There will be a German restaurant and a bowery dance at the town hall afternoon and evening.

A good time and ample accommodations are assured to all.

THEIR ANNUAL PICNIC.

The People of the Church of Our Lady of the Sacred Heart Are Busy Making Preparations.

One of the events of the year in Catholic circles in this neighborhood is the annual picnic in connection with the church of Our Lady of the Sacred Heart. It is always a pleasant occasion, characterized by a fine dinner, excellent speaking and music and a good time generally. The date for holding the picnic this year is Tuesday, Aug. 18, and it will be in no wise a less enjoyable one than its predecessors.

Rev. W. P. Considine has secured as speakers for the occasion Congressman Chas. E. Townsend, of Jackson; ex-Congressman Henry C. Smith, of Adrian; ex-Congressman T. E. Tarsney, of Detroit, and Hon. M. P. Bourke, of Lansing. The musical part of the program will be furnished by Mr. M. P. Barden, of Detroit, Mr. Louis Burg and the choir of the church, and the Chelsea band. There will also be races and sports for prizes under the management of an efficient committee.

Notice of further arrangements will be published in due time.

County Auditors' Meeting.

The County Board of Auditors met at the office of the county clerk in Ann Arbor Tuesday afternoon, and organized by electing James E. McGregor as chairman. County Clerk Blum did not care to act as clerk of the board at this meeting, so the board, by unanimous vote, selected Auditor Riemenschneider to act as clerk. The board then voted to order the necessary supplies and record books, and selected the Ann Arbor Argus, Chelsea Standard and Manchester Enterprise to publish the official proceedings of the meeting, after which they adjourned to meet next Monday, Aug. 8.

Brutally Tortured.

A case came to light that for persistent and unmerciful torture has perhaps never been equaled. Joe Golobick, of Colusa, Cal., writes: "For 15 years I endured insufferable pain from rheumatism and nothing relieved me though I tried everything known. I came across Electric Bitters and it's the greatest medicine on earth for that trouble. A few bottles of it completely relieved and cured me." Just as good for liver and kidney troubles and general debility. Only 50c. Satisfaction guaranteed by Glazier & Stimson, druggists.

THEY WANT ROY HALL

Who Stole a Horse and Buggy from a Manchester Man Last Thursday.

The sheriff's officers of Washtenaw county are busily engaged looking for a young man named Roy Hall, who was around Chelsea some weeks ago taking orders for enlarging pictures and who was run away with by one of the Chelsea house horses.

Since leaving Chelsea he has been at work in Manchester and vicinity and has been hiring rigs from W. R. Martin. Up to last Thursday he had regularly returned them to Mr. Martin's barn, but on that night he failed to show up and has not been seen since.

Hall was in Chelsea Wednesday and tried to borrow $10 from W. W. Corwin, the livery stable keeper. But Will wanted security before he made the loan and as Hall had only a suit case worth $2 or $3, he did not get it. A reward of $25 is offered for the return of the horse and buggy and $25 for the thief.

Hall is described as being 22 years old, 5 feet 8 inches tall, weight about 130, dark complexion, hair dark brown, eyes dark, wore grey suit, rough stiff straw hat with low crown, low cloth top shoes, rubber soles. The horse was a blood bay, 5 years old, weight 1050, star in forehead, one white ankle, light mane, slim tail, fore-top trimmed, not very high headed.

MICHIGAN CONFERENCE

Of the M. E. Church to Be Held at Jackson in September.

The 68th Michigan conference of the Methodist Episcopal church will be held in Jackson this year, beginning Sept. 23. Bishop Foss, of Topeka, Kas., will preside. Dr. M. S. Terry, of the Garrett institute, Ill., has been secured for three lectures, and it is hoped Dr. Gunsaulus may also give an address.

Four hundred clergymen and 300 laymen are expected, free entertainment being furnished. This is the year for the lay electoral conference which brings a larger gathering than usual this year.

Baseball Notes.

The game last Friday between the Grass Lakes and Junior Stars at Grass Lake resulted in a victory for the former by a score of 11 to 7. The features of the game on the part of the Stars were the playing of Plowe and Riemenschneider and running catches by Rogers and Bacon. Raftrey and McLaren each got two hits while L. BeGole contributed a nice single and Ray Cook a corking two bagger. Holmes pitched a good game and was well caught by Cook, the Grass Lake team stealing only two bases, on him. The score by innings was:

	1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8	9
Grass Lake,	2	0	3	3	0	0	0	0	11

Hits—Rogers 1, McLaren 2, Plowe 1, Raftrey 2, Riemenschneider 1, Cook 1, BeGole 1—9. Grass Lake 11. Stolen bases—Holmes, McLaren 2, Riemenschneider, Bacon 2. Grass Lake—Clark. Struck out—By Holmes 6, by Mellencamp 6. Umpire—Frank Leach.

