FOURTH

It required a long time to prepare for the celebration of the first Fourth of July: it demanded nerve, courage; heroism; the man who huzzaed for liberty then was in danger of putting his head in a noose, and he who fired a gun in honor of the occasion was shot without trial if caught.

Nowadays, people who wake up on the morning of the Fourth of July, amid the booming of cannon, the noise of trumpets, crackle of guns and snaping of fire crackers, and a general pandemonium of free and generous soise, seldom think of the years of anxiety, suffering and bloodshed through which the Colonial Americans passed before reaching the great day when they could shout for freedom.

There had been long resistance to tranny, oppression and injustice. The Lexington shot that was "heard around the world" had been fired. Harry Lee had proclaimed independence, Patrick Henry had demanded "liberty or death." but the time was not quite ripe for that day of all days in American history, the Fourth of July, 1776.

On that day, fifty-six determined patriots assembled in the state house at Philadelphia. They had a purpose in assembling, and that purpose was of grave import to the whole world. Thirteen colonies, with their three mil-lions of people knew what the purpose was; they had sanctioned it, approved it, and what the fifty-six men were about to do they were to do on behalf of those three millions of people who had fought, suffered, bled and starved that it might be done. Everybody knew what was going to happen, even the small boy who now makes as much noise as he can, was there with the crowds assembled to hear the tocsin of liberty.

A member of this great Congress of the people arose, and stopping a moment, looked at the grave faces before him, then he began to read from a paper he held in his hand:

new nation:

"We, therefore, the representatives of the United States of America, in general Congress assembled, appealing to the Supreme Judge of the world for the rectitude of our intentions, do, in the name and by the authority of the good people of these Colonies, solemnly publish and declare, That these United States are, and of right ought to be free and independent-" here came an interruption in the person of a small boy who was blowing a fuse a small boy who was blowing a fuse to keep it burning—he had a small cannon ready loaded to be the first to celebrate the very first Fourth of July —he rushed to the old bellman, waiting with the rope in his hand to ring ing with the rope in his hand to ring ing with the rope in his hand to ring in the should be, my face is badly freckled with powder marks, and finally the natives were convinced that he was actually dead. pension all our Fourth of July soldiers? in view, the whole country would be in the agony of battle from daylight sions to everyone that can hold a firecracker!

The passing of one hundred and twenty-seven years has not dimmed the patriotic spirit of '76, "when men put ropes around their neck that we might have a free and independent nation." Men of patriotic souls and impulses rise to the surface of the dead money-making level and inspire our youth with new energy to do or to die.

THE BALD-HEADED MAN.

Purnishes Splendid Opportunity for the Rising Literateur.

Why is it that some up-to-date author does not see the possibilities in writing a readable story of romance or love and have for its hero a baldheaded man? Lack of hair in the place where it really ought to grow does not necessarily imply old age or dotage.

The bald-headed man has fully as much romance and sentiment in his make-up as men who have curling hair or other kinds in liberal quantity. The bald-headed man can love as strongly, do as great deeds of valor, or be as chivalrous as he of the abundant hirsute adornment. Sometimes on the stage or in story we have had a hero or lover whose hair was tinged with gray, but the bald hero has seemingly been passed by. There is certainly no reason for this, and it is time the baldheads of suitable age get together and demand recognition. Let there be an end to their being exploited only through the medium of the so-called funny man.

Leaving the realm of sentiment and getting to the business point of view: To the author who does this thing right and gets up a good, wholesome story of the kind above referred to success is assured. Every bald-headed man in the country would feel in honor bound to "push it along." and the edition would run into the milhons. Let the baldheads get together and lift the bald-headed man out of the comic weekly slough of despond and give him his proper place in literature.

Natives Convinced That Spaniards Could Be Killed.

Early in the sixteenth century the natives of Porto Rico plotted to kill the Spaniards on the island. There was much doubt, however, as to whether or not it was possible to kill a Spaniard. Many of the natives insisted that it was not. Finally it was decided to make an experiment. CAPTAIN HAMMOND.

Died Wednesday Night After a Long Itiness—Was a Pioneer and a Leader in the Early Days of the Town.

Captain Elisha Hammond died at his home Wednesday night at 10:45 o'clock' The end came after a long illness and was not unexpected.

