OLD TIME INTEREST SHOWN

In Saturday's Game of Baseball in Which the Junior Stars Had All Home Players.

The baseball game played here Saturday afternoon between the Junior Stars and the Detroit Everett Juniors was the best that has been played on the local diamond this year. It took 11 innings to decide the contest which was all the time in doubt after the sixth innings. It was a duplicate of the 13-inning game played here by the same two teams last year.

The attendance was not as large as we have seen at other games but the interest was strong and good plays were rewarded with applause. One great reason for the interest taken in the game was the fact that it was a whole Chelsea team that was playing, with no imported pitcher and catcher, or other players. There is no use talking, what a Chelsea baseball crowd wants to see is a team of Chelsea players. They have no interest in outsiders, but are loyal to home talent, and it is this loyalty that helped make the Junior Stars the good team they were last year and the year before.

Beissel pitched a cracking good game and although LaMont BeGole had done no catching this season he did well behind the bat. Arthur Raftery played second base in good style, Wirt McLaren made a timely catch in right field, and Paul Bacon took care of the left garden in his usual good style, besides making the hit that brought in the winning run. The Everett Juniors are a snappy lot of ball players, good throwers and fielders, quick on their feet and great hands to run for and gather in fly balls.

The score was 6 to 5 and by innings was as follows:

	1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8	9	10	11
Chelsea	0	5	0	0	0	0	0	1	—	6
Detroit	0	1	0	0	0	3	0	0	1	—	5

BASEBALL NOTES.

Pitcher McCain has been released by the management of the Junior Stars.

The fast Lawyers' team of Mt. Clemens have written Manager Wirt McLaren for two dates with the Junior Stars. It is hardly likely the offer will be accepted.

Tuesday, Aug. 9, the Junior Stars will play the Wayne Stars at McLaren-BeGole park. Last year the Wayne boys beat the locals 13 to 1. Our boys will endeavor to wipe out this defeat in next Tuesday's game.

The genuine Nebraska Indians will be here tomorrow and will play the Junior Stars at McLaren-BeGole park at 3:30 p. m. The Stars do not expect to beat the Indians, who are expert ball players, all the time at it, and whose record of victories is a long one, but they will endeavor to hold the redmen down to as small a tally as possible. The line-up for the Stars will be as follows:

Deneau, p.; L. Turner, c.; John P. Miller, 1st; A. Raftery, 2d; J. Upson, 3d; E. Steinbach, s.; Paul Bacon, lf.; Dorr Rogers, cf.; Howard Holmes, rf.

Time Will Tell.

Grass Lake News: Which of the two electric lines running east from this village will be taken up by the new management stills remains a disputed question so far as the public is concerned, and we question whether the officers of the consolidated companies have reached a decision in the matter yet or not. A gentleman, who has been in the employ of the Boland interests for a number of years and who was prominent in the equipment of that line, made the prophecy the first of the week to a representative of the News that the line would be completed to Dexter and a connecting link would be constructed between that village and the Hawks-Angus line which runs south of Dexter. This he thought would be the main line and the other track would ultimately be taken up and the ties and rails used in building new lines. Time can only tell what the outcome will be.

IMPROVED SERVICE

Is Contemplated on the Electric Line Between Detroit and Jackson.

The D., Y., A. A. & J. is contemplating a radical change in its service and equipment by the establishment of a limited through service in connection with the present local service.

If the plan, as now proposed, is adopted, it will mean that three through cars will be run daily from Jackson to Detroit, stopping only at Grass Lake, Chelsea, Ann Arbor, Ypsilanti, Wayne and Dearborn. This will shorten the schedule time between the terminal points by 45 minutes.

The establishment of the new limited service means new rolling stock for the road, as drawing room cars will be put on for the through service. These cars will be the most comfortable that can be secured, up-to-date, and will be to the electric service what the parlor car is to the steam road.

How soon the change can be made is not known, as it will be necessary to put in several new sidings and build the new cars for the through service. All of which will take time.

A Bright Young Life Ended.

Marjorie V., the eldest child and only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. L. T. Freeman, died on Saturday evening, July 30, after a month's painful illness from meningitis, aged 10 years, 11 months and 3 days.

The little girl was not in good health when school closed June 24, but the next day she went to Detroit to spend a few days with Mrs. McKain. She got no better and returned home with her mother June 30, suffering with a low fever and headache, which a few days later developed into the disease that proved fatal to her.

Marjorie was a quiet, ladylike companionable child, and all through her illness was gentle and uncomplaining to all around her.

The funeral services, held at the house Tuesday afternoon, were very largely attended by the relatives and friends of the family. Rev. C. S. Jones conducted the services. The floral offerings were beautiful. During the time of the funeral the stores were closed out of respect to the family, Mr. Freeman being one of Chelsea's best known business men. The remains were laid to rest in Oak Grove cemetery.

Mr. and Mrs. Freeman and their family have the warm sympathy of a large circle of friends in their bereavement.

Released From Prison.

George Leonard, who was sentenced to the state prison at Jackson for six months minimum and 18 months maximum for picking pockets in Chelsea during the German day celebration here last year, and James Edwards sentenced to six months minimum and a year maximum for stealing $200 worth of silver from a Michigan Central car at Ann Arbor, have been released from prison under a recent decision of the supreme court rendering the minimum portion of an indeterminate sentence binding only in cases where men were sentenced for crimes committed before the law was operative.

Through Sunday Cars to Wolf Lake.

The D., Y., A. A. & J. Ry. in connection with the Jackson Consolidated Traction Co. will run hourly cars to the Wolf Lake resort every Sunday until further notice commencing with the 10:45 a. m. car at Ann Arbor, which instead of turning at Ann Arbor will run through to the lake, and continue until 6:45 p. m., which will be the last through car. The last car going east will leave Wolf Lake at 10:35 p. m. and this car will run through to Dearborn.

Announcement will be made as soon as close connections are arranged for all schedule cars at Grass Lake on week days. Until these close connections are arranged for passengers can get through to Wolf Lake on any regular car during the week by waiting a few minutes at Grass Lake Junction for connections.

The Cross on the Plain

BY GEORGE DYER ELDRIDGE

Copyright, 1901, by The Shortstory Pub. Co. (All rights reserved.)

A land so desolate that imagination might not picture it; the surface alternating in gray and red, where the disintegrated line and sandstone lay side by side without mingling; a soil too coarse for vegetation, hard with the baking of a burning sun, and worn into ridges, where the spring torrents from the melting snow of the mountains had eaten away the softer earth. In scattered clumps, gray sage—seeming in its lifeless dryness rather a part of the dead soil than a living growth from it. Here and there gleamed white in the sunshine masses of bleached bones of cattle—perhaps of men—who had wandered there and died. The vast plain that stretched, a dead waste, to the mountains which hung like banks of mists on the edge of the horizon, was broken by hideous masses of red sandstone, gigantic, water-worn into curious shapes by the floods of aged untold. Here, one stood isolated, in the form of a crouching animal ready to spring; there, they lay along the plain, as if huge lizards had been suddenly turned to stone. Again, one towered like a pillar, carved with strange devices of a forgotten people, and yonder, in masses and groups and rows, they seemed the ruins of some vast city, whose streets and squares must have echoed to busy feet hundreds—thousands of years ago. Not a tree in the vast plain, but over all a sky without a cloud, and a sun, not yet at the meridian, that burned with more than tropic heat.

Suddenly, in the very center of this horror of desolation, appeared a man. He was crouching in the water-worn hollow of one of the biggest rocks, cowering in its blackest shadow and gazing across the wide plain to the dim mist that told where the mountains lay. There was a haggard, hunted look in his face, and when in the deep stillness, unbroken by the hum of a locust or the buzz of a beetle, a bit of sandstone dropped from the great boulders, he shivered as with fear and drew deeper into the shadow of the hollowed rock.

After some minutes, he seemed to gather courage and suddenly dropped from his rock-shelter, flat upon the ground, still, however, within the shadows of the great boulder. Then he raised his head and again gazed away toward the mountain. It was as if he felt that the mountain had eyes and was watching the great plain, on which anything that moved would be seen through the clear air and known by its power of life to be strange to that dead world.

After a time he was crawling like a lizard, out of the shadows, across a stretch of hot sunlight, in among the scant sage bushes—crawling as if he would be a part of the gray and red earth, if only he could burrow into it and escape sight. Even when he reached the sage bushes he did not rise, but instead, crept on and on, until he came to one of those hideous water-worn gullies, into which he rolled without raising his body from the ground.

There he lay for a time, as if expecting that the dead plain would lay and listened to his own heart beats and the awful silence.

Evidently the gully had been selected as leading in the direction he wished to take, for finally he rose to a crouching posture and began to move up its course, walking almost swiftly, though with still bended back, where it was deep and the sage bush hung over it, and crawling again where it grew shallow and lay open to the sun. In this way, after an hour of toil, he reached a mass of boulders, around which the gully bent, and here he raised himself in the deep shadows on the side farthest from the mountains he had watched so intently before he began his journey and darted suddenly under the overhanging ledge, where the water had worn away the softer rock, and hid again in a hollow as before.

Then followed hours of strange toil. At times the man lay flat on the hot plain and dragged himself along, taking minutes to move his own length, so that any one watching would have needed a keen and steady eye to be certain that he moved at all. Then, in a friendly gully, he moved faster, with the crouching posture of the morning, and even once, where the great boulders stood like the ruins of an ancient city, he almost ran through the black shadows of what seemed once to have been a street, only throwing himself down to crawl where an open place, like a cross street, let in the unwellcome sunlight.

The perspiration had ceased to flow, for every drop of moisture was burned from his body. The grime stood on his face in dry patches; his eyes were red and bloodshot; his tongue hung from his mouth, and even the hot stones had ceased to burn his flesh, so hot had it become in his fierce struggle under that untempered sun.

