VILLAGE WATER WORKS CRIPPLED

Disastrous Fire Tuesday Destroyed Stand-pipe and Several Barns.

A fire, which for a time threatened to be the most disastrous that had occurred here for some time, started in the McKune barn, occupied by W. W. Corwin as a livery and feed stable, a few minutes before noon Tuesday.

It was but a moment when the entire structure was afire, and but few articles of value were saved. W. W. Corwin lost two horses, Arthur Jacqueman of Manchester lost one, and J. E. McKune lost the white Arabian pony, Ollie, which was so well known on our streets.

Mr. Corwin also lost nearly his entire equipment and a large quantity of hay and grain.

There was a large bunch of barns in close proximity to the one in which the fire started, as was also the large water tower of the village water works system.

It was but a few moments before the tower was afire. The pump at the power house was working at its full capacity but for a time the force was not sufficient to throw a stream but a few feet, until it was discovered that the cut off which ran to the tank had not been closed.

About this time the tank fell and the resulting flood washed the barn on the Stinson place about five feet from its foundations; it also broke in the back part of Mrs. Stinson's residence and filled the rooms and cellar with water.

Falling timbers and water also did nearly $200 damage to the new Methodist church. The falling of the tanks succeeded in putting out the fire, and with the increased pressure the fire in the barn of Mrs. J. C. Taylor was soon subdued. A barn on the Cummings property was crushed by the falling tank, and there were a number of narrow escapes at this time from falling timbers. Nelson Jones being laid up with a couple of broken ribs and various bruises. Edgar Alexander a badly bruised leg; and several others were somewhat bruised.

As a result of the fire the council has decided to buy a large new pump, and a committee consisting of Hon. F. P. Glazier, W. J. Knapp, O. C. Burkhardt and J. W. Maier went to Detroit Wednesday to look up the matter. With this direct pressure will be kept on the main, and the tank will not be rebuilt unless it is found necessary during the summer months, when so much water is used for sprinkling purposes.

W. W. Corwin has leased the barn formerly owned by Jacob Staffan on Park street and will continue his business there.

The pump at present in use at the power house is kept running all the time, so that pressure will be kept on mains. The loss to the village will be in the neighborhood of $2,500.

LaFayette Grange.

At the next meeting of LaFayette Grange, which will be held at Forester's Hall, on Wednesday, February 18th, there will be a Grange conference and all patrons of this part of the county should try and be present. Frank R. Peters of Sand Creek will be conductor.

This conference is one of a series of 200 meetings to be held in Michigan during February and March, planned by the officers of the state grange. Washtenaw county has three of these meetings, Stony Creek, Pittsfield and Chelsea.

These meetings are to aid in uniformity of Grange work and to assist all Granges, new and old, in the way of essential methods to Grange success. Such questions as the following will be discussed:

"The importance of social culture through the Grange, and the best ways of bringing about such development."

The benefits of educational progress through the lecturer's programs and parliamentary practice.

General essentials in conducting a successful Grange.

The necessity of official punctuality and duty in Grange work.

The organic construction of the Grange and the necessity of obligation duty.

The necessity of farmers contributing of time and means to the support of the Grange.

The object of Grange ritualistic forms and their aid to true Grange attachment and strength.

All patrons are expected to take a basket dinner. Members of LaFayette Grange will furnish coffee. Meeting will begin at 10 a. m.

Peoples' Popular Course.

The Imperial Hand Bell Ringers and Banjo Club of the Peoples' Popular Course will appear at the opera house Monday night, February 16th. A special reduction in price has been made to 35 cents adults and 20 cents for children. Do not fail to hear this fine concert. All the members of the company are artists of international reputation. There will be music by the bells, guitars, mandolins, banjos, harp and zither. Their carillon of bells (110 in number) is the finest that can be procured, having been made in the oldest bell foundry at London, England and imported especially for this company. Don't fail to hear Mr. Snipp play the zither.

SEEING FOOTBALL BY PROXY.

Blind Enthusiast in England Who Never Misses a Match When He Can Get There.

Blind since he was four years old, a well-known Blackburn (England) man is a self-taught musician, playing the piano and other instruments by ear and earning his living by that accomplishment. Many blind people, however, are musicians, and that is not the curious thing about Mike, says Golden Penny. This penchant is not only for music, but for football. If you ask him on a Saturday night where he has been in the afternoon, he will invariably tell you he has been to "see" a football match. A blind man going to see a football match—Nonsense! But it is not nonsense. Mike is so fond of football—especially of his own pet team, the Blackburn Rovers—that he never misses a match if he can possibly help it in the season, frequently traveling with the team to matches out of town—not for the purpose of playing music for coppers, as some may suppose; no, he goes purely and simply to "see the game."

True, he sees it by proxy. He stands among the crowd, and as the shouts go up and the remarks and criticisms of those about him are expressed, he can follow the game as keenly as any man, and when time is called he will tell you more about the details of the match than anyone else. Mike is proud of the fact that he has scarcely missed seeing a match on a Saturday afternoon for the last 20 years—to say nothing of extra games on other days.

ENGLISH AT FOREIGN HOTELS.

Words Put Together in a Fashion That is Something Fearful and Wonderful to Contemplate.

Many gems of the curious English of foreign hotel keepers have been given to the public. Among the best, says Stray Stories, is the tale of the host of a well-known establishment in Greece, who was wont to greet his guests in an effusive manner with: "What you preface—a bife-tek or a chick-hen?"

Their astonishment at the mastery of the language was frequently deepened when, upon their return to the hotel a few hours later, they found nothing prepared. It was his only English sentence, and he did not understand a word of it.

This, however, is not quite equal to the placard in the possession of a naval officer just returned from Egypt. He procured it at a cafe chantant in Alexandria. It was printed in several languages, and this is the English part: "Every of the consummations of the coldness, one plastre besides. Every of the claim to be addressed directly of the direction. During of the repetitions the price of consummations to be the same that in every the other's coffee."

With the aid of the parallel passages in other languages the meaning is found as follows: "All food drinks one plastre extra. All complaints should be made at the office. Notwithstanding the performance the prices will be the same as those of other cafes."

MYSTERIOUS CIRCUMSTANCE.

One was pale and sallow and the other fresh and rosy. Whence the difference? She who is blushing with health uses Dr. King's New Life Pills to maintain it. By gently arousing the lazy organs they compel good digestion and head off constipation. Try them. Only 25c at Glazier & Stimson's druggists.

"What's the matter, old man? Been losing on wheat?" "No, not that, forgot to take Rocky Mountain Tea last night. Wife said I'd be sick today." 35 cents. Glazier & Stimson.

TO CURE A COLD IN ONE DAY

Take Laxative Bromo Quinine Tablets. All druggists refund the money if it fails to cure. E. W. Grove's signature is on each box. 25c.

The Bow of Orange Ribbon

A ROMANCE OF NEW YORK

By AMELIA E. BARR.

Author of "Friend Olivia," "I, Thou and the Other One," Etc.
Copyright, 1904, by Dodd, Mead and Company.

"I will give it to him again. With my own hands I will give it to him once more. Oh, Richard, my lover, my husband! Now I will hasten to see thee."

She reached London the next night, and, weary and terrified, drove at once to the small hostelry where Hyde lay.

"Katherine!" he cried, and his voice was as weak and as tearful as that of a troubled child.

"Here come I, my dear one."

"Oh, how you love me, Katherine!" She took from her bosom the St. Nicholas ribbon. "I give it to thee again. At the first time I loved thee; now, my husband, ten thousand times more I love thee. As I went through the papers, I found it."

And between their clasped hands it lay—the bit of orange ribbon that had handseled all their happiness. "It is the promise of everything I can give thee, my loved one," whispered Katherine.

"It is the luck of Richard Hyde. Dearest wife, thou hast given me my life back again."

CHAPTER XV.

Turning Westward.

It was a hot August afternoon, and Hyde sat at an open window at Hyde Manor. He was pale and wasted from his long sickness, but there was speculation and purpose in his face, and he had evidently cast away the mental apathy of the invalid. As he sat thus, a servant entered and said a few words which made him turn with a glad, expectant manner to the open door; and, as he did so, a man of nearly sixty years of age passed through it—a handsome, lordly looking man, who had that striking personal resemblance to Hyde which affectionate brothers often have to one another.

"Falth, William, you are welcome home! How delighted I am to see you!"

"Tis twelve years since we met, Dick. And Hyde Manor is a miracle. I expected to find it mouldy and mossy. On the contrary it is a place of perfect beauty."

"And it is all my Katherine's doing. She is my angel. I am unworthy of her goodness and beauty."

"Why, then, Dick, I may as well tell you that I have also found a treasure past belief of the same kind. In fact, Dick, I am married, and have two sons."

There was a moment's profound silence, and an inexplicable shadow passed rapidly over Hyde's face; but it was fleeting as a thought, and ere the pause became strained and painful, he turned to his brother and said, "I am glad, William. With all my heart, I am glad."

"I was married very quietly, and have been in Italy ever since. I was told that you had left the army."

"That is exactly true. When I heard that Lord Percy's regiment was designed for America, and against the Americans, I put it out of the king's power to send me on such a business."

"Indeed, I think the Americans have been ill-used, and I find the town in a great commotion upon the matter. The people of New York have burned effigies of Lord North and Gov. Hutchinson, and the new troops were no sooner landed than five hundred of them deserted in a body."

Hyde's white face was crimson with excitement, and his eyes glowed like stars as he listened. "That was like New York; and, faith, if I had been there, I would have helped them!"

"Why not go there? I owe you much for the hope, of which my happiness has robbed you. I will take Hyde Manor at its highest price; I will add to it fifty thousand pounds indemnity for the loss of the succession. You may buy land enough for a duchy there, and found in the New World a new line of the old family. Dick, my dear brother, out of real love and honor, I speak these words."

"Indeed, William, I am very sensible of your kindness, and I will consider well your proposition. I think, indeed, that my Katherine will be in a transport of delight to return to her native land."

Almost with the words she entered, clothed in a white Indian muslin, with carnations at her breast. The earl bowed low, and then kissed her cheeks and led her to a chair, which he placed between Hyde and himself.

Katherine was predisposed to emigration, but yet she dearly loved the home she had made so beautiful. During Hyde's convalescence, also, other plans had become very hopeful and pleasant, and they could not be cast aside without some reluctance.

It was on a cold, stormy afternoon in February, when the fens were white with snow. Hyde sat by the big wood fire, re-reading a letter from Joris Van Heemskirk, which also inclosed a copy of Josiah Quincy's speech on the Boston Port Bill. Katherine had a piece of worsted work in her hands.

It was at this moment Leticia came in with a bundle of newspapers. "They are brought by Sir Thomas Swaffham's man, sir, with Sir Thomas' compliments; there being news he thinks you would like to read, sir."

Hyde opened the papers with eager curiosity and read the news from America.

"I must draw my sword again,"

Katherine, he said, as his hand impulsively went to his left side. "I thought I had done with it forever; but, by St. George, I'll draw it in this quarrel!"

"The American quarrel, Richard?"

"No other could so move me. Every good man and true wishes them well. Are you willing?"

"Only to be with you only to please you, Richard. I have no other happiness."

"Then it is settled. The earl buys Hyde as it stands; we have nothing except our personal affections to pack. Write to-night to your father. Tell him that we are coming in two weeks to cast our lot with America."

When Joris Van Heemskirk received this letter he was very much excited by its contents.

