The clock of the instrument broke his silence, making him jump convulsively.

"Ah, ha! Just as I expected!" he muttered, as this message flashed across the wire:

"Detain suspicious looking pair, if they come your way., Man and woman, Natorious pickpockets. Sliped through our fingers an hour ago. Supposed to be in your vicinity: Man: Tall, light hair and mustache. Woman: Rather slight, brown hair and eyes. Both appear refined. Officers arrive on seven-thirty train."

"It was nearing seven and the man had purchased tickets for the seventhirty-the very train the authorities were coming on.

Thrilling with excitement, the agent sauntered into the waiting room. Under pretense of trimming the lights he came close beside the guilty couple, scanning each keenly as he passed.

The descriptions he had received tailied exactly and he felt sure of his same. The stranger impatiently con-sulted his watch and they talked in subdued tones. The station agent caught a few fragments of their conversation and these were enough to make him doubly sure. "Do you think they will suspect

"Well, we have outwitted them anyway; they can't overtake us now," he answered.

"I wish we were well on o way." "Don't get nervous. At will oon be ver and we will be safe. Our train is due in a few minutes. Did you get what you wanted?" "Yes, but I had to act so quickly that I stuffed them all in my coat pocket," she answered. The man nt over her, and to the agent it looked very much as if he kissed her. The suspense seemed interminable. At last the low rumble of the apall our trouble, we determined to take broaching train loosened the tension. The agent waited until he could see Imagine our chagrin when, on reachthe gleaming headlight in the dising the depot, you were not to be ce. Nearer and nearer it came, trating the darkness. In no apnt haste he walked out on the way station. We were in a ferment than in any other country in Christenon like grim death, expecting an on-that you could have taken the seventhirty train."

"But away we raced as if chasing a pair of decamping criminals," added a third.

"Which has had its psychological effect, for we have been detained as such, while the seven-thirty departed without us. But for the kindness of these gentlemen, dear friends, we would now be out of your clutches. Are they in your employ?" asked the prisoner, sardonically.

Meanwhile the officers had been ruminating, and the crestfallen agent slunk into his office, out of sight. For once a bride and groom were glad to be thus branded.

"I don't need any," interrupted the man at the desk, "but if you will tell me the biggest lie about your cement I ever heard, I'll buy a bottle of it, merely to encourage you." o

"I wouldn't lie to sell 1,000 bottles of it," protested the other. "But I'll tell you one thing I really did with it. You have heard, I presume, of the frog that tried to swell itself up to the size of an ox. The skin of that frog, as you remember, was not equal to the strain, and it burst all to pieces. Sir, I happened to be on the spot, and I gathered them up carefully together with my cement and made the creature as good as new-better, in fact, for it is a wiser frog. Old Blackjacks. Leather bottles, or blackjacks were common in Europe two cen turies ago. The bottles were often uously fastened to one of the handles, made of one skin doubled up and closely stitched together, leaving an aperture for the neck. The thick piece between was inserted for the slip; it was meant to be slung at the back, a leather thong passed through two loops placed on either side of the neck, and it was sufficiently flat at the base to stand when put down. The stopper was made of wood, horn or old leather, A good deal of care was required-in the preparation of the leather, which had to be oiled and worked with hamfriends, all talking at once, each anx- mers to make it supple and then washed with a lye, so that all the impurity was entirely removed, leaving tne leather clean and dry. No moisture or air had any effect on it. Blackjacks were in various sizes. They were sometimes pitched inside.

The Life That Counts. The life that counts must toll and fight:
Must hate the wrong and love the right;
Must stand for truth, by day, by night—
And this the life that counts.

The life that counts must aim to rise Above the earth, to sunlit skies;
Must fix its gaze on Paradise—
And this the life that counts. The life that counts must hopeful be;

In darkest night make melody; Must wait the dawn on bended knee— And this the life that counts. The life that counts must helpful be;

The cares and needs of others see.

Must seek the slave of sin to free-And this the life that counts. The life that counts is linked with God, And turns not from the cross, the rod; But walks with joy where Jesus trod— And this the life that counts.

Faithful to His Friends. One thought had he, to live his life, To link with joy its utmost ends, But in the thickest of the strife He was faithful to his friends.

