BOARD OF COUNTY AUDITORS.

Appointments Made Do Not Give General Satisfaction.

Register of Deeds Huston, Prosecuting Attorney Duffy and County School Commissioner Foster appointed the new board of county auditors and issued certificates to them Tuesday afternoon. The new board will meet Monday next, July 6, and is composed as follows: Jas. E. McGregor, Ypsilanti, for three years; Wm. F. Riemschneider, Chelsea, for two years; Byron C. Whitaker, Dexter, for one year.

It was not all smooth sailing in the appointment of this board. F. P. Glazier dictated the appointment of Mr. Riemschneider and Messrs. Huston and Duffy voted for his appointment. Mr. Foster's choice was Stephen L. Gage, of Sylvan. Mr. Glazier and Mr. Foster had some very warm words over the matter and, as reported, Glazier told Foster it did not make a d—d bit of difference whether he wanted Riemschneider or not, he would be appointed.

Straight Republicans do not like this dictation from one who last spring and on several other occasions, when defeated in the caucuses of the Republican party, of which he claims to be a staunch adherent, has turned on the nominees of that party and worked to defeat them.

It is but justice to Mr. Riemschneider to say that there is nothing said against his qualifications, only against the way in which he was appointed.

It is generally conceded that the appointment of a member of the legislature to any office within one year after the expiration of his term is unconstitutional, therefore, the appointment of Mr. Whitaker is illegal and void, as his term as representative has not even expired.

They Surprised the Editor.

The editor of the Herald has written up scores of surprise parties, has participated in many more, but was never the happy victim of one until last night. Yesterday was the 25th anniversary of the wedding of the writer and Mrs. Mingay, and through the medium of the "underground telegraph," the overland telephone, or some other old way, 18 of their friends gathered together and invaded the house by the back door. Mr. and Mrs. Mingay were called into the house from the front porch where they were visiting with a couple of friends and there found the surprise party in full force. It was a well planned surprise and was completely successful. After a couple of hours spent in games and conversation, refreshments were served, and here again another surprise fell to our lot. The editor and wife were called into the parlor and asked to stand up before Rev. C. S. Jones. He told them he did not propose to marry them as he thought the knot had already been well and securely tied, seeing it had stood 25 years wegr and fear. Then on behalf of the friends, in a few flattering remarks, which modesty forbids us to repeat, but which we will say were highly gratifying, he presented them with a beautiful hand painted china chop dish as a remembrance of the occasion. After hearty good wishes and congratulatory words had been said the surprisers left for home, leaving the surprisèes to wonder how it all came about.

The C. E. Reception.

The reception given by the C. E. Society to the members and friends of the Congregational church at the church parlors Tuesday evening was attended mainly by ladies, the lack of gentlemen being very noticeable, indeed some said it was deplorable, until some young men from Ann Arbor arrived on the scene and assisted the few Chelsea gentlemen present to do the honors to the ladies. All those who were present, however, enjoyed the dainty refreshments that were served in the dining room, also the short program in which Miss Mabel Bacon played piano solos, Miss Nellie Mingay recited and Miss Sadie VanTyne rendered two solos which were the feature of the evening.

GERMAN DAY

Will Be Celebrated in Chelsea, Thursday, Aug. 6, After All.

Last week it was announced that the project to hold German Day here had been abandoned, but during the past week new arrangements have been made and it is now definitely settled that German Day will be celebrated here Thursday, Aug. 6.

The committee appointed to look after the matter is hard at work making arrangements and is already able to make the following announcements:

The president of the day will be Chas. G. Kaercher. The address of welcome will be made by F. P. Glazier, president of the village; to be followed with addresses by Charles Werner, of Detroit, president of the state society; Congressman Charles E. Townsend, of Jackson; M. J. Lehman, of Ann Arbor, and others.

The sports will consist of a good game of baseball, foot races, potato race, wheelbarrow race, pie eating contest for boys under 15, dancing, etc., with fireworks in the evening.

There will be a German restaurant in the town hall, and the Workmen's hall and the Woodmen hall will be open for the accommodation of visitors.

The German societies from neighboring places will be here in full force and each will bring a band with them, so that there will be plenty of music in the air.

The committee of arrangements is Geo. P. Staffan, Chas. G. Kaercher, C. W. Maroney and Martin Wackenhut.

The reception committee is Jacob Schumacher, Israel Vogel, Michael Staffan and Michael Merkel.

Baseball Notes.

The Junior Stars lost a well played game on Monday afternoon to Ann Arbor Juniors by a score of 9 to 7. The game was a good one showing the way baseball ought to be played. The spectators seemed to be satisfied with the game although the Stars lost. The Stars presented pretty nearly a new team. Edgar Steinbach playing third in place of A. Baftrey, B. Steinbach on first in Gus BeGole's place, Ray Cook as catcher in LaMont BeGole's place, and Clayton Schenk played second in fine style. The features were the catching of Cook for the Stars and the playing of Taft at short stop, and McKain at second, for Ann Arbor. Score by innings:

	1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8	9
Ann Arbor,	2	0	3	0	0	8	0	0	1—9
Junior Stars,	2	8	0	0	0	0	2	0	—7

Hits—Stars—B. Steinbach 2, Rogers 1, McLaren 2, Bacon 1; Ann Arbor—Teft 1, Graham 1, Adner 1, Snyder 1. Runs—E. Steinbach 2, Holmes 1, McLaren 2, Bacon 1, McGuinness 1—7; Ann Arbor 9. Struck out by Holmes 5, by Gillen 6. Base on balls—Holmes 2, Gillen 1.

The game between the Junior Stars and the Plymouth boys yesterday afternoon was a good one up to the seventh inning, the score standing 7 to 5 in favor of the Stars. In this inning Plymouth was at bat. With two men on bases a long fly was batted by one of the players which was caught by Cook after a long run. He returned the ball to the infielders and the base runners were put out and declared out by the Chelsea umpire. They refused to continue the game and their own umpire then declared them in the wrong and the game forfeited to Chelsea.

