FATAL AUTOMOBILE ACCIDENT.

Mrs. Lucy T. Mudge Killed Through F. P. Glazier's Machine Becoming Unmanageable.

The following condensed account of a fatal automobile accident that happened in Detroit Tuesday evening to F. P. Glazier and his new Cadillac machine is taken from yesterday's Detroit Tribune:

Rushing over the curb of the Eastern Boulevard where it intersects with McDougall and Hendrie avenues, an automobile operated by State Senator Frank P. Glazier, of Chelsea, Mich., at 7 o'clock last evening threw its five occupants out and so seriously injured one, Mrs. Lucy T. Mudge, of Albion, Mich., that she died a short time afterwards at Grace hospital. The others were not seriously hurt, and repaired to their home in a carriage.

About 5 o'clock last evening a party of five left the Hodgett terrace at 296 Jefferson avenue for an automobile ride. It was composed of Senator Glazier, Mrs. Lucy T. Mudge, who came to Detroit yesterday morning, Mrs. Adelia A. Comstock, an aunt of the senator, and Misses Winnie and Vera Comstock.

For nearly two hours the auto toured about the city, visiting points of interest, finally starting for a trip about the Boulevard. Along the northern section of the latter the machine sped and turned southward with it on a line with McDougall avenue. It was traveling at a high rate of speed when it approached that point where the Boulevard turns abruptly eastward at Hendrie avenue. It was getting dark and there was difficulty in seeing any great distance ahead.

Suddenly Glazier saw the turn in the roadway ahead. Being a somewhat inexperienced operator he failed to make the curve in safety. The machine became unmanageable and made a dash for the curb. Crashing up over it the automobile ploughed ahead and finally crashed up against a tree.

The five occupants were thrown high into the air. Mrs. Mudge was found in an unconscious condition a number of feet away, while the others, who were badly shaken up, were distributed about the vicinity.

Dr. J. H. Neary was summoned by a pedestrian, who witnessed the accident. He found that Mrs. Mudge's skull was fractured near the base. As she was still breathing, the physician decided to send her to Grace hospital. Just after the lady had been carried into the institution she expired. The body was kept at the hospital until the arrival of a coroner, and then removed to the undertaking establishment of Frank Blake. A post-mortem examination will be held by County Physician Phil Sanderson this morning to ascertain the exact nature of her injuries.

Senator Glazier, Mrs. Comstock and her two daughters were then removed to a second floor flat occupied by Mrs. Comstock at 286 Jefferson avenue. They were not seriously injured, though severely bruised and badly frightened.

Yesterday morning Mrs. Mudge, who lives at Albion, Mich., came to Detroit in company with Senator and Mrs. Glazier and a cousin, J. A. Winslow, of Albion, Mich. The latter took a train yesterday afternoon for Cleveland and is expected back today. Mrs. Glazier did not accompany her husband on the automobile ride. The machine, which is the personal property of Glazier, was partially wrecked and had to be taken to a repair shop last evening.

As soon as the woman expired at Grace hospital Coroner Hoffman was summoned. After hearing the circumstances the coroner decided to hold an inquest this afternoon at 2 o'clock.

Mrs. Comstock with her daughters came to Detroit several months ago. They have been living in the Jefferson avenue terrace. Mrs. Mudge arrived in Detroit with the intention of spending a few days visiting Mrs. Comstock. The deceased had no relatives in Detroit.

Mrs. Mudge was born and raised in Albion, Mich. Her husband, an electrician, died several years ago, leaving her well-to-do. She is survived by one child, a son 16 years of age. Relatives will be here from Albion this morning to take the body back to that place.

Death of George Wade.

George Wade died Saturday morning at the home of his parents Mr. and Mrs. James L. Wade, after a lingering illness, of tuberculosis. He was 22 years of age. The funeral services were held at the Church of Our Lady of the Sacred Heart Tuesday morning. A solemn requiem high mass was said, with Rev. Jas. Savage, of Detroit, as celebrant, Rev. W. P. Considine deacon, and Rev. J. P. Ryan, of Dexter, sub-deacon. A touching sermon was preached by Fr. Savage, who is an uncle of the deceased young man. Interment was in Mt. Olivet cemetery.

Grange County Convention.

The annual grange county convention for Washtenaw county to elect delegates to the meeting of the state grange which will be held in Lansing in December, was held in the council room of the court house, Ann Arbor, on Tuesday last. John Clark, of Lyndon, was made chairman and Mrs. B. D. Kelly, of Ypsilanti, secretary. The delegates chosen by the convention were Mr. and Mrs. John Runciman, of Cavanaugh Lake Grange, Sylvan, and Mr. and Mrs. B. D. Kelly, of Fraternity Grange, Ypsilanti.

Paid Dear for Their Squirrel.

Deputy Game Warden Otto Rohm, of Ypsilanti, was over in Scio Sunday and as a result of his visit two young men named Albert Horner and Louis Kalmbach, were taken before Justice Joslyn, at Ypsilanti, Monday afternoon and fined $10 and costs amounting to $9.65. Otto stood and watched one of them take three shots at a squirrel and then not hit him before disclosing his identity. The other man was found with the squirrel on his clothes. The two fines amounted to $39.65, a rather large price for one measly squirrel.

A Love Letter

Would not interest you if you're looking for a guaranteed salve for sores, burns or piles. Otto Dodd, of Ponder, Mo., writes: "I suffered with an ugly sore for a year, but a box of Bucklen's Arnica Salve cured me. It's the best salve on earth. 25¢ at Glazier & Stimson's drug store."

Big Smallpox Bills.

The county board of auditors had a wrestle with the contagious diseases bills Monday. Among the bills was one from Dr. C. Kapp, of Manchester, for $1,776. When smallpox broke out in Freedom the township board of health made a contract with the doctor for $10 a visit to a patient and $3 for each additional patient in the same house, and mileage. In one family there were eight people down with the smallpox, so that he received $31 a visit there. Altogether he had 15 patients in Freedom.

Congregational Church Reopening.

The Congregational church was reopened for public worship last Sunday morning and there was a very large congregation present to enjoy the services, although they were not of a special nature in any way. Everyone was pleased with the bright, handsome appearance of the building and so expressed themselves. During the service three infants were baptised and three adults were admitted to membership, one by confession of faith and two by letter.

WILL BE A FINE COURSE.

Entertainments to Be Given in Chelsea This Winter Are of the Very Best.

The young people's societies of the Congregational, Baptist, Lutheran and Methodist churches offer a brilliant entertainment course for the coming season. The course was selected by a large and representative committee and was decided upon only after a sharp contest between three of the largest entertainment bureaus in the country. It will be one of the best courses ever given in Chelsea.

The course will open Nov. 9 with the Cecilian Concert Company. This is a company of four very talented young ladies. They give a program of great variety of the highest order. They have with them Miss Corn B. Evans, the soprano who recently filled a ten days' engagement as special soloist at Chautauqua.

No course is complete without a male quartette. On Dec. 2 will come the Mendelssohns, one of the best quartettes in the country. The Central Bureau claim they are superior to the Wesleys who gave such general satisfaction last winter. Hubert Raymond Loder, concert pianist, a pupil of Albano Gorno, is traveling with them.

Senator J. P. Dolliver will lecture Jan. 2, 1904. He is probably the most distinguished speaker who ever visited Chelsea. No comment on his ability is necessary. He is one of the strongest men in congress and one of the finest of American orators.

On Feb. 5 will come Ritchie and his unique entertainers, giving an evening of music, mirth and magic. Ritchie is one of the well known magicians of the country. He is accompanied by a fine concert company.

One of the most popular numbers will be the Hawthorne Musical Club, of Boston, who will come on Feb. 19. They are a similar organization to the Imperial Bell Ringers who gave such a popular concert last season. They play everything, guitars, mandolins, bells, horns, etc. There have been so many people in Chelsea who wished to hear J. DeWitt Miller again that he has been engaged to lecture on the course this season. He has made more return dates than almost any other lecturer on the platform.

Complete circulars in regard to this course will be left at your home in a few days. Look them over carefully and you will find that the course deserves your patronage.

Season tickets will be sold for $1.00 and reserved seats for the entire course at 50 cents. The date of sale will be announced later. A free season ticket will be presented to anyone selling 15 season tickets. Anyone desiring to sell tickets can do so by calling on any of the lecture committee.

Forty Hours' Adoration.

The Forty Hours' Adoration in honor of Christ will open in the Church of Our Lady of the Sacred Heart next Sunday at High Mass. A Redemptorist Father from Detroit will preach the sermons. Rosary, sermon and Benediction will be given every evening at 7:30 o'clock. Low mass at 6 a. m., high mass at 8:30 a. m. will be celebrated every morning. The exercises will close Tuesday evening with grand procession and Benediction. Strangers and non-Catholics are cordially invited.

Saves Two From Death.

"Our little daughter had an almost fatal attack of whooping cough and bronchitis," writes Mrs. W. K. Haviland, of Armonk, N. Y., "but, when all other remedies failed, we saved her life with Dr. King's New Discovery. Our niece, who had consumption in an advanced stage, also used this wonderful medicine and today she is perfectly well." Desperate throat and lung diseases yield to Dr. King's New Discovery as to no other medicine on earth. Infallible for coughs and colds. 50c and $1.00 bottles guaranteed by Glazier & Stimson. Trial bottles free.

THE NEWS OF MICHIGAN.

The Railroad Cases.

Four members of the state tax commission are in Lansing much against their will, having been subpoenaed in the suit of the railroads against the state, by which incorporations hope to law. Commissioners Dast, McLaughlin, Sayre and Freeman are to give testimony, but Kerr, who was not a member when the first assessment of the railroad property was made, was not subpoenaed.

The first testimony in the big case was taken Tuesday morning in Lansing's common council room, which adjoins the headquarters of the state tax commission.

Benton Hanchett, of Saginaw, has general charge of the case for the railroads, and those who were associated with him at the session this morning were Henry Russell and O. E. Butterfield, of the Michigan Central; Alexis C. Angell, of the Lake Shore, and Fred W. Stevens, of the Pere Marquette.

The state is represented by Attorney-General Blair, Assistant R. I. Wyckes and Congressman Henry C. Townsend.

The testimony is being submitted to Charles L. Fitch, general examiner for the United States court of the western district of Michigan. It is the side of the railroads, the complainants in the case, that is now being presented, and they have two months in which to offer their evidence.

Although there are more than 20 cases in all, a stipulation has been made whereby all the testimony will be offered in the Michigan Central case, and the evidence on both sides will cover any matter that is relevant to any of the railroads.

A Bad Wreck.

Engineer F. J. Dormer, of the Pere Marquette, was instantly killed Saturday morning near Breedsville in one of the worst wrecks ever known on the road. About a dozen freight cars were burned and many hundreds of dollars in merchandise destroyed.

Train No. 58, south bound, was run in two sections, both heavily laden. As the first section rounded the curve just north of the village, the air hose broke, setting the brakes on every car and stopping the train. A brakeman was sent back to flag the second section, but had not gone more than 20 car lengths before the engine was upon him. The curve prevented the engineer from seeing the danger until he was close to the danger signal, and then it was too late to more than check his speed. Engineer Dormer bravely stuck to his post, and when the engine plowed into the caboose ahead of him the shock was so great as to completely overturn it, burying him completely. When his body was recovered it had been shockingly burned, but it is thought he was killed instantly and did not suffer from the fire, which quickly enveloped the cars immediately in front and behind the wrecked locomotive. Dormer's home was in Grand Rapids.

Will Want $10,000 More.

