Never was the pathos of handful of veterans only a few of which still retain an erect carriage and flashing eye marched away alone toward the white locks and quiet demeanor and visages full of the solemn earnestness of the occasion were the characteristics. There was no band and no procession and even the fife and drum ahead seemed to sound strangely plaintive. Each veteran carried a basket of flowers every petal of which was a symbol of the emotions of the heart. Nature and the thin line of heroes alike pointed the lesson that other hands than those of the Grand Army must soon take up the task of providing the observances of Memorial Day.

The program as announced in last week's Standard was carried through. On Sunday, pursuant of general orders from both national and state headquarters, the Grand Army of the Republic met for public worship. They along with the W. R. C. attended the Methodist church and were addressed by Rev. Dr. Caster.

Monday, the memorial exercises were in a body as usual to the hall. There the general orders calling attention to the sacredness of the day were read as was also President Lincoln's classic Gettysburg address. Music was furnished by a male quartet and Miss Pauline Burg.

The address of the occasion was de- On the days he goes through the main livered by Rev. C. S. Jones. It was an eloquent tribute of a young man who had never known the actual realities of the great war, but who was, nevertheess, responsive in his heart to the meaning of the great deeds of our citizen soldiery. He reviewed the nation's history and traced how, step by step, the impending crisis drew near, and then in a word picture drew again n his hearers' imagination the scenes of Gettysburg, Vicksburg and other great battles of the war.

Following the exercises the veterans marched to the cemetery and there decorated the graves of the soldier

KOREA'S LITTLE EMPEROR. He Has But Little to Say About the Government or the Future of His Country.

The little emperor of Korea is neither so powerful as the czar, on one side of Fitting Program .-- The Skies Wept and him, nor so wise as the mikado of Japan, on the other side. His country is little, so when his big and powerful neightbors on either side begin to fight each other, Memorial Day was again this year as they are doing now, he is like a grain

A look at the map will show how easy the land. It was a cold, grey, drippy it is for the soldiers of his neighbors to tramp across his small country. And this is what they are doing, without feeling badly about doing it. Surely the little emperor is in a peck of trouble. He might az well be a plain, everyday American as an emperor, because as an emperor he is the passing of the great Grand Army of | no more able to stop them than if he were the Republic more apparent than when an American. ## NIGHT WITH HUNGRY LION.

Lions, it seems, take to man-eating only as a means of self-defense, or when they become too old to be a match for the wild prev, the flavor of which they so much prefer. Old hunters declare that they never knew a lion really to "stalk" a man; that, as a rule, they rather "turn up their In "Days and Nights by the Desert" Parker Gilmore tells of a trick he once played on one of these animals. "I was hunting ostriches," he says. 'At a bend in the ravine the bird disappeared, and I was about to follow it,

The Japanese army swept the Russians from Kin-Chou Thursday evening, and in a desperate night attack stormed the almost impregnable position of the Russians on Nanshan hill, west of Talienwan.

The battle raged in the hills all through the night and fragmentary telegrams from the Japanese headquarters report that the engagement is still in progress and that the Japanese are still pursuing the Russians south from Nanshan and the head of Talienwan

The Russians had made elaborate preparations to check the Japanese movement south on the Liao-Tung peninsula toward Port Arthur.

Vice Admiral Togo has established a complete blockade around the southern end of the Liao Tung peninsula. This completely envelops Port Arthur the opening of the final investment of the town and its fortifications. The Japanese troops have swept all the Russians from their defenses west of Talienwan bay. It is now improbable that the latter will be capable of offering any further serious resistance in the territory north of Port Arthur.

The Russian officials claimed that the hights behind Kin Chou furnished the key to the situation in the upper part of the peninsula, and these have now been stormed by the victorious central Michigan during the year. Japs. The Russians were formidably entrenched and had made elaborate preparations to hold the fills, which they were naturally almost impregnable. The right assault of the Jap has, however, taken away Lussia's last bulwark near Port Arthur.