He was sitting in the calm evening, with unloosened buckles, in a cloud of fragrant tobacco, talking of these things. Then he put on his hat and walked down his garden. He was standing on the river bank, and the meadows over it were green and fair to see, and the fresh wind blew into his soul a thought of its own untrammelled liberty. He looked up and down the river, and lifted his face to the clear sky, and said aloud, "Beautiful land! To be thy children we should not deserve, if one inch of thy soil we yielded to a tyrant. Truly a viceroyalty to me and to mine thou hast been. Truly do I love thee."

Then, with his mind made up, he went into the house.

In a few minutes Elder Semple came in. He looked exceedingly worried, and, although Joris and he avoided politics by a kind of tacit agreement, he could not keep to kirk and commercial matters, but constantly returned to one subject—a vessel lying at Murray's wharf, which had sold her cargo of molasses and rum to the "Committee of Safety."

Joris led the elder drift from one grievance to another, and he was just in the middle of a sentence containing the opinion of Sears and Willet, when Bram's entrance arrested it. He walked straight to the side of Joris:

"Father, we have closed his majesty's custom house forever."

"Who? Who, then, Bram?"

"The Committee of Safety and the Sons of Liberty."

Semple rose to his feet, trembling with passion. "Let me tell you, then, Bram, you are a parcel of rogues and rebels; and, if I were his majesty, I'd gibbet the last one of you."

"Patience, elder. Sit down, I'll speak."

"No, councillor, I'll not sit down until I ken what kind o' men I'm sitting wi'. Oot wi' your maist secret thoughts. Wha are you for?"

"For the people and for freedom, am I," said Joris, calmly rising to his feet. "Too long have we borne injustice. Bram, my son, I am your comrade in this quarrel." He spoke with fervor, but not rapid speech, and with a firm, round voice, full of magical sympathies.

"I'll hear nae mair o' such folly. Gle me my bonnet and plaid, madam, and I'll be going. I hope the morn will bring you a measure o' common-sense." He was at the door as he spoke; but, ere he passed it, he lifted his bonnet above his head and said, "God save the king! God save his gracious majesty, George of England!"

Joris turned to his son. To shut up the king's customs was an overt act of treason. Bram, then, had fully committed himself, and, following out his own thoughts, he asked abruptly, "What will come of it, Bram?"

"War will come, and liberty—a great commonwealth, a great country."

In the meantime Semple, fuming and ejaculating, was making his way slowly home. However, before he had gone very far, he was overtaken by his son Neil, now a very staid and stately gentleman, holding under the government a high legal position in the investigation of the disputed New Hampshire grants.

He listened respectfully to his father's animadversions on the folly of the Van Heemskirks; but he was thinking mainly of the first news told him—the early return of Katherine. He was conscious that he still loved Katherine, and that he still hated Hyde. So Neil was somber and silent. His father was uncertain as to his views, and he did not want to force or hurry a decision.

Next morning, when the elder reached the store, the clerks and porters were all standing together talking. He knew quite well what topic they were discussing with such eager movements and excited speech. But they dispersed to their work at the sight of his sour, stern face, and he did not intend to open a fresh dispute by any question.

Apprentices and clerks then showed a great deal of deference to their masters, and Elder Semple demanded the full measure due to him. Something, however, in the carriage, in the faces, in the very tones of his servants' voices, offended him; and he soon discovered that various small duties had been neglected.

"Listen to me, lads," he said angrily, "I'll have nae politics mixed up wi' my exports and imports. Neither king nor Congress has aught to do wi' my business; and if there is among you ane o' them fools that ca' themselves the 'Sons o' Liberty,' I'll pay him whatever I owe him now, and he can gang to Madam Liberty for his future wage."

He was standing on the step of his high counting desk as he spoke, and he peered over the little wooden railing at the men scattered about with pens or hammers or goods in their hands. There was a moment's silence, then a middle-aged man quietly laid down the tools with which he was closing a box, and walked up to the desk. The next moment, every one in the place had followed him. Semple was amazed and angry, but he made no sign of either emotion. He counted to the most accurate fraction every one's due, and let them go with-out one word of remonstrance.

But, as soon as he was alone, he felt the full bitterness of their desertion, and he could not keep the tears out of his eyes as he looked at their empty places.

At this juncture Neil entered the store. "Here's a bonnie pass, Neil; every man has left the store. I may as well put up the shutters."

"There are other men to be hired."

"They were maistly a' auld stand-bys, auld married men that ought to have had mair sense."

"The married men are the trouble-makers; the women have hatched and nursed this rebellion. If they would only spin their webs, and mind their knitting!"

"But they willna, Neil, and they never would. If there's a pot o' rebellion brewing between the twa poles, women will be dabbling in it. They have aye been against lawfu' authority. The restraints o' paradise was tyranny to them. And they get worse and worse; it isna aye apple would do them the noo; they'd strip the tree, my lad, to its vera topmost branch!"

"You ought to know, father. I have small and sad experience with them."

"Sae, I hope you'll stand by my side. We twa can keep the house together. If we are a' right, the government will whistle by a woman's talk."

"Did you not say Katherine was coming back?"

"I did that. See there, again, Hyde has dropped his uniform, and sold a' that he has, and is coming to fight in a quarrel that's nae o' his. Heard you ever such foolishness? But it is Katherine's doing; there's little doot o' that."

"He's turned rebel, then?"

"Ay has he. That's what women do. Politics and rebellion is the same thing to them."

"Well, father, I shall not turn rebel."

"Oh, Neil, you take a load off my heart by those words!"

"I have nothing against the king, and I could not be Hyde's comrade."

(To be continued.)

GESTURES IN GENERAL USE.

Motions That Are Common to All Nations of the Earth.

Certain gestures are absolutely identified with certain feelings. To shake one's fist is to threaten; to hold up one's finger is to warn. To indicate thought we place the tips of the fingers on the forehead; to show concentrated attention we apply the whole hand. To rub the hands is everywhere a sign of joy, and to clap them a sign of enthusiasm. It would be easy to multiply examples. Affirmation, negation, repulsion are all indicated by motions that every one understands.

It is the same, in quite as great a degree, with nationalities, in spite of the original diversity of the races that make them up. The mimetic character results at once from race, from history and from climate.

The gesture of the Englishman is fierce and harsh; he speaks briefly, brusquely; he is cold, positive, forceful. His salutation is cold and accented. But his hands are loyal. The gesture of Germany is heavy, good humored and always ungraceful. Many of the Slav people are unwilling to look one in the face, and they have a false gesture.

The Spaniard and the Portuguese, although dwelling in a Southern land, gesticulate little; their language is rhythmic, slow, solemn; they are grave, their salutation is a little theatrical.

The Italian is lively, mobile, intelligent, gay; his language is harmonious, sonorous, warm and luminous, like his country's sky. The salutation of the Italian is quick and full of feeling, his gestures colored and exaggerated.

Wen the Old Man.

"Sir," he said to her father, "this is a practical world. The spirit of commercialism cannot be throttled by the tender bonds of sentiment. Perhaps you have noticed this?"

"I cannot say I have," replied the stern parent "but that needn't detain you."

"Of course not," said the youth with an affable smile. "What I was about to say is that while I am sitting up courting your daughter I feel that it would be no more than fair to offer to pay for the gas I assist in consuming."

"Good," said the old man. "And how about the coal? Do you expect me to throw that in?"

"Certainly not," cried the youth. "I'll gladly throw in the coal. Bless you, I worked my way through college tending a furnace."

And the old man smiled approvingly.

The real difference between men is energy. A strong will, a settled purpose, an invincible determination, can accomplish almost anything; and in this lies the distinction between great men and little men.—Fuller

Beautiful Mosques of Constantinople

Stately Grandeur of the Houses of Worship Where Those Faithful to the Teachings of Mahomet Gather to Pray—Peculiar Antics of the Howling Dervishes.

(Special Correspondence.)

HE first night in Constantinople must of necessity be a more or less sleepless one, as it takes that time at least to get accustomed to the noise of the myriad dogs which claim the city at night as their own. A tremendous barking and shrieking and growling waked us from our first and very early slumber, and, rushing to the winrocked back and forth with his eyes closed.

Then we discovered that here and there in the nooks and corners of the big building were numbers of other students; in the holy of holies under the Mecca gallery, concealed by a lacey stone screen, in the cloisters, and under the eaves of old Mecca, all intoning at the top of their voices while they rocked. I had been told once by a Persian that he could never remember anything that he had down to see what could be the matter, we found thirty or forty of the most battered veteran dogs howling with rage as a strange dog, most beautifully beribboned and becurled and accompanied by his master passed up the street for an airing.

The Valideh mosque at the Pera end of the bridge was our first admiration, and will always remain our first, for its minarets are more slender and its carved marble screens more lace-like than any we saw later on. Like the temple of a dream it seemed until Leon tore us from our happy musings by pointing to the ceiling, all carved and inscribed with verses from the koran, and said in businesslike tones: "Regard that canopy, Mesdames; it is very agreeable, isn't it?" After that the dream faded and we went out into the brilliant sunshine, past the devout Turks who were washing hands, feet, and lips at the row of small stone tanks beside the mosque, past the attractive-looking fruit stalls filled with deliciously sweet, white grapes; along the city wall, and finally after a long walk, but one of immense interest to us, to the mosque of St. Sofia.

The exterior satisfied us entirely with its flat domes and massive appearance, but as, in spite of much reading on the subject, we had pictured the interior as being somewhat like St. Mark's at Venice, we were disappointed with its cathedral-like appearance and the immensity of it.

As we sat there we heard lovely chords of music, which seemed to float around us and echo off up into the dome. We could see no human being except a Mohammedan in a green turban kneeling in the gallery reserved for those who had made the pilgrimage to Mecca, and silently praying, with his eyes toward the sacred city. On inquiring from Leon the origin of learned at school or in his more advanced studies unless he rocked himself back and forth and closed his eyes, and now I understand it perfectly.

From St. Sofia we were taken to the mosque of Ahmed, the only existing mosque with six minarets. Before it was built the one at Mecca had six, and none other but the Sultan, its builder, refused to build it unless he could have six minarets too, so a seventh had to be added to the mosque at Mecca.

We were taken to the beautiful Porcelain mosque, all tiled throughout with the most enchanting blue tiles, to the museum to see the wonderful tomb of Alexander, indelibly beautiful. In spite of all we had read about the howling dervishes, as we looked down from the very rickety little gallery on the row of men clad in white, who, standing close against the wall, intoned something which sounded like "Allahua il Allah a-a," first softly, then more and more strongly, at the end of each intoning bending so that with the very devout we were startled and interested beyond words. Some of them seemed to do it all for effect, glancing at us frequently and about the room, but two or three were undoubtedly sincere, and an ascetic-looking young man over 6 feet in height kept it up until he fell over in a faint, and when revived started in again, the tears running down his face. He kept his eyes fixed looking straight ahead of him, always touched his knees with his forehead, and his earnest, deep notes, "Allah a-a il Allah a-a-a" are hard to forget.

Next day, having paid our not exorbitant bill, and been nassalled in the most disagreeable manner by every servant, man and woman, for a tip, we forced our enraged way through the crowd and sped off to the station where we boarded the Orient Express for Paris, and began an eleven days' journey.

The really lovely confusion of sounds we were led silently to the foot of one of the high pulpits and found there a theological student seated cross-legged on the cold floor and repeating parts of the Koran aloud, while he learned at school or in his more advanced studies unless he rocked himself back and forth and closed his eyes, and now I understand it perfectly.

VELOCITY OF THE EARTH.

Instruments Enable Scientists to Measure It With Exactitude.

In order to calculate the linear velocity of the earth in its orbit we must first know its distance from the sun. If we can measure the earth's velocity the sun's distance can be computed. If the velocity can be determined with great accuracy the resulting value of the sun's distance is proportionately precise.