The deal for the site of the State Institution for the Employment of the Blind, in Saginaw, has been accepted and the plans of Architect Cowles, subject to modifications which he will make, were also practically adopted. The institution will comprise four buildings, in a generally classic style of architecture, and the administration building and two dormitories, to face Houghton avenue and Bliss park. The machinery or factory building will be a substantial structure and comparatively plain. It is thought the buildings will cost $60,000, or $10,000 more than it was at first thought. It is also likely that a superintendent's residence will be erected at no distant date, this plan being thought preferable by some members of the board to that of providing a permanent superintendent's residence in the administration building.

Mr. Czolgosz's Saloon.

Frank Czolgosz, brother of Leon Czolgosz, who was electrocuted for the assassination of President McKinley, has sold his 40-acre farm, three miles west of Alpena, and will open a saloon in the residence district, near the city limits. The building he has leased was formerly a saloon, but has not been occupied as such for several years. Mr. Czolgosz has been a respected citizen of this locality for upwards of 12 years and has always borne a good reputation.

Principal Will Fight.

The case of the People vs. E. M. Ledyard, the school principal of Durand, who is charged with assault and battery upon 9-year-old Bessie Clark, a pupil, was adjourned till October 17. Ledyard has employed Attorneys Kelley and Searle, of Ithaca, to defend him and two local attorneys will act as counsel. Defendant says he will fight the case through the supreme court to make a test on record.

May Continue Spanking.

Because her father took her across his knee and gave her a good old-fashioned spanking where it would do the most good, and was otherwise "impolite" to her, Ellen Malover, of Bay City, aged 15, but who is as fully developed as most girls of 18, caused the old man's arrest on a charge of assault and battery. The court told the father he did just right, and told him to continue the good work if necessary.

Mt. Pleasant to Have a General.

Dimple, Daisy and Dot Redden, three pretty girl triplets, recently celebrated their 21st birthday at their home in Buchanan.

Millions in Taxes.

And the General Powers announced that the state levy this year is $4,063,024.62, which is the highest on record. In 1901 it was $3,853,844.97, and in 1900 it was $3,723,853.61. Wayne county will pay $733,373.38, against $502,496.07 in 1901. The next largest county level is Houghton $333,125.45 and Kent $288,294.33.

Some of the largest items are, for general purposes, $800,000; university, $307,525; Agricultural College, $100,000; Normal school, $110,000; College of Mines, $110,000; Soldiers' Home, $143,573; Home for Feeble Minded, $161,000; School for the Deaf, $105,000; prison improvement, $173,475; national guard, $121,000; asylums, $655,000.

A Juror Arrested.

R. M. Thomas, of Thompsonville, who was foreman of the jury which convicted Deputy Spofford, has been arrested on a charge of perjury in connection with the trial. Thomas swore that he knew nothing of the case and could sit on the trial as a competent juror. It is now said that he knew all about the case and witnesses will testify that he told them he would like to sit on Spofford's trial and send him to jail.

A Bold Robbery.

A hold-up and successful robbery which in point of boldness was never equalled in Grand Rapids, was perpetrated this morning in the office of C. H. Gleason in the Powers building when Alma Kideout, Mr. Gleason's stenographer, was knocked down and rendered unconscious and later gagged before her assailant went through the open safe and took away $184 in cash, leaving large checks.

Gov. Bliss has appointed the following members of a special commission to represent Michigan's copper interests at the St. Louis exposition: W. E. Parnell, Calumet; Dr. L. L. Hubbard, Painesville; J. J. Case, Hancock; Frank M. Stanton, Houghton; R. H. Shields, Hancock; J. L. Harris, Hancock; Prof. A. A. Seaman, Houghton; Samuel Brady, Rockland.

While excavating for a store building at Manistique, workmen found the trunk of a big tree lying on bedrock at a depth of 10 feet, where it evidently had been washed ashore years ago, when that area was covered by the lake.

THE NEWS OF THE WORLD.

The Career of Divorce.

Cardinal Gibbons in an interview declares that polygamy exists in every state and that the public school system is imperfect. Of divorce he says: "We are confronted in this country by polygamy. I mean the polygamy that exists in every state of this union, and there is no law against this kind of polygamy, but rather laws that recognize it and make it possible. There is a law against the polygamy that exists in Utah. Is not the law of divorce a virtual form of monogamy in a modified shape? Mormonism consists of simultaneous polygamy, while the law of divorce practically leads to successive polygamy. Each state has on its statute books a list of causes, or rather pretexts, which are recognized as sufficient grounds for divorce, a vinculo matrimonii. There are in all twenty-one causes, most of them of a very trifling character, and in some states, as in Illinois and in Maine, the power of granting a divorce is left to the discretion of the judge. Evidences are accumulating each year that the cancer of divorce is rapidly spreading over the country and poisoning the foundations of the nation. Unless the evil is checked by some speedy and heroic remedy the very existence of our family life is imperiled. How can we call ourselves a Christian nation if we violate a fundamental law of Christianity? And if the sanctity and indissolubility of marriage does not constitute a cardinal principal of the Christian religion, we are at a loss to know what does."

Without one unforeseen incident to mar the execution of the death penalty imposed by the trial court, sustained by the court of appeals, and not interfered with by Gov. Odell, Willis, Frederick M. and Burton Van Wormer were put to death in 15 1-2 minutes at Clinton prison, Dannemora, N. Y., Thursday for the murder of their uncle, Peter A. Hallenback, at Greendale, Columbia county, on Christmas eve, 1901.

The men walked from the doors of their cells in the care of their priest and flanked on either side by prison deputies, with calm demeanor, but extreme pallor. Willis Van Wormer entered the death chamber at 11:34:30, the current was turned into his body one minute later and at 11:37 he was declared dead.

At 11:41:30 Frederick entered the death chamber. At 11:42 the current was turned on and he was declared dead at 11:43:30.

Burton entered the death chamber at 11:47, the current was turned on at 11:47:30, and he was declared dead at 11:48:30.

The entire proceedings from the start of the first man from his cell to the doctor's declaration of the death of the last one, consumed but 15 1-2 minutes.

The rioting is all over and the Canadian Soo is settling into quietude with only disturbing nightmares of becoming a "deserted village" with the scattering of the 3,000 employees of the Consolidated Lake Superior Co., who are rapidly securing jobs in the woods and elsewhere, and with the early withdrawal of the militia.

Street car employees on lines in the American and Canadian Soo will be paid it was announced by an official of the Lake Superior Co., which controls the traction system. The receipts of the lines, the cars of which have been running steadily with the exception of one day when the Canadian line was stopped because of the rioting, are said to be sufficient to have made this possible.

Col. Buchan, in command of the Canadian soldiers, says that about 250 of the men will leave for Toronto. This will leave nearly 250 men, including the local militia, still on guard. Col. Buchan is confident that these would be able to quell any disturbance.

It is certain that an extra session of the fifty-eighth congress will be called for November 9. Ten days' notice only is necessary for an extraordinary session, but it is probable that the president will send out his call a little earlier. However, the fact that congress is to be summoned for November 9 is so generally understood by the country that there is no doubt that senators and representatives are already preparing to come to Washington by that date. The president will not prepare a lengthy message for this session, reserving what he has to say on general matters for the regular December session. His note to congress in November will be devoted almost exclusively, if not wholly so, to Cuban reciprocity.

The little town of St. Charles in Winona county, Minn., was almost completely wiped out by a tornado Saturday afternoon. Seven persons were killed and 28 were injured, many of them seriously. The entire main street of the town was literally wiped out, hardly a business place being left standing. Forty-two residences also were destroyed and the total property damage is estimated at $100,000. Among the buildings demolished were the Central school building, the Chicago Great Western depot, the Catholic church and Parrott's wagon works.

"I am not sorry," said Peter Lenousky, as he confessed the murder for which he is to die on the gallows at Wilkesbarre, Pa. Lenousky beat Anthony Sennack to death with a hatchet in the Exeter mine April 10, 1902, for robbery, and got but a few cents.

During communion service at the German Lutheran church in La Crosse, Wis., Herman Rosow, a painter, entered the church behind his wife and then turned the weapon upon himself, inflicting a wound which will prove fatal. The woman may live.

The Money of the Country.

United States Treasurer Lathrop places the monetary stock of the country on June 1, 1903, including gold and silver, United States notes, treasury notes and national bank notes, but not certificates, at $2,888,149,021, an increase of $24,882,063 for the year. The increase in gold was $90,187,401; and in national bank notes $30,908,559. The total estimated stock of gold was $1,223,990, constituting nearly 47 per cent of whole. The gold in the treasury amounted to $631,420,782, after a sale of $71,220,480 in twelve months, during the year $126,715,723 in gold was deposited at the mints and assay offices. Of the receipts from customs at the port of New York, constituting 67 per cent of the whole, 88 per cent were in gold. The proportion of gold at other ports is about 80 per cent. The imports of gold were $44,982,021 and the exports $47,090,593.

The increase of the money in circulation during the year was $121,740,522, of which $59,770,462 was in gold and gold certificates and $61,970,060 in national bank notes. The share of money for each person increased 89 cents, and the proportion of gold to the whole rose to 42 per cent, the highest ratio ever recorded.

The Sault Troubles.

The work of paying the Consolidated Lake Superior Co.'s men is progressing slowly because of the large number of liens placed on the time checks by the merchants of the city as security for goods purchased at their stores. These merchants can secure but the amount of their claims, the remainder of the money going to the men who earned it. There are in all about 3,500 men to be paid in the aggregate about $20,000. An event of the greatest importance Saturday was the receipt of a telegram by J. E. Irving, solicitor for the company, from New York, stating that the agreement between Speyer & Co. and the company is probably illegal.

Yellow fever is on the increase in Laredo, Tex., whence 4,000 people have fled since the beginning of the plague. The schools are suspended in Monterey, Mex., and Tampico is also afflicted, while the City of Mexico has become a haven for hundreds of fugitives from Texan and Mexican towns.

Mrs. Moore Nagle, of Winnetka, Conn., whose first husband, the late Franklin Moore, was founder of the large bolt works, has returned, after 10 years, as a seamstress in the Gilbert home for dependent children for her board and lodging. It is said her thousands were lost in speculation by persons she trusted. She was forced to sell her first husband's jewelry to get bread.

HOLY LAND SCENES

Plains of Philistia and Sharon

(SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE)

"El Ruks; Jerusalem!" exclaims the deep guttural voice of the Turkish guard as the train, puffing and shrieking, brings the tourist of to-day into the little modern-looking depot of the city. The pensive traveler has difficulty in realizing that he has arrived at the goal of his desire, the Holy City, for he is hastily driven over a

The view from the tower is magnificent. The whole plain of Sharon, with its fresh verdure and beautiful bright colors glowing in the sunshine, stretches out as far as eye can reach, from Mount Carmel on the north to Lydda on the south, and from the purple hills of Judea on the east to the blue Mediterranean sea on the west.

Abraham's Well.

dusty road to the hotel, which is situated in the midst of modern buildings.

What a different journey to the Holy City was experienced by the writer some twelve years ago. Starting from Jaffa, mounted on strong Arab horses, in the cool of the morning, we passed through its beautiful gardens, orange groves and corn fields, and entered the Plain of Philistia, "the land of the stranger."

Then we reached the Plain of Sharon, radiant with fields of scarlet anemones and innumerable other wild flowers. The red anemones are considered by the natives to be the lilies of the field of which Christ said that "even Solomon in all his glory was not arrayed like one of these." At noon we dismounted and stopped at a wayside coffee house beside a fountain. The natives came around us, asking many questions. "Are you a man or a woman?" "Are you married—Is this your son?"