The deceased was born in Tolland, Tolland county, Connecticut, May 6 1822, and was therefore 81 years of age. He came to this state when very young with a Mr. Mitchell, his father having died and he being bound out as was the custom of those days. His guardian settled in Lima and there Mr. Hammond lived for four years. He next came to Chelsea which he has ever since made his home.

He was married Nov. 24, 1850 to M iss Janet Beam. To this couple were born seven children and all are living.

As a resident of Chelsea Mr. Hammon d was active along many lines which call for the display of public spirit. It is said he organized the first band inChelsea and was also the first undertaker. It is very well known how he spent much time and money as the organizer of Company K of the Twentieth Michigan of which he was captain. The record of his regiment was a gallant one and recently printed in The Standard. Capt. Hammond was with his regiment all through its service, both in the east

In fraternal orders he was always foremost and was one of the oldest Masons in Washtenaw county. He was also an Oddfellow and belonged to other orders as well. In the Maccabees he was the first man of the Chelsea teut to draw the old age pension paid by that order. The funeral will occur Sunday afternoon at the house at 2 o'clock Rev. C. S. Jones officiating.

This Is the Capital of the New Company that Will Complete the Boland Line Through Chelsen.

Work on the Boland road through Chelsea of which so much has been recently said of a more or less uncertain character now seems assured. Friday articles of association were filed at Lansing for the incorporation of the Jackson, Ann Arbor and Detroit Traction company.

W. A. Boland is president, William Halls, ir. of one of the strong New York banks vice president and Nathan S Potter of Jackson treasurer. Bird S Coler of New York, representative of strong financial interests is also one of the incorporators. The capital is named as $2, 500,000 and Ann Arbor is named as the home of the corporation.

This new organization will take over the Boland property as it now stands and push !t to completion. It is said that cars will be running over this line into Detroit by this time next year and through Chelsea within the next sixty

THE EAGLE LEDGE-

A number of people in Chelsea and vicinity who hold stock in the Six Eagle mine will be interested in the following paragraph from the Okanogan Record, published at Conconully, Okanogan county, Washington:

Wednesday morning the news was received at Conconully that the Eagle ledge had been struck in the 1,300 foot tunnel. At the shot Tuesday evening the ledge was exposed in the upper portion of the face, and all the characteristics of the ledge, as shown by the surface workings, were immediately recognised. It was expected that the work of Wednesday would reveal something of its extent, but the manager at the mines is confident that he is in sight of the object of his search.

ZOE WINS HER GAME.

ROOTING SAVES THE STARS

Pitcher Became Rattled-The Visitors

The much talked of game of the Junior Stars against the Plymouth Juniors came pretty near being played at K. of P. park yesterday. The final score was nine to nothing, as is provided in the rule book and from this score it may be inferred the game ended in a row over the umpires decision as to whether a Plymouth runner returned to his base before running on a caught foul fly.

For four innings the crowd looked on while the Stars did nothing except make errors and allow the scoring of unearned runs by Plymouth. Then Zoe Be-Gole got in the game and the crowd helped her enough so that the Plymouth pitcher was loaded on to the wagon and carted over where he looked his finish in the face. He handed out bases on balls about as fast as he could get them up to the catcher, and Zoe kept him going-anyway kept the crowd Certificates of yelling. When the fourth was over the Stars had scored enough runs to put them ahead and they promised well to stay there when the game ended in a debate.

Not content with getting the game forfeited Manager McLaten put a flock of girls on the Plymouth trail during the evening and the visitors in a su- the above statement is true to the best preme effort to be agreeable confessed Miss Helen Hepfer left Thursday for they didn't think they could win anyway. Cadillac to visit her sister for several But this is an awfully biased judgement. In their present style of play the Stars couldn't beat a carpet unless their girl friends yelled for them.

Mrs. E. G. Hosg and children of Ann | Those who saw the game Monday be-Arbor are tisting at the home of Frank tween the Junior Star and the Ann Ar-Sweetland. Miss Edith Dennis of Grand Rapids interested because of the closeness of will be the guest of Vera Glazier for the score, but they missed the good fielding and accurate throwing that characterized the playing of the Stars earlier in the season. The Browns averaged considerably heavier and they are older, but for all of that they have no licence to beat the Stars when they play up to their usual form. The ragged fielding may be excused by the presence of three new players which may have had an unsettling influence throughout the team. The slump is batting of Rogers, Cook and Holmes in a streak of hard luck that has continued so long that some fear that they are not going to get back to their former pace, Probably they will, though, and let it be soon.

