MILITARY STRENGTH ON LAND.

No Fighting Value.

The threatened military alliance beween Corea and Japan gives special interest to the fighting forces of the little empire was of some considerable given a show." value, but such is not the case, and it is doubtful if Japan has ever considered burdening herself with an alliance that could bring to her no considerable

The fact is the army of Corea exists only in the imagination of Corean officialdom. It is a useless institution, but until quite lately not without a certain picturesque note in its attire. Now, however, the adoption of a foreign style of uniform has robbed the Corean soldier of his one claim to serious consideration, to which an imperial decree, abolishing the top-knot throughout the service, has lent further emphasis. As worn to-day, the uniform comprises a blue cloth tunic with large brass buttons, blue breeches, leather shoes and canvas gaiters. The regimental number decorates the shoulder-strap. Rifle, bayonet and waistbelt with two ammunition pouches are worn. A blanket, overcoat, water-bottle and field kit, weighing some 28 pounds, are carried on active ser-

The uniform is fashioned upon the lines of the Japanese infantry model. The uniforms of the imperial bodyguard regiments were made at one time in France; since then, however, the military workshops in Japan have been responsible for the entire sup-

The strength of the Corean army has been returned by an official of the Corean legation in England as 50,000 men, which, in time of emergency, might be increased to 100,000 effective trained men. This is, unfortunately nonsense, and as a point of fact the armed might of Corea would be routed utterly by a regiment of crossingweepers armed with broomsticks.

Doubtless on paper the army of Corea might be given at 50,000 men. since the greater the strength-on paper-the easier would it be for the paymaster in chief of the forces to enrich himself. Apart from this consideration, the strength of the army of Corea might boast perhaps some 10,000 recruits who attracted, like every Corean, by the prospect of receiving something for nothing, would willingly accept the eight Corean cents pay a day, with uniform and rifle included, for the privilege of allowing the government to consider them soldiers.

The regiments of the imperial guard. stationed at Seoul, the capital of the empire, do reveal a slight knowledge of foreign drill. It is, however, very limited, and in its execution singularly defective. Indeed, even in uniform of foreign style the appearance of these men upon parade needs only the commanding genius of an artist to impart to the scene an atmosphere of pantomime at once grotesque and finely hu-

Apart from the men, many of the officers have been trained in Japan, and throughout the service strong indications of Japanese influence may be observed. Moreover, it is difficult, with the reforms which have been introduced into the Corean army, to distinguish Corean from Japanese soldiers, the complexion, height and general appearance of both being so similar. If anything, the Corean is the better looking as a man-the Japanese more soldierly; but with that comparison there ceases to be any difference, the one being the half-brother of his comrade from across the sea.

The armament of Corea comprises an ill-assorted collection of weapons which ranges from the bows and arrows and the long, two-man muzzleloading length of iron piping of ancient days, to the modern Mauser with magazine attachment. There are many varieties of recent rifles in the Corean service, a complete list including examples of the Martini, Gras, Mauser, Berdan and Murata rifles. There are also many smooth-bore, muzzle-loading muskets, which discharge a veritable arsenal of round solid-iron pellets. The navy is confined to a single steamer, formerly a coal-lighter.

DEWITT MILLER COMING

Mr. DeWitt Miller, who lectured in Chelsea three years ago, will appear again on the Peoples Popular Course next Monday evening, April 25 at the opera house. No one who heard this gifted speaker before will want to miss the coming lecture. Mr. Miller is known in every state in the Union as one of the most popular lecturers on the American platform. The Rochester Union and Advertiser, Rochester, N. Y.

The lecture of the distinguished guest and stranger was perhaps one of the finest ever delivered in this city. Mr. Miller has his subject well in hand and the audience suffered from but one thing; he spoke so rapidly, and his wit was so sly and innocent, that scarcely had it found its way to the mind of the audience, before another sally of wit crowded it out. Also the Buffalo Commercial, Buffalo, N. Y. says: People's faces actually ached from ninety minutes' continuous laughing, excepting when the people were melted with the speaker's pathos.

