Junior Stars play the Ann Arbor Leam this morning at 10:30 o'clock. The best game of ball that the Stars small inland town, and whatever played this year was that with the Dexter Tigers at Grass Lake Thursday of last week. The Stars won the game by score of 5 to 4.

A very one-sided game of baseball was that played Saturday afternoon between the Ann Arbor team and the Junior Stars as the final score 18 to 5 shows. The Ann Arbor fellows did not seem to know how to hit the ball and the strikes out were very frequent. The Stars played steadily and with few errors. The Ann Arbor pitcher had plenty of speed but was wilder than a hawk, giving plenty of bases on years everyone in this vicinity is well act balls and even a run or two. Holmes, for the Stars, pitched a good game. Paul Bacon made four good plays, that were especially noticeable. They were a two base hit that brought in two runs, his catch of a long fly in left field, his base running between second and third bases which forced a wild throw, brought the man on third home and advanced himself to third, and his swift throw to second which resulted in a double play. The score by innings was:

The St. Paul's church Sunday school picnic at Cavanaugh Lake Thursday was largely attended and all had a fine time although the weather was slightly cool. The only incident to mar the pleasure of the day was the action of a couple of Detroit youths who are camping at the lake. The bunder or criminals is on the increase, and the number of heinous offenses grows less as civilization advances," said a New York criminal lawfer the other day. "This may seem paradoxical, but it is easily explained." New laws are continually being made constituting new crimes, and while the number of violations of the law grows larger, the number of atrocious crimes diminishes. If you will consult the criminal statistics you will see that the increase is almost entirely in the new and lighter offenses."

It seems odd to hear of a college President pleading that the weal should be permitted to live as well as the strong. This was the burden of the address of President Faunce, of Brown, to the Yale students. Is there any argument on the question? If the Romans had "crushed the weak" they would have had no Cicero. If the English of Queen Anne's reign had destroyed the deformed there would have been no Alexander Pope. It has not yet been proved that the possession of physical strength adds keenness to the intellect.

The recent centenary of the announcement of the atomic theory by John Dalton recalls the story of his courtship. He became attached to a lady who was accounted the "handsomest woman in Manchester." But as he wrote to his brother he felt himself secure against mere beauty, but "she began to descant upon the excellence of an exact acquaintance with English grammar and the art of letter writing; to compare the merits of Johnson's and Sheridan's dictionarles, to converse upon the use of dephlogisticated marine acid in bleaching; upon the effects of opium upon the animal system, etc., etc. I was no longe: able to hold out, but surrendered at discretion." The principle underlying the home is wholesome and right, and has its origin in the needs of the human heart, which, rather than the human brain, is the trustworthy guide in life. And in the main human hearts are sound, reflects The Household. The informing rectitude that is in all honest natures may be depended upon, in the ultimate, to live cleanly and simply and help to keep the world moving along clean and simple paths. Since natures find their wholesome satisfaction and growth along the obvious paths of life-the setting up of home, the reciprocity of love and of family affection, the rearing of children and the enjoyments of the good delights of life. What they are they usually owe in large measure to the wholesome, modifying and humanizing influence of the home, and its training in unselfishness, self-restraint and the higher politeness.

Wealth is but relative. A million now is as but $100,000 a hundred years ago. And then in this land was a group of landed aristocracy, an oligarchy of slave owners, a class above the mass who, like Dr. Hillis' pampered sons and daughters of to-day, still sought the primrose path. Poor old human nature! It is much the same the world over day in, day out, exclaims the Lewiston (Me.) Journal. God isn't trying the American people especially. Rather do we believe that the same natural laws work now as hitherto. If you eat too much your head aches. If you drink too much you suffer of vawhiff of smoke disappears in thin air. If you run the automobile against a tree you are likely to split your head. If you travel too fast a life you are likely to collide with eternal things. The early ripe and the early rotten are waste by-products of life. Man goes on digging, delving, doing things. Such a man of wealth as Peter Cooper Hewitt, who, instead of swelling around in a yacht loaded with champagne and fast women, puts his time into invent- carnival, so the council gave them a ing such marvellous things as the mercury lamp, the electric interrupter and the electric converter, is a signal example that there are men and men, thank

Since she openly announced that she was all Mr. Duff's, there are some who say her mind is unbalanced. If this is true, it is true of but one faculty, for in everything but the affection she is avishing, unsolicited, upon her pastor, she seems to be perfectly sane.

