Will Hold a Joint Meeting.

igan Municipalities will hold a joint with the special problems of cities from town. and villages. Four sessions will be held. Papers are limited to thirty minutes in length, and informal remarks in discussion may be restricted to five minutes. Among the many important papers will be one on "Direct Primary Elections" by Senator Chas. C. Simons, of Detroit, on Thursday evening, Feb. 12, which all believers in primary reform should hear. The sessions will be held in the court house.

In Good Shape Financially.

The annual report of the financial condition of the Church of Our Lady of the Sacred Heart was read last Sunday in the presence of a very large congregation. It was splendid showing and very gratifying for there is a large balance in the treasury. The church is entirely out of debt, and many substantial improvements have been made. The Herald extends congratulations to the worthy pastor, Rev. W. P. Considine and his faithful parishioners, who by their united labor and support have made this desirable condition of affairs a possibility.

The Tramp Question. The board of county auditors are seeking a solution of the tramp problem. They will endeavor to have the sheriff's allowance of 44 cents a day for boarding prisoners cut down to where it belongs. This would make it not worth the while to arrest tramps and put them in jail for the sake of the fees as is now the case. It has always been a problem just why the sheriff should be paid high class boarding house prices for the extremely thin fare that is doled out to prisoners at the jail.

The bodies of between 20 and 30 nen who perished from thirst while attempting to cross the desert between Moana and Las Vegas, Nevada, have been found within a few weeks, acording to advices received from the latter place. The men, it is believed, were mostly tramps who attempted to make the long journey on foot without sufficient supplies of food and water to carry them across. Many of the bodies found were without clothing, and it was believed the victims had cone insane from thirst and had wanlered about in a nude condition in search of water. Some of the victims tre supposed to have drunk water from, "Dead Man's Well," which is lacated almost in the center of the lesert. The water from this well, while temporarily alleviating thirst, is sure death to those who drink it, out of the narrow dressing-room, onto the stage-beautiful, even in her "make-up" and the glare of the calcium lights. The glint of gold was in her dark hair, catching and holding the light. Her white neck and arms gleamed. She was, indeed, a radiant creature, all archness, coquetry, and grace.

The vast theater, crowded to the last rows in the gallery, hung upon her words. She held it in the subtle grasp of her winsome personality, swayed it with every motion of her graceful body, played upon it with every breath she drew. The dark, shapeless mass of humanity on the other side of the footlights, that sea of white, eager faces, all turned to her. How many times in her early struggles for its favor she had trembled before its immovable stare! Tonight it was kind-one mighty heart that throbbed with hers, one gigantic pulse which beat with her own. Her triumph had come. She felt it, knew She had conquered. What she had worked for, prayed for, had come at last. She had won the public.

The curtain fell on the first act amid a breathless stillness. Then a tumult of applause followed.

She took the curtain-call with the others. She wondered, as she stood in the center of the stage and "held the picture," why the tears came into her eyes, and why she shivered. She certainly ought to be happy, but she wasn't. She was looking straight into the eyes of the "leading man"; his arm was about her waist. She felt that she positively detested him. What horrid old crow's-feet he had around his eyes-blase at thirty-three. She couldn't see how the matinee girls could adore him. Oh! would they never put that curtain down? She certainly would make a face at him if they didn't. And that stupid, little hands in the pockets of her apron, But she did not hear. The next day at five she was in her parlor at the hotel waiting for him. When the boy brought up his card, she blushed like a schoolgirl. Then she drew herself up to her stately five feet seven and a half inches, and said indifferently, "Oh, please tell him to come up."

Three minutes later he knocked at the door but received no response. The door stood ajar; he pushed it open and walked into the room. No Mildred! Had he made a mistake? No. this was the number. There was har photograph on the table, and-

THE RESOURCES OF WOMEN.

What a Writer in "Good Housekeeping" Thinks of Them. What if some good man had wanted to marry you during these past years; would you have dared go to him, having a conscience, all unprepared, as you have been, to make his home a comfortable haven, his world's "snug harbor?" I tell you, in this age there would be propriety in a clergyman demanding of women at the altar: "Can you cook a potato, make a soup, a loaf of bread, prepare a piece of meat, and keep a house tidy?" "Can you make a dollar buy its worth?"

