over his route and of course The Standard man replied that "Barkis is willing" and set out on that ride of nearly 26 Gage has been giving his building a conmiles with both eyes and ears open. The siderable of an overhauling and at the season, so far as the farmers are conerned, judging from their corn cribs and the stacks, has well repaid them for the time and labor that they have devoted to the following of husbandry. The roads vith an exception of a few miles over the entire route could with a few hours work in most of the districts be put in far better condition than they are at resent and at the same time not only which the work had been done.

Leaving the postoffice the carrier on this route drives south four miles on the oad called the Manchester road, and he informed The Standard that he had not missed a single trip since the route had been established three and a half years ago. The number of pieces of mail carried during that time has averaged about 7000 a month and Wednesday of this week was the completion of 777 trips without a skip.

Among the many improvements that on the Hiram Pierce farm where they built. are building a good half mile of new fence along the highway and the private cemetery of the family has been thoroughly cleaned up and new fences

At the home of Mr. and Mrs Wesley Canfield the genial "Hi" Lighthall was engaged in materially adding to the outward appearance of their home by building new poarches, putting in new windows and in fact the place, when the improvements under way are completed, will hardly be recognized as the home that stood there before.

On the farms of Measr Strahle, Miller, Pierce and Jensen many Hiram Lighthall. minor improvements have taken place in is almost entirely devoted to the growth and the wh of onions and celery they had their crops gathered and were fitting the grounds for the coming years crops.

E. D. Spaulding had painters at work improving the buildings on his farm with their handicraft.

The Vermont cemetery has had a new ence built and the grounds have been improved in many ways.

The Kempf, Chase, Merkel and Laubengayer farms are always so well kept up that the improvements would have to be of a marked character to be perceptiable to the reporter.

At the corner known as the Cummings farm the carrier goes east for somewhat over a mile then he makes a turn to the south for a mile.

Among the noticable features of this portion of the route was the handsome grove of 200 hard (or sugar) maples on the farm of Jas. Kellum, and as the trees are near the house and barns the benefit of them as a wind-breaker can hardly be estimated. And as we drove along we were trying to count the number of trees to the row and we heard a voice from the direction of the house telling the grand total and when we looked in the direction of the house we saw a man engaged in painting it.

The next turn we made was to the west at the corners where the farms of Messrs. Zincke and Kuhl come together. Following this direction for one mile, or until the Kusterer farm is reached and thence south to the Everett farm.

Joseph Mayer has had another flowing well put on the roadside and all of his farm buildings show the work of the painters. This part of the route seems to be the home of flowing wells. Some years ago the Houck boys had Geo. H. At the next turn we head for Sylvan Center and as we pass along the old homestead of the Boyd family we observed that the ditches have been well cleaned up. At the Center we again take a turn to the west and follow the territorial road to what is known as the Boos road. Among the many improvements on this part of the drive is the new house of M. B. FOOTBALL AT ANN ARBOR

To Be the Great Attraction on Saturday---Greatest Event of its Kind in the World on

Interest in the big game of football at Ann Arbor Saturday among the people of Chelsea and vicinity is probably se cond only to the interest of the collegians at Ann Arbor themselves, A big delegation will undoubtedly attend from this town.

Frequent inquiry is coming to this office asking the place to buy seats, the price of the same, whether extra cars will run on the day of the game and other information of a kindred nature. It may be said in answer that seats for the game are now on sale at Meyer's news-stand near the campus in Ann Arbor. A diagram of the field and of the seating capacity can, however, be seen at this office and we shall be glad to assist anyone in communicating with Manager Baird at Ann Arbor. Desirable seats can still be had as far up the field as the thirty-yard line. The price of the seats will be uniformly $2.00. General admission will be $1.00, but it must be understood that the general admission tickets do not carry the priveledges which have heretofore been usual. Those holding general admission tickets will only be allowed standing room at the end of the field and not along the sides as formerly. This statement is direct from Manager Baird to The Standard. General admission tickets will go on sale at twelve o'clock Saturday noon.

agreeable. "I sold him," he said, "that by smoke as to be unfit for human he had made a great hit with the women of Missouri when, in response to a question as to what he would choose to be if he were reincarnated, he said he would prefer to be Mrs. Choate's second husband. I told him they thought it was a very graceful compliment to his wife. He laughed, and said that he was very glad that the story had made a hit in Missouri, for it fell rather flat in England. Of course I wanted to know why, and he said that shortly after the mot betame public he met the Duchess of Deconshire, who is considered one of the eleverest women in England, and she said. 'Oh, Mr. Choate, I've been wanting to ask you something ever since I heard that story-who is Mrs. Choate's second husband?"-San Francisco Town Talk.

