BEAUTIFUL BUILDING

ARCHTETUAL WASHINGTON

A Monument to the Fact that Americans Can Appreciate the Beautiful—The Capitol Unsurpassed.

The city of Washington is invariably admired by the American sight seer but it is not always appreciated at its full value. Many people fail to realize that the Capitol presents the most imposing exterior of any building in the world and that no more beautiful interior has ever been built than that of the new Congressional Library. These are broad and sweeping claims and are clearly open to argument but tourists who have sifted Europe for its beauties from Baltic to Adriatic have repeatedly declared it to be the case.

The location of the Capitol to be sure, has much to do with its impressiveness. When a building is placed at the summit of a commanding hill it has already won half the battle. When you go further and surround it with a magnificent park you have given it a setting of lawn and forest green which will emphasize its beauties to the brilliance of a solitaire. Uncle Sam's house has both of these natural advantages in perfection, and it apparently has every other advantage in the same degree. It is immense in size yet it is possessed of a grand simplicity. It has been built a part at a time and additions have been made now and again but the unity has been preserved throughout. The classical orders of capital and column are the most prominent features of the architectural treatment and are in striking sympathy with the idea which the building represents.

The magnificent distances impress you. Standing at the Congressional end and looking away off down at the Senate wing, you can hardly realize that the endless succession of windows and stair approaches belongs to a continuous structure. What, perhaps, impresses you more than anything else about the building is the wonder that the lusty young Western Republic, a mere child in experience and available resources, was able, early in the last century to build a capitol which is still, in our maturity of wealth and culture a credit to us. It would have been so easy for an architectural atrocity to have been committed which would be a national laughing stock today. The building was designed and begun when practically no consideration, outside of the south, was given to architecture and the statesman who were wise enough, at such a time, to call on the finest building ability of the world, deserve a place in history.

It is difficult to understand how the Congressional Library even got by Uncle Joe Cannon, the new speaker, for he has had the reputation for many years of scaling off all the beauty from building, appropriations and leaving nothing but the utility. However it may have happened, Congress, in all the ups and downs of the quality of its legislation, has struck few high water marks more to its credit. The building is so successful that it is certain, as long as it stands, to be a powerful factor in our artistic development.

As you swing the massive curved doors, and cross the open corridor and stand beneath one of the marble arches which surround the main court, you are possessed with an awe which is indescribable; a personality seems to fill the place, lurking behind every chiseled column, the personality of beauty itself. The refinement of the whole, the suggestion of a golden age when men lived in such a home as this and move in such an atmosphere as this, the mental elevation of your own impression, are such as to render adequate description impossible. You can take it to pieces, dissecting a little at a time, the main court with a ground staircase at the right and another at the left, the two exactly alike except in the designs of the carving which ornaments them; the groups of heavy marble arches on the four sides supporting the four surrounding galleries above to which the stairways lead; the bewildering succession of marble column standing two abreast, which outline the sides of the main court on the gallery floor; the profusion of marble everywhere, fleecy white marble with the finest cobweb of veining—you can go over it all in detail, but you learn nothing which lessens your wonder. The beauty is still a mystery.

In the corridors surrounding the court on the main floor and in the galleries on the second, you find the mural paintings which have already become famous. There are none in this country, within our knowledge, which compare with them, except the two or three which ornament the staircase of the Boston Public Library. You find them here in the greatest profusion; there must be at least fifty and all with life size figures. The subjects are the traditional ones of mythology, the development of the book, etc.; but the treatment and execution are new in wall decoration because of the scale.

ing has come to suggest to us allegorical figures in washed-water colors, but it takes on a new meaning here. You find genuine colors, almost like oil, deep and brilliant or the refinement of daintiness, as the study demands. You find, too, good drawings and above all an inspired imagination on the part of the several artists which takes the paintings out of the rank of ordinary wall decorations and gives them a place with genuine art.

In the Congressional and Senate reading rooms you find perfection again in what might be termed the domestic branch of interior decoration. The rooms might either of them be libraries in a fine American home but it is doubtful whether they are really equalled even in the palace of a Carnegie or a Rockefeller. On entering you have an impression that the rooms are rather dark, but they are not in the least depressing. A high, paneled, oak wainscoting and a fine floor in the same wood are the distinguishing features, both stained in a deep, cathedral brown, and finished with a depth of luster which gives character and tone to the whole room. Above the wainscoting in each is a fabric while the ceilings are painted and are handsomely decorated in harmonious colors. You are here, as everywhere in the building impressed with the restraining good taste of the architects. Given their unlimited choice of the nest and most elaborate materials for their work they might very easily have been guilty of an excess of decoration.

It is such work as this which is fast making Washington the American Paris. Congress has been liberal in its building appropriations, fine hotels of the New York family type are building and on Connecticut avenue beyond Dupont Circle, some of the most magnificent homes outside of New York have been seen. The capitol has developed a social life which is far more truly American than that of the Four Hundred. It is brains and culture court for something and a man who has made a name for himself and fared well enough at the hands of the world to keep himself presentable, stands a very good chance of admission. It is a cosmopolitan circle and can count more titles among its diplomats and attaches than the entire part of the country which does not sign itself "D. C." It is this brilliance of its social life which is improving the city so rapidly. Ex-Senators who can afford it abandon their ungainly constituency to the fate which they deserves settle themselves in Washington for the rest of their days; and men who have forced their millions up a decimal point or two and are bent on buying the best kind of life there is during the few remaining years they can stand at the counter, come here, build palaces, and add their searchlights to the illumination.

If the plans for beautifying the city with which our own late Senator McMillan had so much to do, are ever completed, and Congress, in some One and Twentieth Century burst of extravagance, builds the double row of government palaces in the national park between the monument and the Capitol, which are already designed and exhibited in model, Washington will be worth coming back to earth for. Heaven only knows what use would be found for all these marble palaces. Senators and Representatives can live in some; others will make suitable presents for victorious admirals; and the remainder, no doubt, will be useful as granaries when the Agricultural Department adopts a truly Roman munificence and gives us all seed enough to make planting unnecessary.

EDUCATION IN ENGLAND.

London Journal Says It Is the Worst of Any Highly-Civilized Country.

Whatever the explanation may be, there is unfortunately a contempt for education throughout all classes in this country. Naturally, therefore, our education is the worst of any highly-civilized country, says the London Statist. And because it is so we are gradually losing ground and our competitors are forging ahead of us. We are losing ground, not alone in trade and manufactures, but in every department of life. Our whole government system is inefficient to a surprising degree. What our army is we saw in South Africa. What our administrative departments are we have had of late several disconcerting illustrations.

If, then, we are to recover our old place in the world it is in the highest degree desirable that we should reform our system of education and supply all classes from the highest to the lowest with a real and scientific mental training. In order to oppose logically Mr. Chamberlain's proposals there is no need to deny that this country does not hold now the position of preeminence which it held formerly. Indeed, we venture to think that reasonable and thoughtful men, like Lord Rosebery rather injure the cause they have at heart than promote it by making such a denial.

THE MELON CONVERTS

AN AMUSING REMINISCENCE

Gift of Watermelons to Two Converts Who Had Been Baptized Created a Misapprehension Among Rest of Tribe.

The news of the conversion to Christianity, and the baptism of the celebrated Apache chief, Geronimo, recalls some interesting episodes in the history of the old warrior and his people. After many years of almost constant depredations upon American frontier settlements, these Bedouins of the border mountains of the southwest were captured, while on one of their predatory excursions, by troops under Gen. Miles. Soon after their capture the general caused the entire tribe, men, women and children, to be marched to the nearest railroad station and shipped thence bodily by rail out of the reach of the mountain region in which they had previously found concealment.

The tribe reached Fort Leavenworth, Kan., in due time and was placed in camp on the military reservation. For a time the Indians seemed well contented, but they grew restless at length and many of them began to wander about at a distance from their camp, hoping, doubtless, to escape observation of the guards and eventually be able to make a dash for liberty.

The war department being advised of these indications determined to anticipate such possible venture by sending the tribe still further away from their old haunts. Mt. Vernon barracks, Ala., was selected for the purpose and the Indians were at once hurried to this historic place, where they were placed in log cabins built in the pine forests adjoining the barracks. In this forest, and under the same trees, doubtless, an American force under Gen. Wilkinson encamped for some time in 1813, previous to his capture of Mobile from its Spanish garrison.

A school house was erected in the Indian village and two or three American teachers were employed to instruct the children. An army chaplain was ordered to the village to superintend the school and instruct the Indians in the elements of Christian ethics.

