BOARD OF COUNTY AUDITORS

Is Now Organized and Ready to Transact Business.

The new board of county auditors, J. E. McGregor, W. F. Riemenschneider and B. C. Whitaker, met in Ann Arbor Tuesday and filed their oaths of qualification with the county clerk. They got down to business by electing J. E. McGregor chairman. The board will meet the first Monday in each month and will continue in session a long enough time to thoroughly complete the work that comes before it, in no case, however, for a longer period than three days. In speaking of his position in taking the oath of office Auditor Whitaker said:

"There is no doubt in my mind but that I am eligible to hold the position. The section of the constitution which has been brought up does not apply in this case, as I do not consider the commission which appointed me a state officer. They were acting for the county. If those who object want to fight it, it is their privilege."

Mr. Whitaker was asked about the section of the constitution which provides that no county officer shall be a member of the legislature.

"That is the other end of it," he replied. "As auditor I am a county officer and I suppose that means that I am no longer a member of the legislature."

In the meantime County Clerk Blum, who is a member of the board ex-officio, has refused to file Mr. Whitaker's oath of office and acceptance of the same.

Rowe Family Reunion.

Last Saturday, July 4, the Rowe family held their annual reunion at Sugar Loaf lake in Lyndon. These gatherings are always looked forward to with extreme feelings of pleasure by the various members of this genial family and the event is always a most interesting one. This reunion was no exception to the rule although the number present was not so large as on former occasions. The entire Rowe family were present, consisting of the father, G. A. Rowe, Foster, Clarence and Dillon Rowe and their families, Dr. and Mrs. Austin Rowe, Ernest Rowe and family, Emory Rowe, Mr. and Mrs. Bolt and family, Mrs. Pickel and children. In all there were 40 present, which included only a few outside the family.

The smaller children especially seemed to enjoy themselves bathing and boating, and at night returned home none the less happy because of their sunburnt faces. At noon all repaired to the table which was set near the lake and filled with everything that would tempt the appetite.

After dinner was over some of the merry party sought exercise by ascending the very steep hill near by the lake, while others preferred to sit or lie in the shade.

The day was passed very pleasantly, and after supper all took their departure carrying with them a fond remembrance of the glorious day and hoping again to reunite next Fourth.

Funeral of Elijah Hammond.

The funeral services of the late Elijah Hammond held at the house Sunday afternoon were very largely attended, testifying to the high esteem in which he was held in the community of which he had so long been an honored resident. The services were conducted by Revs. C. S. Jones and F. A. Stiles, the sermon being preached by the latter. The remains were escorted to the grave in Oak Grove cemetery by the members of Olive Lodge, No. 156, F. & A. M., and R. P. Carpenter Post, No. 41, G. A. R., of both of which organizations deceased was a member. At the grave the beautiful ritual service of the Masonic fraternity was most impressively rendered by Worshipful Master Roland B. Walltrous, in accordance with the expressed wish of the deceased, after which the benediction was pronounced by Rev. C. S. Jones.

German-American Day.

The committee of arrangements for German-American day which is to be held in Chelsea, Thursday, Aug. 6, have placed their order for posters, handbills, etc., and the work is already in the process of completion. The posters which are handsome ones printed in red and black on white paper will be put up this week, and the handbills will be distributed at intervals until the date of the event. A baseball game has been arranged between the Jackson and Grass Lake teams, an attractive list of speakers has been engaged, races and sports for prizes will be held and everything points to a successful celebration.

WON BOTH GAMES.

Junior Stars Wanted Whole Hog or None Saturday, and Got It.

The Junior Stars demonstrated last Saturday that although they may have been playing poor ball lately, they had got back to their old good form, by taking both games from the Detroit McGraws, formerly the Regulars. The morning game was as fine a contest as has been seen on the local diamond, the Stars winning by a score of 10 to 4. For the first three innings neither side scored but in the fourth the McGraws scored two while the Stars were again shut out. The "fans" were by this time considerably excited and some of them were even fearful of the result, but in the next innings the Stars delighted their friends by scoring five runs, and kept it up in the sixth scoring three more runs and again in the eighth when they scored twice. The Detroiters were not dangerous after the fourth innings, scoring only two more runs, one in the fifth and one in the sixth. Miller pitched a good game the first six innings for the Stars when he was succeeded by Bessel who pitched grand ball shutting the Detroiters out the rest of the game, not allowing a hit. Following is the score:

The players were greeted with one of the largest crowds of the year when they trotted out for practice in the afternoon. The Detroit boys showed up finely, while the Stars did not appear very well. But when Miller called the game at 3:10 every Star was in his place, Holmes, who was injured in the Plymouth game, again taking his place at third. It was not until the third innings that either side scored, then the Stars sailed in. Bacon hit to center, L. BeGole drew a base on balls, and then worked a double steal, McGuinness hit safely and McLaren scored both by a hit to center. The game was a fine one throughout, marked by the good batting of the home team, the grand pitching of Rogers, who struck out 13 men, and Cook's throwing to bases which was accurate and swift, and deserves especial mention. Love.

My heart, I bid thee answer—
How are Love's marvels wrought?
Two hearts to one pulse beating,
Two spirits with one thought!

And tell me how love cometh?
'Tis here—unsought, unsent!
And tell me how love goeth?
That was not love which went.

—By an Unknown German Poet.

Mrs. Geraldine Banks, widow, of Chicago and her daughter Dorothy were at Rye Beach. Mrs. Banks had enough money—something like three millions—to make her last name eminently fitting. Her father, who had made a fortune in transforming rank Chicago fat into delicate French soup, had given her the millions outright at her marriage with John Banks, now deceased.

Father and daughter didn't see each other often in the latter days. They moved in different social circles. Mrs. Banks had a great gray stone palace within sound of the lashing lake waters, while the father preferred to live in something little bigger than a cottage under the very shadow of the chimneys and within smelling range, so to speak, of the factory that had brought him his fortune.

Dorothy Banks was delightfully pretty, aristocratic looking withal, and as sweetly disposed toward humanity in general as a girl possibly could be whose mother was constantly reminding her of her station in life and that the holiest of her interesting chiefly at a distance. Mrs. Banks wished her daughter to marry, as she put it, a gentleman and a man of lineage.

There came to Rye Beach that summer young Peabody Standish of Boston. He was a Harvard man and one whose ancestors' names had been borne on the rolls of that school ever since John Harvard's day. Now, Peabody Standish was a fine young fellow, athletic, handsome and with a manner which New England fogs and frosts had failed to chill.

Peabody Standish and Dorothy Banks met. The Boston man liked the beauty and the breeziness of the western girl, and Dorothy, with never a thought of what her mother had said about aristocracy, liked the eastern man for himself.

It is perhaps needless to say that Mrs. Banks looked on approvingly.