A Severe Taskmaster.

In the preface of "Pierre et Jean," Maupassant has recorded how he borrowed from Louis Bouilhet the belief that a single lyric, a scant hundred lines, would give immortality to a boet if only the work were fine enough, and that for the author who sought to escape oblivion there was only one course to pursue-to learn his trade thoroughly, to master every secret of the craft, to do his best always, in the hope that some fortunate day the Muse would reward his unfailing devotion. And from Flaubert, the author of that Inerciless musicrpiece "Madame Bowary." the young man learned the imhortance of individuality, of originality, and of personal note which should be all his own, and which should never suggest or recall any one else's.

Flaubert was kindly and encouraging, but he was a desperately severe askmaster. At Flaubert's die ition Maupassant gave up verse for prose; and for seven years he wrote incesrantly and published nothing. The ttories and tales and verses and tramas of those seven years of apprenticestip were ruthlessly criticised by the author of "Salambo," and then they were destroyed unprinted. In all the long history of literature there is no record of any other author who rved so severe a novitiate.-Brander Matthews, in the Bookman.

Ingenious Scheme. The French railway companies have issued to all stations an album which contains pictures of every possible article that a traveler is likely to have about him. Owing to the great number of passengers who are unable to speak French, it is often found difficult to trace lost articles from the description given. Now all that a passenger has to do is to point to the missing articles in the album.

Great Yield of Apples.

Undoubtedly the largest returns that ever came from a thirty-five acre farm in Lenawee county will come this fall from the apple crop of M. D. Billmeyer, of Adrian township. From this orchard already this fall have been gathered 30,500 barrels of first-class shipping apples, while there are still about four car loads of cider apples to be gathered. The product Mr. Patek is a short, thick-set man, of the orchard amounts to about sixteen car loads, and was sold at an average of $1 per barrel.

> To Vote on County Roads. At the spring election next April Cheboygan county people, who once voted down the proposition, will have another chance to make good by adopting the county road system. Wherever this system has been given a fair trial it has proven a great success. In Menominee county, for instance, it has been in force for a number of years, and as a result the farmers there have some of the finest roads in the state over which to haul produce to market.

Age of Small Timber.

This is an age of small timber with Menominee county lumbermen and everything in the lumber line, no matter how small, is being utilized in some way. At an afternoon reception, while several ladies were exchanging baby wisdom, these reports were given: "I have just heard from our friends with the new daughter, their first child. They are so afraid that something will be wrong with the baby that if she sleeps they think she is dying. and they sit up and watch her, and if she awakes and cries they are sure she is dangerously sick. They have a hard time dressing her. The father was sure the nurse put the little vest on over its feet, but the mother succeeded in getting it on over its head." A baby is an appetite framed by nature.

Almost all articles on bables take it for granted that the children are to be brought up on bottles, and yet there are five babies in one neighborhood taking nature's solution. It may be that babies like these five do not need any editorial assistance.

Charlie's wife writes us this: "The Lord doesn't send any bables to this home. I guess he thinks I don't know much about taking care of them. But do love the little folk."

OPENING ENTERTAINMENT.

The Cecilian Concert Company Appeared at the Town Hall Monday Evening-There Was a Goodly Number Present.

Popular Lecture course gave its opening entertainment Monday evening. The entertainers were the Cecilian Concert company assisted by Master Edwin Schmidt a clever young magician.

The company consisted of Miss Cora B. Evans, soprano, Miss Blanche Johnson trombone soloist, Miss Suzaine G. Emest, cornet soloist, and Miss Julia Fallass, harpist and pianist.

It appears to be the general verdict that while the several members of the company were each in a measure appreciated yet the entertainment failed of rousing the deepest interest possible. However the attraction was one for which the local management need offer no appologies and the patrons assuredly had their moneys worth. Master Schmidt was a clever youngster who may yet be as good as Kellar when he is as old.

The attendance was highly gratifying and the indications are that the entertainment season of 1903-04 will be a success. The next entertainment is set for December 2. The Mendelssohn Male Quartette will be here at that time, and they are said to be superior to the Wesleyan male quartette which gave such splendid satisfaction last season.

A NEW STATE SEAL.

Alabam: Proposes to Honor One of Her Heroines.

Would Perpetuate One of the Incidents of the Civil War by an Engraving on the Great Seal of State.

Alabama proposes to introduce a new method of perpetuating the memory of the confederacy. The plan is to engrave on the great seal of the state one of the most picturesque scenes of the war. This will involve the glorification of a young woman.