The barracks at the time was garrisoned by the United States troops, and a chaplain was on duty with them. The two chaplains from the first were zealous in their efforts to convert the Indians to Christianity, and labored among them untiringly with that object in view. The efforts of one of the reverend gentlemen were at last crowned with some success, and a couple of Indian warriors expressed a desire to live Christian lives. The chaplain warmly welcomed the converts, and in time, when they had given satisfactory evidence of a change of heart, advised that they should be baptized. The rite was finally accomplished in the presence of many of the Indians, who had assembled in the school house for public worship.

On the following day a planter passed through the village with a load of watermelons for sale. The chaplain on duty with the Indians purchased several melons from the man and presented one each to the new converts, who happened to be with him.

The act was prompted purely by kindness, but it was not so understood by the simple minded people. The news spread quickly through the village that the converts, Hard-Smeller and Straight-Horn, had been rewarded by a gift for receiving the rite of baptism. The tribe rose to its feet as one man, metaphorically speaking, and expressed its willingness to accept the rite on the same terms. Hard-Smeller and his companion endeavored to correct the misapprehension, but the people refused to believe them. They had been caught in the act of accepting a gift from the chaplain, and no other cause for this exceptional kindness, except their submission to baptism, was apparent to the untutored mind of the poor Apaches.

Both chaplains were immediately thereafter subjected to liberal proposals, wholesale and retail, by Indians who desired to submit to the rite of baptism for a consideration similar to that which they believed had been accorded to Hard-Smeller and his doughty companion.

The failure of the Indians to drive the bargains they proposed, and the lapse of the watermelon season soon after the Hard-Smeller incident, had doubtless much to do with the suspension of interest suddenly awakened in the teachings of the chaplains.

LOVE'S THE SAME FROM DAY TO DAY.

Winnie kissed her mirrored face,
Smiled and blushed, and ran away;
Peeking through the curtain's lace,
Winnie saw the pretty play.
Came and found the misty trace,
Beauty's bow that did betray,
And he kissed the very place,
"Love's the same from day to day."

Winnie kissed her mirrored face—
Who can tell her mild dismay,
When in later days of grace,
He, the secret, did betray,
And, with lover-like embrace,
Told his sequel to her play.
As he kissed the very place—
"Love's the same from day to day."

How the years fly on apace—
Winnie's bold and Winnie's gray,
And they saw with sweet disgrace,
Laughing, blue-eyed little May,
Who hides in her dwelling place,
Play the same old pretty play—
Saw her kiss her mirrored face,
Smile, and blush, and run away!
And they found the misty trace,
Beauty's bow that did betray,
And they kissed the very place—
"Love's the same from day to day."

A DOUBTFUL VICTORY

By GERTRUDE A. HOLMAN

Copyrighted, 1900, by The Authors Publishing Company.

Kendall, waiting for a car, wondered somewhat anxiously if he should find Miss Kinsolving at home. Everyone appeared to be out enjoying the first spring weather; the sidewalks were thronged and bicycles and automobiles darted audaciously among sedate vehicles. As he boarded his car Kendall glanced up Arapahoe street; the spire of St. Elizabeth's pointed to the sky, and, creeping up behind the Rockies he noted a rim of gray.

Three hours later he stood again by the Mining Exchange; lights shone bluely through whirling snowflakes, disgruntled chauffeurs urged wheezing "autos" over slippery streets, and grumbling, shivering men and women hurried to catch outgoing cars.

Kendall, aglow with happiness, braced himself against the storm as a young girl might. He had found Miss Kinsolving at home; he had found her in her prettiest gown and most charming mood. When he pleaded, for the hundredth time perhaps, that she say when she would marry him, she had not put him off, but had set an early date. And now he was trying to devise an excuse for calling again that evening.

His car came, but he could not enter till a determined, storm buffeted woman had superintended the loading of her wheel.

Kendall was fastidious—finical, his friends called him. A lady perched on a bicycle or steering a horseless carriage through crowded streets offended his sense of fitness. He recalled the effort it had cost him to prevail upon Miss Kinsolving to confine her to old-fashioned means of locomotion and smiled contentedly.

"That," he mused, "was the beginning of my success; until then our engagement even was a flimsy affair; if I had never proved myself the more determined, Marion never would have been ready to marry me."

The thin man sitting opposite Kendall looked across the Evening Tribune and addressed his portly wife:

"Here's a story by a local writer, Marion Kinsolving," he observed. "The paper gives her a puff; says it is a distinctly clever study of emotions."

"It isn't true to life, the man wins the game; his sweetheart determines to have an automobile, and he dissuades her."

Kendall was interested; Marion, he knew, was mildly literary; had she made copy of him?

He opened the Tribune hastily when he reached home. The "clever study" was a photograph. Kendall scarcely read; he lived again the scene. When he reached the point where Marion, appearing as Miriam Kinsolving, advised him in biting tones to seek a sweetheart with as ultra as his own, Kendall felt his jaw setting into biting, disappointed lines; but when, in the next sentence, "George Wendell's" name did likewise, he was angry enough to be sure. "If it didn't conform to human nature it would be valueless as fiction. I find portrayed a type of lovers' quarrels such as thousands have indulged in. What matter whether you and I have done so?"

"Ah! type!" said Kendall drily. "I'll say that to inquiring friends. Such a striking dissimilarity even in names—Miriam Kinsolving, Miriam Kingsley; Frank Kendall, George Wendell. Why, people can't help but recognize us!"

"Frank, you are positively foolish. You are no more likely to be recognized as George Wendell than you would be as Bartholomew Huxtable."

"Possibly not. Without the names there is evidence enough to convict us. I am engaged to Miss Kinsolving and I detest automobiles; Miss Kinsolving detests automobiles, though most of her friends affect them; she wrote this story, and in it her doubts is persuaded by the identical argument I used, voiced by an unheroic hero who resembles me strongly enough to be my twin. Some one is sure to note the coincidence, and presently every one we know will be collecting evidence to corroborate the suspicion."

"Frank! Do you really think we will be recognized?"

"I wish I had a doubt of it," returned Kendall, gloomily.

There was silence in the room. Miss Kinsolving was so obviously agitated that Kendall felt half mollified.

"We must disarm suspicion," she said at length. "There is just one way unless, faltering slightly, 'you wish to break our engagement.'"

"Marion! What a suggestion!"

"Then to-morrow you and I must go about town in a horseless carriage. George Wendell induced his fiancée to abandon automobiling. If you and I take up the sport it will be clear that you are not George Wendell."

"There is too much snow," said Kendall, grimly.

"There won't be, on the pavements. To-morrow afternoon."

"I'm so sorry, Frank," penitently whispered Miss Kinsolving when they returned the following day from a delightful spin through the crisp, invigorating air. Her cheeks were glowing, ty head drooped and rested on the arm of his chair, where the glow from pink-shaded candles made so exquisite a sheen upon it that Wendell melted and touched it caressingly. (How did Marion know that her hair reflected the light? And why, at least, could she not have colored the shades blue or yellow?)

When his counterpart had won the day and was rapturously happy, Kendall started up, crushed the paper in his pocket, and set out for Miss Kinsolving's.

She greeted him delightedly. "How courageous," she cried blithely, "to brave this storm. There's a roaring fire in the library; let us sit there."

None but the most indolent can restrain a deep sense of admiration for such sturdy and energetic characters as the vigorous old lady mentioned in the following anecdote:

"I recall an amusing incident in Brooklyn," says Dr. Dixon of Boston, who has a class in New Testament Greek in his Sunday school. "An old lady of 70 presented herself one day as a member of the class, and to my inquiry if she intended to 'rub up her Greek,' she replied, 'Rub up nothing. I don't know the alphabet. But you said the other day that Cato learned Greek at 80, and what a man can do at 80, a woman certainly can do at 70. And she did.'"

That spirit of determination which never fails to win success shows forth in every word of her brief reply, and one hardly needs the added statement that she accomplished her purpose. Such people are the mainsprings of progress.

And He Did.

A story is told of high Indian officer who was in the habit of soundly thrashing his servants when they displeased him. One day he ordered his kamsamah to go to a summer-house in the compound and wait for him there, present turning up with a heavy horsehair. He then addressed the outsider:

"Now, you scoundrel, I've got you in a place where no one can hear, and I'll just thrash you within an inch of your life."

The servant, though a man of powerful physique, squirmed, native-like. "San, you sure no one can hear?"

