DESTRUCTIVE LIGHTNING.

Three Fine Farm Barns in Lima and Scio

Lightning got in its work in Lima township during Monday night's storm and two barns with their contents were destroyed. The large barn on the farm belonging to the John Allen estate, which is worked by Fred Lucht, was struck and burned to the ground, together with the crops, farming tools and other property belonging to Mr. Lucht, including nine calves. The barn was insured in the Washtenaw Mu-Prices tual for $1,700 and Mr. Lucht's loss was about $2,000, partially covered by insurance in the German Mutual for $1,000.

> Jacob Hinderer's barn in Lima was also burned with all its contents. It was partially covered by insurance in the German Mutual.

> Jacob Lanbengayer, of Scio, had a fine new barn just completed and the electric fluid struck it and burned it to the ground entailing a loss of $1,600, with an $1,100 insurance in the Washtenaw Mutual.

Has a Bug, Big as a Bumble Bee. The Evening News of Thursday,

Aug. 11, in its article from the state military encampment at Ludington had the following paragraph relative to F. P. Glazier's political ambitions:

"Senator Glazier has left camp and gone to other pastures to push his candidacy for state treasurer. Being one of those ambitious gents who are always looking out for No. 1, Glazier was tipped off here as being already more votes than any other candidate mona Grange, is as follows: on the Republican ticket, and then, when he thinks the time ripe, announce himself a candidate for governor for four years from hence. He has got a bug, big as a bumble bee, for the governor's job."

The members of St. Mary's Branch, No. 410, L. C. B. A., some of them accompanied by their best beaus and children, went out to the home of their past president, Mrs. John Grange. Clark, in Lyndon, Monday afternoon, and got a very pleasant surprise on her. They took with them well laden baskets from which during their stay a most delectable feast was spread and partaken of with appetites well sharpened by their lengthy drive. The afternoon was spent in visiting and having a good time and the Chelsea membes of the party got home about 7:30 p. m Among the guests was Rev. W. P. NORTH LAKE PICNIC.

Good Time and a Well Pleasant Crowd of People.

(From our correspondent,) The farmers' basket picnic held at Stevenson's grove, North Lake, last Saturday was an occasion of a life time. The crowd was just large enough not to make a jam, and esti? mates variously placed it at from 1,000 to 1,500. The early morning clouds kept many from a distance from being there, but the day throughout was an ideal one for a picnic. All the speakers billed to make speeches were present in excellent form and did themselves proud, but it was conceded that the grange speaker, W. F. Taylor, of Shelby, took the cake, and he took the chicken all right at dinner time,

The program was a good one and was carried through without a hitch. The speakers were H. Wirt Newkirk and W. W. Wedemeyer, of Ann Arbor, W. F. Taylor, of Shelby, and A. A. Hall, of Stockbridge. They all said they felt more than repaid for coming, by having a chance to visit old riends. Judge Newkirk almost felt like a boy again. He felt a spasm of jealousy that he could not James Burden, the well known size up with your correspondent in nature's charms of beauty. ow in the midst of its splendid sea- of architecture and general grandeur. Colossal, complete, cosmopolifan, it commands the attention of the world as no other enterprise of the ent year. From all nations there pilgrims coming to this shrine, and from all our states and territories there is a constantly growing throng of visitors. United States Senators, Governors of States, men eminent in cience, art and letters—all express qualified admiration for the Exposition and free acquiescence in the oftrepeated statement that this is by far the greatest and best universal exposition ever held.

During July a well-known magazine and newspaper writer from New York, Mr. Addison Steele, spent a week at the World's Fair, inspecting the grounds, buildings and various attracthat fimited period. Returning home, Mr. Steele published in Brooklyn Life the following appreciative comments on the Exposition:

In the expressive language of the day, St. Louis "has the goods." I had expected much of the Louisiana Purchase Exposition, for I had kept in touch with the making of it from its very inception, five years ago; but after nearly a week of journeying through this new wonderland I must confess that in every essential particular it is far beyond my expectations. The biggest and best it was street, and above the snow-clad moun- nor lodging no one need pay any more