The Junior Stars and the Jackson Stars crossed bats here Tuesday afternoon and the Jackson fellows left their stars hanging on the Chelsea boys bats to the tune of 15 to 6. The Chelsea Stars batted better than they have done in any game this season, three two-base hits being chalked to their credit. The score by innings was:

	1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8	9
Jackson Stars,	2	0	2	0	0	0	0	0	6

NOW REST, MY HEART

Now rest, my heart!
Canst thou by fretting keep the day
From sleeping in the arms of night,
Or make one sunbeam longer stay,
Or bring one clouded star in sight?
Thou canst not keep life's pain away
From that soul dearer than thine own
But thou canst trust each sorrow may Bring blossoms where thorns might have grown.

Now rest, my heart!
Two angels wait to give thee peace:
Remembrance with past blessings brings
Assurance that good will not cease;
Forgetfulness hath healing wings.
These will thy true companions be,
And hearts with burdens more than thine
May feel the love that shelters thee,
And seek the rest that is divine;
Then rest, my heart!

THE NIGHT RUN OF THE OVERLAND

By ELMORE ELLIOTT PEAKE.

IN THREE PARTS. PART 3. Copyright by Melrose, Phillips & Co.

"I am going to let her have her head!" she cried out, in her distress. The fireman did not answer—perhaps he did not hear—and, setting her teeth, Sylvia assumed the grim burden alone. The ponderous locomotive fell over the brow of the hill, with her throttle agape, and the fire seething in her vitals with volcanic fury.

It seemed to Sylvia as though they dropped down the grade as an aerial drops from heaven—silent, irresistible, awful, touched only by the circumambient air.

All Sylvia's familiar methods of gauging speed were now at fault, but she believed that for the moment they were running two miles to every minute. Under the strange lassitude born of her deadly peril, she relaxed her tense muscles and drowsily closed her eyes.

She was rudely shaken out of her lethargy as the train struck a slight curve half way down the grade. The locomotive shied like a frightened steed, and shook in every iron muscle. The flanges shrieked against the rails, the cab swayed and cracked. For a moment the startled girl was sure they were upon the ties. But it was only the terrible momentum lifting them momentarily from the track and in a few seconds, the fire-eating behemoth righted itself. Yet its beautiful equilibrium was gone; and the engine rolled and pitched, and rose and fell, like a water-logged vessel in a storm. The bell, catching the motion began to toll.

The young fireman suddenly sprang to the floor of the cab with a face torn by superstitious fear.

"What if she leaves the rails!" he cried.

But instantly recovering himself he sprang back to his seat, with the blood of shame upon his cheeks.

"Am I running too fast?" shouted Sylvia.

"Not when we're behind time!" he doggedly shouted back.

As the track became smoother the engine grew calmer, but its barred tongue licked up the flying space for many a mile before the momentum of that perilous descent was lost. As the roar of their passage over the long bridge spanning the Mattunk, twenty miles from Stockton, died away, the fireman called out, cheerily:

"On time, madam!"

Meanwhile in the superintendent's freight car to the presidential chair of a great road.

Mr. Howard, the general superintendent, was regaling the party with an account of his experience in securing a substitute engineer at Valley Junction. For reasons afterward divulged he suppressed though, the most startling feature of his story; namely, the sex of the engine runner he had secured. But he compensated his hearers for this omission with a most dramatic account of the heroism of the sick man, whom he understood.

When President Stanford, struggling to control his emotion, clasped his daughter to his bosom her overstrained nerves gave way and, laying her head wearily upon his shoulder and with her hands upon his neck, she began to cry in a choked, pitiful little way. "Oh, papa, call me your dear little red-head once more!" she sobbed.

Why Her Dancing Dragged.

Young Lady Had Forgotten to Remove Her Rubbers.

A young man who was born on a ranch, and who, while getting his education in the East, has turned westward again every summer, and has thus maintained a fine, strong physique, recently danced with a young woman of some two hundred pounds in a village not far west of Rahway. He noticed that the dancing was uphill work, and, when it was over, sank into a chair in the incipient stages of exhaustion. The young woman looked thoughtfully across the shining surface of the floor and threw a glance of investigation at the corner where the punchbowl stood.

"Doesn't it strike you that the floor is very sticky to-night?" she inquired. The young man gallantly denied thinking so.

"It seems so to me," the young woman observed. Then she looked down at her foot, protruding from a silken flounce, and exclaimed:

"Why! I've got my rubbers on!"—New York Evening Post.

ALL DOUBTS CLEARED UP.

Applicant's Command of Epithets Proclaimed Him a Sailor.

As is generally known, "seamen's return" tickets are issued by most railways at seaport towns to sailors at reduced rates; but when, the other day, a somewhat stylishly-dressed young man demanded one to Birmingham, the booking-clerk at the Southampton seaport town demurred.

"Seamen's returns are only issued to sailors," he snapped.

"Well, I'm a sailor," was the reply. "I have only your word for that," said the clerk. "How am I to know it is correct?"