"Yes, you scoundrel, I've brought you here on purpose."

"Then, sah, I think I thrash you; and he did it so thoroughly that his master was not visible for a week."

Sanctuary for Homeless Cats.

To the Church of San Lorenzo, the oldest in Florence, belongs a unique distinction among Christian places of worship, in that the cloisters attached to it are as an asylum for homeless cats. A kitten left in early life without visible means of support may find in the church and orphan asylum, while many an old Thomas, weary of disastrous chances, moving accidents, and hairbreadth escapes, has sought its retirement as a home for the aged, where he might live out the residue of his nine lives in peace and quietude. How the strange custom, now generations old, originated is not known, but it appears to have become fixed, for the cats of San Lorenzo are hardly less well known than the pigeons of St. Mark.

One Was Wavering.

Rev. Joseph H. Johnson, whose fund of good stories seems never to diminish, tells an anecdote about the young hopeful of a United States senator.

It was on the occasion of the visit of the religious census-taker that this seven-year-old distinguished himself. His parents were absent and the child presented himself saying he was perfectly competent to answer any questions. When informed of the census-taker's business, he answered thus:

"Well, my father is a Unitarian; my mother is an Episcopalian. I am an Episcopalian, but Francis," indicating a petticoated, five-year-old brother—"Francis is wavering."

Rev. Dr. Kuendig explained that he would pay the bill, as he had agreed privately to pay to the boys a cent each for all the rats and mice they caught, to rid the home of the pests.

her hair was fluffed by the breeze, but her eyes were serious. "I don't care over to ride in an automobile again."

HAIRY AINUS OF JAPAN.

Aboriginal Race Low in the Scale of Mankind.

In the northern island of the Japanese group live the Ainu, the hairy aboriginals of Japan. The men are of low stature, thick set, full-bearded, with bushy black hair, muscular in frame and limbs and with large hands and feet. They have no alphabet, no writings of any kind. Their dwellings are made of poles covered over with thick straw mats, with thatched roofs, the windows and doors being holes covered with the same materials. The earth beaten down hard forms the floor. The fireplace with its pot-hooks occupies the center; there being no chimney, the interior walls become thickly varnished with copious, densely packed with flakes of carbon or festooned with masses of soot. The Ainu dress consists of an upper and a lower garment, having tight sleeves and reaching to the knees; they also wear straw leggings and straw shoes. Their hair, which is astonishingly thick, is clipped short in front and falls in masses down the back and sides of the shoulders. The beard and mustache are allowed to grow to their full length, sometimes reaching eighteen inches. The women are of about the same stature and build, and most of them are very ugly-looking. This arises from the fact that they tattoo a wide band of dirty blue around their lips, tapering upward on each side to a point, and they also tattoo geometrical figures on their hands and forearms.

RUSSIA'S GREAT FAIR

ONE OF THE CHIEF SIGHTS OF THE EMPIRE

(Special Correspondence.)

The man who wishes to gather some idea of the vast size and power of the Russian Empire should visit the city of Nijni-Novgorod—or Nijni, as the Russians call it—during the great Makarievskaya fair, which lasts from August 5 to September 15.

It is a unique spectacle. Nowhere else on earth is there an annual fair of even a quarter the size; nowhere else is there such a picturesque gathering of the races of Europe and Asia. For six weeks the town's normal population of 95,000 is swollen to anywhere from 200,000 to 300,000. Rich tea merchants from China, swarthy dealers in the gorgeous carpets and rugs of Turkestan, fierce Tekke and Khivan tribesmen, who were fighting against Russia less than a generation ago, and even now look more like warriors than traders; horse dealers from Afghanistan, Armenians and Circassians from the frosty Caucasus, and even Tibetans, who have wandered afar from their hermit kingdom, all rub shoulders with Russians, Greeks, Turks, Englishmen, Americans and traders of a thousand articles from every nook and corner of Europe.

All the numerous races and tribes who own the sway of the czar are represented in this vast assembly, and more tongues are spoken than were ever heard at the Tower of Babel. "Czar of all the Russias" becomes an intelligible title to the visitor to Nijni-Novgorod.

The town cannot contain the vast horde of strangers who come to do business at the fair. Thousands of shops and booths are erected in the surrounding fields the rivers Oka and Volga are crowded with boats so thickly that navigation is barely possible, and the river banks are covered for ten miles with tents, huts, heaps of merchandise and the encampments of Tsigane gypsies, Hindoo jugglers, Persian fortune-tellers, and a host of other mountebanks, who have come from every corner of Asia to create the fun of the fair.

The fair is still one of the main factors in the internal trade of Russia, but it is slowly declining in size and importance every year. The Trans-Siberian railroad will largely decrease its business by enabling Asiatic merchants to deal directly and quickly with Moscow, St. Petersburg and the other principal commercial centers of Russia.

Nijni typifies the commercial importance of Russia and the vast extent of its dominions. Moscow—and more particularly the Kremlin—is regarded by every Russian as the shrine of his national pride and spiritual life. It is the holy place of Russia, and the holy of holies is the Cathedral of the Assumption, where the Czars crown themselves, solemnly reciting their fifty-four titles. One part of this cathedral is regarded as so sacred that no woman is allowed to enter it.

Many people think of the Kremlin as a building. It is really a part of the city enclosed by a huge wall, and containing the principal churches, palaces and other buildings. It was originally built as a city of refuge from the Tartar hordes.

The chief entrance is by the "Redeemer Gate," over which there is a picture of the Redeemer of Smolensk. Nobody passes under this picture without taking off his hat and bowing, however great his hurry may be. Until quite recently, any person who neglected this mark of respect was compelled by the authorities to prostrate himself fifty times before the picture. Even the Czar never passes through this gate without uncovering.

High above all the other buildings of the Kremlin rises the white, solid Ivan Tower, erected in honor of Ivan Veliky, a Russian military hero, who erected in honor of the tactfulness of a hostess in a trying situation. One of the few such, if not the only one, is a boulder from the battlefield of Harlem Heights, removed to Park avenue in New York to mark the site of the home of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Murray, who entertained and so delighted the British officers under Gen. Howe while the American troops under Gen. Putnam were escaping from the city. The monument which bears an inscription on brass setting forth Mrs. Murray's achievement, was dedicated recently. What a difference there might have been in American history if Mrs. Murray had been a less capable hostess.—Youth's Companion.

In Honor of Tact.

It is not often that a monument is erected in honor of the tactfulness of a hostess in a trying situation. One of the few such, if not the only one, is a boulder from the battlefield of Harlem Heights, removed to Park avenue in New York to mark the site of the home of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Murray, who entertained and so delighted the British officers under Gen. Incredibly Abstemious.

Exploration is a subject which has a special interest for J. M. Barrie, as the writer's recent gift of $250 to the Scottish Antarctic expedition would indicate, and he always has taken particular delight in the society of seekers after the undiscovered. In Barrie's early days Joseph Thomson, the African explorer, was one of his chief friends and greatest heroes, and the novelist made the traveler one of his famous "Edinburgh Eleven." "Perhaps," wrote Barrie of Thomson, "his most remarkable feat consisted in taking a bottle of brandy into the heart of Africa and bringing it back intact."—New York Daily News.

Radium Gas.

Helium, the radioactive gas given off by radium, is a well-defined and rather inert gas, nearly as light as hydrogen, and is present in large amounts in the envelope of the sun, in a number of stars and in small quantities in a few rare volcanic minerals.

Gold-Filled Chains.

A large amount of gold-filled chains for optical and other purposes are exported from the United States to Germany, and this line of goods is deservedly popular in that country.

the Black Sea, there are numbers of small communities, mostly of fisher-folk, where the people have blue eyes and fair hair and other strong characteristics of Norsemen.

These fair-haired people speak a dialect quite different from the Slavonic of their neighbors, and it has been discovered by etymologists that many of the words of their speech are similar to words in German or Danish.

It has been found that in the great sweep the Gothic tribes made of Southern Europe in the Middle Ages, the Crimea, being a peninsula, was like a pocket, and caught some of the onswEEPing Northmen.

IN AN AFRICAN PRISON.

Frightful Conditions Under Rule of Savage Potentate.