Harden Metals by Air.

The latest proposals for intensifying the oxidizing action of air on metals is that of M. Harmet, and has for its object the treatment of cast iron, producing a refined iron or steel. Molten iron is caused to flow through a fine channel surrounded by an annular air-blast, which thus forms a turpere, driving the metal forward in a fine spray. This spray is collected and allowed to flow together again in a receiving chamber, from which the molten steel can be tapped.

REAL POWER OF THE PRESS.

But is it not plain that the power of the press as a saving agency depends not so much on the skill of journalists as on their nobility of aged. Such funerals as those of Grant character and their moral motive? and Sherman are grandly solemn. When we see so many accomplished public men, adepts in all the technical arts of politics, putting their power to unpatriotic and selfish uses, it seems to us that the salvation of the republic depends more on the instruction and quickening of conscience than on greater capacity for work. This is also the peculiar needs of journalists, and especially of proprietors of journals, who, as a rule, will be capitalists, not trained in any school of journalism, and having little of the spirit of heroic self-sacrifice in a missionary undertaking.-Boston Herald.

Co-education does not discourage matrimony in America. In every high school where boys and girls are brought together there are budding romances that not infrequently flower into matrimony, and as for the colleges and universities where men and women meet on an equal basis the conditions are extremely favorable to matrimony, and seldom are these marriages unhappy. A social occasion enjoyable in every rticular and more than ordinarily imortant was the banquet tendered the risiting Knights of Pythias, from the nekson lodges, by the member of the local branch of the fraternity.

The banquet was served in Maccabee iall by the ladies of the L.O.T. M. M I'wo long tables, neatly laid with crisp white table linen and well ordered able service and at frequent intervals beautiful boquets of flowers greeted the banqueters as they entered the hall. But not only were the tables in the best of taste but the menu was also well calculated to appeal to the masculine un derstanding of good things.

Following the doing of ample justice to the banquet the guests next turned their attention to the excellent toast and musical program that had been prepared. Chancelor Commander B. B. TurnBull presided as toastmaster, and with a well turned reference to each of the speakers called up for response many from both the Chelsea and Jackson lodges. A pleasing ferture of the evening was the boom started by one, speaking for the Jackson brothers, for Mr. Geo. BeGole for an official position with the Grand Lodge of this state.

The musical part of the program was greatly appreciated by all. Miss Mildred Atkinson, Master Garrett Conway and Floyd Ward each gave a vocal number accompanied by Miss Mabel Bacon. Each soloist was enthusiastically encored and Floyd Ward was brought back a number of times.

After the banquet all adjourned to the Castle Hall for a social session before the Jackson Knights left for their homes. The occasion was a success in every particular and speaks for the enterprise, sociability and goodfellowship of the local and visiting Knights of Pythias.

CHELSEA AT THE INTERSCHOLASTIC.

The |Schenks Again Win Points for the Chelsen School at the Big Athletic Meeting of Many Schools.

Chelsea's showing last Saturday at the great Interscholastic Athletic meet under the auspices of the University of Michigan was highly creditable taking all the factors into consideration. The Chelsea school through the prowess of Clayton and Herbert Schenk won 8 points. This number of points is of course a meager portion of the 36 won by the Detroit University School and the 351 scored by the Lewis Institute of Chicago, but nevertheless Chelsea's score was equal to that of Battle Creek and more than that of any school of

Of the work of Clayton Schenk the Detroit Free Press of Sunday spoke in highly commendable terms as did the Chicago Record Herald which noticed his work as follows:

"One of the green men who showed up well was Clayton Schenk of Chelsea who without any coaching took second in the 100 yard dash and second in the discuss throw. With coaching he will levelop into a fine athlete."

He would have been first in the 100 yard dash if it had not been for the great Hogenson of Chicago who has had the best of coaching and has frequently appeared at other athletic meetings throughout the country. Herbert Schenk also would have taken first in his race if had not been for the Lewis Institute runners of Chicago which should never have been admitted to participate in the meet.