The young fellow from Boston

Dorothy lingered longer at Rye Beach that summer than he had intended. He knew in a general way who Mrs. Banks of Chicago was, for he had a bit of law business with a Chicago client in which some of the Banks' holdings had figured. He didn't make any inquiries. Had he momentarily felt as inclined to look at Dorothy would have checked him, for she was sweet and winsome enough to make up for a family skeleton in every closet of a Chicago mansion.

Dorothy Banks and Peabody Standish

were engaged. Mrs. Banks and her daughter were back in Chicago and the marriage was set for the spring. Once in a while through the winter a shadow would come into Dorothy's face. "Mamma," she would say, "we ought to have told Peabody about grandpa. I know he's what you call vulgar, but he's good and kind-hearted and would be affectionate if you'd only let him."

"Your grandfather and Mr. Standish will have to meet some day, Dorothy, but there's no particular hurry about it. Everything will be all right if you do as I tell you."

And Dorothy though secretly troubled, did what long custom had insured her to do, to abide by what her mother said.

They were married in April. Peabody Standish, yielding to his mother-in-law's request, agreed to make Chicago his home, and to look after her property interests. With Dorothy immediately after the wedding he went abroad and remained there eight months. When they returned to Chicago he secured an office and buckled down to business.

It was Standish's second day at his work. He and Dorothy were living with Mrs. Banks. At 5 o'clock that afternoon the Banks carriage was sent to Standish's office to take him home. Peabody would have preferred walking, but he took his seat in the carriage and started homeward. At a street corner he saw the bent but sturdy figure of an old man, who was plodding along with his eyes on the ground. Standish looked at the bowed figure for a moment, then a pleased look came into his eyes and he shouted a rather peremptory "Stop!" to the coachman. Standish jumped from the carriage and in an instant was by the side of the old fellow on the sidewalk, and was grasping him by the hand.

"Mr. Chandler, is it really you?" said Standish, with a ring of genuine pleasure in his voice and his eyes fairly dancing.

"Well, bless me, if it ain't young Standish! Yes, it's me, Jabez Chandler, all right, but I didn't suppose you'd remember me."

"Remember you. Do you suppose I'd forget the man who came to my father's rescue and made it possible for me to go through college? Forget you? I should think not."

"Well, Mr. Standish, your grandfather did me a turn in the past, when I was a boy, that I ain't forgot yet, and ain't likely to."

"I looked you up as soon as I reached Chicago, Mr. Chandler, and found you were in California."

The old man smiled a little. Standish beckoned to the coachman. The man drove up alongside the curb and Standish, turning to the old man, said: "You're coming home to dinner with me to-night. I won't take no for an answer. You must meet my wife, and Standish fairly forced the old man into the carriage."

Jabez Chandler had a queer expression on his face as he mounted the steps of the Banks mansion, arm in arm with the younger man. Standish led him into the great room off the hall. The younger man was as exuberant as a schoolboy. "Dorothy," he called, "Dorothy."

Dorothy came from a recess in a dim corner of the room. "Dorothy, I've brought home the best friend, barring my parents, I ever had in my life. This is Mr. Chandler, dear."

Dorothy came forward, her face showing white in the half light of the room, and with a frightened look in her eyes. Then the look fled, she went forward. "Grandpa," she said, and held out both hands. The old man kissed her quickly with something of yearning in his eyes.

There was something stern in Standish's face. "Dorothy," he said, "why did I not know this?"

Dorothy turned, and the old man quickly left the room. "You ought to have known, dear," she said. "I don't know what to tell you. We thought—"

"I think I see it, but I don't believe you thought it. You told me something once of your mother's ideas of birth and education and refinement. Thank God, Dorothy, those things don't make a man forget his friends nor make him ashamed of his relatives. I know you're not ashamed, dear; I think I know all about it," and he kissed her softly.

Standish turned from his wife and went straight to the room of Mrs. Banks. He was there about fifteen minutes.

That night in a box at the opera an old man in a business suit sat at the very front by the side of his daughter. Two young people in evening dress and looking happy, sat just behind. A daughter is a daughter, come what will, and there was actually a soft light that night in the eyes of Mrs. Geraldine Banks, for that day her mind had learned a lesson and her heart had lost a burden.—Edward B. Clark in the Chicago Record-Herald.

OUR GREAT NATIONAL GAME.

Proof That Baseball Fever is No Respector of Persons.

The baseball fever is no respecter of persons. The broker with the high hat and the bank account and the barefooted boy stand side by side and eagerly await the next inning. But there is some little interest when it comes out that the fever that comes with the first game reaches the dignified ecclesiastic. But it does, and it sometimes goes very high.

One day last summer, when the leading teams were running very close, a reporter called on Cardinal Gibbons to ask him some questions regarding the pope's encyclical which had recently been published. The cardinal granted the interview and the reporter left the room. He was going down the steps when his eminence, leaning over the landing, called out:

"Have you heard to-day's score?"

"Yes," said the surprised reporter, "it was 3 to 2 and in our favor."

"Good," said the cardinal, with a smile, "that puts us two points ahead, doesn't it?"

The reporter didn't know, but he realized that the cardinal knew a great many things that he didn't know.—Public Ledger.

KEPT CHURCH PEOPLE AWAKE.

Mosquitoes Have Fun With a Missouri Congregation.

The New Jersey mosquito bears the reputation of being the most malicious and persistent of his species, but he seems to have a dangerous rival in some of Missouri extraction which have been operating at and about La Grange. "Mosquitoes have been unusually plentiful in La Grange during the last week," says the Indicator, of that place. "They came near breaking up services at the various churches Sunday evening. The congregations that evening were the liveliest ever seen in La Grange. The young girls with short skirts were kept busy scratching their lower limbs; the ladies wearing thin waists gave their attention to their shoulders, while the men with scanty supplies of hair were entertaining their 'cousins' at luncheon on the tops of their cranlums. It was quite amusing to hear the snick of some person whose Irish had been aroused by the bite of a mosquito, and who had landed on the intruder with a severe blow during the services."

NEWS OF THE WORLD

A Brief Chronicle of Matters of Importance.

IOWA REPUBLICANS.

State Convention Renominates Cummins—Allison's Tariff Plank.

The Iowa Republican State Convention assembled in Des Moines, Ia., Tuesday and completed its work Wednesday. The ticket nominated follows: A. B. Cummins, of Polk, for governor; John Herriott, of Adair, for lieutenant-governor; Charles A. Bishop, of Polk, for judge of the supreme court; D. J. Palmer, of Washington, for railroad commissioner, all of whom are at present serving their first term.

The platform congratulates the nation on the present era of prosperity, commends the administration of Gov. Cummins, rejoices in Iowa's leadership in national affairs, favors good roads legislation, indorses the Louisiana Purchase commission, and says:

"We commend entirely and without reservation the administration of President Roosevelt. Called as he was to the office of chief executive under the most trying circumstances, his fidelity to the public welfare, the wisdom and moderation of his utterances and counsel, and the painstaking zeal which he brings to the performance of all his duties, command our respect and admiration."

"Iowa Republicans, in common with the Republicans of the entire nation, expect and desire his unanimous nomination as his own successor."