Who can say what a lifetime will bring in this way of experiences! Take up your morning paper and see if you do not find a doleful little paragraph somewhere, telling of some one born to great wealth dying neglected, alone, in abject poverty. Do you million cruelly mistaken mothers think that money can secure a happy life, a comfortable hope, or true independence for your daughters? Before heaven, their only independence is the resources within themselves. Their only title to happiness, comfort, secure love and respect through life. hangs upon their knowledge, and willingness to create happiness for others to inspire love and respect for themselves.

THE RESULT OF ACCIDENT.

Unexpected Discoveries from Which Wealth Was Made.

It often happens that an ignorant which clever men have been working unique. over for years. At one time all the gum used in England was made from Liffey, near Dublin, took fire and great puddles of starch and water were found outside.

Some calico printers who had been making an evening of it came by, and, being very tipsy, one of them tumbled into the sticky mess. Next morning, when he tried to dress, all his clothes were stuck tight together as if they had been dipped in glue, and the wretched man was obliged to stay in bed till his wife had soaked them in clean water.

The man, from his trade, knew how valuable this gum was, and taking the rest of the party into his confidence they experimented by scorching starch on a fire shovel. They found it made excellent gum when mixed with water, and it was this invention which enabled postage stamps to be produced in an adhesive form.

Dullness of Court Life.

Thomas Creevey, who lived in tho early part of the nineteenth century, has presented some queer pictures of English court life. During the reign of King William IV. Creev wrote: "The Greys had just come from Windsor castle. Lady G. ay, in her own distressed manner, said she was really more dead than alive. She said all the boring she had ever endured before was literally nothing compared with her misery of the two preceding nights. She hoped she never should see a mahogany table again, she was so tired with the one that the king and the queen, the Duchess of Gloucester, Princess Augusta, Mme. Lieven and herself had sat around for hours, the queen knitting or netting a purse, the king sleeping and occasionally waking for the purpose of saying, 'Exactly so, ma'am,' and then sleeping again. The queen was cold as ice to Lady Grey till the moment she came away, when she could afford to be a little civil at getting quit of her."

Alarmed Herself. The resemblance between an alarm clock and a conscience is so obvious that it has often been remarked. A man would hardly like to look himself in the face if he were without either, while the monitions of both meet with the same amiable or impatient disregard. One usually maintains each of them in considerable privacy, but an old woman in Kansas City put the clock the other das to a new and ed from her neck with a rope. She was asked about it by a polite stranger, and said that her son had set the to go off at 9:30, which would be a signal for her to go o's on the platform and get her train, which left at

It is strange to think that Coriola nus should be legendary, and that Tullus Aufidius should be real. There must be reality in the founder of a family, for the name Aufidius of Antium endures for a period of no less than seven centuries. Cicero in his work, "De Oratore," warmly praises the ability of Oneius Aufidius in jur isprudence; another Aufidius fought in the Asiatic war under Sertorius and being condemned to death by Pompey for conspiracy he sought refuge among the barbarians. In the inscriptions on tombs discovered on the Grabina Prenestina Way, there is mention of a certain Aufidia Torguata Massima, and of an Aufidia Tuccia Massima, both vestal virgins. The latest mention of the name in his the year A. D. 242.

"Well," said Mr. O'Grady, "I remember being up in New Brunswick on a fishing trip once, and for free-hearted people go up there. Three or four children were ousted to make room for us. I remember they had some delicious buckwheat cakes with maple syrup, and the way we made them disappear was simply outrageous. At last one little towheaded youngster could stand it no longer. He had observed us from the kitchen window, where he stood beside a big dog. The pup had his fore feet on the window sill, and looked every bit as disconsolate as his young master.

HARMONY A MATTER OF TIME.

Some Facts That Plighted Lovers Should Remember.

The harmonizing of the personalities of even the best mated couples is usually a work of time. Before they can learn readily to make those little concessions which keep two natures in harmony there is generally more or less twanging of false chords, and if these false notes can be eliminated before marriage so much the better. Besides it is more difficult to sink one's pride before marriage than after, and the object lesson is, accordingly, the more valuable, says the Chicago Chronicle.