The Irishwoman was nonplussed for tions, she clapped her hands together a minute or so, and then a brilliant idea occurred to her, which she put into operation at once.

Taking a penny from the bag, she knocked at the little door with it. "Well, what do you want?" said the old maid, opening the door.

"Is this the postoffice, marm?" said the Irishwoman, politely. "You know it is!" snapped the old maid. "Plaze, marm, do you sell stamps?" "Of course I do!"

"Would you be after giving me one, then, marm?" said the Irishwoman. The postmistress could not refuse this request; though a pound's worth of copper was not a legal tender, a penny most certainly was, and she handed out the stamp, and swept the penny into the drawer.

"Thank you kindly," said the Irishwoman, and the door banged to again. In a few seconds another rap at the door brought up the old maid again, who was getting her tea. "Well, what is it?" she demanded angrily. "Sure, marm, I'm thinking I'll be wanting a stamp," said the Irishwoman, with a look of innocence ten inches deep, and she put a penny down. The old maid in giving her the stamp, brought her open hand down with a thwack on the desk that would have caused a mortal explosion in a blackbeetle, and her looks would have turned XXXX beer into vinegar on the spot. "Thank you kindly," said the Irishwoman again, with a curtsy that made the old maid blush and wish that swearing wasn't a sin, and the door went to with an extra bang.

In a few minutes more there was another rap at the door, and the oldmaid sprang from the tea table with something that did sound just a little

DISRAELI AS A PLAGIARIST.

Statesman Appropriated Brilliant Words of Other Men.

A recently published volume on Disraeli singles out as one of the most brilliant of Disraeli's sayings a sentence which that statesman appropriated without acknowledgment from Bacon's "Essay of Great Place": "Ask counsel of both times-of the ancient times that which is best, of the modern times that which is fittesi." The most frequently quoted of all Disraeli's sayings was similarly approprited by him without acknowledgment from Lord Shaftesbury: "Men of sense are all of the same religion." "And what is that religion, my lord?" "That men of sense never tell." Disraeli, however, never himself appro priated a joke of Gladstone's which the writer of the new volume attributes to his hero: "A deputation is a noun of multitude, signifying many, but not much."

Sydney Smith's love of animals led nim into ludicrous mistakes at times, as when, having given his pigs fermented grains, he found them all drunk and "grunting 'God Save the King' about the style," and when he allowed one of his quadrupeds to swallow a mighty dose of pills, boxes and all. But his "back scratcher" was a good idea. He had a theory that every animal delights to stretch its back-"A pound's worth of stamps, and turned it into something else at the bone, so he put up his "universal the cash all in coppers? The Horse Still Popular. The horse industry is to-day in a flourishing condition, little corresponding to the predictions of some of our commercial prophets ten years ago. At that time we were told that we were on the eve of a horseless age. To prove it the savants pointed to the thousands of people that were using bicycles. It was said that agents had been placed at the entrances to the great parks in New York and other cities and these counted the thousands of wheelmen and wheelwomen that daily passed through the parks and reported that only now and then a carriage or mounted horseman was seen. That was true ten years ago in all the great cities of the country. But how is it to-day?

Sit down at the entrance to any of our great city parks in the summer time and watch the passers by. There will be seen a steady stream of carriages, with only now and then a man or woman on a wheel. It is evident that the wheel was only a temporary plaything for the public, and that when the public grew tired of the wheel it went back to the old friend of man-the horse. Within ten years there has been a material increase in the number of ply, and with the larger use of horses has come an increased rapidity of their wearing out. While the wheels were being so freely used, many of the driving horses in the cities spent much of their time in the barns or in the pastures, but since the public returned to the use of the horse the work of the horse has increased, and the consequent wear and tear !ncident to service and accidents has also a day. increased.

