MANY GATHERINGS CHRISTMAS.

Numerous, Old-Time, Festal Occasions Marked the Celebrations of Christmas In Chelsea and Vicinia.

FAMILY CELEBRATIONS

Mr. and Mrs. R. M. Hall, Christmas children as well. The day was celebrated and enjoyed as befits such occasions.

AT F. P. GLAZIER'S

Mr. and Mrs. Frank P. Glazier made Michigan. After dinner there was a sleigh ride for all and in the evening a Christmas tree from which was shook down all manner of good things.

AT DICK CLARKS.

A gathering of 50 ralatives met Christmas day at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Dick Clark in Lyndon, to honor their aged relatives Mr. W. R. Purchase who is counted the oldest man in Chelsea and to exchange among themselves the seasons greeting, feast at the wise enjoy themselves. Probably the number gathered was not exceeded at any similar gathering in this vicinity.

AT MICHAEL SCHENKS.

Among the notable gatherings in this vicinity on Christmas day was that of the children and grandchildren of Mr. and Mrs. Michael Schenk at their home west of Chelsea on the Territorial road. There were over 40 present. Most of Jackson being the only ones from any distance. This is quite remarkable in a gathering of such size. There was the usual Christmas dinner and enjoyment HOPES TO AVERT CONSUMPTION that uiually goes with an oceasion of this kind.

A GOLDEN WEDDING An occasion of a great interest and oy among the friends of Mr. and Mrs. Elijah Keyes was the celebration of their home in Lima. They entertained about ome in Freedom by Rev. Elinor. Franciscan Friar Teaches War to Youth of Britain.

Gives Instructions to Students from Gunmaker's Shop Who Are Preparing to Follow a Military Career.

A curious mingling of the medieval with the modern exists at Erith, England, where articled pupils of Messrs. Vickers, Sons, and Maxim are coached by a Franciscan friar. Curiously enough, our Roger Bacon, who is said to have rediscovered gunpowder, was a brother of the same order. According to the manager of Messrs. Vickers, Sons and Maxim's works, some difficulty has been experienced in finding anyone to read with engineering students for the examinations which the firm hold-examinations of the same standard as those passed by engineer students in the royal navy. At or near Erith there are no educational establishments with professors or masters to undertake such work.

So Father Edwin-such is the Franciscan's name—teaches mathematics, natural science, and applied mechanics to apprentices of the machine-gun firm. The monastery of which the father is an inmate stands on a hill inthe Carlton road, near Erith-a ten minutes' walk from the works. Here live seven of the order in a building which has the appearance of a new suburban library, except that it rests half-hidden amid the trees of its own

The father, a tall, robust, elderly man, has a beard worthy of his calling, and wears the brown serge gown and hood of his branch of the order the Capuchins. Possessing university qualifications, he held for 14 years the professorship of higher mathematics at St. Peter's college, Agra. This insti-tution was amilated to the Rurki College of Civil Engineering, which does the same work as Cooper's Hill. Father Edwin has also published several

There was not a physician on either train, but while the sufferers walted for the relief train from Grand Rapids, heroic work was done by Mrs. E. J. Cook, of Grand Rapids. This young woman was in the parlor car of the east-bound train, and was at first very nervous, but when she saw the poor fellows brought in with bruised heads and mangled bodies. she tucked up her skirts, rolled up her sleeves, put on an apron and demonstrated her ability as a trained nuise, while she modestly declared she would not permit her name to be published.

Two minutes' absence of a signa light caused the wreck. Supt. of Telegraph Weldman, of the Pere Marquette, had some difficulty in getting at the bottom of the matter, but finally secured the following:

"Both trains had orders to meet at Oakdale. The westbound No. 5 was not doing well as to time, so, to help out No. 6, the castbound train, Dispatcher Halstead, at Plymouth, who handles all trains on the division. changed the orders to have them meet at Fox, a siding next east of Oakdale. The eastbound No. 6 signed for the change at Ninth avenue, about a mile out of Grand Rapids, and the westbound was to get her orders at Mc-Cord. No. 5 went on through Mc-Cord, and the operator immediately nal point. He went out and found his signal light out. It had been burning and showed red two minutes before No. 5 came through. Salt Making.