This was not the first time she made open profession of her infatuation. Not long since she placed her arm around Mr. Duff and said:

"You are the only man I love." Mr. Duff wished that he wasn't, and without being rude, he removed himself from the soft embrace.

Compared with the vast number of people in front of St. Peter's now, the per of the crowd has caused some un-easiness, particularly in view of the riotous scene during the interregnum following the death of Pius IX. It is probable that the Italian government will detail additional soldiers for duty at the Vatican.

It now seems certain that the cardinals are at a deadlock.

I have tried many different remedies but until I tried Dr. Mike' Heart Cure I could find no relief. I was subject to headaches and had tried your Pain Pills and they were so effective I thought your Heart Cure might help me. I would have attacks at times so severe that I would be stone blind for the time being. During these spells I would be to all appearances dead. I took the medicine strictly as directed and I can truthfully say that I am completely cured. I advise all that are troubled with heart disease to take Dr. Miles' New Heart Cure at once. I write this and give my name to my fellow sufferers."—S. E. Purdy, Atkinson, Nebraska.

"I first felt the effects of a weak heart in the fall of 1896. I saw an advertisement in the Sioux City paper in which a man stated his symptoms which seemed to me to indicate a trouble similar to mine. I had a sorreess a trouble similar to mine. I had a soreness in the chest at times, and in my shoulder, an oppressive choking sensation in my throat and suffered from weak and hungry spells. I was truly frightened at my condition and procured six bottles of Dr. Miles' Heart Cure. Secretary Baker of the state board of health received the following report from a township officer in the north eastern part of the state last month: "There have been no deaths this month, but there have been three births. We are therefore three to the good. To the untiring energy of - this satisfactory state of affairs is due."

Every newspaper treasures up in its memory the names of friends and likewise of its enemies. It seldom overlooks an opportunity to assist the former, but it never goes out of its way to assist the latter, Human nature is pretty near the same everywhere. People who show the newspaper man a kindness never make a better investment—one that pays hundred fold sooner or later. As it has been truly said, there comes a time in every man's life when he needs it badly.

Grass Lake taxpayers are growling like bears with scalded heads because the assessed valuation of the village is $144,000 and the tax being 41/2 mills on the dollar. Now, if they lived in Chelsea, which has an assessed valuation of $870,065, and a tax levy of 11/2 cents on the dollar, they would have got so used to paying high taxes that they would do just as we do, pay the money without any squealing and ing relatives in Detroit. save their breath to go ahead and earn more to take its place.

Grass Lake News: Last Friday afternoon the Chelsea Junior Stars came to this village and played a picked up nine at the ball park. Some of the local players had not played before this season and yet Grass Lake found the visitors easy picking. Chelsea dispatches to the state papers stated that the Stars met the strong Grass Lake team, which is not true. The Stars were defeated to the tune of 18 to 7, but had they met the 'Sluggers there would not have been space on the score card to have kept tally. What if he were dead? she asked, curiously; if he had fallen into some one of the dangerous places on the mountain?

If he were dead, they said-well, if he were dead that would put a different face upon the matter; they hoped he was not dead, for the law should not be baffled. Did she think he was dead? Had she cause to think so?

No, she knew no reason why Johnson should be dead unless he had fallen in some of the dangerous places on the mountain; they must know this, for they had been there; for her part she knew nothing about it save from what she heard those say who had been there.

They paid her liberally and rode away. Dolores was still sitting at the gate under the pines with her haggard. face and idle hands, and the eyes that watched for what did not come. Johnson was not there, she said, quietly, and they never questioned her word, but instinctively lifted their hats as they rode away.

CHAPTER IX.

A More Thorough Search.

Dolores, worn with watching and faint from lack of food, fell asleep at the doorway, and slept the whole night through; the dawning had deepmed to broad light when she waked.

She bathed her face with cool water from the well and brushed her soft hair back, winding it in a heavy coil at the back of her head.

The table was set as she had left it the day before, and when she hung the kettle over the fire she took the pail and went out to milk Brindle.

Lodie came up for water; he hesitated as he saw Dolores, but she rose ap bravely to meet him. She did not speak, but her eyes asked him a ques-

He did not linger; he dared not linger when she was watching him. He could not tell her of the roused suspicion regarding Johnson's nonappearance. He left a full bucket on the edge of the well for her.