We reached Ramlet late in the afternoon. Surrounded by tall, slender palms and olive trees, and in the midst of a sandy, barren plain, the village of Ramlet is a picturesque oasis, with its tall tower rising above the white houses. Some people think that the village stands on the site of the old Aramathia, where Joseph

We passed Lydda, where Peter cured Aeneas. A legend tells that St. George was born in this town, and was buried in the church, which still stands. A picture represents his conflict with the dragon, and his runcle and finger bone are exhibited in a silver casket.

Soon after leaving Lydda we came to the rocky and ascending road which, winding in and out among bleak mountains, leads to the village of Beth-Horon. The stony path is surrounded by barren wastes, devoid of trees, yet bedecked with many gay flowerets, peeping from the crevices in the rocks.

Turning our eyes toward the east, we saw a landscape that was also grand, though desolate. For miles the scenery presented nothing but dark hills and valleys, till our gaze rested upon the silvery waters of the Dead sea, beautiful in the glistening light of the pale moon. This sea lay three thousand nine hundred feet below us, but in the clear, bright atmosphere of the Orient it seemed to be quite near, notwithstanding the miles of unulating country which separated us from it. We gazed on its wonderful beauty, and then again on the city before us, and we were filled with joy at the thought that in a few hours we would be within the walls of Jerusa-

ADVICE, BUT NO DRINK.

Thirst of Seedy Individual Remained Unquenched.

He was a seedy looking individual, and as he stood upon the corner gazing wistfully at the disappearing form of the newsboy who had just picked up a good sized stump and was making off with the prize, there was a vague aspect of despair in his attitude which was very touching. Perhaps it was this which attracted the attention of a mild-looking party who was passing by, and perhaps it was something else, but however this may be, the mild-looking party stopped, and gazing at the solitary figure, addressed it thus:

"Old man, wouldn't you like to have a drink this morning?"

"You've read me as accurately as though my thoughts were printed on an open page," replied the solitary, taking his gird from his mouth, and passing a dilapidated coat sleeve over his lips.

"I thought so," murmured the mild-looking party, while a tear trickled down his cheek; "but conquer the desire. Fight it as you would a legion of devils, for drink has ruined many a man who had a more expansive forehead than you've got."

And then the mild-looking party continued on his way, and the solitary gazed drearily into space and communed with himself.

DE WET SAW THE POINT.

Former Boer General Appreciated a Compliment Paid His People.

General Christian De Wet, formerly the fighting commandant in the Boer army and nicknamed "the fox," because of the many cunning stratagems he employed to outwit the British, is now in this country. Before he left south Africa an American correspondent asked the general why he did not join hands with the Boers who were going to America to form a colony.

"I've heard of your country," said De Wet, grimly. "A traveler told me that what an American throws away in a year would support a dozen Chinamen families during that time."

"True," said the correspondent, "and if that which would support twelve Chinese families were accepted by one Boer he would not be able at the end of a year to defend himself against one of the heathen."

De Wet appreciated the compliment. "Perhaps," he said, more pleasantly, "the traveler meant that the discarded toothpicks of the Americans would make the chop sticks of the Chinese."

"Perhaps," said the correspondent, proud of having conquered the fierce warrior.

Up to Date.

Gaze on me, all ye people,
For I'm a gorgeous sight;
My dress, a smart creation,
This hat is my delight;
I lead my bridled building,
And just as sure as fate,
I promenade each evening,
For I'm strictly up to date.

And when I go out riding
In my new two-seated trap,
My Paris gown and hat, so gay,
And well imported wrap;
Of course I have a driver,
And a footman so sedate,
I know that I'll pass muster,
For I'm strictly up to date.

Sometimes I take my auto
Just to cut a bigger dash;
If people will get in my path
Enough to raise your hair!
We really can't look out for them
As we perambulate,
The common people must give way
For we are up to date.

We dash out in the country
To see the people stare;
We round the corners with a whiz
Enough to raise your hair!
Our chauffeur grins a fiendish grin,
And, awful to relate,
Our wake is strewn with wreckage,
For I'm strictly up to date.

Youth and Vocation.

A youth, remarks Success, should not choose a vocation merely because he thinks he will attain distinction or make money in it. Above his ambition to become a great merchant, lawyer, statesman, physician, artist or musician, should be a desire to become a noble man. Other things being equal, he should choose that vocation which offers the largest opportunity for growth, and which will keep pushing his horizon a little farther and farther away from him. There are many callings that do not tend to develop a man and keep him growing after the first few years. The discipline in them is only a repetition of the exercise of certain faculties. There is no pushing out, no variety of experience.

She Knew Herself.

The story is told of an old lady who has lived all her life in Germantown, as have generations of her family. The other day she is said to have consulted a young physician fresh from his honors at the University of Pennsylvania.

"What do you think is the matter with me?" asked the lady.

"I am inclined to think your blood is not pure, madam. I'll have to give you something to purify it—"

"Sir!" said the old lady, with dignity, "you are probably not aware that I belong to one of the oldest families in Philadelphia!"

Three Kisses.

A violet kissed my love to-day,
And then turned white;
And some one passing by, called out,
"How strange! Last night,
I saw this flower, and it was blue!"
Dear Heart, within the eyes of you
The blue is flashing bright.

A red rose kissed my love to-day,
Then fell apart;
And Cupid, coming afterward,
Found there his dart.
And on your cheek I saw confessed
The crimson drops the rose had pressed
From out its bleeding heart.

I kissed my love myself, to-day,
And found a tear.
I would not kiss her lips in case
Thieves should appear.
But where the wind some time had played
I kissed the curls, and undismayed
I hid the kiss, my dear.

One Command He Heeded

"In my day and generation I have been accused of having broken nearly all the Ten Commandments—and with perfect truth. To begin with, I have blood guiltiness on my soul. Saul has slain his thousands, but I have slain my tens of thousands. But it was in Jersey—and my windows were unscreened, so there were extenuating circumstances.

"I have bowed down to a graven image. The image was that of my sainted wife.

"Is that you, George?"

"Yes."

"What time is it?"

"Plenty minutes after eleven!" I murmured.

"A church clock nearby slowly chimed three—then the bowing to the image began, as I carefully dodged the shoes.

"I have borne false witness with a childlike simplicity that would have brought tears to your eyes when my companion on life's journey has asked me in a moment of tenderness whether I ever regretted having married her.

"So much I confess to. But one thing I know—that whereas I may have broken nine of the Commandments, the tenth one I have preserved inviolate. It has always seemed such a foolish thing for a man to break this one of the group. Why covet an ox? Nothing short of a pair of them would do any good, and then only if you have a ranch.

"Why covet a jackass? There's no style about them. Their ears are too long. Besides, given a fair chance, you can nearly always make one of yourself, and then the coveting's wasted.

"Lastly—what sane man would covet his neighbor's wife? Kind heaven! Would he want two, for whom he would have to match samples? Two who would wait up for him and insist on knowing why he wore his cravat as a shoulder knot? Two who would bring their mothers to live with them? No, indeed. It's a very foolish thing to covet. I once knew a fellow who coveted, though I drew four kings and he coveted them. I would have given him some, but there were no more in the deck—so I think he ought to have been ashamed of breaking one of the Commandments. Don't you?"—J. C. D. in Philadelphia Ledger.

Time Limit of Horses

The gradual lowering of the trotting record during the last century from a mile in three minutes to the new record of Lou Dillon on August 24 has led many to question if a limit is ever to be reached.

The mathematician has a rule to guide him in a guess at the answer to just such question. In 1892 the writer undertook to discover the law of trotting improvement.

A mathematician can construct a curve of speed, just as an astronomer plots a comet's motion.

A curve is sought that will pass through as many of the points as possible, or close to them, and the continuation of this curve across lines indicating future years shows the best answer to the main question that the facts warrant.

If the curve proves to be a hyperbola, it will afford confidence in the accuracy of the solution, for a property of the hyperbola is that it constantly approaches but never reaches a straight line called an asymptote.

and this asymptote represents the ultimate rate of speed.

With Lou Dillon at the two-minute mark, a point is indicated on the chart showing this hyperbolic curve as the law of improvement. It is now possible to pass the curve of a hyperbola through the record points of Trouble in 1826, Dutchman in 1839, Nancy Hanks in 1892, and Lou Dillon in 1903. This curve will be within a few seconds of many other records in which the time was notably reduced.

The notable records of Maud S. in 1881 and 1885, with the high-wheel sulky, are 2 1/4 to 3 1/4 seconds above the curve, which would indicate that the change to the pneumatic sulky will account for this measure of the improvement.

This curve places the ultimate limit of trotting speed at a mile in 63 1/2 seconds, which, though constantly approached, will never be reached actually, and it indicates the minute and a half mark as two centuries away.—Scientific American.

Near the Danger Line

Squire Pond ruled his village with a high hand and a peppery tongue, and his subjects seldom rebelled. There came a time, however, when he was made to feel that there was a point beyond which he could not wisely go. This was disclosed to him by John Wayne, who had fallen under the lash of the Squire's sarcasm by reason of an unsightly cupola lately added to his house. John had borne the stream of ridicule which had been poured out upon him, but when he was at last free to depart to his disfigured home he stood twisting his hat in his hands.

"Square," he said, desperately, after an impatient question as to why he waited, "Square, there's one thing I've got to say. We all know you've got judgment and education, more than most, an' we know you're getting on in years, so we take this from ye, though sometimes it's a reglar stent to do it. You set here in your office an' lay down the law to us, same as if you had a right; there wouldn't anybody else dared to speak slighting of my cupola as you have. But there's one thing I will say. I heard you'd ordered those new-fangled, self-closing springs for your doors, an' what I want to say is, don't you have one put on your office door, Square, or there won't a soul come nigh ye!"

And with a violent nod and a slam of the door which showed why the self-closing spring would be a hardship to visitors John took his departure.—Youth's Companion.

Michigan Troops Lacked Ammunition

Michigan's first experience with five warfare in the army maneuvers from many standpoints was not the success it should have been, although the men did the best they possibly could do under the conditions. Without ammunition and with only a vague idea of what was expected of them, the members of the First Regiment, headed by Col. C. W. Hurrell, were pitted against two troops of cavalry, namely, the L and C, of the Seventh United States Cavalry, under command of Capt. M. C. Butler. This was only one of the six detached maneuvers planned for the troops for the day, the problem given the Michigan regiment to solve being to march to Muldraugh, about six miles, through steep and stony hills, the country supposed to be hostile. All precautions were to be taken to discover and prevent the enemy from attacking the regiment.

The Michigan regiment left camp shortly after 10 o'clock and their appearance was inspiring. For some reason or other the Michigan regiment left camp without ammunition, an oversight which greatly spoiled the maneuvers. Who is responsible for the failure to provide the troops with cartridges has not yet been determined, but it was a glaring error. The Michigan boys were simply at the mercy of the cavalry and many of them made no effort to protect themselves, for it was useless. Other state troops received their ammunition all right and there seems to be no reason why the Michigan men should not have been properly equipped. It was an omission which caused considerable adverse criticism both by the officers and men.

Two strangers were surprised in the New York navy yard in the act of taking notes of the battleship Connecticut now being constructed. One was observing the work through a glass and dictating notes to his companion.

Miss Julia Grant, daughter of U. S. Grant, and Miss Isabel Ingle have narrowly escaped serious and possibly fatal injuries in a runaway accident at San Diego, Cal. Miss Grant's spirited horse overturned her light buggy, throwing both young ladies to the ground. They were bruised about their heads and sides and were removed to their homes in a carriage.

