyed.

Dr. Halsey B. Jenks of Ypsilanti, 80 years of age, was ejected from a D. & M. A. & J. electric car last week and compelled to walk three miles in consequence of which he is now lying at the point of death. Dr. Jenks was on his way to Jackson, so bought a ticket to Grass Lake and at Grass Lake left the car for a moment and purchased a return ticket from there to Jackson to reap the advantage of a special rate at Grass Lake, but he was given a ticket dated the day before and was consequently ejected by the conductor when he refused to pay a second time. He walked three miles back to Grass Lake and that night was taken dangerously ill.

Food Commissioner Snow says in a bulletin issued last week that recent investigation shows that extract manufacturers have been flooding the Michigan market with an alleged lemon extract that is almost wholly devoid of lemon oil, consisting of alcohol with a little lemon flavor and colored to resemble the genuine extract. Manufacturers are warned to clear the markets of this stuff prior to January 1 or they will be prosecuted.

Monday evening being the birthday of George Speer, the Batchelor Boys very pleasantly surprised him at his home on Railroad street. After a few hours spent with ping pong they repaired to the dining room to enjoy a "Dutch Lunch." While doing justice to the repast, the "Dear Dozen" appeared relieving the boys of all that was in sight. A jolly good time then ensued after which all departed wishing George happy returns of the day.

The neighbors of Mrs. Mercy Boyd gave her a surprise at her home in Sylvan, Tuesday evening, it being the ninety-second anniversary of her birth. Mrs. Boyd was completely surprised and could only say, "This shows that I am not forgotten." Chas. Stephenson was present and played on the same old violin that furnished music when the old hotel was in its palmiest days, and which will be remembered by the older residents. The occasion was a most enjoyable one.

The lately formed farm machinery trust concerns the farmers of the whole country. It is in a financial way one of the strongest trusts in the whole country and has a practical clinch on the business, for the reason that it controls very valuable patents. It is said that the price of machinery is to be advanced, and it probably will be, for just as matrimony is the objective point in courtship so higher prices and bigger profits are the real objective point of all trust schemes.

A good local newspaper beats the world as an advertising medium. A handbill will attract attention by accident. The newspaper carries your message to a waiting audience. The fence rail "ad" is a corpse that can only be looked upon by a few neighbors who have to go near it. The newspaper "ad" goes into the home, takes a place in the family circle, and talks right to the hearts of thousands of people who pay their money for just that kind of entertainment.—Ex.

An amusing story is told of a man condemned to death recently in France who was asked, according to custom, what he would prefer for his last meal. He chose mussels, which, though his favorite dish, always, he said, caused him a terrible indigestion. "This time, however," he added, grimly, "they will not have the chance."

London has produced another sensational cause of death. A man was killed by the simple inhalation of a perfume. The perfume was subjected to a chemist for analysis, and it was found that some lavender in the man's pocket had been strengthened by an addition of oil of almonds which induced nitro-benzole poisoning. The cause of death was manifestly accidental, but it exposed the danger to human life which rests in apparently harmless perfumes.

Professor Milne, the English authority on earthquake disturbances, says that the ridge on which the islands of Martinique, St. Vincent and others in that neighborhood lie, is a line of marked weakness. Geology shows that the Isthmus of Panama was at one time under water, and that a belt of land connected North and South America along the Eastern coast of the Caribbean Sea. This belt, like Atlantis, has sunk out of sight, leaving only the islands to indicate where it lay.

There's mischief in the X-ray when in the hands of men unfamiliar with its adumbrations. Thus, a prominent citizen of Cleveland, who suffered from laryngitis, thought he had swallowed his false teeth, and an X-ray diagnosis apparently confirmed the supposition. But just as the doctors had slit open his esophagus, a friend of the patient entered the operating room with the missing set of teeth. The error of diagnosis blossomed into a tragedy, for the unlucky victim did not long survive the operation.

The railways of the United States in 1890 carried eighty billion tons of freight one mile, and in 1900 they carried one hundred and forty billion tons one mile. They charged a fraction more than nine-tenths of a cent for carrying each ton a mile in 1890, and only seven and a half cents in 1900. As the ingenuity of inventors and the wise management of financiers are both constantly at work trying to reduce the cost of transportation the roads will carry more freight still in 1910, and charge less for it.

The Stewards' Club, of Cleveland, Ohio, representing the leading clubs and hotels of that city, has just completed an investigation of the character of food products sold there, with surprising results. Of 175 samples of oleomargarine examined 170 were found to contain impurities; of 460 milk samples 132 were impure; twenty-seven per cent of the mustards tested were adulterated, and thirty-two per cent of the flavoring extracts were doctored. Many other food products fell far short of the standard.

According to the New York Tribune one of the ablest and most influential insurance presidents, head of one of the most prosperous companies in this country, makes the surprising statement in a carefully prepared address that an increase in mortality rates is probable. He declares that "the influence of modern science in the direction of prolonging life seems to be more than offset by the unfavorable influence of modern modes of life." Such an assertion from such a source furnishes abundant food for thought. Nevertheless, many physicians and recorders of vital statistics will not be inclined as accept so pessimistic a view.

The class in reading in a Brooklyn school had come to the phrase "a slender birch tree," and the teacher, not quite sure that the children fully comprehended the meaning of "slender," sought to develop it from familiar words. "You all know what 'stout' means, do you not?" she asked. "Yes'm." "Have you ever seen a stout woman?" "Oh, yes'm; Mrs. Brown is very stout," said one girl. "Right," said the teacher. "Now look at me! I am not stout, am I?" "No'm," came the chorus of voices. "Well, if I am not stout, what am I?" A perplexed look overspread the faces. Finally one little fellow ventured to raise his hand. "Well, Freddie, do you think I'm stout?" "No'm." "Well, then, what would you call me?" "Skinny."

