CHAPTER VI.-Continued. Paul Nazimoff said little. But it at the time to trust kimself to its ex-sion la words. Cobb for nd himself the center of an admiring audience, and all the warmth of corgradulation he received would have made any man feel proud to be the hero of the hour. He tried hard find himself the center of attention. In vain he precested that he had done no more for Alexis than any man would have done for another under the circumstances.

"But you forget," urged one of 'the Russian naval officers present, "that your own life was to be spared. You were merely to be held for ransom. By this act you periled that life to save that of a stranger."

"Well," replied Cobb, with a smile, "we've all got to take chances in this world."

A score of interrogations as to why he was alone followed, and Cobb, in spite of his desire to let the matter drop, found it impossible to avoid an explanation.

Septimus Cobb was a Kentuckian by birth. From his earliest youth he had been of a roving, adventurous disposition. At the outbreak of the war he had raised a company of cavalry. and step by step had won promotion until he was in command of a brigade. The close of the war found him with the possession of the title "General." a fund of splendid physical health, indomitable courage, restless energy. and an unsatisfied ambition. He was poor. He wanted wealth, and he went to California. For years after he led the life of thousands of restless adventurers in the far West. Editor, miner, speculator-everything by turns. Two fortunes made-and lost. He came East, got into oil, made a third fortuneand lost that. It was while casting about for the easiest and quickest means of making a fourth fortune that, hearing of the marvelous development of Russian oil territory on the shores of the Black Sea; he determined to investigate its possibilities. A syndicate was formed, and Cobb. as its representative, with unlimited credit, and plenary powers, was sent to prospect the new oleaginous territory. After some years spent in the reighborhood of Baku, the center of the Russian oil country, stories began to reach Cobb of marvelously rich gold deposits in Turkestan. To think, with him was to act. It was necessary to keep his destination a secret, for, if the tales of the new El Dorado were true, the moment they became known in Europe and America, it was as certain that thousands would flock to the scene as it was that the diamond mines of Africa, and the gold discoveries of Australia, attracted adventur ers from all parts of the world. Taking a small steamer, Cobb crossed the Caspian Sea, and guided by a rough map of the country, pushed into the interior. He had a march of weeks, perhaps months, ahead of him, but he was undaunted. His escert supposed him an American missionary, and he

A score of invitations to the to put an end to the scene. It was greatest houses in Russia had already becoming a mewhat embarrassing to been showered on General Cobb. He had accepted half a dozen-one in particular, that had been pressed with great earnestness. That one came from the Baroness von Rhineberg. "You are so grand, brave," said the baroness. "You will in St. Petersburg long stay?"

"Not very long, I am afraid," answered Cobb. "You see I am a bird of passage-always on the go.' "Always on ze go," repeated the baroness. "How is which?" Cobb smiled. "How is which" struck him as a perfect gem. "Always on the go," he explained, 'mears that I remain here a little time -then go somewhere else-then trav el again-and so on."

"It I now understand," replied the baroness. There was the suggestion of a sigh as she spoke. It did not escape the notice of Cobb. "I would to be always on ze go, like sometimes myself, but I must be always on ze stay-"I am alone," and the voice became softer as the baroness cast down

Cobb was about to reply when Lord Fitzroyal, who had been an interested spectator, sauntered up. The baroness was betraying altogether too much interest in the stalwart American to please his lordship, who had been wavering for some time on the verge of a proposal.

"Well, baroness, our American friend seems to have covered himself with glory."

Cobb detected a covert sneer in the ·emark

"Zat is so! He is a brave man, and a big man. Big men are brave, is it

The baroness looked innocently enough at Lord Fitzroyal as she spoke, but her glance had first rested on the American. There could hardly have been a greater contrast. Cobb strong, straight, massive and magniscently proportioned; Fitzroyal thin, puny and narrow chested.

The shot told. Fitzroyal looked annoyed.