Two games will be played here Saturday, July 4, at 10 a.m. and 8 p.m., between the Stars and the Detroit Regulars. Balloon ascensions at 3 and 8 p.m.

Death of Elijah Hammond.

Capt. Elijah Hammond died at his home on East Middle street last evening about 11 o'clock, aged 81 years, 1 month and 25 days. He had been in feeble health for some years, and for the last few weeks has been an intense and constant sufferer from gangrene in the leg. Mr. Hammond was a veteran of the war of the rebellion and was captain of Co. K, 20th Mich. Infantry. He had been a resident of Chelsea for a long period of years and was always a quiet, peaceable, law abiding citizen, a good parent, friend and neighbor. His wife died four years ago. He is survived by four sons, William, Elmer, Finley and Edward B., and three daughters, Mrs. A. Nagel, of Ypsilanti, and the Misses Clara and Lizzie Hammond, who resided with their father. The funeral will be held Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock, Rev. C. S. Jones officiating.

THE MICHIGAN NEWS

What Is Doing in All Sections of the State

The Oil Inspectorship.

The announcement of the appointment of C. L. Benjamin, of Saginaw, as state oil inspector to succeed William Judson, was a trifle premature. The appointment will be made, but not until January next, although Judson's term will expire June 30. Both Judson and Benjamin were in Saginaw Thursday, and together took dinner with the governor. Judson suggested that it was a bad time to stop work in the middle of the year, and Benjamin declared that he was pretty busy just at this time himself. They suggested to the governor that it might be a good plan to permit Judson to serve until January 1, and upon finding the law would permit the governor agreed to the arrangement, which was an amicable one all around. Judson, Benjamin and the governor then went over the list of deputies and reviewed the districts. It was decided to add one new inspector under the terms of the new law providing for the appointment of four deputies in case they were necessary, and Fred Dustin, of Saginaw, was selected. He will have the west side of Saginaw county, Isabella, Clare, Midland and Beaver-ton in Gladwin county for his district. Another deputy will be appointed later, as soon as Judson decides where he wants him placed.

Where's the Money?

A number of Saginaw citizens have lately received letters stating that property upon which they had paid taxes, and which they believed their own, had been sold to tax title buyers, and ordering them to vacate. In the books returned to the county treasurer of taxes collected in 1899, a large number of erasures have been found, descriptions originally marked paid having later had "returned" stamped upon them. Ten cases are reported and it is estimated that 100 or more will be found. All erasures and shortages found so far apply to the year 1899. John M. Messner was city treasurer, John P. Weiss, deputy, Washburn Horning, county treasurer, and Fred W. Kent, deputy in 1899. No explanation can be given for the shortages.

The Judge Smith Appointment.

Should Judge Clement Smith accept the appointment tendered him by President Roosevelt as associate justice of the Supreme court of New Mexico, it is the general opinion in Charlotte that Judge W. F. Stine will be given the judgeship of this judicial circuit. Attorneys Geo. Huggett, G. C. Fox and L. H. McCall, of this city, and Attorney P. T. Colgrove and ex-Senator Potter, of Hastings, are also prominently mentioned. Judge Smith is attending court, but will not make a statement as to his plans. Owing to the apparent opposition to his appointment in New Mexico, he may decide not to accept the appointment.

Horribly Injured.

Miss Anna Leembuis, of Grand Rapids, 16 years old, while returning home from work Wednesday afternoon, was frightfully gored by a vicious cow that had been grazing on the street. The cow caught her on its horns, tossed her into the air several feet and attacked her again when she fell to the ground. Laborers at work in a nearby field ran to her rescue with pitchforks and drove the animal away. Miss Leembuis was taken to Butterworth hospital, and the surgeons there said she could not recover. Her spine was injured, and one of the horns pierced her abdomen and came out through her back.

A Missing Official.

For some weeks Detroit has been on the qui vive over an investigation of the doings of its commissioner of public works, D. W. H. Moreland, and some very warm things have been brought out. The greatest sensation now is the disappearance of the commissioner when the committee is sitting to hear his defense. Some say he is keeping quiet at home, others that he is away resting. There is talk of a grand jury and a general clean up of alleged misdoings by others as well as the commissioner. Meanwhile nobody knows what will come next.

Wayne County Grand Jury.

The flight of D. W. H. Moreland, commissioner of public works of the city of Detroit, while under investigation, resulted in his being removed from office and the calling of a grand jury to meet July 7. There is to be a general inquiry into many matters pertaining to the city, townships and county that are expected to show up some very questionable proceedings. The investigation of the commissioner's office was not devoid of bad odors and suspicion that there are others.

Attacked by Bees.

Thos. E. Mars, of Berrien Center, was sawing a limb off a fruit tree this morning when he was attacked by a swarm of bees. He pitched head foremost from the ladder, falling 15 or 20 feet. He was injured internally, his hip was fractured, and he sustained severe bruises. As he is 74 years old, there is fear that his injuries will be fatal. Mr. Mars was a state senator in 1888. He is a prominent Oddfellow and Patron of Husbandry, and was formerly master of the State Grange.

A farmer in Austin township, Sanilac Co., found a tramp in his hay mow. When ordered out the hobo refused to move and got insolent. The farmer, who held a club in his hand, nearly beat the life out of the fellow. A few more farmers like him and hoboes would be less plentiful.

Aged Mrs. Thomas Weston, who lives on a farm west of Three Rivers, was choked and robbed of $10 at her back door. Her cries brought her husband, but he was held back at the muzzle of a revolver. The farmers of that neighborhood may deal summarily with the offender if he be caught.

NEWS OF THE WORLD

A Brief Chronicle of Matters of Importance.

The Rigor of the Law.