The horseless vehicles that have been introduced in the cities are but an insignificant factor in the general situation. Such vehicles are but the playthings of the wealthy or are in service in only a slight degree com- plains, "Dodd's Kidney Pills saved his mercially. Breeding Light Horses. States Department of Agriculture Address Allen S. Olmsted, Le Roy, N.Y. says: Stand by the auction ring of any great horse market and observe closely the horses that fail to bring prices sufficient to cover cost of production. In the great majority of cases trotting blood predominates if any breeding at all is noticeable. 'Ask a dealer what is the breeding, if any, fortune hath denied it .- Ford. of most of the large numbers of the unclassified horses on the market, his answer will be: "Trotting and coach blood." This is not because draft blood is more valuable or that the blood of the light breeds is not wanted, for the great cry of the market at present is that good drivers and saddlers are extremely scarce. It is because performance and style are much more difficult to acquire in breeding than size and weight. It is because men with a fascination for the race track attempt to produce trotters without the slightest regard for nature's laws, and no disappointment or to realize their folly. Breeding to a trotter without system and study, but only in the hope of getting a speedy foal as a possibility or an accident, is "playing with fire." The breeding of light horses requires not only a considerable amount of capital, but demands a knowledge of horses of the very highest order. It necessitates concentration of effort and years of Mich., tells how she was cure waiting and planning. It is not every of falling of the womb and man that brings such qualities to bear when he takes a 1,600-pound draft mare to a 1,200-pound harness or saddle stallion, and it is largely because of this, and not on account of the breeds themselves, that so many poor borses are forced onto the market. A high-class roadster, coacher, or saddler is by far the most difficult horse to produce that the market calls for. In addition to careful plans of breeding and high individual excellence in the resulting progeny, a course of handling, mannering, and training must be pursued before the horse will figure as a really marketable animal.

These facts must be thoroughly untrained to me. For four months returned to me. For four months and built me up until my good here. derstood if a man would breed light iorses for market.

CHAPTER VI.

Alexis Nazimoff at Home. Alexis Nazimoff was a splendid specimen of the young Russian officer, and as he stood by his father a moment after his arrival and received a greeting from the Karsicheffs, whose welcome quickly followed his entrance, he looked the ideal of the dashing cavalryman. His great coat, cap and sword had been handed to a servant, and his finely proportioned figure was revealed to a perfection in the uniform which became him so

His dark eyes, softened by the expression of the emotion with which ne had met his, father's greeting. ighted up a face of singular attractiveness. His hair, of a deep chestnutty brown, matched well the suntanned complexion; and the slightly aquiline nose, finely chiseled, indicated at once the high birth and the strength of character; while the wellformed mouth showed under the dark brown mustache such lines of decision as to indicate that once the lips were drawn together in evidence of a purpose formed, that purpose would be carried out at any cost.

Alexis, after greeting his father, had turned to Olga, whom he kissed on both cheeks, but those who noticed the salutation could hardly help coming to the conclusion that there was little of ardor in the act. It was rather the perfunctory salutation of a sister than the ardent greeting of an affianced wife after a presumably eruel separation of two long years; As he was greeted by one friend after another, Alexis' face indicated the pleasure he felt at the warmth of his reception. He was the center of a group, most of whom were old acquaintances, when his father, who had observed General Cobb standing half-concealed at a curtained window as he talked to the Baroness von Rhineberger, approached the latter.

"My dear baroness, you must not be last with your welcome to Alexishe was always a favorite with you. So saying, Paul Nazimoff, offering friend! Here, here, beneath by father's roof. This is indeed a pleasure! Welcome ten thousand times. To find you here when I thought you back in America makes my happiness this night complete!" The warmth of Alexis' words, no less than the evident pleasure and sincerity with which they were uttered produced a feeling of profound surtuse in the assemblage.