He turned his attention to Cobb. "Mr. Cobb seems quite at home in Russia," he said.

Cobb measured him with his eye "Yes," he drawled in reply. "Americans generally are more at home in Russia than Englishmen are. never tried to kick them when they

"Zat is good-zat is so-is it so not, Lord Fitzroyal?" exclaimed the baro-

Before Fitzroyal could reply a hush fell on the assembly. From beyond the masses of tropical plants which masked the apartment where the orchestra was concealed came the exquisite strains of a Russian air, played on the violin by a master hand.

As the last notes died away the storm of applause broke out with spontaneous enthusiasm. "Bravo! encore!" came from all points of the room. "Exquisite!" "What a master touch!" "What splendid technique!"

'Superb!" were expressions heard on all sides. Paul Nazimoff was delighted.

"Father," said Alexis, "that is indeed a treat. It is years since I have heard anything that approached such a brilliant performance." He sighed. healed.

Katherine Karsicheff broke the silence. "I sometimes wonder how the lower classes can cultivate such tastes."

"Yes, it really is extraordinary, replied Fitzroyal, answering the countess, who had spoken loud enough to be heard by all who were near. Then Fitzroyal saw still arother chance The lower orders, Mr. Cobb, have some things that 'we don't possess by birthright of nobility."

The fact that every person in the room, except Cobb, so far as Fitzroyal knew, had a title, made the remark suggestive.

Looking his questioner straight in he eye, Cobb said: "Yes; brains for

A chorus of laughter followed. The idea was too absurd. A dozen explanations were offered; the servant had not understood; the player did not know; the man was insane; and so on. It never occurred to any that a mere musician would send such a message to Count Nazimoff.

The servant entered again. This time he was in terror. The man fairly shook. "Come here!" said Count Nazimoff.

There was a painful silence in the great apartment. The man approached. Again he whispered in a low voice

Old English Custom.

In certain districts of England formerly when an owner parted almost entirely with other rights to a house he would reserve the right of boiling his pot on the fire. This secured to him the right of voting, and, what was of more importance, the position of being a freeholder. At Taunton for example, the voters were called "pot wallopers," because they had the rights to "wallop" or boil their pots at the fire in their freehold houses. Sometimes when a person parted with a long lease, but not with the freehold of a house, it was expressly stipulated that he should keep the right to boil his pot on the fire.

Thought She Couldn't Live.

Moravia, N. Y., June 6 .- Mr. Benjamin Wilson, a highly respected resident of this place, came very nearly losing his wife and now that she is cured and restored to good health his gratitude knows no bounds. He says:

"My wife has suffered everything sick four years. She doctored with two good doctors but kept growing worse. The doctors said she could not live. She failed from 200 pounds down to 130 pounds. This was her weight when she began to use Dodd's Kidney Pills, and now she weighs 190, is well and feeling stronger every day. "She used to have rheumatism so bad that it would raise great bumps all over her body and this is all gone

"Dodd's Kidney Pills are a Godsend to those who suffer as my wife did. They are all that saved her. We can't praise them enough."

To be a successful wife, to retain the love and admiration of her husband should be a woman's constant study. Mrs. Brown and Mrs. Potts tell their stories for the benefit of all wives and mothers.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM : - Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will make every mother well, strong, healthy and happy. I dragged hrough nine years of miserable existence, worn out with pain and weariness. Ithen noticed a statement of a woman troubled as I was, and the wonderful results she had had from your Vegetable Compound, and decided to try what it would do for me, and used it for three months. At the end of that time I was a different woman, the neighbors remarked it, and my husband fell in lore with me all over again. It seemed like a new existence. I had been suffering with inflammation and falling of the womb, but your medicine cured that and built up my entire system, till I was indeed like a new woman. Sincerely yours, Mrs. Chas. F. Brown, 21 Cedar Terrace, Hot Springs, Ark., Vice President Mothers' Club."

