SCHOOL'S REPUTATION SUSTAINED

The Exercises Were Well Attended—Address by Hon. M. P. Bourke—Prof. Gifford Said Farewell.

The Chelsea High school on Wednesday evening graduated another class that sustains most gratifyingly the reputation of our school. The class roll numbered eight—not so large as at times but thoroughly adequate as to personality.

The class roll reads as follows: Classical course—Eliza M. Zineke; Latin course—Howard S. Holmes and Lillie F. Blais; English course—Helen M. Burg, A. Margaret Young, Alice R. Heim, Chandler A. Rogers and Nellie L. Walsh.

Following the usual custom the class had asked that one of the pastors deliver an appropriate discourse on the Sunday evening preceding their graduation and they met at the Methodist church and listened to Dr. E. E. Caster who delivered a dignified and scholarly address such as is profitable to the hearers on such an occasion.

Wednesday evening at the opera house the friends of the class gathered to find the place transformed by the pleasing effects wrought by a profuse use of bunting in the class colors, pink and white. Other decorations, palms, mirrors, etc., placed with the best of taste added materially to make the setting for the occasion a very pretty one.

The program as published in The Standard was carried out most satisfactorily. All of the numbers, the musical selections, the address and presentation of diplomas were matters of much interest and well received by the audience.

The address to the class was delivered by Hon. Michael P. Bourke, Deputy Attorney General for the State. Mr. Bourke is a scholarly lawyer and well qualified to perform the task assigned him. The address was brief and to the class. The theme was the conventional one for such occasions but well handled and well received by class and audience. Prof. Gifford in presenting the diplomas used the opportunity to say farewell to the patrons of the school, the teachers who had been associated with him and the 72 graduates that have gone out from the school in the six years it has been under his supervision.

As to the future plans of the class it may be stated in a general way that some will enter the University next fall. Others of the class hold teachers' certificates and will teach at least for a year and then go to the State Normal, while others will no doubt continue to teach until they enter that other normal state known as matrimony.

CHELSEA GIRL IN PARIS

Mr. and Mrs. Hayes Present at the Memorial Services at the Grave of Lafayette.

The Paris edition of the New York Herald, bearing the date of Sunday May 31st 1903, came this week to hand and contains a half column account of the memorial exercises by Americans in Paris at the grave of Lafayette. This account is particularly interesting locally because of the presence at the ceremony of Mr. and Mrs. Dennis B. Hayes of Detroit. (Mrs. Hayes will be remembered as Miss Agnes McKune.)

In the absence from the city of the American Ambassador, Gen. Porter, Mr. Henry Vignaud acted as chairman of ceremonies. Gen. Stewart L. Woodford, who it will be remembered was minister to Spain at the time of the outbreak of the Spanish-American war, was introduced as orator of the day.

Gen. Woodford spoke of the aid given the American colonies in the revolutionary war by Lafayette and of the affection felt for him by the American people. He described how, after the civil war, the Grand Army of the Republic was formed and how one of the largest and most prominent posts of that organization had adopted the name of Lafayette and annually made in a custom of decorating Lafayette's grave simultaneously with decorating the graves of their fallen comrades at home.

There were some 36 Americans present, other than Mr. and Mrs. Hayes, drawn from all parts of the United States. Among those present is noted the name of Comte de Rochambeau, a descendant of the French Admiral who assisted Washington at the siege of Yorktown and capture of Cornwallis.

CAVANAUGH LAKE

This Popular Resort to Be Much in Favor This Summer—The Water is Just as Wet and the Fish are Biting Well.

There promise to be great things at Cavanaugh lake this summer. Everyone who possesses a cottage is going to be there and those who haven't cottages are wishing they had them.

One of the Ann Arbor papers announces that the Hon. A. J. Sawyer has found two tons of coal hidden under the porch of his cottage and of course he will want to burn that—just to get even for not having it where he could burn it last winter.

Mr. and Mrs. L. T. Freeman are making preparations to entertain at the lake the Fourth as are also Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Watson. Mrs. F. P. Glazier has been busy putting their cottage in the pink of condition for the summer as the family will be there most of the time this season.

Many outsiders, notably from Detroit, have tried vainly to secure quarters there, but everything so far as can be learned will be full.

But it appears that there are to accommodations other than cottages. Messrs. Otto Hans and A. R. Welch have well underway a house-boat that gives promise of being a jolly good thing.

Whether or not "Reggie" Vanderbilt, Mrs. Stuyvesant Fish, the Goetzels and Mr. and Mrs. H. McK. Twombly will be at Cavanaugh this summer or continue at Newport has not been learned.

GETS 30 DAYS

A Young Filmmaker Works an Old Game—Gives Himself Away and Is Soon Arrested.

Harry Rogers, an 18 year old young man who quite recently began work for R. A. Snyder, finds himself in trouble.

Saturday evening he entered the jewelry store of A. E. Winans and asked to look at rings. They were shown him and he selected one that seemed to suit him and was holding it as the salesman stepped to the other end of the store. Rogers then quickly substituted another ring in the tray so as to appear that he had returned the one he was holding. The trick worked beautifully and he left unsuspected.

However, his success was too much for him and he showed the ring to the one accompanying him. The latter promptly notified Mr. Winans. Deputy-sheriff Frank Leach was called and late Saturday night arrested the young filmmaker as he returned to Chelsea from Jackson. He was taken care of that night by sheriff Leach and next morning lodged in jail at Ann Arbor.

Monday Rogers was brought before justice Burgess and fined $10.00 and cost or 30 days in jail. He took the later.

STATEMENT OF BOLAND

COMING THIS WAY SOON

Responds Graciously to Inquiry as to What the People of Chelsea and Vicinity May Expect.

"This is Mr. Boland?" questioningly remarked The Standard's representative as he approached the genial motor-railway magnate in quest of information that would interest our readers.

"It is," answered the gentleman addressed, and after a word or two of explanation he went on, "Why, yes, I am glad of this opportunity to say a word to friends of our road in your vicinity."

"Just an hour ago I received word from Jackson that the cars are ready to run west from there to Albion and on through to Battle Creek and I am on my way now to see the first car start. However if I shouldn't be on time the car will run just the same. Of course you understand this first run is not according to schedule. It will take some days to perfect that but not long I assure you."

"And the division through Chelsea, east from Grass Lake, will receive attention?" was the question next put. "Some say you have abandoned this end of the road?"

"I have not abandoned it nor will not! Just so soon as our cars are running on schedule time out of Jackson to the west so soon will we commence work on your end of the road."

"Then you think it would be safe for The Standard to say that work on the eastern division will commence on or before July 1st?" was asked.

"Yes," said Mr. Boland, "you will be perfectly safe in making that statement. From the terminus of the trolley, east of Grass Lake, on through to Detroit the third rail system will be used, the heavy and up-to-date cars will be operated and everything possible done to make the service the best obtainable. You are no doubt well aware of the superiority of our road here."

And so The Standard has from the highest authoritative source the news which will set at rest the minds of many who have been busy formulating conjectures as to the final disposition of the Boland tracks through this place.

Mr. Boland was assured that his road would doubtless get the greater patronage and he answered that he surely expected it and all who know anything of the Boland service are inclined to agree with him.

It was pointed out that there had been some complaint from patrons along the line from Grass Lake to Jackson. In reply Mr. Boland admitted that the service at all times had not been what it might be but also said further that when the road was once opened as a through line, and ceased to be merely a feeder then everything would be done that is possible to bring the service up to the highest standard.

The following from the Jackson Patriot discloses that the first car ran as Mr. Boland predicted.

"The first car from Battle Creek arrived from the west at 11 o'clock Saturday morning in spite of the statement of officials to the effect that it would not. It was thought that it would be impossible for the company to augment the direct power from Albion sufficiently to allow the car to enter the city yesterday, but subsequent developments proved this theory faulty."

"The car was 'Battle Creek No. 37.' It remained at the depot of the Jackson & Suburban Traction company for a few minutes when the return trip was commenced. On board the car were officials and promoters of the road. Supt. J. R. Foote officiated as motoneer."

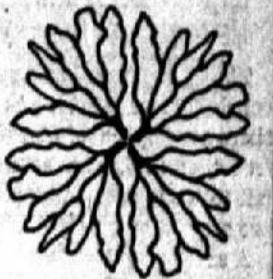

"The car made the return trip from Jackson to Albion in thirty minutes. The total distance by electric is a little over twenty miles, so that the time made by the car is considered excellent. At Parma the car struck and smashed a gasoline speeder. No one was injured."

A NEW TIME CARD

Michigan Central Again Reduces the Time Between New York and Chicago.

The Michigan Central time card was changed Sunday, and the principal change is to again shorten the time of the fast flyer, No. 11, which connects at Buffalo with eastern trains, and is practically a Boston, New York and Chicago train. The time between Buffalo and Chicago has been shortened about two hours, and between New York and Buffalo the trains have been still further cut. At Chelsea east bound train known as Detroit Night Express will leave at 5:50 a. m. instead of 6:00. Other east bound trains will run as usual. Going west the Michigan and Chicago express will leave at 6:00 a. m. instead of 7:10 and the night train will arrive here at 11:05 instead of 11:52 as formerly. This train, as does the early morning train, stops only on signal.

THE NEWS OF MICHIGAN.

Mrs. McKnight Confesses.

Mrs. Mary McKnight has confessed the cold-blooded, premeditated murder of her own brother, John Murphy, of Gertrude Murphy, his young and innocent wife, and even of their 3 months' old babe. Prosecutor Ernest C. Smith gave out the following statement: "Overburdened by the horrible crime with which she was suspected Mrs. Mary McKnight sent for me Monday and Tuesday evenings and finally confessed voluntarily that she had administered poison to her brother, to his wife and to the baby. Her arrest and confinement and the burden of her guilt had overcome even her strong will, until she felt that she could no longer withhold her terrible secret from the world. Mrs. McKnight admitted freely that she had administered strychnine to baby Murphy. Gertrude Murphy and John Murphy." The confession was voluntary, not a question being asked during the recital of the details of the three crimes. There is no expert stenographer in the city, therefore Prosecution Attorney Smith was unable to get Mrs. McKnight's confession verbatim. However, he did the next best thing. He wrote out the gist of her statement, and she willingly signed it.

Says She Lied—An Arrest Made.