The methods of spectroscopy have been so far improved that we are within measurable distance of determining the solar parallax by spectroscopic observations.

If any star near the zodiac be observed with the spectroscope at the two seasons when its longitude differs from that of the sun by ninety degrees, we can deduce not only the velocity of the star along the line joining star and earth, but also the mean velocity of the earth in its orbit.

Spectroscopic observations of stellar velocity in the line of sight are now so good that the value of the solar distance which may be had on the principle described is at least of the same order of accuracy as values derived from older methods.—New York Sun.

HOW SNAKES SNARE BIRDS.

Peculiar Fascination Exercised by Swinging Movement.

The cobra of the cape fascinates birds by coiling itself on a branch, erecting its head and swinging to and fro. "Sunderdowner" states that the snake will go on "fascinating" and keeping the bird twittering and unable to leave the tree in which it is "for hours," and that if the bird is driven away it comes back. This may be a "yarn." But from the curious fascination which non-terrifying objects such as "lark glitters," have for some birds, and their apparent inability to resist hovering round the lure the far greater mesmerizing power of the serpent may be conjectured.

Movement, more or less regular, is always part of the means of fascination employed by the snakes. Their fondness for music of any kind is not extended to the sound of the human voice singing, which snakes clearly do not appreciate at all. They only care for "instrumental music," which includes the concertina, tom tom and Jew's-harp. But from experiments made in this country it was evident that they use the bagpipes best.—Spectator.

His Awful Blunder.

The careless man perpetrated the most awful blunder imaginable last week. It is really not a subject for laughter, and yet some of the man's friends had to laugh when he discovered his mistake and they saw his rueful face. You see, the man was going to send a friend a bunch of roses as a Christmas greeting, and at the same time he ordered a wreath sent to the house of an acquaintance whose sister had died the night before.

The man is a sympathetic soul, and he was plunged in woe when he went to the florist's to leave his order because of this friend's distress, so just how he did it will never be known, but the card intended for the bunch of roses was placed on the wreath, and that meant for the wreath was placed on the roses, and the former went to the house of the dead marked "A Merry Christmas," and the latter went to the debutante marked "With deepest sympathy," a mix-up that was ridiculous, however little the subject calls for laughter, now, wasn't it?—Baltimore News.

An Important Discovery.

Granton, Okla., Feb. 9th.—After ten years E. H. Gosney of Granton has at last found a cure for Kidney Trouble. Mr. Gosney suffered very severely with Kidney Complaint and some ten years ago made up his mind to find a cure if one was to be had.

He has tried and tried and experimented with every kidney medicine he could hear of. Although he was always disappointed he kept on trying till at last his perseverance was rewarded and he found a complete cure.

He is a well man to-day and explains it as follows:

"Everything failed to cure me and I was growing worse and worse till I tried a new remedy called Dodd's Kidney Pills and I had not taken many of them before I knew that I had at last found the right thing. I am entirely cured and I cannot say too much for Dodd's Kidney Pills."

Greatly-Petted Fire Horses. The horses of the New York fire department receive more petting probably than any other horses in the world. In nearly every engine house each of the stalls bears the name of the horse occupant occupying it. Large black letters on aluminum marking the quarters of "Tom," "Harry," "Dick," or "Major," as the case may be. The firemen are proud of their dumb friends, and not only do everything possible to make them comfortable when they are off duty, but take pleasure in providing them with little luxuries and tidbits.

NOT THAT BRAND OF APPLE

Less Luscious Article Than That Which Tempted Eve.

As a Christmas gift to the Paris branch of the J. P. Morgan Co., the head of the great banking house sent ten barrels of the finest American apples. A glimpse of these apples prompted the remark "that those Frenchmen will feel now as though they never knew how a real apple tastes."

In selecting these luscious gifts Mr. Morgan experienced all the irritation of a Christmas shopper. Useless to say that he wanted the best. Samples were shown the great financier of one particular apple which the dealer asserted was the best on the market. The tenacity with which the dealer clung to this particular quality of apple annoyed Mr. Morgan, and he said sharply:

"If Eve had tempted Adam with this apple that couple would still be in Paradise."

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease, and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease, and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials. F. J. CHENEY & CO., Toledo, Ohio. Sold by Druggists, 75c. Hall's Family Pills are the best.

SISTERS OF CHARITY

RELY ON PERU-NA TO FIGHT
CATARRH, COUGHS, COLDS AND GRIP.

SISTER BEATRIX.

A letter recently received by Dr. Hartman from Sister Beatrix, 410 W. 30th street, New York, reads as follows:

Dr. S. B. Hartman, Columbus, Ohio:
Dear Sir:—"I cannot say too much in praise of Peru-na. Eight bottles of it cured me of catarrh of the lungs of four years standing, and I would not have been without it for anything. It helped several Sisters of Coughs and colds and I have yet to find one case of catarrh that it does not cure."

SISTER BEATRIX.

Interesting Letters from Catholic Institution.

In every country of the civilized world the Sisters of Charity are known. Not only do they minister to the spiritual and intellectual needs of the charges committed to their care, but they also minister to their bodily needs. With so many children to take care of and to protect from climate and disease, these wise and prudent sisters have found Peru-na a never-failing safeguard.

Dr. Hartman receives many letters from Catholic Sisters from all over the United States. A recommendation recently received from a Catholic institution in Detroit, Mich., reads as follows:

Dr. S. B. Hartman, Columbus, Ohio:
Dear Sir:—"The young girl who used the Peru-na was suffering from laryngitis, and loss of voice. The result of the treatment was most satisfactory. She found great relief, and after further use of the medicine we hope to be able to say she is entirely cured."

This young girl was under the care of the Sisters of Charity and used Peru-na for catarrh of the throat, with good results as the above letter testifies.

From a Catholic Institution in Central Ohio comes the following recommendation from the Sister Superior.

If you do not derive prompt and satisfactory results from the use of Peru-na, write at once to Dr. Hartman, giving a full statement of your case, and he will be pleased to give you his valuable advice gratis.

Address Dr. Hartman, President of The Hartman Sanatorium, Columbus, Ohio.

Constipation Makes Bad Blood.

MULL'S GRAPE TONIC CURES CONSTIPATION

Constipation is the rotting and decaying of undigested food in the alimentary canal. Disease germs arise from this festering mass, which find their way into the blood. The blood becomes impure and shortly the entire system gives way to the unhealthy condition.

You cannot cure a case like this by taking pills or other common cathartics. A laxative will not do. A blood medicine is ineffective. Mull's Grape Tonic is a gentle and mild laxative in addition to being a blood-making and strength-giving tonic which immediately builds up the wasted body and makes rich, red blood that carries its health-giving strength to every tissue at every heart beat.

Mull's Grape Tonic is made of pure crushed fruit juices and is sold under a positive guarantee.

Doctors prescribe it. All druggists sell it at 50 cents a bottle. Send for it to Lightning Medicine Co., Rock, Island, Ill., to cover postage on large sample bottle.

Read the following notice in a local paper: "Died, Jan. 19, 1903, Jack, a dog, and a friend of sterling qualities, in his second year, after a lingering illness. He is mourned by his owner, William T. Harris, and a host of friends."

As further evidence of his grief Mr. Harris hung a piece of crepe on his door and buried the brute in a coffin. Some of his neighbors wonder what the bereaved citizen would do in the event of his wife's death.

Absent-Minded Beggar.

He was a very seedy and pale, but withal a droll, specimen of the hard-up citizen. The north wind whistled through his meager attire as he stopped an elderly gentleman and asked for aid. "What do you do for a living?" asked the benevolent old man. The beggar smiled grimly and held up a tattered coat sleeve. "I've been collecting rents for some time past," he said lugubriously. The elderly man saw the point and his eye twinkled as he gave the "rent" collector a shilling.

THE BOY FOUND OUT.

Knowledge Gained at First Hand Is Not Easily Forgotten.

He was a boy of 12 who was at the Zoo with his father to see the sights, and as they stood before the cage occupied by the chimpanzee the boy inquired:

"Father, do them things like boys?"

"Mebbe they do, my son," replied the father; "but I guess I wouldn't git too near."

"But that one wants to shake hands."

"Yes, he 'pears to; but I wouldn't shake."

"Don't you think he wants to be friends?"

"Mebbe so, but you kin jest wink at him to let him know how you feel."

That didn't exactly satisfy the boy, however. The "chim" insisted on reaching out his black paw for a friendly grip, and while the father's back was turned the lad extended his hand.

Next instant his howls caused a rush of the crowd to see what was the matter, and as he held up a finger which was bitten to the bone he danced about, the father produced a handkerchief to tie it up and explained to the people:

"He's my son Claudius, and he's a great hand to find out things. He's just found out that them critters hev teeth, and if he ever gits over this he won't never want to shake hands with no more monkeys."—Boston Globe.

WHY HE ORDERED THE CLOTHES

Young Man's Unanswerable Reply to Indignant Tailor.

A tailor much patronized by the younger men-about-town had something new put to him in such a way the other day that he has not yet recovered from the shock. He was dunning a customer, who, while managing to keep up an outward appearance of prosperity, was in mighty hard circumstances. The young man said frankly that he had no money, didn't know when he would have any and had no idea when he could pay the bill.

"Well," said the tailor hotly, "if you didn't intend to pay for your clothing why did you get it?"

"Why," responded the young man in an explosion of indignant wrath, "you don't suppose I can go naked, do you?"

Fish Cake for a Cat.

It was in a city restaurant at a crowded luncheon hour. A fussy little old lady seated herself at a table where three younger women were eating potato salad, chocolate eclairs, Sultana roll and chocolate. She ordered fish cakes. When the order was brought she took from her fish-net bag a small pasteboard box. In this she placed one of the fish cakes, then wrapped it daintily in white paper, snapped a rubber band around it, and back it went into the net bag. Looking up she met the somewhat inquiring glance of the waitress. "It's for a cat I know," she said, patting the box. "I promised her a fish cake to-day."

Dr. Henry Van Dyke a Wit.

The editor of an illustrated weekly wrote to Dr. Henry Van Dyke, professor of English literature in Princeton university, asking him to write a prayer for publication. The professor complied with the request and in a day or two received a handsome check, which he returned with a good-natured note saying he could not take money for saying his prayers. The writer thereupon sent the same amount to a charitable institution. Dr. Van Dyke is the man who accepted the pastorate of the Brick Presbyterian church in New York on condition that his services should be "rendered without salary as a token of esteem and love."

The Governor's Reply.

When Curtin was Governor of Pennsylvania he had a fight with the Senate. At the close of the session the usual committee was appointed to wait on the Governor and inform him of the impending adjournment. It happened that the chairman of that committee had an impediment in his speech. This is the verbal report he made on returning from the executive mansion: "Mr. President, your c-c-committee appointed to wait on the G-G-Governor and inform him of the impending end of this s-s-session has performed that office and the G-G-Governor said he didn't care a d-d-durn."

Showed Affection for a Dog.

William T. Harris of Newark, N. J., thought so much of his fox terrier that the animal passed away he inserted the following notice in a local paper: "Died, Jan. 19, 1903, Jack, a dog, and a friend of sterling qualities, in his second year, after a lingering illness. He is mourned by his owner, William T. Harris, and a host of friends."

As further evidence of his grief Mr. Harris hung a piece of crepe on his door and buried the brute in a coffin. Some of his neighbors wonder what the bereaved citizen would do in the event of his wife's death.

THE CHELSEA STANDARD

An independent local newspaper published every Thursday afternoon from its office in the basement of the Turnbull & Wilkinson block, Chelsea, Mich.

BY O. T. HOOVER.

Terms—$1.00 per year; 5 months, 50 cents; 3 months, 25 cents.