Head

Hurt So Badly Was Nearly Crazy.

Had no Sleep—Could Hardly Lie Down.

Dr. Miles' Nervine Permanently Cured Me.

"A year ago I suffered from extreme nervous stomach trouble. I was afraid of everything, could not bear to hear singing or music and reading or hearing of a death nearly brought on my own. I could not sleep or hardly lie down, the back of my head hurt me so badly I nearly went crazy. My shoulders hurt and the least thing I did would bring on an attack of extreme nervousness. There were times when I would have a lump in my throat and my mouth would be so dry I could hardly speak. I was in despair until I began to take Dr. Miles' Restorative Nervine. I have taken in all twelve bottles and consider myself permanently cured. My home doctor has since remarked on my healthy appearance and said he wished he could say his medicine helped me. He knows it was Dr. Miles' Nervine. We are never without the Anti-Pain Pills and consider our medicines household remedies. I cannot say enough for the Nervine, because in addition to my own case my daughter, who was out of school for a long time because of St. Vitus' dance, was completely cured by eight bottles. She is now feeling fine and going to school every day. We thank you for your kindness and will never stop singing the praises of Dr. Miles' Restorative Nervine."—Mrs. C. E. Ring, Lima, O.

THURSDAY, OCTOBER 8, 1903.

Unadilla.

Mrs. Perry, of Jackson, is visiting her sister Mrs. Perry Mills.

Rev. Cope occupied the M. E. pulpit last Sunday afternoon.

Homer Ives and wife, of Chelsea, called on friends here Sunday.

Rev. Miller and wife were the guests of her parents last week.

Joe Collins and wife, of Stockbridge, visited Perry Mills and wife Sunday.

Mr. Nott and wife, of Stockbridge, were the guests of Geo. May and wife Sunday.

Mrs. Milford Brown, of Williamston, is the guest of her sister Mrs. Wirt Barnum.

Mrs. Eldridge and Mrs. McCollum and son, of Detroit, visited relatives here last week.

Geo. Hoyland and wife entertained company from Lansing and Williamsville Sunday.

Mrs. Watts, of Ft. Wayne, Ind., was the guest of Mrs. Janet Webb Saturday and Sunday.

A. C. Watson and family were the guests of John Watson and family, of Chelsea, Saturday and Sunday.

Rev. Crawford, of Detroit, preached in the Presbyterian church last Sunday evening. Every one thinks he preached a fine sermon and hope that he will visit the church again.

About 25 neighbors and friends of Mesdames Noble and Chipman gathered at their home last Friday and gave them a very pleasant surprise. They brought all kinds of goodies to eat and every one went home feeling that they had spent a day of enjoyment.

Voice Culture.

Miss Frances E. Caspari, of Ann Arbor, teacher of voice culture, and pupil of John Dennis Melan, of New York city, and William A. Howland, of Ann Arbor, will be at C. Steinbach's music store, Chelsea, next Tuesday, Aug. 18, morning and afternoon, to make arrangements with pupils desiring to take up the study of voice culture.

Abraham Lincoln said in the early days, when the United States was young, over 40 years ago, "You can fool part of the people part of the time, but you can't fool all the people all the time." At this stage of the game you can't do it, this is a true saying. Smoke Kne's Highball cigar, 5c.

Builds up muscular flesh, healthy tissue, rich, red blood, clears the stomach, kidneys and liver. That's what Rocky Mountain Tea will do. 35 cents. Glazier & Stimson.

Waterloo.

Rev. Mr. Cooper left for conference Tuesday.

Miss Theresa Taylor, of Jackson, is visiting at H. Lehman's.

Miss Myra Clark visited Miss Ella Monroe Saturday and Sunday.

Dick Clark and wife, of Lyndon, spent Sunday at L. L. Gorton's.

Mrs. Stanfield is visiting her daughter Mrs. Geo. Rentschler.

Orville Gorton and daughter Sarah were in Jackson Monday.

Orville Gorton is having his residence and tenant house painted.

Andrew Harr is having his house remodeled, painted and decorated.

Henry Lehman and wife and Mrs. Taylor spent Sunday at Ann Arbor.

Geo. Beeman and family spent Sunday at Henry Notten's, of Sylvan.

Miss Lizzie Hammack spent Saturday and Sunday with friends in Chelsea.

The dryer opened up Monday, so the people may take their apples there now.

The infant child of Fred Kellogg died Monday. It was taken to Leslie for burial.

Mrs. H. S. Cooper arrived home from Canada last Friday after a visit of three weeks. She was accompanied by her mother.

P. P. Palmer has sold his residence in Jackson and removed part of his household goods to his farm in this township. He will reside temporarily in Jackson.

Jas. Palmer is repainting his house and barn. He has also erected one of the largest corn cribs in Waterloo township, and a large woodhouse with basement.

The North Waterloo Aid Society of the M. E. church will meet with Mrs. H. Evers tomorrow for dinner. There will also be a box social in the evening at the same place.

Last Monday evening a party of about 30 young people of the vicinity walked in and took possession of the U. B. parsonage. A very pleasant evening was spent in visiting, playing games, and music. After supper Rev. and Mrs. Cooper were again surprised when they were presented by Andrew Grey, on behalf of the young people present, with a purse of $11.00. Mr. Cooper made a few remarks and thanked all for the token of their kindly feelings. Rev. and Mrs. Cooper have been here three years and during their stay have made many friends in and around Waterloo. As they go from this place they carry with them the good wishes of all.

Drying Apples Wanted.

Holmes & Gilbert want 20,000 bushels of apples for use at their evaporator works. Delivery to begin at once. 8

The happiest couple in the world should be a deaf husband and a blind wife, both taking Rocky Mountain Tea. Keeps peace in the family. 35 cents. Glazier & Stimson.

Lyndon.

Miss Florence Collins is attending the Normal at Ypsilanti.

Miss May Gorman visited her cousin Miss Mary Tuomey, near Ann Arbor, a few days last week.

The pupils of Miss Inez Leek will give a musical recital in Waterloo on Friday evening, Oct. 9. Miss Leek has prepared a fine program for the occasion.

John Clark and wife and Geo. Runciman and wife attended the grange county convention held at Ann Arbor on Tuesday last, as delegates from Eureka Grange.

Mrs. T. E. Sullivan, who has had charge of her brother James Shanahan's household since the death of his wife some two and a half years ago, has moved back to Chelsea to live.

The grange social held at the town hall Wednesday evening of last week was quite a success considering the rainy evening and the very busy season of bean harvest just at that time. A fine musical program and an elegant lunch were the attractions of the evening.

Card of Thanks.

We wish to extend our heartfelt thanks to our friends and neighbors who so kindly gave us their sympathy and assistance during the sickness and death of our late son, George Wade.

Mrs. and Mrs. Jas. L. Wade.

COST OF STEAMSHIP SPEED.

Extra Knot Per Hour is a Costly Honor for Atlantic Liner.

The extra knot of speed, or fraction of a knot, which each newest Atlantic liner must achieve over her predecessor of a few months before is a terribly costly honor. Just how costly it is is explained in the 1903-4 edition of Rhodes' steamship guide.

Say that 1,000 horse power gives a speed of 16 to 17 knots, and 2,000 horse power gives 21 knots. From this point the effort required to produce each additional knot is enormous.

Thus, 3,000 horse power only gives 23 knots and 4,000 horse power gives 26 knots, and the next six knots would mean almost a doubling of the power.

"It might be possible," says the writer, "by minimizing the luggage and using metal of high tensile strength, to reduce the weight of a 22-knot merchant steamer to 14,000 tons, but, unfortunately, passengers must have their luggage with them, the best and ample provision must be supplied, mails must be carried and a little precious cargo, so that the displacement is increased at least 3,000 tons or so, with the result that the power required for the speed of 22 knots amounts up to such an extent that the consumption of coal equals a ton per mile traversed, and the extra load of 3,000 tons costs in coal alone for the Atlantic trip some $8,000."

FRESH CAUSE FOR QUARREL.

Philosopher Satisfied He Had Done Some Good.

"I was over at Allegash the other day for the first time in four years," said the Koback philosopher, just a bit sarcastically, "and I found my nephew Luther and his estimable wife still squabbling over the same question they were quarreling about when I was there before. The only change that I was able to detect was that, while in the first place they appeared to know what they were jangling about, by this time they seemed to have forgotten what the original bone of contention was, and were quarreling monotonously along without any way of knowing when they had finished."

"Well, when my appearance interrupted them, Luther was startled to see how much thinner I had grown in four years, and his wife was astonished at the way I had grown fat. And at it they went, quarreling over that, and the original question was shelved for good and all. I came away feeling amply repaid for the trip. It is a satisfaction to know that you have done a helpful act, and I expect I did them a great favor by breaking the monotony, and giving them something fresh to wrangle over."—June Smart Set.

WHEN THE JUDGE AWOKE.

Familiar Phrase That Sprang at Once to His Lips.

There was no mistake about it, the judge was asleep. The embarrassed young lawyer, who had reached the telling point of his argument, spoke in a higher key, and then raised his voice until the walls of the room reverberated. But the judge slept on. The court officers were blind to the young lawyer's hints. At last, in desperation, he turned to his opponent.

"Now, Mr. Grubber, you see the delicate situation I am in, and there's only one way out. Unfortunately I haven't any books with me, but if you don't mind I am going to knock over that pile of yours."

With a well-directed gesture the young lawyer struck the books, and they, as well as the chair on which they had been standing, went down with a terrific crash just as his astonished opponent leaped to his feet and exclaimed:

"But I do most emphatically object!"

And the judge, without raising his head from the position it had been occupying for the last fifteen minutes, replied with all his wonted dignity:

"Jection overruled."

Why It Veered.

"What in the name of sense is this world coming to, anyway?" peevishly queried the chauffeur, as the stray planet he was guiding escaped from the vigilance of Inertia and started on an interstellar hike. A cautious passenger leaned over the edge of the car and gasped: "It's the earth! Turn the lever to the right quick or we'll collide, and Pierpont Morgan will sue us for damages."—Baltimore American.

The Central City is the best 5c cigar made in Michigan?

Sylvan Center.

Henry Haffey and wife spent Saturday at Bridgewater.

R. J. West and wife are visiting relatives at Williamston.

Chas. Merker and wife, of Chelsea, spent Sunday at Geo. Heselschwerdt's. Mrs. H. C. Boyd spent the first of the week with her son Merritt Boyd, in Chelsea.

Mrs. Chris. Forner, jr., and children, of Lima, spent Sunday with her parents.

Mrs. Delia Ward and daughter Mamie, of Jackson, spent last week with Mrs. Chas. Kellogg.

M. B. Millsapugh and family have moved into their new farm house. We hope the comfort they will have in it will amply repay them for the discomfort experienced by the burning of their former residence.

A word to the wise is sufficient. Kne's Highball cigar is pleasant to the taste. It is a positive fact there are no better.

The Pinnacle of Success

HAS been reached in our superb collection of Fall and Winter apparel for men and boys. Are you aware that a great majority of the best dressed men in this part of the country have long been customers of ours? They have received the same satisfaction when buying clothes here ready-to-put-on that they formerly did when they patronized a custom tailor and paid him twice as much for each garment. It is a fact, and a practice that you would do well to emulate, if you have the slightest care for your personal appearance and where your dollars go to. In connection with this, and in full proof of our statement, we want to show you the Suits and Fall Top Coats that we have marked $12, $15 and $18.