Grand Rapids Man Shot in Guatemala.

News has been received that W. Godfrey Hunter, Jr., son of the American minister to Guatemala, has shot and killed William Fitzgerald, of Grand Rapids, Mich. Hunter's father claims diplomatic immunity from arrest for his son and has refused to surrender him to the authorities. Much excitement prevailed around the legation after the shooting. Consul General McNally at Guatemala City advised the department of state at Washington of the tragedy. His dispatch indicated that the secretary of the legation was also implicated in the affair. The shooting of Fitzgerald was the culmination of a series of troubles that have marked the career of the Hunters in Central America. Young Fitzgerald was 26 years old, the eldest of six sons and went to Guatemala about eight years ago. While there he became attached to the Guatemala government service and two years later was appointed consul at Champerico by President McKinley. He resigned this office after serving one year, and entered the service of the president of Guatemala, one of his chief duties being to entertain foreign visitors. He was of an adventurous disposition and, nevertheless, quarrelsome. His father stated that he was as much in the dark concerning the shooting of his son as his many Grand Rapids friends.

Echo of the Sutton Trial.

The investigation by the Ingham county authorities into the rumors that the jury that tried Eli R. Sutton was corrupted, which has been under way in Lansing, for several weeks, bore fruit in a warrant being issued for State Senator John Holbrook, of Lansing, charging him with attempting to corrupt the jurors. Holbrook is at present in Cartersville, Mo., where he is interested in a zinc mine. Telegrams were sent to officers there requesting them to locate and arrest Holbrook and hold him pending the arrival of local officers with requisition papers. Word was received that Holbrook had been located and Prosecuting Attorney Tuttle immediately made application to Gov. Bliss for requisition papers. Holbrook has been a prominent Republican politician in this section of the state for many years. He served in the state senate from 1886 to 1890, and was state oil inspector under Gov. Dwyer. During Gov. Pingree's four years in office he was deputy labor commissioner. He went to Missouri about one year ago. Rumor has persistently connected Holbrook's name with jury bribing since the investigation commenced, but the authorities have refused to disclose what their inquiry had developed.

To New York in 1903.

The next meeting of the National Grange will be held at some city in New York in the year 1903. The matter of location came up in the grange Wednesday at Lansing and New York was practically the unanimous choice. Formerly the grange used to designate the city in which the meeting would be held, but it was discovered that better accommodations generally could be secured if the location was not so definite. Hon. J. J. Woodman, of Paw Paw, who served for eight years as master of the National Grange, and for nearly ten years as a member of the executive committee, was retired today by the election of F. P. Derthick, of Ohio, to a position on the committee. No other officers are to be elected this year, but there is some discussion of possible candidates for 1903. George B. Horton, of Michigan, is a prominent candidate for master. The masters of the state granges have been making reports of the condition of the order. Master Horton, of Michigan, reports an increase of about 6,000 in the membership in this state.

S. S. A. New Officers.

At Wednesday's session of the State Sunday School association at Lansing, H. H. Simpson, treasurer, reported that the receipts of the year were $1,789.80, and the cash balance $122.85. The resources, principally from pledges, amount to $152.77, and the liabilities aggregate $1,232.75. The report of the nominating committee, which was adopted, named the following officers for the ensuing year: President, E. L. Wright, of Hancock; vice-presidents, F. C. Berger, Grand Rapids; W. A. Powell, Marshall; Rev. D. P. Barnes, Charlotte; L. W. Sutherland, Oxford, recording secretary; Mrs. J. E. Bolles, Detroit, superintendent of primary departments; Mrs. G. L. Fox, Grand Rapids; superintendent of home department, William Strong, Kalamazoo; superintendent of normal department, H. R. Patterson, Lansing; members of executive committee, C. A. Stringer, Detroit; Rev. S. T. Morris, Grand Rapids; J. W. Milliken, Traverse City; Leonard Lawrence, Detroit; J. E. Bolles, Detroit; E. L. Hutchings, Kalamazoo; George C. Higbee, Marquette.

The state Sunday school convention closed at Lansing Thursday. A total of $4,500 in pledges was secured. Circuit Judge Fred J. Russell, of Muskegon, has returned from a hunting trip to the northern peninsula in company with several Hart business men. A total of seventeen deer were shot, including one three-legged one. A bear was also captured. The remains of George Meyers, of Cheshire, were brought home from Tront Lake, where he was shot by Jack Galbraith, of Lacota, who was in his party from this section, and mistaken him for a deer. The dead man was a member of the cavalry company which captured "Jeff" Davis.

John Sawyer's boys had a costly meal near Brighton the other day. While he was feeding the swine Sawyer dropped his pocketbook in the pen. When he noticed his loss he rushed back, only to find the boss pig trying to finish the metal clasp. The pocketbook and its contents, $130 in greenbacks, was chewed to a pulp.

Sheep Thieves Nabbed.

Sheriff W. F. Shepherd, of Adrian, made two arrests Monday which will cause more universal satisfaction, it is anticipated, to the farmers of various counties in southern Michigan and northern Ohio than any round-up for several years past. In the persons of James Gaskell, of Medina township, Lenawee county, and Edward Capp, of Toledo, the authorities believe they have the parties who for the last ten years have robbed the farmers in several counties of hundreds of head of sheep and cattle. The sheriff has been working on the case ever since the report of the last stealing, which occurred last Thursday, and rounded up his men this morning in Toledo. On the day mentioned William Hayward, of Seneca, arose in the morning and discovered that several of his prize herd of sheep had disappeared during the night. He also discovered a wagon track, which displayed one wobbly wheel leading out of his yard. This track was followed nine miles and led to the home of Gaskell. Deputy Sheriff Stephenson visited Gaskell's barn that night and discovered the pelts of 25 sheep. He remained to watch the barn and was repaid about 2 o'clock in the morning by the appearance of a wobbly-wheeled wagon and a load of sheep. Sheriff Shepherd took up the search and found that Gaskell had been shipping large numbers of sheep to Edward Capp, a Toledo butcher. Capp was watched and it is claimed sufficient evidence was obtained to connect both with at least three or four of the more recent robberies.