Alabama has possessed its present seal for 84 years, ever since its admission to the union. It is inconspicuous and, like a dozen other state seals, shows the American eagle and shield, with the motto, "Here We Rest," said to be the meaning of the Indian word "Alabamons," from which the river and the state were named.

When the constitutional convention met in Alabama two years ago a proposition to change the great seal of the state was made, but was voted down. It has been brought up again before the legislature, with every chance of success. What gives the project strength is the fact that it is proposed to commemorate on it an event of the civil war and to do honor to an Alabama heroine, Miss Emma Sansen, who, at the risk of her life, saved Forrest's command at Coosa river in

In 1863, after a brilliant campaign, Forrest captured and completely destroyed the strong army sent under Col. A. D. Streight to destroy Gen. Bragg's communication. The credit for himself satisfactorily located at Grass that victory Forrest himself conceded to a young girl.

Admiral Lambton has now published a statement to the effect that immediately after he saw General Hunter's evidence he wrote officially to the admiralty demanding an unreserved apology from General Hunter. Mortality Declared by Eminent Physician Less in Large Cities Than in Small Towns.

Dr. Karl Ballod read a paper recently before the international statistical conference in Berlin on the mortality in large cities, contending that cities having a population of a million, in western Europe, were healther than smaller cities, because the latter's precautions were far inferior to those of the larger cities. Berlin, he said, was the most healthful and London and Vienna came next. Paris was the worst of all. Counbut country people going to the cities were healthier than town-bred persons. While the rural populations were stationary in Germany since 1871, the cities had doubled their populations, and the country was increasing in population by nearly a million a year.

The Thankegiving Dinner, less than two weeks away, is an event for which every housewife prepares with unusual care. Throughout the whole country the careful buyers are on the lookout for the finest food roducts obtainable for this annual feast.

One secret of successful merchandising is the persuading of a prosactive customer to try an uncommonly good quality of any article. It is a better beginning than is a first sale of a cheap article at a special low price. "Quality is remembered after price is forgotten" is an old and true saying so old that experience has proved it. No one denies that trade built up on quality is more satisfactory to both buyer and seller than is "job lot bargain" dealing.

a year ago. This is his grave."

He walked slowly along the dusty of education and travel. One great country road on a lovely July evening. His air was dejected, his clothes worn and shabby A tramp, one might decide at first glance; at a second, one could see that he had known better days. Not age but a sense of failure had bowed his form and drawn lines on brow and mouth. He had wrecked his life; he had nothing to live for, no one to love.

The sharp click of shears suddenly attracted his attention. He raised his tired eyes from the road and turned in the direction of the sound. It came from a cemetery on a steep, green hill to his right. He could see the marble shafts gleaming through the trees. A neat picket fence enclosed it, and the gate was slightly ajar.

Impelled by a curious feeling he did not stop to analyze, he pushed it open and walked wearily up the slope. A young woman was on her knees beside a grave, clipping the grass along its edge. Her back was turned to him and she had not heard his footsteps on the turf. In a soft, cultivated voice she was singing:

> The sun is sinking fast, The daylight dies Let love awake, and pay Her evening sacrifice."

He felt a languid interest in watch ing the girl as she took some flowers from a basket and arranged them in a crown-white roses and pink, sweet peas-and scattered pansies on the velvety green sward.

The she arose and stood at the foot of the grave, regarding it with all look of subdued satisfaction. Her face was turned in the direction of the lilac shrub, behind which the intruder stood, and the sight of it made him start violently and come forward hast-

The girl's exclamatio of surprise and alarm was cut short by the stranger's courteous lifting of his hat, any saying in the voice of a gentleman: "Do not be alarmed, madam. Forgive my intrusion; and may I ask your name?"

The girl pushed her hair from her heated forehead with a nervous move ment. "My name is Alice Osborne."

"Osborne"-in a disappointed tone. "Are you not-you resemble mysomeone I knew. Did you ever hear of Alice Date?" He spoke eagerly and yet hopelessly.

Her eyes opened wonderingly upon him. "That was my mother's name. Is it she you mean?"

· "It can be no other. You are her very image-when I saw her first. The same features, the same wavy hair, the same pretty color-your eyeshow like her you are!"

"I am glad you knew my mother," she said, gently. "Sit here on the grass and tell me about her. I was

"And fortunate it was that she died then." The man's voice was full of bitter despair. "She escaped a world of trouble."

Cost of Balloons.