Another surprising development in the case of Minnie Humberg, of Owosso, occurred Saturday evening, when Justice Neil R. Walsh issued a warrant for the arrest of Mrs. E. L. Wilkinson on a charge of assault with intent to do great bodily harm. Coming right after the girl's confession on Friday that she herself smeared carbolic acid on her face and body, with the result that she will always be terribly disfigured, this action seems singular, but Justice Walsh and Marshal Ross, who interviewed the girl for four hours, are satisfied she is now telling the truth. Mrs. Humberg admits having given Mrs. Wilkinson cause for jealousy and anger since the latter's marriage, and when the woman attacked her last Saturday night she was so conscience-stricken she made no attempt to defend herself. She claims to have made one attempt to run, whereupon her assailant easily caught her and said: "If you try that again you will never reach home alive." When the Humberg girl was a mass of scars from the acid, Mrs. Wilkinson said, according to the story now told, "Now I have my revenge, you can go." Minnie explains her conflicting stories concerning the assault by saying she desired to spare young Wilkinson, whom she still loves, the shame of an exposure.

Won't Get the Presents.

Auditor-General Powers has issued an order that all vouchers given under the resolution awarding extra compensation that was rushed through the senate Wednesday be dishonored when presented. This is an innovation, and has caused consternation among the clerks, only three of whom succeeded in cashing their vouchers before the order was issued. The senate granted each of nine employees an additional $2 per diem for the whole session; this made a present of more than $200 apiece. Heretofore, vouchers for such additional pay have always been honored, and nobody expected a hitch this year. The auditor-general's stand is based on the fact that in the session of 1901 the legislature, by statute, fixed the compensation of all the employees of the house and senate, and there is a constitutional prohibition against granting extra pay when compensation is fixed by statute. The order does not affect the $850 granted to Secretary Chilson for compiling the index.

Law May be Inoperative.

Although Gov. Bliss has signed the bill creating a good roads commission and has appointed ex-Senator H. S. Earle as commissioner, the ex-senator will probably not be able to secure his salary allowance or any portion of the appropriation for experimental road building until the constitutionality of the act shall have been passed upon by the court. The attorney-general's department has given no official opinion on the constitutionality of the law, but there is said to be no doubt that it runs counter to the provision prohibiting the state from engaging in works of internal improvement, and that it is invalid in consequence.

Gardner Convicted.

John R. Gardner, of Coleman, who was some time ago indicted by the United States authorities on a charge of obtaining false affidavits concerning homestead entries, was found guilty in the United States district court in Detroit after the jury had been out six hours. Gardner will come up for sentence July 7. Gardner was confident of acquittal throughout, and especially after the jury had been out for such a long time. He took the verdict hard, and looked the picture of despair as the foreman slowly spoke the words that may mean imprisonment for him. He is liable to a maximum sentence of five years and a fine of $500.

END OF THE SESSION.

The legislative boxes containing the members' prerequisites, such as pens, paper, wastebaskets, books, cuspids, etc., have been duly packed, marked and shipped to the homes for future use, and the usual preliminaries gone through with, such as presentations, and the passage of the usual "extra compensation" resolutions. Clerk Marr, of the committee on state affairs, and Clerk Crampton, of the judiciary committee, were each awarded $2 a day extra from the beginning of the session. Miss Harbourn, general stenographer for the senate, was also voted an additional $2 a day. Another little snap that went through was in the shape of a concurrent resolution permitting all state officers whose official residence is not designated at Lansing under the law to have their hotel bills in the city audited and allowed. This, if constitutional, would permit officers like the tax commissioners to collect their Lansing hotel expenses.

Mr. Fuller, president pro tem of the senate, was presented with a cut glass punch bowl, with gold ladle and a gold-headed cane. Speaker Carlton was presented by the members of the house with a silver punch bowl. Mr. Denby, in making the presentation, said: "The play is almost over. On the morrow our case goes to the jury of the people to judge us by our acts. We have tried to do our best. I believe that seldom, if ever, has a more honest or better-intentioned lot of representatives labored for the people than those that have composed this session." Mr. Carlton, in reply, said: "If mistakes have been made they were mistakes of judgment."

With the usual horse play at the end of the session the legislature adjourned at a few minutes past 12 o'clock on Wednesday. This finale of the session was exclusive in the house. The more decorous senate did not indulge in a "rough house." The final and legal adjournment of the legislature will occur June 18, when Speaker Carlton and President Pro Tem Fuller, with their respective clerks, will meet in Lansing.

Most of the legislators immediately started for the depots to go home.

Some of the laws passed by the legislature are thus summarized:

Ten years now, or $1,000 fine, for killing a man for a deer.

The railroad commissioner has police power over all electric lines.

Justices of the peace and judges of probate are now allowed to perform the marriage ceremony.

Counties may now establish normal training schools with state assistance.

The chief judiciary bill of the session increases the number of supreme court judges from 5 to 8 and lowers the terms of office from 10 to 8 years.

Teal Goes Free.

Francis Teal, the 31-year-old man from Six-Mile Creek, under arrest for three weeks for the murder of young Frederick Marker, was discharged. This ending of the case gives practically universal satisfaction, there being very few who wish that the case might have gone to the circuit court.

On a recent Saturday night, Marker and three companions stopped at Teal's lonely hut on their way home after a carousal at Henderson. The evening was spent chiefly in joking and rough handling until patience ceased to be a virtue. Then, when Marker threatened to hit him with a piece of stove wood, Teal got in the first stroke and laid Marker out on the floor with a heavy club.

Dangerous and at Large.

Ray county is in a pickle over the care of insane patients. The sheriff declares he can't keep them in the jail, there is no place for them at the county farm, and the asylums of the state say they can't receive them nearly as fast as the applications come in.

As a result, two men, one of whom is dangerous, were turned loose last week. The man believed to be dangerous is Julius Straner. He is a lumber inspector, and came 40 Bay City recently from Detroit. When his case came up in the probate court the question of Ray county's responsibility was brought up and it was determined to ship Straner to his family, who are at present at Merrill, Saginaw county.

STATE NEWS IN BRIEF.

During a hailstorm in the southern portion of Davison township, great damage was done to fruit. A mass of hailstones was found which had been frozen together and formed a cake of ice six inches square.

Frank Fowler, recently in trouble for failure to support his children, who are in St. Johns, was arrested in Lansing Saturday at the instance of Greenville officers, who have a warrant for him, charging bigamy.

Stolen articles were found in the possession of Leon Baldwin, the 17-year-old Lawton boy arrested recently on the charge of assault with intent to kill, and William Hock. Both are locked up on the charge of larceny.

A Bay City jeweler was startled Saturday by a well-dressed woman who returned a gold ring which she had stolen five years ago. She said she was now serving the Lord and he had directed her to return the property.

Burglars made a rich haul at the country home of C. D. Stuart, in Hagar township, Saturday night. While the family was absent, they took every piece of silverware in the house, a lady's gold watch, and other valuables amounting to $300.

Dowagiac has a chance to secure a big factory, now located in St. Louis, Mo., but desirous of removing to some smaller city where there are no labor unions and walking delegates to stir up trouble among employees. The factory employs 300 hands and has a payroll of $10,000 a month, and all that Dowagiac is asked to furnish is a site and a brick building with 19,000 feet of floor space.

Mrs. Harry Goss, who lived on a farm north of Owosso, died Saturday afternoon from paralysis, the result of the injuries she received through being crushed by a land roller the day before. She leaves three children.

The Assassins Will Escape.

The prosecution in the case of Curtis Jett and Thomas White, the Breathitt county, Ky., assassins, charged with killing Attorney J. B. Marcum, was compelled to close without the attendance of material witnesses to prove conspiracy. It is conceded that these witnesses, in some cases, have fled and in other cases are in hiding. It is claimed that they are afraid to testify and there is a general impression that jurors are also apprehensive for the future. Many reasons are advanced for the current opinion, that there is not likely to be a conviction in the case.

The Missing Crown Prince.

The Marinette, Wisconsin, Star is authority for a story to the effect that Prof. Hoffman, who recently resigned from the faculty of the University of Iowa, is Crown Prince Rudolph, of Austria, who was supposed to have killed himself 15 years ago. Hoffman's resignation at the university was requested because he refused to reveal his identity after admitting that he was going under an assumed name.

Leo Still Lives.

The rumors published Saturday in Vienna papers that the pope had died suddenly, are entirely without foundation. His holiness is in good health and Dr. Lepponi, his physician, did not visit the Vatican. Pope Leo on Saturday received Cardinal Reispig, vicar-general of his holiness.

F. M. Knowles, secretary of the New York baseball club, lost a pocket-book containing $3,000 in Chicago, and it was found by Mabel, the cat at the hotel. She had succeeded in opening it and was playing with the bills.

THE NEWS OF THE WORLD.

King and Queen Murdered.

Early Thursday morning King Alexander of Serbia, and Queen Draga were assassinated in the royal palace, together with the queen's brother, Nikodem, her sister, the prime minister, three members of the cabinet and several of the palace guard. The list in detail is as follows: King Alexander, Queen Draga, Nikodem, the queen's brother, the queen's sister, Premier Markovitch, Minister Petrovitch, Minister Todorovitch, former minister of war Gen. Pavlovitch, the captain of the palace guard and several of his command, all of the nobility. The assassins were army officers who were followers of Prince Peter Karageorgievich, the son of the Montenegrin family Czemy, who has long been a pretender to the throne, and who after the tragedy was enacted was proclaimed king, and a new government was promptly formed.

That two such persons as Alexander and his queen, both persons of a coarse, passionate, vindictive character, could not live together in harmony was conceded, but nobody expected the violent quarrels that have been of constant occurrence ever since the disappointment of the king's expectations of an heir. Their open, violent quarrels became the scandal of the capital, and indeed, of the whole country. The language they used to each other would better have belittled peasants. It was the queen's moral character which aroused the animosity of the people. She had been living openly with the king for years before they were married, and when the engagement was announced the ministry resigned in a body by way of protest, declaring the proposed marriage to be a menace to the state. Ex-King Milan, father of Alexander, was a profligate who had to abandon the throne to his son. The whole family history is one of scandals, profligacy and immorality.

Starling Reports Made.

The arrest is contemplated by the postoffice department inspectors of a man who bears a name made famous in American history by one of its bearers, and which even persons who want to see the postal scandals proved to the bottom and the rascals punished, would deplore to be dragged down to disgrace. But one link in the chain of evidence against this man to warrant his being placed in custody is said to be lacking. The inspectors hope through information to be furnished by a person now being closely watched to obtain this missing link, and speedy action will follow. Three arrests, in addition to the person specifically referred to here, are reported to be under advisement in this connection.