Advertising rates reasonable and made known on application.

Entered at the postoffice at Chelsea, Mich., as second-class matter.

ADDITIONAL LOCAL

It is said that statistics prove that in every 1,000 bachelors there are 38 criminals, while in every 1,000 married men the criminals, number 18. If this is so it surely proves that the present day members of the sex labeled coy and hard to please have at least an immense capability for keeping men out of mischief, sufficient to outbalance, perhaps, even the unkind reputation handed down the ages by Mother Eve.—Ex.

The market today is as follows: Wheat red or white 68 cents; rye 49 cents; oats 25 cents; corn 25 cents; barley 90 to $1.00 per hundred; beans $1.50 to $2.00 for crop of 1901, and for crop of 1902 $1.80 to $2.00 for 60 pounds; clover seed June $6.25; potatoes 35 cents; beef cattle 2 1/2 to 3 1/2 cents; veal calves 5 to 6 cents; live hogs $5.75; sheep 2 1/2 to 3 cents; lambs 4 to 5 cents; chickens 9 cents; fowls 9 cents; eggs 16 cents; butter 16 cents.

Anna and Rosa Lucht, Ezra Heininger have not misspelled a word in written spelling during the month. Genevieve Young, teacher.

This morning David Porter disposed of his cigar business in Jackson to Wm. Freer of this city, a former resident of Chelsea. While Mr. Freer has resided in Jackson only at odd intervals, being a theatrical man in the past, still he became well known and has many Jackson friends. Mr. Freer is also a musician in Boos Independent Battalion (military band). While in the theatrical world Mr. Freer was engaged as musical director for Al. G. Field's minstrels and after leaving that company associated with the Quilolan & Wall's minstrel company and the Murray & Mack organization.—Jackson Press.

PROFIT

The matter of feed is of tremendous importance to the farmer. Wrong feeding is loss. Right feeding is profit.

The up-to-date farmer knows what to feed his cows to get the most milk, his pigs to get the most pork, his hens to get the most eggs. Science.

But how about the children? Are they fed according to science, a bone food if bones are soft and undeveloped, a flesh and muscle food if they are thin and weak and a blood food if there is anemia?

Scott's Emulsion is a mixed food; the Cod Liver Oil in it makes flesh, blood and muscle, the Lime and Soda make bone and brain. It is the standard scientific food for delicate children.

Send for free sample.

Be sure that this picture is the form of a label is on the wrapper of every bottle of Emulsion you buy.

HARD ON THE CONDUCTORS.

When the Times Are Good, Passengers on Street Cars Hand Them Lots of Bills.

The only persons in town who have a grudge against prosperity are street car conductors. Their aversion to prosperous conditions is explained in this wise: Good times bring bills, bills mean the handling of much change, and change means woes innumerable on the part of the harassed conductors, says the New York Times.

"I can't remember the time when we fellows have been called upon to change as many bills as we have handled in the past six months," said one of these public servants one day last week. "Of course there are no hard-and-fast rules to go by in any business, but in general you can tell a man's financial condition by the size of the coin with which he habitually pays car fare. Reckoning from that standpoint, the times that are hard on the general public are clever for the conductor. All he has to do then is to go around and gather in the five-cent pieces, and as a consequence our mental condition is such that we appear really angelic. But just let a wave of prosperity strike the country and the passengers take a fiendish delight in pestering us with one and two-dollar bills. Two-dollar bills are the favorite street car currency these days, and to meet all the demands made upon my pocket I have to start out from the barns with about one-third my own weight in small change."

WHEN PRETTY FEET SUFFER.

Those Who Have to Stand All Day—Fare Worse Than Those Who Can Walk About.

It is a pity that certain employments deprive many women of their inalienable right to pretty feet. New York doctors protest that they do not find the situation among shop girls quite so deplorable here as it is reported by a St. Louis specialist, but they admit that standing for hours at a stretch certainly does have a tendency to produce flatfootedness, states an exchange of that city.

"By this I do not mean that you will not find hundreds of pairs of pretty feet among shop employees," explained one doctor. "Some of the prettiest feet in New York are this moment hiding their charms behind the counters of our big stores, but some of the ugliest ones are concealing their deformities in the same place."

"Most people who are on their feet all day are bound to have trouble over the shape and size of their extremities. Those who stand far worse than those who walk about, for the movement and circulation tend to prevent the fatness which so many clerks complain of. For that reason, the waitress, for example, will find that her feet retain more of their natural virtues and acquire fewer vices than the shop girl's."

Stores That Never See Daylight.
Down in many of the great coal mines of Pennsylvania are telephones, tool repairing establishments, blacksmiths' shops and various other institutions that the surface worker would never think of as connected with caverns 500 or more feet away from daylight. A moving picture show portraying work in the mines was given in the city last week. One of the views contained a miner holding the receiver of a 'phone in a subterranean pay station. An attempt is made in the large mines to provide everything necessary to prevent employees from going to the surface during working hours.

NOTICE.
If the party who took $2.52 off my counter Monday morning will return to same through the postoffice no questions will be asked, otherwise they will be prosecuted to the full extent of the law.

One Minute Cough Cure gives relief in one minute, because it kills the microbe which tickles the mucous membrane, causing the cough and at the same time clears the phlegm, draws out the inflammation and heals and soothes the affected parts. One Minute Cough Cure strengthens the lungs, wards off pneumonia and is harmless and never failing cure in all curable cases of coughs, colds and croup. One Minute Cough Cure is pleasant to take, harmless and good alike for young and old. Glazier & Stimson.

"What's the matter, old man? Been losing on wheat?" "No, not that, forgo to take Rocky Mountain Tea last night. Wife said I'd be sick today." 35 cents. Glazier & Stimson.

THE EASY PILL.

DeWitt's Little Early Risers do not gripe nor weaken the system. They cure biliousness, jaundice, constipation and inactive livers, by arousing the secretions moving the bowels gently yet effectually and giving such tone and strength to the glands of the stomach, liver and bowels that the cause of the trouble is removed entirely. These famous little pills exert a tonic effect upon the organs involved, and if their use is continued for a few days there will be no return of the trouble. Glazier & Stimson.

Meerrimen's All-Night Workers makes morning movements easy.

A WEAK STOMACH

causes a weak body and invites disease. Kodol Dyspepsia Cure cures and strengthens the stomach and wards off and overcomes disease. J. B. Taylor, a prominent merchant of Christman, Tex., says: "I could not eat because of a weak stomach. I lost all strength and run down in weight. All that money could do was done, but all hope of recovery vanished. Hearing of some wonderful cures effected by use of Kodol, I concluded to try it. The first bottle benefited me and after taking four bottles I am fully restored to my usual strength, weight and health." Glazier & Stimson.

NEARLY FORGOT HIS LIE

A runaway almost ended fatally, started a horrible ulcer on the leg of J. B. Orner, Franklin Grove, Ill. For four years it defied all doctors and all remedies. But Bucklen's Arnica Salve had no trouble to cure him. Equally good for burns, bruises, skin eruptions and piles. 25c at Glazier & Stimson's drug store.

"After my first baby was born I did not seem to regain my strength although the doctor gave me a tonic which he considered very superior, but instead of getting better I grew weaker every day. My husband insisted that I take Wine of Cardui for a week and see what it would do for me. I did take the medicine and was very grateful to find my strength and health slowly returning. In two weeks I was out of bed and in a month I was able to take up my usual duties. I am very enthusiastic in its praise."

Wine of Cardui reinforces the organs of generation for the ordeal of pregnancy and childbirth. It prevents miscarriage. No woman who takes Wine of Cardui need fear the coming of her child. If Mrs. Unrath had taken Wine of Cardui before her baby came she would not have been weakened as she was. Her rapid recovery should commend this great remedy to every expectant mother. Wine of Cardui regulates the menstrual flow.

The program will consist of music, speaking, dialogues, and a farce which will be given at last, entitled "More blunders than one." All for ten cents. Nora Reade, teacher.

Fred Heydlauff a young man employed by Mrs. C. Kaimbach on her farm in Sylvan, last evening at Wolff's crossing met with a painful accident. He stepped out in the center of the track to signal an east bound car on the Hawks-Angus line, and after the motorman had sounded the gong he in some manner fell and before he could regain his feet the car struck him and threw him against the fence by the side of the track. He received a number of bad bruises but none of them are of a serious nature. He was brought to this place for treatment and this morning he was removed to his home.

At the meeting of the board of managers of the Washtenaw County Fair Association, held in Ann Arbor last Thursday it was decided to hold the fair this year October 6, 7, 8 and 9th. And at the same meeting it was decided that any circus wanting to use the grounds must pay $150 and plank the race track for the privilege. They also lease the ground to the Ann Arbor Driving Association for meetings but the Driving club will not be allowed to have a meeting a week before or after the fair. At this meeting the managers voted not to allow liquors of any kind to be sold on the grounds this year.

Gold was recently found in Indiana, and the State Geologist predicts that some day the State will become a profitable gold placer field.

The decision of the Supreme Court of the United States that the payment of an insurance policy on the life of a murderer is against the general welfare and contrary to public policy is final. It must surely be sound constitutional law. Moreover, it is equitable reason and common sense as well.

The number of pensioners on the roll at the close of the last fiscal year was 999,446, an increase of 1711 over the preceding year, and the largest number ever carried. There are 339,436 claims pending, more than one-third of which are original. The cost of pensions for the year was $138,488,500.

Venezuela's prisons seem modeled on the Black Hole of Calcutta, according to the description of Captain Davidson, who says that more than a score of persons were crowded into a room sixteen feet square, with nothing to sit on. This would be bad treatment for the worst type of local scoundrel, but when applied to innocent victims of politics and revolution nothing in Dahomey or any province of Jumbo Land was ever more abominable.

Arizona engineers regard the Grand Canyon of the Colorado as affording one of the greatest fields in existence for the development of electricity from water power. In addition to the immense power of the Colorado itself, large stores of energy are available in the smaller streams that leap into the vast chasm. The plan by which the power of the main stream will, it is now thought, eventually be utilized is that of "picking up" the fall of the river by means of tunnels. At a point about seventy miles north of Williams it is said that a fall of five thousand feet can be found in a distance but little exceeding a mile.

The New York Times, in summing up the achievements of 1902, says that in the theories of science, Dr. Loeb's speculations concerning the nature and behavior of nerve force will probably hold the first place in interest; in applied science, Marconi has led the world. The gift by which Cecil Rhodes made provision for the education of American and other foreign youth at English universities has been more talked about than any other benefaction of the year. It is still talked about, for skepticism has not been wholly silenced.

That the automobile should ever have such capabilities of romance as, say, the coach and four, might have seemed doubtful. Yet it has been recently shown by Paris that the motor carriage is an almost ideal vehicle for an elopement in the grand style, and that goggled and muffled chauffeur and friends of the lover form as impressive a group as ever did the masked braves of a militant wooer in the good old times. A peculiarly Parisian touch in this abduction, or elopement (the case remains doubtful), is the fact that the hired motor cab belonged to an actress who controls a cab company, and in this matter undoubtedly acted consciously as the friend of the lovers. All of which goes to prove that romance follows hard after mechanical invention, as the New York Post, and that the machinery of life changes, but not human nature.

How sedulously the word "strenuous" is overworked nowadays! A man is no longer "energetic," he is "strenuous." The laborer digs ditches "strenuously," the orator makes his point "strenuously." The crying of the baby, the games of older children, the whirl of society, the activities of trade and business—all are described by taking lazy refuge in this one word. Perhaps the eagerness with which the word has been seized upon is some evidence that it is apt. If so, there is timeliness in the following paragraph from Health Culture: "Whatever may be his convictions as to the right and wrong of the strenuous life, the man who is living it usually realizes that, in order to 'stand the pace,' he needs health and strength. Sooner or later, in every case, the work, worry, and responsibility result in injury to the health. The number of men who are working on the verge of mental and physical collapse is enough to startle the observer. In business and professional life to-day, neurasthenia, or nervous prostration, is everywhere."