In the early afternoon, he stopped to rest in the shaded hollow of a boulder, and suddenly, as he looked to the ground, his face blanched under its coating of grime. A broken sage bush told where a foot had passed! This man had reached a point where signs of humanity were more terrible than the death that surrounded him on every hand! He looked again, and the pallor became more terrible, with the set terror of despair. He recognized the spot where he had rested in the morning and from which he had crawled to the first gully! It was his foot that had broken the sage bush, and all these hours of superhuman toil had availed only to bring him back to his starting point! Then he rose erect, no longer creeping, no longer skulking, but upright, as God meant man to walk, and took the direction in which lay the mist that was a mountain.

Hours passed again! The sun had almost touched the top of the mountains, which now rose huge and dark before the man who dragged on and on, over the dead plain, with purple face and swollen hands and feet, filled with but one thought, conscious of but one wish, to reach the shelter of the mountains, and there to find water, and, drinking, perchance to die.

Long shadows ran out to meet him; a cooler air from the mountain heights touched his brow. In a gully, high up among the ragged pines, he caught a sheen of light, where the last sun rays struck a falling stream. Suddenly, from behind a great boulder, a horseman barred the way, the bridle-rein hanging loose, a short rifle at his shoulder, aimed at the hunted man's heart. The fugitive stopped, his weary head dropped, and with his swollen hand he made the sign of the Cross on brow and breast. Then came the sharp, quick ring of the rifle, and the man fell, with arms outspread, and with a single groan lay dead, himself making the sign of the Cross on the dead plain. The horseman adjusted his rifle across his saddle, gave one glance at the dead body, to make sure that his aim had been true, and rode away into the depths of the mountains.

CORN A VERSATILE PRODUCT.

Innumerable Uses to Which It Can Be Put.

Probably few things that grow are capable of so many uses or are as completely used as corn. The grain is used for food both for human beings and cattle, while the stalks are used as cattle feed. The pith of the corn-stalk is used in the manufacture of smokeless powder, in the manufacture of high-grade varnish, and in the manufacture of paper. The woody portions are used in the manufacture of a cheap quality of paper.

As a food corn is supplied in many forms. The most familiar are as meal, hominy and grits. Practically all the starch that is used in the United States is made from corn. Immense quantities are also used in the manufacture of glucose, which, among other things, enters largely into the manufacture of beer, as a substitute for malt.

A large quantity of corn is used annually in the manufacture of whisky, and nearly 15,000,000 bushels are used every year in the manufacture of cologne spirits and alcohol. Even in the manufacture of these products nothing is lost. The glutinous and other residues in the manufacture of starch, glucose, whisky and alcohol are used as cattle feed.

"Access-on Pronoun."

Two negro women boarded a Pennsylvania avenue car at Seventh street. One was a large, dark-skinned woman, flashily dressed; the other was a small, yellow woman, wearing a modest gown.

The women were discussing a mutual friend, Mr. Jenks. The large woman spoke in loud tones and pronounced the name of the man as though it were spelled J-i-n-k-s. It was evident from the expression on the face of the smaller woman that she was annoyed by the loud talking and mispronunciation of her friend. Finally she protested:

"You speak of Mr. Jenks as though his name were spelled with an 'i' instead of an 'e'."

"Oh, yes," the large woman exclaimed, "I perceive you puts the access on the pronoun."—Washington Times.

The Boy Speculated.

Baron Moncheur, the Belgian minister, visited Baltimore last month. At a dinner in Baltimore he said:

"The spirit of business enterprise and speculation is what impresses me most profoundly in America. For instance, I was riding one day on the outskirts of Washington, and at a certain place I dismounted and got a little boy to hold my horse. I was gone about ten minutes, and on my return I found the first boy gone, and another, a smaller one, standing at the horse's head."

"How is this?" I said. "You are not the boy I left my horse with."

"No, sir," said the tiny urchin, "I speculated and bought the job off the other fellow for a dime."

"Of course, after that," the minister ended, "it was impossible for me to bear the market."—Kansas City Journal.

Mayor McClellan's Simile.

Mr. McClellan was accompanied by a friend. He was smoking the last quarter of an immense cigar and talked earnestly. In front of the entrance to the Potter building a half-dozen newsboys were sorting papers. The mayor was caught there in the crowd, and delayed a few seconds. One of the gamins "spotted" him.

"Hey, fellows," he said, in a low tone, "dat's de mayor."

"Golly," said another. "Look at de size of de smoke. Folly him and see where he tro's de butt."

As the mayor, smiling at what he had overheard, pushed on, he remarked to his companion:

"Such is fame—mostly a big smoke."—New York Mail.

The Land of Long Ago.

The Land of Long Ago,
Where happy hours sleep,
Where languid rivers glide,
With stately flow and deep;
Where fadeless roses blow,
And Love sits azure-eyed.

There comes no frost, nor snow,
But balmy breezes sweep
O'er gardens fair and wide,
And slow the waters creep
Through blossoms bending low
Above the charmed tide.

How sweet to rise and go
From ways where mortals weep,
From love so long denied,
To dreams that roses heap,
Where crystal waters flow,
And golden days abide.

Has Learned Much of Africa.

A recent statement in the Scientific American says that M. Chevalier, the noted French explorer, has just returned from a prolonged trip through Central Africa, where he secured a valuable collection of interesting documents and photographs of the country and its people. A photograph, which he took with him was the medium for obtaining records of the languages of the various natives in the regions which he explored. In a course of lectures which M. Chevalier is to deliver he intends to reproduce these records.

The NEW MONTE CARLO

(SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE)

The Superior Tribunal of Monaco fined the Duke of Manchester one hundred francs for exceeding the legal speed of limit on his motor car, and five minutes later inflicted a penalty of twenty-five francs upon a woman convicted of breaking one of the most important of the Ten Commandments.

Perhaps a moralist would say that these varying penalties demonstrate the relative importance of offenses at Monte Carlo. They may show that it is four times worse to scorch on an automobile than to break certain other laws.

As a matter of fact the woman was not played in the Casino. There isn't room. A sumptuous club has been established, and winnings from the Casino Company's coffers go back to those same coffers via the club.

Monte Carlo is keeping up with the times. It is being run more and more in accord with the motto, "If you don't see what you want ask for it." The gaming tables now keep open until 1 a. m., and you can even get a ham sandwich on the premises to refresh your inner man and give you the fortitude necessary to lead you to lose some more money.

It has often surprised me that an intelligent man of the world, a member of the Stock Exchange who has looted a bank or a customer and is to be found out next day, should dramatically blow his brains out at high noon in Threadneedle street.

As an Irishman might put it, if he had any brains he would not blow them out in such a public place while he could avoid all risk of publicity by doing it in Monte Carlo.

There is a paradise for suicides. If you want to sever your throat or burn out your digestive apparatus with carbolic acid until you are quite deceased, and afterward obtain all the legal proof you want that you died of a lingering old age, bring your razor or your acid here with full confidence that no proof of self-murder will ever be adduced against you.

A man the other evening blew enough of his head off to effect his purpose. It happened directly in front of the motor garage, opposite the end of Ciro's Gallery. In a few seconds two men in plain clothes sprang out—they were Monte Carlo spies—and whisked the body off into a shop, whence it disappeared in accordance with a system that works like a clock. Passers-by who inquired what the matter was were assured that there had only been a dog fight, and any one who hinted at a suicide was denounced as a dangerous dreamer who saw things that weren't there.

They must keep a tame coroner at Monte Carlo—an easy-going, good-natured fellow, with an accommodating jury. He is a man, no doubt, who believes in natural death on principle, and could diagnose the death of a man smashed to a jelly by a steam hammer as being due to gout or apoplexy—he is not sure which.

Any one who has ever asked a London coroner to believe that a man who had killed himself really died from circumstances over which he had no control will remember the frigid reception which he encountered and the fruitlessness of his efforts. Here I believe things differ.

Grand Entrance, Casino.

These gentry have discovered that when a gambler has won a thousand pounds at thirty-and-forty or roulette he becomes tired of both distractions. He wants new worlds to conquer, and he goes off, and loses all his profits at Nice or Cannes at the baccarat tables.

Here you have the Monte Carlo fiscal question, and Monsieur Blanc has taken steps to prevent the deleterious exportation of bullion that might very well remain where it is.

So now you can play baccarat, or bridge, or poker at Monte Carlo. They are not played in the Casino. There isn't room. A sumptuous club has been established, and winnings from the Casino Company's coffers go back to those same coffers via the club.

CHIEF OF POLICE SAVED.

Newberry, S. C.—W. H. Harris, Chief of Police, of Newberry, says: "I suffered for a number of years with kidney complaint. There was a dull aching across the small of my back that was worse at night and made me feel miserable all the time. The kidney secretions were dark and full of sediment, and lack of control compelled me to rise a number of times during the night. Between this annoyance and the backache it was impossible for me to get much sleep and my health was being undermined. I tried a number of remedies, but nothing helped me until I got Doan's Kidney Pills. The use of this remedy brought about a change or the better. After using two boxes the backache all left me, the kidney secretions cleared up and the action of the kidneys became normal."

A FREE TRIAL of this great kidney medicine which cured Chief Harris will be mailed to any part of the United States. Address Foster-McBurn Co., Buffalo, N. Y. Sold by all druggists; price fifty cents per box.

Grain Broker, It Is Said, May Have Been Slain by Robbers.

Buffalo, N. Y., dispatch: At the inquest into the suicide of E. T. Washburn, the grain broker, who is supposed to have killed his wife and daughter, it was intimated that Washburn did not commit the double murder and suicide. Some of his money which he drew from the bank before the tragedy cannot be accounted for.

Pipe Made of Bamboo.