President Roosevelt has sent a letter to Atty-Gen. Knox regarding the postal investigation, in which he says: "As a result of this investigation, a number of indictments have already been had and it is probable that other indictments will hereafter be asked for. There can be no greater offense against the government than a breach of trust on the part of a public official, or the dishonest management of his office, and, of course, every effort must be exerted to bring such offenders to punishment by the utmost rigor of the law."

"The district attorney's office of the District of Columbia has faithfully and zealously seconded the efforts of the postoffice department in this matter, but the amount of work in the office is such as to make it difficult, without neglecting other important public duties, to devote all the time necessary to the prosecution of these cases. I suggest, therefore, that if you cannot detail some of your present staff, you appoint special assistants in these postoffice cases, not only to take up the cases in which indictments have been found or hereafter may be found, but to examine into all charges that have been made against officials in the postal service, with a view to the removal and prosecution of guilty men whether in the service or not, where the cases are not barred by the statute of limitations."

Carrying out the president's suggestion, Atty-Gen. Knox has appointed Charles J. Bonaparte, of Baltimore, a special attorney to assist in these prosecutions, and upon his return here this afternoon Holmes Conrad, former solicitor-general, will be tendered a like appointment.

Feel the Law's Force.

In the United States court in Montgomery, Ala., J. W. Pace, a prominent planter of Tallapoosa county, was arraigned for trial on eleven indictments charging him with peonage. Demurrers were filed in all the cases which were overruled and Pace then pleaded guilty in all the cases and appealed to the circuit court of appeals at New Orleans, giving bond in the sum of $5,000. The sentence of the court was five years' imprisonment in each case, to be served concurrently.

In the United States court in Macon, Ga., Judge Emory Speer imposed a fine of $1,000 each on three young men, William Shy, Arthur Clawson and Robert Turner, for holding a Negro in involuntary servitude. He suspended the fine under conditions, and in so doing he said: "In view of the fact that it is the first crime of the kind which has ever occurred in Georgia, and because of the frank confession of the young men, sentence is imposed in order to convince the public that the purpose of the court is to warn and deter others from like crime. During good behavior the fine is suspended upon payment of $100 by each." The offense was that the young men, who are prominent farmers, caught a Negro who was in debt to them, gave him a whipping and made him go to work for them.

To Protect Life and Property.

Gen. Murray issued orders which will make absolute the powers of the military in Jackson, Ky., where assassination and arson have been so much in evidence. The first instructions are to the provost marshal to report to City Judge Cardwell and serve any processes issued. The second order recites that the absolute safety of life and property must be maintained in Jackson and if any violations of rights, personal or property shall occur in the town or in Breathitt county, the commanding officer will use the troops in active service to the extreme limit of his authority. The latter order was posted in conspicuous places over the town. It is expected to serve as a warning.

A Little Degenerate.

Gladys Mallard, a little girl of 11 years, attempted to kill Mr. and Mrs. Frank F. Ward, of Los Angeles, who have been her kindly benefactors, and five visitors, by putting poison in their food. The little degenerate, who seemingly has no conception of right or wrong, stated without a sigh of regret, that she expected them to die. She had no reason for wishing the death of her benefactors other than to see them suffer. The child has none of the features of a degenerate other than a low, retreating forehead. Her eyes are bright and her smile pleasant. She is plump and robust; a frolicking, merry child, with none of the offensive manners one would expect to find after reading of her attempt to kill those who had been kind and good to her.

The Jewish Petition.

The officials of the state department assert positively that a close examination of precedent justifies the presentation by the United States government of the Jewish petition to the Russian government and that no government has a right to object to the presentation of such a petition nor has the government a right to object if the presentation is declined. This means that the United States will not find ground for quarrel with Russia if the czar refuses to receive the petition now being prepared by the counsel of B'nai B'rith.

Burned at the Stake.

Urged to the horrible deed by a minister of the gospel and angered by the refusal of a judge to hold a special session of court to try George White, a negro, for the ravishment and murder of 17-year-old Helen Bishop, a mob of 5,000 people, after being repulsed, broke into the Wilmington, Delaware, jail and took White to the scene of his crime and burned him at the stake.

Helen Bishop was the daughter of E. A. Bishop. She met the negro accident in the woods near home in Marshalltown, and he overpowered her, and after accomplishing his devilish purpose, slew the helpless girl. He was soon captured, and as the terrible story spread through the country excited crowds began to gather, and he was brought to Wilmington. On Sunday night Rev. Robert A. Elwood, pastor of Olivet Presbyterian church, displayed to a large open air meeting a cluster of leaves stained with the blood of Helen Bishop, and in a sermon, entitled, "Should the Murder of Miss Bishop be Lynched?" roundly denounced the judges for refusing to hold a special session of court for the trial of White.

Is It a Model Prison?

Chauncey Dewey and his two boys, Clyde Wilson and William McBride, have convenient quarters in the Topeka, Kas., jail. They are kept in a big room well lighted and ventilated and equipped with all modern conveniences. They have all the literature they desire. Young Dewey concluded that he wanted a telephone in his cell, so that he could talk to his friends about town or his father at Manhattan. He applied to Sheriff Lucas for the privilege and it was granted. Within an hour the telephone company had put the phone in. Dewey paid the cost.

New York's real estate assessments for this year amount to $4,730,000,000, an increase of $1,400,000,000 over last year. The personal assessments are $678,000,000, an increase of $133,000,000. The estimated tax rate this year is $1.40 against $2.27 last year.

Charles Voss, a veteran of the civil war, is hopelessly insane at Toledo from having been gassed as a deserter, whereas he had been captured by the Confederates and exchanged. He is entitled to a pension of $800 a year, and the arrears now amount to $25,000, all of which will go to the hospital of which he is an inmate.

Welcome Nye's Fourth

His mother was one of those married maidens who abound even in the best society. He was the child of her middle age; and because she resented his coming, as a check upon her social activities, she had compromised with her Puritanical conscience by calling him Welcome, after the colonial ancestor of her mother.