Who Is He?

The identity of the stranger who committed suicide at the Milwaukee house, Muskegon, some time Sunday night by taking laudanum and whose body was not found until Monday, remains unsolved. It has been learned that the man purchased the poison at W. A. Sibley's drug store Sunday afternoon. He then went to the Milwaukee house, where he engaged a room and went to bed. Because he could not be roused his room was entered and he was found dead. The body is that of a man about 38 years of age, 5 feet 8 inches tall and 180 pounds weight. He had brown wavy hair and a reddish mustache. He wore a dark blue suit of clothes and a derby hat. A five-cent piece was all his pockets contained.

A big howl of indignation has gone up over the action of the U. of M. graduate manager in transferring the Michigan-Minnesota game, scheduled for Thanksgiving day, from Detroit to Ann Arbor on the ground that there are more seats at the latter place. Efforts are being made to have the action rescinded.

Lallah Rookh Temple, D. O. K. K. K. initiated a large clan Thursday night. Imperial Prince John H. Holmes came from St. Louis, Mo., purposely to participate, and was the star of the occasion.

The return of the canvassing board shows that Gov. Bliss carried St. Clair county, the Avery stronghold, by only 300 majority, while secretary of state received 1,182. Congressman McMoran received 1,073.

In an effort to keep Sylvester Stevens away from a cider barrel, it is alleged, Calvin Leonard beat Stevens over the head with a stick of wood, inflicting injuries from which Stevens died Tuesday, at Owosso.

Two more families in Chelsea, those of Albert Taylor and Mr. Muller, were made very ill from cheese poisoning. It was purchased from different dealers here. The dealers have discontinued selling that kind of cheese.

Edna L. Ford, young and pretty, married Robert Briggs, aged 80, on the agreement that he would deed her 50 acres of his farm at the city limits, Grand Rapids. This he did. A deed executed by Briggs 20 years ago, giving the property to his first wife, now dead, has now turned up, and a law suit is the result.

Garman is still being cross-examined in the Nichols case at Grand Haven. The records of the Boston court were produced as evidence Thursday, showing Garman's arrest some years ago for fraud. This matter was, however, satisfactorily settled. Garman's cross-examination has not yet weakened the main points of his testimony.

Judge Carpenter, of Detroit, received his commission from Gov. Bliss this morning as a justice of the Supreme Court. He was immediately sworn in and took his place on the bench when the session opened, sitting on the left of Chief Justice Hooker. There were no ceremonies incident to the occasion, but it happened that several Detroit lawyers had cases on call, and they took occasion to congratulate him.

The counterfeiting outfit of the famous Johnson gang of Detroit, which has been stored in the vaults of the treasury department three years, and which was one of three most interesting collections that have been captured in many years by secret service agents, has been taken by the treasury officials under the protection of armed guards to one of the iron works at Washington and reduced to ingots in the retort.

John Watson, of Standish, is the latest addition to the list of dead hunters for the season of 1902, and it looks as if he was deliberately murdered. He was standing on a stump about three feet above the ground in Long Rapids township, when his companion noticed another hunter raise his gun, take deliberate aim, and fire at Watson. The bullet struck him in the head, causing instant death. The stranger then took to his heels, and fording the Thunder Bay river, disappeared from view. The dead man was 27 years old.

Joseph Beck, the self-confessed murderer of 10-year-old Julia Wozniak, on Sept. 28, pleaded guilty in the Circuit Court at Menominee Tuesday and was sentenced to life imprisonment at hard labor and solitary confinement in the branch state prison at Marquette. The prisoner showed no emotion during the trial, which only took 20 minutes. The prisoner was taken on the 11:30 train to Marquette, having been in Menominee only two hours. He was brought from Iron Mountain, where he had been taken to prevent lynching.

THE NEWS OF THE WORLD

COAL BARONS COME TO TIME.

Move to Take Strike Settlement Out of Commission's Hands.

The mine workers, through their representatives, have agreed with the mine owners to attempt to adjust the differences existing between them outside the anthracite coal strike commission. The proposition was made on a compromise basis, and the negotiations, it is expected, will be at once entered upon, with a reasonable hope of settlement with the aid of the arbitrators.

To head off impending exposure of the coal and railroad combine, and avert a great amount of publicity in connection with the trust feature of anthracite mining, is said to be the reason why the mine owners have proposed a settlement of their difficulties with the Mine Workers' Union without further hearings before the arbitration commission.

That is the coal strike situation as reported by those in a position to speak with authority. The mine operators are said to fear the effect of the publicity of their affairs on public opinion and subsequently on congress. The next thing on the program as arranged by John Mitchell was a thorough inquiry into the charge that a combination exists between the coal carrying roads, amounting to a complete monopoly, and to illegal conspiracy in trade, violating both the common law and Sherman anti-trust act. The miners claim to have ample evidence in their possession and they have been quite anxious to get it before the commission and public.

The mine owners are also known to be much disappointed in the results of the investigation so far conducted. After marshaling all the highest-priced legal talent within reach of their millions, and making the most desperate attempt to break down the leader of the union, they have had to admit the case of the workmen grew stronger instead of weaker with every day the cross-examination progressed.