Suffering women should not fail to profit by Mrs. Brown's experiences; just as surely as she was cured of the troubles enumersted in her letter, just so surely will Lydia E. ## TREASURE OF INCAS

REMARKABLE WEALTH OF THE ANCIENT PERUVIAN RACE.

Report Says a Large Sum of This Old Treasure Has Just Been Discovered at Challacata, Bolivia.

News has been received of the discovery at Challacata, Bolivia, of the traditional treasure of the Incas. Report says the treasure is valued at $18,000,000, which goodly sum reminds one of the marvelous wealth of the classic Inca race.

This is the treasure the Incas poured into the hands of the greedy and false Spanish invaders: "Goblets of gold, vases of gold, slabs and basins and plates of gold, panels of gold wrenched from the walls of the temple, heavy golden bars which had formed their cornices, fountains of gold, and birds, fruits and vegetables of gold-gold everywhere; much of it exquisitely wrought, all without alloy." When one reads of this wealth of precious metal, the glory of Solomon's offense. possessions seems to lose somewhat of its luster. But the history of the Incas the marshal to forthwith arrest all per- A WINNING BALL TEAM. is a tale of rich reward, untiring industry, of the most careful development of resources, of a people of advanced attainment and much dignity. The Incas were the aristocratic order hat reigned in ancient Peru the 300 years from the thirteenth to the sixeenth century. In its greatest extent, the Inca empire included nearly all of the highlands of Ecuador, Peru, Bolivia and northern Chili; and within the broad confines of this empire the civilization of the red race reached its highest development; here the Incas carried on their paternal despotism. The communities were almost ideal-y socialistic, the common good being of first importance, the individual not paramount. The land was divided into three portions; one portion consecrated to the sun, which was a symbol of Regular meetings of Olive Lodge, their worship; one to the Inca, and one was alloted among the people in pro portion to the rank and members of a family. The first was sufficient for the building of the wonderful Inca temples, the support of the priesthood and for amounts. Carried. of public worship, and the second pro- M. B. An ancient and remarkable civilizaion had existed in Peru prior to the rising of the Incas, but in time the Incas became the dominating race. Tradition points to Inca Manco Capac, child of the sun, as founder, in the city of Cuzco, capital city of the Inca empire, where stood the glorious temple of the sun and the so-called Inca oner, noting the Christian's love of gold, promised if his captor would give him back his freedom he would fill the room in which he and Pizarro were conversing with gold as high as a man could reach with his hands. Pizarro accepted the proposal with eagerness, and the Inca sent to Cuzco, Quito and other places where gold had been accumulated in large quantities for the decoration of the temples and palaces. The Incas promptly began to carry out the commands of their sovereign, and the ransom came pouring in. Pizarro sent soldiers out into the provinces to hurry the remainder, and, though the Inca priests secreted much treasure, his men brought back 27 loads of gold and 2,000 marks of silver, whilst others returned with glowing accounts of the riches of the lands visited. A fifth of the treasure was sent to Spain, and Pizarro received the next large share, along with Atahuallpa's throne of gold, his supporters and soldiers also being richly rewarded. But though Atahuallpa paid this prodigious ransom, he did not win the stipulated freedom. The Inca sovereign was shamefully put to death. KATHERINE POPE.

LOADS OF MIDWINTER FUN.

Buffalo Boys Have Invented a "Jump ing Jack" That Catches Fish While They Skate.

The problem of how to keep warm and enjoy yourself while engaged in No. 2-Mall the ancient pastime of fishing through a hole in the ice has been solved in a very ingenious manner, as the accompanying sketch indicates. Several bright American boys skating on the lake at Buffalo are believed to have to let off and take on passengers. originated the idea of the "jumping. O. W. Ruggles, Gen. Pass & Ticket Agt jack" fisherman, as it is called.