State Salt Inspector Porter's annual report shows that Michigan has 66 plants with an aggregate capacity of 10.480,000 barrels. During the year, 4.387,882 barrels were inspected, a decrease of 606,263 below 1902, Wayne county with 339,235 barrels, showed a decrease of 385,609.

Mr. Porter thinks that Saginaw and Bay counties will increase their output before many years go by, as the coal miners will have great quantities of the great mass of the population are slack which they will be glad to sell compelled to employ men who are cheap to independent manufacturers or they will go into salt making themselves to get some return from it.

Says Andrews Can't Go

Governor Bliss states that it would be impossible for Frank C. Andrews to go to Mexico or any other place outside of the state without breaking his parole and giving Prosecutor Hunt chance to act against him. The only two ways for him to get out of Michigan is through absolute pardon or by secretely leaving the state.

The attention of the governor was called to the statements made by Detroiters that they had not signed their names to the petitions which were presented to him asking for Andrews's release, but he said he believed the names to be genuine. However, he would look into the matter.

Large Glasses Do Not Reflect as We as the Small Ones.

In the mirrors of to-day the light is reflected by a layer of silver or an amaigam of tin, but a proportion of light is lost in the process of reflec-tion, and the image is less luminous than the original. The value of a loking-glass is usually estimated by the thickness of the glass be cause the thicker it is the stronger it must be. But speaking scientifically thick glasses are defective, because the outlines of the image reflected are less clearly defined. An ideal mirror is one with a pertactly flat surface. But it is only possible to obtain this result in comparatively small glasses. The larger glasses do not reflect a true image, because it is not possible to make them quite flat.

New Ship-Warning Cretem.

In the ship-warning system of Mr. C. E. Kelway, signals by Hertzian waves are sent out from the lighthouses at regular intervals at the same times as the sound warnings. A vessel in range having a receiver notes the time that passes between receiving the wireless signal and the sound warning and is thus enabled to calculate its distance from the lighthouse, and, on repeating the observation, after continuing a few miles, data is obtained for ascertaining the exact location of the .ighthouse by trigonometry. A stopwatch reading directly in distances and a special position finder have been devised for ticular epoch from which they date he ers in which they may have lived. The Romans dated their chronological events from the founding of the city.

The expression, "The year of Rome," or the letters A. U. C. (ab urbs condita) refers to that particular epoch. The Mohammedans express their sequence of time by "the year of the prophet." The date is from the Hejira, or the flight of Mohammed from Mecca (Hejira is pronounced Hej-i-ra, and is an Arabic word meaning flight), which occurred A. D. 622. The Jews reckon their dispensation from the creation of the world, but in reality their chronology begins with the Exodus. Moses intentionally introduced a new calendar, and makes Abib their first month. It has been supposed that the Jewish Sabbath is the same as the seventh day on which God ended His work, but as Moses changed the first month to Abib, he changed the first day also. The first day of this new year was the first day of the first month and the first day of the first week. The Sabbath being held on the seventh day, it must of necessity have been changed also. But being changed, it could not be in correspondence with the seventh day of creation on which God "rested." Christians date their epoch from the birth of Christ, the expression for which is the Latin words Anno Domini, or A. D., the initial letters of the words. Five centuries elapsed before an attempt was made to authoritatively fix the date of the Nativity. This was then undertaken by Dionysius Exiguus (little), who fixed our present chronology. It is now generally allowed that he was four years out in his reckoning, and that B. C. 4 is the correct year. This corresponds with statement by Ireneus and Tertullian that Christ was born about the year of Rome 751. Different nations have begun their count of time at different parts of the twenty-four hours. The ancient Accadians, Babylonians, Syrians, Persians, the modern Greeks and the inhabitants of the Balearic isles reckon their day from sunrise to sunrise. Why the ancient nations began the day at sunrise is evident from their early religion, which was Magism. Fire was a chief object of reverence with them, and the gun as the grand symbol of their worship received especial veneration. Hence they began their day as they began their devotions-with the rising sun.