A traveler in the Philippines writes: "You see that girl coming along the streets carrying a long cylinder of bamboo upon her shoulder? She is returning from the water works and is carrying home a good supply of clean drinking water. Yes, it is a big bamboo tube—surely eight feet long and twenty-two inches at least in circumference. The inside divisions have been forced out by means of a stick and the internal compartments all combined into one. It holds a lot of liquid."

Oyster Bay Settled in 1653.

In 1642 a party of English adventurers direct from New England attempted to settle at Oyster Bay, and actually purchased the land from the Indians, but the Dutch drove them out. Eventually a compromise was made and the Dutch and English divided Long Island between them. The first permanent settlement on the site of the present village of Oyster Bay was then made in 1653.

Generate Electricity by Water.

Even in Spain waterfalls are now being used as a source of electric power. In one case twenty-three small villages are supplied from the power station. In Italy the employment of innumerable waterfalls has enormously increased the output of manufactured silk. "Here," says an English writer, "is a form of power that will last longer than Great Britain's coal fields."

BUNCH TOGETHER

Coffee Has a Curious Way of Finally Attacking Some Organ.

Alls that come from coffee are cumulative, that is, unless the coffee is taken away new troubles are continually appearing and the old ones get worse.

"To begin with," says a Kansan, "I was a slave to coffee just as thousands of others to-day; thought I could not live without drinking strong coffee every morning for breakfast and I had sick headaches that kept me in bed several days every month. Could hardly keep my food on my stomach but would vomit as long as I could throw anything up and when I could get hot coffee to stay on my stomach I thought I was better."

"Well, two years ago this spring I was that sick with rheumatism I could not use my right arm to do anything, had heart trouble, was nervous. My nerves were all unstrung and my finger nails and tips were blue as if I had a chill all the time and my face and hands yellow as a pumpkin. My doctor said it was heart disease and rheumatism and my neighbors said I had Bright's disease and was going to die."

"Well, I did not know what on earth was the matter and every morning would drag myself out of bed and go to breakfast, not to eat anything, but to force down some more coffee. Then in a little while I would be so nervous, my heart would beat like everything."

"Finally one morning I told my husband I believed coffee was the cause of this trouble and that I thought I would try Postum which I had seen advertised. He said 'All right' so we got Postum and although I did not like it at first I got right down to business and made it according to directions, then it was fine and I told you it has worked wonders for me. Thanks to Postum in place of the poison, coffee, I now enjoy good health, have not been in bed with sick headache for two years although I had it for 30 years before I began Postum and my nerves are now strong and I have no trouble from my heart or from the rheumatism."

"I consider Postum a necessary article of food on my table. My friends who come here and taste my Postum say it is delicious." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

CHAPTER XIV.

The Judgment of the Iron Voice.

Fold by fold, the sun's golden fingers drew apart the mists that hid the valley. One by one, the red Severn hills were uncovered, and the wooded slopes on which the rival hosts were encamped. It was the hour of the royal duel, when the fate-thread of a nation, beaded with human destinies, lay between the fingers of two men. What a scattering of the beads if the third should be cut!

Under the elms of the east bank the daughter of Frode stood and watched the boats set out; and the hands that hung at her side opened and shut as though they were gasping for breath. Turning, she found herself facing a wall of stalwart warriors, a sea of coarse faces, and discovered, with a sudden tightening of her muscles, that all the eyes which were not following the boat were centered curiously upon herself.

Before she could take a step the nearest warrior thrust out a hand and caught her by her black locks. "Stop a little, my Bold One," he said gruffly. "Now that you have a moment to spare from the high-born folk, it is the wish of us churls to hear some of your news."

A score of heavy voices seconded the demand, and the fall gradually curved into a circle around her. They were good-natured enough—even the grasp on her hair was roughly playful—but her heart seemed to stop in her as a swimmer's might the first instant he lost sight of land and beheld only towering billows looming above him. "Take your hands off me, and it shall be as you wish."

The big Swede released her wrist to catch her around the waist and toss her like a bone upon the platter of his shield, which four of them ed it. The crown of Canute's shining locks reached only to the chin of the mighty Ironside; and the width of nearly two palms was needed on his shoulders.

The young king alone appeared serenely undisturbed. When he had saluted the Ironside with royal courtesy, he met his sword as though he were beginning a practicing bout with his foster-brother.

Humped over the earth, with starting eyes and necks stretched to their utmost, the Danes were like so many boulders. Nor did Frode's daughter seem to feel that the hand the Brass One had raised himself upon was crushing her foot.

Canute's weapon, playing with the lightness of a sunbeam, had evaded the stroke of the great flail and touched for an instant the shoulder of its wielder. Had he put a pound more force into the thrust—a groan crept down the Danish line when the bright blade rose, as lightly as it had fallen, and continued its butterfly dance. It consoled them a little, however, that no cheer went up from the English—only a low buzz that was half of anger, half of astonishment.

Certainly there was no Berserk madness about the young Danishman; there was hardly even seriousness. Now his blade was a fleeing willow-wisp, keeping just out of reach of Edmund's brand with apparently no thought but of flight. Now, when the Ironside's increasing vehemence betrayed him into an instant's rashness, it was a hummingbird darting into a flower-cup. But it always rose again as daintily as it had alighted.

The Danish bank was frantic with excitement. "It is the dance of the Northern Light!" they cried. "Thor has sent him his own sword!"

The lines of English were wild with anger. "Crush him, the hornet, the eyes, the spectators saw that the Northern King was speaking, eagerly, with now and then an impulsive gesture, while the English King listened motionless.

"Has he got out of his wits?" the Scar-Cheek roared, fairly dancing with impatience.

In Randall's face a flash of memory was struggling with bewilderment. "Other weapons than those which dwell in sheaths," Had he meant "the sword of speech," his tongue?

With the deliberate grace which characterized his every motion, the Ironside slid his sword back to its case, and they saw him take a slow step forward and slowly extend his hand. Then they saw Canute spring to meet him, and their palms touch in a long grasp.

From the English shore there went up a joyful shout of "Peace!" And a deafening clamor rose in answer from the Danish bank. But what sentiment predominated in that it would be difficult to say. Blended with rejoicing over their king's safety were cries of bitter disappointment, the cries of thirsty men who have seen wine dashed from their lips.

In their retreat, the two Northern jarls and the young monarch's foster-father faced each other uncertainly. "Here is mystery!" Eric of Norway said at last. "I should be thankful if you would tell me whether he thought it unwise to kill the Englishman before the face of his army; or whether he is in truth struck with love toward him, as the fools seem to believe?"

"Or whether he had reached the exact limit of his strength so that he was obliged to save himself by some trick of words?" Ulf Jarl suggested.

The Tall One shook his head slowly. "Now, as always, it is he alone who can altogether explain his actions. It might easily be that in his mad impatience he overhauled his strength, so that he was obliged to stop short to keep within bounds. But I think you will find that there is still some trick which is not open to our sight. His man-wit is deepening very fast; I will not be so bold as to say that I can always fathom it."

"Perhaps he thinks a short peace would be useful to the host," the Norwegian said, and laughed. "Such a truce is as comfortable as a cloak when the weather is stark, and as easy to get rid of when the sun comes out."

By their faces, the others appeared to agree with him; but before they could express themselves a swimmer rose like a dripping seal out of the water at their feet.

"Peace and division again!" he cried breathlessly. "And it is the king's will that you get into a boat and come to him at once."

The rush of the crowd to the water-side to question the messenger gave Randall his chance for freedom; and she was not slow in taking it. A moment more, and she was in the very top of the willow tree, clasping her hands and wringing them in alternate thanksgiving and terror.

"Whatever it bring upon me, I will get back to my woman's clothes," she vowed to herself over and over. "Though it become a hindrance to me, though it be the cause of my death, I will be a woman always. Odin forgive me that I thought I had courage enough to be a man!"

Contraband Tobacco in England.

What becomes of the contraband tobacco seized by the customs? The early practice was to bury it. This senseless waste was suspended for a time by the happy idea of distributing the tobacco among the troops.

That did not last long, and next year we hear of the contraband being smoked in the "Queen's pipe," a huge receptacle which could turn "hundreds of tons into smoke in a few hours." Again the misgivings of the waste troubled the authorities, and they took to regaling the criminal lunatics in certain government asylums. Any tobacco that was left over was ordered for the use of troops sent on foreign service. But that luxury seems to have been cut off once more, although the criminal lunatics still enjoy their pipes and cigars.

One attempt was made to throw the contraband, when it was slightly damaged, on the market, but this caused an outcry from the tobacco trade. The whole story is a pleasing tribute to the intelligence which administers the public service.—Macmillan's Magazine.

No New Yorkers in New York.

"At a social gathering at my house the other evening," said a well known New York physician, "I had as guests eight men, every one of whom is or has been a potent factor in the affairs of this city, in politics, finance, the legal and medical professions, journalism, and railroad management. It came out that not one of them was a native of the city. Not only was none of them a native New Yorker, but, with one exception, they were all born in isolated rural hamlets or on backwoods farms. The one exception was born in an incorporated village of 1,000 inhabitants."—New York Sun.

Switched Brides.

Before the magistrate of Alipore recently one Modhu Sudan Datt was charged with having murderously assaulted Nobogopal Chatterjee, a matchmaker of the locality. The complainant had negotiated the marriage of the accused's son. The bride was shown to the father, and ample marriage gifts were promised. The marriage was celebrated within closed doors, and on the following morning the accused found that an ugly girl instead of the one shown to him was the real bride.—Allatbad Pioneer.

Success.

Not every man that has a show makes good at the box office.

There is a difference between making a success and making a show of yourself.

A highly rated public man must deliver the goods, just as a merchant must sell silk at the advertised price.

Many men struggle strenuously to reach the rostrum, to find, upon facing the audience, they have little to offer. There should be method in all effort.