An English officer visiting the African city of Kano soon after its recent capture by the British thus describes the dungeon for prisoners:

"A small doorway two feet six inches by one foot six inches gives access into it. The interior is divided by a thick mud wall with a similar hole through it into two compartments, each 17 feet by 7 feet and 11 feet high. This wall was pierced with holes at its base, through which the legs of those sentenced to death were thrust up to the thigh, and they were left to be trodden on by the mass of other prisoners till they died of thirst and starvation. The place is entirely airtight and unventilated, except for the one small doorway, or rather hole, in the wall through which you creep. The total space inside is 2,618 cubic feet and at the time we took Kano 135 human beings were confined here each night, being let out during the day to cook their food in the small adjoining area. Recently as many as 200 have been interred at one time. As the superficial ground area was only 238 square feet there was not, of course, even standing room. Victims were crushed to death every night and their corpses were hauled out each morning. One of the great pools in the city is marked as the place where men's heads were cut off at the arbitrary order of the king; another, near the great market, is the site where limbs were amputated almost daily for theft or some less crime."

When the tea is made and the lid of the teapot is forgotten for a minute or two, it is a sure sign that some one will drop in for the meal. Two spoons put by chance into the saucer of a maid or a bachelor denote that he or she will be married within a year. Putting cream into your tea before you sweeten it will bring you love troubles. A tea stalk floating in a girl's teacup is a "beau." She should stir her tea briskly and then hold the spoon upright in the center. If the "beau" be attracted toward the spoon and cling to it a gentleman visitor may be expected some time that evening. If, however, the "beau" goes to the side of the cup the visitor will not come that day.

Omens in Tea.

Foreign chambers of commerce are of Austro-Hungarian origin, for in 1870 the first Austro-Hungarian Chamber of Commerce was opened in Constantinople; afterward similar institutions were opened in Alexandria, Paris and London. In the spring of 1903 an Austro-Hungarian Chamber of Commerce was opened in Melbourne. The English, adopting the example of the Austrians, founded a Chamber of Commerce in Paris. The Austrians have been far surpassed in number of these institutions by the English, who now have thirty in foreign countries and 100 in their own colonies. The United States has Chambers of Commerce in Paris, Brussels, London, Berlin, Sydney and Shanghai.

How the Pastor Saved a Life.

A man near Fort Gay, Va., made an entire failure in getting strength from the kind of food he ate and not knowing that the trouble was with the food kept on losing health until the doctors gave him up to die.

It was supposed to be consumption because he was wasting away steadily and slowly dying. His minister called from time to time and one day brought along a package of Grape-Nuts, thinking from what he knew of the famous food that perhaps it might help him. The sick man took to it at once and from that day began to get well. In writing he says:

"I walked to town to-day 3 miles. Have gained over 40 pounds in about 2 months and my neighbors don't know what to say. I frequently am told it was as if I am raised from the dead. Everybody here knows of my case, you can tell people to write to the Postmaster or Rev. L. D. Bryan. I will make a sworn statement that Grape-Nuts saved my life." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

This is another illustration that where all other food fails one can be brought back to health and strength on Grape-Nuts. "There's a reason."

Blades of Even Length.

In days when tavern brawls were frequent and swords were out on the slightest provocation, common fairness demanded that the blades of chance combatants should be of equal length. In a sudden affray there would be no thought of measuring swords, so the authorities took the matter into their own hands at the gates of the city of London, where every gallant was liable to be challenged, and if the public official found any blade beyond thirty-six inches the smith stood by to snap off the steel to the required length. If Queen Elizabeth's reign this was the common practice.

Got the Right Kind.

Gainesville, Texas, Feb. 22nd.—Mrs. L. E. Burton of 507 Glad street, this city, writes the following letter:

"I have been awfully troubled with my kidneys; I was in a bad fix and had been doctoring with the Doctors, but was getting no better. I tried a remedy called Dodd's Kidney Pills and I found they did me lots of good. I had a slight return of my trouble and I went to the Drug Store and called for Dodd's Kidney Pills. They said there was no such pills. I told them there was. They said they had the best pills that were made and persuaded me to try a box of another kind, not Dodd's. As I needed some medicine, I bought a box, but they did me no good so I went elsewhere and got the real Dodd's Kidney Pills and very soon was completely cured. I took a box up to the Drug Store and showed them that there was such pills and asked them to order some, but as I haven't needed any more I haven't called to see whether or not they got them."

FISH CUT OF WATER.

Many Specimens Are at Home on the Dry Land.

Many fish cut a much better figure out of water than we do in it, though we are accustomed to think of them as inhabitants of the water only.

For instance, there is the "stare-about," a kind of goby that at ebb tide walks calmly up on the sand banks erect on two huge fore fins. With his gigantic goggle eyes he keeps a sharp lookout for crabs and such things as are left behind by the receding water.

Then we all know that eels can wriggle, snakelike, miles across the meadows to other ponds and rivers. In Holland carp are kept all winter hung up in a net and sprinkled only occasionally with water.

The Indian "shake-head" is quite happy even when his native pond dries up, and lies torpid till the next rainy season.

The flying gurnard will keep ahead of an ocean liner going at full speed, and fly for many minutes in quick successive flights of 300 yards or so at a time.—Exchange.

CHANGED ITS NAME

The Four Mile Lake Cement Concern Has Reorganized and Is Now Prepared to Push Forward the Work.

The legal tangle, which for a time threatened to permanently put an end to the cement manufacturing project at Four-Mile lake, has at last been settled by the satisfaction of certain judgments which was done Saturday at Ann Arbor.

The name of the company has been changed from that of West German Portland Cement Co. to the White Portland Cement Co. The stock has been reduced from $1,000,000 to $500,000 and on this reorganized basis the company will soon begin active operations as already reported by The Standard.

WASHINGTON'S MEMORY.

Mrs. L. T. Freeman Entertained A Company of Ladies Monday Afternoon in a Manner Befitting the Day.

Washington's Birthday was very agreeably marked for quite a large company of ladies by the genial hospitality extended on that day by Mrs. L. T. Freeman. The occasion was ostensibly dedicated to thimble and needle practice but social enjoyment early dispelled the desire for close application to the seamstress' art.

In the spirit of the day many came dressed in such garbs of the past as would call to mind historical recollections. Notable among those so gowned was Mrs. H. W. Schmidt in a brocade silk that had figured in the social life of old Ireland, the dress being originally owned by the grandmother of Mrs. Greening of this place. Mrs. D. C. McLaren wore the Millard Filmore jewels and a gown associated with White House memories.

The dining room and table decorations further carried out the idea of the day. American flags figured in every design and the portrait of the Father of His Country was also noticeable.

The occasion was a highly successful social event.

FARMERS CLUB.

The Western Washtenaw Farmers Club met at the home of Mr. and Mrs. E. S. Spaulding Thursday February 18. Although there was a northeast snow storm raging there were sixty present. The intervening time before dinner was spent in friendly gossip and in playing games and judging by the hum of voices each one was trying to outdo the other. A dinner such as the ladies of Western Washtenaw know how to prepare, was served from twelve to two.

The meeting was called to order at 2:30 and a good program followed. The day of meeting was changed from Thursday to Friday, in order to give the editors of our local papers the privilege of meeting with the farmers. They will always be made welcome at every meeting.

The place of next meeting will be announced later. Do not forget the change of day. The third Friday of each month.

MORTALITY IN JANUARY, 1904.

There were 3,126 deaths reported to the Secretary of State for the month of January, corresponding to a death rate of 14.7 per 1,000 population. The number was 184 larger than that registered for the preceding month, and is also greater than the number for January, 1903.

By ages there were 490 deaths of infants under 1 year of age, 210 deaths of children aged 1 to 4 years, and 982 deaths of elderly persons over 65 years of age. The age distribution was practically the same as for the preceding month.

Important causes of death were as follows: pulmonary tuberculosis, 176; other forms of tuberculosis, 25; typhoid fever, 57; diphtheria and croup, 83; scarlet fever, 34; measles, 12; whooping cough, 19; pneumonia, 412; influenza, 10; cancer, 134; accidents and violence, 180. There was one death from smallpox, which occurred in Kalkaska county.

MASS MEETING

A mass meeting to determine whether the Junior Stars are to be organized the coming season or not and to look over the prospects for a winning team this year, will be held at Forester hall, Tuesday evening at 8 p. m. The question as to who will pitch for Chelsea the coming year will be decided. A special invitation is extended to everyone, especially to the ladies.

How much more of worth a live man is than a dead one seem to be well illustrated in the death of the late Sen. Hanna. A short time ago a reputable magazine writer stated that Sen. Hanna was worth thirty millions of dollars. At his death the estimate was scaled down and now when his property

EARLY BASE BALL NOTES.