Others, like the Athenians, the Chinese and the Jews have counted the day from sunset to sunset. Why the Jews begin the day from sunset is potent from their religion. The characteristics of the Jewish religion are in sharp contrast to those of other nations. The aim of Moses was to wean them from the grossness of oriental religions. Hence the contrasts and antitheses. If the worshipers of the elements begin the day with sunrise, then the followers of Jehovah will begin theirs with sunset. Moses can have no concord with error.

The Egyptians and pagan Roman priests began their day at midnight. Most European nations follow the same rule. Americans have also adopted the custom. Astronomers, however, begin the day at noon, when the sun is on the meridian.

The day, meaning thereby light, from sunrise to sunset, was in ancient times divided into twelve equal parts, called hours. A similar division was observed with the night. Thus it will be seen the hour was constantly changing in its uration. The hour of the day in winter, when the days were short, was much longer than in summer, and vice versa. The same, of course, was the case with the nights, also. So that only at the equinoxes were the two series of hours equal. This was most inconvenient and resulted in much confusion. To Hipparchus, a Greek philosopher, who flourished about B. C. 150, must be given the credit of dividing the day from midnight to midnight into twenty-four hours, or two equal portions of twelve hours each. This system prevails generally at the present day. But astronomers count continuously for twenty-four hours. The week, as all know, consists of even days. Christians and Jews hold this division because God created the heaven and the earth (the solar aystem) and primordial forms of life in six days, and "rested" on the seventh. But it would seem that fagan nations selected seven days because of the seven planets known to them, after which they called the fays. The sun and moon were included in the planets. They were:

"Cleopatra's Needle," was erected as "Cleopatra's Needle," was erected Jupiter, Saturn. We call three days flight of steps (translated degrees in of the week directly after the planets -Saturday (Saturn), Sunday (Sun), Monday (Moon), and four through the Saxon names for the others: Tuesday (Tuesco-Mars), Wednesday (Woden -Mercury), Thursday (Thor-Jupiter), and Friday (Friga-Venus).

The month, no doubt, originated from the phases of the moon. These, sharp and well-defined are four in number: the new moon, first quarter, full moon and last quarter. Each of these phases occupies about seven days, so that from new full moon to new full moon, there is something more than twenty-nine days, which is called a synodical month, or lunation. No nation up to the present time has devised a system of absolute accuracy in the measurement of the colar year. Some ancient nations, such as the Chaldeans, reckoned the year as 360 days. This is the principle of that most ancient astronomical term, the Zodiac. The Zodiac is a belt encircling the heavens on each side of the ecliptic. Within which the planets known to the ancients always revolve. It extends eight degrees on each side of the ecliptic. It is divided into twelve equal parts, called signs of the Zodiac. It is a great cycle, and is divided into 360 degrees, like all circles; hence 360 days in the Chaldean | Ball; Time and Tide). The synodical year.

The Egyptians counted 365 days in their year. As the year contains 365 4 days nearly, such systems could not fail to work great inconvenience, for the seasons would move round in a cycle from one time of the year to the other. Let me make this quite plain. Take the winter solstice, for nstance, which happens on Dec. 21. At the end of four years the solstice would be not on Dec. 21, but on Dec. 22. The sun would be behind time. In order, therefore, that the seasons should occur at the same time in the civil year, it was necessary to take account of this fraction of a day.