Quarrels, it should be remembered, are ills which fall to the lot of most of us. They should be treated carefully and quickly, as one treats a cut finger. Neglected, a cut finger may lead to serious complications, endangering one's life. In the same way little quarrels may endanger one's life happiness.

All lovers quarrel, but some make the foolish mistake of parting at once without allowing time for reflection. If two people become separated and can still think with affection of each other after two or three years' absence they are fitted to marry. It is toolish and absurd to allow pride to stand in the way.

Love renewed is better than first love, more sincere. It is love that is refined by years of reflection and is the golden output of a pure affection.

Too Much Like a Real "Rip."

It was indeed, in Melbourne, Sydney and the gold fields that he made his first great hit as Rip Van Winkle, which has ever since been tory is probably that of C. Vettius the leading character in his repertory. Aufidius Atticus, who was consul in He has never recrossed the equator, although handsome offers for another Australian tour have repeatedly been submitted to him. In reply to another of these invitations, Mr. Jefferson, who is now in his seventy-fifth year, wrote recently: "I was four years in Australia and the kind reception given me by its generous people and the dear friends I made while in Mel-"A highway between Rome and bourne and Sydney will never be forwashed by the waves when high; and Antium" is the scene on which a Ro gotten by me. A Dangerous Weed.

While the improvement clubs are giving attention to the removal of unsightly weeds they should not forget the most noxious of ail, the widows' weeds, which overrun and infest the whole city. If the Thousand Widows' Association could be induced to lay aside crepe and then chirk up a bit, it would no doubt be a heavy blow to the undertakers, but it would act like a tonic to many people who come here to regain health. If you cannot help mourning, do it in the privacy of your own home, but give to the world smiles and bright tints. Assumed mourning -and crepe and bombazine is nothing else-is an offense to religion, sanitary science and common sense. Destroy the widows' weeds .- Ralph Elliot Field's "Wealth."

> Don M. Dickinson, of Detroit, says President Roosevelt is sure to be nominated at the Chicago convention and that he is equally sure of being elected. When prominent Democrats feel that way, surely good Republicans need have no fears but that the machinations engineered by a few hoggish money grabbers will be defeated and that the Republicans of the United States, as well as lots of Democrats and others, will have a chance to vote for and elect "the people's choice" as our next president.

President Roosevelt's doctrine on the relations between capital and labor as defined in his annual message to congress is of the right sort and should be adopted by all true Americans. The gist of it is contained in the following sentence: "Every man must be guaranteed his liberty and his right to do as he likes with his property and his labor, so long as he does not infringe the rights of others. No man is above the law and no man below it nor do we ask any man's permission when we require him to obey it. Obedience to the law is demanded as a right, not asked as a favor."

CHAPTER XVII.

En Voyage. "I wish, Sam," said Franklin one morning as he stopped at the door of the livery barn-"I wish that you would get me up a good team. I'm thinking of driving over south a little way to-day." "All right, Cap," said Sam. "I reckon we can fix you up. How far you goin'?" "Well, about twenty-five or thirty miles, perhaps." "Which will bring you," said Sam meditatively, "just about to the Halfway House. Seein' it's about there listen to thet chile! How does I know? you'll be stoppin', I reckon I better

"Well, I don't know about that black," said Franklin critically. "He's a bit bronco, isn't he?"

"What, him?" said Sam. "Naw he's all right. You don't suppose I'd run in any wild stock on you, do you? He's -say ary woh'd what ain't fitten. violently in the vehemence of her incredulity.

Mary Ellen's face sobered with a trace of the old melancholy.

"Aunt Lucy," she said, "you mean kindly, I am sure, but you must not talk to me of these things. Don't you remember the old days back home? Can you forget Master Henry, Aunt Lucy-can you forget the daysthose days-?"