Cared not he for right nor wrong, Honor's call nor duty's way; He but lived among the throng, Lived among them for a day,

Thus he fived and thus he died, Yet each one now his life defends; For we saw the rule applied, He was fa'thful to his friends. Rough and tempest tossed the roady Crooked was the path he trod; Oft he staggered 'neath the load, And swore loudly at his God.

But after all his varied years
No reason he to make amends;
He left no payment in arrears.
He was faithful to his friends.

Capt. Gibbons had a habit of wearthought this was due to the fact that ed the reason to be otherwise. It seems that his chin and throat were plained:

On one of the ships which he commanded there was a mutiny of the crew one morning on the high seas, which he promptly started to quell. soon bad him down on the deck, bound and gagged with a long knife across his mouth. It was this knife that produced the wounds whose scars the captain carried the remainder of his life concealed beneath the beard. While thus bound and gagged a lady passenger came to him and cutting the bonds handed him a loaded revolver. With this weapon he soon had the crew at his feet and the ringleaders were placed in irons.-Lewiston Journal.

FEARFUL ODDS AGAINST HIM.

Whitaker Wright's Last Thoughts

It is a reproduction of the piece of blotting paper on which Whitaker Wright scribbled aimlessly as he sat with his counsel in the London King's Bench court on the last day of his great trial-the day, too, on which, after being sentenced to seven years' penal servitude, he took his own life with poison.

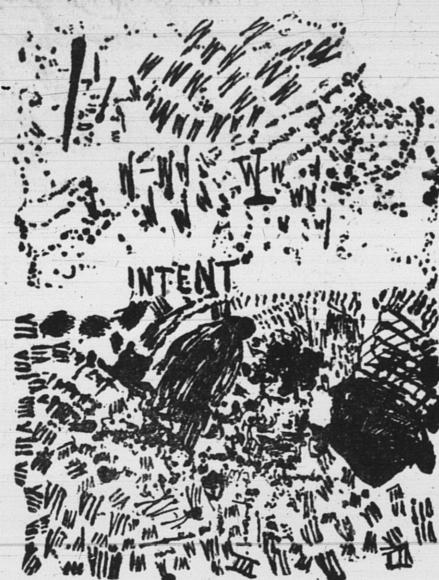

Although at first glance the marks on this blotter appear to be nothing more than purposeles scribblings, a closer inspection reveals a good deal of what must have been passing in Wright's mind as the crimson-robed judge rehearsed in his address to the jury the details of the prisoner's career.

The word "intent" printed in capitals an inch high at the center of the sheet and the repetitions of the Roman numeral seven are the most striking parts of this last writing Whitaker Wright ever did. There is no doubt that while he sat with apparent calmness at the table with his lawyers he was anticipating what he knew must take place after the foreman of the jury rose to announce a verdict. When Wright traced the word which appears so prominently, in all probability he was composing the brief but rather impressive speech with which he replied to the court's sentence:

My lord, all I have to say is that I am as innocent as any one in this court of any intention to deceive or defraud the shareholders."

Well versed in the English mercantile law, he knew that the maximum punishment for a crime like his is seven years' penal servitude, and without question the fact dinned in his brain and found expression on the blotter in front of him. The top of Buying an Incubator.

From Farmers' Review: Many persons who are planning to engage more extensively in the poultry business are now studying the advisability of buying an incubator. That poultry may be more profitably reared by artificial means than by natural methods is now well known and universally acknowledged, and rare indeed is the interested poultry keeper who does not desire to own one of these popular machines. But while their first cost is, of course, considerable, and to many seems prohibitive, it is in fact not excessive, compared with the cost of other special lines of machinery.

The poultry income on any farm

But the fact that a much larger number of fowls may be hatched and is not their only advantage. In truth this is one of their least, since by their use it is practicable to control the season as well as the quantity of the poultry output. Not of fowls alone but eggs as well, since the age of the Well-Prepared Cattle Feed.