Dolores was unused to attention; this slight act touched her strangely; she watched him go down the road, and his slouching figure had a sort of grace in her eyes.

She arose and carried the pail in-

As she pushed the rickety gate up woman came to meet them as and fastened it with its swinging rope, of their horses, and their step crunched the gravel at her side hung listlessly, while their and a familiar voice sounded in her ears, a voice that hitherto had held such sweetness to her shut as she had always been in her hard life. But and Johnson returned? they asked she turned now with the free look dying from her face and eyes.

"Dolores!" exclaimed young Green, eagerly, a warm light in his kindly eyes as he went up to her with outstretched hands. "I came over to see about your father. You have heard nothing from him yet, Miss, Johnson?" "I shall find him to-day," she said,

For the first time he noticed the bottle at her waist and the strange, sad expression of her face. A knowledge of her errand flashed upon him. He touched her arm gently to detain

"You are going to find him, Miss Johnson-Dolores? You believe he is lost over on yonder mountain? What fools'we were not to have thought of that before. Let me go with you; may I? What could you do should you find him?" He used no softening words to her; he knew she compre hended the possible ending to their search.

"You must ride my horse, Miss Johnson. The way is long and rough, and-'

"I will walk," she said, simply. Her lips had lost their warm red color; her wide eyes were on his face in their strange wistfulness.

"Then I will leave him at the tavern," he said, quietly, to comfort her. A group of men were around the door of the tavern as they approached and were talking over the events of the previous day. When young Green and Dolores appeared their glances were suggestive, and they listened in silence when the young man spoke. When he finished an ominous silence fell upon them. Then Lodie arose. Of them all he was the most angular and uncouth, but among them he was nobler than they.

"Ther dep'ties dedn't know ther mounting," he said gravely. "Theys might hev a'ms' stepped on 'em o'thout knowin' et. Ef he hev met with an acc'dent he mayn't be able ter kem an' 'll die 'thout help kem ter 'em. Ef thet gal o' Johnsing's ken go ower thar ter hunt 'em, I reckon we uns ken do 't."

His slow, heavy words roused an interest in his listeners as all Green's words could not do, and they arose at once to their duty with many a word of grumbling that passed unnoticed simply their way of showing the depth

The strange party moved along the ghostly mist of the valley road and across the bridge like spirits of the mountain. The ascent was hard and toilsome, and Dolores was unused to such exertion; young Green was athletic, but he also had never so had his strength put to the proof. They paused many times to rest and recover breath. By and by Green helped Delores. Her recent lack of food and sleep had unfitted her for such exertion. She was panting and weak, but she smiled her slow, brave smile, and shook her head when he offered to take her home if she wished. She came to find her father, she said quietly, and she would and him; she felt certain of that.

Up in the blue space a vulture hovered; the dull flap of his wings was audible in the dead stillness and hollow below. Dolores saw him, and her eyes dilated.

"See!" she cried, her sweet, strangely penetrating voice full of terror echoing down the misty hollow. "See! Why is he there? They follow where there are wounded. He is not there for nothing."

Their eyes followed hers; her terror was reflected in their faces, used as they were to such scenes, and young Green instinctively drew her nearer himself as though to shield her from what might follow. There was nothing certain about the vulture's prey; it might be a wounded hare, a stag, or-a man! That it was something was certain; something, too, that was wounded, not dead.

They stood in silence a moment with awe-struck faces, while the bird of death hovering above them had a terrible meaning for them. Delores and ate them determinedly. She clung to young Green with trembling hands in the first wild moment; she that she should have did not feel his strong arm about her; there was a look in her eyes he could never forget. Then she loosened her at she would have need of both her impressed those about her with her Then she closed the door and personality. night with the memory of her as she stood there in her utter self-forgetfulnoss, her feet touching the edge of the gulf opening before her, her tender face grand with its brave soul

"I will call him," she said, gravely. "He may answer, for he is there, I know."

She leaned above the void filled in with ghostly mist and gruesome shadows; young Green's hand was upon her arm, but she did not know it. She called aloud, and her voice rang down the silence, waking the echoes from rock to rock

"Father! Father!"

The bird of death overhead flapped his heavy wings and uttered a flerce cry as a panther might that has lost its young. They waited and listened; no sound disturbed the hush of the mountain's heart save the echoes fainting farther and farther into the mysterious depths below.