Their cause has been damaged by evidence as to the health of the men, the shortness of life in the mining country, the prevalence of child labor and the general starvation conditions which prevail.

But evidence as to responsibility for such conditions was still held in reserve. The existence and methods of the combination were still to be exploited. This exploitation was to come right on the verge of the president's message dealing with trusts and the assembling of congress charged with the formulation of legislation to curb trusts. In view of these conditions the attorneys employed by the railroads and mining companies counseled a "strategic movement to the rear," hence the eagerness of the operators to get together.

The rough proposition which is to form the basis of negotiations is a 10 per cent increase in wages, a nine-hour day, and trade agreements between the miners and the company by whom they are employed. The only one of the four demands not touched upon is that of the weighing of coal by the legal ton. While both sides have expressed the willingness to settle their differences among themselves, it is not to be construed that it carries with it the acceptance of the terms proposed. They are mentioned only as a basis, it is understood, from which a settlement is to be effected.

It is said the new plan of settlement was brought about by both sides seeing that the proceedings before the commission would be interminable and that in the intermingling of the lawyers for both sides the outside agreement proposition was broached and taken up.

The commission adjourned until Dec. 3 and most of the commissioners and out-of-town attorneys immediately left for their homes.

Gompers Exonerated.

President Gompers has been completely exonerated of the charges of infidelity to the principles of trades unionism, said to have been made by Theodore J. Shaffer, president of the Amalgamated Association of Iron, Steel & Tin Workers.

The report of the special commission which has conducted the investigation reported to this effect before the convention of the American Federation of Labor at New Orleans.

The committee reported that when Shaffer appeared before it he declared that he had not at any time, either in writing or otherwise, made any charges against Gompers of infidelity to trades unionism nor did he desire to do so before the committee.

New Trial Asked for Patrick.

"We have discovered new and startling evidence, which, in my opinion, will absolutely clear Albert T. Patrick of the murder of William M. Rice."

"We ask of Recorder Goff a new trial. Our affidavits are voluminous."

This statement is made by John T. Tomlinson, counsel for Lawyer Albert T. Patrick, now in the death chamber at Sing Sing awaiting execution.

Although Patrick's case is now on appeal, Tomlinson is taking the unusual course of asking for a new trial from the court that convicted Patrick, and bases his action on 10,000 words of alleged new evidence discovered since the former trial.

TRAIN ROBBERS GET $75,000.

Rock Island Train Held Up in True Jesse James Style.

West-bound passenger train No. 11 on the Rock Island railroad, carrying a heavy shipment of currency and gold, was held up three miles west of Davenport, Ia., by a gang of robbers variously estimated at from 12 to 15 in number, who, after forcing the engineer and fireman to cut off the express and baggage cars and run down the track two miles, blew open the express car with dynamite and secured plunder, the exact amount of which is not yet known, but estimated by railroad men at anywhere from $25,000 to $75,000.

The train was 35 minutes late and two suspicious looking men boarded one of the passenger coaches. They are supposed to have had a hand in the robbery. The train was running at extra speed and had passed the little suburb of Rockingham when the engineer received a signal to stop. A red light had been swung across the track and, never thinking of robbers, the engineer closed the throttle.

The train was almost at a standstill when men swung onto the step of the engine from either side. The engineer and fireman looked into the barrels of revolvers, and they were commanded to bring the train to a standstill, and as soon as the train stopped the brakemen were ordered to uncouple the express and baggage cars.

As soon as the cars were uncoupled the engine crew walked back to their places and under cover of revolvers pulled the treasure cars away from the train. The robbers called upon the engineer to stop when two miles had been covered, and they speedily set to work on the express car.

None of the passengers was disturbed during the holdup and it was not until sometime after it was all over that they learned of the robbery.

When the train dispatcher failed to locate the train at the junction where it usually stops at that time, he discovered that the train had been held up.

Within a short time the train crew ran up to the station and reported the robbery.

Coal Famine in the West.

That there will be a coal famine in the northwest this winter is certain. The rail shippers from the Pittsburg district will in about a fortnight and their season of lake shipments and find themselves short 15,000,000 tons on their contracts, which means a loss in gross earnings to producers of $2,000,000.

There is no anthracite in the northwest. A few cargoes are on their way across the lakes, but these will only be a drop in the bucket.

Right now there are of the 200 mines of the Pittsburg district which contribute to the coal supply of the northwest many standing idle and on the whole the production is not over 50 per cent of the normal output by reason of the car shortage.

Coal operators declare that there is no general relief in sight.

Vice-Gov. Wright's Return.

President Roosevelt's presence was the feature of the festivities in honor of the home-coming of Vice-Gov. Luke E. Wright, of the Philippines, at Memphis, Tenn., Thursday.

Among those present were Gov. Benton McMullin and Gen. Joe Wheeler. Altogether, it was a splendid tribute to the affection and esteem in which Gen. Wright is held at home. That Mrs. Wright is also exceedingly popular was made apparent by the applause which greeted every reference to her. This was especially marked at the Auditorium, when the president's brother referred to the fact that his mother's brother served in the confederate navy under her father, who was Admiral Semmes.

Worried Over Cuba.

The administration is said to be much more concerned over the anti-American influences at work in Cuba than is generally understood. Opposition to American interests in Havana is asserted to have been brought about by the activity of agents of European business houses, who see that if a reciprocity treaty is made with the United States, their sales in Cuba will be seriously affected.

They have been zealously supported in their anti-American campaign by diplomatic and consular representatives of European countries, who have arrayed the influence of, notably, Great Britain, Germany, France and Spain in the island against the United States.

Rear Admiral Winfield Scott Schley was the guest of honor at the annual banquet of the Commercial club, held at Kansas City in commemoration of the signing of the John Jay treaty. The affair was a notable one, and Admiral Schley was given an ovation, the climax of a day of enthusiastic greeting to the naval hero.