Aunt Lucy rose and went over to Mary Ellen and took her hand between her own great black ones. "No, I doesn't fergit nothin', Miss Ma'y Ellen." she said, wiping the girl's eyes as though she were still a baby. "I doesn't fergit Mas' Henry, Gord bless him! > Franklin was for a time busy in keeping his team upon the trail, but soon they settled down into a steady, shuffling trot, to which they held for a mile over the hard prairie road. An hour's drive from the town, and the traveler seemed in a virgin world. A band of antelope lined up on the crest of a ridge and stood staring steadfastly. A gray-winged hawk swept wide and easily along the surface of the earth on its morning hunting trip. Near by the trail hundreds of cheerful prairie dogs barked and jerked their ceaseless salutation. An ancient and untroubled scheme of life lay all and its charm. ly in the midday sun, as though tanta- to the surface. As soon as the top lizing any chance traveler of that wide of the pipe was pushed down to a land with a prospect alluring, yet impossible, the buildings of the Halfway station now loomed large and dark, now sank until they seemed a few broken dots and dashes just visible upon the wide gray plain. Yet soon these seemed to grow closer, and spot with which he was already so well acquainted that every detail, ently came to his ears as a familiar sound, but rasping and irritating on his strong nerves as the croak of the elder Fate. Buford met him in the yard, and the ing care of the team, the former apologizing that he still had no servant for such work. "I'm mighty glad to see you again, captain, for it looked love nobody, an' won't let nobody love meet plenty of cowmen and movers, decent folk enough, but they have a old servant's garrulity, and the latter ish without that intelligent social in "What did you do then?" they tercourse with his kind which is as asked breathlessly. "What I does say, Miss Ma'y Ellen," much a part of his livin', sir, as the "Do?" said Grandfather Dutton, she resumed earnestly looking into the eatin' of his daily bread. Now, as I shrugging his shoulders. "Why, some-est general that the world ever sawfar greater than Grant, who was in command of resources infinitely superior. Now, then-"

"Oh, uncle, uncle!" cried a voice your appetite; behind him, "Have you begun the war over again so soon? You might worries the mind. at least let Mr. Franklin get into the house."

Mary Ellen stood at the door of the dugout, just clear of the front, and apon the second step of the stair, and her hand half shading her eyes. The sun fell upon her brown hair, changing its chestnut to a ruddy bronze, vital and warm, with a look as though it breathed a fragrance of its own. A little vagrant lock blew down at the temple, and Franklin yearned, as he always did when he saw this small truant, to stroke it back into its place. The sun and the open air had kissed pink into the cheek underneath the healthy brown. I'he curve of the girl's chin was full and firm. Her tall figure had all the grace of a normal being. Her face, sweet and serious. showed the symmetry of perfect and well-balanced faculties. The vision of her standing there caused Franklin to thrill and flush. Unconsciously he drew near to her, too absorbed to notice the one visible token of a possible success; for, as he approached, hat in hand, the girl drew back, as though she feared.

There was something not easily to be denied in this tall man, his figure still military in its self-respect of carriage, with the broad shoulders, the compact trunk, the hard jaw, and the straight blue eye of the man of deeds. He looked so fit and manly, so clean of heart, and so direct of purpose as he came on now in this forlorn hope in various parts of the Lybian desert, that Mary Ellen felt a shiver of self- and now an expedition is being formdistrust. She stepped back, calling on all the familiar spirits of the past. Her heart stopped, resuming at double speed. It seemed as though a thrill of tingling warmth came from somewhere in the air-this time, this day, this hour, this man, so imperative, this new land, this new world into which she had come from that of her earlier years! She was yet so young! Could there be something unknown. some sweetness yet unsounded? Could there be that rest and content which. strive as she might, were still missing from her life? Could there be thisand honor?

Mary Ellen fled, and in her room sat down staring in a sudden panic. She needed to search out a certain faded picture. It was almost with a sob that she noted the thin shoulders, the unformed jaw, the eye betokening pride rather than vigor, the brow ! indicative of petulance as much as sternness. Mary Ellen laid the picture to her cheek, saying again and again that she loved it still. Poor girl, she did not yet know that this was but the maternal love of a woman's heart, pitying, tender and remembering, to be sure, but not that love over which the morning stars sang together at the beginning of the world.

Mine Drainage Planned.