Then again in the ground plans and bird's-eye sketches—the only possible manner of showing it-the fan-shaped arrangement of this group looked stiff and unsatisfying. Far from that, it is quite as remarkable in its way as the famous Court of Honor of the Columbian Exposition. In one respect it is even more notable, for instead of two grand vistas it offers a dozen. The main vista is, of course, the one looking up the Plaza of St. Louis-whose crowning feature is the great Louisiana Purchase Monument-and across the Grand Basin to the Cascade Gardens. On the right are the Varied Industries and Electricity buildings and on the left Manufacturers and Education, these-with Transportation and Machinery still further to the right tions as thoroughly as was possible in and Liberal Arts and Mines beyond at the left-making up the body of the fan. For its handle the fan has the Cascade Gardens-rising in a grand terrace to a height of sixty-five feet above the floor level of the buildings mentioned and crowned by the great Festival Hall, the Terrace of States

The Pike has in the Tyrolean Alps the finest concession that I have ever seen. There is a great square with many quaint buildings, a little village meant to be and the biggest and best 'tains-which look very real as the at St. Louis than he feels that he can

> It is a case of dine at the German Pavilion and die at the exposition. In a beautiful Moderne Kunst building lion-tamer. adjoining Das Deutsche Haus the best fcod and the highest prices on the grounds are to be found, the table d'hote lunch and dinner costing two and three dollars, respectively. There is also a la carte service. Everything considered, the prices are not excessive, and at least one meal should be taken there for the experience. Another should be taken at the Tyrolean Alps, either outdoors or in the gorgeous dining-room in the mountainside. The best French restaurant is at Paris, on the Pike. Lower in prices and in every way admirable are the two restaurants conducted by Mrs. Rorer in the pavilions of Cascade Gardens. The east one has waitresses and no beer and the west one waiters and beer. For a bit of lunch Germany, France and England all offer delicious pastry in the Agricultural building. These are not free ads, but fime-saving tips for the traveler. There are no end of restaurants to fit all purses on the grounds. I tried nine of them and nowhere found the prices more than they ought to be. As a matter of fact, for neither food

Of course any one points around him, and then somewould be willing to admit that a man who could go alone into a cage of wild beasts was not a person who would be likely to be frightened by anything, but the tragedian insisted that there were people in the more peaceful walks of life who had as little fear in their composition as any

As a proof of this, Mr. Forrest asserted that never in his life had he anything.

No doubt of the truth of this statement was expressed by Herr Driesbach, and after some further conversation he proposed that the tragedian should accompany him to his home. When they entered the house a gasjet was burning low in the hall, and having closed the front coor, Herr Driesbach put up his hand to turn on more light; but, apparently by accident, he put it out, so that the two men were left standing in absolute darkness.

Exclaiming at his stupidity, the master of the house declared that he had no matches about him, and asked Mr Forrest if he could give him one But the tragedian never carried matches, as his companion probably knew, and Driesbach asked him to wait where he was for a few moments while he made his way to the back of the house to procure some.

Left to himself, Forrest stood per-

On the bare floor he heard the muffled taps of heavy paws.

He perceived the odor of the breath of beasts. He knew that he was standing there in the dark surrounded by lions, moving freely about him, and sniffing and smelling at him to known what it was to be afraid of find out whether they knew him or not.

> The blood ran cold in the veins of the tragedian, but he did not move, he did not call out. As if he had been a statue of a man he remained motionless, feeling that if he showed the slightest sign of fear the beasts would be upon him.

> Presently-it seemed many, many minutes to Forrest-Driesbach appeared with a match. The gas was lighted, and the pale tragedian saw near him three or four large performing lions who had been quietly liberated from an adjoining room.

"You are a brave man!" exclaimed the lion-tamer. "You have proved you have no fear.'

The reply of Forrest cannot be set down here, but he speedily left that house and never entered it again. The friendship between the two men was at an end. Such an unwarrantable test of courage could not be forgotten.-Montreal Herald.

Too Hot for Tenderfoot

From time immemorial the bath tub has been an honorable institution in Japan. Instead of a cold dip in the morning, the Japs take their baths hot in the afternoon, at about 5 o'clock, and, beginning at 100 degrees, the tendency is to raise the temperature as one becomes acclimatized, so to speak. One traveler tells of the Kawarayu bathers, who stay in the tub for several weeks at a time with

BOOKS NOT IN DEMAND.