The Ypsilanti High school, which the Stars defeated last season by a score of 4 to 1, have asked for two games with the local team.

The question whether the boys will purchase new suits this year or not can not be answered until it is decided whether or not we are to have a Junior Star team or one operating under another name. In case the Stars are reorganized few new suits will be needed.

An old fan suggested the following the other day: "Why not try and get Chandler Rogers back to pitch the opening game?" This would undoubtedly prove a pleasing suggestion if it could be carried through. He was always popular with the Chelsea fans, through his earnest endeavors, when the rest of the team had given up in despair, and has often saved games, which but for his sticktiveness, would have been lost.

In a letter received from Pitcher McCain, of Ann Arbor, who was a member of last year's Junior Stars, during the latter part of the season, and who pitched the Stars to a 7 to 4 victory over the Detroit Juniors, which gave the Stars the undisputed title of junior champions of Michigan. He says that he is anxious to sign to pitch for Chelsea the coming season. As he is one of the best kid pitchers of the State, and with Rogers lost for this summer, the ball enthusiasts of this place may arouse sufficient enthusiasm to contribute enough funds to bring him here. With McCain as a pitcher and backed by most of last season's players the team would be a winner.

The names of the towns at which the happy couple would make a more or less prolonged stay were lettered in enamel.

BEN HUR

An Effort Being Made to Interest the People of the State, as Well as Detroit, Where It Appears Soon.

Klaw & Erlanger's massively ornate spectacle, "Ben Hur", is to be staged at the Detroit Opera House, Detroit, Mich., for the week beginning Monday evening, March 14, with matinees on Wednesday and Saturday.

The dramatization of General Lew Wallace's great novel has been seen very little outside New York. William Young, who made the dramatization, succeeded most admirably in the production of a drama which not only retains the most absolute fidelity to General Wallace's great book but which does not offend the most devout Christian. Prof. Edgar Stillman Kelley has heightened the solemnity of "Ben Hur" with music that is positive delight to the ear. The stage settings provided by Klaw & Erlanger have never been equaled in this country. The picture of the "Star of Bethlehem", the "City of Jerusalem" from the terrace garden of the palace of Hur in Judea, the interior of a "Roman Galley", the "Grove of Daphne", the "Fountain of Castalia", the "Chariot Race" and the "Mount of Olives" are remarkable exhibits of the best scenic art.

To these are added some wonderful effects in lighting, as in the "Star of Bethlehem", and in stage contrivances, as in the thrilling chariot race. The mechanism that goes to affect the chariot race cost more than $15,000. Eight horses run in full view of the audience.

The great scene which closes the play is the healing of the lepers on Mount Olivet. Here hundreds of people are arranged in picturesque groupings, the whole forming one of the most beautiful pictures ever put upon the stage.

The personality of the Nazarene is not shown in the play, but in this scene the nearness of His presence is indicated with the most intense impressiveness by a shaft of the purest white light. The dramatization is carefully constructed so as to remove it from the domain of so-called Passion plays, and while the Saviour is only referred to, yet His tremendous dominating power is felt with thrilling effect.

Advance sale of seats begins at the Detroit Opera House, March 10 at which time and place seats may be secured in the usual way.

A movement is being made in Covert, Van Buren county, for a rural high school. A petition is being circulated and all the taxpayers so far asked, except nine, have signed the paper. The question of the plan's effect on taxes is the main point of discussion.

War news:--The battle of Ping Pong has begun. The Japs opened with a ping and the Russians replied with a pong and soon everywhere the ping-pong became general. Especially active are the war correspondents who are at all times handy with a racket. They are great factors in the battle of Ping Pong.

Ed. Chandler and family returned Sunday from his extended visit to Vermont and New Hampshire. He gives us to understand that this neck of the woods is not the only locality that has been having a spell of weather. Where he has been they have had more snow and the thermometer frequently registered 40 degrees below zero. He ought to be glad to be back here and he appears to be.

Wrecked on Unfriendly Coast. A Hamburg journal prints particulars of the recent losing of three steamers (English, French and German) which were stranded on the coast of Liberia. The natives also maltreated the passengers.

The recent thaws and subsequent freezes drove hundreds of oons from their accustomed haunts in the underbrush about Coldwater, and the swamps are now filled with them. The animals are easily captured, as the absence of large trees deprives them of a place of refuge.

The total additions to the library of the University of Michigan during the past year, were 8053 volumes and 1800 pamphlets, distributed as follows: general library, 6660 volumes and 1750 pamphlets; law library, 543 volumes; medical library, 560 volumes and 30 pamphlets; dental library, 63 volumes; and the homeopathic library, 227 volumes and 20 pamphlets.

Five students are employed for twelve hours each per week, on a schedule providing for one of them at the printing plant nearly all the time. Four more students are registered, who can be called in when additional help is needed. Four are law students, two literary, and one each from the medical, dental, and engineering departments.

Editor M. D. Blosser, of the Manchester Enterprise, may have had it in mind to say something pleasant when he penned the following paragraph, but when he gets our name confused with some place on the Russo-Japanese war map we consider it nothing short of libelous. "The Chelsea Standard has arrived at that interesting age 'sweet sixteen,'" and Brother Steinson has reason to be proud of her. It is a good looking sheet, well patronized. Success to him and the Standard."

It would seem that Chelsea is entitled to a front seat among those struggling to be unique. We appeal to the world if a "Scrub Social" is not about the limit? The women of the L. O. T. M. M. held a social of this particular specie with Mrs. Jabez Bacon Tuesday afternoon. Members were present to the number of 75 and brought with them, to eat, anything of a "scrub" order they desired, but in spite of this no one suffered hunger. Probably one of the scrubbiest features was the fact that no men were present. They are watching for the next gathering.

The following have an average standing of 95, Alma Barton, Winifred McKune and John Smith; 90, Irene and Gertrude Clark, Hiram Noble and Guy Barton and Roland McKune; 85, Hattie and George Stofor, Gladys and Ileen Shanahan, Clara and Eddie Schweikert; 80, Cecelia and Raymond McKune and Harry Stofor. Margaret Young, teacher.

The price news of a sensational order, of late, has been the sustained upward trend of the price of wheat. The local range has been from a $1.00 to $1.06. War and the rumors of war have been the foundation for a speculative turn, but at the same time there has appeared a large shortage in the world's visible supply which daily becomes more apparent. Beans, too, have taken a jump. Our table of local quotations for the week place them at from $1.50 to $1.60 rising from $1.30 to $1.40 a week ago. This we are unable to explain unless Boston is preparing to annex New England. Ry. and oats have also gone skyward.

Tommy McNamara has just received about half a carload of Kentucky whisky direct from the Tom Moore distillery Barstow, Nelson county, Kentucky, accompanied by the U. S. gauger's certificate to the effect that the goods are pure and straight--so straight in fact that it has a tendency to make other things appear crooked. It is understood that this corn juice is for medicinal purposes only; but at the same time Tommy does not claim it will cure anything, except that he is willing to back his new purchase as able to make a dumb man talk if he takes enough of it, but says he intends to dispense it only in strictly medicinal doses. He appears to think too much of it, same as a lakeful of water, is bad for a person. Those wishing to purchase for comical purposes, or to use in the arts and sciences--such for instance as "painting"--will have to bring a certificate of character with them.

Dentists for School Children.
Since last October the children in the public schools of Strasburg have had a chance to have their teeth taken care of free, the city paying the dentists. Among 10,661 children, only 165, or a trifle more than one per cent. were found to have sound teeth.

Mint for Abyssinians.
King Menelik has bought a mint to be set up at Addis Ababa. The machines will have a caravan journey of more than a month. It is said that 110,230 pounds of silver bullion have been gathered into the Abyssinian treasury.

Wrecked on Unfriendly Coast.
A Hamburg journal prints particulars of the recent losing of three steamers (English, French and German) which were stranded on the coast of Liberia. The natives also maltreated the passengers.

Queen Quality

THE FAMOUS SHOE FOR WOMEN

It takes all kinds of women to make a world and all kinds of shoes to please them. Still they can all be suited with "Queen Quality." It is an entirely different construction from the ordinary shoe. It is fitted to the foot, not at the toe and heel, but around the instep. It gives free play to the ball of the foot, yet the foot cannot slip forward in the shoe, being firmly held at the "waist" or arch of the instep.

In appearance it is most artistic. It has more than style; it has a distinction all its own. It is made of an extra grade of light, strong leather with great wearing qualities. Then to make the "Queen Quality" a very easy shoe, it has specially flexible soles.