A custom tailor would charge you at least double these prices for identically the same quality, yet give you no better style and no better fit; but he would make you a lot of trouble in trying on before you finally got your clothes.

The fine clothes made by Messrs. Michaels, Stern & Co., of Rochester, are splendid examples of perfect tailoring.

ITEMS OF LOCAL INTEREST.

Born, Tuesday, Oct. 6, to Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Eisenman, of Freedom, a son.

The board of supervisors will meet in annual session at the court house, Ann Arbor, next Monday.

The services in St. Paul's Evangelical church will commence at 10:30 a. m. next Sunday and thereafter.

The Bacon Co-Operative Co. has filed its articles of incorporation with the secretary of state and county clerk.

John Breitenbach, of Lyndon, has a new bean thresher, which takes the place of one he has been using for ten years past.

W. D. Schmidt moved his family and household goods to Ann Arbor Tuesday where he has a job in the Michigan Furniture Co.'s factory.

The Congregational, Methodist and Baptist churches begin their regular evening services next Sunday. The services begin at 7 o'clock.

The Imlay City Times sarcastically says: "Some men wouldn't go to heaven if they had to pay taxes to keep the golden streets in repair."

Two of the three features of the next May festival of the University School of Music will be the "Dream of Gerontius," by Edgar, and Bizet's "Carmen."

The Gale Manufacturing Company, of Albion, in which Victor D. Hindelang is interested as a stockholder, has increased its capital stock from $58,000 to $500,000.

Mr. and Mrs. Ernest E. Weber arrived in Chelsea Monday from their wedding trip and have gone to housekeeping in part of Mrs. Mary Vogel's house on Orchard street.

M. T. Woodruff, formerly editor of the Ypsilanti Sentinel, and recently state editor of the Detroit Tribune, has resigned his position and is now editor of the Grosse Pointe Times.

A large number of teams and several wheel scrapers went through Chelsea Tuesday en route to Dexter to work on the Boland line grading between that place and Ann Arbor. They returned yesterday.

A dozen of the friends of Miss Nina B. Crowell gave her a pleasant surprise party at her home Tuesday evening. The time was spent in playing finch, visiting and enjoying daintily served refreshments.

The millinery displays made by the Chelsea milliners at their several openings last week were greatly admired by the ladies who visited them and best of all, for the milliners, sales were many and good.

Rev. A. Schoen preached at the morning service of the mission-fest of the Bethlehem church, Ann Arbor, last Sunday. All three of the services were well attended and the collection taken up amounted to $117.

The first quarterly meeting for the conference year of the Methodist church will be held next Sunday. Love feast at 9:30 a. m.; preaching by Rev. E. B. Bancroft, presiding elder, at 10:30, followed by the sacrament of the Lord's supper. Quarterly conference Monday evening at 8 o'clock.

The supper given by the ladies of St. Paul's Evangelical church at the town hall Saturday night was so largely attended that for a time it looked as if they would not have enough food to supply the demand, but timely reinforcements from the country dispelled their fears and everybody was well served.

Equipments of various kinds are being deposited along the route of the Boland electric line. The track arrangement will be the same as that of the Jackson & Battle Creek interurban. Every practical safety device is to be used in the protection of the public from the electric third rail by which the cars are to be propelled.

One of the Detroit stockholders of the National Pet Fuel Co., which built the factory here during the past summer, was out here Tuesday to look over the plant. He said he wanted to see for himself just what the promoters of the company had been doing, as enquiries at the Detroit office of the company always brought forth the same answer, "We are making the machinery as fast as is possible."

Rev. H. W. Lenz, from Indiana, is the new pastor of the Francisco German M. E. church.

A teachers' examination will be held at the court house, Ann Arbor, next Thursday and Friday, Oct. 15 and 16.

Miss Lucy Wallace, of Jackson, formerly of Chelsea, has been engaged as teacher of music and drawing in the Grass Lake school.

The semi-annual meeting of the Jackson Association of Congregational churches will be held in Pinckney Tuesday, Oct. 20-21.

Michigan is tenth among the states in the number of her printing shops. There are 897, with a combined capital of $12,456,474 and an annual product valued at $13,247,892.

Wm. Monks, of Sharon, has commenced a suit for divorce against his wife, Sarah J. Monks. He claims that she scolded him so often and so fiercely that he cannot stand it to live with her.

Stockbridge is to have a new feed stable which will also have a waiting room for the convenience of farmers and the people who come to town. That's a good idea and something that Chelsea should have.

Mrs. T. E. Sullivan has moved back to town from Lyndon where she has been with her brother James Shanahan for the past 24 years and is occupying part of L. Tichenor's house on Congdon street.

Milan Leader: T. W. Mingay has enlarged his paper the Chelsea Herald, from a five-column to a six-column quarto. Bro. Mingay gets out a new sheet, and deserves the success he is making of the Herald.

Elmer Dean, of Sylvan, brought into the Herald office Monday a branch of a raspberry bush, pulled from his father's garden, which was laden with ripe red berries that tasted as nice as those that ripened with the former regular crop.

The Grass Lake News came out last week in a handsome new dress of long primer type. Its appearance is greatly improved thereby. The News was 25 years old last week and celebrated its quarter century in the manner above spoken of.

Great Record Keeper A. M. Slay, of Port Huron, says a wigwam will be built at Battle Creek in which to hold the session of the biennial meeting of the Maccabees and the Ladies of the Maccabees next June. There will be 1,000 delegates of the Maccs and 800 of the Bees.

During the past week E. J. Foster has taken two large loads of furniture to Chelsea. The parties who made the purchases said they could do much better here than at home—Grass Lake News. There is food for reflection for Chelsea's two furniture stores contained in this item.

The D. Y., A. A. & J. Ry. will run the opera car which leaves Detroit at 10:45 p. m. through from Ann Arbor to Chelsea on short notice for parties of ten or more passengers going through from Detroit; and will run car through from Ann Arbor to Chelsea for Ann Arbor parties of 20 or more.

The circuit court convened for the October term Monday with 111 cases on the docket. Of these cases 33 are criminal cases, 49 issues of fact, 1 issue of law, 9 first class chancery, 23 fourth class chancery. Of the criminal cases 24 are for infraction of the liquor law; of the fourth class chancery cases 11 are divorce cases.

Bishop John S. Foley will be 70 years of age Nov. 5, and a number of representative citizens of Detroit, of his own and other communions, are planning to quietly show their appreciation of his character and citizenship by a public reception. The 15th anniversary of his elevation to the episcopate comes this year on Nov. 4, one day before his birthday anniversary.

The Manchester Enterprise says, "Can you say a word favorable to the building of an electric line through Manchester, if so, do it?" Bet your life, we can say a good word for such a project, Mr. Enterprise. Find the men who will build and finance the road and we will tell them it is one of the best things they ever went into in their lives and will make their fortunes, particularly if it will run north and south and touch Chelsea en route.

NOW HE IS A WISER DOG.

There was a dog, I knew him well,
A lively dog was he.
His tail was brown, his body black,
As black as black could be.

He saw a cat, a pink-eyed cat,
A cat with sharp toenails,
And grayish back and spotted legs,
And whitest of white tails.

He gave a bark, a himble jump,
And, like a streak of blue,
Shot through the air, as at that cat
The wretched doggie flew.

The cat it spat, its back went up,
Shrill rang its piercing wail;
The fur it flew, the dog howled,
And deep the sharp toenails.

Ploughed through the hide and tore the nose,
And scratched that canine's eye,
Till with a howl the dog turned round,
And back again did fly.

And now he is a wiser dog,
And cats he does eschew;
He'll never try again to think,
A pussy cat to chew.

When Soda Springs sighted Extra 240 West pitching down the mountain, the steel dancing behind and Aloysius jumping before, there was a painful sensation—the sensation of good men who see a disaster they are powerless to avert. Nor did Soda Springs know how desperate the wiper's extremity had become. Not even the struggling steel foreman knew that with Soda Springs passing like films of a cinematograph, and two more miles of down grade ahead, the last cupful of sand was trickling from the wiper's tank. Aloysius, at that moment wouldn't have given the odd change on a pay check for all the chances Extra 240 and he himself had left. He stuck to his lever merely because there was no particular reason for letting go. It was only a question of how a man wanted to take the rocks. Yet, with all his figuring, Aloysius had lost sight of his only salvation, maybe because it was quite out of his power to effect it himself. But in making the run up to Soda Springs No. 16 had already sanded the rails below.

He could feel the help the minute the tires ground into the grit. They began to smoke, and Aloysius perceived that grade was easing somewhat. Even the dazed foreman looking back, saw an improvement in the hunches of the caboose. There was one more hair-raise ahead—the appalling curve at the forks of the Goose. But, instead of being hurled over the elevation, they found themselves around it and on the bridge with only a vicious stew. Aloysius' hair began to lie down and his heart to rise up. He had her checked—even the hoboes knew it—and a mile further, with the danger past, they took new ones by dropping off the hind end.

At the second bend below the Goose Aloysius made a stop and began to breathe. A box was blazing on the tender truck, and, with his handy fireman, he got down at once to doctor it. The whole thing shifted so morbidly quick from danger to safety that the two men never stopped to inventory their fears; they seemed to have vanished with the frost that lured them to destruction. They jumped together into the cab, and, whistling at the laborers, struck back along the right of way. Extra 240 West began backing pluckily up hill to Soda Springs. The first man who approached the cab as they slowed down for the platform—in fact, people rather stood back for him—was Bucks, superintendent of the division; his car had come in, attached to No. 16.

"How did your train get away from you?" he asked Aloysius; there was neither speculation nor sympathy in

"How did your train get away from you?" he asked.

His manner and his words were bitten with frost.

"It didn't get away from me," retorted Aloysius, who had never before in his life seen the man, and was not aware that he owed him any money. But the operator at the Springs, who knew Aloysius and the superintendent both, was standing behind the latter doing a pantomime that would shame a medicine man.

"Quick talking will do more for you than smart talking," replied the superintendent, crisply.

get a better chance while you're working for this company to explain yourself."

Aloysius himself began to think so for the nods and winks of the operator were bewildering. He tried to speak up, but the foreman of the steel gang put in: "See here, sport," he snapped, irreverently, at the angry official. "Why don't you cool your hat before you jump a fellow like that?"

"What business is it of yours how I jump a fellow?" returned the superintendent; "who are you?"

"I'm only foreman of this steel

"What for? Jimmey Christmas! What for?"

gang, my friend; and I don't take any back talk from anybody."

"In that case," responded Bucks, with velvet sarcasm, "perhaps you will explain things. I'm only superintendent of this division; but it's customary to inquire into a matter of this kind."

Aloysius at the words nearly sank to the platform; but the master of the hoboes, who had all the facts, went at the big man as if he had been one of the gang, and did not falter till he had covered the perspiring wiper with glory.

"What's the reason the air wouldn't work?" asked the superintendent, turning without comment, when the track layer had finished, to Aloysius.

"I haven't had time to find out, sir," flung out and report to me. What's your name?"

"McGrath," he said. "Well, McGrath, look close into the air. There may be something in it for you. You did the firing," he added, turning short again on the unabashed steel foreman.

"What there was done."

"I'll do a little now, myself. I'll fire you right here and now for impudence."

"I suppose you're the boss," responded the man of ties, imperturbably. "When I made the crack, I'd made it harder if I had known you were."

"You know now, don't you?"

"I guess so."

"Very good," said Bucks in his mildest tones. "If you will report to me at Medicine Bend this afternoon I'll see whether we can't find something better for your manners than cursing hoboes. You can ride down in my car, sport. What do you say? That will save you transportation."