Kansas City Needs Help.

Kansas City, Kas., is still sorely in need of aid for its flood sufferers. A second urgent appeal to the country at large has been issued by the relief committee of that city, which says that local charity is totally inadequate to meet the situation. Outside assistance is imperative. At least 25,000 souls out of a population of 60,000 in the entire city are homeless and dependent. Hundreds of their homes have been swept away and those that remain have been left with a deposit of filth, both inside and out, of from one to three feet in depth. In most instances persons were able to save only the clothing they wore. Their household goods and clothing have been swept away or destroyed by water and mud.

A Great Gift.

The alleged "graft" of walking delegates in the building trades unions, revealed by District Attorney Jerome, of New York, in the arrest of Samuel J. Parks on charges of accepting bribes to end strikes, is assuming alarming proportions. Mr. Jerome says: "Workmen have been called out on strike and have lost $100,000 in wages while a leader was trying to extort $1,000 for himself from his employer. In one instance a great firm was approached by a labor leader who declared that if he received $15,000 as a present the wages of the employees might be cut from $4.25 to $4 per day and that he would guarantee that there would be no strike within a year."

The Destruction of Heppner.

News from Arlington, Ore., state that the town of Heppner, Ore., was destroyed by a great flood of water that rushed down Willows creek between 6 and 7 o'clock Sunday evening. Reports from Ione state that from 350 to 500 people are believed to have been drowned. Heppner is a town of about 1,250 inhabitants, the seat of Morrow county, Ore., at the terminus of a branch of the Oregon Railroad & Navigation Co. Farming and stock raising are the chief industries. Willows creek, which is given as the cause of the disaster, is ordinarily a small stream, and early reports indicate the flood was caused by either one or two cloudbursts.

Re-elected Parks.

Samuel J. Parks, the walking delegate of the housewives and bridge-men's union, who is under criminal charges for receiving bribes to call off strikes, etc., was re-nominated for his office by his union. In a resolution which condemned District Attorney Jerome for prosecuting Parks, the latter was commended for his work for the union. After the meeting Parks was carried on the shoulders of four men to a saloon surrounded by 400 or more admirers, cheering, shouting and singing for Parks and Devery.

Escaped Lynching.

A lynching in Ohio was narrowly averted by officers splitting a murderer away from Crestline to Bucyrus. George Cook, a plasterer, aged 28, was shot and instantly killed by Frank Dilling, a section employee on the Pennsylvania railroad. Cook's friends overpowered Dilling and beat him with clubs and left him for dead. The police conveyed him to the station, where he revived. A crowd again collected and threatened to lynch the prisoner, but the police succeeded in eluding them.

Cupid in Bonts.

During the flood at St. Louis Matthew J. Ryan, of Chicago, rescued Miss May Conroy from the second story of a house in a rowboat. Before they reached safety he proposed that they get married and go to Chicago and she agreed to the plan. Charles H. Lindell was doing military service at East St. Louis and had occasion to row Miss Birtle Mitchell to her abandoned home and before they returned he had proposed and they were married Sunday.

TELEGRAPHIC BRIEFS.

Sentiment in favor of local option is said to be growing in Iowa city.

Joseph Thrasher, the Chicago millionaire, is himself tending bar since the strike of the restaurant employees.

Miss Lura Angsburg, an employee of the Centerville knitting mill, was taken suddenly sick while at work, and has been unconscious for more than 36 hours.

St. Louis, Mo., is swarming with lizards and snakes that have been driven up by the floods, and thousands have been killed as they crawled up on the railway tracks.

William Lemard's only means of support was a team of horses and the animals started off at South Rockwood when his back was turned, ran straight to the Huron river, jumped off a bank eight feet high and were drowned.

The bodies of A. L. Carr and Clarence Benjamin, who were drowned in Muskegon lake on the evening of Memorial day with Dr. Benjamin, father of Clarence, and son-in-law of Mr. Carr, have been recovered as well as that of the doctor.

Arthur Lyons, the slayer of his stepmother, who has been a fugitive from justice for several days in Shouls, Ind., shot himself through the heart as he stood hemmed in on every side by a band of enraged farmers.

The Newport News Shipbuilding Co. has been awarded the contract for building the new 16,000-ton battleship Minnesota at $4,110,000. The New York Shipbuilding Co. gets the Kansas at $4,170,000, and the Vermont goes to the Fore River Mfg. Co. for $4,105,000.

Floods amounting to a cloudburst in the Jemez mountains, caused the Rio Grande to rise so suddenly that Albuquerque, N. M., was seriously threatened. The town of Los Cerillos was completely submerged, the people fleeing to the hills. Alameda is also under water.

Henry Kaiser is literally pumping up a stream of gold out of his little island on the Yellowstone river, near Livingston, Mont. He bought the island for a song and sank a well in front of his door. The water shrooved free gold, and he has been cleaning up $100 a week with almost no trouble.

A sea romance ends in the marriage of Miss Pauline Schroeder, of Omaha, Neb., and Capt. Frank W. Irvine, of the Ward line steamer Seneca, at New York. Miss Schroeder first met the captain when she boarded the steamer at Tampico, Mexico, returning from a visit to her father and brother.

Miss Mary Stevens and her little nephew are dead at Gainesville, Ga., and three other persons seriously ill as a result of eating bread in which a spider had been kneaded. The cook confessed that the spider had got into the dough by accident, and it had not been baked until next morning. The doctors say the delay in baking allowed the spider's venom to impregnate the bread.

Arthur H. Ackerman, a well known Sunday school worker at Pasadena, N. J., was stricken to death with apoplexy in church while walking up the aisle in the midst of the children's day exercises.

The New England Drought.

Rain and plenty of it Monday night ended the fifty days' drought in northern and southern New England, and quenched most of the forest fires which have burned vast areas into blackened wastelands. Fertil showers came to different and widely separated localities during the afternoon, and at the setting of the sun the indications were not especially promising for rain. But with a slight nip the wind swung around into the easterly section of the compass, bringing in a "sea turn" and a heavy rain, which drenched the entire New England coast line. The drought just ended has been the longest and most severe for a great many years. Temperatures during the last fifty days have ranged from frost to midsummer torridities, and damage has accompanied each extreme, frost having killed early vegetables and the hot weather parched meadow and brush lands until it was tinder fuel for fires which sprung up on every hand.

Mysterious Murderer.

Nellie Bayne, of Cleveland, was choked to death in bed Friday night. Who the murderer is is a mystery. A woman telephoned the police that she was in trouble. An officer went to her room and found her lifeless. He found a man leaving the house in a hurry and placed him under arrest, but he is not thought to be the murderer. A man

So many American whalers are going to seek the big "fish" in the Baffin Bay waters this season that the Canadian government has decided to charter a sealing steamer to cruise there to prevent the Yankee from "violating Canadian custom laws." It looks as if the "prostrated American whaler" were about to awaken to something akin to vigor.

Years of more or less desultory whaling have given the sea giants a chance to recuperate, and that they were not guilty of race suicide during their time of rest is proved by the fact that whales are plentiful in all the seas again.

For a rich American, eager to try real sport, there is a great chance now. Whaling, one of the oldest forms of big game hunting known, is the one field which has not been fittingly exploited by the amateur sportsman. In a time when lion and tiger shooting are mere routine sporting affairs to hundreds of wealthy men, the whale should appeal with great force.

Few landmen ever have the opportunity to participate in the sport. When a whaleboat lowers to fight a sixty-foot whale the business is too important to incur the craft with unskilled passengers. And not many landmen would really care to go into the whaleboat even if they could when they behold, wallowing in the sea, the huge thing that is to be attacked.

The ride begins after the whale has been harpooned and when the boat-leader considers it time to draw up alongside and begin lancing. The first thing that is done is to haul in upon the harpoon line until the boat is brought as close to the running whale as is consistent with the extremely delicate margin that the whaler allows for safety. "Safety" to the whaler means to remain just about an inch or two beyond the reach of the whale's flukes with which the big beast is beating the sea.

Having hauled as far up on the whale as possible, the boat-leader

THE TOWN OF SPECTACLES.

Curious Manner in Which an African Settlement Received Its Name.

John Mole built a commodious residence a number of years ago on the outskirts of Blantyre in the Shire highlands south of Lake Nyassa.

He is the agent of the African Lakes company, which has a number of steamers on Lake Nyassa, and has proved that it is possible to build up a prosperous business in inner Africa without selling spirits or firewater to the natives.

Mr. Mole wears spectacles, and the natives call him Mandala, which means glass. When he erected his house they also applied the name Mandala to the building.

There Mr. Mole developed a settlement around his private property, all devoted to the interests of the company he represents. There are storehouses for ivory and other things bought from the tribes. Trade goods as they arrive from Europe are also stored here till they are sent up the lake. The place has become a very thriving settlement with several hundred population.

It did not lack a name for a single day because the natives at once named it when the first storehouse was erected. They simply made the name Mandala embrace all the town; and now on all good maps we see a little dot and the word Mandala standing for the most thriving and important suburb of Blantyre.

The fame of Mandala is known to all who are interested in Africa's progress, and the name it bears was given to it simply because the founder of the town wears spectacles.—New York Sun.

OLIVE OIL IN ARIZONA.

The Rise of a Great Industry in the Southwest.

"Olive oil is now being shipped by the ton from the Salt River valley of Arizona and the business is on the boom," said B. F. Franklin of Phoenix, Ariz., to a Washington Star man. "The entire valley is becoming dotted with olive orchards, and at this season of the year the trees are covered with thousands of tiny little starlike buds, which will soon be followed by the fruit formation, which when matured on the tree will amount to hundreds of pounds of fruit. Olives remain on the trees until they are thoroughly ripe before they are picked to have the oil squeezed and pressed from them."

"When the olives are ripe it requires a large number of hands to pick them, for the work must be done quickly. This is usually done by spreading large canvas sheets around the trees, upon which the pickers throw the olives as they are plucked off the branches. Once they are picked the fruit is carried to the crushing machine, which breaks the fruit up much as apples are crushed for cider. The pulp is then put into a machine which presses the juice from it, which runs off into a tank, where by force of gravity the oil proper rises to the top and is skimmed off and put away for several months to settle before it is bottled ready for the market. It requires about seventy-five pounds of fruit to produce a gallon of oil."

The Careless Little Thing.

"These men are the cause of our doing some funny things, aren't they?" asked the dear little thing.

"What's up, now?" queried the gray-eyed girl.