Senator Allison's tariff-trust plank is as follows:

We reiterate our faith in the historic principle of protection. Under its influence our country, foremost in the bounties of nature, has become foremost in production. It has enabled the laborer to successfully insist upon good wages and has induced capital to engage in production with a reasonable hope of a fair reward. Its vindication is found in the history of its success and the rapidity with which our national resources have been developed and our industrial independence secured, and we heartily renew our pledge to maintain it.

Tariff rates enacted to carry this policy into effect should be just, fair and impartial, equally opposed to foreign control and domestic monopoly, to sectional discrimination and individual favoritism and must from time to time be changed to meet the varying conditions incident to the product of our industries and their changing relations to our foreign and domestic commerce. Duties that are too low should be increased, and duties that are too high should be reduced.

We indorse the policy of reciprocity and the natural complement of protection. Reciprocity between nations is trade for mutual advantage and both sides must give and take. Protection builds up domestic industry and trade and secures our own markets for ourselves; reciprocity builds up foreign trade and finds an outlet for our surplus.

We approve the treaty with Cuba recently ratified as conferring substantial benefits upon both countries and urge that the remaining steps necessary to make it effective be promptly taken.

We believe that the large corporations commonly called "trusts" should be so regulated and supervised both in their organization and operation that their evil tendencies may be checked and their evil practices prevented. In many instances they are efficient industrial instruments and the natural outcome of an inevitable process of economic evolution. We do not desire their destruction, but insist that they shall be so regulated and controlled as to prevent monopoly and promote competition and in the fullest measure subserve and advance the public good.

The patriotic and resolute course of the president of the United States in his recommendations to congress upon this subject and upon the related subject of the further regulation of interstate commerce commands our confidence and admiration and recent legislation of congress in harmony with his recommendations meets our hearty approval.

The Pope's Illness.

Saturday night Cardinal Rampolla summoned to the Vatican Cardinal Oreglia and a dozen other members of the sacred college. On their arrival they had a secret audience with the pontiff. Later it was said that the pope was very ill and had handed Cardinal Oreglia private papers and his will.

It was stated that the pope, after the conference, faltered and that his heart's action was so very feeble that he had to be sustained with injections of caffeine. He also suffers from dysentery. The gravest rumors are afloat, one going so far as to state that the pope's death is expected momentarily.

White House, a little town 15 miles from Toledo, was nearly wiped out by fire, 15 dwellings and stores burning at a loss of $32,000.

Rev. Chas. T. Beals, pastor of the Second Congregational church of Greenfield, Mass., has announced his conversion to socialism.

Socialists only will secure appointments to municipal jobs is the announcement of Mayor Parkham B. Flinders, of Haverhill, Mass.

Round the World.

The last connection in the Commercial Pacific Co.'s cable was made at Honolulu Saturday night at 10:50 p. m., eastern time, and a cablegram was flashed around the world in nine and one-half minutes. The first message over the cable was sent at 10:50 p. m. by President Roosevelt at Oyster Bay to Gov. Taft at Manila. It was as follows:

The course of President Roosevelt's message around the world was by the Postal Telegraph Co., land line from Oyster Bay to San Francisco, thence by the Commercial Pacific cable to Honolulu, to Midway, to Guam, and to Manila. From Manila to Hong Kong the message passed by the cable which was lifted and cut by Admiral Dewey in 1898. From Hong Kong it went to Saigon, to Singapore, to Penang, to Madras, to Bombay, to Aden, to Suez, to Alexandria, to Malta, to Gibraltar, to Lisbon, and to the Azores. Between Hong Kong and the Azores it had passed by foreign cables. At the Azores it was taken up again by the Commercial cables, and sent to Canzo, to New York, and to Oyster Bay. A message starting around the world at 5 a. m. today would arrive at Honolulu at 11 p. m. yesterday, at Midway at 10 p. m. yesterday, at Guam at 7 p. m. today, and at Manila at 6 p. m. today. It would pass through India at 3 p. m. today, and would return to New York before 6 p. m. Thus, it would have made an excursion from today into yesterday, and arrive back at New York within an hour of the time it started.

Awful Beyond Description.

According to the best information obtainable, 235 men out of 282 who were in the Union Pacific mine, Hanna, Wyo., were killed in the explosion. The majority of the victims are Finlanders and negroes.

A small army of rescuers, spurred on by the frantic appeals of wives, mothers and children who gathered at the mine, worked with desperate energy all night. They tell of pitiful scenes at the seventeenth level, the lowest point reached during the night.

Some of the survivors were driven insane and fought furiously against the rescuers. Dazed, listless survivors were found sitting on cars or lying on the floor, careless of whether they lived or died. Near the seventeenth level, twenty bodies were found strewn over a pile of debris which the men had striven to surmount before they were overcome by the deadly fumes. Some of them were blackened by flames, but all had died crawling toward fresh air. The eleven rescuers who penetrated thus far were too weak to bring out a body.

For hours the scene at the mouth of the level was heartrending. With clothes and hair awry, mothers, wives, sweethearts and children huddled together, weeping and wringing their hands. Many sat on shattered timbers blown from the mine's mouth, insensible to their surroundings. The most frantic pushed to the edge of the gap and tried to force a way into the slope.

The Awful Cloudburst.

A second Johnstown horror has come to Pennsylvania, only on a smaller scale, resulting from a cloudburst late Sunday afternoon, which flooded a long ravine along Brush creek, sweeping away a big dam above Oakford Park, causing great loss of life, and devastating portions of the towns of Jeannette, Penn., Larimer, Greensburg, Irwin, Burrell and Manor. The loss of life will range up towards 175 people. The number who perished at Oakford Park is estimated at 75. Twenty bodies have been recovered. Many are foreigners and have not been identified. At South Jeannette a rescuing party saved fully 150 persons who had been thrown into the streams by their houses being overturned. Many houses were seen by them floating down the stream.

So widespread is the territory swept by the floods and so great the excitement among the survivors, that authentic estimates cannot be given.

Early Monday morning a bureau was opened at Jeannette, where the greatest loss of life occurred, and the names of the identified dead recovered and the missing were registered together with a description of the bodies recovered but not identified.

Desperate Race Riots.

A bloody race war constituting a reign of terror unparalleled, kept Evansville, Ind., in a state of panic for 48 hours. The trouble, which had been brewing for months, came to a crisis Friday when Lee Brown, a negro, shot and killed Patrolman Massey, who was trying to arrest him while bent on the murder of a man with whom he had quarreled. A mob surrounded the jail, but the negro was secretly removed from the city and taken to Vincennes. Patrolman Massey died in terrible agony and Saturday morning the crowd, refusing to credit the statements of the officials that the negro was not in the jail, began threatening as it increased in numbers. Stores were broken open to secure arms, a raid was made on the negro quarters, thousands of shots were fired and troops ordered out. At one time it looked as if many would be killed.

Head

Hurt So Badly Was

Had no Sleep—Could

Dr. Miles' Nervine Permanently Cured Me.