The northern boy used to sit over hole in the ice and wait for the fish to bite, but that became too slow and, besides, it detracted from his pleasure at skating. So his inventive genius set itself to work, and the "jumpinghas to be pulled to make the "jumpingjack's" joints move is tied securely to the fishing one. The hook is baited and lowered into the water through a hole in the ice. The "jumping-jack" is fastened to a small stand placed at the edge of the hole and then the boy

goes skating, occasionally casting glance at his "jumping-jack." When the hungry and unsuspicious fish comes along and swallows the bait the "jumping-jack" waves his arms and legs frantically, and also a small flag fastened to one arm. Then the youngster stops skating long enough to pull in the fish and bait the hook for another catch.

A simpler signal is called the "tieremarked that the carriers might go up" pole. This is made with two short fishing on decoration day, and a little light sticks tied together at right anlater added "after they got back from gles in the way shown in the sketch their trip." Hastings went home, and To one of the poles a flag is fastened flat on the ice, but as soon as a fish has gulped down the hook or ever taken a nibble at the bait, that fact is signaled by the flag. As soon as the flagpole stands upright wafting its bright-colored flag to the breezes it is time for the fisherman to haul in his line.-N. Y. Journal.

peak of the merits of Doan's Kidney Pills such terms of praise as they deserve would be to use expressions having the ppearance of extravagance. When 1 procured them at E. B. Longwell's drug store I had a severe pain in the small of my back across the loins. It was always worse if I took cold or over-exerted myself, and sometimes my sufferings can scarcely be described. I noticed that the kidney secretions were irregular, often highly colored, and at times full of acid. This had continued about two years and I used every remedy that came to my notice, but got little if any benefit from them. At last I decided to try Doan's Kidney Pills. I had trusted the remedy would do me good, but I was not prepared for the great benefit which they soon brought. I could notice the good effect after taking a few doses, and by the time I had used three-fourths of a box the pain in my back passed out of existance, the kidney secretions became natural and I am enjoying better health than I have for years. Doan's Kidney Pills are worth their weight in gold." Sold for 50 cents per box by all dealers. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y., sole agents for the United States. #### TEN YEARS AGO.

A Glance Back Through the Files of The Standard Discloses Many Changes in the Last Decade-Time Does Fly.

How time does fly! and what a multiplicity of changes it works as it flies. Reference to the June files of The Standard of ten years ago reminds one of this fact. Ten years, a decade-a tenth of a century. This space of time is a wonder worker equaling the mystery of a magician. Ten years ago, the files of The Standard disclose, the Glazier Stove Co. was just moving into its new offices which were then considered pretty fine but is now part of the stock room at the factory and altogether too small for the requirements of the business.

Another glance at the old column discloses that the Hon. James S. Gorman was at that time in Congress and was wrestling with a hot post office fight which seemed to be engaging the attention of all the democratic politicians

Ten years ago an item mentions the fact that George Wackenhut was building an addition to his house and now here ten years later he remodels and improves it again. Further in the building line Charles Steinbach was just getting ready to erect the block that bears his name and which we have ceased to think of as particularly new-

In those days the bicycle craze had just struck town and the personal column mentions some people as the proud possessors of wheels who would not ride one now on a bet.

There was an organization just starting in those days of young ladies, they taking the mystic letters P. A. T. to designate the society. As to the P. A Ts some are married and some are dead and some are neither and their logical successors have adopted D. D. instead of P. A. T. as their trade mark.

A glance at the school column also discloses the fact that the school is not | na a stationary body. Roy Hill, Nathan Bowen and Mrs. Effa Armstrong-Dancer Helen Eder were Jackson visitors Friare mentioned as in line for cards of day.

One thing remains as formerly. Willard Stearns of the Adrian Press was then writing funny paragraphs and The Standard was helping to spread his fame then as now.

UNANIMOUSLY ELECTED

Delegates Chosen at the Caucus Monday to Attend County Convention at Ann Arbor-Large Attendance.