It brought a yell from the railroad men crowding around, for that was Bucks' way of doing things; and the men liked Bucks and his way. The ex-captain of the dagos tried to look cool, but in point of fact went very sheepish at his honors.

Followed by a mob eager to see the finish, Superintendent Bucks made his way up the track along the construction train to where Aloysius and the engineer of No. 16 were examining the air. They found it frozen between the first and second car. Bucks heard it all—heard the whole story. Then he turned to his clerk.

"Discharge both crews of Extra 240, Fire Johnnie Horgan."

"Yes, sir."

"McGrath, run your train back to Wind River behind us. We'll scare up a conductor here somewhere; if we can't I'll be your conductor. Make your report to Medicine Bend," Bucks added, speaking to the operator, and without further talk walked back to his car.

As he turned away the engineer of No. 16 slapped Aloysius on the back. "Kid, why the blazes didn't you thank him?"

"Who?"

"Bucks."

"What for?"

"What for? Jimmey Christmas! What for? Didn't he just make you an engineer? Didn't he just say, 'Run your train back behind us to Wind River?'"

"My train?"

"Sure, your train. Do you think Bucks ever says a thing like that without meaning it? You bet not."

Bucks' clerk, too, was a little uncertain about the promotion. "I suppose he's competent to run the train back, isn't he?" he asked of Bucks, suggestively.

Bucks was scrawling a message.

"A man that could hold a train from Wind River here on whistles, with nothing but a tankful of sand and a hobo fireman, wouldn't be likely to fall off the right of way running back," he returned dryly. "He's been firing for years, hasn't he? We haven't got half enough men like McGrath. Tell Neighbor to give him an engine."

WAR PREVENTED BY DELAY.

How Seward and Lord Lyons Settled Mason and Slidell Case.

An example that can never be overlooked when the right of an ambassador to exercise his own discretion is in question is that which occurred in the career of Lord Lyons, when he was our ambassador to the United States. He was persona grata there.

"All I can say, Lord Lyons," is "Go thou and do likewise," was Abraham Lincoln's genial method of receiving the British ambassador's announcement of King Edward's marriage. Lord Lyons did not take the advice, but he remained a very effective ambassador in spite of his bachelorhood. When the grave difficulty over the Mason and Slidell case arose Lord Lyons was instructed from home to present an ultimatum, afford twelve hours for its acceptance and, the latter not being forthcoming, he was to break off diplomatic relations and leave the country. The twelfth hour, expired, Slidell and Mason were not surrendered and there remained apparently only the dire prospect of war. "Give me another twelve hours," said Secretary Seward, the secretary of state. It was entire contradiction of official orders, but, nevertheless, "I will," said Lyons. From 6 o'clock that night until 6 next morning Seward battled with the recalcitrants. Then Lyons received an intimation that the Confederate envoys would be given up. So by the insubordination of an ambassador war was saved.—St. James Gazette.

PERSONS WHO LIVED LONG

Men and Women Who Reached Years of Remarkable Length.

The late Pope Leo had a long life, but compared with the ages of others who had gone before him he was comparatively youthful at his death. Thomas Parr and Henry Jenkins are, respectively, credited with the ages of 152 and 169. Jeanne Serimphan was married when she was 127 and died when she was 128. Dr. Dufournel married at 116 and became the father of two children and died at 120. Marie Priou reached the age of 153. A woman of Metz, the mother of twenty-four children, died at the age of 100. Surgeon Politman celebrated his one hundred and fortieth birthday. Patrick O'Neill buried seven wives and died at 120, and a Norwegian peasant is recorded as dying at 160 and leaving two sons, one aged 108 and the other only nine summers. Robert Taylor lived to be 134 and died of excitement on receiving the picture of Queen Victoria signed by herself. An Irishman named Brown, who was a habitual drunkard, lived to be 128; he had a daily jag for ninety years. Durand d'Estivel of Cahors lived to be 128. A woman of 124 drank strong coffee in great quantities all her days, while a man of 114 lived on fruit, chiefly melons, and chewed lemon peel.

Love's Blossoming.

Beloved, in the garden of my heart
There fell one night a solitary seed;
I knew not whence it came nor what its part,
Nor of what nourishment it might have need.
Wearied with wandering through the ether wide,
It slept, and when its weariness was gone,
Said, "In this pleasure spot I will abide,
And with the fairest claim comparison."
Startled, I watched with keen and constant eyes
The growth to bud and blossom of my guest.
Like one to whom 'tis very Paradise
To see her infant drain her ample breast;
And lo! I found one happy evening hour,
My heart was harboring Love's immortal flower.
—James Whitehead in Blackwood's Magazine.

Was Feeling Too Good.

Senator Hanna has a book of cartoons of himself, which he enjoys looking over.

Upon returning from a rest trip East, he was asked how he felt.

"Fine! Splendid!" he exclaimed joyfully, "so well, in fact, that I'm afraid I'm beginning to look like my caricatures!"—New York Times.

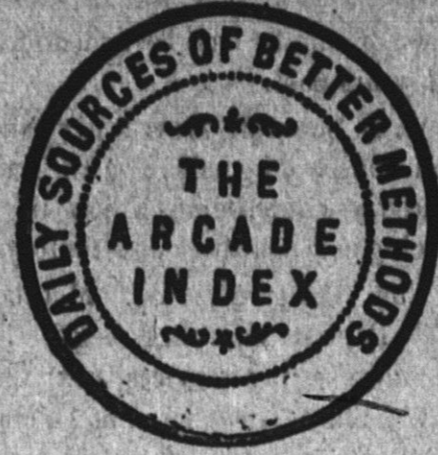

Not Worried About Wall Street.

With sixty-five bushels of oats and fifty-five bushels of barley to the acre, wheat as high as a man's head and corn silking out the last of July, no one need have any kick coming on South Dakota.—Huron (S. D.) Journal-World.

Money-Making Independence

A few years ago I met a farmer who told me that from his earliest recollection he had never worried about how he was to get a living or make money. He always felt competent to handle those subjects without any special mental effort.

There were other subjects over which he worried, and no doubt many who worry a great deal about how to get a living are free from trouble when it comes to subjects that worried the farmer.

If a person can be born so that making money or getting a living does not cause any trouble, there must be a mechanical path to follow in reaching these desirable conditions.

One rule for earning money is to find out what you can best do, and then seek the right market for your work, and study supply and demand and competition.

Naturalists tell us that in a school of fish those in the fore part are fat, while the fish that bring up the rear are always lean. This was true in a certain locality on the subject of small fruit. Those who began raising berries made nice sums of money from their investments, but in a few years, when everybody was raising them, there was no money in it.

Commercial sense enables one to anticipate conditions and wants, and be among the first to supply those wants.

I noticed a few months ago a shoe-maker selecting a very desirable location, one that would grow better with each succeeding year, and he illustrated foresight in looking over the field and securing the place which he did for his shop. Selecting a location is one of the main sources of success.

Just after the war, a friend told me that he went West looking for a location. He studied two cities, and at that time he was unable to see any difference between them, but since then one has grown but very little, while the other has doubled several times in population.

From the way in which some men select wisely nine times out of ten, there must be signs or principles to go by in this important part of prosperity.

It Is Right to Know Why.

A director in a school said he knew X, Y, Z, etc., were vowels, but what he wanted to know was why they were. We are all ditto on some subjects.

Useless and Useful Books

Strong men of slow nature need books of inspiration; but men of active minds and weak bodies need books on physical culture and better methods. A physical giant told me about the great benefit he secured from reading a book of encouraging chapters. A thinker claimed that a book benefited him very much by teaching him to eat better lunches and respect his stomach's needs. Books are as helpful and as dangerous as men and women, or food and drink. Books are good companions and helpful guides when properly selected; but to read anything may be worse than reading nothing. Have you a plan for distinguishing between the useful and the useless?

Information for the Business Man

From now on to what extent must the business man make use of printed information? The knowledge and experience of many men on various subjects is being gathered. Is it necessary for the business man to know about tails and to possess it?

Many men are devoting their whole time to original researches on single subjects and their reports are prepared in the form of books, booklets and editorials for periodicals. Must good business men sift these and make use of the best parts of them in order to continue as good business men?

A short time ago an official of an insurance company stopped me as I was passing him on the street. He held up a small cloth-bound volume of deep and dry reading. Why did he spend his money for it in order to spend his time on it? His actions are worthy of consideration because he, together with his partner, has done with very little money what many men with much money have tried with all their might to do and failed. Why did he buy the book?

He knows how to use men, their time, their strength, their ideas and observations. Why can he not use recorded ideas, experiences and observations? He does not use all men, only a few dozen are in his employ at present; but he has talked with hundreds, and it may be thousands, to get that few dozen. Is not this necessary?

After he had shown me his book and I had glanced at some of the mysterious equations in it, I began asking him questions and was surprised to hear him say that he had not read a certain work. Has he neglected it because it has not been properly presented to him? He is not a bookish man, and would not neglect his business for the pleasure of reading, rather would he squeeze books for information to help him work better. Is not this what books are for?

Some day I expect to make a special call on him to find out why he does not own that book which I think he should read, and if he is able to upset my reasoning it will not be the first time it has been discomfited. Can you confess the same?

The danger point to the pencil point is where you record things which you should remember without recording. Is not the blunder with books centered in ignoring them or looking up to them in place of getting acquainted with and walking on them? Ignoring or adoring books weakens the worker; but tapping books for daily useful hints and facts strengthens the worker. Do you think otherwise?

To know what you do think and what part books have taken in helping you would be useful to me. Will you drop me a letter or a postal card on the subject?

A man put thirty thousand dollars into advertising and waited for returns. While he was tottering between holding on and falling the returns began to come in. If they had been a few weeks slower he would have been a failure. How much right have some successes to glory over some failures?

There are retail stores in which the trade is watched as the fireman eyes the steam gauge. The cashier's desk is visited often and if sales drop plans are laid to push harder.

Fine trades have been industriously built up while using poor stationery and no grammar.

It is better to advertise your business than yourself.

Value of Ideas.

In a field I found a team, a harness, a chain, an unpulled stump, a boy and failure. By adding a thought to the boy, which caused the boy to chain a small log to the stump, I left a field in which there was a team, a harness, a chain, a log, a pulled stump, a boy and success.

While talking with a salesman he told me about a framed poem in a business office. One day when near there I copied it and, though it may be old to you, it is given here for those who may not have read it, as all of us need occasional encouragement:

"Pluck wins! It always wins. Though pluck wins—its average is sure. He gains the prize who can the most endure, who faces issues, he who never shrinks, who waits and watches and who always works."

The Telephone Voice.

For a couple of years I have had a desk in a room with a telephone exchange board. The voice and face of one of the exchange board operators act as a looking glass to those at the other end of the wire and give me a view of the manners of many people.

TOLD TO THE BORDER.

More Than Ordinary Good Story Comes from Philadelphia.

After mixing up a light, frothy lather and distributing it around a customer's face the barber began:

"Speaking about names," he said, "reminds me of a little incident which occurred to a friend of mine a few days which he told me yesterday. My friend is a drummer for a big concern and visits all the larger druggists with a view of selling his line of goods. One day he drifted into an office and the man he wanted to see was busy. So he sat down and while he was waiting he struck up a conversation with the typewriter."

"The girl wasn't very much disposed to talk and my friend remarked that she looked very tired. 'I ought to be tired,' she said. 'I've been sitting here for three hours copying out two hundred foreign names and they almost drive me crazy.' My friend was just about to say that it must be a horrible thing to have a peculiar name, when the office boy popped his head out of the door and said: 'Say, Miss Guldebrandensensky, der boss like to see you.'"