A jokesmith of New York has been investigating the trials of the newspaper war correspondents and says it is awfully tedious and risky to spend hours with the pretty geisha girls, tossing bits of biscuit to the goldfishes, beholding the glories of the cherry blossoms and listening to the nightingales when the dusk is falling. The joker, likewise, says it is a hard lot to be compelled to sit cramped and cross-legged throughout a meal, nibbling at sweetmeats when the stomach cries for meat. And, then, some of the writers are learning to speak the language—and that is arduous too! Who would be resigned to the stale and unprofitable, as well as dangerous and onerous, life of a war correspondent in the Far East?

In Norway and Sweden before a couple can be legally married they must be vaccinated, it is said, and accordingly before the nuptial rites are performed, it is the duty of the minister to inspect the vaccination certificates of both bride and bridegroom. Therefore, if you were to ask a young lady in either of these countries where she was vaccinated, she would probably not be compelled to blush like a peony and murmur almost inaudibly, "In Boston, sir!"

When a Japanese lady does not desire to receive her lover she sends down word by the maid that she is taking her bath. Being a gentleman, he never advises her to "slip on something and come down!" Remember the fate of the American woman that slipped on the top step!

A statistician has been doing some figuring in regard to last year's Missouri corn crop. The crop was 204,725,000 bushels. Counting 100 ears to the bushel, there were 20,472,500,000 ears. And estimating one red ear to every thirty-six white ones, how many weddings would that be?

July 4 a boy came into a store where I was standing and wanted to buy a penny's worth of shot. The merchant refused to fill the order on the ground that July 4 is a national holiday—and besides, he didn't want to get rich all in one transaction.

In New Jersey there is a town where husbands and wives are prohibited from kissing on Sundays, says an exchange. Oh, do husbands and wives kiss in New Jersey? What an old-fashioned state that must be, to be sure!

If you want to get cool in August, just step on a woman's dress as it trails along the street. The frosty stare she gives you will chill you through and through! Sudden changes are dangerous, however.

A New York machine blacks boots by electricity. There are other machines quite as rapid—and as electrical—in New York city, but they are not in the boot-blackening business.

A fresh office boy they called "Bug." Tried to give a girl feeder a hug; She spurned his caress, Fed him into the press— They're using him now for a rug.

It remains for an Indian editor to declare that the inhabitants of the Filipino village in St. Louis wear nothing but neckties—and even those are not worn about the neck!

You do not judge a horse by his blanket. Why then make a mental estimate of a woman from her costume?

A man seldom puzzles himself long over the problem of whether he should stay at home and mow the lawn or go to the suburbs and play golf.

This is surely an age of enlightenment. In Indianapolis a colored woman, 68 years old, has just started to attend school for the first time.

When an author's receipts are more than his outlay for postage, then he may be said to be successful.

Ministers save many young men, but somehow they don't seem to save enough for the old maids.

This is the season of the year we get the "wanderlust" to go on our vacations. Had you yet?

A man that never forgets his latch key is altogether too methodical to enjoy life.

The train caller, although not usually quarrelsome, is always calling names!

BEFORE FAME REACHED HIM.

Letter Written by Great French Author in Pessimistic Mood.

A letter written by Taine, the great French author, during the years that he struggled for recognition has been published recently. He writes: "A vision of a book worth writing has been flitting before my eyes; I am sorry for it. Those momentary delusions awaken the passionate animal which I believed to be crushed or asleep, and I afterward fall back into reality with great bitterness. They have to cool myself down with ice-cold arguments. I hope, with time, to succeed in killing my old self and only preserving the machine. I treat myself every morning with the following sentence: 'A codfish contains 4,000,000 eggs, 200 of which reach the adult stage.' It is natural that I should be one of the 3,999,800 others! This phrase, properly applied and sufficiently soaked in a Spinoza infusion, helps one to become a reasonable and worthy beast in an overcoat, a black tie and spectacles, working as regularly as a mill horse, generally esteemed, useful to society and perfectly worthy of being a navy or a minister."

Too Much for Bismarck.

During a visit to London Bismarck was invited to inspect a famous brewery, and, in acknowledgment of his reputation for beer drinking, an enormous tankard of old ale was set before him. "I seized the tankard," said the iron chancellor, "and I thought of my country and drank to Prussia and tilted it till it was empty. Then I thanked my entertainers and succeeded in making my way as far as London bridge. There I sat down in one of the stone recesses and for a considerable length of time the great bridge went round and round me."

Arriving at a Verdict.

Kushequa, Pa., Aug. 1.—(Special)—In this section of Pennsylvania there is a growing belief that for such Kidney Diseases as Rheumatism and Lame Back there is only one sure cure and that is Dodd's Kidney Pills. This belief grows from such cases as that of Mrs. M. L. Davison of this place. She tells the story herself as follows:

"I have suffered from Rheumatism for thirty years and find that Dodd's Kidney Pills have done me more good than any medicine I have ever taken. I was also bothered with Lame Back and I can only say that my back hasn't bothered me since I took Dodd's Kidney Pills." Considering that Mrs. Davison only took two boxes of Dodd's Kidney Pills, the result would be considered wonderful if it were not that others are reporting similar results daily. Kushequa is fast arriving at a verdict that "Dodd's Kidney Pills are the one sure cure for Rheumatism."

Blunders in Translation.

In New Britain a missionary, in translating, was seeking some native idiom to convey the idea of a binding oath, when a chief suggested that the desired phrase was, "I would rather speak to my wife's mother than do such and such a thing." In British Columbia a missionary wanted his catechist to translate "A crown of glory that fadeth not away." This was done to the satisfaction of all concerned, but ultimately the missionary found to his horror that it had been rendered, "A hat that never wears out!"

Miss Nellie Holmes, treasurer of the Young Woman's Temperance Association of Buffalo, N.Y., strongly advises all suffering women to rely, as she did, upon Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—Your medicine is indeed an ideal woman's medicine, and by far the best I know to restore lost health and strength. I suffered misery for several years, being troubled with menorrhagia. My back ached, I had bearing-down pains and frequent headaches. I would often wake from restless sleep, and in such pain that I suffered for hours before I could go to sleep again. I dreaded the long nights as much as the weary days. I consulted two different physicians, hoping to get relief, but finding that their medicine did not seem to cure me. I tried your Vegetable Compound on the recommendation of a friend from the East who was visiting me. "I am glad that I followed her advice, for every ache and pain is gone, and not only this, but my general health is much improved. I have a fine appetite and have gained in flesh. My earnest advice to suffering women is to put aside all other medicines and to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound."—Miss NELLIE HOLMES, 540 No. Division St., Buffalo, N. #### EX-SOLDIERS

The Devil's Lake Reservation, North Dakota, soon open under homestead law. Right of entry determined by drawing, conducted by U. S. officials. Ex-soldiers may register and file by agent. One person can act as agent for but one soldier only. To meet the demand of soldiers for agents I have arranged with a number of citizens in North Dakota, near these lands, to act as agents for soldiers. To pay the agent and myself for trouble and expense, there will be a charge of $10.00 for registration. Should the soldier draw a number entitling him to tract of land, the same agent will file for him, locate and select his land for a fee of $25.00. If the soldier prefers he may, instead of paying this $25.00, go and select his own land. Soldiers not required to pay $1.00 an acre on their land until six months after their filing.

ACT PROMPTLY! Registration begins Aug. 1st and ends Aug. 20th. No time for delay. Send $10 and your discharge, or certified copy thereof, and I will send you proper legal papers for your execution. I will look after the entire matter and see that the agent does his duty. Should you need to be registered the money will be promptly returned. Local agents wanted to whom I will pay reasonable commission for services. Address: ROBT. F. BRETHER, Devil's Lake, N. D.

Suffering

Will Not Help Your Disease, but Will Weaken Your Nerves.

Folk who think it is better to bear pain than soothe it are wrong. Old-fashioned doctors used to say it was better, because they had nothing with which to ease pain but dangerous, heart-paralyzing drugs.

But now, that a safe remedy has been found, Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills, it is wrong to suffer, for nothing can be gained but weakened nerves.

A safe rule to remember is: When in pain, take an Anti-Pain Pill.

This will soothe your quivering nerves. Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills relieve pain by restoring the natural secretions, in which they differ from opium and similar narcotic drugs, which relieve pain by checking the action of the glands.

They are sure and harmless, and are the latest medical treatment for the cure of Headache, Neuralgia, Backache, Rheumatism, Dismiss, Toothache, Stomachache, Menstrual (Monthly) Pains. Also nerve irritations like Sea-sickness, Car-sickness, Sleeplessness, Indigestion, etc.

Pleasant to take, quick in results.

HAD HALF A VOTE EACH.

Both Delegations From Sylvan Had Seats in the Democratic County Convention on That Basis.

The Democratic county convention at Ann Arbor last Thursday was largely attended, all the delegations being well filled. W. G. Doty, of Ann Arbor, was the temporary chairman and made a strong speech to the convention. The permanent chairman was Mayor Arthur Brown, of Ann Arbor, and the secretary, Tracy L. Towner, of Ypsilanti.

The fight between the Glazier and anti-Glazier delegations from Sylvan came up in the convention when the report of the committee on credentials recommended that the former be seated as being the regularly elected delegation.

M. J. Cavanaugh moved that each side be allowed ten minutes in which to present its case, but this was voted down. E. B. Norris then moved that both delegations be admitted, and be allowed half a vote each. This resolution was adopted.

Delegates at large were chosen as follows:

To the state convention, Arthur Brown, James E. McGregor; to the congressional convention, James Taylor, C. L. Yost; to the senatorial convention, A. D. McIntyre, M. J. Martin.