So, as Welcome Nye, he was sent forth to create disturbance in the world; which he did in inverse ratio to his size and vitality.

His mother did not long survive his birth, and he was left, the incarnation of her nervousness, her restless activity, to perplex and mystify his grave and dignified father.

All legends which he had ever read of elfin children and changelings came back to Adelbert Nye's memory during the confused years which followed—years in which his son was the wonder as well as the despair of physicians and nurses; when the period of his teething became an epoch, when the violence with which he took, one after another, and survived the various diseases of babyhood furnished the subject matter for learned papers at countless medical conventions; when the fabled nine lives of the domestic cat became too insignificant for notice by comparison with the falls and bumps and fractures, the maladies external and internal of Welcome Nye, which went to prove what could be endured with the minimum of vitality in the frail and emaciated form of a boy who was destined to live for the trial and long-suffering of his kind.

So the child continued to grow, and to become the terror as well as the despair of nurses and teachers. The house servants, who had a perfect horror of him, referred to him affectionately among themselves as "The Divvie," a memory of a night when one of the maids, in the enjoyment of a twilight interview with her favorite policeman, looked up to shriek with dismay, as the elfin child, astride the lolly garden wall, laughed in ghoulish glee at their tender farewell.

"May the divvie be your welcome!" had growled the disconcerted guardian of the peace, as his eyes followed him; and since that time the appropriateness of the epithet has grown upon the household.

While his distracted father could reconcile himself to the boy's physical weakness and defects, it was a heavy cross to bear the knowledge of the absolute lack of what the world deems education on the part of his son. His son! And he himself counted a scholar, an ornament to his profession; might be elevated to the bench if he chose; was a marked man in his set as the author of certain deep and thoughtful papers upon historic and scientific topics; had, in fact, all the points of the cultured gentleman and modest scholar. Oh, why, why had fate punished him by making him the father of such a son, who managed to evade all obligations to study, because, forsooth, the doctors declared that he must not be urged, or worried, or excited!

He was 9 now, was Welcome, but scrawling and undersized and wizened, his sharp features and diminutive hands and feet causing his unhappy father to sigh whenever he noted them. Surely there were Darwinian suggestions about the uncanny and repulsive form of the boy, whose defects were never so apparent as when Adelbert Nye contrasted his offspring with the beautiful children of his neighbor, the fascinating Widow Carleton.

It was strange that they should have met again, after her long absence in England.

Adelbert Nye and the beautiful woman, who, as Lella Deland, had been friends in youth—and more. He thought of it all as he walked slowly homeward in the moonlight, after his first call at the villa where she was established for the season, oh, shades of love and poesy! with her twin daughters!

Twins! Adelbert Nye deprecated the slang of the day; yet had he put his thoughts into words, and these words into the vernacular, he must have murmured something about the fact of twins in connection with the sweetheart of one's youth being calculated to jar even a dignified member of the bar!

And, more horrible still, one of the twins had married; and Lella—his Lella—was eking a youthful grandmother!

"And she is 10,000 times more fascinating now than she was then! That sweet September day when we gathered the gentians by the pasture ditch—gentians no bluer than her own dear eyes!" he murmured, with a strange accession of sentimentality. "Ah! after all, age is but a relative term! And the fountain of perpetual youth is not so fabled as one might dream! Yet lovely as Lella is, she is no whit lovelier than is that sweet child, her daughter, the pretty Louise! How fortunate that chance should have made us neighbors!"

Meantime, in the seclusion of her own bed chamber, Lella Carleton was standing before the mirror, removing the jewels which had flashed upon the filmy laces of her handsome dinner gown.

"Oh, who would ever expect a man to be faithful?" she asked herself, with bitterness, forgetting that she, too, had been somewhat inconstant during the long lapse of years.

As the days went on, it was a sweet consolation to Adelbert Nye to have the sympathy of such a neighbor in his affliction—for so he regarded the possession of such a son, in spite of his effort to love the uncanny child and his care and solicitude for the boy's physical welfare. Lella understood, and had pity for him. But it was a source of regret that the child had conceived an instant antipathy toward the beautiful Louise, who found a rare pleasure in teasing the boy, amazing the young tyrant by declaring that what he needed for both physical and mental health was an unlimited dose of Solomon's prescription. To Welcome, who had never been thwarted or disciplined during his capricious life, this was the signal for hatred of the most malevolent sort; and the two waged warfare as persistent as it was regrettable to their elders.

"The divvie! He's run away with the auto!"

It was natural that the sedate and dignified Lawyer Nye should find it both pleasant and convenient to be neighborly, and that he should make calls both frequent and regular at the Carleton villa.

Particularly distasteful to one youth was the gallantry of Neighbor Nye; to the bank clerk with small salary, who devotedly came down from Boston each Saturday, to pay court to Louise.

He did not appear well, this disappointed Archie Irwin, as he was presented to the dignified caller, whom he regarded with sudden hatred and dismay. What chance had he, he asked himself bitterly, against a man with Nye's money, and profession and position? Worst of all, Louise seemed pleased with the attentions of the middle-aged suitor.

Another watched the growing interest of Adelbert Nye in the fair young girl, and tried in vain to ignore the heart-burnings which it caused.

And yet, why? Lella Carleton asked herself. Why should she expect the lover of her girlhood to remain the lover of her middle age?

So the late June days fled; and as the nation's birthday approached, the early cottagers at the Pier joined with the townspeople in preparations to celebrate the day with fitting evidences of patriotism. There was to be an early morning parade of antiquities and horrors, followed by a military demonstration, a parade of automobiles at noon and an old-fashioned afternoon picnic, with reading of the Declaration and patriotic addresses, ending with an evening of fireworks.

Such a busy season as it became for Welcome Nye!