Allen's Foot-Ease, Wonderful Remedy. "Have tried ALLEN'S FOOT-EASE, and find it to be a certain cure, and give comfort to one suffering with sore, tender and swollen feet. I will recommend ALLEN'S FOOT-EASE to my friends, as it is certainly a wonderful remedy."—Mrs. H. Guilford, New Orleans, La.

That Settled Her.

A bachelor maid has lost at least two friends by her honesty. She was invited to visit a mother and father, who were rejoicing over the advent of a new baby and she accepted the invitation, all unconscious of what was expected of her. She did not know that families which exhibit their offsprings do so to win for it some extravagant expression of admiration.

The bachelor maid had nothing to say except, "I can't see any difference between babies, except that some are clean and some are dirty, and I must say this is a very clean baby." She has not been asked to call again.—Worcester Spy.

STOLE MONEY TO BUY A BIBLE.

London Girl Found End Does Not Always Justify Means.

Decidedly queer objects have hit London "hired girls" to rob their mistresses of late, the quaintest being that of a damsel of 18, who stole $150 in order to get a Bible. The girl had "gone in" for the Bible, which was an especially luxurious one, issued by a London publisher on the installment plan. She was to pay $2.50 a month, and had done so twice. When the time came to pay the third installment, however, the slavey found herself short, so, rather than lose the Book of Holy Writ, she stole half a sovereign out of his mistress's desk and was arrested in consequence. A police magistrate let the girl off after impressing her with the fact that the end does always not justify the means.

Temperance Postal Cards.

There are temperance fanatics in France as well as in other parts of the world, a fact which is shown by M. Cap Martin, of Paris, who has had half a million picture postal cards printed, illustrating the evils of drunkenness. They have such titles as "The Drunkard's Doom," "Death in the Bottle" and "The Drink Fiend," and the author suggested they might be posted to confirmed drunkards. Two or three slander actions have already been started by people who have received the cards, and the recipient is being proceeded against for violently assaulting a sender.

Originality largely consists in seeing things as they are and telling the truth about them.

IT'S A MISTAKE.

To Attribute Coffee Ills to Poor Grades of Coffee.

Many people lay all the blame for the diseases caused by coffee upon the poorer grades of coffee but this is an error as the following proves: "I have used every kind of the best grade of tea and coffee that can be got from a first class grocer but never found one that would not upset my nervous system and it was not until I began to drink Postum Food Coffee in place of coffee and tea that I had relief from the terrific attacks of nervous sick headache from which I had suffered for 30 years."

"I had tried all kinds of medicines but none helped me."

"Soon after I stopped drinking coffee and began to drink Postum the headaches grew less and it was not long until I was entirely cured and I have never had a return of this distressing trouble for nowdays I never drink coffee but stick to Postum."

"As soon as my wife saw what Postum had done for me she gave up coffee, which she had drunk all her life. This was six weeks ago and she is a changed woman, for her nervousness has all disappeared and her face has become smooth and her cheeks have a good rosy red color. She sleeps well, too, something she could never do while she drank coffee. We consider Postum a household necessity in my house and have induced many friends to try this wonderful food drink in place of coffee." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

THAT GIRL of JOHNSON'S

By JEAN KATE LUDLUM.

Author of "At a Girl's Mercies," Etc.

Entered According to Act of Congress in the Year 1900 by Street & Smith, In the Office of the Librarian of Congress, at Washington, D. C.

CHAPTER XIX.—(Continued.)

And as Dora kept to her word and drove or rode over every day when the weather was pleasant and together they wandered under the trees in many a daring place, the color of increasing health slowly tinged the cheeks of each, while Dora's cough grew less and less frequent and violent, and an added grace and spring showed in Dolores' step, though there was a growing sadness upon her lips and a hunted look in the wide dark eyes that her friends could not understand, this woman gloried and exulted in her power to wound the girl Dora loved with a deeper, truer love than she could ever give to her, and she planned out many a subtle manner for wounding and sending her shafts deeper into the soul of the girl who was, she told herself over and over, stealing away what rightfully belonged to her.

Lemuel Johnson went often to see his brother, who grew civil to him after a while, though at first he was surly, and resented his brother's long silence and neglect. Together they talked of the future, and laid many plans to be carried out as soon as Joe was a little better.

Dr. Dunwiddie still positively affirmed that he would recover, but that this must needfully be slow, and Joe Johnson was never possessed with patience enough to bear quietly much waiting. And as the days passed Dolores waited and waited, the dread fear shut in her heart, they would come for her father from the town.

The subject of the mare was never mentioned among them; it had dropped out of the house as suddenly and completely as though death had touched it; that day Dora gave her cousin a sketch of the feeling regarding it in the town, though not one of them understood the girl's horror of it, excepting it might be the one who had seen the most of her emotion. Sometimes the girl was tempted to ask about it, but the dread of bringing down something worse upon herself and her father kept her silent to suffer alone.

But Johnson lingered along in much the same condition in spite of the interest of his friends or foes, from week to week, scarcely getting better, yet growing no worse. Dr. Dunwiddie knitted his brows and looked very grave and puzzled many a time after his visits; he did not like the appearance of things; they were going crooked; something must be done and at once. He did not wish to arouse the thought of such a thing in the minds of Johnson himself or Dolores; in fact he wished to keep it from Johnson more even than from his daughter, for he was in such an excitable state that it went much against his recovery—petulant, fault-finding, with many a word that showed his brute nature and cruelty. At or against Dolores and fate his anger and spleen were directed. Dolores was of no use—no earthly use in the world; she was without even the sense of most women, and that was little enough. Had she been a boy things might have been different.

The men dropped in occasionally, boys were on eye. And it was not enough that this ill luck of her being a girl was upon him, but he must have this added to the rest—to be laid up with not even the use of his feet or hands. Here he was, crippled, helpless, constantly in pain, scarcely able to move without pain, and there was his brother healthy, strong, a rich man, with a fine home and the comforts of life at his disposal.

And what reason was there that his brother should have the gains and the losses? Was he not quite as deserving and capable of appreciating them as he? Fate was a powerful master, partial, and many times cruel in its decrees. Life was a pretty tough thing anyway, scarce worth the living. To lie in that hole of a room day in, day out, was growing unbearable; nothing to do but watch the bit of sky and mountain through the tiny window, the scent of the pines stealing through, or closing his eyes, to think, think his narrow thoughts that never got away from the mountains, the smithy, the tavern, and the town, until he was driven nearly wild by the thoughts that no one else ever knew, though those who were with him most guessed near the truth.

The thin face, grown pallid with want, would narrow and seem to contract, the small eyes, set deep and close together, grew cruel and cunning, the coarse mouth under the scant mustache closed with sinister meaning. For hours he would lie in the same position, scarcely moving, his long hands grown bony, clutching convulsively the bed covering. And to those who watched with eyes sharpened with interest all these actions were full of meaning, and proved much that had not been guessed before.

As time went by the men at the tavern got over their stiffness and dropped in occasionally through the days, one or another, to have a chat with Johnson, but mainly to see how he bore his affliction and to know for themselves how much better off that girl of Johnson's was, since her father's brother Lemuel—he who left the settlement years before—had returned.

Many an hour in the wide, low room at the tavern, or beside the door of an evening, they discussed Johnson's condition, and freely expressed their doubts and views as to his recovery in spite of Dr. Dunwiddie's assertion to the contrary. While Dr. Dunwiddie, over in the town among his friends at Judge Green's, also discussed Johnson's condition, and decided with them that it was time something was done, and done speedily, or it would be too late.

"Spare no pains nor expense, Dunwiddie," urged Lemuel Johnson, pacing up and down the pleasant parlor at Judge Green's, his hands clasped behind him, his florid face and kindly eyes full of anxiety. "Joe's got a wonderful constitution; always did have; sinews like steel when we were youngsters. This illness has been heavy to bring him down so. Surely there is some way of hastening his recovery, and we must find it—you must find it. He's got to have a fair chance for a place in life, comfortable, like other men, and not end it all that way. Why, it's death in life over yonder. It's buried in a grave large enough to turn around in, but it isn't life. No wonder he's lost all ambition staying there with everybody around him duller and more listless than he, excepting of course Dolores. She's a body one wouldn't meet always. Joe doesn't appreciate her because he's incapable of judging out of such a batch of comrades as he's got there. That Dolores is a good enough sort of man—make an intelligent man if he had a chance—but, my powers! such a life for man or woman. Where I was born, too, and not a school house or church in the place, and my own brother's child ignorant of even the catechism or the existence of God. Do your best for him, Dunwiddie; never mind the cost. Money is nothing compared to a life worth living. You start him on with a fair show of strength, and I'll do the rest. He's the only kid I have in the world—he and the girl—and the Lord knows there isn't a man in the world who wouldn't do all he could for such. Eh, Dora?"

CHAPTER XX.

A Sudden Message.

"Man alive!" exclaimed Lemuel Johnson as he stood beside his brother one morning, with Dr. Dunwiddie and Dr. Grey, explaining to him a plan by which they hoped to benefit his condition and hasten his recovery. "Man alive, Joe!" exclaimed the excited little man, thrusting his hands into his pockets, his florid face growing redder, his eyes sparkling with indignation. "Have you no sense at all? Have you no pride, no common ambition to get well? To make a success of life? Would you rather lie here, growing less and less capable of anything, like an indolent tramp, and keep on suffering straight ahead for years maybe, when by perfect care in this hospital, or infirmary, or whatever it is, in the city something may be done for you, and you would be set up like a new man ready for any position and to build up as good a home as any man living? Why, great Scott, Joe Johnson, if you are my brother and the only one I've got, I must say I'd be ashamed to own you if you refuse."

The invalid was growing excited also. He struggled up to a sitting position, half reclining on his right arm, and glared at his brother as an infuriated animal at bay.

"It'd be nothin' new ef ye was 'shamed o' me," he cried, the veins of his forehead swelling like cords, his small eyes glittering like serpents. "It's no mo'n ye've done all yer life sence yer runned away ter make yer money e-many year ago. Ye left er folks ter starve fer all't ye've done fer 'em, tell just now when ye kem hyar ter glort ower me. I may be 'thout yer style o' sense, Lem Johnson, but I hev got thier common sense 't ken tell beans when I sees 'em. Ye needn't make outen 't ye don't know what I means well's I do, or them as hev lived hyar sence theys borned. An' theys ken tell't ye left us 'thout nothin' an' outen yer life tell 'jest now when't ain't no use; an' es long es I've got breath 'nough left ter tell't, I'll jest say this. An' I ain't goin' ter be put in no horsepital neither where a feller ken stay forever, an' folks'd never know but he's dead an' buried, 'stead o' livin' locked up in a cell like a criminal an' kept thyar an' never let out. Mebbe ef do run in thes fam'ly ter be shes'less an' no 'count, but I hev es good sense es ye hev, Lem Johnson, an' I ain't ter be tomfooled like a woman."

Dr. Dunwiddie laid his strong hand on his shoulder and spoke to him sharply.

"Lie down," he said, "man, and listen to us. We give you the choice. You shall have from now till to-morrow morning to consider; after that will be too late. Choose one of two alternatives: Remain just where you are, from sheer stubbornness and die, for die you must if you persist in this, and in such a slow, torturing manner as you cannot comprehend, or comply with our wishes that may doubtless be painful at first, and may even end fatally—I place it all before you, holding back—but with ten chances to one of your recovery and a long life."