The district conventions named the following delegates:

First district, state convention—J. D. Ryan, M. J. Cavanaugh, Harry Douglas, Webster Payne, Eugene Osterlin, John L. Duffy, Walter Bibbie, Wm. H. McIntyre. Congressional—T. S. Taylor, David E. Beach, Jos. Gauntlett, E. P. Wade, J. W. Dwyer, J. M. Braun, E. R. Swift, M. J. Cook.

Senatorial—Wm. H. Murray, John M. Markey, F. P. Finley, T. V. Quackenbush, B. F. Watts, Geo. M. Burd, Chas. Knight, M. C. Kiny.

Second district, state convention—Matt Max, R. W. Hemphill, Jr., Geo. W. Beckwith, F. J. Crist, Fred Casley, Dr. D. P. McLachlan, Henry Stumpenhansen, James Colby.

Congressional—C. R. Huston, F. P. Worden, Hiram Lighthall, Arthur Crane, John Lutz, E. B. Warner, Frank Koebbe, C. W. Maroney.

Senatorial—Frank H. Sweetland, Geo. Witmire, C. H. Kelsey, Clyde Roe, Chas. Rose, Bert Hammond, Wm. R. Lehman, Walter Mason.

End of Bitter Fight.

"Two physicians had a long and stubborn fight with an abscess on my right lung," writes J. F. Hughes, of DuPont, Ga. "and gave me up. Everybody thought my time had come. As a last resort I tried Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption. The benefit I received was striking and I was on my feet in a few days. Now I've entirely regained my health." It conquers all coughs, colds, and throat and lung troubles. Guaranteed by Glazier & Stimson's drug store. Price 50c and $1.00. Trial bottles free.

THE POINT OF RESEMBLANCE

Wherein Modern Statesman Was Like Unto Daniel Webster.

There was in Washington a few years ago an old negro who was noted for his recollections of all the famous statesmen of antebellum days. To him one day came a rather pompous member of a comparatively recent Congress, who resembled some of the famous forensic giants of old only in his capacity for ardent spirits. He had his customary cargo aboard and was inclined to be colloquial. So he addressed the old negro patronizingly: "Uncle Daniel, I understand that you used to know Webster, Clay, Calhoun and all the celebrated statesmen of before-the-war times." "Oh, yes, sah; I 'members dem all," responded the old negro. "Well, Daniel, I have been told that I look like Daniel Webster. Can you see any resemblance?" "Well, yes, sah; yo' does 'mind me powful o' Mars Webster in some respects." "Indeed! In what particulars do I remind you of Daniel Webster?" inquired the now thoroughly flattered statesman. "Mos'ly in de bref, sah," responded Daniel; "mos'ly in de bref."

About Diamond Carats.

We talk of a diamond being so many carats in weight. The carat was originally the seed of the Abyssinian carat flower. These seeds are very equal in size, and so were at one time used in weighing gold and precious stones. To-day the carat as applied to gold means simply the twenty-fourth part of the weight of any piece of gold or of alloy of gold.

OUT OF THE RACE.

One Page of the House Is Thoroughly Up to Date.

A certain member of the house, who was defeated for re-election, had for four years as a favorite one of the little pages of the house. The member was constantly doing little things to please the boy, of whom he was very fond.

When the member returned this winter the page seemed to be unaware of his existence. He never visited him, and failed to take luncheon with him, as he had often done. The member, mystified, called him one day and inquired the reason for the breaking off of the friendship.

"Well, it's this way," replied the page, "You have been defeated, and I am only playing favorites, so, you see, I can't be bothered with you any more."

August Clearance Sale.

All stores should have clearing out sales at the end of the season. They must either have these or have a stock of old goods and odds and ends on hand, besides they must impose on their patrons by selling them goods that are out of style at full prices. But it takes courage to clean up stock at the end of the season as it must necessarily mean a loss if the "cleaning up" is done quick. These clearing sales are great opportunities for saving people, people that try to make a dollar go as far as it will.

AGREED ON THEIR VERDICT.

Jurymen Had Made Up Their Minds, and So Affirmed.

At Fort Scott (Kan.) the other day a jury in the District court returned a verdict finding a certain accused person guilty of larceny. The verdict had not been prepared in the technical form desired and the judge sent the jury back to make the necessary corrections. The jury was gone for half an hour, and when it returned it brought in a verdict acquitting the prisoner. But a verdict even more amusing was perpetrated by a jury at Pittsburg. The case was a criminal one, and after a few minutes' consultation the jury filed into the box from its room. "Have you agreed upon a verdict?" asked the judge. "We have," responded the foreman, passing it over. "The clerk will read," said the judge. And the clerk read, "We, your jury, agree to disagree."

TO MARQUETTE.

Stevens Convicted of the Murder of Ralph Calkins.

A jury in the Recorder's Court of Detroit, on Thursday, pronounced a verdict of guilty which convicts Wm. Stevens of the murder of Bartender Calkins in Bowman Bros. saloon on Gratiot avenue, on the night of May 19 last. The murder was one of the most cold-blooded ever committed in Wayne county.

Attorney McGinley had the jury polled and asked for a stay of judgment. This was denied. Then Stevens was asked by the court whether he had anything to say.

The prisoner arose. Perspiration had broken out all over his face. He was wiping his ashen face and his hands with a handkerchief. Quickly, however, he recovered himself and in a clear, audible voice, said:

"Your honor, anything I might say, I know will have no bearing upon my sentence. I will say that I had no fair trial."

"The penalty is mandatory in murder of the first degree," Judge Phelan interrupted. "The sentence is mandatory."

Stevens spoke once more. Rising to his full height and with voice raised, he continued:

"Furthermore, I wish to say"—and here he dramatically raised his right hand—"that if there is a God above and he sees me now, I hope he'll strike me dead now if I am not innocent."

The dramatic strength of the incident found silence upon everyone in the court room. Ex-Senator McGinley stepped up to the prisoner and held a whispered conversation with him. At the close Stevens once more began to speak:

"Furthermore, I wish to state," said he, "that when I said I did not have a fair trial, I did not mean my counsel. The jury, too, was fair enough. But I wasn't given a fair trial on the part of the state to show the people of this state and the whole world that I am innocent of this crime. My counsel, in view of all the circumstances, compelling him to go to trial on three days' notice, made a gallant fight. That's all I have to say."

He sat down.

Judge Phelan replied at length, dwelling on the heinousness of the crime of which Stevens was convicted and ended by sentencing the prisoner to life imprisonment at Marquette.

"The Wages of Sin."

Henry Mohr committed suicide in the Hotel Clarendon, Grand Rapids, rather than face the charge of embezzling $1,300 from his Muskegon employer, for whom he was confidential bookkeeper. Four times the crazed young man tried to end his life and each attempt failed. After the fifth effort all that remained for the officers of the law was his cold, dead body.

When the officers entered the room they found scattered about on the tables and chairs all kinds of deadly drugs, including morphine, chloroform, corrosive sublimate, strychnine, a package of rough on rats, from which some of the contents had been removed, and a small vial of laudanum. It appeared that the man had attempted to end his life by partaking of each of these deadly poisons.

Mohr had also endeavored to kill himself by hanging by means of a sheet from the bed. The sheet had cut into his neck so that the flesh had been torn apart and the upper portion of his body was covered with blood from the wounds.

Battle Creek Thugs.

Battle Creek is considerably excited over the number of hold-ups attempted of late and in particular over the nocturnal assault on George F. Zang, a well-to-do merchant tailor. Mr. Zang, a stockholder in the Battle Creek Iron Works, was returning home from a business meeting of that company when a man stepped out of the shadow of an apartment house and struck him across the head with the king-bolt of a wagon. Zang fell to the sidewalk in a dazed condition, but recovered instantly and started to grapple with his assailant, who took to his heels and ran. The tug was not much of a hero, as Mr. Zang is over 70 years old, although very wiry. A bad gash was cut by the bolt, which the fellow dropped on the sidewalk as he ran.

Foul Play Suspected.

The death of Edith Mason, who had been known by half a dozen other names in the Mabel Fisher place, Sault Ste. Marie, has attracted the attention of the authorities because there were scratches on her face. The girl's companion had arisen early and gone away, and the girl's dead body was not discovered in bed until noon. It was believed that she had taken poison until the scratches were noticed, and now the police want to locate the man.

Mysterious Explosion.

The C. L. Benjamin homestead, one of the landmarks of Saginaw, was wrecked by an explosion Tuesday. The occupants, Mr. and Mrs. F. G. Bessie, were away at the time, and declare that there was nothing in the building that would explode. A man was seen riding away from the place on a bicycle shortly before the explosion occurred. Fire which followed caused a loss of $1,000 to Bessie on furniture.

Last Indian Carrier.

Anterne Paquette, the last of the Indian mail carriers, is dead at the age of 85 years, as near as can be estimated. Paquette was an Ojibway and used to carry mail on snowshoes from Saginaw to the Soo. It was Paquette who brought the first news of President Lincoln's assassination to the Soo.

Israel Corey, of Coldwater, aged 80, while raking hay with a horse hay rake, was dangerously injured in a runaway, and his advanced age will probably prevent his recovery.

DESPERATE FIGHT.

Wounded Robber Tracked By Trail of Blood.

Two members of the band of desperate vags who have been terrorizing Berrien county for weeks, attacked Deputy Sheriff Detemple when the officer was called to the home of "Indian Mary," a character living in the marsh across the Paw Paw river, where two fellows had threatened the woman's life. As the officer approached the two desperadoes opened fire from the shelter of a barn, and a pitched battle followed in which 50 shots were fired. The deputy managed to capture one of the fellows and held him as a shield, but both then pounced upon him and got away. By a trail of blood Deputy Detemple followed the fellows to the swamp, but lost track of them and returned to report. Just before daybreak one of the men came to Benton Harbor, it is thought to get aid for his wounded companion, and was immediately arrested. Although he has been closely questioned by the officers he refuses to give the hiding place of his partner, who is thought to be lying in a dying condition in the swamp, which is being searched by an armed posse.