MOST DESTRUCTIVE INSTRUMENT.

An Ingenius Afrair That Is Like "a Fish of Steel" With the Brains of a Man---

The torpedoing of the Russian battleships Tsarevitch and Retvizan and do boats seems to indicate that the "Whitehead" or automobile fish-torpedo will play a very prominent part in the Russo-Japanese conflict.

"The next great naval war," remarked a naval expert not long ago, will bestow upon the torpedo and its users a halo of romance which will eclipse that entirely surrounding the gun and the ram." The terrible potentialities of under-water warfare appeal vividly to the imagination and the sinking of a mightly line-of-battleship by the deadly torpedo, sets one to wondering whether these huge "mailed mastodons" will give place to surface and submarine torpedo craft in the naval battles of the future.

Under-water fighting is carried out by "mines" and "torpedoes." The forwings and flew off to a high Hummel mer is a stationary charge of explosive contained in a case moored beneath the surface of the water, which is fired torpedo is a "crewless submarine," provided with the power of aggression. The mine awaits the enemy, while the torpedo goes to seek him.

Russia and Japan both employ the Z 'Whitehead" torpedo, invented by the late Mr. Whitehead in 1866, and they carry it on battleships, cruisers, torpedo gunboats, destroyers and torpedo boats.

The first torpedo was a very much less terrible engine of destruction than it is to-day, but it has undergone vast the most wonderful machine in the world." It carries in its explosivechamber 200 pounds of guncotton, and when its nose comes into contact with a ship's side a pointed steed rod is driven against a detonator cap, and the explosive is sufficient to tear a large hole in the hull. It is fired from battleships and cruisers by submerged ubes (above-water tubes being abandoned), and from torpedo craft by revolving tubes carried on deck; it is blown out of the tube by compressed air and on entering the water it sinks to the required depth, running submerged until it meets its prev. Its wonderful little engines are driven by compressed air, and it is prevented from rising to the surface or sinking to the bottom by means of a pendulum and a hydrostatic valve, which act on the horizontal or diving rudders at the stern; it is also fitted with screw propellers and vertical rudders, and is kept on a straight course by a spinning wheel, or gyroscope. Altogther, it well deserves its name of a "fish of steel with the brains of a man." When the automobile torpedo came to be adopted by all the great powers, special craft were devised by which they could ne rendered more efficient. First came the torpedo boat. Battleships are the heavy artillery, cruisers the infantry and to:pedo craft the cavalry of modern naval warfare. France went in largely for torpedo boats, and to meet this a new type of vessel was produced by Great Britain-the torpedo catcher. Unfortunately, these boats never succeeded in catching anything.

Engineers and shipbuilders now set to work, and eventually devised the torpedo boat destroyer, the most complete embodiment of energy and waspishness afloat, and the most perfect example of the combined sciences of naing ever yet produced. They are the fastest craft afloat, steaming 25 to 32 knots an hour, are fitted with turbine machinery making 25 to 37 knots.

In the last two naval conflicts-the Chino-Japanese and the Spanish Amercian wars-the torpedo and the torpedo craft did not get a fair chance. The Chinese officers were only too glad to get rid of these dangerous weapons and often hurled them overboard. The Spanish commanders took their torpedo craft out in broad daylight, and learnt the folly of this proceeding.

The torpedo has already shown that it has to be reckoned with. In its most modern form it has a speed of 30 knots, and a range of 2,000 to 3,000 yards, and if it hits the mighty battleship it effectively cripples it. There is scanty defense for the latter. Torpedo nets are of little or no use, for the torpedo carries a net-cutter, which pierces the best and strongest net with which a battleship can defend itself. BROKE INTO HIS HOUSE.

It is thought in official circles that if any further move is made, it will be from the side of the railroads, as the aftorney-general's department feels very confident of winning the suit. Moreover the state is piling up interest at one per cent a month against the railroads for the portions of the taxes remaining unpaid. Conservative Italians.