Julius Caesar, the great Roman emperor, determined to rectify the error. He called the celebrated Egyptian astronomer, Sosigines, to his aid. Sosigines suggested the addition of a day But we must not stop at a 1,400-hour every fourth year. This day was added to February, and is known to us as | future, we come to a time when the known as the Julian. But as it made the year consist of 365 days, 6 hours, it was in excess of the actual time by minute 10.3 seconds. Small as was this fraction, it accumulated to about one day in every 134 years.

The calendar needed reform. Time, civil and ecclesiastical, required readjustment. But to urge the necessary change was dangerous, as the learned Friar Bacon found to his cost. For pointing out errors in the calendar he received as a reward for the advocacy of the truth a prison, where he remained ten years.

As often happens, ecclesiastical requirements minister to civil necessitles. The immediate cause of the correction of the calendar was an error in the time of observing the Easter festival. The Council of Nice, in A. D. 325, decreed that Easter is the Sunday following the full moon, next after the Vernal equinox. Owing to disputes arising from this decree Pope Hilarius, in 463, ordered that the paschal moon should not be the actual full moon, but an ideal one, falling on the 14th day of the moon by the metonic cycle (so-called from Metoni, a Greek philosopher, who discovered it. It consists of nineteen years, at the end of which the sun is in about the same position he was at the be-

In 1582 it was found that the real equinox fell ten days before the nominal one, and from the error in the Metonic cycle, Easter had got four days wrong. Then Pope Gregory XIII reformed the calendar, called after him the Gregorian calendar, by the aid of Clavius, a learned Jesuit. The equinox of 1582, which should have fallen on March 21, fell on March 11. Gregory cut the Gordian knot by decreeing that Oct: 5 of that year should be counted as Oct. 15. To the question, What is time? We may give the answer, duration, as measured by the solar system. For everyday purposes and artificial divisions mechanical contrivances are necessary. The first method of measuring time, as far as we know, was by means of the obelisk. The pyramids of Egypt very probably answered the same purpose, Josephus states, sthat Moses erected, at Heliopolis, in Egypt, a pillar for such purposes. "The cloudy pillar" that accompanied the Israelites in their forty years' wanderings in the wilderness, and which was a "pillar of fire by night," most likely answered the same purpose. Pliny states that an obelisk, now on the Thames embankment in London, and known as "Cleopatra's Needle," was erected the English Bible). Berosus was the first to construct a sundial proper, in B. C. 540-the first recorded in profane history.

named Ctesebius, and continued down snow. lowed in due course, till they have become an almost necessary requisite of everyday use.

Most people are under the impres sion that the rotation of the earth has never varied from one complete turn in twenty-four hours. But this is an error. The motions of both earth and moon have not been invariable. There was a time when the lunar month was twenty-nine days instead of twenty-seven, as it now is (Sir R month, therefore, was between thirty and thirty-one days. (A synodical month is the interval from one new moon to the next.) So that primitive man, reckoning the month as a synodical period, or lunation, may not have been so inaccurate as we in our superior wisdom imagine.

Going back from this epoch to the infancy of the moon, we come to a time when the day and month were of equal duration-about four hours each! Going forward to the old age but no one else did, and she climbed of the earth, we come to an epoch when the day and month are again equal. But this time, instead of being four hours each, they will be 1,400 hours. Just think of it! One day lasting 1,400 hours! When the day will equal fifty-eight of our present days, what will be the length of the year? day. Going still forward in the far-off be a perpetual day, for the sun shall never set, literally fulfilling the words house is awake. of the prophet: "Thy sun shall no more go down, neither shall thy moon romance of time! How it fascinates!

The new year has been observed with fest!ve rejoicings from remotest antiquity. Its celebration by religious, as well as secular observances, prevailed generally among the nations of antiquity. And Egyptians, Hindus, Mohammedans, although differing widely as to the time from which they especial interest of a joyous kind.

In modern times it is also an occasion of social rejoicing and interchange of courtesies. In England, under old style, the year began on March 25. On the change of date to Jan. 1, great opposition was offered by the people generally. Many really believed they were being deprived of leven years of their existence.