"Oh, nothing's exactly wrong," replied the dear little thing. "I was only thinking of the absurd break I made yesterday at the jeweler's, and all because I happened to have Tom on my mind. I dropped in to buy some silver plate for mother. Buying plate, I suppose, set me to thinking in a fugitive sort of way about the time when Tom and I shall be doing our own stunt in the house-furnishing line. Something of the kind must have been in mind when I made out my check. I handed it to the clerk, that dear, venerable-looking old chap you know. He glanced at it; looked a trifle puzzled; then smiled and returned it with the remark that he feared there was some mistake."

"Mistake?" asked I. "Isn't the amount correct?"

"Quite so," he replied. "But just have a look at the signature."

"I did have a look at it, and what on earth do you suppose I had written?"

"I'm sure I'd never guess," said she of the gray eyes. "What had you done?"

"Your own sweetheart, Eloise."

Beware.

O friend, when doubts assail thy mind, When dark the way before, Remember to be doubly kind To those of lesser store.

Try not to prove it wrong, Think how their love has made them free, Their faith has made them strong!

And thinking thus how others fare, Of thine own unbelief beware, Let it shall curb thy deeds, For better 'tis to wish life well, To help each brother man, Than to dispute o'er heaven or hell, Or frame a better plan.

We do not know, we can not tell, The way that lies ahead, Not one who knows futurity, Not one by wisdom led, The humblest faith may far outreach Proud reason's highest call, And in its gentle service teach, To love is best of all.

LIFE AND THE MILK SUPPLY.

In many of the great cities of this country the milk supply is closely connected with the health and life of the people. This is especially true of the babies in great cities like Chicago.

Recently the milkmen of that city have put into force a rule of once a day deliveries. As a result, disease and death have come to many children, as much of the milk is delivered too sour to be used, so the health department claims. Of course, if the milk were clean and cleanly handled it would keep for more than twenty-four hours. But the milk is in such poor condition that it will keep for but a few hours in warm weather. The board of health warns the public that the dirty milkman is more dangerous than the dishonest one. An official of the Board of Health said: "The problem has faced in years. It is a matter of life and death. It is practically impossible to keep milk for twenty-four hours in the congested districts, and it is in these districts that the greatest infant mortality results. The people there seldom are able to purchase ice. We believe that the milk drivers will see the dangers of the situation and give the problem serious consideration."

According to the department's statistics, close milk inspection during the last six years has brought a decided improvement in the milk supply of the city. During the previous six years, before stringent methods were enforced, there had been 66,003 deaths of children under 5 years of age in the city. During the six years now closing there have been but 51,046 such deaths. The under 5 years population, according to the federal census, increased 30 per cent between 1890 and 1900. So that, on this basis, instead of 51,046 deaths in the second five-year period there would have been, had the earlier death rate continued, 85,083 deaths.

Sour milk is declared to be the cause of the increased death rate recently among babies. One of the health commissioners of Chicago asserts that the increased death rate is due to intestinal diseases caused by the fermentation set up by the attempt to digest sour milk. Chief Milk Inspector T. F. Grady of Chicago says: "Germs thrive wonderfully in the milk detained by the flakes of rust left after the can has been washed. In this way the supply for a whole neighborhood is often polluted, the children being the greatest sufferers. I have devised a red label which is to be pasted tightly on every rusty milk can coming into Chicago. The can will go back to the farmer and his name be retained. If that can ever come back it will be smashed and the milk in it poured out, as well as any other milk that farmer sends in. By keeping his name we can tell who uses rusty cans and we shall condemn his whole supply for fear of missing the rusty can. The consequences are too grave to be overlooked. We intend also to post a circular on all milk platforms warning dealers that they must sterilize their cans before sending milk in them to Chicago. Sour milk is very common. It might be supposed that formalin would be used to counteract the tendency to sour, but careful tests have revealed none."

The war for clean dairy products should go on till we have not only pure butter and cheese, but pure and clean milk delivered to our cities.

CARE OF COLTS.

As was predicted in the Farmers' Review many times during the past five years horses are now scarce and selling at high prices. This appreciable market promises to continue for years to come so that breeders will do well to give this season's colts the very best of care. Foal flesh is easily lost but difficult to regain; indeed we are of the opinion that a colt badly stunted at weaning time never regains its lost flesh and vim in full measure.

Much of the success of professional breeders of horses, who are also the winners of most of the premiums at state and national exhibitions of live stock, is dependent upon the fine care and feeding they give the young growing animals. The feeding and management of brood mares and their foals was always a study with the late M. W. Dunham of Wayne, Ill., and with him had become a science and an art which has been handed down to many a man who visited the Oaklawn stables to see and learn.

The critical time in the foal's life is when it has to do without its mother's milk. Trouble often follows the weaning process for the reason that it made a starvation process. The foal is suddenly weaned without due preparation whereas it should practically manage. Just as soon as possible the foal should be furnished with a boxful of feed to which the mare cannot gain access. This box should contain a mixture of two parts of crushed or coarse ground oats and one part of wheat bran. The foal will soon learn to lick this food and then eat it with avidity until, with grass, it can get along without its mother's milk. At this time the food of the mare should be reduced in quantity and quality so that her milk will commence to dry up. Instead of running with the mare all of the time the foal may now be kept away from her during part of the day and soon weaning will have taken place almost unnoticed and without either loss of foal flesh or any undue trouble of the mare. Another critical time is when the grass is getting dry and scant in summer. It is well at that time for the man who has provided an ample supply of green fodder. R. B. Ogilvie of Wisconsin attributed much of his success in developing foals for the fall fairs to the way in which he fed the mares going upon grass. It was his custom to provide a thickly sown strip of fodder corn alongside of the pasture. The strip was about ten rods wide and the seed was dropped from the seeder. So as to plant it thickly the alternate spots were shut off. The corn came up thickly, and when pasture grass began to dry up, was ready to cut as an adjunct food. The brood mares and foals were kept in the barn during the day time in well ventilated box stalls if they were to be shown or in stalls if they were not intended for the fall fairs. When turned out in the evening they were given a good feed of this corn, which was cut and thrown over the fence at the rate of a large armful for each mare. Having been fed a feed of oats and bran before being turned out to graze this filled them up and they did not have to range all over the pasture or bite it too close. It was found well to conserve the pastures so that they would be in good shape to send up a strong, quick growth of new grass. The first thing in the morning corn was again cut for the mares to eat and after it had been consumed they were turned into the box stalls or sheds and there given a full feed of oats and bran mixed with cut hay. In the pastures and yards there was a supply of fresh water at all times. The foals were early accustomed to eat at the same time as their dams. They had their troughs separate from those used by the mares and their food consisted of grain and finely cut hay, but the grain was crushed and wetted. This was given to the foals morning, noon and night, and the mares fed in the same way on grain and bran along with the green crop and grass always had a full flow of milk so that the foals came along in the fastest possible manner, whereas foals kept by neighbors in the usual way made a sorry appearance in comparison. It pays to feed in this manner so that the foals may be kept steadily growing despite the warm dry weather of summer, nor do we know of any other crop cheaper than corn fodder for the mares nor another that will produce so much from a given area if the seed is put in at intervals of a week or ten days for 3 or 4 consecutive seedings, so as to have green corn steadily throughout a long period of time. The mares do wonderfully well upon the feeding and their milk seems to secrete freely and afford the highest possible nourishment for the foals which are at all times sleek-skinned and thrifty.—Farmers' Review.

Standard Black Langshans.

From Farmers' Review: Now that the revision committee is preparing a new guide for us to follow in breeding standard Langshans why will this not be a good time to rid the poultry fraternity of mongrel or Cochon Langshans? The Cochon is a pretty fowl, but of opposite qualities to those of the Langshan. The Langshan is a sprightly, active bird of immense substance, while the Cochon is a quiet, slow fowl. The reason of the cross was to produce Black Cochons that would be black. The Cochon breeders had no trouble in producing White partridge and Buff Cochons, but the Black Cochon males would come splashed with red, white and buff in spite of all the breeders could do. About that time Langshans were discovered in China and were brought over, and the Black Cochon breeders, by mating their scrubby little Black Cochon hens to these thoroughbred got black males to their hearts content. Since then breeders for filthy lucre have kept their crosses and the standards of perfection issued by the American Poultry Association have been contaminated with Cochon Langshans to satisfy a "pull" until now it seems time to call a halt. With the exception that Langshans have only some feathers on shanks, while Cochons have a superabundance, no two breeds could differ more widely. The Cochon is a sleepy inactive breed of immense offal capacity, while the Langshan is a big broad-backed, tall, active bird with a sweet gamey carcass. Langshan hens lay every month in the year big brown eggs, are light sitters, but when given a sitting of eggs make the most careful of mothers, are regular hawk fighters, and most excellent foragers. I have bred them for many years. I breed them yet and like them far better than Cochons, Brahmas, Rocks, Leghorns, Games, all of which I have bred. I have read much of still other breeds. The Orpington is a made breed and derives about all its good qualities from the infusion of Langshan blood in it. Do you ask me what breed of all breeds of fowls I like best for an all round fowl? Gladly would I tell you but modesty forbids.—C. A. Forsyth, Oregon County, Missouri.

Age to Enter College.

From Farmers' Review: Will you lend your columns for the correction of a statement which has been repeated so often that its truth is not doubted? Yet it is not true. It has been asserted that the university discriminates and requires the age of eighteen for admission in the College of Agriculture, while in other colleges a student can enter at sixteen. A student who enters for a four years' course can do so in any college of the university at sixteen years. But the trustees discriminate in favor of the special students of the College of Agriculture by allowing them to enter at eighteen. In all other colleges of the university a special student is not admitted under twenty-one. It is a matter of grave doubt whether a sixteen-year-old boy is fitted by previous training to specialize in any course intended to fit him for his business life. It is also very probable that even if he has been out of his country grammar or high school for two years before entering the special course at the university, he is thereby better fitted by greater maturity of intellect to make the most of a two-years' course. If boys intending to specialize in agriculture would enter for a four years' course at sixteen or spend the first two years in a general culture training, they would be better fitted to specialize the last two years. One of the best educators of the times is in favor of allowing a period of two years between grammar school and entering any special course of professional work, holding that the active work on the farm, developing physical and mental capacity, counts for greater progress when the two years has expired and the boy begins his special study.