Mine drainage operations in South Staffordshire, England, by which 40,-000,000 tons of coal may be won from flooded pits, are now contemplated. These mines have been flooded for a quarter of a century. The coal area has been split up into various ownerships, and before a drainage commission came into existence each owner was supposed to pump the water from his own pits. Some of them failed to do this and in the end all of the pits were abandoned. A drainage commission has obtained power to pump out the pits and has secured a loan of $500,000 to do it with. The project is an extensive and difficult one, but mining experts declare that it offers no obstacles which modern engineering resources are unable to conquer. The re-starting of the mines means a large access of property to a district that stands in urgent need of it, and the prospect of restoring this long abandoned industry has created great interest in the neighborhood.

Digging Well to Drain a Bog. An ingenious Yankee who lives on the west coast of Florida adopted a novel method to drain a bog on his plantation. He put down a four-inch well in the middle of his bog deep around him, appealing in its freshness enough to tap the water bearing gravel. A nice flow of water was encoun-Lifting and shimmering mysterious- tered, which rose in the well nearly level with the bottom of the bog, the water in the pond rushed down into the well and passed off through subterranean channels. In a few hours the bog was drained. The land has since been plowed and is now a valuable truck farm. Scientists declare that wet lands in many sections of the country can be drained by this simple method. Care must be taken not to permit the well to fill up with rubbish, which might impede the ingress of the water.

Plenty of Raw material

"Crandpa," said the children, "tell as another story about the time when you were a young man and traveled with the show."

"Well," said Grandfather Dutton, when I was with Nixon & Kemp's circus, forty or fifty years ago, one of my great acts was to get a boy to put an apple on top of his head and then I would stand ten paces away and shoot a rifle ball through it." "But didn't you sometimes miss the apple and shoot the boy?" "Not often, but it happened once in while, of course.'

BURIED BY ANCIENT KINGS.

Rare Treasures Secreted in Lybian

Desert by Monarchs of Egypt. While studying in the British museum a papyrus which was published 4,000 years before Christ an Egyptologist recently found a clear and concise account of the treasures which the ancient sovereigns of Egypt buried ed in London for the purpose of searching for this wealth. The necessary funds have already been secured and in a short time a few skilled explorers will start for the desert, where the technical work will be prosecuted under the supervision of Messrs. Lake and Currie, two English engineers, The writer of the ancient papyrus says that the Pharaohs hid an immense quantity of gold and precious stones in the region which is known by the name of the "Valley of Kings," and there the first excavations will be made. The task will not be easy, since the country to be searched extends over 40,000 square leagues.

DIDN'T BELIEVE

That Coffee Was the Real Trouble. Some people flounder around and take everything that's recommended to them but finally find out that coffee is the real cause of their troubles. An Oregon man says:

"For 25 years I was troubled with my stomach. I was a steady coffee drinker but didn't suspect that as the cause. I doctored with good doctors and got no help, then I took almost anything which someone else had been cured with but to no good. I was very bad last summer and could not work at times.

I distressed me and I was weak and sick all over. When in that condition coffee was abandoned and I was put on Postum, the change in my feelings came quickly after the drink that was poisoning me was removed.

"The pain and sickness fell away from me and I began to get well day by day so I stuck to it until now I am well and strong again, can eat heartily with no headache, heart trouble or the awful sickness of the old coffee days. I drink all I wish of Postum without any harm and enjoy it immensely.

"This seems like a wonderfully strong story but I would refer you to the First National Bank, The Trust Banking Co., or any merchant of Grant's Pass, Ore., in regard to my standing and I will send a sworn statement of this if you wish. Hughson, of Chicago, whose letter follows, is another woman in high position who owes her health to the use of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM: - I suffered for several years with general weakness and bearing-down pains, caused by womb trouble. My appe-ite was fitful, and I would lie awake for hours, and could not sleep, ite was fitful, and I would be awake for hours, and could not sleep, mtil I seemed more weary in the morning than when I retired. After leading one of your advertisements I decided to try the merits of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and I am so glad I did. No one can describe the good it did me. I took three bottles faithfully, and lesides building up my general health, it drove all disease and poison out of my body, and made me feel as spry and active as a young girl. Mrs. Pinkham's medicines are certainly all they are claimed to be."—

Mrs. M. E. Hughson, 347 East Ohio St., Chicago, Ill.

Mrs. Pinkham's Talls How Ordinary Tasks Produce Displacements. Mrs. Pinkham Tells How Ordinary Tasks Produce Displacements.