> The score by innings: Junior Stars 2 3 0 0 0 0 0 2 0-7-6 A. A. H. S.

Late last week some of the business men became possessed of the idea that the Junior Stars needed exercises and took the boys over into the K. of P. pasture to give them a work-out. The result was that about sundown a tired lot of men came back into town too tired to eat. George Staffan had torn his new trousers he was saving for "Dutch Day" and Fred Schussler was "all in" and couldn't explain how it all happened. Attorney Witherell reported that the jury had assessed the damages as about 23 to 2 and Doc Steger's tire was so badly panctured he couldn't get to Detroit Sunday. The business men went out to exercise the boys and returned with the same experience as the girl who tried to lead the calf.

The Detroit Regulars will be here for two games with the Junior Stars on July Fourth, one game to be at 10 a. m. aud phis are the guests of Mrs. Burnham's the other at 3 p. m. The Regulars will be remembered as the team that put up two good games here early in the season, but were beaten by the Stars by small scores. They have two fine pitchers in Gurney and Obermayer and will be sure to put up a good game. The prices will Detroit will spend the coming two weeks | bb gentlemen 15 cents, ladies 10 cents children 5 cents.

For two or three weeks a good part who had confidence in his case. of Horton county had been holding its his opening address he talked of breath and waiting for the thunderbolt to fall. It had been whispered about that Deacon Spooner, widower, was about to be sued for breach of promise by Nancy Skinner, spinster. No one could speak with authority, but all gossiped and hoped that the suit would materialize.

It was known in a general way that Deacon Spooner had been paying Nancy Skinner attentions. There were vague rumors that she once rode home with him from the village; that he had recommended a cure for toothache; that she had knit and presented him a pair of blue mittens; that he had helped her out of a mud-hole in front of her own gate; that she had said he was the best singer in the church; that he had praised the color of her hair.

All these things were talked over and magnified, and a hundred people were ready to take their dying oath that there would be a marriage. As a matter of fact, the deacon didn't want to marry. He was just "being good" to a lone woman. As a matter of fact, also, the old maid had no hopes of catching him, but she didn't propose to have her heart broken without holding somebody responible for damages

Likewise she had been told over and over again that she was too old for romance and that she couldn't look for love, and such things were calculated to put her on her mettle.

Gossip was right for once. Nancy Skinner sued Deacon Spooner for breach of promise and laid her damages at $20,000. That suit was a bigger thing than all the Fourths of July for twenty years past. A circus came along in the midst of the excitement and attempted to compete with it with disastrous results.

The county at once divided itself into two factions, and whenever a Nancy adherent met a deacon adherent there was no corn hoed during the rest of the day.

Deacon Skinner had to answer to more than the law. There was his church, his children, and his fellowreligionists. They demanded to know by what moral or legal right he toyed with an old maid's heart, and his anowers didn't satisfy them.

He denied in the most solemn manner that he had toyed. They had never sat in the moonlight-never listened to the whippoorwill. Their talk had

The deacon made these assertions and denials to his friends and his lawyer, while Nancy simply set her jaw and said she would prove her case at the proper time. The case came on at last. It was just as the potato planting season had arrived, but not a farmer for ten miles around minded that. GARMENTS OF BOSTON WOMEN.

Chicago Humorist Thinks We May Look for Startling Changes. Simeon Ford, who is rated as humorist of standing, relates that as he was riding in a Boston trolley car, the only male passenger in a crowd of women, his eye was attracted by a sign which read: "Half the people on this car are wearing Bunker Hill pants." To this assertion Mr. Ford takes modest exception, but we are inclined to believe he is wrong. Nobody will pretend to affirm that Mr. Ford's companions were trousers, which, in so elegant a community as Boston, are the recognized nether garment for gentlemen, but neither Mr. Ford nor any other man is prepared to assert with confidence that they did not wear pants, either of the Plymouth Rock, the Bunker Hill or the Washington Elm variety. The women of Boston are distinguished for their progressiveness and their independence, and it is wholly conceivable that they have been quietly experimenting, unknown to the general public, but detected by the advertiser, who could not repress his eagerness to spread the glad tidings. Perhaps at a given signal, not long distant, the outer habiliments of the masquerade will be thrown off, and true Boston womanhood will stand revealed in her emancapated gladness. A "well-fitting wolves in sheep's clothing, hypocrites, pant," as our clothing store friends liars, broken-hearted women and many term it, is much more symmetrical