Closed Its Doors.

The State Bank at White Pigeon, Mich., capitalized at $251,000, and one of the oldest financial institutions in the southeastern part of the state, did not open for business Saturday. A statement was issued by the officers of the bank promising the depositors payment in full. No reason was assigned for the closing of the bank. Several hundred depositors crowded in front of the bank building and there was considerable excitement for a time. Among its thousands of depositors are many Indiana farmers and capitalists.

The McKnight Case.

A motion for a new trial in the case of Mrs. Mary McKnight, serving a life sentence in the Detroit house of correction for the murder of Mr. and Mrs. John Murphy and their little daughter, will be made before Judge Chittenden in the circuit court, Attorney P. C. Gilbert, of Traverse City, who represents Mrs. McKnight, is prepared to carry the case to the supreme court in case the motion is denied by Judge Chittenden.

Had Education.

Gordon Pearen, the 9-year-old son of Mr. J. A. Pearen, who disappeared Thursday evening, has been found. He was near Henderson. For some slight alleged offense young Pearen was made to believe by a boy friend that he was to be arrested, so he decided to run away. He was to go several miles north and after he had been gone a few days supplies would be brought him by a companion. They would then live an outdoor, nomadic life. The boys have read dime novels, imbibing wild west ideas.

Wells Are Dry.

Farmers within a radius of five miles of Auburn are complaining about their deep wells running dry. At the same time the men working on the new shaft for the Auburn Coal Co. are having a hard time keeping the water from flooding the shaft. Evidently all the deep water in that vicinity is heading for the Auburn mines' shaft. Surface wells are holding their usual water supply.

MICHIGAN NEWS NOTES.

For the first time in over eight years the Flint Wagon Works has closed down for repairs.

Mrs. Bert Petee, aged 30 years, of Adrian, dropped dead on Sunday afternoon while doing her housework.

George Francis Clay, of Grand Rapids, Mich., a member of the class of 1907 at the Annapolis naval academy, died of pneumonia at the Memorial hospital, New London, Conn., Sunday night. Midshipman Clay was taken to the hospital from the monitor Florida, one of the vessels of the North Atlantic squadron now stationed there and had been ill for a little over a week.

The officials of the State bank, White Pigeon, which failed to open its doors for business Saturday, state that they will have matters straightened out in a few days. The depositors seem to have confidence in the promises of the officials and are waiting developments.

NEWS OF THE WORLD

A Brief Chronicle of All Important Happenings

THE CZAR'S MAN.

Minister of the Interior Blown to Fragments.

M. von Plehwe, Russian minister of the interior, the czar's most valuable cabinet official, and the real power behind the Russian throne, was assassinated at 10 o'clock Thursday morning in one of St. Petersburg's most crowded thoroughfares. A bomb, or infernal machine, thrown under his carriage, terribly mangled the minister, killing him instantly. The carriage was blown to atoms, the coachman killed, and several people near by wounded. The bomb contained nails and was made of some explosive having greater force than dynamite.

Immediately a scene of the wildest confusion prevailed. Police and soldiers hurried to the scene and a vast crowd blocked the street. On the ground lay the torn body of M. von Plehwe and near by that of his coachman, both weltering in their blood.

A policeman covered the body of the minister with an overcoat. The head was battered almost beyond recognition, but the strong, severe features could still be recognized. Wreckage of the carriage and bits of the red lining of the minister's official overcoat were strewn over the roadway for a hundred yards.

M. von Plehwe was on his way to the Baltic station to take a train for Peterhof, the czar's summer home, and make his regular visit to the emperor. The assassination occurred two blocks from the station.

When throwing the bomb the assassin shouted: "Long live freedom!" with a little Russian accent.

The prisoner told the police that he had no accomplices. It is established that the assassin is not a Jew. The crime is believed to be the outcome of an international anarchist movement.

England's Sharp Demand.

The British government's instructions to Sir Charles Hardinge, British ambassador to Russia, to energetically protest against the sinking of the British steamer, Knight Commander, by the Russian Vladivostok squadron. Until the presentation of the note to the Russian government the greatest secrecy will be maintained regarding its contents, but it is known that Premier Balfour and his colleagues have decided to demand that the fullest reparation shall be made by Russia, or measures will be taken to follow up the diplomatic demands.

The British note, as Sir Chas. Hardinge will submit it, will not mention the amount of indemnity Russia must pay the owners of the ship and British subjects having goods on board the vessel, but all that will be sought will be the establishment of the principle of indemnity and apology. A salute of the British flag must also be conceded and the future protection of neutral shipping assured.

Assassins Will Recover.

The recovery of Lego, alias Porozoff, the assassin of Von Plehwe, is practically certain. He is entirely conscious, although suffering acute pain in consequence of the operation in extracting the splinters from his abdomen, face and arms.

He speaks Russian fluently, but with a foreign accent, and declares he had no accomplices. The assassin carefully avoids giving the slightest clue to his identity. He admits that it was a carefully planned crime, says he was animated by humanitarian motives and does not express the slightest regret.

STEADY BATTLING.

Battle Raged All the Week—View of the Situation.

The Japanese general staff announces that five Japanese officers have been killed and forty-one wounded in the fighting which has been going on around Port Arthur since last Tuesday. The losses in the ranks are not given. This is the first announcement of its kind since the beginning of the siege of the fortress, and it indicates that there has been serious fighting. The rumor that Port Arthur had fallen is officially declared untrue.

In view of the rumors of the storming and fall of Port Arthur the Russian general staff declare positively that not a single position forming a part of the land defenses of Port Arthur has yet fallen into the enemy's hands and that the besiegers are nowhere nearer than eight or ten miles to the fortress.

The attack on the right flank of the Russian southern army at Hai Cheng developed Friday morning. The battle was opened with a heavy artillery fire, under cover of which the Japanese infantry advanced along the railway until 11 o'clock, when their forward movement was checked. The fighting was continued, according to the last accounts, but the result is not known.

The fate of the campaign in Manchuria, so English authorities aver, is now in the balance—if indeed it has not been already settled. In giving battle at Hai Cheng, Kuropatkin has, in the opinion of British war experts, taken an unnecessary risk. Should he be defeated there, and the general impression here is that defeat for him is inevitable, it is not believed it will be possible for him to save his army. If he should be successful in checking the onslaught of the armies of Oku and Nozt at Hai Cheng he has still to reckon with Kuroki in the north and is not out of danger by long odds.

Heavy Repulse.

Desperate fighting marks the decisive battle of the Japanese-Russian campaign in southern Manchuria. The fighting began in earnest Saturday in attacks by the Japanese on the Russian rear. The battle is still raging. Gen. Kuropatkin, practically hemmed in near Hai Cheng, is holding strongly fortified positions on the hill tops, and the Japanese are consequently at a disadvantage in their assaults. One desperate attack made on a steep hill guarded by a strong Russian force ended in a hand to hand bayonet fight in the Russian trenches. The Japanese were finally driven down the hill again with heavy loss. The Russians, according to Gen. Kuropatkin, have thus far held their positions splendidly, the only blow yet inflicted being the killing of Lieut. Gen. Count Keller.

Plehve's Successor.

Count Ignatieff will succeed the late M. von Plehwe as minister of the interior. Nicholas Pavlovitch Ignatieff was born at St. Petersburg in 1832 and entered the guard when 17 years old. Later he was appointed military attaché to the Russian embassy in London, and in 1858 was sent on a special mission to Khiva and Bokhara. In 1860 he was appointed Russian ambassador at Peking and four years later was made ambassador to Turkey. He was appointed minister of the interior under Alexander III, but was dismissed in 1882, though he remained a member of the council of the empire. He has since been conspicuous as a leader of the Pan-Slavic party in Russia.

MAP SHOWING TATCHEKIAO, EVACUATED BY RUSSIA, AND SCENE OF RECENT BATTLES.

Tatchekiao has been evacuated by the Russians, following a battle lasting fourteen hours. The battle near Tatchekiao was between the same forces which had been engaged in a conflict between Newchwang and Tachekiao. According to Chinese information the strength of the Japanese forces in the neighborhood of Siamatze numbers 30,000, menacing Mukden.

Thos. F. Kennedy, said to be a member of the noted Knox-Whitman gang of forgers, was arrested in New York yesterday, charged with having raised a $10 draft to $10,000, depositing it in the German-American bank of Buffalo and then drawing out $800.

War with Russia is a possibility, so the British people believe. So firmly is this idea held that the opposition leaders to the government in the house of commons allowed the premier to understand that they will support the government in its representations to Russia in regard to the seizure of the steamer Malacca in the Red Sea.

The body of John Hascoe, aged 18, son of Capt. Thomas Hascoe, of the Republic mine, who went berrying on Wednesday, was found in Michigan river, above the village, in about eight feet of water. It is supposed he became bewildered and fatigued and succumbed to the heat.

Attorney General Blair has filed a brief, indicating that the Advertiser sanitarium, which asks exemption from taxation on the grounds of its charitable nature, may be in the wrong, and the city and state will both now go after the thousands of dollars of taxes.

Roosevelt Has Been Notified.

HE STANDS PAT ON REPUBLICAN RECORD AND INTENTION.

Notified By Speaker Cannon At Sagamore Hill

President Roosevelt was notified formally Wednesday of his nomination for the presidency by the national Republican convention. The ceremony took place at his country home at Sagamore Hill, three miles from Oyster Bay.

Cannon's Speech.
The formal notification was made on behalf of a committee representing every state and territory in the United States by Speaker Cannon, of the house of representatives.

Speaker Cannon, in formally notifying the president of the action of the convention, defended protection and other Republican policies from the attacks of the Democrats, who, he declared, were not to be trusted with the administration of these policies, which had produced such boundless prosperity, made much of the silence of the Democratic platform on the gold standard and currency questions, and imputed ulterior motives to Judge Parker in sounding his belated telegram, after voting for free silver in 1896 and 1900.