With the exception of the meeting with his father, when his emotion was apparent to all, Alexis had given no evidence of other than the natural pleasure with which he had met the

There were glances of surprise and inquiry between the guests, and on the face of the Countess Karsicheff there was an expression of annoyance which she found it impossible to avoid. Four hundred curious eyes had seen the meeting of Alexis and Olga, and she felt that gossip would be busy with its significance in a hundred places in St. Petersburg. The warmth of Alexis' greeting to Cobb made his coldness before doubly, apparent, and Katherine Karsicheff, raising her haughty head, made no effort to conceal the significance of the inquiry which her eyes directed to those of "Evidently not." proceeded A'exis, as he stopped the protest of Cobb. "Then I shall tell you. Aid me to show my gratitude, your regard to my friend, my preserver!"

"His preserver!" Astonishment gave way to curiosity, and an eager expectancy pervaded the assemblage as Alexis spoke: "Ay, my preserver, the man but for

The request came from a dozen voices. Paul Nazimoff, as Alexis spoke of Cobb as his preserver, laid his hard on the arm of the American with a kindly gesture, while the baroness, with an eagerness she made no attempt to hide, exclaimed: "Preserver?

Alexis began: "About a year ago, while our command, under General Kaufman, was pushing its way across the Tartary steppes, we had a sharp conflict with a body of Turcoman cav-

PIRACY IS THE BOY'S IDEAL. All Lads at Some Time Long to Be

come Scourges of the Seas. There comes a time in the life of every boy when he wants to run away from home and be a pirate, or a street car conductor, or a politician, or something. Usually when he makes his ambition known the old man puts him down/with a stern hand, and emphasizes his warning with a strap or a switch, and when the boy does run away he is ashamed or afraid to come back again, feeling that he'll be whipped within an inch of his life. How much better would it be if the father would take the aspiring son into the barn and commune with him as friend to friend. "By all means," says the wise old man, under the circumstances, "go and be a pirate."

In this day of low heading of fruit trees it will be difficult to drive very close to the trees without injuring the low drooping branches.

Potatoes and tomatoes are two classes of vegetables that may be grown in the orchard to advantage, as both require to be clean cultivated, and usually receive good applications of manure in some form. Frequently the growing of these crops pays all the expenses of keeping up the orchard, and when the latter comes into The Hartman Sanitarium, Columbus, O. generally dependent upon catarrh. bearing it starts in without being a debtor to the man that owns it. Tobacco for Wooly Aphis.

Tobacco dust can be obtained from the great tobacco manufacturing establishments for about one cent per pound if purchased in large quantities. Some of our best investigators of insect troubles of the orchard say that this dust is a destroyer of wooly aphis and can be used to advantage around every fruit tree that is or has been affected. The usual mode of application is to dig away the soil from around the tree to a distance of two feet each way and to a depth of say four inches. About five pounds of the tobacco dust is spread over this place and the dirt put back. This is to prevent the dust being blown away by the winds or washed away by the rains. The rain that falls will carry the nicotine from the tobacco to all parts of the roots of the tree affected by the aphis and they will be killed. It will also prevent the coming of other broods of the aphis. The tobacco is worth for fertilizer all it costs, and its insecticidal value is an absolute gain. The work of application may therefore be set down as the only cost of the protection it af-

BENEATH THE SNOW

HOW THE ANIMALS CONSTRUCT TUNNELS IN WINTER.

They Find It Easier to Travel Under Than Over the White Covering in Their Search for Food.