From personal experience I am convinced it is a great mistake to send either boy or girl to the university at sixteen. It rarely happens that either are fit to leave parental control at that age. It should not be forgotten that good citizenship based upon good morals and steady habits is as important to the state as that the individual should be a self-supporting, well-trained mechanic or worker in any line. There are too many instances of deterioration of character and the permanent acquisition of evil habits to justify those looking to the welfare of the state as well as the individual in encouraging too early entrance of the university in any college.

Will the agricultural press kindly copy this letter and relieve me from answering many appeals based upon a mistaken notion of the subject.

ALICE ASBURY ABBOTT, Trustee of the University of Illinois.

The Farmers' Review agrees with the sentiments expressed in the above letter. It is a mistake to send boys and girls to college too early, for numerous reasons. College work is hard, and the immature student is often overworked. Maturity is absolutely necessary to get the most good out of any college course, whether regular or special. Sixteen is too young to enter even the regular academic courses, and the University of Illinois has perhaps put the age too low, when it made it possible for a student of sixteen to enter. At a Wisconsin convention a year ago, Prof. Henry, dean of the Agricultural College of Wisconsin, said: "I do not want you farmers to send me any more boys under 21 years of age." His belief, as expressed afterward, is that a certain degree of maturity is absolutely necessary to permit the student to benefit largely from the work. Experience has shown that boys of 15 and 16 years obtain little. The mother of a 15-year-old boy asked the writer's advice about sending her son directly from the eighth grade to a leading agricultural college. He advised her by all means to send him to the local high school first. But she would not be convinced and the boy spent the next two years in an agricultural short course. He is now driving a coal wagon in a Chicago suburb. We need thoroughness in agricultural education as well as in every other branch. In our regular graded courses a child begins to go to school at six, completes the eighth grade at fourteen and the high school at eighteen. The work is hard enough to make it difficult for most pupils to keep up with their grades, and during the last five years a great deal of evening study has to be done. The student must be brilliant indeed to jump two years. There is, therefore, no great demand for a college rule allowing entrance at sixteen. The people that are agitating to reduce to sixteen the age for entering the agricultural college will do well to look into the matter a little more carefully before continuing their efforts.

Association of Expert Judges.

The National Association of Expert Judges on Swine will hold its annual meeting at Des Moines, Iowa, on June 17th, the day following the meeting of the Iowa State Swine Breeders' Association. Those having animals which they would like scored can have it done free of charge by corresponding with the secretary, W. D. McTavish, Coggon, Iowa. All those desiring to learn the perfect points of the hog should by all means attend this meeting. Instruction will be given on the use of the score card in practical work by the best judges. Here is where the old breeders brush up and the new ones learn. A large and profitable meeting is anticipated.

—Wm. D. McTavish, Secretary.

BIBLE, WRITTEN BY HAND, A WORK OF ART.

Like the monks of the middle ages, Mr. R. B. Johnston of Glasgow, Scotland, has written the Bible by hand and beautifully illuminated it. His was a herculean task, in this day of rapid achievement and expeditious processes. Mr. Johnston worked seven years over his Bible manuscript and not long ago put the finishing touches upon the unique book.

One striking thing about the production is that the letter text does not vary from Genesis to Revelation. The work is done on post quarto paper, and looks like the production of some medieval ecclesiastic. The artistic arrangement, the spacing and the alignment of the text are due, in a large measure, to the fact that Mr. Johnston is a practical printer.

"In my work of rewriting the Scriptures," said Mr. Johnston, "I discovered two typographical errors. These, you know, are very rare, and are regarded as statutory offenses, for which a penalty may be imposed."

The hand print made use of by Mr. Johnston has commended itself to a firm of London printers, who have prepared types from it, paying him a large sum for the original design. It is Mr. Johnston's idea to have his hand written Bible issued to the public in parts by the process of photo-lithography.

Suffer From Cold in Fire.

It is strange to think that the scene in the inferno scenes in "Dante," by Sir Henry Irving has produced such a wonderful illusion, and method by which it is produced is the stage of Drury Lane theater. Many of the actors get cold during the rehearsals, and suffer on the stage have been to sneeze in their fiery graves.

Prizes for Best-Kept Lawns.

Mayor Hiram M. Summers of Ottawa, has published a notice offering a number of prizes to the persons who will maintain the best-kept lawns and lawns in the town this summer. Already a number of citizens registered their names as contestants. A committee will tour the lawns three times, and from the result their observation and the prizes will be given.

China a Riddle to Europe.

Pierre Loti does not believe that there will ever be a real understanding between Europe and China. In his last volume, which describes his experiences during the late war, his refrain is "China will always remain a riddle to us."

How Wives Make Business.

It was in a decorator's shop, and one of the employees was reporting to the proprietor. "I advised Mr. Cooke to have the whole house decorated during his wife's absence in Canada, as a surprise," he said. "So we've got the job." "Good!" cried the proprietor, enthusiastically. "Then we'll have to do it all over again when she comes back. Say, you deserve a holiday for working that so well!"

Pastor's Long Record.

Retiring after a pastorate of fifty-one years in the Reformed churches at Farmersville and Aranda, Pa., Rev. Daniel F. Brendle, aged 81 years, will have an annual pension of $300 and all the marriage and baptismal fees that come his way. He has never worn spectacles, has baptized 2,794 converts, married 727 couples, or 1,464 persons, buried 1,221 parishioners and preached 4,791 sermons.

THE HERALD'S COURTESY

Its New Press Placed at The Standard's Disposal—An Act Appreciated by the Management of this Paper.

The newspaper business does not all consist of front seats at the circus. And there are depths of despair from which free tickets to the county fair would fail to raise one. And, yet again, there are some very bright spots, withal.

A sample of the depressing influence is instanced in the fact that our press went out of business with a bad break on press day leaving some 200 more papers yet to run. But "Jim Dumps" was not more quickly transformed to "Sunny Jim" than The Standard management climbed out of the slough of despond with the aid of Mr. Mingay of the Chelsea Herald who immediately placed his new press at our disposal. By this act of business courtesy The Standard was as usual able to reach all its readers.

We wish to thank Mr. Mingay through our columns and assure him again that his act was thoroughly appreciated.

THE BASEBALLISTS.

The Junior Stars again invaded the enemy's country last Saturday when they went to Saline to play the High school team of that place. The game was billed as a championship contest for first honors in Washtenaw county for 17 year old teams. The Junior Stars were out to prove that they were the real champions and did so much to the enjoyment of the few Chelsea loyalists who went with the team, and to the tune of 30 to 1. That the Saline High school should have claimed the honor of being champions, is a thing to be explained, as they were outclassed from the start to the finish of the game. There were no features to the game, all of the Stars putting up a fine game in the field, and excelling themselves at the bat. The score by innings was not obtainable but the following is the summary:

Runs: McLaren 3, Holmes 2, Rogers 4, Cook 2, Rafferty 2, G. BeGole 1, L. BeGole 2, McGulness 2, Bacon 2, Saline; Sweezy 1. Struck out: Rogers 3, Kite 1. Bases on balls: Rogers 3, Kite 9. Sacrifice hits: Holmes. Errors: Stars 4, Saline 14. Time of game, 2 hours. Attendance, 100. Umpires, BeGole and Rogers of Saline.

BASE BALL NOTES

The Junior Stars also have a game with the North Lake team at this place on July 2nd.

The Portland High school team will be unable to make the proposed tour of Southern Michigan on account of some of the boys being back in their studies, hence, the game will not be played until sometime in August.

The base ball team were greatly pleased at the loyalty of some of their friends who went to Saline last Saturday through the rain to see them play. The following made up the party: Messrs. D. C. McLaren, Geo. A. BeGole, H. S. Holmes, J. J. Rafferty, N. H. Cook and M. J. Noyes and Misses Zoe BeGole, Lina Mills, Ethel Cole, and Mame Shaw.

The people of Chelsea have a treat in store for them on next Saturday as on that date the Detroit Banners will be here for a game. The Banners are one of the strongest teams in Detroit ranking well with the Detroit Juniors. They are very proud of the fact that they are the only team that ever defeated the Junior Stars two out of three games.

JACKSON VS. GRASS LAKE.

Friday afternoon the Jackson Independents met the Grass Lake Sluggers at K. of P. park. Some excellent plays were made by both teams but the cream of the game was in the two pitchers with little the most in the one for Grass Lake.

Aside from the fact of the effectiveness of the batteries, and one or two notable exceptions, it was not very good base ball from the fact of being flimsy and uneven. Both teams appeared more or less anxious and made wild throws as if to hurl the horseshoe sphere out of the lot. In the infield the Jacksons went after the ball as if it were a dollar disappearing through a crack in the sidewalk and consequently made some wretched fumbles.

But the fact that stands out prominent is that base ball cannot be played for a wager. Some sports will stand it but base ball won't. The game was a conclusive demonstration of the difference between a sportman and a sport. The Jackson team were certainly the worst offenders. The second baseman for that team did the part of a thug and a pug ugle to perfection and never skipped an opportunity to do rowdy stunts.

The spirit of being solely out after the plunder whether by fair means or foul not only actuated most of the players but the same spirit was with the crowd and some things were done that would look so in print they are better omitted.

Most people who are really the friends of base ball in Chelsea are of the opinion that to preserve strictly amateur ball, actuated alone by a love of clean sport and not by plunder, was a town had better reserve our patronage for the Junior Stars.

While here he was the guest of his brother and sister Dr. and Mrs. Schmidt. His daughter Edith H. is also here on a visit. The Schmidts are also entertaining Mrs. E. McMahon.

The adjutant general of our state wants the name of every Michigan soldier, service and letter of his company and those who were residents in Michigan, but who served in other regiments, his residence when he enlisted and his present residence, or if dead the date of death and place of burial. If not a member of the G. A. R. please hand it to the adjutant of some post.

A number of our local athletes have invitations to participate in the "Field Day" at Pinckney on Saturday. The great point of rivalry will be between the newly formed Young Men's Club and St. Mary's Athletic Association, both of Pinckney. A fine list of events has been prepared and the program will be carried out unless prevented by altogether unfortunate weather.

Charles Kellogg returned the first of the week from Detroit where he had been in attendance at the graduating exercises of the Detroit College of Law from which his son Will has just been graduated. Mr. Kellogg, senior, reports having a highly enjoyable time and while away also visited his son Dr. E. B. Kellogg at Belleville who has built up a fine medical practice at that place.

An unusual opportunity to see California and western sights at a moderate expense will be afforded by the excursion run to the national encampment of the G. A. R. at San Francisco. One of these excursions will leave Detroit August 10 over the Wabash, Missouri, Pacific and Denver and Rio Grande railways. Those interested should communicate with R. S. Greenwood, 310 Marquette Building, Chicago.