Balloons are "in the air" at present. and consequently the cost of those aerial machines is interesting. The size generally favored by "sportsmen" ranges from 27,000 to 45,000 cubic feet, the former costing 'in "coton caoutchoutee" £120, in Chinese silk £192, and in French silk £252; and the latter £220, £315 and £384, according to the material used. These prices include the balloon complete and ready to be filled with gas .- London Answers.

Polk, Ark., Nov. 9.- A remedy that will absolutely cure Rheumatism has been discovered by Mr. George Hiland of this place. Mr. Hiland is satisfied that the remedy he has used is a sure cure, for it cured him of a very serious case of Acute Rhe matism when he was so bad that he could not move. This is what he says:

"I was troubled with what is called Acute Rheumatism in 1900. I was in such shape that I could not move without help. I was treated by a physician, who helped me some, but I was still in great pain when my wife saw Dodd's Kidney Pills advertised as a cure for Rheumatism. She insisted on my trying them, and I felt better after taking the first box. I continued and now I am well and able to work all the time, I have found Dodd's Kidney Pills to be just what they are claimed to be, a perfect cure for Rheumatism." Mr. Hiland's very positive statement seems to settle all doubt as to whether-

He was the most notorious blackguard of a shipmaster yet unhung, and the fact that Smith and he were bitter enemies never blinded Shanghai to the surpassing merits of his brutality.

"There's the Cyrus O Hake." Smith shook his head contemptuous-

"You leave that to me," replied tho Next evening Smith found occasion

It was enough for Smith to know that the admiral was still keen on don if he did not exaggerate some of fighting. To draw a man like that would not be so difficult. When he had turned the two naval scamen into the street, he called for the run-

"Have you found out what I told

"Yes," replied Bill. "He mostly comes down and goes off at eleven."

"Is he alone?" "Mostly he has a young chap with him. I reckon they calls him the flaglieutenant; a kind of young partner he seems to be. But that's the only one so far. And the California sails day after ter-morrer, bright and early." "Couldn't be better," said Smith. 'After waitin' all these years I can't afford to lose no time. This yer racket comes off to-night. Look out, Mr. Bully Admiral! I'm on your track." And the trouble did begin that night. Mr. "Say-it-and-mean-it" Smith laid for Admiral Sir Richard Dunn, K. C. B., etc., etc., from ten o'clock till halfpast eleven, and he was the only man in the crowd that did not hope the victim would come down with too many friends to be tackled.

"It's a penitentiary job, so it is." said Bill. And yet when the time contact with the deck above him. This continued to the present day.

arrived his natural instincts got the better of him.

The admiral came at last; it was about a quarter to twelve, and the whole water-front was remarkably quiet. The two policemen at the entrance to the Ferries had by some good luck, or better management, found it advisable to take a drink at Johnson's, just opposite. And the admiral was only accompanied by his flag lieutenant.

"That's him," said Smith, "I'd know the beggar anywhere. Now keep together and sing!"

"He broke into "Down on the Suwannee River," and advanced with Bill and Bill's two mates right across the admiral's path. They pretended to be drunk, and as far as three were concerned, there was not so much pretence about it after all. But Smith had no intention of being the first to run athwart the admiral's hawse. When he came close enough, he shoved the youngest man right into his arms. The admiral jumped back, and landed that unfortunate individual a round-arm blow that nearly unshipped his jaw. The next moment every one was on the ground, for Bill sand-bagged the admiral just as he was knocked down by the lieutenant. As Sir Richard fell, he reached out and caught Smith by the ankle. The boarding-house master got the lieutenant by the coat and brought him down too. And as luck would have it, the youngster's head hit the admiral's with such a crack that both lay unconscious.

"To we want the young 'un, too?" asked Bill, when he rose to his feet. swinging his sand-bag savagely. And Smith for once lost his head.

"Leave the swine, and puckarow the admiral," he said. And indeed it was all they could do to carry Sir Richard without exciting any more attention than four semi-intoxicated men would as they took home a mate who was quite incapacitated.

But they did get him home to the house in the Barbary Coast. When he showed signs of coming to he was promptly dosed and his clothes were taken off him. As he slept the sleep of the drugged they put on a complete suit of rough serge toggery and he became "Tom Deane, A. B."

They do say that he is the roughest, toughest, hardest nut on earth." said Bill; "so we'll see what like he shapes in the California. I dessay he's one of that lot that lets on how saflormen have an easy time. It's my notion the California will cure him of

And his flag lieutenant was inquiring in hospital what had become of the admiral, and nobody could tell him more than he himself knew. So much he told the reporters of the Chronicle and the Morning Call, and flaring headlines announced the disappearance of a British admiral, and the wires and cables fairly hummed to England and the world generally. At the same time the San Francisco police laid every water-front rat and tough by the heels on the chance that something might be got out of one of them.