"How are you to know it?" came the answer. "Why, you leather-necked, swivel-eyed son of a sea-cook, if you feel my starboard boom running foul of your headlights, you'll know I've been doing more than sit on a stool and bleating all my life, and you'll haul in on your jaw-tackle a bit."

The stationmaster had been standing near by.

"Give him a ticket," he said; "he's a sailor."—London Answers.

Swinburne and the Baby.

Algernon Charles Swinburne, according to the statement of one of his American friends, made a systematic study of babies before he wrote his admirable romances upon babyhood.

Mr. Swinburne, who is a bachelor, one day went on tiptoe into the nursery of a friend's house and bent in reverie over the infant that slept there. As he regarded it the slumbering infant smiled, and in contemplation of this seraphic smile the poet's heart was filled with joy and awe. But a voice—the voice of the nurse—interrupted his ecstasy.

"It's the wind, bless its heart," the nurse whispered. "Whenever they smile in their sleep, sir, you may always know they're troubled with the wind."

Mr. Swinburne scowled and withdrew. On account of the nurse's remark he never wrote a poem on the subject of a baby's dreams.—Kansas City Journal.

"What if she leaves the rails!"

private car, at the extreme rear of the train, a party of men still sat up, smoking their Havanas and sipping their wine. One member of this party was the "big gun," the president of the Mississippi Valley, Omaha and Western Railway. He was a large man, with luxuriant, snow white hair, and though his face was benevolent, even paternal, every line of it betrayed the inflexible will which had lifted its owner from the roof of a his cigar. "I don't know that I know him," he answered.

"Well," continued the superintendent, with a mildly curious glance at his companion, "he was altogether too sick to pull a plug. But it seems that his wife has been in the habit of riding with him, and knows the road and an engine as well as he does. To come to the point—and this is my story—the Overland at this moment is in the hands of a girl, sir—Fox's wife!"

It seemed a long time before either man spoke again. Howard stared in blank amazement at the pallid face of the president, unable to understand. Then Stanford took the other's hand and held it in an iron grip.

"Charlie, it's my own little baby girl!" he said, huskily.

The operator at Valley Junction had flashed the news along the wire and when the Overland steamed up to the Union depot in Stockton, twenty seconds ahead of time, a curious and enthusiastic throng of lay-over passengers and railroad men pressed around the engine. When Sylvia appeared in the gangway, her glorious sun-kissed hair glistening with melted snow, and her pale face streaked with soot, the generous crowd burst into yells of applause. The husky old veteran runner who was to take the girl's place stepped forward and lifted Sylvia down. For a moment she reeled. Then she saw pushing unceremoniously through the throng the general superintendent—she started and looked again—her father!

JUST A MATTER OF NUMBERING.

The Great Detective Explains the Delay in a Murder Case.

"No, we haven't made any arrests yet," the great detective told the reporter. "You can say this much, however: We know who the murderer is. He is one of four men whom we have been watching from the first. The fact that only one man committed the crime has been sworn to by witnesses."

"Neither the first nor the second of these four men was present when the shot was fired. The third man was also away at the time."

"The fourth man is the one we want, and we can lay our hands on him whenever we're good and ready."

"Then what are you waiting for?" asked the reporter. "Why don't you arrest him now?"

"Well," said the great detective, "you see we're not yet sure as to the proper numbering of these men. We know that the fourth man is the one we want, but which of these four is the fourth man? That's what we're working on now."—New York Sun.

Found a Friend.

Valley City, N. Dak., July 27th.—Mrs. Matilda M. Boucher of this place tells how she found a friend in the following words:

"For years I suffered with a dizziness in my head and could get nothing to cure me till about two years ago, when I was advised to take Dodd's Kidney Pills. These pills cured me before I had used the whole of the first box, and I haven't been troubled since."

"In January of this year I had an attack of Sciatica that made me almost helpless, and remembering how much Dodd's Kidney Pills had done for me before, I sent and got some and began to take them at once."

"In three weeks I was well, and not a trace of the Sciatica left, and I have been well ever since."

"Dodd's Kidney Pills have certainly been of great benefit to me. I have found them a friend in time of sickness, and I will always recommend them to every one suffering with the troubles that bothered me."

ST. MARY'S ACADEMY.

Notre Dame, Ind.

We call the attention of our readers to the advertisement of St. Mary's Academy, which appears in another column of this paper. We do not need to expatiate upon the scholastic advantages of St. Mary's for the catalogue of the school shows the scope of work included in its curriculum, which is of the highest standard, and is carried out faithfully in the class rooms. We simply emphasize the spirit of earnest devotion which makes every teacher at St. Mary's loyally strive to develop each young girl attendant there into the truest, noblest, and most intelligent womanhood. Every advantage of equipment in the class rooms, laboratories and study rooms, every care in the matter of food and clothing, and exceptional excellence of classic conditions—all these features are found at St. Mary's, in the perfection of development only to be obtained by the consecration of devoted lives to educational Christian work, in a spot favored by the Lord.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease, and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven Catarrh to be a constitutional disease, and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. THE LIMIT OF ALLITERATION

No One Has Equaled These Lines, Result of a Challenge.