Died, suddenly June 14, Duane Leeman, aged 2 years and six months, son of Rev. and Mrs. N. P. Brown of Mosherville. Funeral services were held at Mosherville, June 16th, conducted by Rev. P. J. Maveety of Albion. Mrs. Brown is a daughter of C. G. Leeman of Chelsea. C. G. Leeman and Miss Mary V. Leeman of Chelsea, Mr. and Mrs. John C. Leeman, Fred Leeman and daughter Ida of Sharon attended the funeral.

Sunday was a day observed by the L. O. T. M. and the K. O. T. M. M. as an occasion for marking the graves of deceased members of those orders with tokens of remembrance and respect. In the Chelsea cemetery the graves of three women were thus marked and fourteen men. The men's lodge also sent a committee to decorate two graves in the German Methodist cemetery at Sylvan and one in the Vermont cemetery.

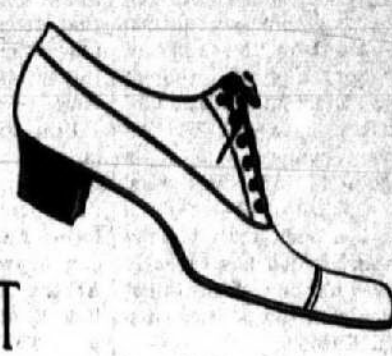

Rev. Dr. Charles O'Reilly who was so severely injured in Detroit last winter was some weeks ago taken to Adrian. For a time he lay in a precarious condition and some papers of this part of the state have printed statements that would indicate that his life was all but despaired of. The Standard, however, is glad to state that friends of Dr. O'Reilly in Chelsea have received word from him in the last few days saying that he is greatly improved.

Joe Winters who was working as a lineman near Battle Creek sustained a severe injury Saturday and was brought home that night. While climbing a fence after one of his tools he had dropped he caught his foot and fell breaking his leg between the knee and ankle. This is another instance of the irony of fate. As a nifty climber he went up and down the tallest poles without accident and then suffers a severe mishap while getting over a fence.

The Michigan Bankers' convention which is in session at Saginaw and at Pointe Aux Barques is being attended by Mr. and Mrs. F. P. Glazier. Local interest also centers in the fact that Hon. A. F. Freeman of Manchester, President of the State Tax Commission, will deliver one of the addresses. A fine program for entertainment, as well as the discussion of the problems of finance, has been provided. Among those who will entertain is noted the name of Harold Jarvis, a singer known locally. Among the prominent speakers who will be present are Senator Burrows and William Alden Smith.

HARD TO AVERT FRICTION IN THE DUAL KINGDOM

Emperor Francis Joseph Overburdened With Trouble in the Work of Holding Together Warring Racial and Religious Elements—Dr. Von Korber's Diplomacy.

(Special Correspondence.)

Austria-Hungary is naturally a hot-bed of strife. It contains racial and religious elements hopelessly antipathetic, there is a flaw in its scheme of constitutional unity and the problem of maintaining satisfactory racial and financial relations between the two halves of the monarchy puts its statesmen absolutely at their wits' ends. It is this phase of the empire's troubles which has been acute for the last five years and which has recently been responsible for one of the most dramatic incidents in the political history of modern Europe.

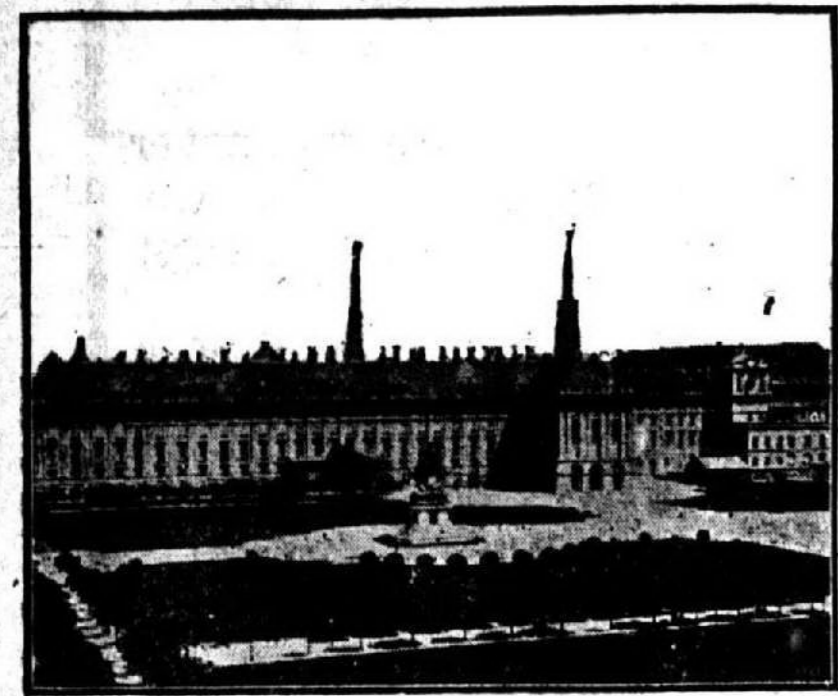

The fiscal and financial relations of Austria and Hungary, unlike their political, military and diplomatic relations, are subject to decennial revision. They are embodied in a treaty known as the "ausgleich" or customs union. When this arrangement, which is about fifty years old, came up for confirmation in 1897 there was a deadlock between the two halves of the joint state, and a temporary solution was adopted continuing the status quo until the end of 1902, when it was stipulated that the definitive ausgleich must be concluded.

Therefore, at midnight of Dec. 31, 1902, the customs compact must have been agreed upon, or the unity of Austria and Hungary for all practical purposes would have come to an end. M. Szeil traveled from Budapest to Vienna, and he and Dr. von Korber, under personal and vigorous pressure from Francis Joseph, spent the last day of the old year in an anxious and strenuous endeavor to reach an agreement. At 9 o'clock that night they were still apart. It looked as if a compact were impossible and the statesmen decided to give it up. Both the prime ministers and the aged emperor, whose vigilance and tact ministered to the conference throughout, saw no escape from the impasse, and the negotiations terminated. A semi-official to M. Szeil's hotel to make a final attempt at a solution. Before midnight that attempt was successful and a new ausgleich bore the signatures of the ministerial heads of Austria-Hungary.

Unhappily the "ausgleich" question is not thus finally disposed of—not even for ten years. Parliamentary ratification remains to be effected before Austro-Hungarian imperialists can have a sigh of complete relief. At the Austrian embassy in London this week it was said that the compact was to come before the present session of the reichsrath and that every hope was entertained of its ing safely over the breakers there. English friends of the monarchical principle of government hold that it has been strikingly vindicated in these last few months of Austro-Hungarian history and that upon it depends the future of that country as a federal power. But for Francis Joseph, they say, the negotiations resulting in the renewal of the ausgleich could not have resulted successfully, and therefore there would have been no chance, as there now is, for the executives of the two halves of the monarchy, moved by the threat of an irreparable imperial calamity, to fall back upon arbitrary resources as a weapon against the unreasoning feuds of the different elements in the state. It is probably quite true that if Francis Joseph's soothing influence had been withdrawn the prime ministers would have drifted wide apart and Austria-Hungary would have broken in two, with some 25,000,000 people on each side of the dividing line.

It was stated above that there is a flaw in the Austro-Hungarian constitutional structure. That is certainly the opinion of students of the affairs of the dual monarchy in this country. The defect lies in an assumption that does not correspond to fact. It is as-communicé was issued shortly after 9 o'clock stating the facts. It is thought that Francis Joseph went to bed oppressed by the belief that the system over which he presided was on the verge of a dark and unknown crisis and that the new year might mark the opening of a fateful chapter in the national story of Austria-Hungary.

Cathedral.

It was Dr. von Korber who saved the situation. The sands of the eleventh hour had nearly run out when his restless mind laid hold of some new resource of compromise—just what does not seem to have been publicly stated—and he hastened by carriage sumed in the constitution that the Germans are strong enough numerically and cohesively to govern in Austria as the Magyars govern in Hungary. But the thing does not work out that way in practice. The result is that whereas Hungary approaches any question affecting the joint interests of the empire solidly devoted to the Hungarian point of view, Austria, on the other hand, approaches the same question torn asunder by racial or factional dissensions. The result is that Hungary usually gets the better of joint negotiations and Austria comes off with a loss of material advantages and a gain of anti-federal irritation.

THE GOAT AND THE PLUG.

Old Darkey Was Satisfied the Animal Could Read.

Three colored men were discussing the intelligence of different animals. One claimed that the dog knew more than all other animals put together. The horse was favored by a second man, but old Peter Jackson said that, "in my opinion de goat am de 'telligentest critter livin'." I kin prove dat de goat kin read. I saw him do it, an' I know it am true. Several days ago, I wuz walkin' down—street, dressed in mah best suit ob clothes, an' wearin' mah new plug hat. When I got down de main street I seed a billboard on which it said, "Chew Jackson's plug." A goat wuz standin' thar when I passed, an' when I wuz about ten feet away he must hab recognized me, for de next thing I knew I wuz sailin' 'roun' de mud. When I looked 'roun', dat goat wuz chewin' mah plug hat for all he wuz worth. Gemmen, da is no question in mah mind about de 'telligence ob de goat. He am a wondah."

NOT TO BE TRUSTED.

Why Conductor Thought Women Should Not Have Ballot.

How many-sided and how funny is the life lead in a city street car. Not long ago a woman gave the conductor of one a dollar bill. On receiving the change she counted and recounted it. "This is not right," she called after him. "Ain't, eh; there's 95 cents. Don't suppose yer wanten ride free." She made another mental calculation and blushing subsided. As the man reached the rear platform he was heard to grumble: "And them's de things as wants to vote."

Wig Good Cause for Divorce.

The widow of a large estate owner in Germany, who recently married a count of small means, has obtained a separation from her second husband on exceedingly novel grounds. After the marriage the bride discovered that her husband wore a wig and received such a shock at the sight of his bald head that she took a violent antipathy to him, and commenced proceedings against him. Her suit was successful, and she obtained a separation after three weeks' marriage. The grounds upon which the decision was based were that if she had known of the wig she would never have married the count.

Will Loan Money to Poor.