The president, in accepting the nomination, said:

Roosevelt's Acceptance.

"There is nothing experimental about the government we ask the people to continue in power, for our performance in the past, our proved governmental efficiency, is a guarantee as to our promises for the future. Our opponents, either openly or secretly, according to their several temperaments, now ask the people to trust their present promises in consideration of the fact that they intend to treat their past promises as null and void. We know our own minds and we have kept of the same mind for a sufficient length of time to give to our policy coherence and sanity. In such a fundamental matter as the enforcement of the law we do not have to depend upon promises, but merely to ask that our record be taken as an earnest of what we shall continue to do.

Trust Question.

"In dealing with the great organizations known as trusts, we do not have to explain why the laws were not enforced, but to point out that they actually have been enforced, and that legislation has been enacted to increase the effectiveness of their enforcement. We do not have to propose to 'turn the rascals out,' for we have shown in very deed that whenever by diligent investigation a public official can be found who has betrayed his trust he will be punished to the full extent of the law, without regard to whether he was appointed under a Republican or a Democratic administration.

"This is the efficient way to turn the rascals out, and it has the merit of sincerity. Moreover the betrayals of trust in the last seven years have been insignificant in number when compared with the extent of the public service. Never has the administration of the government been on a cleaner and higher level; never has the public work of the nation been done more honestly and efficiently.

"Assuredly it is unwise to change the policies which have worked so well and which are now working so well. Prosperity has come at home. The national honor and interest have been upheld abroad. We have placed the finances of the nation upon a sound gold basis. We have done this with the aid of many who were formerly our opponents, but who would neither openly support nor silently acquiesce in the heresy of unsound finance; and we have done it against the convinced and violent opposition of the mass of our present opponents who still refuse to recant the unsound opinions which for the moment they think it inexpedient to assert.

"We know what we mean when we speak of an honest and stable currency. We mean the same thing from year to year. We do not have to avoid a definite and conclusive commitment on the most important issue which has recently been before the people, and which may at any time in the near future be before them again. Upon the principles which underlie this issue the convictions of half of our number do not clash with those of the other half.

Money Issue Settled.

"So long as the Republican party is in power the gold standard is settled, not as a matter of temporary political expediency, not because of shifting conditions in the production of gold in certain mining centers, but in accordance with what we regard as the fundamental principles of national morality and wisdom.

"Upon the financial legislation which we have enacted there is now ample circulation for every business need; and every dollar of this circulation is worth a dollar in gold. We have reduced the interest-bearing debt and in still larger measure the interest on that debt. All of the war taxes imposed during the Spanish war have been removed with a view to relieve the people and to prevent the accumulation of an unnecessary surplus. The result is that hardly ever before have the expenditures and income of the

those of the strongest organization, for each is to receive justice, no more and no less. The problem with which we have to deal in our modern industrial and social life are manifold; but the spirit in which it is necessary to approach their solution is simply the spirit of honesty, of courage, and of common sense.

"Ever since this continent was discovered the need of an isthmian canal to connect the Pacific and the Atlantic has been recognized; and ever since the birth of our nation such a canal has been planned. At last the dream has become a reality. The isthmian canal is now being built by the government of the United States. We conducted the negotiation for its construction with the nicest and most scrupulous honor, and in a spirit of the largest generosity toward those through whose territory it was to run. Every sinister effort which could be devised by the spirit of faction or of self-interest was made in order to defeat the treaty with Panama and thereby prevent the consummation of this work. The construction of the canal is now an assured fact; but most certainly it is unwise to intrust the carrying out of so momentous a policy to those who have endeavored to defeat the whole undertaking.

Foreign Policy.

"Our foreign policy has been so conducted that, while not one of our just claims has been sacrificed, our relations with all foreign nations are now of the most peaceful kind; there is not a cloud on the horizon. The last cause of irritation between us and any other nation was removed by the settlement of the Alaskan boundary.

"In the Caribbean sea we have made good our promises of independence to Cuba, and have proved our assertion that our mission in the island was one of justice and not of self-aggrandizement; and thereby no less than by our action in Venezuela and Panama we have shown that the Monroe doctrine is a living reality, designed for the hurt of no nation, but for the protection of civilization on the western continent, and for the peace of the world. Our steady growth in power has gone hand in hand with a strengthening disposition to use this power with strict regard for the rights of others, and for the cause of international justice and good will.

"We earnestly desire friendship with all the nations of the new and old worlds; and we endeavor to place our relations with them upon a basis of reciprocal advantage instead of hostility. We hold that the prosperity of each nation is an aid and not a hindrance to the prosperity of other nations. We seek international comity for the same reasons that make us believe in peace within our own borders; and we seek this peace not because we are afraid or unready, but because we think that peace is right as well as advantageous.

"American interests in the Pacific have rapidly grown. American enterprise has laid a cable across this, the greatest of oceans. We have proved in effective fashion that we wish the Chinese empire well and desire its integrity and independence.

The Philippines.

"Our foothold in the Philippines greatly strengthens our position in the competition for the trade of the east; but we are governing the Philippine people themselves. We have already given them a large share in their government, and our purpose is to increase this share as rapidly as they give evidence of increasing fitness for the task. The great majority of the officials of the islands, whether elective or appointive, are already native Filipinos.

"We are now providing for a legislative assembly. This is the first step to be taken in the future; and it would be eminently unwise to declare what our next step will be until this first step has been taken and the results are manifest. To have gone faster than we have already gone in giving the islands a constantly increasing measure of self-government would have been disastrous. At the present moment to give political independence to the islands would result in the immediate loss of civil rights, personal liberty and public order, as regards the mass of the Filipinos, for the majority of the islands have been given these great boons by us, and only keep them because we vigilantly safeguard and guarantee them. To withdraw our government from the islands at this time would mean to the average native the loss of his barely-won civil freedom. We have established in the islands a government by Americans assisted by Filipinos. We are steadily striving to transform this into self-government by the Filipinos assisted by Americans.

"The principles which we uphold should appeal to all our countrymen, in all portions of our country. Above all they should give us strength with the men and women who are the spiritual heirs of those who upheld the hands of Abraham Lincoln; for we are striving to do our work in the spirit with which Lincoln approached his. During the seven years that have just passed there is no duty, domestic or foreign, which we have shirked; no necessary task which we have feared to undertake, or which we have not performed with reasonable efficiency. We have never pleaded impotence. We have never sought refuge in criticism and complaint instead of action. We face the future with our past and our present as guarantors of our promises; and we are content to stand or fall by the record which we have made and are making."

"There was no rupture of a great party, but an excellent practical outcome, the result of the harmonious cooperation of two successive presidents and two successive congresses. This is an illustration of the governing capacity which entitles us to the confidence of the people not only in our purposes, but in our practical ability to achieve those purposes. Judging by the history of the last twelve years, down to this very month, is there justification for believing that under similar circumstances and with similar initial differences of opinion, our opponents would have achieved any practical result?

We have already shown in actual fact that our policy is to do fair and exact justice to all men, paying no heed to whether a man is rich or poor; paying no heed to his race, his creed, or his birthplace.

"We recognize the organization of capital and the organization of labor as natural outcomes of our industrial system. Each kind of organization is to be favored as long as it acts in a spirit of justice and of regard for the rights of others. Each is to be granted the full protection of the law, and each in turn is to be held to a strict obedience to the law; for no man is above it and no man below it. The humblest individual is to have his rights safeguarded as scrupulously as

RELICS OF OLD MEXICAN RACES

(SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE)

In the days before the Spanish conquest the art of the jeweler flourished in various parts of Mexico, among tribes speaking distinct languages or dialects. Near the City of Mexico, in the pueblo of Atzacapalco, a town still in prosperous existence, and much modernized with its villas of well-to-do city people, the cunning of the native jewelers attracted the attention of the great conqueror, Hernan Cortes, always interested in the arts of the natives. Indeed, in his letters, to Emperor Charles V. he writes of the workmanship of the scales, a triumph of their craft, to be sent to that monarch.

The recent discovery of a prehistoric golden mask of rare design and exquisite workmanship near Chilpancingo, the capital of the state of Guerrero, is of great archaeological importance. The finding of this beautiful and costly object prompted Prof. William Niven, mineralogist and explorer, now a resident of Guernavaca, state of Morelos, to make some investigations into this interesting subject, and his efforts have been rewarded with much success, he having in the past few months seen and photographed more than fifty gold objects, which clearly prove that the Indian goldsmith was a workman of great skill and thoroughly efficient in his art.

The finding of these costly relics, together with the rich gold discoveries made during the past year in southern Mexico, strengthen the belief among some students of Mexican history that the coveted sources of Montezuma's gold treasures may be found within the bounds of this comparatively unknown region.

It is related that when Cortes demanded of the Mexican monarch where his stock of yellow metal came from, Montezuma directed two of his lords, or caciques, to accompany some of the Spanish invaders to the locality now believed to have been accurately determined. Upon the return of the Spaniards they reported to Cortes that the Indians picked up the grains of gold in deep barrancas, or ravines; that the gold was extremely scarce, and that the gold country was about eighty leagues southwest of Tenochtitlan, as the City of Mexico was known to the Aztecs.

A glance at the map of Mexico will show that the region must be close to where the recently discovered gold objects were found. Many archaeologists assert that the highest culture of Aztec civilization was centered around the capital, and that the Indians who lived outside of this circle were but semi-barbarous tribes, some living in caves and others leading a nomadic life. This may have been the case when Cortes first entered Tenochtitlan, but that there lived a civilized people in southwestern Mexico ages before the time of Montezuma there is every reason to believe. Prof. Niven, who has explored this region, is entirely confident of the correctness of this theory.