A literary Frenchman being in company with Dr. Wallis, was boasting of the superiority of the French language in regard to euphony, and challenged the doctor to produce anything in English equal to the following lines:

Quand un Cordier, cordant, veult corder une corde,

Pour sa corde, corder, trois cordons il accorde;

Mis si un des cordons de la corde discord,

Le cordon discordant fait discorder la corde.

The doctor, with promptitude, immediately translated the very words into English, only substituting for the French word corde the English word twist. The first four of the following lines exactly correspond with those of the Frenchman; the next four were added by the doctor by way of completing his triumph. The remaining lines were not written till some time after.

Dr. Johnson was so pleased with the above anecdote that he gives the whole twelve lines in his folio dictionary, to show into how many twistings and bearings the words twist and twister may be twisted:

When a twister a twisting will twist him a twist,

For the twisting his twist he three times doth entwine;

But if one of the twists of the twist doth untwist,

The twine that untwisteth, untwisteth the twist.

Untwisting the twine that untwisteth between,

He twines with his twister the two in a twine;

The twist having twisted the twines of the twine,

He twisteth the twine he had twisted in twain.

The twine that in twisting before in the twine,

As twines were untwisted, he now doth untwine;

'Twixt the twain intertwisting a twine more between,

He twisteth his twister, makes a twist of the twine.

A TREAT FOR YOUR FAMILY.

OUR DIAMOND SPRING BED

Will sustain a weight of 5,000 lbs.

Perhaps you toss about restlessly all night on a hard unyielding spring bed, or lie bent double in a soft one of poor wire! When you get up from the former your bones ache as if you had been beaten; the latter sags until your back is nearly broken.

Would you like to know what a night of perfect rest is? Is any member of your family sick and unable to sleep on an old fashioned spring bed? If so our Diamond Spring Bed will exactly and completely fill your want.

Invented and made for ease and comfort, the lightest persons find in it real enjoyment, yet the tension of the fabric is such that no weight can make it sag. It has a National Coppered link chain support beneath a tinned, well woven fabric. The frame is of solid steel of such fine quality that it is lighter than a wooden frame.

We guarantee the Diamond Spring Bed neither to sag nor break for 20 years.

For one month only, as an advertisement, we will deliver this Spring Bed at your station for $5.00, the price your local furniture dealer would have to pay. We want him to know about our Diamond Spring. The Diamond Spring Bed is our own invention. The idea is only one year old, yet wherever introduced, people will have none but the Diamond Spring Bed. Cure Cured Me.

Mrs. C. O. Hurd, 118 W. Third St., Muscatine, Ia., is well known throughout her section of Iowa as an ardent worker in the M. E. Church. She says: "LaGrippe left me with a severe case of nervous depression and nervous dyspepsia, which soon affected my heart. I suffered from sleeplessness, headache, extreme nervousness and twitching of the muscles. The slightest exertion would cause shortness of breath, a numbness of my body and hot flashes with pain. I will tell you what I am constantly telling my friends—that Dr. Miles' Heart Cure cured me so that all these disagreeable symptoms left me. I may add that for severe pain I have never found anything to equal Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills and think the Nerve and Liver Pills are a wonderful stomach remedy."

"Our son was stricken down with heart trouble in his twentieth year. For two months we got no sleep with him at night, so we commenced to use Dr. Miles' Heart Cure and Nerve and the Nerve and Liver Pills and today he is sound and well. In fact he passed a physical examination since his sickness and is with the Army in the Philippines. I desire to add that Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills have certainly been a boon to me. I am frequently troubled with sick and nervous headaches and I have never found anything that would relieve me so quickly and leave me feeling so well thereafter."—Mrs. Alice Moad, Buffalo, Mo.

LOOKS LIKE TROUBLE AHEAD

When the New Board of County Auditors as Now Constituted Gets Down to Business.

Present indications are that there will be a pretty little mix-up over the new board of county auditors when it gets up to the county treasurer to settle the bills allowed by them. County Clerk Blum does not consider the board legally organized, on account of the alleged ineligibility of Byron C. Whitaker to act as one of its members, and has refused to file Mr. Whitaker's oath of office and will not attend the meetings of the board, although he is its clerk. The board has its first meeting to allow bills next Monday and it is stated that if Mr. Blum continues to refuse to act as clerk that Jas. E. McGregor will sign the warrants as chairman, and W. F. Riemschneider will attest them as acting clerk. It will then be up to Treasurer Braun to pay them or not as he may elect. In any case it looks as if there were likely to be trouble and that the legal fraternity would get their fingers in the pie.

CHAPTER VII.

The Strayed Cow.