A body of philanthropic New Yorkers have formed themselves into the Personal Protective Loan Association, with the purpose of loaning money to the poor at 6 per cent per annum. The capital of the organization is $10,000 and the incorporators are Thomas M. Mulry, Edward F. Cragin, Rev. Dr. David J. Burrell, Father A. P. Doyle and Robert B. Miller. Individual money lenders never charge less than 30 per cent, and sometimes a great deal more. There are 300 pawnshops in New York.

Had to Pay to Find Out.

At one of the New York theaters they are playing a piece called "A Fool and His Money." A preacher from Wisconsin was visiting Gotham last week and in passing the theater one evening was curious to know if the play conveyed the proverbial lesson suggested by its title. Stepping up to the box office, he inquired regarding the matter. "I think," said the snave party behind the grating, "that the moral of the piece is that the fool and his money gather no moss. It will cost you $2 to find out exactly." The preacher murmured "Thank you" and withdrew. He tells the story himself.

Inspecting American Railroads.

J. T. Tatlow, John Wharton, George Banks, F. T. Dale and H. O'Brien, officials of the Lancashire and Yorkshire railway of England, are in this country and will make extended inspection of American railroads. They have been viewing things in several eastern cities and will shortly visit Chicago. They represent the mechanical, freight and passenger departments of the Lancashire and Yorkshire road.

The Coming Man.

"Mrs. Frisbie is suing her husband for divorce." "Indeed? What is the trouble?" "Well, she says she tried not to mind when Mr. Frisbie used her curling irons, wore her shirt-waists and borrowed her collar buttons. But when he began to go through her pockets and extract her small change after she was asleep she felt that patience had ceased to be a virtue."—Brooklyn Eagle.

Costly Skipping-Rope.

A skipping-rope has been presented by a fond Pittsburgh millionaire to his six-year-old daughter. The handles are gold, studded with an odd jewel, while the cord, the finest procurable, cost more than a dollar per inch. When the child grows a little older she will be able fully to appreciate her papa's gift. At present she treats it as if it were an ordinary rope.

New Way to Do Time.

Dr. Lillinksfeld, of Butte, Mont., is credited with having adapted hypnosis to a novel purpose. The doctor, having been placed under arrest, tried, fined and sentenced to gaol for twenty days for some small infraction of the law, deliberately hypnotized himself, saying he would awaken from his trance at the expiration of twenty days. All efforts to awaken him were unsuccessful till the end of that period. As a means of "doing" time, or of whiling away long intervals, Dr. Lillinksfeld's plan is probably unique.

"AMATEUR HAS NO SHOW," SAYS OLD-TIME CARD SHARK

Professional Gambler Shows How Cards Are Marked
to Deceive the Honest Poker Player—"No Such Thing as a Gentleman's Game."

"Forty years at fleecing" is the record of an old man whose face and figure are familiar to some of the smartest dwellers on the West Side and to every gambling house of any note in the country. He is an old man now nearly sixty. He has made and lost a dozen fortunes. Out of the wreck he has managed to save a tidy sum—enough to enable him to support in fine style a wife, three beautiful daughters and two college-bred sons. Like the broker and the banker who grow tired of the fray, he has "retired," yet in his eager, alert mind there still dwells every secret known to the card shark, every trick of the "skin" game.

From Paris to London, from San Francisco to New York, from Canada to New Orleans, he has picked these up. Some he has invented himself. Never, until a week ago, had he divulged one of them. The unwritten law among gamblers forbade it. Yet in a moment of enthusiasm he was persuaded to throw light on these dark secrets of the gambling house. From the lips of a man who has witnessed many tragedies of the green table it is interesting to learn how he accomplished it, how he has managed to escape the law, how he could look upon card-sharking as a legitimate business.

"The man who cheats at cards earns his money," he said. "The professional gambler must throw all fine sentiments to the winds when he embarks on his career. Friendship—why, 'friendship ceases,' as we say, the minute play is started. Honor, honesty, mercy—all go. You are out to win—to win, no matter how. You can show no quarter. You may be sitting behind the best hand in the deck; you may know what the other fellow has—something good that he will play to the limit. You know that if he bets his pile he is ruined. Do you let up on him? Oh, yes, after he has shored over his last chip and can't get credit for any more. No quarter! You have to do it. You may be willing to buy wine for the crowd outward to the extent of a hundred spot, but you wouldn't let that man keep five dollars in front of him.

The Key Card.

"I have been a gambler nearly all my life, and I will say now that the honest gambler has never been born. It is impossible for him to be honest. Times come when he does not cheat, but it is for lack of opportunity. We are out to win. It is our business to win. Gambling is all chance to the honest man. We have to eliminate chance as far as possible if we are to make a livelihood out of it.

"There is no such thing as a gentleman's game unless you know the history of every man at the table—and even then it isn't. For nearly forty years I have played. I have belonged to some swell clubs. Of course I have cheated. I could not have won enough to pay my dues regularly if I had not. I wore good clothes, had a good address, and no one suspected that I was a gambler and a cheat. I did not to do it, and practically all my life as a gambler I have played with decks so marked that I could read the backs of the cards as well as others could read the faces. There are few packs which cannot be fixed in this style by a little time and patience on the part of an expert.

"Of course it is possible to buy 'brace' decks where the marking is done in the printing. But I preferred to mark my own cards. Of course the other players were at my mercy. They might as well have spread their hands down on the table face up. I knew what every man held.

"There are all sorts of ways to mark cards. The simplest is the best. To the casual observer there must be no difference between the cards. Take this pack. Do you see anything wrong about the backs? Look closely. No? Certainly you would not, if you saw them only in shuffling and dealing amid the excitement of the game. They are marked, and I can tell the denomination and suit as fast as I can deal them. This is the ace of spades; this the king of clubs; eight of spades and so on.

"All quite remarkable until you get the key, and then it is so plain that you feel like kicking yourself. With this pack there is a border in the form of a wall of Troy, with white dots in the center of each open square. Starting with the upper right hand corner the dot in the first space represents an ace, the next to the left a king, queen, jack, ten, and so on down to the deuce. Mark out the dot with ink of the same color as the background of the card. If the dot is missing in the ace square the card is an ace, and so on along the line. For the suits start on the upper right side. The dot missing from the square below the ace means spades, next diamonds, clubs and hearts. Do the same with the corner diagonally opposite, and you have the cards marked so the signs will show when the cards are reversed.

"Yet a man earns his money playing with marked cards. It is a frightful strain. In the first place, you must learn the combination so thoroughly that you don't have to stop to think. Your eyes must be on every card that falls if another man is dealing, and as soon as it falls. Some men hold their cards too closely to permit the backs to be read. Then you must remember what each man received in order to judge his draw. If he holds up four diamonds you must take note whether he gets a diamond on the draw. If his four cards are two pairs you have to be on the lookout to see whether he fills his hand. And then—you might be found out. Discovery, disgrace hangs over you all the time and you must see everything without apparently paying more attention to the cards of the others than anybody else around the table.

The Need of Italy.

"An amateur poker player, no matter how expert, hasn't the slightest chance against a professional. There are too many tricks in the game. The professional knows enough of these to make it a sure thing, while his oppo-

THE NEED OF ITALY.

One Thing in Which the United States Was Ahead.

Last week a gentleman residing in West Forty-fifth street, New York, invited a distinguished native of sunny Italy to a reception at his home. Of course, every one present believed his statement that he was a count and treated him with much consideration. His hostess's husband is a well-known architect, and the member from Italy took up architecture as a subject for conversation.

"I do not like ze American country house," he said. "You haf not ze porte-cochere and must alight from your carriage in ze storm. In Italy every house, even ze cottage, has a porte-cochere—you are very much backward here."

The host, somewhat nettled, made the retort courteous, after surveying the noble son of Italy:

"We go in more for bathrooms in America," he said. "I hear in Italy

HIS BAD-COLORED WHISKERS.

It Was a Good Joke, but They Picked Out the Wrong Man.

"A little joke happened at the turn back there last year," said the stage driver as the highway made a half circle to the west.

"What sort of a joke?" asked the man on the seat beside him.

"Well, among the passengers to start from Hill Top one maw'nin' was a red-whiskered man who was great on the blow. He said he'd almost give $100 to have the stage stopped, and that he wasn't afraid of no forty road agents rolled into one.

"This gave the boys an idea, and it was put up that Joe Harper should be at that turn and pretend to hold us up and see red whiskers go down into his boots."

"And did it come off?"

"It did. When we reached the turn I slowed up a leetle and Joe jumped out and yelled fur hands up. I pulled up the horses and he holloed for the passengers to get down. Lord, how Joe holloed! You could have heard him two miles away. Everybody got down and the passengers in the joke pretended to be half-skert to death."

"But how about red-whiskers?"

"Fur about a minit or two he 'pear'd to be ready to collapse, but then he pulled himself together and it was bad fur poor Joe Harper. He had a gun in both hands and he opened fire and shot to kill."

"I don't know how many bullets he shot into Joe, but it wasn't less'n six, and then he put in half an hour to see if any more robbers was on hand."

"Then the joke was not a success?"

"Not skassly, sah—not skassly. Joe Harper is lyin' in his grave back thar, while the red-whiskered man was so mad about the put up job that he driv all the passengers out of the stage and made them walk fifteen miles."

"I'm a great hand fur a joke, sah, but I ain't jokin' no more—not with red-whiskered men. They may be great hands to brag, but they also is loaded fur b'ar."

REPORTER TOLD THE TRUTH.

Had Absolute Proof That Jefferson Had Retired.

Joseph Jefferson, the veteran actor, is very sensitive on the subject of his retirement from the stage. He has been before the footlights since a small child, and he has never shown any desire to leave it. The interviewer who puts the question of farewells to him gets a rather sharp but pleasant reply, but a reporter in the south recently got the best of him. The actor came down stairs at the hotel one morning and was much disturbed to find a long but mysteriously worded article in which the word retired was closely connected with his name. He knew the managing editor and made a half-hearted complaint. The reporter was called in and asked where he got the story.

"The city editor told me to see Mr. Jefferson," said the young man, "and ask him if he was going to retire."

"Well, did you see him?" said the editor.

"No, sir," said the reporter. "I sent up my card to his room and it was sent back with this written on it: 'Mr. Jefferson has retired.'"

And then the actor who sleeps twenty years in every performance took the reporter out and bought him a five-dollar hat.—New York Times.

The Faces That Smile.

Brother, you are gazing backward toward the scenes of your mistakes; you are weeping over your errors till your proud heart almost breaks. You're repenting and regretting, you are sighing. "O, alas!"

And you're missing all the glories of the present as they pass. Leave the grim and gruesome picture—look the other way awhile. For the face that's toward the future is the face that wears a smile.