"Father! Father!" "He did not hear," said Dolores, quietly. "Or perhaps he cannot answer. I will call again." That he was there she did not

"Father! Father!"

The vulture whirred dow of them with its fierce cr suddenly up from the depths. far from them, floated a fain half moan, half answer. They list as though in doubt, afraid to bell lest they be mistaken. But again t faint voice sounded not far dista but weak. Green stretched hims flat on the ground, and leaned far over the perilous edge.

About twenty feet below a sharp ledge projected, forming a flat shelf; this was covered with a tangle of shrubs and bushes. The mist hung about it like a phantom shroud, and even to Green's clear eye it was but faintly discernible. Whether or not Johnson was there, he could not tell. He called cheerily, and again the weak voice replied; the bushes below were stirred slightly, and a feeble hand appeared for an instant.

Green arose swiftly to his feet; he uncoiled the rope with swift sweeps of his muscular young arms, and fastening one end around his waist secured the other end to a sturdy sapling near. The men understood his design without words, and obeyed his orders premptly.

Dolores watched them with dilating eyes and her lips close shut, as though to stifle a cry. When she saw what young Green was about to do, she came forward, a world of wonder and horror and pleading in her eyes that were larger and darker than usual as they met the steady blue ones above

"Do not go," she said, slowly, as though the words would not come. 'Let me go; it is my duty; but you -you must not risk your life for

He replied hurriedly. There was a swift flashing smile in his eyes as they met hers. It was pleasant to him that she cared for his safety, and he answered her with a swift, brave smile. He spoke to the men cheerily, but clearly and concisely; he told them to hold hard and mind their work. They were ready, and obeyed him at once, and without words.

As he turned to let himself down over the edge he looked toward Dolores. She was standing apart from them white and silent, her slender, graceful figure in its homely print gown sharply defined against the drooping pine boughs that swung low down; her brown eyes were on him with a great wonder in their depths. At the time he did not understand, but he smiled at her, and the smile was so grave and tender and steady that it seemed to her afterward when she thought of it that he had spoken. She neither moved nor spoke; believed that she did not see him though her eyes were on him till he disappeared over the edge, the rope making a dull whir through the grass that stifled all thought in her mind

Sane Man, If-

A Chicago man wants to borrow s 13-inch cannon, set it upon the top of Pike's Peak and send a projectile into space to upset the Newtonian theory of gravitation and tap the reservoir of electricity, which he says exists above the earth's atmospheric envelope. He thinks the cannon ball, if a magnet, will not come back to earth, but will remain in the electric reservoir, and he expects to draw unlimited power down through a wire attached to the ball. If Newton was mistaken and modern men of science all wrong in their ideas of the construction of the universe and the movements of the planets, the Chicago man is not crazy.

There are only two more weeks left to avail yourself of the American Wire & Steel Bed Co.'s offer of their Diamond Spring Bed for $5.00. Its funds are invested only in first mortgages upon centrally located improved real estate a not exceeding 50 per cent of present cash value of security in any case.

The favor with which the public regard this bank and the conservative system for which it stands is evidenced by the many hundreds of depositors it already has both from Detroit and from outside towns.

It has been open but three-quarters of a year and at this time has upwards of a quarter of a million dollars of deposits. It has depositors in seventy-six cities and towns outside of Detroit, the aggregate of such deposits exceeding $100,000.

Y-already has in its vaults over a third of a million dollars of first mortgages on real estate, worth at least double the arm of mortgage in each case.

It is seeking to interest savings depositors whether residing in Detroit or elsewhere. You are invited to open an account, and all all times are assured of courteous treatment and every facility which a first-class modern savings bank can provide. Send for booklet on BANKING BY MAIL, fully illustrating the system introduced by this bank, under which it is as easy for persons residing at a distance to carry their savings accounts with a strong metropolitan bank as for those residing in Detroit.

THE WORD WAS FAMILIAR.

Scholar Naturally Misled by Modern Slang Term.

A West Philadelphia Sunday school teacher has a class of a dozen smallboys, ranging in their ages from 6 to 8 years. Not long ago the lesson was from the twenty-second chapter of Genesis, upon the temptation of Abraham to offer Isaac for a sacrifice. The teacher told them in as simple language as possible the story of the going into the mountain and the preparation for the sacrifice, and when all was ready she explained that Abraham saw a kid caught in the bushes and took that and killed it. There was an awed silence for a moment when she had finished, and then one little lad gasped, with eyes wide with horror: "A 'kidl' What, a boy?"