Dolores sat in the doorway waiting for her father's return from the tavern. He had been to the house while she was over the mountain, and had his supper. She herself had eaten nothing, for she had no appetite in spite of her walk over the mountain. She was quite idle, her hands in their old listless attitude in her lap, her dark head resting against the unpainted door post, her grave face and thoughtful eyes raised to the heavens. The moonlight falling across her face defined it clear and perfect as marble; upon the clean bare floor behind her lay her shadow long and dark.

The night was silent; the distant sound of rude singing from the tavern died away; the lights went out one after another in the long, low houses. Dolores began to wonder vaguely why her father did not come. Midnight had passed; the hours ticked away one by one on the big clock in the corner, the moon hung round and golden above the mountain peaks in the west; in the east a streak of whiter light appeared, broadened and deepened. The girl's shadow disappeared from the floor; it lay in front of her on the door stone.

The cow was cropping the grass on the roadside, her breathing deep and contented. Lodie, the next neighbor, came up the road with a bucket. His well was low in this dry weather; Johnson's well was public property at such times.

"A sheer day," he said apologetically, looking at the bride.

Dolores roused herself, a slow thought coming to her mind. "I have been waiting for my father," she said. "Is he still at the tavern?"

Lodie held the bucket suspended half way down the well; a dull surprise was the leading expression on his face.

"Don't ye know where he went, D'lores? Warn't ye hyar when he kem up fer his gun an' started ter hunt ther cow over yander on ther mounting? Ther cow is hyar; where's yer feyther?"

A sudden sharp fear woke in her mind; she arose and faced Lodie, the sunlight on her head.

"If he went over on the opposite mountain to hunt Brindle and has not returned he must have lost his road, or gotten hurt, or something to keep him."

"Yes," said Lodie, slowly. "An' theys want him et ther court ter-day; ef he ain't thyar they'll kem fer him; theys swared they'd hev him, fer ther thing kyant be settled tell he goes."

He swung the bucket up on the edge of the well and passed down the road in silence, his slouching figure like a blot on the exquisite landscape.

Breakfast was ready, and Dolores went in and set the potatoes and bacon at one side of the hearth; the coffee was ready to make; she never made that till it was ready to be drank. When all was ready within she went out to the bank under the pines. The sun was high and warm, but under the pines the shadows were cool and dark; and there she waited for her father.

By and by the men of the settle-

She arose and faced Lodie. ment started over the mountain in groups of twos and threes. Dolores watched them go, scarce taking her eyes from them till their slouching figures faded and blended with the yellow road and the rugged paths. As they passed they asked for her father, every one receiving the same reply.

Later, as Dolores watched, a yellow cloud of dust arose where the road and the sky seemed to meet. She watched it mechanically. As the cloud appeared and drew nearer out of it appeared a body of horsemen riding at a sharp pace down the rough road. They slackened their pace as they came up. The girl was plainly discernible in her print gown under the pines. They halted at the rickety gate, and one of them dismounted and went up the walk. He removed his hat as he drew near Dolores.

"Miss Johnson?"

She hesitated a moment; the name was unfamiliar to her save as used by young Green. Then she bent her head in reply.

"Your father?"

"He is not here," she said, slowly. "Where can we find him?"

"I do not know."

"But we must find him." He frowned sternly; his face and voice were authoritative. "He is summoned to appear in court to-day in the Green case; the law cannot wait. Can you give us no idea where we can find him?"

"No."

He returned to his companions and reported that Johnson was not there; his daughter did not know where he was. They held a consultation. If it were possible Johnson must be found and brought to court that day; law and right must not be delayed. Riding down the mountain they halted at the tavern. The tavern-keeper's wife came out to meet them.

They asked for water; she said water was scarce on the mountain, but she could give them cider if that would do.

They replied that cider would do very well—in fact, much better than water for their purpose, for they had a rough time before them.

As they drank they asked for the host. He was away, she said, gone over the mountain to the town; a trial was being held there, had they not heard of it? Nearly every one had heard of it; it was making a stir. Folks were excited about it; there was to be a trial there, and Johnson—had they ever heard of Johnson?—was all they were waiting for to lay the guilt where it belonged; he knew more about it than most folks; some thought—

Did Johnson go? No, not that she knew of, and she would know. He went over to the opposite mountain last night to hunt his cow.

In what direction did Johnson go? She was not sure; she believed he went right down the road across the valley. There was a bridge across the river if one followed the road along the foot of the mountain a bit.

Jenkins had seen her there, and he told Johnson so at the tavern; Johnson went right over to hunt her; he took his gun in case he came across game, but that was useless unless he were luckier than usual, for Johnson was too shiftless to have luck.

Yes, the cow came back; she had lost her bell; he would expect to find her by that; doubtless he would keep on hunting; he hadn't sense enough to know she would most likely come home by herself. But if he did not wish to return for reasons best known to himself—Johnson was shiftless, but he was no fool about some things.

His girl now had about as little sense as was possible. She did not even know when she was well off; she was like her mother for all the world, only worse.