There was a large gathering of republicans at the town hall Monday afternoon to set the ball rolling for the state campaign this fall. The meeting was called to order by Township Chairman W. J. Knapp who called John Kalmbach to preside. On motion the chair appointed S. L. Gage, secretary and O. T. Hoover and A. W. Wilkinson tellers. The matter of electing the fourteen delegates to the county convention, called to meet at the court house, Ann Arbor Friday, June 10, was harmoniously and, quickly disposed of. The following delegates each received 136 votes and were declared unanimously elected: Jacob Hummel, Wm. P. Schenk, Wm. J. Knapp, John Kalmbach, C. E. Stimson, Gregory Saturday and Sunday. #### CATCHING A LOUP-CERVIER.

Miss Mary Haab was a Jackson visitor Two Children Have Thrilling Experience in a Farm House in . Quebec, Canada.

A trip to Quebec had taken the parents of Holcom Parett and his sister Manice, aged respectively 13 and 15 years, away M. S. Smith of Detroit was in town from home, and the children were left alone in the farmhouse during several days of bitter winter weather. One very cold winter morning Manice, looking out of the window, saw an animal digging in the drift near the corner of the barn. "Oh, come and see this queer-looking dog!" she cried. He is ligging up old Molly!" Old Molly was a hen that had died.

But Holcom knew that it was not a dog. Presently it turned, and he saw its large, round head, tasseled earsand wild, fierce eyes. He knew then that it was a "lucivee," or lynx.

Both Holcom and Manice were now much concerned lest the creature should get into the barn and kill their five cossets. Hocom had no weapon but a light ax and an old bayonet.

He fixed the bayonet on the end of a 'quilting pole," gave it to Manice, and took the ax. Then they sallied forth, shouting to frighten the lynx. It started to run, but fell feebly. Then they saw that, although full-grown, the animal was emaciated and had little strength, either to escape or to fight. As the winter advances and game becomes scarce. the wild carnivora often suffer pitiably.

When they approached it turned upon them, but was so nearly frozen and amished that it could hardly stand. Holcom was about to dispatch the loupcervier, when the idea of capturing it occurred to him. Manice brought a cow blanket, which Holcom threw over the weakened animal; and with no great risk or exertion they were able to pick it up and carry it into the barn.

Although, ordinarily, the lynx is one a guest of Mr. and Mrs. Merritt Boyd of the fiercest and most intractable of living creatures, this one offered little resistance, and was put in a high-sided as the guest of her sister, Mrs. Arthur the loup-cervier a bed of hay, and threw in bones and scraps of deer meat for it to eat. Its hunger was insatiable.

Under the influence of food and warmth its apparent meekness underwent a great change. When Holcom or Manice approached the slats, even when bringing food, the lynx would dash at them, screeching in such an excess of fury that the poor cows and sheep went nearly wild from fear.

The children were in great fear les the animal might break out in the night and kill their stock; and they were now heartily sorry that they had not dispatched it.

During the eight days that elapsed before their parents returned Holcom and Manice passed through every possible phase of anxiety and worry over their loup-cervier. Nor were their troubles at an end when their father and mother came back:

Finally th lynx was sold to a trader at Three Rivers, who had made a market for it in Montreal. With much difficulty it was put in a crate and shipped by rail; but Holcom learned afterward that it had broken out of the crate and given the trainmen so much trouble that, on stopping at a way station, they opened the car door and let it go .- Youth's Com-

The incident took place last June, when a party of friends were visiting in Maine and fishing in Salmon lake. Mr. Spaeth had landed several salmon before hooking the large one, and on each occasion had spent nearly an hour in landing them. His trouble began, however, at 3:10 o'clock in the afternoon, when he felt a hard tug at his line. The fish was unusually vigorous, and when nearly within reach of the net would create such a disturbance This was kept up all that night, while Mr. Spaeth was furnished his meals by his friends. It was 6:18 o'clock the next morning that the salmon was landed. The "battle" endured exactly 15 hours and 8 minutes.