English University Students Evidently Are Not Literary.

At the English universities the libraries are so little used that they have become famous as places of unbroken solitude. One yarn told to illustrate this is to the effect that an elderly fellow of Caius college, Cambridge, got tired of life and deter mined to put himself quietly and unostentatiously out of the way, so that the world in general and Caius college in particular should know him no more. Being a man with a great love still for his college, he made up his mind that no scandal should be caused by his sudden departure. So he debated in his mind on the ways and means. His decision was an inspiration. He bought a decent length of rope and hanged himself in the college library. But his hopes were doomed to disappointment. He was discovered a year and a half later.

American Snakes.

There are only few varieties of venomous snakes in this country. The chief of them are the rattlesnake and the copperhead. In the South is to be found a variety of rattlesnake, the diamond-black rattler, and a variety of copperhead that lives around ponds and rivers, called the water moccasin. Farther west, on the other side of the Mississippi river, there are several other varieties of rattlesnake

One of the greatest, and certainly one of the most agreeable, of my many surprises was the extreme beauty of the main group of buildings. For the simple reason that the camera does not exist which could take in the vast picture as the eye sees it, the early views of the group—a bit here and a bit there—gave a scant idea of the scheme as a whole. Nor did the early views of the ten individual buildings which make up its compon- dancing. For the rest the Pike offers

Thousands of Negatives Made For Millionaire August Belmont.

Among rich Americans perhaps none is so fond of being photographed as August Belmont, James R. Keene being a close second. One New York photographer, whose patrons are mostly wealthy men, has made thousands of negatives for Mr. Belmont in the last few years. One of the largest single orders for prints from old negatives ever received by this photographer came from Mr. Belmont himself soon after the death of his wife. It included a good print from every negative in which Mrs. Belmont appeared. The photographer never guessed how many photographs he had taken for Belmont till then; he found that they numbered nearly a thousand.

Why do birds live so much longer than mammals, which are often a hundred times their size? Possibly, among other things, because they have beaks instead of teeth. All carnivorous beasts become weak and liable to starvation, as their teeth drop out or break. Neither are the herbivorous animals in much better case. Old horses would probably die of starvation if wild, for their teeth would fail them; indeed, in some stony countries old horses have to be killed because their teeth are worn away by cropping to the uplifting of the Indian and negrass close to the rock. Rodents con-stantly die from injuries to teeth. But private fortune with which to beild a bird's beak neither wears out nor a church and school for the Indians drops off, and as it constantly swal-lows fresh grit to aid in grinding food The only condition is that the Indian-

The Gift of the Elves. om the brink to see herself in the till water. Looking, she smiled—and mall wonder! Below her, framed in green rushes, was the reflection of a high-born maida dressed according to her rank. Gold was in the embroidery that stif-fened her trailing skirts; gold was ewn into her gloves, and golden hains twined in her lustrous hair added to the spirited poise of her head touch of stateliness. No wonder that her mouth curved into a smile as she

A sweet voice sounded up the bank, calling, "Randalin! Randalin!"

Picking up the branchful of scarlet berries which she had dropped, Frode's daughter moved toward the voice. "Are they about to go, Dearwyn?" she asked the little gentlewoman who came toward her around a hawthorn bush, lifting her silken skirts daintily. Dearwyn shook her head. "My lady wishes to try on you the wreath she has made. She thinks your dark locks will set it off better than our light

"I was on my way thither," Randalin said, quickening her steps.

Along the bank of a pebbly stream, between pickets of mounted guards. the troop of holiday-folk was strung in scattered groups. And where the sun lay warm on a leafy glade, the King's beautiful "Danish wife" took her nooning amid her following of maids and of pages, of ribboned wenches and baggage-laden slaves.

Gazing at her, Randalin's admiration mounted to wistfulness. "Were I like that, I should be sure of his feeling toward me," she sighed.

It was easy to understand why the King's wife had been named "the gift | was the King himself. of the elves." Every lovely thing in nature had been robbed to make her, rushed forward to take possession of Pausing in her work, Elfgiva looked down in surprise. "Now what should prevent?" she asked.