"A year ago I suffered from extreme nervous stomach trouble. I was afraid of everything, could not bear to hear singing or music and reading or hearing of a death nearly brought on my own. I could not sleep or hardly lie down, the back of my head hurt me so badly I nearly went crazy. My shoulders hurt and the least thing I did would bring on an attack of extreme nervousness. There were times when I would have a lump in my throat and my mouth would be so dry I could hardly speak. I was in despair until I began to take Dr. Miles' Restorative Nervine. I have taken in all twelve bottles and consider myself permanently cured. My home doctor has since remarked on my healthy appearance and said he wished he could say his medicine helped me. He knows it was Dr. Miles' Nervine. We are never without the Anti-Pain Pills and consider our medicines household remedies. I cannot say enough for the Nervine, because in addition to my own case my daughter, who was out of school for a long time because of St. Vitus' dance, was completely cured by eight bottles. She is now feeling fine and going to school every day. We thank you for your kindness and will never stop singing the praises of Dr. Miles' Restorative Nervine."—Mrs. C. E. Ring, Lima, O.

THURSDAY, JULY 9, 1903.

George M. Savage, the well known advertising agent, of Detroit, has again taken a business partner in the person of Richard F. Reaume, for 22 years in his employ, and the new firm will be known as the George M. Savage Advertising Agency. Every newspaper publisher in Michigan has had more or less dealings with these gentlemen in the past, which have been generally satisfactory.

Adrian Press: Have you heard any Michigan Republican say he will not vote the Republican ticket again because no primary election law was enacted? "Skeerely?"

We cannot say we have heard any say they will bolt the whole Republican ticket, but we have heard any number say they will not support or vote for the senators who were responsible for the defeat of the primary election bill.

If Governor Bliss had had the necessary backbone and the courage of his convictions, instead of heeding the politicians, the state would not now be saddled with the prospect of $21,000 extra salaries for supreme court judges after next January. The supreme court bench needed three more judges just about as much as a pig needs two tails. But then, the people's money is made to spend and as politicians "we must take care of our friends," and of course, there are some "friends" who have a strong itching for a seat on the supreme bench, so the governor supinely weakened and the bill is a law.

A great deal of surmise has been caused during the past 15 days at the number of maple leaves that are lying around on the sidewalks and lawns. Some people think the wind has twisted and broken them off, while others believe some insect pest is at work on them. The latter theory seems altogether the most feasible. The falling of the leaves is not peculiar to Chelsea alone, but has been observed in other places. The Manchester Enterprise suggests that "some of our learned botanists at the state institutions tell us how to get rid of said insect if that be the true cause. We can't afford to spend years in growing a beautiful shade tree and then have it wither and die when it gets to be of value to us."

Working Night and Day.

The busiest and mightiest little thing that ever was made is Dr. King's New Pills. These pills change weakness into strength, listlessness into energy, brain-fag into mental power. They're wonderful in building up the health. Only 25c per box. Sold by Glazier & Stimson.

Lima.

Theo. Covert and wife spent Sunday in Chelsea.

Several from here spent the Fourth in Ypsilanti.

Guy Chaffee, of South Bend, called on friends here Saturday.

North Lake.

The North Lake ball team played two games at Gregory on the Fourth. They won one and lost one.

Mary and Amy Whalian are engaged to teach summer school in the Windy City the coming summer, beginning July 13.

Quite a number spent the Fourth in Glenn's grove. There was no special program. Everyone seemed to enjoy themselves.

Haying is the order of the day. There are now four hay loaders in this neighborhood, and still laborers are getting $2 per day and asking more.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Dancer and son Clare, of Ann Arbor, and Mrs. Dancer's sister, Miss Ora, of Romeo, took in the Fourth here, the guests of Mr. and Mrs. R. S. Whalian.

Night Was Her Terror.

"I would cough nearly all night long," writes Mrs. Chas. Applegate, of Alexandria, Ind., "and could hardly get any sleep. I had consumption so bad that I walked a block I would cough frightfully and spit blood, but, when all other medicines failed, three $1.00 bottles of Dr. King's New Discovery wholly cured me and I gained 58 pounds." It's absolutely guaranteed to cure coughs, cold, la grippe, bronchitis and all throat and lung troubles. Price 50c and $1.00. Trial bottles free at Glazier & Stimson's drug store.

Sharon.

John Monks is working for D. Heim.

Milton Heschelwerdt spent the Fourth in Jackson.

Elmer Gage was the guest of Miss Grace Dorr Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Holden spent a few days in Detroit.

MUST DO THEIR DUTY PROMPTLY.

Judge Watkins Gets After Delinquent Administrators of Estates.

Judge of Probate Watkins is after delinquent administrators of estates with a very sharp stick. Last week he issued a body execution for Wm. Bussey, of Ypsilanti, guardian of S. Ping, a minor. He gave Mr. Bussey notice to render an account, the time being up June 2. After waiting until now the execution was issued. He must now either render an account or stay in jail. It is a very unusual proceeding and only used when the party involved is particularly contumacious. Probate Judge Watkins is lenient but he allows no trifling with his court, particularly where the estates of widows and orphans are concerned.

In the estate of Chas. O'Connor, an order was made Monday morning removing the administrator, Patrick J. O'Connor, of Northfield, because of not rendering an account and refusing to pay bills.

Sylvan Center.

Mrs. L. A. Stephens called on Mrs. H. C. Boyd July 4.

Frank Tuttle, of New York, is the guest of M. B. Millsbaugh.

Fred Gilbert and son Earl were Jackson visitors the Fourth.

Finley Whitaker spent the first of the week with his son Burligh.

R. J. West and wife returned home from Port Huron Thursday.

Luther Drake, of Kalamazoo, spent the first of the week with Chas. Lovee.

Wm. Merker and family, of Chelsea, spent Sunday with Mrs. Mary Merker.

Maudus Merker and wife, of Lima, spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Nelson Dancer.

Dr. and Mrs. Bancroft, of Detroit, are the guests of Mr. and Mrs. M. B. Millsbaugh.

Mr. and Mrs. Clinton Frink, of Springfield, spent the first of the week with Mr. and Mrs. John Knoll.

STATE OF OHIO, CITY OF TOLEDO, ss. LUCAS COUNTY.

FRANK J. CHENEY makes oath that he is senior partner of the firm of F. J. The union service next Sunday evening will be held at the Congregational church.
Rev. E. E. Caster will preach the sermon.
Miss Liuna Runciman having completed her studies at the Cleary Business College, Ypsilanti, has taken a position as stenographer with a firm in Marshall.

The altar boys of St. Mary's church had their annual outing at Crooked Lake last Monday. The pastor of the church accompanied them and gave them a right royal good time.

Rev. Carl Lederer will be the future pastor of St. Thomas church, Scio. He recently completed his theological studies and was ordained in the church of which his father, Rev. A. Lederer, is pastor at Saline.