Yet all this does not increase its retail price.

Try it once.

ST. LOUIS EXPOSITION WILL BE GREATEST EVER HELD ON EARTH

Estimated Cost, Exclusive of the Value of the Exhibits, Is from Forty to Fifty Million Dollars—Miles of Wonderful Displays in More Than Twenty Buildings.

It is now a little more than two months before the gates will open upon the World's Fair at St. Louis and the public will be invited to see the greatest exposition that has ever been created. The vast exhibit palaces are complete and many of them have been finished for several months. Within the next two months all of them are to be brightened with new coats of paint so that, on the opening day, the magnificent array of palaces will appear as fresh as a newly blossomed rose.

No one, no matter how vivid his imagination, can picture to himself the scene that will be presented when the Exposition is complete. The more one sees this great collection of exhibit palaces and countless other buildings, the more deeply impressed he becomes with the grandeur of the undertaking. As the days grow longer and the air becomes balmy with the breezes of spring, the Exposition will take on far greater activity than it has seen during the boisterous days of winter. In spite of the severe weather, work has not ceased upon the construction of the World's Fair for more than a day or two at a time and there is every expectation and promise that it will be complete on the opening day.

The buildings and grounds, magnificent though they be, are but the setting for a far more interesting display. In all the buildings the best products that the world can offer will be arranged in the most attractive order and will convey to the mind a better idea of what the world is doing than would years of study and inquiry. Fifty-one nations of the world and all of the states of the American Union will be represented in this extensive portrayal of the world's present-day effort.

Those who are familiar with the Columbian Exposition at Chicago have often asked if the Louisiana Purchase Exposition would equal in extent or grandeur the celebrated Exposition of 1893. When told that it would be twice as large in extent of grounds and 50 per cent larger in exhibit space in buildings, they have

MARKETING FOR THE SEA COW.

It is Necessary Now to Cut Through Ice to Get at the Sea Cow.

The man who does the marketing for the Aquarium's sea cow has had to do some lively hustling this winter to keep that big animal supplied with food.

The sea cow is eight foot long, weighs 800 pounds, and has a healthy appetite. In the first eighteen weeks after its arrival here from Florida, on Sept. 3 last, it ate ninety bushels of eel grass, six bushels of fennel-leaved pond weed and two bushels of ulva, or sea lettuce, making ninety-eight bushels of aquatic plants in all in eighteen weeks, or an average of about five and one-half bushels a week, which is about its present rate of consumption.

The eel grass and other things for the sea cow's table are gathered in Gravesend Bay or the waters there, with connected. Baymen say that the present has been the hardest winter hereabouts on the water in twenty-five years. On many days it has been necessary to cut through the ice to get at the eel grass required for the sea cow's food, sometimes through ice ten inches in thickness and often through ice of five or six inches.

Sometimes when the ice had moved out with a shift of the wind, leaving open spaces, access to the eel grass would be easy, but frequently the ice would have closed in, and then it would be necessary to cut holes in it to get at the eel grass below.

So the work of supplying the sea cow's table has been so far this winter attended by more or less difficulty, but there has never been a day on which the sea cow has had to go hungry.—New York Sun.

Brain Growth.

Brain development is found by Prof. Seggel of Munich to have two periods of acceleration—from 10 to 11 and from 17 to 18 in girls, and from 12 to 13 and 19 to 20 in boys. At the period of most rapid increase in height—from 12 to 14 years—the growth of the brain is less than one-hundredth that of the body, but at 17 to 19 it grows one-third as fast, and at 20 reaches one-seventh of the body growth.

Wholesale Marriage.

No fewer than forty-two couples were married simultaneously at Plougastel (Lower Brittany) one morning recently. Work in the village and in all the surrounding hamlet was entirely suspended for the day, for the excellent reason that there was scarcely a living soul in the neighborhood not related to one or other of the brides or bridegrooms, for the good people of Plougastel never marry outside their own commune.—London Mail.

tude, and an amusement street a mile long, containing the most novel and wonderful entertainments, will furnish diversion to the guests of the Exposition.

All St. Louis is preparing for the World's Fair, which will open on April 30 next and continue for seven months. Hundreds of buildings have been remodeled into hotels, and thousands of homes have been listed, upon invitation of the World's Fair management, to help care for the visitors. Every preparation has been made for a period of unusual festivity, and St. Louis expects to give her visitors a delightful season of sight-seeing and entertainment.

Thirty-five miles of roadway have been constructed within the World's Fair grounds.

HE DID NOT UNDERSTAND.

Amusing Error of Frenchman That Cost Him $5.

A French visitor to New York, an enthusiastic automobilist, has learned a lesson as to how things are done in America. On several occasions when speeding a machine through Central park he has seen policemen hold up a hand. The result was an increase of speed and a wave of the hand in return. The police have been in the hopes of catching him, and finally one of them did so by placing his horse in the auto's track, compelling it to come to a standstill. In court the Frenchman was amazed at the cause of his arrest. He took the signals of the officers as commendations and congratulations and turned on more power to show them what he could do. The lesson cost him $5.

French Taxes Increase.

Returns of the revenue from indirect taxes in France in 1903 show that receipts amounted to $568,380,380, an increase of $26,557,580 over the estimates, and $30,175,860 over 1902.

How the Starfish Feeds.

A starfish can neither see nor hear. Neither has it the sense of smell. In spite of those seeming impediments, nevertheless, it seeks and devours its prey as neatly as an ordinary fish. The starfish lies upon its prey and folds its "arms" or rays completely about it. Then it pushes its stomach out through its mouth and will wrap even a large oyster and shell within the folds of the stomach. The mouth of the starfish is in the center of its rays.

ROYAL PRESENT TO LOUVRE.

Magnificent Art Collection Donated to French Museum.

Who is the Parisian who does not know M. Daisteau? Who is the lover of art, of the beautiful and the curious in craftsmanship of the past who would not know M. Daisteau?

M. Daisteau has just made a wonderful present to the Louvre. Instead of procrastinating and making a will some day by which he would donate some of his beautiful things to the Key of Remarkable Style and Workmanship.

Belonged to Charles IX. His motto appears in the handle.

Louvre, he has cheerfully separated himself from a part of his treasures during his lifetime to make the art-loving world happier.

The great key shown belonged to Charles IX. You may see his motto on the bannetrolle. It is of curious workmanship and is an historical piece of the highest interest and of remarkable style.

Notice the heavy and yet graceful intertwining of the bannetrolle and the other twisted sections of the handle on its stanch supports that when the key is upright take on the appearance of substantial foundations, and the elaboration of the intricacies of the key blade.—New York Sun.

A Gibraltar Discovery.

An interesting relic has just been fished up from the bottom of Gibraltar Harbor, having been accidentally discovered by a diver in the course of some operations. It is a gun about nine feet in length, and owing to the fine quality of the gun metal, it is in an excellent state of preservation. It must have been quite a "Long Tom" in its day. It is reasonable to suppose that the gun was used against the Rock during the great siege (1779-83), and that the ship from which it was fired was sunk by the fire from the fortress. After lying for 120 years at the bottom of the sea, the gun is brought to the surface, to reveal its nationality, name and age. It bears, besides the arms of Spain, beautifully embossed, the following inscription: "El Telegrafo. Violati Fulminis Regis. Philip V. Hispaniar Rex. Elisab. Farn. Hispan. Regis. Vole-Fabet Feit, Sevilla. Anno D 1726."

Chalk.

A thin slice of chalk, greatly magnified.

The Arabic Day.

The Arabic day begins at sunset, and the particular one which begins any month is that on which the new moon is first seen after sunset. Apart from the cloudiness of the sky there may be and generally is considerable difficulty in seeing the crescent, lost as it must always be in the radiance of the set sun and consequently there is always uncertainty for some time after sunset whether the day just begun is to be reckoned with the last month or as the first of a new month.

Given Fair Warning.

The other day the East Montkon, Vt., correspondence of the Burlington Free Press contained this grim notice: "The Man, Who stole the kerosene Oil, from the Thomas, saw mill and put-Water in its place, can settle it by leaving town, by Jan. 18, 1904. Other Ways, there Will be another Method, used."

Winter and Summer Air.

The air contracts while cold, so that in one breath of 20 below atmosphere one gets much more oxygen than one can imbibe with the same amount of lung effort, when the thermometer shows 90 in the shade.

Horse's Hind Legs Frozen.