His father was to lead the automobile parade in his fine French racing machine and deep was Welcome's disgust and violent his ire when refused the privilege of accompanying him, more especially since that honor was to be accorded his arch-enemy, Louise Carleton.

The Corsair, looking like a fairy vehicle in its floral adornment, stood in the open doorway of the Nye stables, only waiting the coming of its owner to start upon its triumphal progress. The household was busily engaged, for it was the lunch hour; all were anticipating the rare pleasure of the afternoon.

Suddenly there was a dash, a bang, a warning toot! toot! the odor and puff of gasoline, and out of the stable doorway and down the drive madly dashed a cumbersome floral bullock.

There was a cry of alarm, a rush from stable and household, hoarse warnings hurled after an adventurous and unheeding chauffeur.

"The divvie! He's run away with the auto!" one groom called to another, and that one to the house servants.

In truth it might have been his satanic majesty himself, the way that elfish child dashed down the drive and into the street.

The anxious group followed him in mad haste, but not for long.

They held their breath in horror as they saw the machine zig zag, then essay to climb the grassy terrace at the Carleton villa, ingloriously dropping back; and then, puffing and snorting, with whirling of wheels, dash backward across the road and over the offset, down upon the rough cobble of the beach.

"The child lay very still as they rescued him, seeming to take his mishap as a matter of course.

When they picked him up his left arm hung limp and there were sundry smudges and burned places upon his face; for the Corsair had taken fire, ing to set your shoulder. Surely, you do not mind a little thing like that?" he asked, recalling the child's life time of accidents.

"Oh, I have been a bad, bad boy!" he whimpered, with astonishing penitence. "But I'm never, never going to be bad any more!"

"That is a laudable resolution, my son!" his father responded with mild irony. "Pity you did not think to make it earlier!" and he glanced grimly at the wrecked automobile, and thought of his spoiled plans.

"I'm never going to be bad—if you give me something!" whimpered the boy again.

"My son! I forbear to mention what I'd give you with huge delight, if " gave you your deserts!" exclaimed the sorely tried father; while Mrs. Carleton smiled.

The hapless child in her arms.

"I'll be good," the child astonished them by declaring, "if only I get a new mamma!"

Their eyes met in confusion.

"I'm the only boy 'round here that ain't got no mamma," announced the child, with cheerful impudence and disregard of grammar, "and I want one!" he persisted. "I want Mrs. Carleton!"

"My boy, this is the first good turn you have done your unfortunate father since your birth!" blurted out Adelbert Nye, with surprising alacrity. "You have anticipated my own request!" and he smiled upon the boy most genially. "Now if only Mrs. Carleton consents—"

"But I thought—" that lady began, in confusion.

"Oh, I want you! I want you!" the elfin child persisted, tightening his arm desperately about her neck. "I'll be a good boy! I truly will!"

The doctor was arranging his splints at the end of the veranda. Archie and Louise had joined the curious group on the opposite side of the street.

It was an opportunity afforded them by Fate!

"Lella," the dignified barrister began in a tender whisper, "the child has but voiced my own thoughts! You know what you were to me once! For your dear sake I have learned to love your daughter as my own. She cares for young Irwin; I am in a way to help the boy along. For all our sakes, then, will you not consent?"

"It seems but fair," she responded slowly and calmly, although she felt that he must be aware of the mad beating of her heart, "to exchange my daughter for your son!"

"Lella, I know it is a long time since that far-off September day when we gathered the gentians in the old pasture lot, and vowed—"

"All ready now, young man!" broke in the doctor's cheery voice, as he hurried fussily up with full hands. "Now let's see what a hero you're going to be!"

But the child pushed him rudely away, at the same time inquiring, in the imperious tone of one who had never known what it was to have his wishes gainsaid:

"Is it all right, papa?"

"That is for Mrs. Carleton to decide, my son! Is it all right, Mrs. Carleton?" he inquired lightly, yet with unmistakable anxiety in his tone.

Two little spots of red burned upon her cheeks, and she hesitated.

Surely, never was so strange a proposal!

"You are going to be my—" the child began; but she pressed him to her, smothering the word which she wished to hide from the waiting surgeon.

And then she sobbed, and in a minute she smiled pathetically.

"For once my son's escapades have accorded with his outlandish name!" was Adelbert Nye's fervent comment.

The Richmond Tragedy.

Both the death of Horace D. Sutton, the old and well-known resident of Richmond, who shot himself Sunday evening, and that of Miss Rolloff, the domestic who was perhaps fatally wounded by the discharge of his revolver just before he turned it upon himself, are believed to have been the result of an unhappy misunderstanding.

Mr. and Mrs. Sutton had just returned from a day's outing at Fairhaven, on Lake St. Clair. The two women were reading, when Sutton went into the bedroom and brought out an old revolver. Miss Rolloff, for some reason, suspected that he meant to take his life, and she rushed toward him and plucked his arms. Sutton struggled to free himself, and as he wrenched one arm loose the revolver was discharged. The bullet passed through Miss Rolloff's eye, and she fell to the ground.

At the sight of the girl lying motionless and bleeding from the wound, Sutton placed the revolver over his heart and pulled the trigger. His wife begged him not to shoot, but he pointed to the girl, and exclaiming, "I might as well be dead, too, now," he ran toward the door. At the threshold he again turned the revolver to his heart and fired. He fell dead instantly.

Mrs. Sutton cannot account for her husband's bringing out the revolver, which was not touched for ten years. She hardly thinks he had any suicidal intent at first.

Suicide or Murder.

The inquest into the cause of the death of Warren Thorpe, the Blackman township farmer, who was shot in his own house Sunday, June 14, brought out some things which look queer. At the time, it was reported that he shot himself, and the report was generally believed, but certain things pointed to the death being caused by some interested party who must have fired the fatal shot. There were no powder marks on the face of the dead man, and other circumstances supported the theory that he was murdered. The verdict the jury rendered is that the person who held the pistol which killed Thorpe is unknown to them. The theory of the verdict is that there is much mystery in connection with the death, but the officers do not believe Mrs. Thorpe is an object of suspicion. If Thorpe did not kill himself it is generally admitted that it was some one else than Mrs. Thorpe.