SOLVES PROBLEM OF FORESTS.

Sparta Fruit Grower Plants Hundreds of Chestnut Trees.

Elmer E. Amidon, a fruit grower near Sparta, is developing a new industry and believes he has solved the forestry problem for the northern Michigan sand barrens. He has set on his farm several hundred chestnut trees which are growing rapidly and have already begun to bear. He set the trees twenty feet apart and cultivates between them. He expects to set more in the spring, and in twenty years will have a valuable forest, besides the profits from the nuts in the meantime.

WOMAN IS GIVEN PRISON TERM

Iron Mountain Conspirator Sentenced to Eighteen Months in Marquette.

Charles Vroman of Iron Mountain was convicted of conspiracy to defraud the firm of Raber & Watson of Menominee and sentenced to eighteen months' imprisonment at Marquette. Charles Sjoquist, his partner in the conspiracy, turned state's evidence and was fined $500, to be paid to Menominee county before the next term of the Circuit court or he must serve six months in the county jail. He is still under $1,200 bonds.

To Protect Game.

Traverse City sportsmen have started a movement the object of which is to secure better protection for game in that section. At present there is a game warden for each county, but the pay is so small that no man will give enough of his time to the work to make it effective. The idea now advanced is for Grand Traverse, Leelanau and Benzie counties to go snooks in paying a good salary to one man who will look after the enforcement of the law in all three counties.

About Three Rivers.

Three Rivers has free mail delivery electric lights, water works and paved streets, and flatters herself that she is an up-to-date city, yet the stores keep open nights. To the credit of the merchants, however, let it be said that a movement is now on foot, and promises to be successful, to close the doors of all business places except drug stores at 6 o'clock every evening except Saturday.

Temple for Corunna Masons.

The Masons' lodge home at Corunna was destroyed a month ago by fire. Preparations have been begun to erect a new temple. It will be a three-story building in connection with the First National bank to cost about $20,000.

Chance for Canning Factory.

If the people of Howell want a canning factory located in their village and will subscribe about $10,000 of the stock, the institution will be established in time for the coming summer's campaign.

Elks' Temple.

The Kalamazoo lodge of Elks is planning to erect a fine temple to accommodate its rapidly increasing membership. The building will cost $30,000 and work will be begun in the spring.

Editorial Meeting.

The fourth annual meeting of the Lake Superior Press Association, which includes all the editors north of the Straits of Mackinaw, is scheduled for Feb. 21 at Marquette.

Lawyers Are Thankful.

To get out of paying a fine of $25 for using foul language Charles W. Jewell, of Bancroft, has already spent about $500 in court and lawyers' fees, and the end is not yet.

Woman Gets Damages.

Marquette has been assessed $500 damages for injuries sustained by Mrs. Mary Collins on a defective sidewalk. The village also has to pay the costs of the litigation.

New Probate Judge.

H. L. Harris has been appointed probate judge of Luce county to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of A. Main. The appointment holds only until the next general election.

Quarantine is Raised.

John Ganzel, who is to play with the New York American league team this season, was released from quarantine at Grand Rapids after suffering from a mild attack of smallpox.

For Municipal Light.

Dexter will vote upon a municipal lighting plant proposition on March 8. The estimated cost of the plant is $8,000. It is thought that the proposition will be carried.

Planing Mill.

Scotts is to have a planing mill and box factory before long.

Caught in a Trap.

John Franks of Lake Linden, Mich., while hunting deer, was caught in a noose attached to a maple tree bent far down, and as the catch on the deer trap was released he was lifted into the air. He extricated himself with difficulty.

Child is Crushed.

Little Bessie Hocking, while at play at Iron River with several companions, was crushed and instantly killed by a large stable door falling upon her.

COAL DEALERS OUT OF STOCK

Grand Rapids Men Declare They Can Not Get Fuel Supply.

The regular coal dealers at Grand Rapids are complaining about being unable to get coal except at big prices, but the poor commissioners, who are running a sort of municipal coal yard in that city, are not having any trouble in getting all the coal they want. Also, they are selling anthracite at $9.50 a ton, delivered, though the regular dealers declared their inability to get any of that kind of coal. However, the poor commissioners haven't any big stock of soft coal that they want to dispose of at exorbitant prices, which may account for their being able to get anthracite as they want it.

Interesting Case.

A notice of appeal in a case from the Ionia Circuit court will be one of general interest throughout the state. Some time since Calvin Bird of Ionia had for a guest at his family table Mattie White, a minor. Beer was served and the young woman partook of it. Bird was arrested and on his trial was found guilty. A stay of sentence was granted by the trial judge on motion of Bird's attorney, and the question as to whether a person has a right to serve liquor to guests, regardless of their age, will be passed upon by the Supreme court.

Laper Has the Oil Fever.

Some of the business men of Lapeer have always felt that the surface indications of oil which are found in several localities here are very pronounced, and they feel that a valuable vein might be tapped with a little expense. Recently the subject has been revived owing to other discoveries along the above line and some of the business men propose to contribute $100 apiece to make a test.

Armory and Theater.

The militia company at Grand Haven is to build a new armory for its own use, and has made an offer to the local business men which may result in securing a new theater for the city to replace the one recently burned. If the business men will put up $5,000 the soldier boys will furnish the remainder of the amount needed to put up a building that will include theater and armory both.

Poor Doggy!

A Michigan young woman whose pet poodle was in need of a bath started in to give him one. Common soap and water wasn't good enough for him, and she used gasoline. The dog nearly froze to death during the operation, as it had to be performed in a room where there was no fire, on account of the danger of an explosion. Worst of all, the stuff caused all the dog's hair to fall out.

Phone Line is All Right.

Contrary to predictions the government telephone line between Grand Marais and Whitefish Point which was erected last September has stood the tests of storms, ice and snow, and up to the present time has caused little trouble. In the way of breakdowns. It is in fine working order and is used daily in the transmission of messages.

Steal Wood in Menominee.

Wholesale wood stealing in Menominee was stopped when the guilty parties were caught in the act. A large quantity of wood had been taken from yards. No one, however, had been prosecuted, although all who could be found were visited and told that if they did not stop the practice they would be arrested.

Rivals Joseph's Coat.

F. L. Harris of Newberry has a wonderful overcoat. He spent twelve years securing the beaver and other skins of which it is made, buying hundreds of beaver pelts until he got twenty that matched exactly in color. The coat cost him $490, and he has been offered much more than that for it.

Peat Fuel Company.

The development of the peat beds in Martiny township, Mecosta county, and the conversion of the stuff into marketable form is the object of the Grand Rapids Peat Fuel company which has been organized by Grand Rapids men.

Old People Marry.

At Shear, Arenac county, a man of 90 years and a woman eight years his junior appeared before a justice of the peace and induced him to tangle them up in the bonds of matrimony.

Double-Headed Pen.

A Camden man has invented a double-headed fountain pen, to write in two colors.

Big Boy.

Jesse Sawyer of Nashville is only 8 years old, but he weighs 153 pounds.

Public Market.

The establishment of a public market at which farmers can sell the products of their farms is being agitated at the Soo. To further the movement the common council has appointed a committee to act with a committee from the chamber of commerce.

County Road System.

The supervisors of Baraga county voted to submit to the people at the spring election the question of abolishing the county road system now in

MICHIGAN LEGISLATURE.

Anent the Junkets there are several points that need correcting. The dining-car is not furnished by W. C. McMillan and the meals are paid for by the members of the committee. Then, too, as many of the legislators took their wives, the stories of "boozing" are not so. These facts should be understood in justice to the committee who are out for information and not for a "high time." Tuesday the party spent several hours in and about the Marquette prison, investigating specially the making of cigars by the convicts. It seems that about 35,000 are made daily, but they are cheap grades, and the warden says, are not sold in the state. The visitors were served lunch, the prison band furnishing the musical entertainment.

The visitors devoted the afternoon to the Normal school, an institution of which the Marquette people are justly proud. The citizens gave the visitors a dinner at the Hotel Clifton in the evening, after which several speeches were made. Mayor Russell declaring that a legislative committee is always welcome in the Upper Peninsula.

There was a great time in Houghton when the legislative party reached that town. The special train took the party to Dollar Bay on Wednesday, where the copper wire mills were inspected. Afterward the party went in sleighs to the College of Mines, where over 200 students are now at work. The institution has only one equal of its kind in the country and the law-makers are correspondingly proud of the result of the state's appropriations.

Though the joint committee on fish and fisheries reached Sault Ste. Marie twenty-four hours late, they lost little time while in that bustling town. They were met by the citizens' committee and taken to the local hatchery and then to the hotel for dinner. Afterwards Mayor Stradley and Secretary Hays, of the Chamber of Commerce, addressed the legislators on the subject of an appropriation of $15,000 by the state to be used in paying the expenses of the semi-centennial celebration of the opening of the canal. From the hotel, the party was driven to inspect the power house of the Michigan Lake Superior Power Co., and following that, they were entertained at the Elks' club rooms. They left at 5:30 for Marquette.

About twenty members of the party of legislators who visited Calumet went down the shaft of the Wolverine copper mine Thursday, and had experiences which they will relate for years to come. The excursionists in general took in the Calumet & Hecla and Osceola stamp mills, at Lake Linden, and in the afternoon saw the great Calumet & Hecla power house and other features of the biggest mining plant of the Lake Superior district.

Some of the legislators went down into an iron mine and later the entire party of over 100 had dinner at the Nelson house. At 7 o'clock they took a Chicago & Northwestern train for Chicago whence they will go home and to work. The committees on the Marquette prison are not entirely satisfied as to the contracts in that institution. Cincinnati men have the cigar contract and they will be asked to go to Lansing and explain matters so as to determine whether the law is violated or not.

As the fish and game committee, who came from the Soo, joined the larger crowd which journeyed in a special train from Calumet, Representative C. J. Barnes, Mayor Felch, and other Ishpeming citizens, saw to it that the visitors were well entertained. A luncheon and a dog race was followed by an exhibition of the Norwegian game of jumping down a steep hill on "skis," which look like long, slender boards tied to the feet of the players, and on which the operators go into the air in a jump of from 50 to 100 feet.

The correspondent of the Free Press who accompanied the legislative party to the upper peninsula says: "Generally the legislators were models in deportment. With ladies, and with such a crowd, the champagne served in former years at Marquette, Houghton and Calumet, was cut out. The dinners were good but 'dry.' There was seemingly no excuse for the presence of the women, a trip of public officials on public business, accompanied by their wives is a new thing, but in this case the innovation had a good moral effect.

"The junketers learned considerable on this trip, and in spite of the 'jolly-ing' it may be expected that some lively slashing of appropriation figures will be done as a result of the tour of inspection. One of the items asked at Newberry is $78,000 for an 'administration' building. These buildings are principally residences for the superintendents and their assistants, and the items asked for rugs, pianos, table silver, etc., would make one think that these jobs are very nice."

Down to business in earnest will be the watchword of the house and senate directors. The passing of junket week with its whirl of banqueting and sight-seeing has left the fifty or more members of the house and senate who participated in a somewhat exhausted condition, but they must recover as best they can. The character of the junket was most extraordinarily unlike the traditions concerning previous affairs of the sort. It was businesslike and eminently valuable. Its effect must undoubtedly tend to intelligence in legislation as to state institutions.