$100 REWARD $100. The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of Testimonfals. Address F. J. English Slang in France.

Never have the French made use of so many English words as during the past season. The world of "sport" began the practice some years ago, and it had this excuse, that it drew its horses, its "trainers" and its "jockeys" from the other side of the channel. But nowadays French soclety indulges in a positive debauch of exotic terms. One goes no longer "sur le champ des courses," but "on the turf." The horses go round the "ring." The "donneurs de Paris" are "bookmakers." The "gross pontes," "plungers." A "thoroughbred" (pur sang) is no longer "boiteux," but "broken down."-Paris letter.

COUNTY GLEANINGS.

Jas. E. Harkins and Jas. B. Willis, of Ann Arbor, have been granted a patent on

The buildings for the Manchester cement works are being pushed along and the citizens are much pleased at the progress made and can already see that it means increased business for the village.

Herman Gutekunst, of Ann Arbor, had his left foot cut off by a mowing machine while he was removing some ties which had been washed into the field from the electric railway roadbed and which obstructed the machine.

A tank car of gasoline belonging to Dean & Co., of Ann Arbor, which had been placed at the warehouse, by some means with another car got started and ran out on the main line of the Ann Arbor railroad where they joined a car with a spile driver and then ran into a gravel train, the tank being punctured and the ran out on the main line of the Ann Argasoline escaping. The loss was $500.

Someone stole Charlie Kelsey's pants and shirt the other night from the bedroom of his house in Milan. The thicf discarded the pants, shirt and a $500 check that was in the pocketbook in the pocket of the pants; but he hung on to the $60 in cash that was also in the pocketbook like a gambler would to four aces in a poker game for a big jackpot.

Butter thieves broke into the Dexter creamery Thursday night and stole 18 tubs of butter weighing 1,080 pounds. The thieves stole a horse at Webber's, about a mile south of Dexter, and a rig some place else. The rig broke down and was found Saturday morning at Page's corners, where the horse was hitched to the fence. The butter, however, was gone. The butter was worth over $200.

Manchester Enterprise: The turtle catchers shipped 1,400 pounds of snappers from here this week. They shipped them in sacks and one sack had a hole in it and as one of the railroad hands went to put it into a car one of the tortoises thrust its head out of the hole and bit his finger. He dropped the sack and looking at his bleeding finger exclaimed: "Go to h-1 the first Saturday and third Mon with your d-d turtles and load them snake in its mouth. It had caught the snake in the middle and the reptile was wiggling fircely to get away but the fish succeeded in swallowing it. Do you like bass? A company of young people were visiting Sand lake a few years ago and were out in a boat when they saw a large bass come up near them. One of the girls caught it in her hands and litted it into the boat, when they were horrified to see a large snake dangling from its mouth. They gave the fish to Mr. Putnam, the hotel man, who said that he had never seen such a sight before.

Praise for a Chelsea Singer.

The Jackson Patriot of Aug. 4 had the following flattering mention of a Chelsea lad whose beautiful voice has pleased local audiences on many occasions:

"Garrett Conway, of Chelsea, aged 12, a brother of Martin Conway, of this city, is a youth possessed of a remarkable soprano voice, which is being cultivated under the tutelage of Prof. Kempf, of Ann Arbor. Garrett has been singing but six months, but already his range is high, his tones pure and well modulated. His upper register is remarkable considering the short time he has been studying. From the efforts now being made by him, he may gain several more notes before his voice attains full bloom. The lower register is Grass Lake Thursday where they were pure and refreshing, the notes are taken easily and there is no indication of harshness or that the notes are forced."

If your liver does not act regularly go to your druggist and secure a package of Thedford's Black-Draught and take a dose tunight. This great family medicine frees the constipated bowels, stirs up the torpid liver and causes a healthy secretion of bile.

Thedford's Black - Draught will cleanse the bowels of impurities and strengthen the kid-neys. A torpid liver invites colds, biliousness, chills and fever and all manner of sickness and contagion. Weak kidneys result in Bright's disease which claims as many victims as consumption. A 25-cent package of Thedford's Black-Draught should always be kept in the house.