The Father Is Bitter.

"I will not be satisfied until my son is sentenced to Jackson prison for life," said George H. Parker, the invalid, speaking about the shooting of James Moore, his son-in-law, by his son, George W. Parker, at the Parker mansion, Detroit, Saturday afternoon.

The invalid father is very bitter against his son, but no more so than every other member of the family.

Again he will say: "Oh, why did that degenerate son of mine do that deed? He has been a source of great trouble to me ever since he was 10 years old—ever since we moved from Gratiot avenue. I want to see him sent to prison for life; nothing but that will satisfy me. Yes, I was the only eye-witness, and if Jim dies I will surely appear against my son, or give my deposition and help to send him up for life."

The Tax Cases.

Governor Bliss, when asked on Monday what he intends to do regarding Freeman and Sayre, the state tax commissioners who made affidavits favoring the railroads in the tax cases, said: "There is positively nothing to add to what has already been said on the matter. I have talked with Mr. Blair, but there will be absolutely nothing done until I return."

He referred to his visit to Boukville, N. Y., where he goes to remain until after July 4.

"Will anything be done upon your return?" he was asked.

"That is a matter to be then decided," he said.

Beyond this, he would not commit himself.

The Tank Exploded.

Herman List, of Bay City, was terribly burned about the face and hands, and William Deno and Eli Blum slightly burned Friday night at the Two-Mile house on the Midland road. The house is lighted with gasoline, the tank of which is kept in the basement. When the men went into the basement to pump the gasoline, they struck a match, and this was followed by an explosion, the tank having been leaking. List's injuries are so serious that he may die, and in case he lives, will be disfigured for life.

Mrs. McKnight Held for Trial.

At the conclusion of the examination of Mrs. Mary McKnight, in Kalkaska, charged with the murder of her brother, John Murphy, by poisoning, the accused woman was held for trial. The defense offered no evidence, the arguments of the attorneys on the motion to discharge the prisoner following immediately after the testimony was completed. The case will come up at the next term of the circuit court, which opens the second Monday in August.

The body of James Ford, of Marquette, was found on the Northwestern track Friday morning, where it had been run over and cut in two by a switch engine. As he was known to have had at least $100 on his person yesterday, and only $5 was found on the remains, the suspicion is strong that he was killed and placed on the track.

My trouble was organic and I never expected to be permanently cured, but thanks to Dr. Miles' Heart Cure, I have kept in good health and have been able to follow my profession, continually since first taking the remedies eight years ago. I am a musician, teacher of instrumental and vocal music, musical conductor, etc. I have taught all over the state of Michigan and have recommended Dr. Miles' Heart Cure to thousands of persons in all parts of the state and have heard nothing but good reports of it. North Lake.

The North Lake scribbler has resumed after a few weeks' of silence. The wind being rather high for bees to swarm gives him a little rest. In the last few days I have hived 20 swarms, and made nearly all the hives. While taking a walk I passed two swarms in trees. Several of the neighbors have found swarms and got a start in bee culture. Of late it has been quite favorable for honey making, but as a whole the season so far has been cold and wet, so that there has not been the usual amount of honey for the swarms as if it had been warmer and dry. Having had considerable rheumatism this spring I am taking bee stings quite regular as a cure.

Perry Noah has gone into the bee business on a large scale. He has bought the whole Reeves' stand of about 24 swarms and all the fixtures. He is having lively times now.

Sunday, July 12, there will be preaching here in the evening as there will be quarterly meeting at Waterloo that day. You are welcome to attend the service and will feel well paid for attending. You may sleep if you can, but none have done so as yet.

"My dear Martha, I did not think of telling you this just yet, and especially to-day, but the words were at my lips, and then they were out, without my leave, or license. Now there is nothing for it, but letting you know, plump and plain, that you and I, in our gathering years, must up and out of England. Oliver Cromwell is dying; when he is in the grave, what? Either Stuart, or civil war. If it is the Stuart, my head will be wanted; and as for fighting for Lambert, or even Fairfax, or Sir Harry Vane, I will not do it—verily, I will not! I have fought under Cromwell; I will fight under no less a general, and in no less a quarrel than he led in. That is settled. You said Martha, 'for better, or for worse.'"

She did not answer, and he dropped her hand and continued, "I will never force thee, Martha, not one step. If thou lovest England better than me—"

"I don't! I don't, Israel! I love nothing, I love nobody better than Israel Swaffham. I was thinking of Swaffham."

"I shall sign the sale of it to Cymfin as soon as Cromwell dies. I and thou can build another Swaffham; thou art but fifty, and my years are some short of sixty. We are in the prime of life yet."

"I am forty-eight—not quite that—Israel; and Swaffham was very up and down, and scarce a cupboard in it. Wherever you go, Israel, I will go; your God is my God, and your country shall be mine."

"I was sure of that, Martha. God love you, dearest! And any country where your home is built, and your children dwell, is a good country; besides which, this New World is really a land of milk and honey and sunshine. Tonbert and Will could not be bought back here with an earldom."

ment of affirmation; he could not speak.

After the death of his beloved daughter Elizabeth, the life of Cromwell was like the ending of one of those terrible Norse Sagas with the additional element of a great spiritual conflict. Israel Swaffham was constantly with him. The two men were friends closer than brothers. They had loved each other when boys, and their love had never known a shadow.

"But I am in great trouble about him," said Israel to his wife. "It can not last. Since Lady Claypole's death he eats not, drinks not, sleeps not; his strong, masculine handwriting, the very mirror of his courageous spirit, has become weak and trembling. I can tell you one thing, Martha, a thinking soul is always sorrowful enough, but when it is a great soul like Oliver's, and it is wretched for any cause, then every thought draws blood."