The members who participated in the trip, or most of them, arrived in Detroit Sunday noon, the night train having been delayed by the heavy snow storm. The remaining coaches of the legislative train were booked onto the Sunday night regular.

News in Brief.

A new grist mill has started at Pentwater. Scotts is to have a planing mill and box factory. The village of Muir is to have another saloon.

The chances for a beet sugar factory at the Soo in 1903 have gone.

Marquette must pay $500 damages for injuries sustained by Mrs. Mary Collins on a defective sidewalk.

THE NEWS OF THE WORLD

TRUST LEGISLATION.

Rockefeller's Telegram and the President's Intention.

It can be stated by authority, that, unless anti-trust legislation, at least reasonably satisfactory to the administration, is enacted at the present session, President Roosevelt, on the 5th of March will call an extraordinary session of the fifty-eighth congress. The president himself has told members of congress of his desires and of his determination in this regard. It is understood that the announcement was direct and unqualified. The efforts made to defeat such legislation, have fully decided the president. During Saturday afternoon it leaked out that John D. Rockefeller, president of the Standard Oil Co., had sent to several senators a telegram reading something like this: "We are opposed to any anti-trust legislation. Our counsel, Mr. —, will see you. It must be stopped." Counsel came, but left very soon for New York. Scarcely had he been known his business than he was informed a bit curtly, that his presence was undesirable and he left with an intimation that he would better return to New York.

After Thirty Years.

After nearly thirty years of litigation, A. W. Brown and Miss Marion E. Brown, of Boston, have won their suit against other heirs of William White for $394,000 and a quarter interest in timber lands on Thunder Bay, Mich. The defendants were Frank W. Fletcher, regent of the University of Michigan; Allan M. Fletcher, mayor of Alpena, Mich.; and Grace Fletcher King, wife of a millionaire lumberman, the children of George N. Fletcher. A part of the property in dispute is land on which the city of Alpena now rests. Judge William L. Putnam, of the United States Circuit Court, acted as arbitrator. Proceedings will now be begun in the Circuit Court of Wayne county, Michigan, to secure payment of the above award and the redeeding of the lands in dispute. The costs in the case were over $7,000.

These Rockefeller Telegrams.

A correspondent of the Record-Herald says: With one blow straight from the shoulder, President Roosevelt knocked out the Standard Oil trust. It was the president who gave to the public the news that representatives of the oil monopoly had been in Washington trying to defeat all anti-trust legislation, and that telegrams had been received by senators signed by John D. Rockefeller, urging that the anti-trust act now pending be either emasculated or killed. This stroke of publicity on the part of the president has raised a storm in Washington and has rendered it morally certain that such legislation as the administration desires will be passed before March 4.

Death and Devastation.

News of a fearful loss of life in a destructive storm that swept over the South Sea Islands last month reached San Francisco Sunday by the steamer Mariposa direct from Tahiti. The loss of life is estimated at 1,000 persons, and it is feared this may be increased later. On Jan. 13 last a huge tidal wave, accompanied by a terrific hurricane, attacked the Society Islands and the Tuamotu group with fearful force, causing death and devastation never before equaled in a land of dreaded storms.

Young Pleads Guilty.

Wm. Hooper Young, on trial in New York for the killing of Mrs. Anna Pulitzer, pleaded guilty to murder in the second degree, and was sentenced to imprisonment for life. The sudden stoppage of Young's trial surprised almost every one, most of all the jury. Young was greatly relieved that he had been permitted to escape so easily, and when he left the court after the sentence he walked with a firm step and apparently felt like another man.

TELEGRAPHIC BRIEFS.

Woman suffrage received its death blow in the Montana senate. Thomas B. Reed and Jerome Hulet were found frozen to death in a cornfield at Mount Rose, N. J. They had been drinking.

Among the bills passed in the house Monday was one providing for the resumption of negotiations with Great Britain for the preservation of the Alaska fur seals.

Postmaster-General Payne has decreed that any letter carrier who borrows money beyond his means or at an exorbitant rate of interest shall be dismissed from the service.

A wind blowing at the rate of 60 miles an hour in New York city blew down scores of people near the Flat Iron building. A 14-year-old boy was hurled under an automobile and killed.

A bill providing for a pension of $12 per month for soldiers and sailors who served at least 90 days in the civil war, and all widows who were married to such men prior to June 27, 1890, has been introduced in the house by Rep. Heningway, of Indiana.

Rear Admiral Frank Wildes of the United States navy died on board the steamer China in San Francisco Saturday morning. He was on his way home from China on sick leave when death overtook him.

The funeral of the late Senator Henry L. Dawes, of Massachusetts, wealth, the city of Pittsfield, the county bar and various societies were represented and all places of business were closed during the services. Flags throughout the city were at half-mast all day and about the entrance to city hall were draped black and purple streamers.

Young Seems to Be Guilty.

The doom of William Hooper Young, the young Mormon grandson of Brigham Young, seems to be sealed in the case against him for the murder of Mrs. Anne Pulitzer in New York September 16 last. When the trial opened Wednesday Assistant District Attorney Studin sprang a big sensation by announcing that Charles Simpson Elling, whom Young had declared was the principal in the crime, had been located in a western prison, where he is serving a life sentence for murder. He further stated that as Elling had been in the prison for several years he could not have been in New York at the time Mrs. Pulitzer was slain. Young, when he was apprehended in Connecticut, whither he fled after the murder was discovered, made a confession to a friend who had known him for a long time, and who was sent by the police to identify him. In the confession Young declared that Mrs. Pulitzer had been taken to Young's rooms by Elling and there murdered.

A Prison Horror.

A third brutal murder in the eastern Pennsylvania penitentiary occurred Wednesday, when Cornelius Bush, after quarreling all night with James Pratt, his cellmate, about religious matters, crushed his head with a stool while he lay asleep, decapitated him with a table knife, and then slept by the dead body till breakfast time.

The overseer found Pratt's body wrapped in sheets and blankets in a corner, and his head wrapped in an old shirt on the table.

Bush confessed. He is 21 years old, sentenced to two years for assault and battery. Pratt was 37 years old, serving a sentence of 20 years for burglary. Both are negroes.

England to Say.

Three months' preferential treatment for Great Britain, Germany and Italy promises to be the compromise upon which the allies and Mr. Bowen will agree as a condition precedent to the raising of the Venezuela blockade. This is the modification proposed by Baron Speck von Sternberg of the original concession of Mr. Bowen of one month, during which time the allies exclusively should receive the 30 per cent of the customs receipts of the ports of Porto Cabello and La Guayra. If the agreement of Germany, France and Italy goes, then it will be up to England to complete the arrangement.

Addicks Quits.

J. Edward Addicks, in a statement issued Thursday afternoon, withdrew as a candidate for United States senator from Delaware in the interest of the election of two Republican senators. The ballot taken in the legislature prior to this announcement was without definite result. In his statement Addicks says that his withdrawal is on condition that the Republicans of the house and senate meet in joint caucus and elect two candidates for United States senator by majority vote.

Evidence All In.

After a sitting of exactly 51 days the anthracite coal strike commission concluded the hearing of witnesses at 5 o'clock and adjourned until the 9th, when it will begin to hear the arguments of counsel representing the several sides. The arguments will take up five and a half days, the operators having been assigned three days, and the miners the remainder of the time.

Vermont Goes 'Well.'

After 50 years of prohibition Vermont has voted to return to license for liquor selling under a local option law. At the special election the old Green Mountain state went out of the list of prohibition states, the majority for the acceptance of the recently enacted local option high license law being about 1,000.

Seeking Coal Orders.

The coal situation in Toronto has changed to such an extent that not only have dealers reduced anthracite to $8 a ton, but they actually have agents out soliciting orders. One dealer reports an unexpected consignment of 8,000 tons, which was destined for the west, but has been diverted to Toronto because of the freight congestion in the west.

CONDENSED NEWS.

The senate bill appropriating $1,500,000 for a new department of agriculture building was passed in the house Monday.

United States Consul Kaiser, at Mazatlan, Mexico, has advised the state department that the total deaths from plague to Feb. 1 is 200, and that the total number of cases to date is 290.

Former United States Senator Arthur Brown, of Salt Lake City, Utah, was committed to jail for failing to pay his wife alimony while her suit for divorce goes on, as ordered by the court.

President Henry Churchill King, of Oberlin college, announces the second anonymous gift of $50,000 from the same source since his election to the presidency of the college. The $100,000 will be a nucleus for the sum of $500,000 to be raised this year.

Because he bears a good reputation and has a large family dependent on him, President Roosevelt has set aside the four months' sentence imposed Dec. 18 on James Green, for violating an injunction of the court and intimidating miners of the Pocahontas coal mines in Virginia. The attorney-general advised the president that the infraction of the injunction was slight.

"The probabilities are that a considerable colony of Boers of a wealthy and prominent class will settle in the United States. These Boers constitute many who are dissatisfied with the prospect of British rule in South Africa and are seeking an asylum elsewhere."

Dr. Newark Held Responsible.

After hearing the evidence of Day Clerk Birney of the Phoenix house, Charlotte, Dr. Leroy F. Weaver, the physician called into the case after the dismissal of Dr. Newark, and Dr. V. J. Rickard, who was called in as counsel at the request of Dr. Weaver, the coroner's jury summoned to investigate the death of Mrs. W. H. Wirtz, of Marshall, returned a verdict after being out a couple of hours; that "Harriet May Wirtz came to her death from the result of an abortion produced by Dr. W. E. Newark." Dr. Newark, who is out on bail, was subpoenaed as a witness, but his attorneys, who were in attendance, claimed the constitutional privilege for him and the prosecution made no effort to have him sworn.

Monroe Flooded.

Ice gorged to the bottom of the River Raisin at the Lake Shore bridge in Monroe. Cellars and yards along the river are flooded. There has been no material damage yet, as all had warning of the freshet. The heavy snow of Saturday night makes a big flood imminent when the ice breaks.

A fire engine was used to pump water out of the cellar of St. Mary's convent Sunday afternoon. The Monroe Canning company was compelled to move all the canned goods stored in its factory on the river bank.

Steele's Sentence.

John W. Steele, the former Philad. man who shot and killed Lulu Knight at West Superior, Wis., Monday, has been given 25 years in state's prison on his plea of guilty of murder in the second degree. Steele followed the girl to the Wisconsin town, and when she refused to return here and live with him fired two revolver bullets into her, killing her instantly.

Growing Lawless.

Demonstrations of lawlessness consequent on the trolley strike developed in what is known as the Brooklyn district, Waterbury, Conn., Tuesday.

Just before noon a knot of foreigners gathered in the vicinity of the trolley line and stones were thrown at intervals. The crowd increased and at length four cars were attacked with a fusillade of missiles. The guardsmen charged on the crowd and dispersed it. A company of militia was hurried to the scene. A detail of six soldiers also was placed on each car.

The kaiser is looking pale and overworked, while his hair has turned quite gray. A court official says that unless the kaiser takes a rest a breakdown is inevitable.

There were two deaths from the plague in Mazatlan, Mex., Sunday. Very satisfactory results are being obtained by the use of Yersin serum. Most of the patients to whom it is given begin immediately to recover.

Near Waycross, Ga., two white men quarreled with negroes who were holding a dance at Beach's still, and locking the negroes into the building, fired into the crowd, killing two negroes and wounding six other men and three women.

Mrs. Lafayette Taylor, of Centerville, N. Y., whose husband disappeared January 25, has confessed that she accidentally shot him while he was drunk and abusing her, cut his body into small pieces, and burned it in her kitchen stove.