One thing is lacking in Italy, espe cially in the south, and that is individual initiative. Capital is plentiful, but the Italian is, as a rule, very conservative, thrifty and saving. It is figured that many millions are hoarded away by thousands who prefer to lose the interest on their money rather than to intrust it to banking institutions, not to speak of investing it in industrial enterprises.

This would make the cost of the silage about $1.00 per ton where the yield was 15 tons per acre, but our average yield of settled silage will not be as high as 15 tons. On the other hand I have charged more for manure than most of you would have done. The prices for labor vary so that no figure can be given that will hold true for any one year. On our farm, if the pasture is good we find little use for any other rough feed except corn silage. Our own farm is cut up by a stream, so that it is unnecessary for us to have a permanent pasture, that is largely blue grass and white clover, and to get the best resul s from such a pasture we find it wise to top dress it with coarse manure every two or three years. If our farm was all tillable land, we would then use a piece of land only one or two years for pasture, sowing timothy and orchard grass with our clover, cutting one year for hay and pasturing the next the farm, those most often fed to cows is so cheaply provided for cow feed though he kept up the feeding of meat around them. The feeding of meat should begin as soon as the For whenever the rabbit was started, you chicks begin to eat food in considerable quantities and should be continued till the fowls reach maturity. Use one part of beef meal to five parts of ground grain in making the mixture. Under this stimulating feed the growth of the chicks will be remarkable, and the fowls will be brought to maturity at least six weeks earlier than they otherwise would be. This means that they will begin laying by November or December. The whole problem of getting eggs in fall is one of maturity. A hen that is mature must lay eggs whether she wishes to or not. There is one thing that should not be overlooked in the developing of chicks intended for winter layers, and that is the necessity of keeping them growing from the beginning. Why it is that a chick that is not started to grow rapidly from the first cannot be induced to grow fast afterwards we do not know, but such seems to be the case. COMIC OPERA SITUATION

Large Choque of Villagers Make Up a Great Combination Attraction.

If Chelsea were a village on the coast of Bohemia the setting could not be better for comic opera than in the $10,000 slander suit pending between John G. Adrion and some of our citizens. "DO IT TO DAY."

The time worn injunction, "Never out off 'til tomorrow what you can do today," is now generally presented in this form: "Do it today!" That is the terse advice we want to give you about that hacking cough or demoralizing cold with which you have been struggiing for several days, perhaps weeks. Take some reliable remedy for it today and let that remedy be Dr. Boschee's German Syrup, which has been in use for over thirty-five years. A few doses of it will undoubtedly relieve your cough or cold, and its continued use for a few days will cure you completely. No matter how deep seated your cough, even if dread consumption has attacked your lungs, German Syrup will surely effect a cure—as it has done before in thousands of apparently hopeless cases of lung trouble. edness. One couldn't predicate Rivers. He was to certain to do the other thing.

"He certainly did it this time," went on Barlow. "Do you fellows remember the old Egyptian palmist who had a shanty down on X street? Well, Rivers told Mollie one of his fabulous tales about this old charlatan, and Mollie's curiosity was so excited that she asked Rivers to make an appointment for her with the Egyptian.

"She drove down there one day, heavily veiled, and was ushered into the awful and mysterious presence of the Egyptian. It was very impressive. Mollie told me so herself. The palmist wore a heavy turban over his eyes, and what was left of his face was concealed by a heavy black beard.

"She said the palmist held both her hands in his most tenderly-in fact, caressingly-and said impressively:

"'You are in love." "Mollie jumped nearly out of her chair, but the rascal held her hands firmly and then proceeded to describe but she and all the other girls wore the man. He painted Rivers to the crepe rather ostentatiously, and really life, even mentioning that little scar he got in Heidelberg, of course. Mollie recognized the portrait and went who the deuce they were, and she away quite shaken up. Until then tossed her head disdainfully; and said she had fancied herself desperately in love with Billy Brown. "I can't tell you his name,' said the old rascal, 'because my art doesn't the rural districts," put in Sanderson, excitedly. "Rivers had made hay while the sun shone in his own characteristic fashion."