Apparently trifling incidents in woman's daily life frequently produce displacements of the womb. A slip on the stairs, lifting during menstruation, standing at a counter, running a sewing machine, or attending to the most ordinary tasks may result in displacement, and a train of serious evils is started.

The first indication of such trouble should be the signal for quick action.

Don't let the condition become chronic through neglect or a mistaken idea that you can ever one it by exercise or leaving it alone.

that you can overcome it by exercise or leaving it alone.

More than a million women have regained health by the use of Lydia E.

Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. If the slightest trouble appears which you do not understand write to Mrs. Pinkham, at Lynn, Mass., for her advice, and a few timely words from her will show you the right thing to do. This advice costs you nothing, but it may mean life or happiness or both.

Mrs. Lelah Stowell, 177 Wellington St., Kingston, Ont., writes:

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM: - You are indeed godsend to women, and if they all knew what you could do for them, there would be no need of their dragging out miserable lives in agony. "I suffered for years with bearing-down pains, womb trouble, nervousness, and excruciating headache, but a few bottles of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound made life look new and promising to me. I am light and happy, and I do not know what sickness is, and I now enjoy the best of health."

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable

Compound can always be relied upon to restore health to women who thus suffer. It is a sovereign cure for the worst forms of female complaints, — that bearing-down feeling, weak back, falling and displacement of the womb, inflammation of the ovaries, and all troubles of the uterus or womb. It dissolves and expels tumors from the uterus in the early stage of development, and checks any tendency to cancerous humors. It subdues excitability, nervous prostration, and tones up the entire female system. Its record of cures is the greatest in the world, and should be relied upon with confidence.

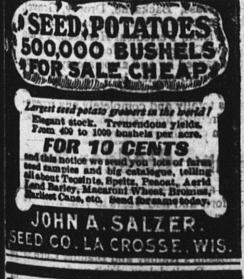

FORFEIT if we cannot forthwith produce the original letters and signatures of above testimonials, which will prove their absolute genuineness.

SUCH A LITTLE CRIME.

Wife's Forgiveness Granted Without Undue Pressure.

"Clara," said William Wharton, as he placed his arms around his wife and looked down into her eyes, "I have a confession to make to you, and I want you to promise, before I begin it, that you will forgive me." A wild fear took possession of her. She placed a little white hand upon her heart, and would have fallen if her husband had not held her up. Her face became livid, and she could only gasp, "Tell me-tell me what it is!"

"I cheated a man out of £50 to-day," he said. "Can you, darling-can you forgive me?"

The color came back into her cheeks, Her lips parted in a glad, sweet smile. She rested her head against his breast, and, looking fondly up into his eyes, said, "Oh, Will, dear, how you frightened me! I thought you were going to tell me that you had kissed some horrid woman."-London

FISH HARD TO KILL

incased in Mud, It Can Be Carrier

Across the World. A very unusual demonstration was recently given by Prof. Deany to his students at Firth college, Sheffield. Among the most ancient animals still inhabiting our planet is the so-called mud fish of Africa. This creature is worthy of our respect, if only in consideration of its antiquity, which dates far back in the early ages of the world. The most striking feature of the mud fish is the possession of lungs as well as gills. On the approach of the dry season, in its natural haunts in Central Africa, it hollows a chamber in the mud and enters upon a rest extending over many months, during which time it is without access to water, and breathes only

While in the mud these creatures may be dug up and survive even after a journey across the world in this dry state. Prof. Denny received one of these mud blocks not long ago. In the presence of the students the hard block was placed in warm water and after being thus exposed for nearly two hours the fish, that went to sleep in tropical Africa many months before, awoke and came forth from its temporary sepulchre to find itself in a bath of tap-water in the biological laboratory of Firth College.-New York Herald.

oldest dinner which has ever been eaten. A description was given by one of the guests, Mr. Amaziah Dukes. He says: "At the dinner I ate apples that ripened more than eighteen hundred years ago; bread made from wheat grown before the children of Israel passed through the Red sea, spread with butter which was made when Elizabeth was Queen of England; and I washed down the repast with wine which was old when Columbus was playing barefoot with the boys in Genoa. "The apples were from an earthen jar taken from the ruins of Pompeii. The wheat was taken from a chamber in one of the Pyramids, the butter from a stone shelf in an old well in Scotland, where for several centuries it had lain in an earthen crock in icy water, and the wine was recovered from an old vault in the city of Corinth. There were six guests at the table, and each had a mouthful of bread and a teaspoonful of wine, but was permitted to help himself bountifully to the butter, there being several pounds of it. The apple jar held about had been picked but yesterday."