Andrew J. Harness, of Ohio, and W. H. Downey, of Alabama, students in the Ulysses S. Grant Medical college, of Chattanooga, Tenn., engaged in a pistol duel in front of the medical college building. Each fired four shots. Harness is said to have been shot in the abdomen. Downey was not injured. No arrests have been made. It is claimed the duel arose over remarks Harness is alleged to have made about southern women.

Two distinct shocks of earthquake were felt in Salt Lake City Monday. Clocks were stopped in various parts of the city, but no serious damage is reported. The shock was felt at a number of points in southern Utah. Pine Valley, in Washington county, reported five shocks heavy enough to damage chimneys and throw crockery from the shelves. The vibration was from north to south.

Former Queen Lilioukani, of Hawaii, accompanied by Miss Heleku and Joseph Amoku, has arrived at San Francisco. She is en route to Washington, where she will reside during the winter.

Daring Robber's Big haul.

The Chicago postoffice was the victim of one of the most daring robberies in that city. Ten thousand dollars, the amount believed to have been secured by the robber, who made his escape without leaving any clue to his identity.

Two mail sacks containing money, which had just been picked from two of the downtown substations, were left in an unguarded wagon in front of the Masonic temple while the mail carrier went into building to gather mail that had accumulated there. The carrier was gone only a moment, but when he returned his horse and wagon had disappeared. While the carrier had been in the building, the robber, who had evidently been waiting his opportunity, had jumped into the rig and drove away.

The street was full of people at the time, but no one seems to have noticed the thief. The two mail sacks were found near Kirk's soap factory, a mile from the scene of the robbery. The horse and wagon were found two miles further west, where the robber had left them standing in the street. The police and federal authorities were notified less than 15 minutes after the robbery occurred, but no trace of the robber has been secured.

Both the mail bags were full of letters. The postal authorities are unable to state the exact amount stolen, but estimate it at fully $10,000.

Jealous Wife Murders Rival.

Miss Florence McFarlin, aged 28 years, a music teacher, was stabbed to death in her father's house in Rock Hill, N. Y., Tuesday by another woman and an hour later Mrs. Lula Yon was arrested as being the supposed murderer.

The woman who committed the daring deed, the door bell of the McFarlin home and when Miss McFarlin answered it, attacked her with a knife.

Miss McFarlin ran screaming through the hall into the kitchen, but pursued by her assailant. In the kitchen she stumbled. In a flash the pursuer was upon her and with a slash had stabbed her five times.

Miss McFarlin sank to the floor, lying instantly. The murderer fled. The only words she was heard to utter were:

"She has come between myself and my husband and I'm glad she is dead."

Didn't Get a Shot.

President Roosevelt's bear hunt in Mississippi is ended and he has not even a shot at a bear. Try as the hunters would, they could not get a within range of the president's rifle. Although the president has failed to kill a bear on this expedition, he enjoyed his outing and speaks in high praise of the hospitality that has been accorded him. He philosophically tributed his ill-fortune to the tradition of hunter's luck and says the next time he goes after bear he will arrange to stay long enough for the luck change.

The powder mill of Love & Son, located at Newark station, Greensburg, Pa., blew up, killing Joseph France and William Norris. It is the fifth time that the mill has blown up within three years. The loss to the owners is not known.

A House-Warming THANKSGIVING DINNER

[By Charles H. Robinson.]

It was all on account of the Widow Ames.

During the lifetime of her lord and master Mrs. Ames was nothing but a woman flurrying around on the edge of the social whirlwind, but, as a widow with a tidy bit of money left her the lamented departed—that was another matter. Then, the storm came, and she was drawn in and squeezed money out of her. Being a wise woman, she resisted the pressure and kept her windfall in a little cottage, which possessed three rooms below and two more in the attic. This clay, which drew their prey down into the depths without hope of extrication. Naturally careless and reckless, Mr. Jimson plunged into a quagmire, and when he felt himself sinking, he shouted for help. Fortunately the widow heard his cries and rushed to the rescue.

"What in the world are you doing in there, Mr. Jimson?" she inquired after locating him in the semi-darkness.

"The cows, widow; I started after them and forgot the slough in going."

"Wait, Mr. Jimson, and I will pull you out," and she made as if she ward spring of the tree branch began to draw him up and out. Then, climbing hand over hand along the limb as it bent back to its normal position, the woman encouraging him all the way, he finally reached safety, and, dropping from the limb to the ground, broke his leg and fell unconscious.

When he recovered his senses he was lying on a couch in the widow's little parlor, the widow herself bending over him with a bowl of steaming tea which she made him drink.

"I must go home, widow," said Jimson, trying to stand up and walk, but falling to the floor, groaning with pain. Lifting him back upon the couch, the widow bade him lie still while she went for the doctor.

"H-m-m, a very bad case," remarked the doctor after an examination of the fractured member. "Crushed, twisted and broken. How did it happen?"

When put in possession of the facts, the doctor burst out into a roar of laughter. "What a sight! What a sight!" he exclaimed as soon as he recovered his breath.

"What do you mean?" demanded the widow, bridling up.

"Why, your crawling out on that limb and crawling back again." The imaginative doctor again broke out into a fit of laughter, which was suddenly checked by a sound box on the ear administered by the angry woman.

"You're here to fix this poor man's leg, not to insult a woman!" she snapped out with fire in her eyes.

"Widow, I beg your pardon," said the doctor humbly as he turned to his patient.

"It will be six weeks before he can crawl about on crutches, and two months before he can attempt to walk," was the fiat when the operation had been completed.