"But who were they?" asked Barlow, in admiring awe. "They were his fiancees," said Sanderson, solemnly. "Do you mean all of them, one continuous performance?" asked Barlow. "Nothing else," answered MacPhail. "His will proved it later. It was found that he had left his all, his little all-some half million of dollarsto be divided equally, among them. You can readily imagine their surprise on finding themselves so numerical when they had fondly believed they were the one and only."

"I always said Rivers was a genius," said Barlow, thoughtfully, sipping his champagne. "How they all must miss him," suggested MacPhail. "What's become of Mollie Preston?" asked Barlow, suddenly. "Oh, she married Billy Brown last Easter. He managed to persuade her that the Egyptian had made a mistake-case of mistaken identity-but that she would make no mistake if she took him, and put aside her weeds.'

MacPhail lifted his glass sparkling with yellow sauterne.

"Here's to Rivers," he said, heartily. "To the dearest, most incomprehensible, delightful and altogether impossible and completely locable young scamp that ever graced this club." And the men, standing, drunk the

HAD THE GAMBLERS SCARED.

Mrs. Sage and Mrs. Gould Created a Ripple on the Bowery.

The visit of Miss Helen Gould and Mrs. Russell Sage to the mission in No. 55 Bowery on the night of St. Patrick's day caused a commotion in a gambling house next door. When their automobile drew up in front of the mission a crowd gathered. T'e. names of the visitors were soon passed to the gamblers.

The gambling place is used as a poolroom in the afternoons and a faro game is operated there at night. A well-known lightweight prizefighter acts as doorkeeper in the daytime and occasionally as lookout at night. He was on duty when Mrs. Sage and Miss Gould entered the mission, and it was he who passed the scare to the men inside. Play was interrupted for a few minutes, but more mature consideration led the men to believe they had nothing to fear from the wemen, so they returned to the game.

Several players, however, were curisee the visitors. After the service they returned to the gambling room and reported how Mrs. Sage had

IN THE COCKTAIL CHERRY.

Dr. Wylie Discluses Some Mysteries of Its Composition. Some of the mysteries of composition of the cherry in the insidious cocktail, the clear, beautifully colored jellies fed to the sick and convalescent, as well as the more substantial articles of food, were disclosed by Dr. Harvey W. Wylie, chief of the bureau of chemistry, United States department of agriculture, in the last of a series of five lectures on "Home Eonomics," delivered before the Phils adelphia branch of the collegiate alumnae at the rooms of the association. The nonular taste demands the addition of colors to food which will last note. give them the tint people imagine nature imparts, said Dr. Wylie. These dyes are made mostly from coal tar. Some are not harmful, yet it is a deception. Most of the coffee sold as Mocha and Java comes from Brazil. Cherries such as are used in cocktails are filled with glucose, flavored with prussic acid and dyed with analine dye. Vinegar is often made from beet root alcohol. Olive oil is almost never made from olives. The adulteration of food debases commerce, and leading manufacturers are beginning to realize it and to take action against it. - Philadelphia Public Ledger.

A Puddlin' Business.

Kemble, the artist, was sketching in the mountains of Georgia recently, when he fell in with a particularly angular "cracker." The man posed for him in various positions, spending over an hour, and when Kemble asked, "What do I owe for your trouble?" the mountaineer answered, "I recken a dime'll be about right, suh. The artist showed him the sketches and asked what he thought of them. 'Wall," was the drawling reply. seems to me it's mighty puddlin' business for a man to be in, but you must be makin' suthin' out of it or you couldn't afford to throw away money like this for jest gettin' a man to stand around doin' nothin'."- Montreal Herald.

Ambassador Bearded Czar.

Sir Jerome Bowes, Queen Eliza beth's ambassador to Ivan the Terri ble, czar of Russia, in 1583, had a exciting time. Ivan had killed hi own son a few years earlier in a fit of passion, and was no easy character t deal with. The czar saw fit to dis parage the English queen, whom, he declared, "he did not reckon to be hi fellow," there being those who were her betters. Bowes could not stand this sort of thing, and pluckil serted that his princess was as as any in Christendom. "What! As Bowes, with a fine assumption of scorn, "such is the greatness of the queen, my mistress, that the king he father had not long since the empero in his pay in his wars against France." The czar was at first more furiou than ever, but in time he took Bowe into his favor.