LINCOLN, THE WHITE HOUSE AND SPRINGFIELD MONUMENT

Thomas W. Lloyd of Montoursville, Pa., relates the following interesting reminiscences of Abraham Lincoln: "I saw Abraham Lincoln for the first time in the winter of 1863, at one of his public receptions. I was only a child, but had heard so much of Abraham Lincoln that I had a sort of vague idea that he was not a mere man, but some kind of a divinity to be worshipped from afar, and naturally I was anxious to see him. I was there permitted to accompany my mother, who was then serving as chief clerk of the House of Representatives, to one of the presidential receptions. I saw nothing of public functions at that time, and had some sort of notion that we would only be permitted to gaze upon the great man from a distance. When we came to him in the line, however, and he had greeted my mother with a few pleasant words and we were about to pass on, the President said: 'Wait one moment; I haven't shaken hands with this little man.' He took me by the hand, and, looking at me on the head, said a few kind words to me and we passed on. 'Later in the same winter I met him again at my own home in Pennsylvania. At the beginning of the war, as a mere child, I was fired with patriotic spirit and went about the streets of my native village making speeches, urging every man to enlist. I did not then know what the war meant, but I knew 'our side' was right, simply because it was 'our side,' and my appearance on the street was a signal to get me up on a store goods box to make a speech. My father had related this to Lincoln and asked permission to bring me to the White House. This was granted and one morning we drove there and were received by the President alone. As he rose from his chair to greet us I remember thinking he was the longest, tallest and most ungainly man I had ever seen. When I was presented to him he leaned down, and, taking me by the hand, said: 'So this is the little patriot. Ah, Mr. Lloyd, in these times the boy is indeed father to the man. I wish all the men in the North had his spirit.' 'As he took me on his knee and talked to me of the war, all the ugliness was forgotten, and as I looked into his face and saw the deep set, kindly eyes, the firm mouth, about which a smile hovered, and listened to his gentle voice, I began to think he was positively handsome. As I looked back upon the scene, it brings many memories of the man who, amid all the cares and burdens of his position and with the fate of a mighty nation weighing upon his heart, could find time enough to say a few kind words to a little child. 'As a still further illustration of his kindness of heart is the following incident, which I have heard my father relate. A young boy who had served with distinction in a naval engagement on board the gunboat Ottawa, and in another as captain's messenger, was recommended to a cadetship at the Naval Academy at Annapolis. This appointment President Lincoln was glad to make and the lad was directed to report for examination on July 1. Just as he was about to start from home it was discovered that he had not reached the required age of fourteen, his birthday occurring in the following September. The boy was greatly disappointed and wept bitterly at the fear that he would not be able to go at all. He was told, however, that he would be taken to see the President, who would make it all right. Some time afterward he was taken to the White House and presented to the President, to whom he made a graceful bow. The difficulty was explained and the President said: 'Why, bless me, is that the boy who did so gallantly in those two battles? Why, I feel as though I should take my hat to him and not he to me.' The President took the papers, and as soon as he learned that a postpone-

"Well, I don't know," says Lincoln; "Peter denied his Master. He thought he wouldn't, but he did." Mr. Robbins says that he felt a thrill pass over him. He knew by this simple but subtle hint that the soul of Lincoln was determined, and the Union and liberty were secured. The great day came and with it freedom to both black and white. Hypocrisy had fallen; sincerity and manhood had come to abide. A few days later Mr. Robbins met Mr. Lincoln and the latter grasped his hand and said: "Well, friend Robbins, I beat Peter."—G. S. Kimball in the Bangor (Me.) Commercial

LINCOLN A PLAIN MAN.

Had Little Time to Waste on Appearances or Style.

When I first knew Lincoln he had all the habiliments of rusticity; his hat was innocent of a nap; his coarse boots had no acquaintance with blacking; his clothes had not been introduced to the whisk-broom; his baggage was well worn and dilapidated; his umbrella was substantial, but of a faded green, and for an outer garment he wore a short circular blue cloak, says Henry C. Whitney in Leslie's Weekly. He commenced to dress better in the spring of 1858, and when he was absent from home, on political tours, usually did so; after he became President, he had a servant who kept him considerably "slicked up," but he frequently had to reason him into fashionable attire by telling him that his appearance was "official." He probably had as little taste or style about dress or attire as any man who was ever born. He simply wore clothes because it was needful and customary; whether they fitted or looked well was entirely above or beneath his knowledge. He had no regard for trivial things, or for mere forms, manners, politeness, etiquette, official formalities, fine clothes, routine or red-tape; he disdained a bill of fare at table, a program at a theater, or a license to get married. The pleadings in a lawsuit, the formal compliments on a social introduction, the exordium or peroration of a speech he either wholly ignored or cut as short as he could.

In all his political campaigns, the music, flags and bunting were nothing to him; he was thinking rather of the statistics—how many votes were probable, and what the tendencies of political thought were to change opinions and votes. And he also had a thorough contempt for the office of bailiff or crier of a court, doorkeeper of a legislative or Congressional body, floorwalker in a store, drum-major in a band, or even of mayor of a city or town. He disliked to be called "Mr. President" or even "Mr. Lincoln" by his intimates; he called men by their family names.

Lincoln's Love of Truth.

Slower of growth, and devoid altogether of many brilliant qualities which Douglas possessed, says William G. Brown in the February Atlantic, Lincoln nevertheless outreached him by the measure of the two gifts he lacked—the twin gifts of humor and of brooding melancholy. Bottomed by the one in homeliness, his character was by the other drawn upward to the height of human nobility and aspiration. His great capacity of pain, which but for his buoyancy would no doubt have made him mad, was the source of his rarest excellences. Familiar with equal, and hospitable to vulgar, his mind was yet tenanted by sorrow, a place of midnight wrappings. In him as never before in any other man, were high and low things mated, and awkwardness and ungainliness, and at once coarser than his rival and infinitely more refined and gentle, he had mastered lessons which the other had never found the need of learning, or else had learned too readily and then dismissed.

"Yes," replied Mr. Robbins, "and I hope there will be no backing down or backing out on your part."

SETS ALONG WITHOUT ARMS.

Absence of Useful Members Troubles Texas Man But Little. Paul Desmuke, of Amphi, Atascosa county, Texas, was elected justice of the peace of his home precinct at the recent election. He is known throughout the state as the "armless wonder." He was born without arms, but to all appearances this physical deformity has not disabled him in the slightest degree. He is twenty-two years old and is well read in law, having recently been admitted to the bar. He performs all the duties ordinarily done with the hands with his feet. He is a fine penman. He holds the pen holder either with his toes or between his teeth. Whenever one position becomes tiresome he changes to the other. He has been employed in the office of the district clerk of Atascosa county for several months, and the records which he has kept with his pen are models for neatness and legibility. He feeds himself with his feet and handles his knife and fork with as much dexterity as if they were hands.

THE NUMBER THIRTEEN AGAIN.

Occasion When Conductor Was Satisfied It Was a Hoodoo. Car No. 1,313 is on the Broadway run. One night a passenger who traveled on that car noticed a strange matter. It struck him as the car passed Thirteenth street. He was standing on the rear platform, talking occasionally to the conductor. He noticed that the number of the conductor was 3,913. He noticed that there were thirteen people in the car, and he recalled that it was the thirteenth day of the month. He pointed out these disturbing facts to the conductor. "I should think it would make you nervous," he said. "Only one that I remember," said the conductor. "When and how?" "There was thirteen babies in this here car yellin' in thirteen different keys all at the same time," replied the conductor.—New York Times.

Kept Away the Burglars.

Peter Newell, the artist, was camping out in Colorado at one time, living in a tent. News came of a nocturnal murder in the neighborhood and considerable uneasiness was manifested by some members of the family. Mr. Newell thereupon cut out some silhouettes representing men of the roughest western type, all with pistols in their belts and in the attitude of men intensely interested in a game of poker. These silhouettes Mr. Newell fastened to the inner canvas of the tent. At night, the family stepping outside into the darkness to view the result, were entranced with its success. The shadows thrown from the silhouettes in the lighted interior indicated a tent filled with poker-playing, pistol shooting desperadoes. Therefor the Newell family slept in pastoral peace.

A Great "Literary Detective."

Prof. William Henry Burr, whom Ingersoll called a great "literary detective," is a well-preserved old man of 84. As a pamphleteer he stands without a rival in this generation. He has been official reporter of the United States Senate, court reporter in New York, official reporter on the Congressional Globe, and a life-long advocate of the Baconian theory of Shakespeare's authorship. He has well nigh proved to the satisfaction of many hard thinkers that Thomas Paine was "Junius," that Lord Bacon was the Prince of Wales, being the son of Queen Elizabeth; that Gov. De Witt Clinton committed suicide; that William Morgan was murdered by Masons; and that there are 144 self-contradictions in the Bible.

Proud of Church Services.

In commemoration of his half century of service as usher in the Plymouth church, Brooklyn, ex-Senator Stephen M. Griswold, the well-known banker and millionaire, gave a dinner the other night to 160 members of his church. A set of engrossed resolutions and a loving cup were presented to Mr. Griswold, who in a short speech said: "I began as assistant usher in the west gallery and have been steadily promoted until I am now chief usher in the main aisle. Do you know I am prouder of the fact than I am of being a banker and a millionaire." Mr. Griswold is now seventy years old.

Got Rid of an Interviewer.

A young reporter called to interview Senator Quay and found him reading. After formal greetings had been exchanged the senator said: "Do you play poker? Of course you do once in a while. Then you will find this one of the best poker stories I ever saw," handing the newspaper man a book. The reporter out of politeness read a page. "Ah," said the senator, "I see you are interested. Take the book along and read it at your leisure. Good evening," and the dazed young journalist was out on the sidewalk before he could recover his breath.

Raises Marriageable Age.

The Russian government has set about regulating the age at which girls shall marry in Turkestan. It has been customary for Mohammedan girls to marry between the ages of 10 and 12 years, but orders have been issued now that no Mohammedan shall marry under 14. The Tartar and Turcoman chiefs are much incensed, as all seek to obtain brides as young as possible. Russian officials report that 75 per cent of the girls who marry under 12 die before they are 20.

Fencing Aids Women to Retain Their Youth

New York Master of the Sword Tells of the Advantages to Be Derived from a Constant Use of the Foils—The Beginning of the Art.

"It makes the woman beautiful," the fencing master was saying as he fastened the top button of his white jacket. "It is like the medicine of the advertisement. It makes the fat lean and puts flesh on the thin ones. The American woman finds that it is not a fad, but the most beneficial form of exercise. 'Have I married off many of my pupils? What a question. I do not like to claim too much, yet I must tell you that only yesterday I got a letter from one pupil now living in San Francisco. It is a card. She is married. And to-day when one of my pupils came—she had been here three times a week for six months—I noticed on her finger a new solitaire. Of course I do not ask her—I guess that she is engaged. Has not the brighter eyes, the clearer skin and added grace that fencing gives had a share in this?

"There was Miss Lillian Russell. She had grown to such a size that the critics of the theater were casting jokes at her. She comes to me. 'Take it off,' she says, and a season of fencing reduced her thirty-two pounds. When she goes back to the stage all the young and the old, the near and the dear say, 'My! she is a young girl again. It is fencing that does it.'"

"One must not give up the hearty dinner or the little supper after theater if one will try the foils two or three times a week. 'No other kind of physical exercise offers at one time so many advantages. It keys every part of the human mechanism, legs, arms, hands, every muscle, the internal organs and senses, all work harmoniously. Each is a factor in the fencer.'"

"I have 170 pupils in fencing and only twenty of them are men. The benefits of the exercise are now realized by the women of New York who need exercise for itself or for the improvement of a weakened constitution. By the activity of the exercise fat women reduce themselves, while the healthy development of a thin woman brings flesh to her bones."