"Six weeks? Two months?" groaned Jimson. "Let me go home. I must go home," and he attempted to rise, compelling the doctor to hold him down on his back.

"But the cow, widow, I must get the cow," said he plaintively.

"Never mind the cow, Mr. Jimson," said the widow; let it go to Halifax. You've got to lie still for six weeks or two months. I'll take care of you."

And she did take care of him, pulling him through until he was able to walk.

Not long afterward, about ten days before Thanksgiving day, the widow's little house was burned to the ground, all she had in the world being consumed with it. When the bucket brigade finished fighting the fiery demon, the latter had the best of it—there was nothing left but the widow—yes, there was the hencoop, but that was not a

The Limb Bent Lower and Lower.

With even simple furnishings, took all her avails and compelled her to look around for the wherewith to satisfy her cravings and clamors of her physical nature, for she was a jolly and weighty specimen of widowkind. As the doctor frequently said of her:

"The widow Ames is a good-sized chunk of a woman; able to take care of herself and stand on her rights."

For some inscrutable reason the widow had set herself up as the champion of the weak—men, women or children, there was no difference to her—even in the case of a helpless bird or dog, she would ruffle up as if she had the feathers of a motherly hen guarding her brood from the attacks of a ravenous hawk, and stay out; or hold on to it until she could procure other aid.

She climbed the tree and reached the big limb after encountering numerous bruises and scratches, which, however, she did not heed. Then resting a moment, she stretched her body out along the branch and began to crawl slowly toward Jimson, who soon understood what she intended to do.

"Widow," he cried imploringly, "you'll fall off an' be lost. Never mind me, widow, I ain't of no account; I'm in my last hole, an' it's jest as well. For God's sake, widow, go back; don't risk your life for me!"

"Be still, poor man," said the woman, crawling slowly along, her arms and legs clasped around the limb. It began to bend with her weight at last, but she still kept on, almost falling off, for the limb was growing smaller and she could not grip it tight. She flattened her body down upon it like a worm crawling on a quivering twig, all the time telling Jimson to cheer up and she would save him. The limb bent lower and lower still, until Jimson had a tiny branch in his grasp.

"Now, hold on tight," the widow commanded, "and keep still. I am going back, and when my weight is off the limb it will spring up and pull you out."

So saying, she began to crawl backward cautiously, lest a single slip should throw her off her balance and her efforts prove in vain. The broken, jagged twigs and branches caught her dress and pierced her flesh, but with relentless force she bore her whole weight backward against them and tore herself free, reaching the trunk in safety, whence she dropped panting to the ground.

Jimson worked the sticky earth and sand into the consistency of gruel, by turning and twisting, until finally the downward suction ceased and the up-fit habitation for her, although she thought she might fix it up and get along all right until she could afford to build some sort of a shanty to protect her from the inclement weather. She refused all offers of aid, but Squire Hobbs laid down the law and she was compelled to yield.

"You will go over to my house and stay there until we have built you another house," said he with a determination that overcame her resistance.

you know what I did last year? An auto and I ran away together. And I remembered, of course, that a boy whose name is Milton Montgomery Norton can't disobey, so we—Jiminy Ann! What do you suppose is the matter?"

Flopsy's tail wagged knowingly, but he didn't answer. He was either jealous of this "Jiminy Ann," whom he had never seen, but to whom Billy Dick often talked in this way. What he did see was the town messenger waving a telegram.

"For me?" asked Billy expectantly.

"Naw!" cried the boy. "It's for yer mother. Sign for it."

Billy Dick laboriously signed his full name on the blank, and he and Flopsy ran in with the telegram. Mrs. Morton was busy in the dining room carefully packing a valise with Thanksgiving goodies, pies and cake and jellies.

"A telegram, mother," cried Billy Dick, "for you."

"Oh, Billy Dick!" was all she could say, for telegrams came so seldom that they always frightened her.

"It's—it's probably from Mrs. Walker," suggested Billy Dick in his reassuring manner. "Open it and see."

"Mrs. Walker is in Turkey," laughed Mrs. Norton at his comfort.

Billy Dick tore the envelope open and Mrs. Morton read the telegram aloud:

"On way East. Arrive Thanksgiving 10 a. m. 'John and Dorothy.'"

"Goodness!" cried Billy Dick. "Uncle Jack and Aunt Dot to visit us!" and he capered around the table.

"Yes, it is nice," said Mrs. Morton, "but, Billy Dick, they're to arrive Thanksgiving day, and that means our other plans are spoiled."

Billy Dick hadn't thought of that, that certainly wasn't pleasant, for the expedition they had planned was to go down to Norfolk, for the father, who was in the navy, was unable to leave the yard to come home for the holiday. And such a cooking time as they had had. Capt. Morton had written that the food there was poor, and if they came down to bring some "frills," and it was the "frills" that Mrs. Morton was now packing in the bag.

"And—it busts our plans?" echoed Billy Dick. "O mother!"

"We must stay at home, Billy Dick, and disappoint your father, too," Mrs.

An Outdoor Thanksgiving Dinner.

Morton's sweet voice was trembling. Billy Dick could not stand it—he and Flopsy had to go out on the piazza to think it over.

"O, Flopsy, Flopsy," said Billy Dick, burying his head in Flopsy's ears. "I'm glad you don't know what Thanksgiving is like, and a visit to pops at the yard, for you can't be disappointed. I feel—Jiminy Ann, there's something the matter with my eyes, and I've got a kind of a pain somewhere in my stomach, I guess, and—"

The door opened and Mrs. Morton came briskly out. "I have it, Billy Dick, I have another plan. We mustn't disappoint your father entirely. You and the goodies shall go to Norfolk, while Rosy Posy and I stay at home and receive Uncle Jack and Aunt Dot. Could you go alone?"