As for Dolores, she seemed to like him to talk to her; she was not in the habit of talking much; she never talked with her neighbors, she felt above them; he was the judge's son, and, no doubt, she felt flattered that he took notice of her. Their men never said much to her, for they did not like her. Maybe she went over the mountain. Well, maybe she went because she wished to go. How could she answer for her? Perhaps—

Could they find Johnson if they tried? She did not know. The opposite mountain was a dangerous place; there were sharp ledges and turns and deep chasms; folks seldom ventured over there except for hunting; they had no cause to go.

Did they want Johnson? He was not in the habit of going off; he never went hunting except on their own mountain; he had no go ahead in him; he was shiftless and so was his daughter—only worse.

They had accomplished their errand and paid her liberally as they arose to go, more determined than ever to find Johnson were it a possible thing.

CHAPTER VIII.

The Search.

The deputies rode slowly down the mountain. The road was hard for their horses and uncertain, besides it was strange to them and strange ground was unsafe. They talked little. On leaving the tavern one of them remarked that the woman knew what she was talking about, and now they would find Johnson if such a thing were possible, for they had more reason than ever to find him.

They rode along the foot of the mountain in search of the path of which the woman spoke. There was no road here as along the other mountain; a narrow line half hidden by long grass and tangled bushes straggled in and out capriciously, as though to puzzle its followers, now up the mountain side, again straying out into the valley meadows nearer the river's moaning. Above, among the pines, the blue haze was tangled, hiding all beyond; the dread mystery of the mountain clung like a garment about it.

The men rode on in silence; there was a solemnity around them that hushed all light words. The enormity of their undertaking dawned more and more upon them; to search for a man in that wilderness with the mountain's heart for his hiding place and its robe of haze for his shield was absurd. There were chasms and dangerous places, sharp turnings and winding paths, ledges hidden by haze that would swallow a man as completely as a sepulcher, and leave no trace, massive rocks overhead that a tremor of the mountain would hurl upon them. No wonder the men grew silent and allowed the horses to have their way; man could not follow the dangerous, hidden paths; only brute instinct could find the safe places.

They came at last to the path up the mountain, and the horses refused to take it until urged by whip and spur. It was a path that shielded all beyond it, as though the mountain had made a fastness that none could break. The horses toiled up slowly, slipping now and again on the treacherous ground; the tangled bushes and low boughs swept them as they passed; above the pine boughs parted enough for a man's head to pass untouched beneath. Now and again the bushes and ferns; great rocks loomed path seemed lost in the wilderness of ahead and the path that seemed cut off turned sharply and wound up the mountain; again and again the horsehoofs paused on the edge of a chasm half hidden by haze, and the men with white faces held them up by main force from the ghastly depths beneath their very feet. Their voices, as they shouted in hopes of a reply had Johnson lost his way, sounded gruesome in the loneliness.

Half way up the mountain they paused and faced about. It was useless, they said, and foolish to follow the path up higher; no man would wander up there of his own free will; facing the law were preferable; one knew what to expect from it. Here death laid his traps in secret and lured his victim on; he waited at

"But we must find him." every corner and lurked near every rock; he was above, below, and before them; he reigned in the mountain's heart. If Johnson were there he might stay there; their lives were of more value than his; they would return to the town and report the utter hopelessness of the search. It would be wiser to search for him nearer home; to hide from the law showed that he was cowardly, and a coward would never come there. They would stop at the tavern and speak to the woman again; her words might be wiser than they thought. And they would speak again to that girl of Johnson's; she might be more willing to talk, and she was no-fool.

Knew the Major. "I hear the major is coming up to spend a week with you."

"Yes, and I am fitting up a room for him to entertain his friends. I put in ten chairs and a sideboard."

"Where is the major from?"

"South Carolina."

"Then you had better put in ten sideboards and a chair."

Out of Season. "Why are yer so sad?" asked Dusty Dennis.

"Why," growled Sandy Pikes, "dat lady said if I'd split de wood she'd give me an old pair of shoes she promised me last winter."

"An' did she?"

"Yes, she give me a pair of snow-shoes."

Not Taking Any Risks.

It seems that James M. Barrie, the novelist and dramatist, who recently purchased an automobile in London, has not—or until very recently had not—mustered up the courage to use the machine. Just before he left the British capital the other day for Paris with Charles Frohman, to be present at the Paris performance, under Mr. Frohman's direction of his play, "The Admirable Crichton," he invited the Anglo-American theatrical magnate to accompany him on his first ride in his new "devil wagon."

"No, thank you, Barrie," replied Mr. Frohman. "When I get ready to commit suicide I have a previous engagement with a friend in New York."

This is believed to be an obscure reference to the Admirable Crichton of the Rialto, Alf Hayman.—New York Mail and Express.

Temperature of Heated Bodies.