The farmers in this vicinity report that their wheat, oats and hay crop will be exceptionally fine with large yields, but that corn is backward. Potatoes and beans,

The onion growers all report their crops doing well.

Tomorrow afternoon at 3 o'clock the Junior Stars and the Wayne High School will play a ball game at K. of P. park that will be worth everyone's while to witness.
It is not yet definitely decided but they expect to play the Detroit Mohawks here at 3 o'clock Saturday afternoon.

The following teachers from this neighborhood received certificates at the June

During the year ending June 30, 1903,
the Detroit, Ypsilanti, Ann Arbor &
Jackson railroad carried 1,941,061 passengers, all of whom paid fare, no
transfers being included in the reckoning.
Out of all this number of people carried,
only one person was killed on the road and eight were injured, which is a remarkable showing.

In the best played game of the season,
the Junior Stars were defeated at Plymouth yesterday by the score of 4 to 3. Plymouth scored first in the fourth innings, again in the seventh and two in the ninth. The Stars did not find the ball until the seventh innings when they got one run and added two more in the eighth.
It was a hot game.

credit for the successful manner in which they conducted the social. An interesting musical program was given, Miss Pauline Burg singing very acceptably and getting many encores.

Lightning struck the pioneer log cabin on the fair ground at Ann Arbor Sat-less than the firm asked for. The claim was opposed by W. A. Boland, who purchased the road three years ago.

An exchange says: There has been discovered lately a new sugar beet disease.
The leaves of the sugar beet assume a whitish color, afterward becoming pure white. Examination shows it to be a parasite, spread by wind and insects, of a persistently malignant character. Solutions of permanganate of potash proved more efficacious than any other means, also the Bordeaux mixture, lysol and formalin.

The Fowlerville Review asks the following very pertinent question: Why should not congress provide that a certain sum of money be donated from the federal treasury to help construct good roads in any township, county or state that is ready to bear the great bulk of the expenses of this improvement? Uncle Sam has spent hundreds of millions on rivers and harbors, but hardly anything for good roads. And why should not the people have a convenient postal fractional currency for use in the mails? Also a parcels post for carrying merchandise at reasonable rates, the same as is done in almost every other country?

Blue Ribbon Meeting.

The Blue Ribbon Meeting at Detroit this year promises to be the best in the history of the club. The field in the great M. and M. is the best and most evenly balanced of any before, and it will undoubtedly be one of the most hotly contested races of the season. The Chamber of Commerce stake has among its entries all of the sensational green pacers of the country and indications are that a new record will be made for this race. These two races, as usual, will be best two in three, and among the entries will be found all the leading horses of the country. For the meeting the aggregate amount to be distributed will be over $50,000 and nearly every horseman of the country will be on hand to witness and take part in the distribution of the purses.
Everything promises that it will be an ideal meeting and everybody in the state should attend at least one day and it doesn't make any difference which day you go for each day will be a good one.
This year the meeting is one week later than usual, the dates being July 20 to 24 inclusive, and the horses will be in better condition to go the race of their lives.

THAT GIRL of JOHNSON'S

By JEAN KATE LUDLUM.

Author of "At a Girl's Mercy," Etc.

Entered According to Act of Congress in the Year 1890 by Street & Smith,
In the Office of the Librarian of Congress, at Washington, D. C.

CHAPTER I.

The Girl.

The day was dreary when she was born, not only because the rain was falling in a drizzling fashion and a mist hung over the hills, but because she was born. Her mother, having a soft heart, felt all her tenderness awaking for her weak daughter, and gathered her into her arms with a half pitying caress. But her mother did not live long, and some of her friends went so far as to say that it was well she did not, for she would have spoiled the girl.

Her father—well, there was no danger of her father spoiling the girl with tenderness. He considered her birth one of the blows fate dealt him, and he said he had had many blows from fate. He said fate was against him; people said he was shiftless; they said also that there was hardly a doubt that the girl would be the same. None of the Johnsons amounted to much—at least that branch of the family. Lemuel Johnson, this man's brother, was rich, rumor said, and they did not blame him for having nothing to do with his shiftless brother. He lived in a fine house in New York; was enterprising and shrewd; how could anyone blame him for dropping this ne'er-do-well brother?

His brother thought differently. Lemuel was rich; fate had been good to him; it was but right that he should help him; it was an unheard of thing that he had never offered to help him, especially when this added burden was laid upon his already too heavily laden shoulders. Of what good to him was a girl? Girls were of little use. Had she been a boy—but she was not a boy, and she was motherless from the time she was three weeks old.

With a pathetic appreciation of the fitness of things her mother named her Dolores. And from the time she was taken from the dying mother's arms her large brown eyes, shaded by long curling lashes, looked out upon the world with a strange gravity and a knowledge of what it meant to be brought into the world unwelcome and unloved.

She seldom cried. She never cooed as other and happier babies do. And as she grew older silence grew upon her. She said little and the neighbors seldom ran in to gossip with her as they did with each other, for there was no use; she took no interest in them or their gossip; no one could talk easily with her eyes upon them. So when she grew old enough to attend to the household matters herself, they left her alone; even the children of her own age dropped her as though she had been dead.

She was an excellent cook, and kept the house well. In these things her father had no fault to find. He seldom spoke to her; if the food were

"Did ye get ther water?" well cooked he never found fault; he never praised it or her; he ate his meals in silence, and went out of the house. She saw him only at meal times; his evenings were spent at the tavern; hers were spent at home mending his clothes or doing whatever was to be done.

And to every one in the village—out of it she knew no one—she was simply "that girl of Johnson's."

CHAPTER II.

The Stranger.

When Dolores was twenty her father awoke to the fact that she was no longer a child. The knowledge of her age and comeliness came to him suddenly one day.

Johnson was a blacksmith, and young Green, whose father was judge in the town across the mountain, was riding up the valley when his mare cast a shoe, and he stopped at the shop to have it replaced.

The day was warm and sultry, and after a few minutes young Green asked for some water. Johnson sent him to the house for it, saying that Dolores would give it to him. Green returned in a few minutes. There was a strange expression on his face, and he did not enter the shop at once; he stood in the doorway, watching the hammer fall on the glowing iron.

Green had a college education, and his friends were to a certain extent like all other young fellows, fond of hunting and all athletic sports, but a strength like this man's he had never before seen. Green was a man, and men admire strength. The mouth was sullen under the scant gray mustache; the eyes were small, and showed a possible cruelty of nature—brute cruelty; the forehead was low and narrow. There was not an intellectual line in his face.

A wrinkle of puzzled thought appeared between the young man's brows. He turned and looked long and earnestly up the path that led to the tiny unpainted house set in its dreary garden a short distance up the mountain.

Dolores was standing in the doorway, her arms hanging down in front of her, her fingers clasped listlessly together. The sunlight was on her dark head; her brown eyes were looking straight before her, and there was a light in her face that fairly transformed it. Usually there was little light in her face. Her lips were parted as though she had been speaking of pleasant things.

Young Green took off his hat, and ran his fingers through his fair hair. The wrinkle of perplexity appeared and deepened between his brows.