Billy Dick began to grow tall. He felt on a level with his pretty mother's shoulder as he answered:

"Why, of course. That would be jolly, except for you and Rosy Posy."

So Billy Dick started that afternoon, with a dollar in his pocket, and his ticket carefully stowed away in an inside pocket. It was a three hours' journey, and he had to change cars twice.

As he stepped off the train a little old man with white hair and a jolly smile came up to him.

"Well, well, well," he said, "how you have grown! This is Billy, isn't it? Yes? Well, I declare—come right along with me. The train is late, and we'd better get some supper here."

Billy Dick wasn't quite sure who the old gentleman was, but as he seemed familiar with him, why of course it was all right. It would not be polite to ask him who he was, and a Morton is always polite, you know. Probably it was great-uncle Howell, whom he had seen years ago. Yes, it must be, thought Billy Dick, though he did not know that he lived in Richmond.

So the two went off together across the street and round the corner to a hotel.

Billy Dick had never been in a hotel before, and before he was half through supper he made up his mind that as soon as he was big enough he would persuade the family to come there—it was so nice to have hundreds of things to eat all written out so you might choose as many as you wanted.

The two sat there, the very old man and the little boy having the best of times. Billy Dick told the new-found great-uncle all about home and Rosy

SOME CALLED TOWER A DUDE.

American Ambassador Had a Duluth Reputation as a Dandy.

The announcement of Charlemagne Tower's new diplomatic position at Berlin has recalled to many Duluth persons his five years' residence in this city in the capacity of president of the Duluth & Iron Mountain road. He was much admired and respected, but was considered rather distant, despite the fact that he was really quite approachable. A Duluth man who knows Mr. Tower quite intimately says:

"Charlemagne Tower was at once the most expensively and at the same time the worst dressed man in Duluth. This is accounted for from the fact that he had his clothes made in London. In the early 80s, when Mr. Tower was here there was not as many fashionably dressed men here as now, and I must confess that a large number considered him a dude. He was nothing of the sort. He was an aristocrat and that was all there was to it, and he was a gentleman every inch of the way. Mr. Tower doubtless felt the responsibilities of the great wealth of the Tower family, and as president of the Iron Range road, and a member of the executive committee of the Minnesota Iron company."

"The only time that Mr. Tower ever showed the white feather was when the mosquitoes got after him. I recall that when he made his first trip to the present site of Tower he was accompanied by William Bassett, now a member of the soldiers' home at Old Point Comfort, and John Mallman, explorers. The trip over the trail had been difficult and tiresome, but Mr. Tower stood it like a veteran and found no fault with anything. Bassett and Mallman had voted him a trump. But he fell a few notches in their estimation the first night in camp. Just as Bassett and Mallman had fallen asleep Mr. Tower called out:

"'Mr. Bassett, Mr. Bassett, there's a mosquito in the tent.'"

"'Is that so,' growled Mr. Bassett. 'Well, get an ax and kill it.'"—Duluth Tribune.

PICKED MONEY FROM BUSHES.

Fairy Tale Was Real to Gang of Section Men.

The fairy tale of money growing on bushes was realized this week along the right of way of the Burlington railroad, between Hyannis and Alliance.

A gang of section men were at work, when one of them noticed something that looked like a bill waving from the tangled top of a sunflower growing by the roadside. He investigated. It was a treasury note for $10.

He walked a few steps farther and there, nodding from a branch of a bit of dog fennel, was another bill of similar denomination.

He called to his companions, and the entire gang threw down their tools and started on a money hunt. For three hours they searched up and down the right of way and far afield.

The entire day's clean-up of the eight was $2,135. When the find was reported, word came from headquarters that a money pouch containing $3,500 had been lost from an express shipment the day before.

The supposition is that the bag fell out of the open car door and was ground to pieces under the wheels, and the contents were scattered to the winds. This hypothesis is supported by the later discovery of portions of the damaged pouch.—Chicago Inter Ocean.

The Mother.

She will remember when they forget—
I knew it so in the hour I died;
The oil was touched and the candles set,
And the woman I worshiped sobbed beside;
And the friend I loved and had defied
Hid his face where the tears were wet.
And the mother who bore me spoke no word,
But the break of her heart was the last I heard.
Oh, life was good in the world I knew—Shall I be sad that they find it such?
My friend hath gained him a friend as true—
The wife of me thrills to a new hand's touch;
(Oh, but the dead forgive so much!)
Tears are forgotten and grief is through.
And the mother who bore me—only she Hides her face on the grave of me.—
—Theodosia Garrison.

Luxuries of Prosperity.

Almost no traveler from a foreign land comes here who does not express astonishment at our luxury. It is, at least, in certain sections of the country the most obvious feature of our civilization. Gorgeous apparel, homes that are palaces, feasts that are frequently marked by such splendor as almost to stagger the imagination, superb equipages and a riotousness in entertainments and amusements that we have to go back centuries to find precedents for—with all these things we are painfully familiar. They have become so much a matter of course as no longer to excite much comment.—Indianapolis News.

"Converted."

The late Elizabeth Cady Stanton was conversing with a minister who said:

"I object to the new fashion of changing names. There is no excuse for it."

Mrs. Stanton looked at his round figure meditatively.

"Suppose," she said, "your parents had been of the Puritan stripe and had named you 'Praise God Barebones'?"

"Think I would have changed," he replied. "You have converted me."

"Glad of it," said Mrs. Stanton.

The Lamb Fence Co. has a card placed in the window of its office, where people are wont to go for employment, with the following words: "No cigarette smokers need apply."—Adrian Times.

Ypsilanti's east side business men held a public celebration Saturday, of the opening of E. Cross street after it had been closed for several months, while it was being macadamized. Fireworks, a band concert and speeches made up the programme.