Johnson's face lost its defiance and cunning; it grew livid and paled to a deathly hue. His sinister eyes were fixed on the doctor's face with an expression of cowardly terror in them. His brother's fit of violent temper he could meet with equal force, but Dr. Dunwiddie's voice and manner bore as much weight as his words which were uttered clearly and calmly, but which the man was unused to hearing, and which therefore impressed him more than they might have done otherwise, full of meaning and warning as they were.

He lay among the pillows with his face turned to the wall, motionless as though he were already dead, his sinewy right hand clutched the covering long after his brother and the doctors left, not knowing that through the half open door Dolores, from the outer room, was watching him with a face set as his own, her hands clasped passionately, her lips shut close to still the cry that rose from her heart, that found words only in a new, wild, inarticulate prayer.

"God, whom I know not, forgive him—forgive him."

But there was not a trace of this emotion upon her face or in her manner as she stood, a day or two after, at the west window of the library at Judge Green's, the soft brown dress Dora had fitted for her, falling gracefully around her. She held back the lace draperies with one arm leaning against the casing of the large French window, and looked like a picture, so quiet she stood, flushed from the light of the sunset above.

Dora was sitting upon the ottoman at her feet, her delicate face raised to the face above her. Dora said she could sit forever at Dolores' feet and watch her. Dolores' face was a study of which one would never tire, which one must study to understand, which one could never fully understand.

LIFE OF KING ALFONSO.

Young Monarch Becoming Popular With His Subjects.

The young king of Spain is daily making himself more popular in San Sebastian, which may be regarded as the summer capital of Spain. Rising very early, he goes down from Miramar palace before 8 to San Sebastian beach for a swim. He takes long rides in the valleys and across the highlands of the Basque country without an escort, but he is always in uniform and is accompanied by two aids-de-camp and two palace servants. He takes great pleasure in returning the salutes of the peasantry. At midday the king attends to state business with the minister for foreign affairs. Before lunch he gives audiences and generally rides again in the afternoon, or drives his own four-in-hand with Queen Christina and his sisters sitting behind him. He takes an interest in yachting, in the rowing boat races in the bay and in pigeon-shooting. He is already a good shot and a keen sportsman. The Basques are pleased to see him interested in their national ball game, styled "juego de pelota."

Suburban Foresight.

The citizen of Drearyhurst was showing his visitor through the spacious garden in the rear of the house. "Over there," he said, pointing with his cane, "is the turnip patch."

"You must be a good deal fonder of turnips than I am," commented the visitor.

"Oh, we don't use them on the table," his host replied. "We raise them to throw at the neighbors' chickens. They're cheaper than coal."

One Advantage.

"Is Cleveland really as slow as people say it is?" asked the Chicago man. "It's worse," replied the Cincinnati drummer. "Why some of the residents of that village actually die of old age."

HOW FILIPINO WOMEN WASH.

Gathering at the Riverides Work and Gossip.

In the Philippines the natives do their own washing in a way peculiar to the country. Once a week the women gather at the riverides with the week's wash, and while they pound the clothes with a flat wooden club on a stone, they discuss every question of the day, from politics to village gossip.

This is one of the events of the week that lightens the labors of the Filipino housewife, wherein she combines profitable work with pleasure, countries, the one subject they do. Unlike the women of most other not discuss is dress.

W. E. Henley's Small Estate.

The estate left by W. E. Henley, one of the most successful of modern writers of story books for boys, amounts to but $5,000, although his books have had an enormous circulation. Lack of an international copyright is blamed for his want of success in accumulating property. His books were more lately read in the United States than in England, but he derived no profit from their sale here.

Easy to Get.

Pierpont, O., Oct. 5th.—Remarkable indeed is the experience of Mr. A. S. Turner, a man now over seventy-one years of age, and whose home is here. For many years this old gentleman had suffered with a very unpleasant form of Kidney Trouble, a kind that very often bothers aged people. He would have to get up four or five times every night, and this very tiresome disease was fast wearing him out.

At last after having almost made up his mind that he would never be able to get relief, he stumbled over a medicine which relieved him almost immediately, and has cured him permanently. It is so very easy to get and so simple that Mr. Turner thinks everyone should know of it. Every dealer in the country has it, and all you have to do is to ask for DODD'S Kidney Pills. Mr. Turner says—

"I can heartily and honestly recommend DODD'S Kidney Pills for they cured me. Several others in the family have used them too, and always with the best results. I think they have no equal."

Got His Letters Back.

A circumstantial fish story is told by the London Daily News. The captain of the steamer Benalder, of Leith, on a voyage to China, threw a bundle of old letters overboard in the Mediterranean. Some Spanish fishermen of Aguilas, near Cartagena, later caught a large fish, and on opening it found a bundle of letters inside. They took this to the mayor, who managed to decipher in one the name and address of the superintendent of the steamship line in London, and thus to restore the letters to their owner.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful, it acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials. Address F. J. CHENEY & CO., Toledo, O. Sold by Druggists. Hall's Family Pills are the best.

A Matter of Business.

Howard Bell, the publisher, was being shaved the other day. "Do you like James Lane Allen's new book?" asked the barber, striving for an appropriate subject for conversation. "Why, yes," said the publisher, "but just now I am interested in a book by William Dean Howells. Do you read him?" "No," replied the barber; "never heard of him." "What, never heard of Mr. Howells! Why, he surely is better known than Mr. Allen." "That may be, sir; but you see, I shave Mr. Allen."—Philadelphia Ledger.

Countess Not a Favorite.

"They say" in New York that the countess of Shaftesbury was a great disappointment to a number of those who made her temporary acquaintance during the yacht races. Apparently her ladyship took delight in forgetting from day to day the persons who had been presented to her. She remembered a few of the military set but as a rule her memory was distressingly—perhaps intentionally—bad. Altogether the countess is set down as about the naughtiest proposition that New York has had for years.

Wood and Steel.

The old wooden frigate Saratoga, which was launched nearly sixty years ago, and is still pursuing a career of usefulness as a schoolship, is an object lesson in the durability of wood as a material for shipbuilders. Paint and oil preserve it from decay. What will do as much for iron and steel, the materials of which modern warships are built? Will the battleships and cruisers of today be as staunch after fifty years of salt water service as the Saratoga is?

HE FINISHED THE SENTENCE.

Startling Description Cut Over Door of Church.

J. T. Trowbridge, the aged author, is writing his autobiography at his home in Arlington, Mass. Mr. Trowbridge was born in Ogden, N. Y. The other day he said:

"From Ogden I went to school at Lockport in my boyhood, and there was a Lockport stonemason whom I used to like to talk to, for he had a mind as simple as a child's. I remember a job that he once undertook—the job of cutting a sentence from Scripture over the door of a little stone church. The committeemen who intrusted him with this job didn't comprehend his childlike, unreflecting nature, or they wouldn't have couched their order in the terms they did.

"They wanted the sentence, 'My house shall be called a house of prayer.' He told them they had better write it down for him. But they said it would only be necessary to write down the chapter and verse, and he could copy the sentence out of the good book.

"Well, our Lockport stonemason copied the sentence, but he didn't end where he should have ended. He went right on to the sentence's conclusion. The result was that the legend over the church door read:

"My house shall be called a house of prayer, but ye have made it a den of thieves."

GOAT HAD PAPA'S HAT.
But Former Owner Had No Further Use for It.

From Rockaway comes a sad tale involving a pearl-gray hat, a billy goat, a small boy, a fond papa and the sea. The fond papa owned the pearl-gray hat, and it really was a thing of beauty. One day he was promenading the beach with his little son and the wind cruelly swept the hat into the ocean.

Two days later the small boy saw a young man driving a miniature laundry wagon drawn by a sturdy billy goat. On the goat's head was a pearl-gray hat, a trifle dilapidated, with holes pierced to admit the passage of the goat's horns. The small boy recognized that hat.

"Hold on, there," he shouted. "That goat's got my papa's hat."

The driver stopped and the fond papa came up to see what was the matter.

"Papa, the goat's wearing your hat," sobbed the small boy.

"I fished the hat out of the surf," explained the driver, who was inclined to dispute possession. "I claim it's mine—or the goat's."

"Well," said the fond papa, as he gazed ruefully at his lost headgear, "I've bought a new hat, but the goat can have that one. The devil himself wouldn't take it—and he wears horns, too, I've heard."—New York Press.

REBUKE FOR AN UPSTART.
Attorney General Griggs Was Afraid of Turning His Head.

When John W. Griggs was attorney general in President McKinley's cabinet he broke a long-established precedent in his department. He determined to break his collar of the habit they had of addressing him as "general."

"I have no claim on the military title," said Mr. Griggs.

One insistent politician paid no heed to the attorney's request. He considered "general" a good jolly, and by this means persuaded Mr. Griggs, as he thought, to find a position for a friend.

"How does your friend like his job?" asked the president's legal adviser a few days later.

"When I told him what you offered," said the politician, "he turned up his nose. Haven't you something better for him, General?"

"I have," and the attorney general smiled as does a man whose opportunity has come, "but I cannot offer it. If this position has turned your friend's nose a better one will turn his head."

Thereafter the politician and his friend referred to him as Mr. Griggs.

Dummies and Dummies.
Francis A. March, Jr., Professor of English at Lafayette College and Chairman of the Alumni Athletic committee, spent a few minutes' recreation one day on the football field, where some of his numerous charges were playing the game. Several of them had been making graceful dives at tackling the dummy, which stood at one corner of the field, and the professor was much interested in the display of gymnastics.

"I used to play football myself," he said to a student, "and I know that I tackled better than that."

"Won't you show us how it ought to be done?" was asked.

"No, thank you," was his quick reply. "I have been tackling dummies exclusively all morning over in my office, and I came out here for a change."

Disappointed Archeologists.
Bourke Cochran is airing an amusing anecdote picked up during his European trip. It seems that two distinguished archeologists made an excursion to the Isles of Arran, where interesting remains of an archeological nature exist. They came across a little rough stone building, and both entered into a fierce argument as to the exact century of its erection, one maintaining it was built in the fifth, and the other in the sixth century.

A native who had listened to the hot discussion suddenly broke in: "Arrah, yer Honors, both of yee are wrong. 'Twas put up three years ago by Patsy Doolan for his jacks!"—New York Times.

Goitre Cured.

R. F. D. No. 4, Jackson, Mich., September 3, 1903.

Dr. Wilkinson: For the benefit of all persons afflicted with goitre, I wish to state that I had a goitre on both sides of my neck, each one larger than a hen's egg, for over two years. You said you could stop its growth and reduce its size, but would not promise to remove all the enlargement, but I am glad to state that you did more than you promised. The enlargement has entirely disappeared. It has now been over four months since I was cured and there are no signs of the growth returning.

HAY BEEBE.

Try for Health

223 South Peoria St., Chicago, Ill., Oct. 7, 1902.

Eight months ago I was so ill that I was compelled to lie or sit down nearly all the time. My stomach was so weak and upset that I could keep nothing on it and I vomited frequently. I could not urinate without great pain and I coughed so much that my throat and lungs were raw and sore. The doctors pronounced it Bright's disease and others said it was consumption. It mattered little to me what they called it and I had no desire to live. A sister visited me from St. Louis and asked me if I had ever tried Wine of Cardui. I told her I had not and she bought a bottle. I believe that it saved my life. I believe many women could save much suffering if they but knew of its value.

Wine of Cardui

Don't you want freedom from pain? Take Wine of Cardui and make one supreme effort to be well. You do not need to be a weak, helpless sufferer. You can have a woman's health and do a woman's work in life. Why not secure a bottle of Wine of Cardui from your druggist today?