Cromwell had hoped that his great afflictions would bring his friends back to his side; but envy, hatred and greedy ambition are not to be conciliated. Even at this time Ludlow, Lambert, Vane, Harrison, Marten—all the men whom he had trusted, and who had trusted him, stood aloof from his sorrow; and their sullen indifference wounded him to the quick. His unfinished work drove at him like a taskmaster. He must make great haste, for he knew that the night was coming.

"I am glad he is back in Whitehall," said Martha to her husband, when she heard of the change. "I remember something that Jane said about that old, gloomy Court; he will get better in London."

"I know not, Martha," answered Israel, sadly; "Fairfax was with him to-day, and he might as well have drawn his sword on his old friend—" judgments on them. And there is one more charge for you; when all is over, speak to the army for me. Tell the men to remember me while they live. Truly, I think they will. Now let me lean on you, Israel. I am going to my last hard fight."

When he reached his room, he stood a moment and looked wistfully round it. It was but a narrow chamber, but large enough for the awfully close, near conflict that he had to fight in it. For ten terrible days and nights the anguish of the struggle went on unceasingly, sometimes the great Combatant being "all here" and full of faith and courage, sometimes far down the shoal of life and reason, and wandering uneasily through bygone days of battle and distress and darkness.

He had turned to face his last enemy on the 24th of August, and on the 30th there was such a tempest as had never before been seen in England. Whole forests were laid on the ground; traffic was swept from the roads and the streets, and the ships from the stormy seas. The chambers of Whitehall were filled with the roar of the great winds. The guards leaned on their arms, praying or talking solemnly together on the prodigy of the storm.

Israel sat near the men, and heard something of what they said. Presently Dr. Verity joined him. They said a few words about the storm, their words were emphasized by the falling and crashing of trees outside the windows, and by thunder and lightning and driven torrents of rain; and then Dr. Verity said in a low voice, "He knows nothing of this—he is still as death; he barely breathes; he is unconscious; where is he, Israel?"

"Not quite gone—not quite here—Is he watching the battle of elements in the middle darkness?" Then for some minutes only the pealing thunder and the howling winds made answer. But John Verity was thinking, and as soon as there was a moment's lull in the uproar, he said, "Oliver is no stranger to the Immortals, Israel. They have heard of his fame. In their way they have seen and helped him already. While his body lies yonder, without sense or motion, where is his spirit? Is it now having its last fight with its great enemy? Israel, I was thinking of what Isaiah says, about hell being moved to meet Lucifer at his coming."

"But, oh, John, John Verity, all this great life is to be a failure. All our travail and toil and suffering to be a failure!"

"No, indeed! There is no failure. No, no, nothing of the kind! We have ushered in a new era of Freedom. We have made a breakwater against tyranny. Kings will remember forevermore that they have a joint in their necks. Oliver has done, to the last tittle, the work he was sent to do. It is Oliver the Conqueror! Not Oliver the Failure. Remember, Israel, it is not incumbent on us to finish the work; we can leave it in God's hands. And though we have to leave it behind us incomplete, God will use it some way and somewhere, and the news will find us, even in heaven, and sweeten our happy labors there. I believe this, I do with all my soul."

On Thursday night, the 2d of September, being the ninth day of his hard fight, he bade his wife and children "a good-bye"; but into this sacred scene not even the tenderest imagination may intrude. Afterward he appeared to withdraw himself entirely within the shadow of the Almighty, waiting the signal for his release in a peaceful, even a happy mood, and saying in a more and more labored voice, "Truly God is good—indeed He is—He will not leave. My work is done—but God will be with His people." Some one offered him a drink to ease his restlessness and give him sleep, but he refused it. "It is not my design to drink or to sleep," he said; "my design is to make what haste I can to be gone." The last extremity indeed, but one full of that longing desire of the great apostle "to depart and be with Christ, which is far better."

The next morning, the 3d of September, his Fortunate Day, "the day of Dunbar Field and Worcester's laureate wreath," he became speechless as the sun rose, and so he lay quiet until between three and four in the afternoon, when he was heard to give a deep sigh. The physician in attendance said softly, "He is gone!" And some knelt to pray, and all wept, but unmindful of his tears, Israel Swaffham cried in a tone of triumph:

"Thou good Soldier of God, farewell! Thou hast fought a good fight; thou hast kept the faith, and there is laid up for thee a crown greater than England's crown, a crown of righteousness, which the Lord, the righteous Judge, shall give thee."

But Dr. Verity went slowly to the beloved Dead; he put tenderly back his long gray hair, damp with the dew of death, and closed the eyelids over his darkened eyes, and kissed him on his brow, and on his lips; and as he turned sorrowfully away forever, whispered only two words: "Vale Cromwell!"

(The End.)

"Now let me lean on you, Israel."

There is another thing, Martha, both of them are going to be married.

"Married! I never heard of such a thing."

"I thought I wouldn't tell thee, till needs be; but 'tis so, sure enough."

"And to what kind of women, Israel?"

"Good, fair women, they tell me; sisters, orphan daughters of the Rev. John Wilnot. Thou seest, then, Martha, there may soon be three families coming up, and not a grandmother among them to look after the children or give advice to the young mothers. I don't see what Tonbert's wife, or Will's wife, or thy own daughter Jane can do without thee."

She shook her head slightly, but looked pleased and important. The wife and mother was now completely satisfied.

So the summer days went on, and England had never been so serene and so secure in her strength and prosperity. Cromwell was working feverishly and suffering acutely. His favorite child, the Lady Elizabeth Claypole, was still very ill; he had premonitions, and visions of calamity that filled his heart with apprehension, and kept his soul always on the alert, watching, watching for its coming.