"Johnson is she your daughter?" The blacksmith straightened up in surprise. No one had ever before asked about Dolores. With the back of his hand he wiped the drops from his grimy face.

"She my darter? Wal, I reckon. My cursed luck that she warn't a boy; boys is o' use."

A flash came into the clear blue eyes watching him. "Cursed luck? Man, you should thank your lucky star that she is a woman—and such a woman! Where did she get her learnin'?"

"Learnin'?" The man was bewildered; he laughed scornfully. "She ain't never had no learnin' 's far as I know. Thar ain't no use in learnin'—'t least I ain't never seen no use o' it. Wimmen 'specially air better off 'thout it."

Hyar's yer mare red dy. Fine mare, she. A shillin', sir; thank 'ee."

The mare was full of life and spirits, and a beautiful animal. When her master mounted she reared and plunged; her tail swept the scanty grass at the door, her long silky mane swept his face; her eyes were flashing, her nostrils dilated.

The girl in the doorway lost her listless attitude. She came down the steps, and called to him, and her voice—peculiarly penetrating, but full of rare sweetness—sounded like a note of music on the sultry air. He smiled at her. With a tight rein and a calm word he quieted the mare, then he rode up to the girl. His voice was pleasant; to her it sounded grave and almost sweet.

"The mare is gentle as a kitten; she would not harm me for the world. It is only one of her tricks. You are as fond of animals as of astronomy, are you not, Miss Johnson?"

Her gaze had strayed down to the shop. Her father was standing in the doorway rubbing his hands on his leathern apron and watching them. The flash died out of her eyes, the flush from her face; the listlessness had returned.

His gaze involuntarily followed hers. He received no reply from her, and expected none; he understood with a rare instinct.

When he had ridden away she stood a long time at the gate. The far-away look was in her eyes as she watched the black mare and her rider until the haze from the mountain hid them from view.

When her father came into dinner he watched her as she prepared the table; he watched her as she ate. His eyes were on her constantly; she knew it, but gave no sign.

As he took up his hat to return to the shop he turned and asked, abruptly, but with little show of interest: "How old air ye, girl?"

Her large eyes looked through and through him; her gaze was steady, his wavered; her voice, too, was steady and slow: "I am twenty, father."

"Curse the girl!" he muttered, as he passed down the worn path to the shop with no haste in his slouching gait. "Curse all ther wimmen! Borneed fools, every one of 'em! Jest my luck that she warn't a boy; boys is o' use!"

CHAPTER III.

Her Learning.

Dolores was sitting on the door steps one evening. Her father was at the tavern as usual, and as her household duties were finished she sat in the mellow moonlight that flooded the mountain with radiance. She was no longer listless. Her lips were parted; her eyes larger and darker than usual; her face, raised to the starry heavens, was full of light. On her knees lay an old astronomy, and one slender finger marked the place of her reading.

She was lost to herself and her surroundings; she did not hear the heavy footsteps approaching along the narrow path; she saw nothing until a rough hand pulled the book from under her fingers. A deep oath smote the air.

"Curse ye!" her father muttered, between his clenched teeth. "Curse 'em as invented books an' learnin'! Thes is ther way ye waste yer time while I am away. Curse ye! Yer mother was fool 'nough, but ye're worse."

He watched her face.

She rose up slowly to her full height and confronted him. Her soul was in her eyes and his shrank from it.

"Father, say what you like of me; you shall not say nothing of my mother; she is beyond your power now."

The book had slipped from his hand and fallen to the ground; he kicked it contemptuously. The flash deepened in her eye, but she had had her say, and sat down. The moonlight was on her face and hair; her shadow lay long and dark behind her.

Lavinia Ketcham made a gentle wife; she gave up much for peace, and at first she had loved her husband; afterward she found out his brute nature. Her nature was fine, and she was true to him always, but love was out of the question then. He forbade her the use of her books, and in that only she would not obey him. For a nature like hers to die mentally or even stagnate was impossible. She was above him as the stars she loved were above her, and she knew it, and he knew it also; he hated her for it.

She was a school teacher, and as school teachers did not thrive that side of the mountain he offered her a home, and she accepted his offer, believing him noble because of this generous act, as women will believe of the men they love until they have been proved otherwise, when the sweet if rather blind faith in them can never return once being destroyed.

Her daughter inherited her nature only in a far higher degree. Her husband knew it, and the neighbors knew it. Never, however, did the girl's father know that her mother's books were her constant companions; that she lived in them and on them; that nearly every word of theirs was known to her by heart.

Betsy Glenn had been her mother's schoolmate and friend. Betsy Glenn taught Dolores with all the power she was capable. She had long been dead, but the seed she sowed grew and grew; some time it would ripen and bear fruit.

Had her father known of this he would have stopped it from the first. He did not know it, for he had never taken enough interest in her to know it. Had he asked her she would have told him, but he never asked.

The jealousy he had already felt toward his wife for her love of books seethed and scorched in his heart as he stood facing her daughter and his. She possessed not one of his traits; the mother's nature had deepened ten fold in his daughter.

(To Be Continued.)

In the Circus. Jumbo—"What an absurd retort Miss Hippo gave Mr. Monkey." Camel—"What was it?" Jumbo—"After he had talked awhile she said he had too much mouth."

Gave Lasting Proof of His Visit to His Cousin.

The story goes that Lady Tyrconnel—or her granddaughter—was asleep in her bed, and awoke to find her cousin, Lord Tyrone, standing by her pillow. He told her that he was dead. She jeered at the statement. He repeated the assertion, and added a forcible description of the world his spirit had entered. She still doubted.

Whereupon he twisted the curtains of her bed through a ring in the ceiling, placed his hand on her carved satinwood bureau, where the ominous mark of his five fingers remained, and finally touched her wrist, which shrank and withered beneath his pressure.

Then he foretold many family events (which, of course, all came true), and vanished. From that hour until the day of her death the lady's wrist was never beheld by mortal eye. When she died the grim mark was seen, eaten deep into the delicate flesh.

Lady Betty was a famous compounder of "simples"—which, indeed, were very far from being simple!—and a chilblain-plaster made from her recipe is still sold in the west of England.

She used to tell with glee how she once met a man who saluted her effusively, whereupon she asked his name. "Ah, then, my lady, you don't remember me? I'm the husband of the woman your ladyship brewed the medicine for; she took it, but she died the next day. Long life to your ladyship!"

DOING BUSINESS IN RUSSIA.

Free-and-Easy Methods of the Subjects of the Czar.

We have learned in the past few years to regard Minister de Witte of Russia as one of the greatest financial administrators in the world. Yet every book on Russia gives fresh evidence of mismanagement on the part of the government in the details of business. Wirt Gerrare's "Greater Russia, the Continental Empire of the World," illustrates the Russian way of doing things by this account of the postoffice service:

At the chief postoffices in St. Petersburg and in Moscow there is only one clerk selling stamps. He closes his office at 2 o'clock. He cannot reckon change without a counting board.