And perhaps Rayner had little heart. But if he had little, the mate was cheery enough. He bellowed loudly, and the men jumped.

"No" then, haul taut the lifts," he rozred. "That'll do. Weather clewgarner! Ease off the sheet a bit!" They slacked away the tack and baule! up the weather-gear.

"Now then, lee-gear, and jump aloft and firl it."

The night was black and the wind heave in increasing squalls. Even with the foresail hanging in the gear. The wind of words will not carry the and bellying out in great white bladder, she still cut the seas like a knife, and scooped the seas in over her carried no apprentices. Forward head. Blankets and bags washed out on deck, for there was no door to the men's quarters, only a heavy canvas screen from the break of the foc'sle. And from aloft dull foam gleamed as the Pandora drove the seas asunder. The men sprang into the weather-rigging with the second mate leading. As he came to the futtock shroud he laid hold of the foremost shroud he laid hold of the foremost shroud the band of the yard-truss. His foot slipped and his hand-hold gava. He snatched with a yell at the top-gallant sheet leading through the top, but was too late to grasp and hold it. "By God, the Pandora's luck," said the men in the rigging as they heard him reach the deck. And when the foresail was stowed and they went down they heard the man was dead. They found the Pandora made heavy weather still, when she was brought to the wind, and she only lay to decently when she was stripped to the goose-winged maintopsail. The men went into their wet and devastated den in gloomy silence.

"'Ere's a bloomin' pretty general everage," said Joe, as he found his chest, which was also his chum's, staved in by the impact of an ironbound one which had fetched away from its lashings. But no one growled, and no one answered him. The young second "greaser" had been liked by them. They sat and smoked in gloomy silence, and only half of the watch. relow turned into the driest bunks. They thought that the Pandora had begun, and though she lay to easily enough, few slept. They were afraid Gezen water poured over. of their ship; she was unlucky, accursed, an evil personality. About her was the odor of death.

"Care was a good boy," they said, and would have been a fine officer by-and by. Well, our turn next." Every time the Pandora bowed a wave the hawse-holes still spurted; the foc'sle deck ran wet and glimmered darkly in the feeble light from the sanking lanterns swinging on both port and starboard sides. The air was saturated with moisture, rank sweat ran down the beams, dripping blankets swayed from the edges of unoccupied bunks; the men were damp, subdued, unhappy. Now, as the ship lay to, the wind no longer

They buried the second mate in the grey waste of sea before they put the Pandora before the moderating gale. The mate read the burial service, for Captain Rayner stayed below. The steward told the men in a whisper that he was ill.

o"He's all broke up," he said, "I seed him cryin' like a child. And no wonder; this is a wicked ship. I wish I'd left her in Melbourne." And some of the men frowned.

They did not like to hear him call the Pandora wicked. For the ship was, in its way, alive; it was possessed. They wished to propitiate it; superstition had them by the throat. But they were easier when the body was committed to the deep. And the mate assumed a more cheerful air when he had carried the Prayer Book into his berth and came on deck again. They put the ship before the wind and loosed the foresail. But though the wind had taken off, the sea was very heavy, and the Pandora wallowed riotously. She took in seas over both rails. Thrice that day she filled the main-deck, and but for the life-lines rigged right from the foc'sle to the poop many men would have been washed overboard. As she ran with the wind on the port quarter, she sometimes dived as if she would never come up. The galley fire was out, and could not be lighted; the men drank water and ate biscuit.

"Hogs, dogs, and sailors," they said. Every time the vessel dived they held their breath.

The mate had a hard time, for Rayner was incapable of work, and she there was no one capable of an ofacer's work; there was no broken skipper whom drink had destroyed, no young fellow with a second mate's "ticket." So Mr. Gamgee practically siept on deck in snatches till he slept almost as he stood under the weathercloth in the mizzen rigging. He prayed for moderate weather, for a sight of the sun. But though the gale was less, it still blew hard, and the sky was black and the racing scud low, and the sun was not seen by day or a star by night. On the third day Gamgee staggered as he walked.