But Arenta could not be quiet. She would sow thorns, though she had to walk unshod; and her father's advice moved her no more than a breath moves a mountain. In the same afternoon she saw Madame Jacobus going to Doctor Moran's, and the hour she remained there, was full of misery to her impetuous self-adoring heart. She was sure they were talking of Rem and herself; and as she had all their conversation to imagine, she came to conclusions in accord with her sus-

The very sight of Rem would break every barrier down, and let a flood of words loose, that would make him suffer afterward. I will not have Jacobus led into such temptation. "I suppose you would never forgive Jacobus, if you did hear one?" "That is another matter. I hope I have a heart to forgive whatever Jacob s does, or says-he is my husband."

"It is then less wicked to blaspheme Almighty God than to keep one of Lord Hyde's love letters. One fault may be forgiven, the other is unpardonable. Dear me! how religiously ignorant I am."

"You look extremely handsome when you are scornful. Arenta; but

"Right wrongs no man." it is not worth while wasting your charms on me. I am doing what I can to help Jacobus to keep his tongue clean, and I will not have Rem lead him into temptation. As for Rem, he is guilty of a great wrong, and he must now do what his father told him to do-work day and night, as men work, when a bridge is broken down. "ARENTA."

"That will be sufficient," she re flected, "and, after all, Cornelia is a sweet girl. I am her first and dearest friend, and I am determined to keep my place. Well, then, if I have to eat humble pie, I have had my say, and that takes the bitter taste out of my mouth-and a sensible woman must look to her future. - I dare warrant Cornelia is now answering my letter. I dare warrant she will forgive me very sweetly."

She spent half an hour in such reflections, and then Cornelia entered with a smiling face. She would not permit Aren a to say another word of regret; s'e stiffed all her selfreproaches in an embrace, and she took her bank with her to her own home. And no further repertance embarrassed Arerta. She put her ready wit and her clever hands to a score of belated thirgs, and srubbed and contradicted the Van Dien and Sherman girls into a respectful obedience to her earlier friendship, and wider experience. Everything that she directed or took charge of, went with an unmistakable vigor to completion, and even Madame Van Heemskirk was delighted with her ability and grateful for her assistance.

"The poor Arenta!" she said to Mrs. Moran; "very helpful she is to us, and for her brother's fault she is not to blame. Wrong it would be to visit It on her."

And Arenta not only felt this graclous justice for herself, she looked much further forward, for she said to her father, "It is really for Rem's sake I am so obliging. By and by people will say 'there is no truth in that letter story. The Marquise is the friend of Lady Hyde; they are like clasped hands, and that could not be so, if Rem Van Ariens had done such a dreadful thing. It is all nonsense. And if I hear a word about it, I shall know how to smile, and lift my shoulders and kill suspicion with contempt. Yes, for Rem's sake I have done the best thing."

So happily the time went on, that it appeared wonderful when Christmas was close at hand. Every preparation was then complete. It was a very joy to go into the Moran house. The mother, with a happy light upon her face, went to and fro with that habitheaven. I think heaven would be ual serenity, which kept the temperamore charitable. was just as happy as a girl loving and well beloved ought to be.

Her beauty had increased wonder fully; hope had more than renewed her youth, and confident love had given to her face and form a splendor of color and expression, that captivated everybody; though why, or how, they never asked-she charmed, because she charmed.

One day the little bevy of feminine councillors looked at their work, and pronounced all beautiful, and all finished, and then there was a lull in the busy household, and then every one was conscious of being a little weary, and every one also felt that it would be well to let heart, and brain, and fingers and feet rest: In a few days there would likely be another English letter, and they could then form some idea as to when Lord Hyde would arrive. The last letter received from him had been written in London, and the ship in which he was to sail, was taking on her cargo, while he impatiently waited at his hotel for notice of her being ready to lift her anchor. The doctor thought it highly probable Hyde would follow this letter in a week or perhaps less.