Latest System of Mining. In the percussion system of mining rises and falls with a regular motion, revolving as it does on a vertical axis. Its huge teeth tear and grind the soil and rock to powder. The water in the shaft turns this to pulp and the mixture is brought to the surface in a huge caisson with an automatically sliding bottom. When the shaft is lined with steel tubing, it is pursped dry, and when a relief shaft is sunk the mine is ready for operation. This method is being used to reach a newly discovered seam of coal, which was struck at a depth of 1,190 feet in Kent, England.

Simple Test for Milk.

Milk varies in viscosity with composition and temperature, and a new apparatus called the "lacto-viscometer" is regarded by French physicists as solving the problem of a simple test for milk. It consists of a tinned copped reservoir, mounted on a tripod, with a fine glass tube as outlet. When the reservoir is filled with a sample of the milk, the stopcock is opened bit. Grandma lifted the children on and the time required for the escape up the hole and over the snow. When I table shows the exact character of milk corresponding to these data.

The Planet Venus.

The conditions of the planet Venus are most like those on the earth, but there is a strong suspicion that Venus has no night or day, but always keeps the same side toward the sun. If this is really the case, then the sunny side must be always burning hot and quite cry, while the opposite side must be always incased in ice-nay, more, in a mixture of ice and solidified atmospheric gases. The life of such a world must be very different from any that we know.

Unique Wedding Party.

A short time ago a wedding took place at St. Luke's church, Reddall Hill, Cradley Heath, England, at which a man named John Hill was married soon all undressed and in her little to a young woman whose name was also Hill. The fathers of the bride there was the baby, fast asleep, just and bridegroom were each named John as she was when they went to bed the Hill, the witnesses were all named night before, and they wondered what Hill, and both the bridegroom and bride resided at Old Hill.

AN UNCOMPREHENDABLE DISASTER

Approximately 800 Lives Lost at a Chi-

of Time, Fire started from a defective electric wire, in the mass of tinder-like scenery at the Iroquois theater in Chicago yesterday afternoon and burst out upon the audience and as a result approximately 800 people met an awful death. This is a brief statement of the most appalling disaster of its kind that ever happened in the United States. Details can be found in sickening abundance in any daily paper-why repeat them here. The bare facts are enough.

LEAP YEAR PARTY TONIGHT.

The leap year party with which our enterprising young women, known as the Dear Dozen, purpose to inaugurate the year of their special priveledges begins this evening and doubtless extends into the new year. The D Ds have taken pains to have their festivities in especially good form and all possible effort is being made to this end. Music has been secured from Ann Arbor, the hall is being decorated and in many other ways the young men are being shown just how an occasion of this kind ought to be conducted.

The partrons of the party are Mesdames J. D. Watsons and A. R. Welch and their respective husbands. The dance programs are in the nature of souvenirs done in limp leather, stamped in gold, with an inner satin cover bearing inscriptions of an appropriate sentiment.

Among the guests expected from out of town are Mr. and Mrs. Otto Hans, of Ann Arbor, Dr. Phelps, of Dexter, Miss Margaret Browne, of Lansing, Mr. Orlando Wood, of Chicago, Mr. Charles Exinger of Detroit, Dr. Eric Zincke, Bucyrus, Ohio; Dr. Orrin Riemenschneider of Grass Lake, and Beatrice Bacon of Detroit.

All is not gold that glitters, so we are told, but just the same the glitter is a good characteristic to bluff with. One night, recently, a crowd of fellows on an electric car coming up from Detroit to Chelsea became so enthused by some brand of enthusiasm that they went beyond the control of the conductor in their boisterousness. At this point a Chelsea man, who wears a railway mail clerks badge, and puts on a front equal to that of a United States Deputy Marshall, strode forward, threw back his coat and dramatically pointed to the badge saying: "Here, boys, you will have to quite down. Thomas J. must have been on the roof of one of the buildings at the time, preparing for his evening's musicale, perhaps, because after the explosion he was found somewhat singed and considerably broken up in a tree at Ledgewood, three-quarters of a mile from the scene of the wreck. He was recognized by the collar which the employes of the forcite works put on him three weeks ago, when he left his former master, Frank O'Neill, and came to make his home at the mills. door. "What is it, father?