There are about half a dozen branch offices in these capitals, but stamps are as rare as a postal order in a country store in an American village.

At one branch postoffice in Moscow the letter box was full to overflowing when Mr. Gerrare called. He took his letters inside, but the clerk in charge declined to accept them.

"But the letter box is full."

"Find a letter box which is not full," replied the clerk.

"That will be difficult."

"Then wait until one is emptied tomorrow."—Youth's Companion.

How little is knowledge, how limited thought!

How helpless and puny are we! We think what we hear and believe as we're taught.

But learning and science seem little or naught In the solving of life's mystery.

Confronted by marvels on sea and on plain, And in words that above us revolve, Our much-vaunted reason may try to explain,

But only to find all our efforts in vain: Creation's great problems to solve.

We study the playlets and think we are wise, We measure the orbits they trace; We weigh the bright stars and can reckon their size,

But none can determine the height of the skies Or measure the infinite space.

All things that are born in their grave are soon laid;

Time seems to the living a foe; We wonder why anything ever was made It only to bud, and to blossom, and fade Or vanish like fast-melting snow.

There are those who live long with honor and fame And some in their infancy die, And some have to struggle with sorrow and shame—

We wonder why all of us are not the same; The wisest can never tell why.

We turn to our reason to settle a doubt, Yet know not what reason may be; Its substance and form we know nothing about.

The cause of its being we cannot find out, So dull and so foolish are we.

There seems no foundation where reason may stand In realms where no mortal has trod; Infinity mocks us on every hand, Our learning and logic are ropes made of sand;

There's nothing to rest in but God. —Frank Beard in Ram's Horn.

Couldn't Fool Her. "My dear Miss Myllins," said the impetuous young man. "I love you more than I can find words to tell."

"But I presume you could tell me in figures," rejoined the beautiful heiress in tones that suggested the ice man.

A Wide Difference. Kate—"Is there much difference in their social position?"

Nell—"Oh, yes. Her father gets a salary and his father gets wages."

HUGE NEST OF FISHHAWK.

It is Four Feet Across and Weighs 400 Pounds.

The giant nest of the American osprey, or fishhawk, which has been placed in the crocheted top of a pine tree growing on a point of land protruding into the lake near the main entrance to the Bronx zoological park, is attracting a great deal of attention from the increasing crowds there on balmy days, says the New York Times. The nest, which was secured at Gardiner's Island, off the eastern coast of Long Island, has the shape of a huge bowl, probably four feet across and a yard high, and weighs 400 pounds. It is composed chiefly of good-sized sticks and among other materials are pieces of broken oars and wrecked boats, fishbones, skeletons of quail, fishbones and a long strand of barbed wire. The huge nest also has a number of sub-tenants, for about its sides are built the nests of three pair of purple grackles or blackbirds. The osprey is not a bird-killing hawk, although it is well able to take care of itself in encounters with other hawks and will not allow them to approach its nest. It is presumed that the wis grackles made their home in the osprey's nest for protection from other hawks.

For Aged People.

Bedford, Mo., July 6th.—Mr. G. V. Bohrer of this place has written an open letter to the old men and women of the country, advising them to use Dodd's Kidney Pills as a remedy for those forms of Kidney Trouble so common among the aged. Mr. Bohrer says:

"I suffered myself for years with my Kidneys and urinary organs. I was obliged to get up as many as seven or eight times during the night."

"I tried many things with no success, till I saw one of Dodd's Almanacs, and read of what Dodd's Kidney Pills were doing for old people."

"I bought two boxes from our druggist and began to use them at once. In a very short time I was well. This is over a year ago, and my trouble has not returned, so that I know my cure was a good, genuine, permanent one."

"I believe Dodd's Kidney Pills are a splendid medicine for old people or anyone suffering with Kidney and urinary troubles, for although I am 84 years of age, they have made me well."

Silence may be golden, yet the product of the still makes men noisy. —P. B. Power.

A prominent Southern lady, Mrs. Blanchard, of Nashville, Tenn., tells how she was cured of backache, dizziness, painful and irregular periods by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

"Gratitude compels me to acknowledge the great merit of your Vegetable Compound. I have suffered for four years with irregular and painful menstruation, also dizziness, pains in the back and lower limbs, and fitful sleep. I dreaded the time to come which would only mean suffering to me. Six bottles of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound brought me health and happiness in a few short months, and was worth more than months under the doctor's care, which really did not benefit me at all. I feel like another person now. My aches and pains have left me. I am satisfied there is no medicine so good for sick women as your Vegetable Compound, and I advocate it to my lady friends in need of medical help."—Mrs. B. A. BLANCHARD, 438 Broad St., Nashville, Tenn.—$5000 for full original of above letter proving genuineness cannot be produced.

THE ODD CORNER

Lucy.
She dwelt among the untrodden ways
Beside the springs of Dove;
A maid whom there were none to praise,
And very few to love.
A violet by a mossy stone
Half hidden from the eye;
Fair as a star, when only one
Is shining in the sky.
She lived unknown, and few could know
When Lucy ceased to be;
But she is in her grave, and oh,
The difference to me!
—William Wordsworth.

An Ancient Burial Place.
Ever since the advent of man upon the earth, the question of disposal of his remains after death has been one of vital importance. It is to man's ever-present desire for a safe and suitable repository for his dead that archaeologists owe much of their knowledge of prehistoric time; for the weapons, cooking utensils and other articles exhumed from these burial places of the ancients unfold many facts regarding their methods of living.

Of the various places used by the ancients in which to deposit their dead the rude stone chamber known as a cromlech was probably the most often adopted for any burial other than the very common ones. The picture shown is an accurate one of a cromlech which was discovered in a barrow near Paradis, on the Island of Guernsey. On digging into the mound the large flat top, or cap-stone, of the tomb was discovered, and when this was removed the upper part of two human skulls was exposed to view. The chamber was filled up with earth, and as this was gradually removed, exposing the bones of the entire figures, the latter were found to be in a good state of preservation. The teeth and jaws denoted that they were the skeletons of adults, but not of old men. A singular feature in connection, and one unexplained, is the fact that the bodies had been so placed at burial that one faced north and the other south. Possibly they were prisoners or slaves, who were slain—perhaps buried alive—at the funeral of some great tribal chieftain or great person whose body was placed in the large chamber near by.

House Over Two Centuries Old.
Workmen have been kept busy throughout the spring months on the Wingohocking meadow, surrounding the "Rock house," the "Shoemaker house," or the "Hendrick's house," as the historic building is variously called, which is built on the huge rock at Wingohocking station, near Philadelphia. This rock is famous for being the pulpit, or the "preacher's rock" used by William Penn in pre-revolutionary days. In the famous old meadow through which, until recent years, the beautiful Wingohocking creek flowed, and in which during the revolutionary war some of the British cavalry had their encampment, there are now huge flower beds and clumps of hardy flowering shrubbery. All underbrush has been cut from the stretch of woods on the hillside above the meadow and the trees are trimmed.