It is certain also that he knew the time for his own departure was at hand. He said to Doctor Verity, "I have one more fight, John. Dunbar was a great victory; Worcester was a greater one; but my next fight will give me the greatest victory of all—the last enemy that shall be destroyed is death. Do you understand?" And the doctor made a move-better and kinder had he done so." "Fairfax is proud as Lucifer. What did he want?"

"The Duke of Buckingham has been sent to the Tower—where he ought to have been sent long ago; but he is married to the daughter of Fairfax, and the haughty Lord General went to see Cromwell about the matter. He met him in the gallery at Whitehall and asked that the order for Buckingham's arrest should be retraced, and Cromwell told him that if the offense were only against his own life, the Duke could go free that hour, but that he could not pardon plotters against the Commonwealth. It grieved him to the heart to say these words, and Fairfax saw how ill and how troubled he looked. But he had not one word of courtesy; he turned abruptly and cocked his hat, and threw his cloak under his arm in that insolent way he was ever used to when in his tempers. And Oliver looked at me like a man that has been struck in the face by a friend. Then he went to his desk and worked faithfully, inexorably, all day; but—"

"But what, Israel?"

"It is near—the end."

Indeed, this interview with Fairfax seemed to be the last heart-weight he could carry.

The next day he went to his desk and began to write, but speedily and urgently called for Israel Swaffham. When he answered the call, Oliver was in great physical agony, but he took some papers from a drawer and said, "When I am no longer here, Israel, give these to my wife. Thurlow has the key to all State questions; he knows my intents and my Wrote Dr. Doan, Miss. Doan's Kidney Pills have cured me, which was a case of urinary trouble—lasted up five or six times of a day. I think I have a kidney stone. There was a swelling of the feet and ankles. There was a burning in the back of the head which would not leave. Putting one's hand up to the lamp chimney, I have seen the free trial and two boxes of Doan's Pills which are cured. They are really a par excellence. D. F. BALLANCE.

SAVED BY BRIGHT REPLY.

How Smart Midshipman Got Himself Out of Scrape.

On board a man-of-war bound to San Francisco from China was a young midshipman named Walters. He was a favorite with the officers, and had in him the talent for making a fine officer. The midshipmen on board stood their watch forward, and every hour it was their duty to come aft and write up the weather columns of the ship's log, showing the readings of the barometer and thermometer and to heave the ship's log to ascertain her speed.

The captain, in company with the officer of the deck, was walking the weather side of the deck conversing when Midshipman Walters came aft to write up the log. The barometer, a mercurial one, was hung in the captain's cabin, and Walters, after having read it, helped himself liberally to the captain's sherry on the cabin sideboard. In walking the deck the captain happened to glance down the cabin skylight and saw the midshipman's proceedings. When Walters came up on deck to heave the log the captain addressed him as follows:

"How is the barometer, sir?"

Walters saluted and said: "Steadily rising, sir; steadily rising."

The captain then asked: "And how is the decenter, sir?"

Walters was taken aback, but with a steady voice replied: "Steadily falling, sir; steadily falling."

This reply was too much for the captain, and, bursting out laughing, he said: "Young man, your bright reply has saved you from punishment; but it is a long way to Frisco, so hereafter I beg of you not to consult the decenter as often as you do the barometer."

House of Lords Membership.

The British house of lords has long since ceased to be a strictly hereditary body. Over 200 of its 590 members owe their presence to other causes than descent. Quite a number of the hereditary lords are barred from voting by the fact that they are either minors, undischarged bankrupts or inmates of lunatic asylums. The non-hereditary lords comprise the archbishops and bishops of the Church of England and those who have been created peers by Queen Victoria and King Edward for special services rendered to the crown.

A Woman's Back.

Dublin, Mich., June 29th.—To the many women who suffer with weak backs and pains and tired feelings in the small of the back, the experience of Mrs. Fred Chalker of this place will be interesting and profitable.

Mrs. Chalker had suffered a very great deal with these back pains and although she had tried many things, she could find nothing that would relieve her. The pain kept on in spite of all she could do.

At last she chanced to read the story of another lady who had suffered with the backache, and said she had been cured by a remedy called Doan's Kidney Pills, and Mrs. Chalker thought she would try the same thing.

After the first two boxes had been taken according to directions, she began to feel some better, and she kept on till at last she was cured.

Her pains are all gone, and she is very grateful. She says: "Doan's Kidney Pills helped me greatly, and I will always recommend them as a cure for Pain in the Back."

In Jail for Sneezing.

As one of the good, kind ladies was walking along the tier after the church was over, saying kind words to the unfortunate sons of Adam, she stopped in front of cell 602 on the sixth floor. She said: "My good, kind man, what in the world ever put you in here?" He said, "Sneezing." She said, "My goodness! How in the world could they put you in here for sneezing?" He said, "I woke the gentleman up."

I suffered with falling and congestion of the womb, with severe pains through the groins. I suffered terribly at the time of menstruation, had blinding headaches and rushing of blood to the brain. What to try I knew not, for it seemed that I had tried all and failed, but I had never tried Wine of Cardui, that blessed remedy for sick women. I found it pleasant to take and soon knew that I had the right medicine. New blood seemed to course through my veins and after using eleven bottles I was a well woman.

ITEMS OF LOCAL INTEREST.

By an act passed by the last legislature, the law regulating the performance of ceremonies of marriage was amended so that the judge of probate, in the county in which he was chosen, or the judge of a municipal court, in the municipality in which he was chosen, can unite persons in marriage. Formerly this function was restricted to clergymen and justices of the peace.

An excellent recital was given at the Woodman hall Tuesday evening by the music pupils of Miss Ella M. Ryan. All the numbers were executed by the pupils and showed a marked degree of proficiency. The instrumental number by the mandolin and guitar club, composed of 11 boys and girls, was the most pleasing number. Nearly a hundred of the parents and friends of the young performers were present.