Some years ago Wier worked out a rule for calculating the absolute temperature of a heated body from the wave length of its most energetic radiations. From this rule, which gives very probable results, the sun's temperature is found to range from 4850 degrees to 5450 degrees F.; that of Sirius, from 5700 degrees to 6400 degrees; Vega, 5700 degrees to 6400 degrees; Arcturus, 2450 degrees to 2700 degrees; Aldebaran, 2550 degrees to 2850 degrees, and the electric light, 3150 degrees to 3500 degrees. White and blue stars are much hotter than red and yellow.

The Fool Doubter.

It takes less of a fool's brain energy to doubt things than it does for a wise man to accept one fact.—Ran's Horn.

Conceit is not an ingredient of consecration.

Mrs. Anderson, a prominent society woman of Jacksonville, Fla., daughter of Recorder of Deeds, West, says:

"There are but few wives and mothers who have not at times endured agonies and such pain as only women know of. I wish such women knew the value of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. It is a remarkable medicine, different in action from any other I ever knew and thoroughly reliable."

"I have seen cases where women doctored for years without permanent benefit who were cured in less than three months after taking your Vegetable Compound, while others who were chronic and incurable came out cured, happy, and in perfect health after a thorough treatment with this medicine. I have never used it myself without gaining great benefit. A few doses restores my strength and appetite, and tones up the entire system. Your medicine has been tried and found true, hence I fully endorse it."—Mrs. R. A. ANDERSON, 235 Washington St., Jacksonville, Fla.—$5.00 per bottle. If original of above testimonial proving genuineness cannot be produced.

The experience and testimony of some of the most noted women of America go to prove, beyond a question, that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will correct all such trouble at once by removing the cause, and restoring the organs to a healthy and normal condition.

COMFORT

much pain in my back; time went on I could not endure it; I could not sleep except for a few moments at a time; I grew weak and exhausted; I could not do light housework; I was ached severely; I was lame from my head down to my heels; centering in the back was a heavy, steady sickening ache; I could not sleep at night, and got up in the morning weak and tired; when I saw Doan's Kidney Pills advertised, I bought a week after commencing their use I began to improve, and from that time on I grew better. I need the boxes in all and was cured.

THE NEWS OF THE WORLD

President and Binders' Union.

President Roosevelt ordered the reinstatement of Wm. A. Miller, who was removed from his position of assistant foreman of the government printing office because he had been expelled from the Bookbinders' union. The president said:

"There is no objection to the employees of the government printing office constituting themselves into a body if they desire to do so, but no rules or regulations of that union can be permitted to override the laws of the United States, which it is my sworn duty to enforce."

He then quoted the finding of the coal strike commission as his stand on the union question, as follows:

"No person shall be refused employment or in any way be discriminated against on account of membership or non-membership in any labor organization, and there shall be no discrimination against or interference with any employee who is not a member of any labor organization by members of such organization." The binders say Miller will not be allowed to return to work. The president of the bookbinders said he thought the president would revoke his order as soon as the full facts were presented to him.

Horrible Acts Committed.

Danville, Ill., is in the throes of a race war. One negro, J. D. Mayfield, of Evansville, Ind., who shot and killed Henry Gatterman, white, has been lynched by a mob of 600 men, who were later fired upon by the sheriff, three men being wounded. The mob were clamoring for the life of another negro named James Wilson, who has confessed to a brutal assault on Mrs. Thomas Burgess, wife of a farmer at Alton, Ill. After securing Mayfield he was struck with sledges, knocked down, jumped upon and stamped to death. A rope was placed around his neck and his lifeless body was dragged three blocks through the streets to the scene of the shooting. An effort was made to hang the body to a telegraph pole, but the rope broke. The mob, which by this time, numbered 5,000, then dragged the body to the jail and burned it. While Mayfield's body was burning the ears were chopped off and the feet which protruded from the flames, were hacked to pieces.

Placed in the Tomb.

The body of Pope Leo was interred in St. Peter's Saturday night. The strokes of the hammer which resounded through the immense dome of the cathedral announced to the earnest gathering in the nave that Leo XIII. had been laid to rest. At sundown the most important and most solemn of all the obsequies took place. The front doors of the basilica were closed, and the vast church, except for a row of lights at the shrine of St. Peter, the candles about the bier and those persons who had quietly and with the utmost reverence gathered there, appeared deserted.

About 1,000 persons had received invitations to attend the ceremonies. The cardinals, who met earlier in the Vatican, entered the chapel choir waiting there for the arrival of the procession. Cardinal Oreglia, the camerlengo, holding the keys of command.

The Czar Feels the Power.

Though the Russian government refused to entertain the American petition protesting against the outrages upon the Jews in Russia, the fact that official action was taken with a view to presenting it has accomplished its purpose. It has sufficed to bring the authorities high and low to a sense of their responsibilities. Talk of the petition caused the czar to order a second, thorough, unbiased investigation. It made him lose faith in the previous misleading statements of his ministers—no more was needed to put a stop to race persecution under official protection.

Frightened the Jury.