A horse broke through ice in Waterbury, Conn. When he was drawn out of the water it was found that both his hind legs had been frozen together.

RELY ON PE-RU-NA TO FIGHT CATARRH, COUGHS, COLDS, GRIP

Peruna for coughs and colds in children.

SISTERS OF ST. JOSEPH

Use Pe-ru-na for La Grippe and Winter Catarrh.

IN EVERY country of the civilized world, the Sisters of Charity are known. Not only do they minister to the spiritual and intellectual needs of the charges committed to their care, but they also minister to their bodily needs.

Whenever coughs or colds, la grippe or pneumonia make their appearance among the children these Sisters are not disconcerted, but know exactly the remedies to apply.

With so many children to take care of and to protect from climate and disease these wise and prudent Sisters have found Peruna a never failing safeguard.

Sisters of St. Joseph, of the Deaf Mute Institute, 1849 Cass Ave., St. Louis, Mo., writes:

"We appreciate Peruna very much. It certainly does good work with catarrh and also with colds and la grippe. We have faith in Peruna and have inspired many others with the same. We do not like to be without it. It has certainly kept us from being very sick. It did a world of good last winter for our little ones. Thanking you for your kindness to us and our afflicted ones, we remain, yours gratefully, SISTERS OF ST. JOSEPH."

Dr. Hartman receives many letters from Catholic Sisters from all over the United States. A recommendation recently received from a Catholic Institution in Detroit, Mich., reads as follows:

Dear Sir:—"The young girl who used the Peruna was suffering from laryngitis, and loss of voice. The result of the treatment was most satisfactory. She found great relief, and after further use of the medicine we hope to be able to say she is entirely cured."—Sisters of Charity.

This young girl was under the care of the Sisters of Charity and used Peruna for catarrh of the throat, with good results as the above letter testifies.

From a Catholic Institution in Central Ohio comes the following recommendation from the Sister Superior:

"Some years ago a friend of our institution recommended to us Dr. Hartman's Peruna as an excellent remedy for the influenza of which we then had several cases which threatened to be of a serious character.

We began to use it and experienced such wonderful results that since then

BREAKING OF DOGS

The Skill Cannot Be Acquired from
the Reading of Books.

A Trainer of Dogs Points Out Some of the Most Glaring Errors Which Preval in Fitting a Dog
for the Hunt.

It is often said that half the books that are written telling how to break a dog
to hunting are untrue, and that the other half are written to prove them so. If there be a measure of accuracy in the statement, it must be concluded that the way to learn to break a dog is upon the field under the tutelage of a competent dog trainer. It is not necessary to teach a pointer or setter to point in a room before introducing it to game. This is so because the young dogs of these days, if well bred, at least, point naturally, and the last thing any dog ought to be taught is to point to order. If his breaker knows
the better when the dog should point,

A BEGINNER.

the obvious thing to do is to leave him in
kennel, and go shooting without him.
This is not only true of private breaking,
it is true of field trial breaking. Indeed,
one of the most successful owners asked me this season how it happened that a certain field-trial breaker's dogs always have a good deal of false point, or creepiness, about them. Of course, I did not know, but it often happens that a man who habitually has false pointers is one who only half trusts his dogs' noses, and tries to supplement their olfactory powers by his own supposed sense of knowing, by the manner of the dog, more of the locality of game than the dog knows himself.

Nearly all the writers upon shooting
make this mistake. The instant a dog begins to draw, up goes an arm, and
"Have a care" or "To-ho" is uttered.
This is all wrong; no dog that is broken
upon a proper system is the better for
"Have a care." He may be doing one of two things: either he is trying to catch the birds himself, and deserves more drastic treatment, or else he is trying to make sure whether they are there before he points them. Caution him, and he will false point, and learn two bad things—
first, to rely upon his breaker to tell him
when to point; and, secondly, to point
before he is sure of game, that is, to false
point.

When he has been "To-hoed" into these bad habits, take him home and shoot him
for he is quite useless. This may seem a

LESSONS IN DRIPPING.

harsh thing to say, but it is not only that
a false pointer is himself useless, but that he spoils every dog that is hunted with him; for the best dogs are soon put off their backing if they are hunted with a false pointer.

I do not suppose a protest in a newspaper will serve to put an end to the erroneous bookish education of the teachers of our shooting companions; but the trainers who are most successful in public do not go about with windmill-like arms, cracking dog whips, or shouting
"To-ho." They simply trust their dogs to show them game, and for the most part the dogs respond, and are found worthy of the trust reposed in them. For my part, I would never flatter or fuss a puppy while on the point, until the game
was up, or I had seen it on the ground.
Remember that until one of these things
has happened the point may be at a lark,
a hedgehog, a field-mouse, or nothing
whatever, and flattery, on the supposition
that he is pointing game, will make him commit the same error at the next opportunity.

The greatest trouble in all breaking is
to undo the errors previously taught,
possibly by inadvertence, probably by a wrong system, and this double pointing will generally last through life if the breaker begins by encouraging it. Although, as I have said, the text-books
make these bad blunders, and the majority of breakers follow them, the field
trial men know better; and yet they know no more than the artists of a hundred years ago knew, for these men did not make the blunders of the moderns.

The simple way of breaking dogs is to talk to them as if they were children,
and to prevent them from doing wrong
as often as is possible. It is wonderful then that a very few minutes in the day
will accomplish; but if, on the contrary,
dogs are started wrongly, and have to unlearn, they will not be ready to start the right way until their first lessons are quite unlearned, a process that may take
ten times as long as the whole business
of teaching would have taken if a proper

WANTED—A CHANCE TO DISINFECT.
A Milwaukee chemist has found 96, 000,000 germs on a one dollar bill. That settles it. Don't carry another one with you, but pay that subscription you owe with it. We have arrangements made whereby we can disinfect them very rapidly, if we have the chance.—Williamson Enterprise.

MORE LIGHT.
Dr. Grove Cothran was here from Chicago the first part of this week looking up the conditions of the gas plant
with a view of again starting the same.
He says that he believes the plant will soon be in operation again. We, with many others, truly hope this is a fact.
Stockbridge Brief.

REAL ESTATE LIVELY.
There has been a great many changes in village property the past winter and
very likely there will be a lively business in real estate the coming spring and summer. There will be a great demand for dwellings and several of our citizens
are talking of erecting cottages as soon as the weather will permit.—Manchester Enterprise.

MAIL MEN IN MILAN.
Foster, wife and Mrs. F's mother
have moved from Detroit into Amos Taylor's house on County street. Mr.
Foster is a mail clerk on the Wabash
R. R. This makes four mail clerks that have taken up their residence in Milan.
They are: Robert McLachlan, W. J.
Cook, L. S. Camburn and Earl Foster.
—Milan Leader.

WHERE ARE WE AT?
A speaker at a late banquet, in giving the boundaries of the United States, said
that our country is bounded on the west
by the East. While this is the plain, unvarnished truth, the papers still persist
in referring to the Russia Japan scrap as "the trouble in the far East." Why not in the far West, and be more nearly exact?—Ypsilantian.

FINE BUSINESS.
The Michigan Central pay car left $30,000 in $20 gold pieces with its Jackson employee this month. Since the enlargement of the shops in this city and the increased force has been placed on the pay rolls, it is estimated that the disbursements of the company in Jackson would average $100,000 a month.
Some month's when business is at high tide the pay roll will reach $115,000 to $125,000 a month.—Jackson City News.

AN IMPORTANT PORTSCRIPT.
There is no hard coal to be had of the dealers in the village, although they have made every effort to induce the railroad people to haul in some cars.
Plymouth dealers are not the only ones
held up by the railroad company as complaints are being sent out all along the line of the railroad refusing to deliver cars. They seem to be woefully lacking in motive power and only the through freight seems to claim their attention.

P. S.—Two cars of coal arrived yesterday.—Plymouth Mail.

"OLD BOYS WEEK."
It will be remembered that we published an article a few weeks ago in regard to this village taking up the matter and arranging for a week when all of the "old boys" who formerly were known on our streets and plunged into
the old "swimming hole" could try and meet here and renew old ties, make a few new ones perhaps, and enjoy a general, rousing good time. Since that article was published we have seen quite a number of the boys and they were agreed that it was a good idea and several of them have already taken steps
to boom the plan and set a date.—Pinckney Dispatch.