The girl colored a little as she answered: "It was in the King's mind once, lady, that a good way to dispose of Randalin, Frode's daughter, would he to marry her to the son of Lodbrok. If he should still keep that opinion-I would prefer to die!" she ended abruptly.

But the King's wife laughed her rippling laughter that had in it all the music of falling waters. "Shed no tears over that, ladybird! Would I be apt to let such an odious bear as Rothgar Lodbroksson rob me of my newest plaything? There! Now my work could not be improved upon." Again she moved back, her beautiful head tilted in birdlike examination. Randalin arose slowly and stood before her with widening eyes.

But it was not long that the Lady of Northampton had for her or for her wreath. Bending, she peered curiously under the branches. "I wonder if it has happened that the King has sent someone to meet us?" she exclaimed.

"I see a gleam of scarlet, lady," the maiden of the riverbank came to tell her eagerly.

But even as Elfgiva was turning to dispatch a page for news, the throng of moving figures parted, and from it two horsemen emerged and rode toward them. One was the mighty son of Lodbrok, clad in the scarlet mantle and gilded mail of the King's guard. The other, who wore no armor at all only feasting-clothes of purple velvet,

"It is because you are to a greater degree anxious to please him than me, though it is a whole year that I have pined away, day and night, in the utmost loneliness. Why have you troubled to send for me, if you hold my happiness so lightly that you will not comply with me in so small a matter?" Bridling softly, she was turning away, when the young King threw up his hands in good-humored surrender.

"To this I will quickly reply that my shield does not secure me against tears! If it is not to your wish we will not speak of it. Give back, foster brother, and choose two of the other to be your drinking companions. Look up, my fair one, and admit that I am the most obedient of your thralls Have I ever wounded you more deeply than a trinket would cure?" he de

And behold, she had already forgot ten the matter, to catch at the huge arm-ring which was slipping up and down his sleeve, so loose a fit was it 'What Grendel's neck did you take it from? If it had but an opening, could use it for a belt."

Smiling, the King looked down or his monster bracelet. "That," he said. "does not altogether do me credit, for it shows the difference in girth be tween me and Edmund Ironside. When we set the peace between us, we exchanged ornaments and weapons. Think if we had followed the custom in every respect and exchanged garments likewise!"

Elf-fires were in Elfgiva's blue eyes when she raised them to his. "Rule your words so that no one else hears you say that, bright Lord of the Danes," she murmured, "lest they think you mean by it that the English crown would fit you as loosely, and forget that you are a boy who will

The King's mouth sobered. "Nay, a man, who has got his growth."

Her little hand spurned the ring that the instant before it had caressed. "Not a man, but a King!" she reminded him, and drew herself up proudly before him, a queen of beauty, crowned with the sun's gold.

His eyes devoured her; his breath seemed to come faster as he looked. All at once he caught her hand and crushed them against his lips. "Neither man nor king," he cried, "but the lover who has adored you since he came to plunder but stayed to woo! Do you know that when I came upon you to-day, my heart burst into flower as a tree blooms in the spring time? more than 500 out of 1,000 females Had I a harp in my hand, my lips would blossom into song. Give me one from your minstrels, and I will sing to you as we ride, and we will forget that a day has passed since the time when first we roved together through the Northampton meadows." Forgetful of all the world beside, he

Rev. A. B. Simpson, president of the Christian and Missionary Alliance, recently entertained a missionary from Burmah.

WOLF HUNTING IN LAPLAND.

Vatives Run Down Animals on Skis and Dispatch Them With Spears. The most northern point of Scanlinavia or Finland is inhabited by Laps. The latter live in the valleys and are employed chiefly in agriculture; the former keep to the mountains and they are very wealthy, owing to their immense herds of reindeer, which graze summer and winter in the open.

If the snow is very deep in winter the herds are brought down to the more sheltered valleys. In spite of constant watchfulness they are even there not safe from the invasion of the lowland from the forests.

The mountain Laps in consequence organize wolf hunts during the winter. They pursue the animals on skis, or snowshoes, and owing to the great speed at which they can get over the frozen snow they soon overtake the flying beasts and kill them. The huntsmen carry nothing but a short heavy spear, which they drive home with a practiced hand. Only when wounded do the wolves attack their pursuers, otherwise the cowardly brutes seek safety in flight.