Better Than Gold.

"I was troubled for several years with chronic indigestion and nervous debility." writes F. J. Green, of Lancaster, N. H. "No remedy helped me until I began using Electric Bitters, which did me more good than all the medicines I ever used. They have also kept my wife in excellent health for years. She says Electric Bit ters are just splendid for female troubles; that they are a grand tonic and invigorator weak, run down women. No other medicine can take its place in our family." Try them. LAWYER WAS NEATLY CAUGHT.

from Himself.

Employed by Firm to Collect Debt

For three years a certain Brooklyn business house has been trying to collect an undisputed bill of $20 from a lawyer whom I will call Baker because his real name is neither Baker nor Candlestickmaker. Whenever a colector has asked for the money the sawyer has scolded him like sixty for hothering a man of large affairs with so small a matter as a bill for $20.

The other day the business house received a typewritten letter from the lawyer, manifold copies of which had probably been sent to many other Brooklyn business houses. It read, in part, as follows:

"I take the liberty of writing you, thinking you may have some claims on your books that should be collected. I undertake collections as a branch of my business upon the principle: 'No collections, no charge.' Of course. I do not bring actions at law for nothing; neither do I sue unless authorized. I believe that collections are stepping stones to other legal business, and give an opportunity to become acquainted in my method of doing business"

Thereupon the business house sent the following answer, together with its bill against the lawyer:

"We have at hand your favor of the 23d inst. asking us to send you some of our uncollected bills, and we take tion, expressed the desire that Hagan arrested in Ann Arbor last week for pleasure in sending you herewith a bill which we have been trying to collect for a long time witnout suc-

"If you can do anything in this matter we would be pleased to send you other bills for collection.

"Will you kindly let us hear from Walter C. Mack, H. J. Brown, you at your earliest convenience?" Maybe this doesn't appeal especially to the lawyer's sense of humor, but it strikes me as being funnier than many a story that is not equally true. -Brooklyn Eagle.

"KING OF THE SEDANGS."

Adventurous Frenchman Set Up Monarchy for Himself.

M. Jacques Lebaudy's reported assumption of the title of emperor of the Sahara calls to mind the proclivity of adventurous Frenchmen to indulge in ambitions of this sort. Fifteen de Mayrema, who had formerly been an official in Cochin China, but entered himself at the hotel where he stayed as "Marie I., king of the Sedangs." The king of the Sedangs had quite a gay time of it in London, as he had sold several concessions in Paris and was simply rolling in money. He was repeating the operations in England when the French government issued a warning against him and he returned to the far east. Meanwhile the people of the Sedangs, who had really elected him king on his own suggestion were also cautioned by the Tonquin authorities to have no more to do with him. The king went to Hongkong, where he called on the governor and offered him the "Grand Cordon de l'Ordre de At a farmers' institute held in Sedang," which was not accepted, however. He died afterward from a snakebite on an island off the coast

THE LANGUAGE HE KNEW.

Immigrant Clearly Understood the Final Sentence.

"We are not exactly linguists," remarked the Ellis Island inspector thoughtfully, "but we all have a few stock phrases in nearly every language of the globe-things that we need in our business, you know. We also all have a theory that we can tell the nationality of a person at a glance.

"Well, the other day the regular interpreter was called away and I took his place for a few moments. The first to come before me was a man that I sized up as being an Italian. So I asked him in Italian where he was going. I might as well have been speaking Sanscrit; my Italian never touched him. Then I tried him in Servian and in three Polish dialects, then in Russian, and finally in German and French, but all to no pnrpose. Just then the regular interpreter came, and I said to him with some warmth:

"I wonder what — language this understands, anyhow?" "I understand that, sor," he said.