A family living in Deerfield owns a parrot 17 years old, as lively as any bird of its kind. It has lately been banished to a back room because it insisted upon greeting the minister whenever he called with a string of oaths that would make a pirate pale with envy.

The green goods men seem to be going after their victims instead of, as formerly, luring them to the cities. One of them bought a cow and a calf from a Morenci man, paying him $80 spot cash. After the cow and the calf and the stranger had disappeared, it was discovered that the $80 was confederate money.

Daniel LeBaron, who was a leading member of the Washtenaw county board of supervisors for 22 years, died at his home in Bridgewater, on Wednesday, November 12, aged 85 years. He settled in this county in 1848 and in 1851 was elected supervisor and for over a score of years ably discharged the duties of the office.

B. M. Damon, for twenty years station agent for the Michigan Central at Ypsilanti, has been placed on the retired list and F. L. Etou of Toledo has been named as his successor. Mr. Damon began his service with the Michigan Central at Cheesing, from there being transferred to East Saginaw, later to Wyandotte, after that to West Detroit, and in 1888 was sent to Ypsilanti, where he has since remained.

An eagle is rarely seen in these parts though in northern Michigan they are more numerous. The law protects the king of birds from the snare of the fowler, except for the purpose of taxidermy. A few days ago Harvey Baby of Norvill, was successful in bringing down a noble specimen, Ed. Kief says, one of the finest he has ever seen in these parts. It measured seven feet from tip to tip of wings. Ed. Kief has mounted it.—Manchester Enterprise.

Peter Taylor, a lineman in the employ of the Jackson Light & Power Co., took hold of a live wire carrying 4,400 volts while at work on a pole Friday afternoon, and was instantly killed. Taylor was working with a companion named Sam Walker when he grasped the live wire. When the force of the current went through his body he fell back, and was caught on the cross arms. Walker managed to get him away from the wire, and then held him on the cross arms until help came. Taylor was beyond human aid when he reached the ground.

Some time ago an ad. appeared in a matrimonial paper, stating that a gentleman would like a correspondent—object matrimony. It was answered by a Manchester girl, and the acquaintance ripened with each succeeding letter. Last Saturday the enamored gentleman put in an appearance. He meant business. He wanted the goods delivered. He wanted a wife. But the young lady heard that he was here and refused to be seen. Sunday the siege was continued with no results, and on Monday he gave it up, and departed. He discovered that it doesn't always take three to make a crowd.—Manchester Herald.

Florence Preston the 9-year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Josiah Preston, of Harriet street, was fatally burned by gasoline yesterday afternoon at 5 o'clock. The child mistook a can of gasoline for one of kerosene and consequently when she poured a quantity of the fluid on some kindling in a stove and touched a match to it the inflammable gas exploded, and she found herself in flames. The girl ran shrieking out of doors and fell in the front yard, where she rolled in agony until picked up by the neighbors. Her clothing fell entirely away when she was raised from the ground, and there was not a square inch on her body that was not burned.

I will pay 7 1/2 cents a pound for hens, 8 1/2 cents for spring chickens, and 11 cents for turkeys. Frank Leach.

THE EMPEROR WAS BROKE.

One Time When William, of Germany, Had to Borrow from His Brother Henry.

It seems incredible, yet it is a fact that Emperor William of Germany is often short of money, and the reason is because he rarely carries any money in his pockets.

The other day he was at a festival with his brother, Prince Henry, and his attention being drawn to a new automobile machine, he resolved to put a coin in the slot in order to see how the apparatus worked. When he searched for a coin, however, he could not find one and he was obliged to borrow from his brother.

On various other occasions, and especially while hunting, since it is his custom to give money to the foresters and other attendants, he has found it necessary to borrow from his companions.

The only time when he fills his pockets with money, says the Detroit Free Press, is on Christmas eve, for it has long been his custom to stroll at that time through the streets near the palace and to give money to all deserving persons whom he meets, but especially to children and old soldiers.

Grip Brought On Sciatic Rheumatism. Nervous Prostration Followed. Dr. Miles' Nerve Gave Back Health.

"I was laid up during the winter of 94-95 with sciatic rheumatism and nervous prostration brought on by a severe attack of La Grippe. The rheumatic pains were so severe at times that it was impossible for me to turn in bed. I was unable to sleep. I had two of our best physicians in attendance, took all the advertised remedies for troubles of this kind but got no help whatever until I took Dr. Miles' Restorative Nerve. Six bottles restored me to health; I am better than for years in fact am entirely relieved. I can say with a clear conscience that it was Dr. Miles' Restorative Nerve that restored me to health. When the pains of sciatic and rheumatism were most severe I secured almost immediate relief by the use of Dr. Miles' Restorative Nerve. I have recommended Dr. Miles' Remedies to many people."—Fred Myers, Redfield, S. D.

"I was taken with pain in my heart and under the left shoulder; with such heavy oppression feeling in my chest that I could hardly breathe. I had palpitation so bad and my heart would throb so that it would shake my whole bed. I also had a weak, all gone feeling in the region of my heart. My doctor treated me for liver and stomach trouble but I failed to receive any benefit until a friend recommended Dr. Miles' Heart Cure and Restorative Nerve. I used both and one box of the Anti-Pain Pills. I believe I am completely and permanently cured."—Mrs. J. W. Golding, Noblesville, Ind.

Eugene Field's

Views on Ambition and Dyspepsia.

"Dyspepsia," wrote Eugene Field, "often incapacitates a man for endeavor and sometimes extinguishes the fire of ambition." Though great despite his complaint Field suffered from indigestion all his life. A weak, tired stomach can't digest your food. It needs a preparation like Kodol