"Mother!"

"Most ready, mother?"

Caroline ran in, her eyes sparkling with the thought of some anticipated pleasure, but she stopped suddenly. Her mother sat in a little rockingchair, with her knitting in her hands. "You are not going?"

Mother "knit two, seam two, all the way across the needle" Lefore she laid her work in her lap and answered Caroline.

"No-I-thought-"

"It isn't what you thought, at all," Caroline burst out. "It's father again! He's found out that you were going to have a little pleasure, and he said you shouldn't go! He's just as selfish as -as-I am!"

"Hush." the mother said, gently. "You must not speak so of your father. It wouldn't be any pleasure for him to go gallivantin' through the woods after leaves, and he can't realize how much I wanted to. I ought to stay home and finish this sock anyway. and prob'ly I'd ketch cold and have rheumatics if I went. The wind is going to blow too. Maybe there'll be a shower.'

"Mothe:, you know every word you've said is what father told you. Wind blowing! You can't see a leaf blowing! You can't see a leaf stirring; and there isn't a cloud in the sky. You couldn't take cold if you tried. It's all a burning shame!"

Mother's wistful eyes looked out on the garden. Father thought it a sinful waste of time and ground to raise flowers, so the garden was always cabbages and the like, except where Caroline had planted some blossoming thing. Her heart yearned for the beautiful, and the woods, brilliant in scarlets and yellows-well, she must not think of them. She turned resolutely from the clump of flags and the hollyhock. Her eyes brightened when barn with the milk palls, she rememshe looked at Caroline. It was no wonder that Will Archer had taken her away from them so early, and had the day in her soul. As the white built a little home for her where she had flowers a-plenty. Mother's work lay idle as Caroline ing back. The brief ufting up, "as on walked out of sight. Her mind traveled back to the day she had entered eagle wings," had given place to that house as fair and as young as gloom. She was going to do her duty caroline. Father was so proud of his young wife, and she fairly worshiped the blessed joy had, for the time, deblazed forth. "Father! You shan't keep me out! I'll stick to you so long as they's a breath in your body!"

Semething very like admiration shene in father's eyes, as he vainly tried to loosen her hold; and something very like a chuckle sounded in father's throat as he retreated into the house, saying very gruffly:

"Well, stay if you want to! body cares!"

After this, father watched her narrowly. He wondered if she would asser, her independence in other ways: but in all matters save this one, she was the same meek, quiet woman.

The fourth Sunday of the month was set aside for the baptism or converts. A brief discourse was given at the school house, then the congregation was to repair to the river, a quarter of a mile distant.

There was a goodly number-fathers and daughters, mothers and sons, husbands and wives. It seemed natural that they should follow the preacher in couples, and natural that timid, retiring, little mother should be last, and alone.

Alone? She had taken a few-steps, epressing, with characteristic paience, the sigh which rose to her lips. when someone sterped forward, and awkwardly took her arm. Then heaven's own glory filled to overflowing her poor, starved soul, for "someone" was tather!

WEDDING RITES OF SAVAGES.

Very Simple Ceremonies Constitute a Marriage Among Them.

The marriage ceremonies of many savages are of the simplest possible escription. In some places, indeed, says the Leisure Hour, ceremony is are no wedding rites in Dahomey, "except where the king confers the wife," the interference of royalty rendering only to themselves. A wound from it necessary for the bride to present one of these arrows is immediately faher future lord with a glass of rum. They have a rather mixed ceremony amongst the Gonds and Korkus, consisting of "eating together, tying the garments together, dancing together round a pole, being half-drowned together by a douche of water, and the interchange of rings." A negress of Loango is legally married after the bridegroom has eaten from two dishes which she has cooked with her own hand and carried to his but. Mother rose early next morning, as

AN EPIDEMIC OF MADNESS.