After a light snowfall, the wild creatures going about their daily work, leave a very legible record behind them. Not only may their footprints be plainly seen upon the surface, but each footprint will be about the same size as the foot which made it; and moreover, the details of the toes and toenails will all be present for examination. When the snow is deeper, the individual footprints may be still there, but the fine details will be lost, and, as it becomes still deeper, even the separate footprints will be lost beneath the snow which falls into and partly obliterates the tracks. Eventually there is a point at which some of the animals no longer attempt to travel on the snow; they find it easier or more to the purpose to travel on the ground beneath it. After one of the heavy snowstorms, I was walking by the side of a stream where muskrats are abundant, and where their tracks are usually to be found in the mud or the snow the whole year round. There was not a sign of their having left the water. and, indeed, the stream and meadows on either side of it presented one unbroken field of snow. However, I knew that if they were alive they must be getting food somewhere, as they do not store away supplies, as the beavers do; so I walked along to investigate. Without warning I sank to the hips in a hole which proved to be the mouth of a muskrat burrow. I cleared away some of the snow and it became evident that the burrow was in daily use. and that it connected with a tunnel which ran out under the snow. Procuring a snow shovel from a farm nearby, I removed the upper surface of the snow from a considerable section of the field, and uncovered a subway system which for complexity out-

But all the tunnels led to the hole into which I had accidentally stepped, and this was very suggestive of a great railroad terminus. The whole represented no insignificant engineering feat on the part of the rats, which had evidently been hunting for grains of corn, for it was a cornfield they had been working in. and the gnawed husks, here and there, showed that they had probably had at least some success.

Later in the afternoon, I came to another cornfield where, for some reason the shocks had been left since fall. KING CARRIED EGG BASKET.

How Denmark's Venerable Monarch Once Upon a Time Helped a Peasant Woman.

King Christian of Denmark, dean of the world's monarchs, likes to move about among his people without ceremony. Frequently during his daily he has been known to hail a common cab and drive to his castle. His plain, quiet habits he has always maintained from the time when he was only an ordinary officer in the Danish army and had no thought of ever becoming a king. One day King Christian sat on a bench in the wood near Fredensborg, smoking his cigar and whisking the fallen leaves with his cane, when an old peasant woman came along, carrying a basketful of eggs. She took a seat beside the king. Looking at the white-haired, plainlyclad old man, she said: "You are from the neighborhood here, I s'pose?'

"Yes, I am," replied the king. "Then you can tell me if the castle is far from here. I thought of selling my eggs there, you know." "The castle lies on the other side of

"Oh, have been, have been." Now the woman looked at the king very suspiciously.

"You'll not tell me you are a colonel?"

Then the woman, folding her hands and rolling up her eyes, sighed and said: "Dear me, dear me! I have seen such things before. You have lost your position, I guess, and I know the reason. It is always whisky. Don't taste it any more. Poor man, I pity you!"

"Your majesty," he stammered. "Yes," the woman said," the eggs are for the king. Is he at home? As I am here now, I should like to see him."

"Look at me, then," laughed King Christian. "I am the king."

The old woman drew back. "You are the king," she said. "But then you ought to wear a nice uniform, so that your people could recognize you. Please don't put me in jail. You can take the eggs. I don't want any

> HERE AT HOME MICHIGAN CITIZENS TESTIFY GLADLY.

It is testimony like the following that has placed "the old Quaker Remedy" so far above competitors. When people right here at home rise their voice in praise there is no room left for doubt. Read the public statement of a Michigan James Marshall of Paw Paw, number 1 Rural Delivery Mail Carrier, says: "To peak of the merits of Doan's Kidney Pills such terms of praise as they deserve would be to use expressions having the ppearance of extravagance. When I procured them at E. B. Longwell's drug store I had a severe pain in the small of my back across the loins. It was always worse if I took cold or over-exerted myself, and sometimes my sufferings can scarcely be described. I noticed that the kidney secretions were irregular. often highly colored, and at times full of acid. This had continued about two years and I used every remedy that came o my notice, but got little if any benefit from them. At last I decided to try Doan's Kidney Pills. I had trusted the remedy would do me good, but I was not prepared for the great benefit which they soon brought. I could notice the good effect after taking a few doses, and by the time I had used three-fourths of a box the pain in my back passed out of existance, the kidney secretions became natural and I am enjoying better health than I have for years. Doan's Kidney Pills are worth their weight in gold." Sold for 50 cents per box by all dealers. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y., sole agents for the United States.