He says that tens of thousands of ruins of buildings which had been substantially built of stone, to the northwest of Chilpancingo, were doubtless in the same ruined condition when Montezuma flourished. Then, as now, little was known of the former dwellers in those houses. The beautiful gold and jade amulets, copper and stone implements and gold dress ornaments found in and near these ruins in the state of Guerrero appear to prove that there lived a mighty people in this mysterious land, people as highly cultivated as the Aztecs have been represented to be. Who were they? Why have they utterly disappeared, leaving hardly a trace behind them?

Prof. Niven, a competent archaeologist as well as miner, holds that this vanished race passed away by the same awful agency that created such havoc in Java, and more recently in Martinique. If there are, perchance, any survivors left, possibly traces of them may be found among the tribes who dwell in the region northeast of Acapulco and onward to Oaxaca. There live to-day the Mixtecos, Tlapanecos and Amasgos, who have their own language, and among whom very few speak Spanish.

In the land of the Tlapanecos there is a town called Pascualan del Oro, which is said to be near a gold deposit of fabulous richness, and tradition relates that the inhabitants of this section paid their tributes to the conquistadores in gold nuggets. Many stories are told of attempts made to wrest from them the secret of their gold region, but to this day all efforts have been in vain. A priest, at one time, very nearly succeeded in making the coveted discovery. He had shown many acts of kindness to the poor Indians, and was held by them in great reverence. All payments to him were made in native gold.

His ceaseless pleadings to be taken to the mine were met by steady refusals, but one day the Indians reluctantly agreed to agree that he should go to the mine on condition that he made the journey blindfolded. Before departing the old padre tied a small bag of corn to his belt, under his cloak, and every few steps of his horse he dropped a grain to the ground. After many hours over a rough, broken trail the padre and his guides arrived at the entrance to the gold mine, where he saw the quartz fairly glistening with the yellow metal. As he stood spellbound, contemplating the wonderful bonanza, he joyfully congratulated himself that he had outwitted the Indians by his cunning ruse of scattering the corn. But as he was congratulating himself one of the guides came up and handed him a bag, saying: "Padre, you lost your corn; but here it is, every grain!" On returning home, of course, had no means of knowing where he had been, the return journey having been made blindfolded.

"On my recent trip to the Pacific coast," says Prof. Niven, "I rode over these mountains, and camped near the town where it is said the priest started from. I found indications of gold over a wide area. I also know that the late governor of Guerrero bought small quantities of gold nuggets from his goatherds who live in that locality. But my impression is that if there is a rich deposit of gold in that region it is not likely that the Indians who live there to-day are aware of it. The finding of gold by the goatherds may have been at a distance from the really rich region."

Joys of a Tent.

So much has been written and said during the last few years on the subject of living in open air, that I want to recommend a substitute for a piazza in case you have not one for work or rest in a convenient place. I have taken great comfort in a tent placed in a retired and shady part of a rather small lot. My tent has flaps that open up and form additional overhead protection on two sides. A maple floor, several inches from the ground, makes it habitable, even in a rain storm, and an army cot, sewing table and canvas chairs, looking glass and calendar constitute the furnishings. (The looking glass is for my guests.) I nap, draw, sew, read and entertain my friends in my tent from May until October. Last year I gave a Fourth of July supper to ten and added grass mats and bunting decorations for the occasion.—Good House-keeping.

Mahogany Hunters.

In Central and South America the revenues of many districts depend on the skill and activity of the mahogany hunters. Mahogany trees do not grow in groups; much less are there whole forests of them. They are scattered, usually concealed in thickets. It requires skill and experience to find them. To fell a tree involves the work of two men for a whole day. On account of a thick, thorny growth near the base of the tree, a scaffold is erected around it, and above this, at a height of from ten to fifteen feet, the tree is cut, so that the best part is really lost. The felled tree is then freed of branches and hauled on a rough wagon by oxen to the nearest river, where rafts are made and floated down.

BUTCHERS' STRIKE.

No Signs of Peace—Do Not Want the President to Intervene.

After three weeks there appears to be no abatement of the struggle between the packers and the butchers. The packers declare that they have practically won their fight, and that the strikers are becoming demoralized. In direct opposition to this statement of the employers, the strike leaders assert that the victory is with the workmen, and that it will be a matter of but a short time until the packers will be compelled to ask for peace.

Leaders of the four allied trades unions which went on strike in sympathy with the packing house butchers are said by the packers to have made overtures for reinstatement. According to the packers, the emissaries from these four skilled trades sought to learn upon what terms the strikers would be reinstated, should they return in a body. The answer the packers gave to these peace missionaries was that the strikers would be re-employed as fast as conditions might warrant, but only as individuals and not as members of any union.

The strike leaders disclaimed any knowledge whatever of the action taken by the four unions, and repeated their assertions that the outlook for victory for the striking workmen was more satisfactory than ever.

Some parties tried to induce President Donnelly of the Butchers' union to appeal to President Roosevelt to offer his good offices and bring the strike to an end. Mr. Donnelly refused to consider the proposition. "We are winning the strike and need no help from the president," said Donnelly.

The relief stations opened Saturday by the packing trades relief committee were besieged all day by men and women seeking food. By evening all the supplies in the stations had been given away. Several hundred persons who had failed to reach the counters until too late were turned away empty-handed. The strikers say the reason the supplies gave out so quickly was because hundreds of outsiders took advantage of the opportunity to secure free provisions.

Robert E. Pattison, who was twice Democratic governor of Pennsylvania and twice controller of Philadelphia, died Monday at his home in Overbrook, a suburb of Philadelphia. Pneumonia, complicated with a weakness of the heart, was the cause of death.

Mr. Olsaver, of Webster, and Miss Amy Whalan are taking a pleasure trip, maybe will visit Niagara Falls, the finest short trip you can take.
Three days are none too long to stay and visit the greatest wonder of nature.

The Sabbath school here have decided to hold the annual picnic in F.
A. Glenn's grove, Aug. 23, to which all adjacent schools, or just as many as bring their eatables and enjoyment with them, are invited. They always have a good time.

In the outlet from the Twamley lake known as the county ditch there can be seen an oily substance that rises from the same spot all the time.
Who doubts that oil is deposited in the earth there? It will be found when Kentucky oil runs out.

Saturday, Aug. 13, will be held in the Stevenson grove a farmers' picnic, to which all respectable people

Hall, of Stockbridge, and others. A ball game and other out door amusements will be furnished to order.

Suicide Prevented.

The startling announcement that a preventive of suicide had been discovered will interest many. A run down system, or despondency invariably precede suicide and something has been found that will prevent that condition which makes suicide likely. At the first thought of self destruction take Electric Bitters. It being a great tonic and nerve will strengthen the nerves and build up the system. It's

Health for All Suffering Women.

Zoe Flora Has Given it to Thousands—Will Give it to You—Trial Bottle
Free to All.

Zoe Flora brings to every ailing woman perfect health—safe, thorough and permanent cures. It cures where all other remedies and doctors fail as testified to by many thousands of women whose lives have been made bright and happy by its wonderful work. Zoe Flora cures all diseases, weaknesses and irregularities of the sex, painful and suppressed periods, all misplacements, piles, leucorrhoea, kidney, bladder and liver troubles, makes childbirth easy and regulates the change of life.

"I suffered with leucorrhoea and painful periods for nearly six years. I took different kinds of patent medicines and doctors with three different doctors, but they did not do me any good. They said I would have to have an operation, but they said Zoe Flora has stopped the pain and it has entirely cured the discharge. I was so weak when I began taking your medicine that I could not sit up a whole day at a time. I have taken six bottles and am cured." Reta Griffith, Columbiaville, Mich.

Write the Zoe Flora Co., Kalamazoo, Mich., for a free trial bottle and copy of their illustrated medical book, "Dr. Pongelly's Advice to Women."
The doctor will gladly give free medical advice when needed. Zoe Flora is for sale at $1.00 a bottle by

Mortgage Sale.

DEFAULT having been made in the payment of the amount secured by and payable upon a certain mortgage made and executed by Henry Cullum, of the village of Saline, Washtenaw county, Michigan, and Andrew J. Warren, of the village of Saline, county and state aforesaid,
Which said mortgage is dated August 10, 1897, and was duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds of Washtenaw county, Michigan, on the eleventh day of August, 1897, in liber eighty-nine of mortgages, on page 358. By reason of which default in the payment of the amount secured by said mortgage the power of sale therein contained has become operative, and no suit or proceeding at law having been instituted to recover the debt secured by said mortgage or any part thereof, and there is now claimed to be due upon said mortgage the sum of Two Hundred and Ninety Dollars ($290.00) for principal and interest due thereon and the further sum of Twenty Dollars as an attorney's fee stipulated in said mortgage and as provided by law. Now, therefore, notice is hereby given that by virtue of the power of sale contained in said mortgage and in pursuance of the statute in such cases made and provided, said mortgage premises will be sold at public auction to the highest bidder, at the east front door of the court house in the city of Ann Arbor, in said county of Washtenaw (that being the place where the circuit court for the said county of Washtenaw is held), on Tuesday, the first day of November, next, at ten o'clock in the forenoon of that day.

Which said premises are described in said mortgage as follows: Commencing on the south line of Henry street at the northeast corner of the Baptist church lot, thence northeasterly along said line of Henry street one chain and twelve links to the northwest corner of Geo. Schmid's lot, thence southeasterly along the west line of said Schmid lot to Samuel D. VanDuzer's land, thence westerly along said VanDuzer's land one chain and twelve links to the east line of the Baptist church lot, thence northerly along the east line of the Baptist church lot to place of beginning.
Dated July 30, 1904.

ANDREW J. WARREN,
Mortgagee.

FRANK E. JONES, Ann Arbor,
Attorney for Mortgagee.