The grand jury which has been investigating the Breathitt county, Ky., lynchings and other crimes adjourned Saturday afternoon without returning any additional indictments. The foreman reported that just as the jury was about to take a vote on one of the few cases, ex-Senator Alex. Hargis rushed into the jury room and demanded that Riley Collier, who had testified against the alleged assassins of Town Marshal Thos. Cockrill, be indicted for perjury and that this intervention caused the jury to close its investigation.

Five Americans were drowned in Alaska rivers. The steamer Excelsior from Valdez reports tragedies in which Miss Lou Wheeler, August Reebie and Henry and Paul Weldner were drowned in the Nazina river and Burt Ford in the Copper, at the mouth of the Chitna.

More indictments are said to have been made by the federal grand jury at New York against former Congressman Edmund H. Driggs, and two against George W. Beavers, superintendent of allowances of salaries in the postoffice department.

One million dollars is the estimated damage done by a hail storm which passed over the east portion of Rock county, Minn., a stretch of country thirty-six miles long being so completely devastated that, except in rare spots, not a straw is standing. In less than ten minutes, between two and three inches of hail fell, fairly beating the grain into the ground.

Lynching a detective was the revenge attempted by infuriated villagers at Foster, Pa., when they learned that John Peel, a D. L. & W. officer had found evidence which would connect a score of the families of the village with wholesale thievery of brass and other junk from the company's property. Taking refuge in the depot, Peel was rescued by the crew of a train ordered to his assistance.

MYSTERY OF WILD ANIMALS.

What Becomes of Those That Die Natural Deaths in the Woods?

"The forest has many mysteries," said an old Pennsylvania woodman, "but none deeper than that of wild animals that die natural deaths."

"The four-footed dwellers of the woods certainly do not live forever. Age and disease must carry them off regularly, as human beings are carried off, but what becomes of their bodies?"

"I never heard of any one's coming across a wild dead bear or deer or wildcat or fox that had died from natural causes. I found the carcass of a big five-pronged buck in the woods once, but a rattlesnake, also dead, had its fangs buried in one of the deer's nostrils. There had evidently been a fight to the death between the reptile and the beast."

"Another time I followed the trail of a bear from a clearing where it had stolen a half-grown lamb. I came upon the headless body of the lamb a mile or so out on the trail, and a half mile further on, near the edge of a swamp, I was surprised to find the body of the bear."

"Its jaws were open, and its glassy eyes were pushed far out of its head. I held a post-mortem examination of the dead bear and found the lamb's head lodged in its throat. How or why the bear ever permitted it to get there I am unable to explain."

"I have many times found other dead animals in the woods, but never one that did not show unquestionable evidence of having died from violence of some kind. Every woodsman will tell you the same. What becomes of the dead wild animals that die natural deaths."

FOR TWENTY YEARS MAJOR MARS SUFFERED FROM CATARRH OF THE KIDNEYS.

PERUNA CURES CATARRH OF THE KIDNEYS.

Major T. H. Mars, of the First Wisconsin Cavalry regiment, writes from 1425 Dunning street, Chicago, Ill., the following letter:

"For years I suffered with catarrh of the kidneys contracted in the army. Medicine did not help me any until a comrade who had been helped by Peruna advised me to try it. I bought some at once, and soon found blessed relief. I kept taking it four months, and am now well and strong and feel better than I have done for the past twenty years, thanks to Peruna."—T. H. Mars.

At the appearance of the first symptom of kidney trouble, Peruna should be taken. This remedy strikes at once the very root of the disease. It at once relieves the catarrhal kidneys of the stagnant blood, preventing the escape of serum from the blood. Peruna stimulates the kidneys to excrete from the blood the accumulating poison, and thus prevents the convulsions which are sure to follow if the poisons are allowed to remain. It gives great vigor to the heart's action and digestive system, both of which are apt to fail rapidly in this disease.

Peruna cures catarrh of the kidneys simply because it cures catarrh wherever located. If you do not derive prompt and satisfactory results from the use of Peruna, write at once to Dr. Hartman, giving a full statement of your case and he will be pleased to give you his valuable advice gratis.

MRS. CECILIA STOWE, Orator, Entre Nous Club.

176 Warren Avenue, CHICAGO, ILL., Oct. 22, 1902. For nearly four years I suffered from ovarian troubles. The doctor insisted on an operation as the only way to get well. I, however, strongly objected to an operation. My husband felt disheartened as well as I, for home with a sick woman is a disconsolate place at best. A friendly druggist advised him to get a bottle of Wine of Cardui for me to try, and he did so. I began to improve in a few days and my recovery was very rapid. Within eighteen weeks I was another being.

Cecelia Stowe

Mrs. Stowe's letter shows every woman how a home is saddened by female weakness and how completely Wine of Cardui cures that sickness and brings health and happiness again. Do not go on suffering. Go to your druggist today and secure a $1.00 bottle of Wine of Cardui.