With the increasing price for cattle feeds it becomes absolutely necessary to make the most out of them. The old plan of putting the largest possible amount of corn through the cattle at all influenced by the moon. and letting the pigs pick up their living from the droppings is still popular in this country, but is certain to be supplanted in time by a more reasonable method. At the Illinois experiment station we noticed the care used in preparing the rations for the cattle. The grain was ground and mixed with chopped hay, clover and alfalfa. The animals thus received their food in a form in which mastication could get the most out of it for the cattle. The result was the greatest possible amount of beef from the smallest possible amount of food. It is true that even then the hogs that followed the from the droppings, but we also learned that they had to be fed extra. In the case of beeves in pasture not followed by hogs the feeding of corn in the old way is exceedingly wasteful, and with corn at its present prices is certain to make a loss rather than a profit for the farmer. Some years ago at a convention Mr. L. H. Kerrick was asked if he could profitably make beef without hogs, and he replied that price on both ordered together, as a he could not. Certainly Smith had some politicalpower. In the United States it is imposuible to avoid politics and the police at the same time, except by lavish bribery.

"And why do they call him 'Shanghai'?" asked Hunt.

"Because he 'shanghais' men," anwered Gardiner, "and nowadays that means drugging a man and putting him aboard some ship. Oh, he's a daisy. He'd ship your dad to New York round the Horn if there was money in it. When a man disappears in this city we look first in the morgue and then make inquiries at Smith's."

"I wish Gawthrop was in the morgue, I do," said Hunt. "And here I'll say good-night. You're a good wharves, it was "plumb" dark, chap, Gardiner, if you are a newspaper man, and it's been a relief to talk to you, so it has."

They snook hands and parted, but Gardiner nad not walked ten yards before he turned and came back. His eyes glittered curiously. Hunt's were in the low quarters of that sink of blurred and fishy. He had certainly taken a little too much. Gardiner wondered if he had taken too much to keep one's eyes skinned lest worst remember in the morning what hap pened naw.

"You wish he was in the morgue,

"I do," said Munt, firmly. "I do." "Why not get him shanghaied?" asked Gardiner, and he walked away very swiftly, and did not return when Hunt called to him.

"By the Grest Horn Spoon and the tail of the Sacred Bull, I'll not give her up," said Gardiner; "certainly not to a man like flunt, or to a dude like Gawthrep. Sooger than that I'll write to the old man and squeal. He'll rub it in, but after all he is the dad, and dollar for dollar with half of you in time. What I'm telling you is this: I think Gawthrop has more show than you, and I'd be glad to get him out of the way, just as he'd no doubt be glad to get you out. I'll help if you'll hold your tongue about me, whatever happens." "Very well," said Hunt; "I give you my word."

'Whatever happens?" "Whatever happens." "Of course I shall do everything I an to win." "That's only natural," said Hunt; but I'll bet you a thousand dollars hat if I get Gawthrop out of the way I'll marry Miss Atherton inside of Whatever happens?" "Whatever happens."

"Then I take that bet," said Gardiner, "and to-morrow you shall meet Shanghai." But when Hunt had gone, Gardiner winked steadily at nothing and stroked his chin. "Great Scott, this is a game," he "I wonder where Gawthrop is?"

But before he found out he sat down and wrote a letter to the elder Gardiner in New York. It was late that evening before he went down to that undesirable quarter of San Francisco known as the Barbary Coast, where Shanghai Smith had his sailorrobbing den located.

As he went along the water front and saw the ships lying at the Though he knew every tough in the city, he walked some way from the edge of the wharves and kept his hand on his six-shooter in the righthand pocket of his coat. There is never any knowing what may happen the Pacific, where all the scum of the world gathers, and it is well to may befall. Gardiner had no desire to turn up on a trestle at the morgue as his next public appearance. But though he was careful he went cheerfully, and could not help laughing.

"Great Scott, to think of Sibley Gawthrop as an able seaman on board the Harvester or the Wanderer! But won't it do him good? These young Californians are a rotten crowd."

He came at last to Smith's house. and stepped upon the verandah floor boldly.

"Why, it's Mr. Gardiner of the Chronicle, so it is," said Billy, who was Smith's runner, and, next to his boss and a few politicians, the hardest case in California. "Is it Mr. Smith you want to see, sir?" "I'm only just doing a run around.

and thought I'd look in, Billy," said Gavdiner, carelessly.

"Ay, just a cultus nannitch, as they say in Chinook," replied Billy. "But we're always glad to see you."