ELECTRIC ROAD FRANCHISE.
The village council did the proper act at the adjourned meeting last Monday night, in granting a franchise on Chicago street to the proposed electric road. The committee to whom was referred the franchise, made a report that having investigated the matter and finding a big majority of the business men and citizens in favor of the project, and also that such roads were a benefit in a business way, they unanimously favored the granting of a franchise on Chicago street, and recommended the adoption of an ordinance to that effect. Only four trustees were present, Trustee Marsh
being detained at home by illness, and
the vote was unanimous.—Tumeb

DON'T WANT TO LEARN.

Spaniards Spend More to Support Bull
Rings Than the Schools—A Significant Comparison.

Schoolhouses are very scarce in Spain.
More money is paid to support bull rings than the schools. It is estimated that more than $5,000,000 is expended on bull fights during each year, while in 1901 only $1,617,314 was expended for public education, says William E. Curtis, in Chicago Record-Herald.

There were more students in the university of Salamanca alone 400 years ago, during the reign of Ferdinand and Isabella, than are enrolled in all of the nine universities of Spain to-day, and by the census of 1896, more than 68 per cent of the population is illiterate. The exact figures show that 6,104,470 can neither read nor write, 3,417,855 can read
a little, while 2,686,615 can read and write a little.

The act of July, 1902, requires a school
for every 500 population, and the minister of education is required to examine teachers to see that they are qualified, and to inspect the schools for sanitary reasons and for discipline, but
the law is not enforced.

A few days ago Senor Silveira, recently prime minister, in explaining his retirement from political life, declared that he had reached the melancholy
conclusion that his country was not interested in agriculture, industry, trade,
public works or public instruction.

SUICIDE PREVENTED.

The startling announcement that a preventive of suicide has been discovered
will interest many. A run down system,
or dependency invariably precede suicide and something has been found that will prevent that condition which makes suicide likely. At the first thought of self destruction take Electric Bitters. It being a great tonic and nervine will strengthen the nerves and build up the system. It's also a great stomach, liver and kidney regulator. Only 50c.

From London Chimneys.

A recent chemical examination of the black deposit, resembling boiler scale,
that has formed to a thickness of three-quarters of an inch under the coping of the balustrade surrounding the "Stone Gallery" at the base of the dome of St. Paul's cathedral, reveals the curious fact that it is essentially a calcium sulfate collected from the air.
In two centuries the smoke and gases
from London chimneys have charged the rains with sufficient sulphurous
and sulphuric acids to cover the stone
with a deposit that strikingly resembles calcareous tufa. It is thickest on the under side of the copings, because of the dripping of the rain.

RELIEF IN ONE MINUTE.

One Minute Cough Cure gives relief
in one minute, because it kills the microbe which tickles the mucous membrane, causing the cough, and at the same time clears the phlegm, draws out
the inflammation and heals and soothes
the affected parts. One Minute Cough Cure strengthens the lungs, wards off pneumonia and is a harmless and never failing cure in all curable cases of coughs, colds and croup. One Minute Cough Cure is pleasant to take, harmless
and good alike for young and old. Sold

A CURE FOR ECZEMA.

My baby had eczema so bad that its head was a solid mass of scabs, and its hair all came out I tried many remedies
but none seemed to do any permanent
good until I used DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve. The eczema is cured, the scabs are gone and the little one's scalp is perfectly clean and healthy, and its hair is growing beautifully again. I cannot give so much praise to DeWitt's Witch
Hazel Salve. Frank Farmer, Bluff City,
Ky. In buying Witch Hazel Salve look out for counterfeits. DeWitt's is the original and the only one containing pure Witch Hazel. The name E. C.
DeWitt & Co. is on every box. Sold by Glazier & Stimson.

ROADS PAVED WITH GLASS.

Tombstones Used for Sidewalks in Some Parts of England—Curious Mosaic Pavement.

Streets paved with glass are not by any means unknown, says Stray Stories. The famous Rue de la Republique at Lyons is a notable example.
Here the pavement is laid in glass blocks, eight inches square, which are so symmetrically fitted together as to prevent the possibility of water passing
between the interstices.

An Italian nobleman has lately had
the courtyard of his palace paved with slabs of marble, granite and other stone, every one of which has been brought from a different land. Europe, Asia, Africa, America and Australia
have all supplied materials for this curious mosaic, which is composed of over 500 pieces, each engraved with the name of the country from which it came.

Tombstones are not infrequently employed in different parts of Nottinghamshire, Derbyshire, Lincolnshire and Leicestershire for the purpose of paving; a year or so back the inhabitants of the Vale of Belvoir raised a vehement protest against their being used for a pathway leading to the parish church.

The local authorities, however, endeavored to excuse themselves on the ground that they had plenty of old gravestones on hand, which, if utilized
would assuredly save the ratepayers'
pockets.

LEATHER RAILWAY TIES.

Railway ties have been made from steel, iron, glass, stone and of grass and sawdust composition. The newest invention for that purpose is a cross-tie
of leather. The scrap leather from shoe shops is taken into a disintegrator,
ground very fine, subjected to a refining process and molded. The tension of the molding machine can be so regulated that ties hard enough to take a spike or ties
through which a spike cannot be driven can be turned. The three great essentials in a cross-tie are apparently found in this leather sleeper, for it is guaranteed to hold a spike, the fish-plate will not splinter in it, and it will not rot. It is expected to stand service for 35 years.

GERMAN SYRUP.

We want to impress on our readers
that Boecher's Germ in Syrup is positively the only preparation on the market
to-day that does relieve and cure consumption. It contains the specific,
such as pure tar, extracts of gums, etc.,
which have been so highly endorsed for the cure of coughs, colds and consumption by the great medical congresses.
The consumptive, whether his disease is in the throat or lungs, must have rest at night, and be free from the spasms of dry and racking cough in the morning. The diseased parts want rest, healing and soothing treatment, and the patient needs fresh air, good food, etc. German Syrup will give free and easy expec-toration in the morning with speedy and permanent relief. Small bottles, 25 cents; regular size, containing nearly four times as much, 75 cents. At Glazier & Stimson.

FEMALE WEAKNESS

542-12 Congress St.
PORTLAND, MAINE, Oct. 17, 1902.

I consider Wine of Cardui superior
to any doctor's medicine I ever used
and I know whereof I speak. I suffered for nine months with suppressed
menstruation which completely prostrated me. Pains would shoot through
my back and sides and I would have blinding headaches. My limbs would swell up and I would feel so weak I could not stand up. I naturally felt
discouraged for I seemed to be beyond
the help of physicians, but Wine of Cardui came as a God-send to me. I
felt a change for the better within a week. After nineteen days treatment
I menstruated without suffering from
agony and without pain. Wine of Cardui is simply wonderful and I wish
that all suffering women knew of its
good qualities.

Periodical headaches tell of female weakness. Wine of Cardui
cures permanently nineteen out of
every twenty cases of irregular
menstruation, bearing down, pains or any female weakness. If you are discouraged and doctors have
failed, that is the best reason in
the world you should try Wine of Cardui now. Remember that
headaches mean female weakness.
Secure a $1.00 bottle of Wine of

WINE OF CARDUI

Periodical headaches tell of female weakness. Wine of Cardui
cures permanently nineteen out of
every twenty cases of irregular
menstruation, bearing down, pains or
any female weakness. If you are
discouraged and doctors have
failed, that is the best reason in
the world you should try Wine of Cardui now. Remember that
headaches mean female weakness.

Plague Breeders.

Rats have heretofore been held chiefly responsible for the spread of the plague, but recent experiments made in Hong-Kong show that monkeys, pigs,
calves, sheep, hens, geese, ducks, turkeys and pigeons also contracted plague by feeding on plague-infected
material. In the light of these experiments the views that plague is mainly acquired by man by inoculation will probably have to be modified.

NOTICE.

The time has again expired for the payment of taxes. The books will close on the 27th of this month. Jacob Hum-

Female Weakness

542-12 Congress St.
PORTLAND, MAINE, Oct. 17, 1902.

I consider Wine of Cardui superior
to any doctor's medicine I ever used
and I know whereof I speak. I suffered for nine months with suppressed
menstruation which completely pro-
strated me. Pains would shoot through
my back and sides and I would have
blinding headaches. My limbs would
swell up and I would feel so weak I
could not stand up. I naturally felt
discouraged for I seemed to be beyond
the help of physicians, but Wine of Cardui came as a God-send to me. I
felt a change for the better within a
week. After nineteen days treatment
I menstruated without suffering from
agony and without pain. Wine of Cardui is simply wonderful and I wish
that all suffering women knew of its
good qualities.