Cleveland, Ark., August 15 (Special).-Nearly every newspaper tells of some wonderful cure of some form of Kidney Disease by the Great American Remedy, Dodd's Kidney Pills, and this part of Arkansas is not without its share of evidence that no case is too deeply rooted for Dodd's Kidney Pills to cure.

Mr. A. E. Carlile, well known and highly respected here, tells of his cure after nearly a quarter of a century's suffering. Mr. Carlile says: "I want to let the public know what I think of Dodd's Kidney Pills. I think they are the best remedy for sick kidneys ever made.

"I had Kidney Trouble for 23 years and never found anything that did me so much good as Dodd's Kidney Pills. I recommend them to all sufferers." There is no uncertain sound about

Mr. Carlile's statement. He knows that Dodd's Kidney Pills rescued him from a life of suffering and he wants the public to know it. Dodd's Kidney Pills cure all Kidney ills from Backache to Bright's Disease.

Letter Writing a Lost Art. To one who closely studies human nature letters constitute the best literature. They reveal the little idio syncrasies which go to make up character. They expose the heart, espe cially if written without the thought of publication. Sometimes, as in the case of the correspondence between Robert Browning and Elizabeth Barrett, it seems a sacrilege to lay bare to the world so much of private confidence. In other instances, as in the letters which Liszt and Wagner wrote to each other, the world is the distinct gainer by the publication. In fact, so rich is English literature in epistolary wealth that we hate to regard letterwolves, whom hunger drive down to writing as a lost art. The truth, however, forces itself upon us and we must accept it, endeavoring to console ourselves with the thought that what we have lost in genuine correspondence we may have gained in other "神经"。不是"性"。

Which Has Been Printed and Circulate Volume Today.

This week's issue of the Herald is Volume 34, No. 1. There have been a great many changes in Chelsea since the first issue of the paper the week after the great Chicago fire in 1871, and all of them, except the political atmosphere, have been for the better. There are but few left in active business today who were in business at that time and even those who were residents of the village at that time are getting fewer and fewer as the years roll by.

The Herald has several subscribers still on its list who have taken the paper since the first week it started, ers, and the patrons of our advertising and job printing departments, months of his sentence. we wish at this time to extend our best thanks for the liberal patronage they have given us during the past 51 years and at the same time solicit a continuance of their favors.

We will make no great promises, but will endeavor at all time to give. our patrons a good readable paper, clean and free from sensationalism, and to our jobbing patrons neat, tasty work at reasonable living prices.

NEIGHBORHOOD NOTES.

John Alber, of Sharon, is building n addition to his farmhouse.

Manchester has no fire department now, the members having all resigned.

The elevator at Francisco has been improved in looks through the application of a coat of paint.

Wirt Cornwell, of Ann Arbor, will commence the building of gasoline engines, after the French pattern, on a small scale in that city.

Manchester ladies who enjoy driving about the town and in the country have had to give up the pleasure because of the automobiles frightening their horses so.

Miss Nellie Dailey, of Dexter, and Mr. Arthur Kidder, of Vermontville, were married at the home of the bride yesterday morning, Rev. John P. Ryan, of Dexter, officiating.

The tower of the Ypsilanti high school was struck by lightning Monday night and the city clock and the top of the tower were destroyed. Loss $2,000, covered by insurance.

Charles, alias "September," Perrin, who was sentenced Dec. 3, 1900, by Judge Kinne, to a cumulative sen tence of seven years at Ionia for the thefts of a horse, a mare and some and to them and our other subscrib- grain, has been released on a technicality, after serving 3 years and 8

Frank Fanning and Chas. Braun, of Munith, were on their way to Dakota to work in the harvest fields, but stopped in Jackson to celebrate. Fanning made some insulting remarks about Braun's wife, who retaliated by pounding Fanning into insensibility, splitting his nose and smashing his face. The trip to Dakota is postponed and both men were arrested.

Tuesday night of last week fire swept away the barns on the farm owned by Mrs. Nelson Osborne, in Scio. The barns were worth $1,500, with $750 insurance, and Charles Lang, who is the tenant on the place, lost $1,000 in personal property and carried no insurance. Saturday, John Becker, a farm hand employed by Lang, confessed first to County Treasurer Braun and then to Sheriff Gauntlett, he set fire to the buildings. He says that he did it to get even with Lang, for whom he was working and who kicked him. Becker is held for arson.