Gardiner doubted that. But Smith was always civil to newspaper men. He hadn't Gardiner bought, as he had the police, and he knew that a true column and a bit on his doings might bring down an avalanche any day.

"And here is Mr. Smith," said Billy. "How are you making it?" asked Smith, "and what'll you drink?"

But Gardiner was not drinking. It was so notoriously unhealthy to drink at Shanghai's place that few sober men were reckless enough to take a cocktail there. "How are you off for men?" asked Gardiner. "Is business good?" Smith shook his head. "Men? There are too many of 'em!

Now hell ain't fuller of devils, Mr. Gardiner, than what San Francisco is of sailors, and you know as well as me that with sailormen a drng in the market, I don't come out on top."

"To be sure," said Gardiner, "but I was thinking, as I came along, that you might get a ship for a young friend of mine." "I'll be glad to do anythin' for any friend of yours," said Smith, "but as I'm tellin' you, 'tis as easy to be President of the United States as to do business with the streets full of men that lets on to be sailors. What kind of a job is your friend lookin' for?" Gardiner laughed.

"I want him to go a voyage before the mast. It will do him good."

"Ah," said Smith quickly, "what's the game? But whatever it is with you, I'm on! Say it and mean it!that's me." Gardiner edged him up to the quiet end of the verandah. "Smith, can you hold your tongue and earn a thousand dollars?"

"Can I do what?" asked Smith Look here, so help me, I'd cut my tongue out for a thousand. I tell you, things are tough. What's the game?" And Gardiner, after looking round, whispered in his ear. "Whew!" whistled Smith, "you translated "Cash on Delivery." "Right!" said Gardiner, "and pick him a nice easy ship. A good old English limejuicer will be the thing. I want him to go to Europe." He went up town, and curiously enough found himself having supper in the swagger restaurant of the city at the next table to Hunt's victim.

"Gawthrop, I want to have a talk with you on very special business," he said. "Can you spare me half an hour to-morrow morning if I call on ship or my health. I'll do you if I can.' Poor beggar, he hasn't the least' show. Oh, but isn't this a game! To think of old Hunt turning up in the London Docks!"

He actually drove along the water front that morning in order to gloat over the ships in the harbor, and when he saw men working up aloft he burst into laughter. The notion was splendid, whatever motive Gardiner had in putting him up to it. It was odd that he had never taken any interest in the seafaring trade of the city before. Gawthrop eyed the very loafers on the wharves with new feelings. Though he did not know it, he saw Shanghai Smith and his runner Billy at the bottom of Spear

"Jehoshaphat," said Smith, "now this is a queer coinci-dence. Billy, that's the young feller I've been telling you about. See him?"

"Rather," growled Bill. "When do you want him shipped, and how am I to get him?" "I'll tell you when it's fixed up," said Smith. "I've got to see the chap

And ain't I reckonin' to allow you a bonus of ten dollars extra? With times as they is now, ten dollars is ten dollars, lemme tell you. And you've taken to growlin' lately in a way I'm not going to stand, Bill. I don't want any slack-jaw from you, so there." postulated the runner. "I suppose a man can hev an opinion?"

"And he can keep it till called for, too," said his boss. "I can lick you any time."

And Bill growled, "Who says you can't? Would I be workin' for you if you couldn't?" The inference was nct exactly obvious.

CLOUDS OF GREAT EXTENT. They Are Frequently Eight Miles

Long and One to Two Miles High. Scientists have recently been measuring the dimensions of the clouds, and have arrived at some rather startling conclusions. The dimensions of single clouds, as far as the area covered by their base is concerned. vary, as anyone can see, from the cloud the size of a man's hand to that which covers the entire visible heavens; but the height of clouds can be observed more definitely and can be estimated with convincing accuracy, and it is this height that largely determines their contents and charac-

A great, cumulous thunderhead. towering up on the horizon like a huge, flamboyant iceberg, is often higher than the highest Alps would be if they were piled on top of the Himalayas. It is not unusual for these clouds to measure five, six or even eight miles from their flat, dark base, hovering a mile or two above the world, to their rounded, glistening summit, splendid in the sunlight. And in these eight miles the changes of temperature are as great as those over many thousand miles of the earth's surface.