During this restful interval Doctor and Mrs. Moran drove out one afternoon to Hyde Manor House. A message from Madame Van Heemskirk asked this favor from them; she wished naturally that they should see how exquisitely beautiful and comfortable was the home which her Joris had trusted her to prepare for his bride. But she did not wish Cornelia to see it until the bridegroom himself took her across its threshold. "An old woman's fancy it is," she said to Mrs. Moran, "but no harm is there in it. and not much do I like women who bustle about their houses, and have no fancies at all."

"Nor I," answered Mrs. Moran with a merry little laugh. "Do you know, that I told John to buy my wedding ring too wide, because I often heard my mother say that a tight wedding ring was unlucky." Then both women smiled, and began delightedly to look over gether the stores of fine linen and damask, which the mother of Joris had laid up for her son's use.

It was a charming visit and the sweet pause in the vivid life of the past few weeks was equally charming to Cornelia. She rested in her room till the short daylight ended; then she went to the parlor and drank a cup of tea, and closed the curtains and sat down by the hearth to wait for her father and mother. So still was the house, so still was the little street, that she easily went to the land of reverie and lost herself there. She thought over again all her life with her lover; recalled his sweet spirit, his loyal affection, his handsome face and enchanting manner. "Heaven has made me so fortunate," she thought, "and now my fortune has arrived at my wishes. Even his delay is sweet. I desire to think of him. until all other thoughts are forgotten! Oh, what lover could be loved as I love him!"

Then with a soft but quick movement the door flew open, she lifted her eyes, to fill them with love's very image and vesture, and with a cry of joy flew to meet the bliss so long afar. but now so near. "O lovely and beloved! 'O my love!" Hyde cried, and then there was a twofold silence; the very ecstasy that no mortal words can utter. The sacred hour for which all their lives had longed, was at last dropped down to them from heaven. Between their kisses they spoke of things remembered and of things to be, leaning to each other in visible sweetness, while

How Smart Midshipman Got Himself Out of Scrape.

On board a man-of-war bound en Francisco from China was young midshipman named Walters. He was a favorite with the officers, and had in him the talent for making fine officer. The midshipmen on board stood their watch forward, and every hour it was their duty to come aft and write up the weather columns of the ship's log, showing the readings of the barometer and thermometer and to heave the ship's log to ascentain her speed. The captain, in company with the officer of the deck, was walking the weather side of the deck conversing when Midshipman Walters came aft to write up the log. The barometer, a mercurial one, was hung in the captain's cabin, and Walters, after having read it, helped himself liberally to the captain's sherry on the cabin side board. In walking the deck the captain happened to glance down the cabin skylight and saw the midship man's proceedings. When Walters came up on deck to heave the log the captain addressed him as follows:

"How is the barometer, sir?" Walters saluted and said: "Steadfly rising, sir; steadily rising." The captain then asked: "And how is the decanter, sir?"

Walters was taken aback, but with a steady voice replied: "Steadily falling, sir; steadily falling."

This reply was too much for the captain, and, bursting out laughing, he said: "Young man, your bright reply has saved you from punishment; but it is a long way to Frisco, so hereaf. ter I beg of you not to consult the decanter as often as you do the barometer."

House of Lords Membership,

The British house of lords has long since ceased to be a strictly hereditary body. Over 200 of its 590 members owe their presence to other causes than descent. Quite a number of the hereditary lords are debarred from voting by the fact that they are either minors, undischarged bankrupts or inmates of lunatic asylums. The non-hereditary lords comprise the archbishops and bishops of the church of England and those who have been created peers by Queen Victoria and King Edward for special services rendered to the crown.

A Woman's Back.

Dublin, Mich., June 29th .- To the many women who suffer with weak back and pains and tired feelings in the small of the back, the experience of Mrs. Fred Chalker of this place will be interesting and profitable.