"If the old man can't come on deck soon I'll have to cave in," he thought. He shook his fist at the ship. "I wish I'd never seen her. She's a man-killer." That night when the starboard watch was called at twelve the wind took off suddenly, and the Pandora pounded in the wallow of the sea like a bull-buffalo in a bog. She shipped seas over both rails; the racing waves astern came and slapped their crests at the man at the wheel; she scooped up the sea forward every stagger she made. She had been running under the reefed foresail and the fore and main topsails close reefed. Now they shook the reefs out. Gamgee was alert and alive, but his nerves halfbetrayed him. He jumped from the poop to the main-deck, and back again: He wanted to be mate and second mate and skipper too. And as the fresh canvas took hold of her, she slapped at the rising sea, dived into it, and as the wind bellowed almost as keen as ever, the man at the wheel lost his nerve, gave her too much helm, statched at her, gave her too much again, and almost broached her to. And then the mate was again on the main-deck.

Some one heard him say "O God!" as the Atlantic fell on board; but no one ever heard him say anything

The water filled her from rail to rail. She shuddered, and then lifted slowly, and as she ran once more before the wind and rolled, she poured out the sea on either side. The main-'deck 'ports were burst outward, the gear floated in inextricable tangles, a four-hundred-gallon tank, lashed under the poop ladders, broke from its habit in him in reference to greater lashings and took charge of the deck. affairs.-Plutarch.

Japanese Would Find It Hard to Get Along Without It.

The Japanese use paper at every moment. The string with which a deft-handed "darling of the gods" does up the articles you buy is made of paper. The handkerchief (thrown away after use) is paper, the partitions dividing the houses are paper, and the pane through which an indiscreet eye looks at you is paper! The pane is certainly wanting in transparency, but there is a simple remedy. One finger is passed through the paper-that is all! Afterward a small piece is stuck on the opening with a grain of rice.

The men's hats, the cloak of the porter who carries his burden, singing a cadence, through the rain; the garment of the boatman who conducts you on board, the tobacco pouch, cigar case-all are paper! Those elegant flowers ornamenting the beautiful hair of the Japanese ladies, and those robe collars which are taken for crape -paper!

NO CAUSE FOR GRATITUDE.

And Sturdy Scotchman Gave No Lip Service to His Maker.

The following example of a quaint, philosophical Scotch character is related in the Scottish American: The season had been an exceptionally bad one for farming, but in a church not far from Arbroath the officials had resolved, according to custom, to hold the annual harvest thanksgiving service. It was noticed that on that particular occasion Mr. Johnstone, a regular attendant and pillar of the church (whose crops had miserably failed), was not in attendance. The minister in the course of the following week met Mr. Johnstone and inquired of him the reason of his absence from church on such an important occasion. ashake. FEMALE WEAKNESS

542 1-2 Congress St.
PORTLAND, MAINE, Oct. 17, 1902.
I consider Wine of Cardui superior to any doctor's medicine I ever used and I know whereof I speak. I suffered for nine months with suppressed menstruation which completely prostrated me. Pains would shoot through my back and sides and I would have blinding headaches. My limbs would swell up and I would feel so weak I could not stand up. I naturally felt discouraged for I seemed to be beyond the help of physicians, but Wine of Cardui came as a God-send to me. I felt a change for the better within a week. After nineteen days treatment I menstruated without suffering the agonies I usually did and soon became regular and without pain. Wine of Cardui is simply wonderful and I wish that all suffering women knew of its good qualities.

Wilhelman Somo Treasurer, Portland Economic League

Periodical headaches tell of female weakness. Wine of Cardui cures permanently nineteen out of every twenty cases of irregular menses, bearing down pains or any female weakness. If you are discouraged and doctors have failed, that is the best reason in the world you should try Wine of Cardui now. Remember that headaches mean female weakness. Secure a $1.00 bottle of Wine of Cardui today.