You are lost in contemplation of the blunders you have made; you are sighing over the countless times your soul has been dismayed. But the future's sun is shining on the future's verdant trees. And the future's birds are singing—you are missing all of these. Cease that useless gazing backward, look the other way awhile.

For the faces toward the future are the only ones that smile.

When your back is to the future then the blazing lamp of hope Throws your shadow over your landscape and with blinded eyes you grope For the blessings that had vanished with the times they strove to bless.

Face about and you'll discover all your groping's fruitlessness. You'll be dazzled by the glory of the prospect for awhile. But with face turned to the future you will learn to wear a smile.

—S. W. Gilliam in Baltimore American.

Wisdom of Experience.

"What is your opinion as to long engagements?" queried the young man whose springtime fancy lightly turned to thoughts of a matrimonial nature.

"They're the worst ever," answered the man who had found it necessary to comb his hair with a towel for so these many moons. "A long engagement means a short bank balance to begin housekeeping on."

The Reason.

Why are there still some bachelors left To litter the walks of life— Trembling dumb, and Dolefully dumb, With never the nerve to wife? Why are there still some bachelors left To falter and blush and grope? It is plain to me, And you will agree, 'Tis to give some old maid hope.

Charitable Sex.

He (at the ball)—"Just look at that dashing Mrs. De Style. She has diamonds stuck all over her."

She—"Yes, there is nothing equal to paste as a sticker."

TREE THAT DRIES UP SPRINGS.

Eucalyptus Should Not Be Planted in Their Vicinity.

At a recent meeting of the National Agricultural Society of France M. Lamey reported, according to Cosmos, that the eucalyptus is a dangerous tree in the neighborhood of springs, which it dries up rapidly.

"I have seen," said he, "a eucalyptus whose roots had penetrated into the pipes of a sink. The fountain that supplied the house had been destroyed by the roots of neighboring eucalyptus trees, which it was necessary to cut down. At the forestry station of St. Ferdinand, built near a spring that issues from a natural grotto, the roots of the eucalyptus trees planted above have penetrated the fissures in the rock and have completely covered the interior of the grotto with a thick velvety layer formed by an innumerable quantity of tiny rootlets, short and tufted, similar to those by which the ivy clings to walls. Owing to their energetic absorptive power, these rootlets, greedy for water, had also invaded and choked the conduits so that the outflow from the spring was greatly reduced. We may say, then, that although certain species of eucalyptus are valuable aids in drying marshy land it is prudent to keep from planting them in the neighborhood of springs used for domestic purposes or irrigation."

A Maryland Wonder.

Upper Cross Roads, Md., June 15th. —Never in the history of medicine in this state has anything created such a sensation by its marvelous cures of the most extreme cases as Dodd's Kidney Pills.

This wonderful medicine seems to know no limit in its wonder working power. Long-standing cases that have defied the most expert medical treatment seem to yield easily to this new conqueror of disease.

Hundreds have testified to the virtue of Dodd's Kidney Pills. They tell of severe cases of Rheumatism, Lumbago, Backache, Female Trouble, Nervous Diseases and even Dropsy, Diabetes and Bright's Disease cured by this medicine.

Among those who have been benefited may be mentioned Mrs. John Cooney of this place.

Mrs. Cooney says: "I believe Dodd's Kidney Pills the best remedy ever known for Kidney Trouble and weak back. 'They are without exception the best medicine I have ever used. 'I will always praise them highly, for I know that they are good.'"

Mrs. Cooney is only one of many who say of Dodd's Kidney Pills: "The most wonderful remedy we ever heard of."

President Lake of the retail coal dealers of Michigan and Indiana, who met at Indianapolis, said the public and newspapers had been unfair in their criticism of the Coal Dealers' association. He had no knowledge of a combine to keep up prices.

"In diseases that come to women only, as a rule, the doctor is called in, sometimes several doctors, but still matters go from bad to worse; but I have never known of a case of female weakness which was not helped when Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound was used faithfully. For young women who are subject to headaches, backache, irregular or painful periods, and nervous attacks due to the severe strain on the system by some organic trouble, and for women of advanced years in the most trying time of life, it serves to correct every trouble and restore a healthy action of all organs of the body."

"Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is a household reliance in my home, and I would not be without it. In all my experience with this medicine, which covers years, I have found nothing to equal it and always recommend it."—Mrs. LAURA L. BARNES, 607 Second St., N. E., Washington, D. C. —$2.00 per bottle; if ordered by mail add postage.

Such testimony should be accepted by all women as convincing evidence that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound stands without a peer as a remedy for all the distressing ills of women.

FOREIGN DOINGS OF LOCAL INTEREST.

Some of the machinery for the Hillsdale Steel Boot Co., has arrived and is now being put in place. It is not many weeks off before the factory will be started.—Hillsdale Leader.

The above is interesting largely because of the curiosity it excites. What 'tis it?

Glenn Randall, who has been attending school here the past four years, has been neither tardy nor absent during that time. This is a record to be proud of and we would like to know if there is another scholar that can equal it.—Clinton Local.

Who will raise this. We propose to stay out.

At Normal chapel yesterday morning President Jones announced that Gov. Bliss had just signed a bill empowering the Normal college to grant the collegiate degree of A. B., thus becoming a college in fact as well as name. The A. B. course will take only one year more of work than the present Bachelor of Pedagogy course and but two more than the present life certificate course.—The Ypsilantian.

The case of Seneca Litchard, the Saline man who became violently insane in the University hospital after being struck by an Ypsilantian car over a year ago, was of great interest to the medical students who visited the state asylum to attend a clinic in nervous diseases. Litchard is meek and well-behaved, but his mind is a blank. Beginning with his letters the asylum authorities are teaching him everything that a child learns.—Milan Leader.

Sixty seven years ago Tuesday, George Johnson with his parents and others of the family came to Michigan and set stakes where he still resides. During the early forties Mr. Johnson one day sent his son, George, off on horseback to do an errand, returning the old nag did not pony up to George's fancy and he cut a little willow sprout for a whip. When he returned home his mother discovered the twig and suggested that he set it in the ground that possibly it might grow. He did so and the same twig has grown until it now measures 18 1/2 feet around the trunk two feet above the ground.—Saline Observer.

A Jackson stock raising company has been organized in this city. The farms to be operated are located in Genesee Lake and adjacent townships. The duration of the company is fixed at twenty years. The company is capitalized at $15,000. with the capital stock divided into 150 shares at the par value of $100 each. The company was organized principally for stock raising purposes; although a general farming business will be conducted. The company is officered by a board of managers consisting of three of the principal stockholders. A few prominent Detroit men are interested in the concern and are the chief stockholders.—Jackson Patriot.

If building lots could be secured at a reasonable figure, or at any price, at least two business blocks would be erected in this village this season. The parties who desire to build have been looking for a location for months, but those who own property will not sell. This dog in the manager policy ought not to be continued longer. The lots desired are not bringing the owners one cent revenue, nor do they add any to the appearance of our village. Gentlemen place a fair price on your property and sell it to some one who will invest their money here to improve and upbuild our village. On south street there are a number of desirable lots which cannot be bought at any price.—Grass Lake News.

Since brother Stimson has taken hold of The Standard, an ordinary country plug hardly dare poke his head out of his editorial incrustation for fear of getting a whack. Look out there now; the pencil is liable to become boomerang.—Stockbridge Sun.

Yes, sir, you are right. We have been ducking and sidestepping boomerangs a considerable of late and haven't got away untouched always at that. But it strikes us that while the Equumans nose rub must be painful in their climate yet it is inspired by good fellowship and we wouldn't have them abandon it. Just so let us country-plug editors, both ordinary and extraordinary, lambaste each other or "jolly" each other as occasion may require for the purposes of good fellowship or the edification of the onlooker.

H. D. Platt must have an iron mine under his place, judging from its attraction for lightning. Two years ago a horse was killed and last July five hogs by the electric stroke, and Tuesday morning in the storm about 5 o'clock his house was struck and knocked around in lively fashion. Several holes were knocked in the walls, the part recently added was shattered beyond repair, the roof was filled full of holes, and about twenty balls of fire were seen to roll off the roof. Mrs. Platt said a ball of fire as large as a half-bushel rushed through her room. The room occupied by the hired man was badly shattered, and the man is thankful that he was an early riser that morning. The family were all in the house, but were not even shocked

It is said the bolt struck a tree and jumped to the house.—Ypsilantian.

Another old proverb put out of business. Lightning does strikes twice in the same place.

The Nashville News tells of a farmer near its village who put an "x" mark on a silver dollar and came to town to spend it with a merchant. Before the year was out he got the dollar back for farm produce and spent it again with a Nashville merchant. Four times in six years that dollar came home to him for produce and three times he heard of it in the pockets of his neighbors. The last time he got it in change, nearly four years ago, he sent it to a big Chicago mail order house that has amassed a hundred million dollars by selling third rate goods for second rate prices. He has not seen the marked dollar since and never will until the crack of doom. The dollar will never pay any more school or road tax for him, never help to build up the town or county, never bless or brighten the homes of his neighbors. He sent it entirely out of the circuit of its usefulness to him.

Fated

To Die of Paralysis Like Father.

Helpless Invalid For Three Years.

Dr. Miles' Nerve Made My Nerves Strong.

"For many years I suffered from terrible headaches and pains at the base of the brain, and finally got so bad that I was overcome with nervous prostration. I had frequent dizzy spells and was so weak and exhausted that I could take but little food. The best physicians told me I could not live; that I would die of paralysis, as my father and grandfather had. I remained a helpless invalid for three years, when I heard of Dr. Miles' Restorative Nerve and began using it. That winter I felt better than I had before in many years, and I have not been troubled with those dreadful headaches since I first used Dr. Miles' Restorative Nerve. My appetite is good and my nerves are strong."—Mrs. N. M. Bucknell, 2929 Oakland Ave., Minneapolis, Minn.

"For many years I suffered from nervous prostration, and could not direct my household affairs, nor have any cares. My stomach was very weak, headaches very severe, and I was so nervous that there was not a night in years that I slept over one hour at a time. We spent hundreds of dollars for doctors and medicine. I was taken to Chicago and treated by specialists, but received no benefit at all. Finally I heard of Dr. Miles' Nerve and began its use. I was surprised that it helped me so quickly, and great was my joy to find, after using seven bottles, that I had fully recovered my health."—Mrs. W. A. Thompson, Duluth, Minn.