GARMENTS OF BOSTON WOMEN

Chicago Humorist Thinks We May Look for Startling Changes.
Simeon Ford, who is rated as a humorist of standing, relates that as he was riding in a Boston trolley car, the only male passenger in a crowd of women, his eye was attracted by a sign which read: "Half the people on this car are wearing Bunker Hill pants." To this assertion Mr. Ford takes modest exception, but we are inclined to believe he is wrong. Nobody will pretend to affirm that Mr. Ford's companions wore trousers, which, in so elegant a community as Boston, are the recognized nether garment for gentlemen, but neither Mr. Ford nor any other man is prepared to assert with confidence that they did not wear pants, either of the Plymouth Rock, the Bunker Hill or the Washington Elm variety. The women of Boston are distinguished for their progressiveness and their independence, and it is wholly conceivable that they have been quietly experimenting, unknown to the general public, but detected by the advertiser, who could not repress his eagerness to spread the glad tidings. Perhaps at a given signal, not long distant, the outer habiliments of the masquerade will be thrown off, and true Boston womanhood will stand revealed in her emancipated gladness. A "well-fitting pant," as our clothing store friends term it, is much more symmetrical than the short skirt, and far more symbolic of the strides which woman confidently expects to make in the coming years.—Roswell Field in Chicago Evening Post.

How to Keep Young

Speaking from a text of interest to all women—"How to Keep Young"—a lady writer on matters of feminine interest said: "Given a woman of ordinary healthy habits who is not overworked, the first thing to be considered is her sleep. She should take at least eight hours' rest. Women may accustom themselves to less, but it means a loss of vital force in the long run. Many women take an early morning cup of tea—a pernicious habit. In fact, the less tea or coffee a woman takes the better for her health and good looks. Comfort in dress is another important point. Tight clothing—whether in gloves, boots or corsets—should be avoided. Any annoyance or discomfort in a woman's clothing soon makes its impress on the countenance, and means a tax on the nerves as well. As to her daily fare, it need not be luxurious, but it can be wholesome and sufficient. But ample rest is the chief thing, for it is that which conserves the vital forces."

WOMEN

Every physician of large practice has had the experience of being called on to attend women who imagined that they were in the last stages of some dire female malady, when upon examination the fact was revealed that obstructed physiology of the stomach or bowels was the whole cause of the trouble.

The physician, however, who has not had experience may fall into the error of diagnosing grave diseases of the female system when they do not exist, because disorders of the bowels may be neglected until they give many of the appearances of female disease. The bowels have been known to become so clogged with hardened contents as to produce a condition closely resembling uterine displacement, uterine prolapse (falling of the womb) and the sick headache which is often attributed to female diseases is most often actually due to some trouble in the digestive machinery involving the liver, stomach, bowels or the great "Solar Plexus," which is the central telegraph station from which nervous messages are transmitted to and from all the organs in the abdominal cavity.

CUTICURA OINTMENT

Purest of Emollients and Greatest of Skin Cures.

The Most Wonderful Curative of All Time

For Torturing, Disfiguring Skin Humours

And Purest and Sweetest of Toilet Emollients.

Cuticura Ointment is beyond question the most successful curative for torturing, disfiguring humours of the skin and scalp, including loss of hair, ever compounded, in proof of which a single anointing preceded by a hot bath with Cuticura Soap, and followed in the severer cases, by a dose of Cuticura Resolvent, is often sufficient to afford immediate relief in the most distressing forms of itching, burning and scaly humours, permit rest and sleep, and point to a speedy cure when all other remedies fail. It is especially so in the treatment of infants and children, cleansing, soothing and healing the most distressing of infantile humours, and preserving, purifying and beautifying the skin, scalp and hair.
Cuticura Ointment possesses, at the same time, the charm of satisfying the simple wants of the toilet, in caring for the skin, scalp, hair, hands and feet, from infancy to age, far more effectually, agreeably and economically than the most expensive of toilet emollients. Its "Instant relief for skin-tortured babies," or "Sanative, antiseptic cleansing," or "One-night treatment of the hands or feet," or "Single treatment of the hair," or "Use after athletics," cycling, golf, tennis, riding, sparring, or any sport, each in connection with the use of Cuticura Soap, is sufficient evidence of this.
Sold throughout the world. Cuticura Resolvent, the form of Cuticura Ointment, 25c. per bottle of 50, Cuticura Soap, 25c. per box of 50. Depot, London, 7, Chancery Lane, E.C. 4. Paris, 5, Rue de la Paix. Boston, 137, Columbus Ave. Puterbaugh & Co., Inc., Sole Proprietors, 107, South St., New York City.

Brutally Tortured. A case came to light that for persistent and unmerciful torture has perhaps never been equalled. Joe Golobick, of Colusa, Cal., writes: "For 15 years I endured insufferable pain from rheumatism and nothing relieved me though I tried everything known. I came across Electric Bitters and it's the greatest medicine on earth for that trouble. A few bottles of it completely relieved and cured me." Just as good for liver and kidney troubles and general debility. Only 50c. Satisfaction guaranteed by Glazier & Stimson, druggists.

INDIGESTION

"I was troubled with stomach trouble. Thedford's Black-Draught did me more good in one week than all the doctor's medicine I took in a year."—MRS. SARAH E. SHIRFIELD, Elllettsville, Ind.

Thedford's Black-Draught quickly invigorates the action of the stomach and cures even chronic cases of indigestion. If you will take a small dose of Thedford's Black-Draught occasionally you will keep your stomach and liver in perfect condition.

THEDFORD'S BLACK-DRAUGHT

More sickness is caused by constipation than by any other disease. Thedford's Black-Draught not only relieves constipation but cures diarrhea and dysentery and keeps the bowels regular.

All druggists sell 25-cent packages.

"Thedford's Black-Draught is the best medicine to regulate the bowels I have ever used."—MRS. A. M. GRANT, Sneads Ferry, N. C.

BLOOD DISEASED MEN

If you ever contracted any blood disease you are never safe unless the virus or poison has been eradicated from the system. Have you any of the following symptoms? Sore throat, ulcers on the tongue or in the mouth, hair falling out, itching palms, itching of the skin, sores or blotches on the body, eyes red and smart, dyspeptic stomach, sexual weakness—indications of the secondary stage. Don't ruin your system with the old-fogy treatment—mercury and potash—which only suppress the symptoms for a time only to break out again when happy in domestic life. Don't let quickie experiment on you. Our New Method Treatment is guaranteed to cure you. Our guarantees are backed by bank bonds, that the disease will never return. Thousands of patients have been already cured by our New Method Treatment for over 30 years. No names used without written consent.

Mr. E. A. C. writes: "Your remedies have done me more good than Hot Springs and all the doctors and medicines I had previously tried. I have not felt any of those pains or seen any ulcers or blotches for over seven years and the outward symptoms of the loathsome disease have entirely disappeared. My hair has grown in fully again and I am married and happy."