Hungarian Aristocracy Driven Into Insanity by Dissipation. A singular epidemic of madness seems to be making its way among the higher Hungarian nobility and affecting some families of European notoriety.

Count George Festetics, the eldest son of Count Tassilo Festetics and Lady Mary Douglas-Hamilton, lately committed suicide in a lunatic asylum by hanging himself. He was only 20 years old. .

Another Hungarian magnate, Count Szabo, of Arad, the owner of nearly 500,000 acres of land, has had to be confined as a dangerous lunatic. He had lately incurred heavy losses at play, and was laboring under the impression that he could not pay his debts, and that his creditors were pursuing him night and day with red-hot irons to brand him as a swindler.

A third noble, having large estates in Transylvania, Count Estaaby, has fallen a victm to mania, after a wild career of dissipation extending over several years, during which he sold every stick of furniture in his castle and every tree on his extensive estates. Now he regards himself as an incorporation of various Old Testament personages sometimes Moses, sometimes Abraham, but more frequently Solomon.

'Joe" Chamberlain Tells Good Story on Green Farmer.

Joseph Chamberlain, in one of his recent tariff reform speeches, told a new umbrella story. Mr. Chamberlain wished to point out that ignorrance was to blame for much of the censure that had been attached to his tariff reform scheme. He said:

"Why, my friends, many of my op ponents are as ignorant of my proposition as was a certain farmer, many years ago, of the umbrella.

"This farmer had made a journey of some twenty miles on foot to a small town. As he was about to set off for home again a hard rain came up, and his host loaned him an umbrellaa povelty at the time-opening it himself so as to save his friend all possible troubte.

"A week later the farmer took the ambrella back. The weather was bright and fine, but he held the instrument open over his head.

Concerning the permanent and immutable characteristics of ships, the him about like so much paper. What he wants is stiffenin'; he's like a imited range of vision broadened by a trip in a sailing ship must of necessity know little. He probably falls into the fallacy, common even among those who follow the sea, that a partial or entire clearance of her "crowd" will quite alter her nature; whereas shuffle is cunning. It's getting back sailors being sailors—that is, people of certain fairly definite attributesany given environment makes them much the same as those who preceded

But entire changes in the personnel of a vessel rarely take place. The officers change, but the crew remains; the crew goes, but officers stay. Ships (to speak thus of their companies) talk of the same subjects over a million miles of charging seas: they have a permanent stock of subjects. These include all which are perennially of interest to seafaring men, such as hemes versus boarding houses, but they include also something more individual, something more intimately connected with the essence of that particular vessel. And the one unerding topic of interest on board the Potluck was foreign politics.

How this came about no one knew. though many theories were set affoat and sunk again every Sunday afternoon. Some said that the first captain of the Potluck was called Palmerstone, and that he introduced the subject of England versus the world as soon as he came on board. Others swore that they had been told by a clerk in the employ of the firm that there had been a discussion over her very keel concerning the introduction into her frame of foreign onka.

"This was the way of it," said Jock hart, who was the chief upholder of this particular theory, and the son of a little shipbuilder—"the lot that built her at Liverpool was the mixedest crowd of forsaken cranks as ever handled timber. So the clerk said. And one had a hankerin' for teak and another for hoak (with odd leanin's now and agin for Hafrican and Portugee and French hoak), and another he said 'Cuban Sabicu,' and another's word was 'Hackmatack' and 'chestnut' Why, it's my opinion-and experts say herery time. So they showed in bits 'ditto' to me there—that a string o' and bits there till she was a reglar junk sho; o' samples. And that's the reason she's a foreign talking argument ship. And a mighty good reason, too."