Mrs. Chalker had suffered a very great deal with these back pains and although she had tried many things, she could find nothing toat would relieve her. The pain kept on in spite of all she could do. At last she chanced to read the story of another lady who had suffered with the backache, and said she had been cured by a remedy called Dodd's Kidney Pills, and Mrs. Chalker thought she would try the same thing. After the first two boxes had been taken according to directions, she began to feel some better, and she kept on till at last she was cured. Her pains are all gone, and she is very grateful. She says: "Dodd's Kidney Pills helped me greatly, and I will always recommend them as a cure for Pain in the Back." "One More Day!" I have quaffed the wine of life; Why should I drain the glass? I have seen the buds unfold In their setting of dewy grass. Why watch the flowers droop? Why wait till the grass is dead? What more has life to offer

When youth and joy have fled?

Yet the coward soul, in fear, Will shrink from the beckoning hand Or the boatman's whispead word As ever he waits on the strand; It will drain the bitter dregs, It will watch the flower decay; For a ruined life is stie a life— God grant us one more day! Fannie Barber Knapp in Chicago Inter

Art Association, tells young women what to do to avoid pain and suffering caused by female troubles.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM: - I can conscientiously recommend Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to those of my sisters suffering with female weakness and the troubles which so often befall women. I suffered for months with general weakness, and felt so weary that I had hard work to keep up. I had shooting pains, and was utterly miserable. In my distress I was advised to use Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and it was a red letter day to me when I took the first dose, for at that time my restoration began. In six weeks I was a changed woman, perfectly well in every respect. I felt so elated and happy that I want all women who suffer to get well as I did."—Miss Guila Gannon, 359 Jones St., Detroit, Mich., Secretary Amateur Art Association.

It is clearly shown in this young lady's letter that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will certainly cure the sufferings of women; and when one considers that Miss Gannon's letter is only one of the countless hundreds which we are continually publishing in the newspapers of this country, the great virtue of Mrs. Pinkham's medicine must be admitted by all; and for the absolute cure of all kinds of female ills no substitute can possibly take its place. Women should bear this important fact in mind when they go into a drug store, and be sure not to accept anything that is claimed to be "just as good" as Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, for no other medicine for female ills has made so many actual cures.

How Another Young Sufferer Was Cured.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM: - I must write and tell you what your Vegetable Compound has done for me. I suffered terribly every month at time of menstruction, and was not able to work. Your medicine has cured me of my trouble. I felt relieved after taking one bottle. I know of no medicine as good as yours for female troubles." - Miss Edith Cross, 169 Water Street, Haverhill, Mass

Remember, Mrs. Pinkham's advice is free, and all sick women are foolish if they do not ask for it. No other person has such vast experience, and has helped so many women. Write to-day.

FORFEST if we cannot forthwith produce the original letters and signatures of above testimonials, which will prove their absolute genuineness.

A rise in price has been expected for the last month, but it was not known what turn the market would take until the bulk of the crop was planted. The acreage is estimated at one-third less than last year, and, as nearly every factory is reported as having a short supply, it is believed that the price will not stop at $100. The only bromcorn now in the hands of the growers is held by farmers in this immediate vicinity, and those who had the foresight to hold their crops and plant again in the face of a late season and low prices are elated over the prospects of high prices. One hundred and fifty dollars a ton is predicted.

A few years ago, while seated at a "round table" in a downtown cafe, he gave, according to a friend, free vent to his wonderful imagination, in the presence of Richard Gentry and others who were at the scene of battle at the time it raged the flercest.

The colonel told of the way his company had charged the enemy, of how the Federalists were put to flight, and of how he himself had been in the forefront of the bloody battle.

Gentry, who was a member of Crisp's company, finally interrupted a beautiful piece of word painting about the horrors of war by saying: "Now, colonel, you know you ran like --- on that day. I was running with you and you kept ahead of me until we were out of range of the Union guns. Yes, sir, you ran, sir; by gad, sir, you retreated, sir, and I retreated with you." Col. Weak Hearts Are due to indigestion. Ninety-nine of every one hundred people who have heart troub can remember when it was simple indigestion. It is a scientific fact that all cases of heart disease, not organic, are not only traceable to, but are the direct result of indigostion. All food taken into the stomach which fails of perfect digestion ferments and swells the stomach, puffing it up against the heart. This interferes with the action of the heart, and in the course of time that delicate but vital organ becomes diseased Mr. D.