These clouds contain strata of temperature, narrow belts of freezing cold alternating with large distances of rainy mist and frozen snow and ice particles. Hailstones, which are formed from a snow particle that falls from the upper strata and is frozen hard in the freezing belt and coated with added ice in the wet belt, are often found with a series of layers in their formation, showing that they have passed through this succession of cloud strata more than once on their way from the upper air to the Value of Formalin.

That formulin may be used for preserving milk without disadvantage to the consumer is shown by the recently published researches of Behring. He has established that formalin will keep milk from souring even in the small proportion of 1 to 4,000, and that the most sensitive animals take it without apparently detecting the addition of the drug, and persons are unable to tell the milk thus treated from pure milk. Catarrh Robs Women of Health and Beauty. Pe-ru-na Makes Women Healthy and Beautiful.

Miss Amanda Johnson, Fairchild, Wis., writes:

"I write to tell you how much Peruna benefited me. For a number of years I had pain in my head around my eyes, and I thought it was because my eyes needed treatment, so I went to an occulist and had glasses fitted to my eyes and were them for some time, but felt no relief whatever.

In fact, I felt worse than before, and came to the conclusion that the trouble was not with my eyes, but with my head and that it must be catarrh. As so many of my friends had used Peruna with benefit for this trouble, I thought I would try it. I was not sorry that I did so, for in a short time I began to improve, and in four weeks my eyes were in splendid condition, my general health was much improved and all the catarrh of the head was gone.

I was glad to get rid of this trouble and am glad to endorse such a good medicine as Peruna."-Miss Amanda Johnson.

Miss Flora Hauser, 1032 S. New Jersey Street, Indianapolis, Ind.,

"I think I must have been troubled with catarrh ever since I was very young, aggravated each time I caught a cold. This did not prove sufficiently serious to be obnoxious until last winter. Then my head and nose were so stopped up that I felt I must do something. Peruna was recommended to me by a friend. I used it for four weeks and found to my relief that it cured me. I have not had a bit of trouble since. My head is clear, and I can safely affirm that Peruna cured me."-Miss Flora Hauser.

WHAT IS LIFE? In the last analysis nobody knows, but we do know that it is under strict law. Abuse that law even slightly, pain results. Irregular living means derangement of the organs, resulting in constipation, headache or liver trouble. Dr. King's New Life Pills quickly re-adjusts this. It's gentle, yet thorough. SIZE OF CZAR'S ARMY.

No One Outside the Russian War Office Knows Number of Troops in Manchuria

No one outside the Russian war office knows the actual number of troops the czar has in Manchuria or within reach of it, says Everybody's Magazine. The Russian army in point of numbers is the largest in the world. Nearly 900,000 young men reach their majority in Russia every year, and each is bound by law to spend five years in the army. If all were taken they would make an army too large even for Russia, so only 219,000 go to the colors with the army or the fleet, and the rest go to the reserve. The lowest peace strength of the Russian military establishment, therefore, numguaranteed. Only 25c at Glazier & bers more than a million men, with 42,000 officers. In war time, practically all these young men join the colors swelling the army to the stupendous figures of 4,500,000 men and 75,000 officers. for whom there are provided 560,000 horses. Men who are in position to guess shrewdly say there are more than 300,-000 Russian soldiers in Manchuria or near it now. The number that can be put in the field there is limited only by the will of the government.

Industrious Fisher. The white tern has the curious habit of never bringing less than two fish at a time to its young. It carries the fish crosswise in its bill and sometimes returns from its excursions with no less than four fish thus carried. It is easy eonugh to understand how it captures the first fish, but naturalists are unable to comprehend how the bird manages to retain it while securing additional ones. Its ability to hold three fish in its bill and still capture a fourth is particularly

A WOMAN'S COMPLEXION

It is rank foolishness to attempt to renove sallowness or greasiness of the skin by the use of cosmetics, or "local" treatment, as advocated by the beauty doctors. The only safe and sure way that a woman can improve her complexion is by purifying and enriching the blood, which can only be accomplish ed by keeping the liver healthy and active. The liver is the seat of disease and blood pollution. Green's August Flower acts directly on the liver, cleans es and enriches, the blood, purifies the complexion. It also cures constipation. billionsness, nervousness, and induces refreshing sleep.