The crowd listened in silence.

"If you knew as much about arguin' as you know (seemin'ly) about timber; as no man ever heerd of, your argument might stand," said Mackenrie a withered old foc sle man. "But it ain't to reason as the natur' of the woods in a ship should make us talk this way or that. If so be a ship was built o' teak, d'ye think we'd talk the filldy jow, you black son of a gun

Hart shook his head.

"He may have cunnin, Lamport, but he ain't no real tact. Now, diplomat-'e taet, I take it, is not givin' way into the gutter, but just showin' as you're a nice pleasant-spoken chap as don't mean to be put on. It's my good opinion as these foreigners don't yearn to fight us. And men like you and me. handlin' foreigners. Who has so much experience with 'em as them in command of English ships?"

"That's so," said the second mate who had been listening. "Now last v'y'ge la the Battleaxe, there was a Dago in my watch as come from the betwixt and between land where Spain jines France. And he was the Dagoest Dago I ever sailed with. But I knew the breed, and the first time he opens his garlicky mouth I hauled off and hit him. And then I took my knife away and snapped the point off. And I says to him, 'Now, you black beggar, every time at muster you'll show me that knife, and there'll be peace in the land.' And he done so. and there was peace."

The captain (of "Guffin") smote his thigh.

"You're right, Simcox, you're right. and if Sallsbury was to take a leaf out of your logbook in respects of handlin' Dagoes, twould be better for all concerned. But no, not him. He goes on seein' them French make a fleet and he lets 'em! He actually sees 'em with their fleet sharpenin on the grindstone and never says from the poop, 'Chuck that overboard, you swine, or I'll come and 'andle you so's you'll be glad to die."

The second mate was much gratified as was obvious by his standing first on one foot and then on another. But Lampert was not so pleased.

"Why, you talk-you, captain, and you, Simcox-as if they had a fleet. band-boxes with crackers in em, and an on a mud-flat, would do as much harm as the French fleet-unless they blows up when we takes 'em."

The Guffin shook his head.

"Well, you know, Lampert, as I never 'ad no opinion of their fleet. But that ain't the question. Sal sbury may have 'is reasons for not takin' it away. though I fails to see 'em; but the real question is, why we don't have a man with guts and go in command. 'It's my firm belief as there's many a merchant captain as could work the diplomatic game to better hadvantage. Look at the experience we has, dealing with owners contrary as hell, and wita consignees and with 'arbarranaeters and p.lots. Where Salisbury is wrong. is in his not goin' about and freshin' pt, Mac. The New York Central is advertising New York as a winter resort, and calling attention to the fact that New York has more theatrical and musical attractions than any other city in the world, and gives a list of a few of the principal actors now on the stage or to be seen in its 44 playhouses this winter. This list includes:

Richard Mansfield Mrs. Leslie Carter Edward Harrigan Margaret Dale Vesta Tilley Elita Proctor Otis Wm. Gillette

Thomas Q. Seabrooke Cecelia Loftus Sidney Herbert Mrs. Yeamans William Collier Agnes Booth Kyrle Bellew Jessie Millward Charles Hawtrey William H. Crane James K. Hacket Annie Irish J. E. Dodson Frank Daniels Grace VanStuddiford Ethel Barrymore Weber & Fields.

Wm. Gillette Weber & Fields.

In addition to the above attractions, grand opera, under the direction of Mr. Heinrich Conried, will be given during the winter at the Metropolitan Opera House, and will include some of the great Wagner operas and for the first time in this country, "Parsifal." There will also be light opera under the direction of Victor Herbert, with hundreds of concerts and musical entertainments by famous artists.

Incidentally, attention is called to the fact that the New York Central Lines offer the finest service between the West and New York with their 8 trains a day from Chicago, 3 from St. Louis, 5 from Cincinnati and 14 from Buffalo, landing people in the center of the hotel, theatre and residence portion of the metropolis.