"What did I tell you?" asked Bill in great alarm, as he saw several intimate friends of his being escorted to

"Did you ship as a dead man?" asked Mr. Simpson, "for if you did, I'll undeceive you."

And with that he yanked the admiral from his bunk, and dragged him by the collar out upon the deck at a run. Mr. Simpson was "bucko" to his finger tips, and had never been licked upon the high seas. But for that matter Vice Admiral Sir Richard Dunn, K. C. B., had never hauled down his flag either to any man. It surprised him, as it would have surprised any of his crew, to find that he took this handling almost meekly. But then no one knows what he would do if the sky fell; and as far as the admiral was concerned, the entire world was an absurd and ridiculous nightmare. He rose at the end of his undignified progress and stared at the mate.

'Who-who are you?" he said. Mr. Simpson gasped.

Who am I-oh, who am I? Well,

"Oh, you're an admiral-an admiral, heh?" said Simpson.

"Of course," said Sir Richard, and a sudden gust of rage blew the last oplum out of him. "Why, damn it, sir, what the devil do you mean by laying your filthy paws on me Their eyes shine of the Where's your captain, sir? By all and form good targets for the Deane, who was, as his new shipmates that's holy, I'll smash you if you so bullets. Sometimes a dozen crocodiles

Now it is a remarkable fact that the utterly and entirely unexpected will sometimes shake the courage of the stoutest heart. It is possible that a tiger would itself turn tail if a lamb rushed at him with open mouth. And though Mr. Simpson would have tackled a prize-fighter, knowing he was a prize-fighter, the fact that one of the kind of men whom he was accustomed to wipe his boots on now turned upon him with entirely strange language and a still stranger air of authority, for a moment daunted him utterly. He stood still and gasped. while the admiral strode aft and went up the poop ladder. He was met there by the captain, who had been the terror of the seas as a mate. A narrow escape of a conviction for num. murder had partially reformed him. He had also become religious, and usually went below when Simpson or the second "greaser" was hammer-

Swept Away by a Geyser. A recent fatal eruption of the Waimangu geyser in northern Ne v Zealand will be of interest, particularly to those who have seen the geysers of the Yellowstone. A party of thirty two excursionists were making the tour of the geysers under the control of an experienced guide. Four of them two ladies and two gentlemen-advanced within twenty feet of the Waimaugu geyser basin. The guide shouted to the u to come away from such a dang as position, and so did the mother of the two girls. One of the latter replied: "In a moment, mother; when I have taken this snapshot." The next instant there was a terrific eruption of stones, mud and boiling water to a height of 800 feet When the steam had cleared away the alfortunate four were nowhere to be seen. They had been hurled into a river of boiling water and their bodies, fearfully battered, were found a

Tradition says that the origin of chess playing in Strobeck was in the year 1011. Bishop Arnulf of Halberstadt placed a state prisoner, one Count von Guncellin, in the tower of Strobeck, which still stands a ruin in the middle of the village and which is called the "Schachthurm" or chess tower. In order to while away his time the count, who was a chessplayer, constructed a board and a set of men for himself and first taught his fallers and later taught the peasants to play with him. The game had such a fascination for the people that all who could constructed boards and sets of chessmen and in process of The admiral sat up suddenly, and by time all the inhabitants were able to so doing brought his head into violent | play chess and the custom has been Give nature three helps, and nearly every case of consumption will recover. Fresh air, most important of all.

Cherry Pectoral

Nourishing food comes next. Then, a medicine to control the cough and heal the lungs. Ask any good doctor.

"I first used Ayer's Cherry Pectoral 53 years ago. I have seen terrible cases of lung diseases cured by it. I am never without it."
ALBERT G. HAMILTON, Marietta, Ohio. K. Riemenschneider Consumption

Health demands daily action of the bowels. Aid nature with Ayer's Pills.

CLIMATIC CURES.

The influence of climatic conditions in the cure of consumption is very much overdrawn. The poor patient, and the Clarence Schaufele rich patient, too, can do much better at home by proper attention to food digestion, and a regular use of German Syrup. Free expectoration in the morning is made certain by German Syrup, so is a good night's rest and the absence of that weakening cough and debilating night sweat. Restless nights and the exhaustion due to coughing, the greatest dan-Ann Eliza Wortley ger and dread of the consumptive, can be prevented or stopped by taking Ger man Syrup liberally and regularly Should you be able to go to a warmer clime, you will find that one of the thousands of consumptives there, the few who are benefited and regain strength are those who use German Syrup.