Fencing masters are now in great demand at the physical development schools patronized by women in society. A well-developed and healthy interest in fencing is shown among men also. Large classes are conducted at the New York Athletic club and the Fencers' club in Fifth Avenue and at the numerous private schools.

Fencing may be traced back in a vague way to the time when adversaries armed with sword in mortal combat trusted more to strength, agility and a quick eye than to any established principles of attack and defense. It took many generations before practical men sifted experience into a code of warfare. The change of arms used by the combatants has effected a change in methods. The middle ages was the period of heavy blows with bludgeons. Victory usually fell to him who hit hardest. Until the invention of gunpowder and the introduction of the lead bullet, when steel armor ceased to be an effectual protector of the body, the knight knew little of the modern art of fencing. Combats between men mounted on horses were determined often by the strength of their armor, and secondarily by their material strength.

In those days the lower classes were barred from tournaments and feats of arms, but in their private schools burghers sought proficiency with the sword. With the discarding of armor the superiority of the point was seen and there the art of fencing properly began.

Then a sword, lighter and stronger than the one formerly used, came into vogue. The weapon was easy to manage and well suited to the custom of going afoot, as many gentlemen of the cloak then traveled. The devising of cunning thrusts and strokes began at that time. It was usual, too, to employ a dagger as an auxiliary to the sword, so that fencing methods were necessarily different.

Later, the dagger fell into disuse, and the court sword came into fashion as a part of the apparel of all gentlemen. At about this time two schools of fencing, the French and the Italian schools, were formed in Europe and these two styles survive to-day.

"The French style, which had the advantage of royal protection, is accepted to-day as the better of the two schools," said the fencing master, "surely I, Ricardo Manrique, would teach no other. As an exercise it is more beneficial than the Italian method, which requires a stiff arm and a tense grasp of the foil."

Let the Italian have his circular flourishes, which waste energy and give his opponent a signal before each thrust. The French style, using the shortest route for each thrust, keeping a supple arm, wrist and fingers, is far superior. It has been demonstrated again and again.

Not long ago the Italian champion challenged the French champion to a duel to prove that his style was wrong and he a fakir. The Italian was wounded in his sword arm. The Frenchman made manifest the superiority of his school.

It is the French school that is taught generally in the New York

Discussing Their Matrimonial Opportunities.

The women seem to prefer it to the Italian style. Among the men who have taken up fencing the number of doctors is noteworthy. They agree that it is an exercise bringing all the muscles into play and yet not exhausting or necessarily violent, like horseback riding, and many of them recommend it to their women patients whose nervous organizations need toning up.—New York Sun.

FIGURES ON LONDON TRAFFIC.

Enormous Number of Passengers Who Use Conveyances.

The immensity of London traffic is curiously illustrated by an article which appears in a recent issue of the Light Railway and Tramway Journal. It is stated that the number of suburban trains running in and out of London daily is no fewer than 7,475, of which 1,600 belong to the Great Eastern.

The passengers they carry is estimated at about 2,000,000, and the statistician who is responsible for the article proves by calculations which appear to be perfectly plausible that over 607,000,000 passengers have to be carried per annum.

He estimates that about 30,000,000 are carried by cabs, 10,000,000 by private vehicles, and an equal number by Thames steamboats and the grand total of passengers carried annually is 1,900,000,000.

Such figures are possibly not quite accurate, but they are sufficiently near to give an idea of the immense traffic that has to be dealt with in London. Often enough we grumble about the condition of the streets, and the difficulty experienced in getting from place to place, but considering the unparalleled concourse of people that have been brought together in the capital of Great Britain, the greatest wonder is that locomotion should be possible at all.

How an abscess in the Fallopian Tubes of Mrs. Hollinger was removed without a surgical operation.

"I had an abscess in my side in the fallopian tube (the fallopian tube is a connection of the ovaries). I suffered untold misery and was so weak I could scarcely get around. The sharp burning pains low down in my side were terrible. My physician said there was no help for me unless I would go to the hospital and be operated on. I thought before that I would try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound which, fortunately, I did, and it has made me a stout, healthy woman. My advice to all women who suffer with any kind of female trouble is to commence taking Lydia E. He is survived by a widow, a son and a daughter.

The Exchange bank over at Brooklyn has a popular and efficient lady cashier whose name appears on all bank paper as A. E. Shekell. She consequently receives mail thus addressed from promoters of all kinds of enterprises and stock companies. She has even received circulars from distillers noting that from a "prominent citizen" they learn that addressee is a user of good whiskey and offer to send a sample consignment in "plain sealed package," etc. But the joke that is now greatly amusing her friends in Jackson as well as Brooklyn, is the receipt of a pair of suspenders. The manufacturers asked that a thorough trial be given them and should they ever stir a responsibility or not be all that was claimed for them they would not cost the wearer one cent. —Jackson Citizen.

DOCTORS AND CHARITY.

What the Medical Profession Owe to the Benevolent Institutions of Our Country.

Human want and misery is not to be altogether attributed to ignorance in the ordinary educational sense, nor altogether to economic conditions, but more largely to the malign effects of hereditary physical taint and unsanitary surroundings, says American Medicine. All modern communities possess organizations of the charity-benefactor type, and to the efforts of such benevolent persons the medical profession is chiefly indebted for the founding and support of the many institutions through which physicians exercise their functions among the poor. It remains for the profession to enter into this work in a more systematic way. Every city, county and state medical society should have a standing committee of its most public spirited members, whose particular business it should be to cooperate actively with the organized charities in the capacity of an advisory board. By such a system much may be done in the way of preventing mistakes and of developing the form of preventive charity which will seek to ameliorate suffering by the reduction of pernicious conditions. The splendid work of infirmaries, dispensaries and hospitals in placing curative medicine at the disposal of the diseased poor, needs to be supplemented by bringing the science of preventive medicine into harmonious action with that form of charity which looks to the lessening of social evils along the lines of personal and public sanitation.

THE FAR WEST WIPED OUT.

Wildness and Woolliness of That Portion of the Union Has Almost Entirely Disappeared.

A publishing house in this city, says the Chicago Chronicle, has received an order from the Yukon region for books expressive of what is now the "far" northwest. The order includes Gibbon's Rome, Macaulay's England, the writings of John Stuart Mill, of Flannery and other engaging scientists, graphic novels, humorous stories, but none of Bret Harte's. The "Far West" of Bret Harte is at the vanishing point. A hurry postscript observed that the navigation season is short and that only letter mail is carried over the ice.

In truth, there is no longer any "far" west or "far" northwest. The rugged and often illiterate humanity that cleft the mountains and swam the rivers, opening up a new empire for all the world, is also of the past. The universal free school sends a different multitude now to the advancing frontier. Sturdy but not illiterate, the new pioneers want books wherever they go, and science and the organized forces of civilization enable them to gratify their taste. Culture is no longer a monopoly of the older positions of the country.

MULES PLOW IN ASPHALT.

Drag Big Breaking Plow Through Deep Deposit in the Chickasaw Country.

In the Indian territory, where all sorts of things are done that were never heard of elsewhere, they are plowing asphalt, says the Kansas City Star of recent date. Eighteen miles southeast of Comanche, in the Chickasaw country, six strapping Missouri mules are hitched to a big breaking plow every day and long furrows of asphalt are turned. It is the same kind of a plow the farmers use who break ground in the black jack country, and the asphalt is the kind got by blasting on the island of Trinidad. The mules are plowing in the center of a deposit one-third larger than the asphalt deposits on Trinidad. Wells have been dug to the depth of 100 feet. Strata of asphalt of varying thicknesses have been encountered to whatever depth the wells have been sunk. The supply is apparently inexhaustible. Men of means have become convinced there are millions of dollars to be made, and are either going to make it or lose a fortune in their experiment.

SKINNING A PEARL.

A Delicate Operation for the Removal of Stains or Discolorations That Requires Skill.

The lapidary was skinning a pearl, according to the Philadelphia Record. He had on gloves of a very delicate sort of kid, and the glasses that he wore had lenses of such magnifying power that his eyes, through them, looked as big as saucers. "I wear gloves," he said, "because the hands perspire freely in this work, and perspiration has often been known to discolor pearls. This stone was injured by the accidental dropping on it of some acid. The discoloration is of some size. With this very delicate little tool I am removing its outer skin, and if I find that the acid has filtered through and discolored the inner skin also, I may remove that as well. A pearl, you see, is composed of concentric layers, or skins, and you can, if you are a clever workman, peel it down and down until it disappears."

Strange Fatalities.
The Chicago Tribune recently published a column of strange fatalities collected from its exchanges. One of the deaths was that of a man at Quincy, who kicked at a cat, missed the animal, fell and broke his neck. An Akron, O., barber died from inhaling hair while working on his customer's head. The top of a can of peaches was fractured at Blossburg, N. Y., and bits of the powdered glass were eaten, causing death.

Seven Diseases Caused by Measles.

Dr. Miles' Restorative Tonic and Nerve Cured After Thirty-one Years.

"I was a perfectly healthy young man up to February 1866. When my regiment was in Camp Randall I was taken sick with the measles and I did not enjoy good health up to the time I used Dr. Miles' Restorative Tonic and Nerve in 1896. Doctors have told me it came from inactivity of the liver. I cannot say how many physicians did treat me but have had all kinds. Dieting has never helped me. Rheumatism, stomach headache, rheumatism, nasal catarrh, hay fever, asthma, and chronic diarrhoea have all taken their turn with me. Thanks to the Nerve and Tonic I am completely restored to health. I have also used Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills with good results and I think that the Dr. Miles' Remedies are perfect."—Rev. Hiram Bender, Sparta, Wis.

"I want to say a few good words for Dr. Miles' Restorative Nerve. I have been troubled very much with insomnia since I made the change to the new paper and on account of this have tried various remedies without relief. I was finally induced by a wholesale druggist, a personal friend of mine, to try Nerve. I can assure you it has done me a lot of good. I do not find it necessary to use it regularly now but occasionally when I find that I am excessively nervous and restless I again take it up as I always keep a supply on hand. It has never failed to give me the desired relief."—A. Huggin, Publisher "Daily Free-Press" Milwaukee, Wis.

MORTGAGE SALE.

Default having been made in the conditions of a certain mortgage executed by Andrew Kappler of Sharon, Washtenaw County, the eighteenth day of March A. D. 1895, and recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds for the County of Washtenaw, State of Michigan, on the 12th day of December, A. D. 1902, in Liber 106 of Mortgages on Page 208, by which default the power of sale contained in said mortgage has become operative, on which mortgage there is claim to be due at this date the sum of one hundred eighty one and 80-100 dollars and the sum of twenty five dollars as an attorney fee as provided in said mortgage and the statute in such case made and provided, and no proceeding at law or in Chancery having been instituted to recover the debt so secured by said mortgage or any part thereof.

Now therefore notice is hereby given that by virtue of the power of sale contained in said mortgage and the statute in such case made and provided, said mortgage will be foreclosed on Tuesday the 24th day of March, A. D. 1903, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon of that day at the East door of the Court House in the City of Ann Arbor, in said County of Washtenaw, (said Court House being the place of holding the Circuit Court for the said County of Washtenaw) by sale at public auction, to the highest bidder, of the premises described in said mortgage as follows, viz: All that certain piece or parcel of Land, situate and being in the Township of Sharon, in the County of Washtenaw, and State of Michigan and described as follows, to wit:

The North East quarter of the North West quarter of section number twenty (20), containing forty acres of land, be the same more or less. All in Township number three, South Range number three East.

Dated, Chelsea, Mich., December 24th, 1902.