Masonic Picnic at Whitmore Lake.

The Ann Arbor Masonic picnic at Whitmore Lake yesterday was very largely attended. Masons and their families from all parts of the county were present, among them about 20 from Chelsea. The game of baseball in the morning between Chelsea and Ann Arbor Masons resulted in a victory for the latter 17 to 11. Two of the Chelsea players were quite badly done up. In running to catch a fly Louis Stevenson ran against an Ann Arbor man, who braced himself and his head struck the Chelsea boy right under the heart knocking him out completely. Roland Waltrous, who went out to take his place was almost directly afterwards struck in the head by a ball thrown by the pitcher and he was also done np. In the sports in the afternoon Dr. A. Mc-Colgan took the first prize in the 100 yards dash and third prize in the fat men's race. Paul Maroney won

The Labor Problem.

Impatience of the restraints of law, as well as of its delays, is becoming more and more manifest from day to day. Within the past few years many instances have been brought to our attention, where in different parts of our beloved country supposed criminals have been seized and punished by a mob, notwithstanding that the constitution of each state guarantees to every person within its jurisdiction that his life, his liberty or his property shall give assurances of relief to the people Any other course would be not only from such excessive duties as burden false economy, but pusillanimous. from such excessive duties as burden them, it is due to them that we state our position to be in favor of a reasonable reduction of the tariff; that we believe it is demanded by the best interests of both manufacturer and consumer, and that a wise and beneficent revision of the tariff can be accomplished as soon as both branches of congress and an executive in favor of it are elected, without creating that sense of uncertainty and instability that has on other occasions manifested

This can be achieved by providing that such a reasonable period shall intervene, between the date of the enactment of the statute making a revision and the date of its enactment, as shall be deemed sufficient for the industry or business affected by such revision to adjust itself to the changes and new conditions imposed. So confident am I in the belief that the demand of the people for a reform of the tariff is just, that I indulge the hope that should the Democratic house of representatives and a Democratic executive be chosen by the people, even a Re-publican senate may heed the warning and consent to give at least some measure of relief to the people.

The Trusts,

The combinations, popularly called trusts, which aim to secure a monopoly of trade in the necessities of life as administering each department so to been encouraged and stimulated by exact as to preserve, rather than to destroy, the potency of the co-ordinate branches of the government, and thus pines into our possession; and we are not at liberty to disregard the responsibility which thus came to us but that responsibility will be best subserved by preparing the islanders as rapidly as possible for self-government and giving to them the assurances that it will come as soon as they are reasonably pre-pared for it. There need be no fear that the assertion so often made of late, that we have now become a world power, will then be without support.

A World Power.

Ours is a world power, and as such it must be maintained, but I deny that it is at all recently that the United States has attained that eminence. Our country became a world power over a century ago, when, having thrown off foreign domination, the people estab-lished a free government, the source of whose authority sprung, and was continuously to proceed, from the will of the people themselves. It grew as a world power as its sturdy citizens, to whose natural increase were added immigrants from the old world seeking to obtain here the liberty and prosperity denied them in their own countries, spread over the face of the land, reduced the prairies and forests to cultivation, built cities, constructed high-ways and railroads, till now a nation which at the formation of the govern-ment numbered only three millions in population, has become 80,000,000, and from ocean to ocean and the lakes to the gulf, the country is the abode of a free and prosperous people, advanced in the highest degree in the learning and the arts of civilization.

It is the liberty, the advancement and the prosperity of its citizens, not any career of conquest, that make the country a world power. This condition we owe to the bounty of Providence, unfolded in the great natural resources of the country, to the wisdom of the fathers manifested in the form of gevernment established by them, to the energy, industry, moral character and law-abiding spirit of the people them-

We are not a military people, bent on conquest, or engaged in extending our domains in foreign lands, or desirous of securing natural advantages, however great, by force; but a people loving peace not only for ourselves, but for all the nations of the earth. The display of great military armaments may please the eye, and, for the moment, excite the pride of the citizen, but it cannot bring to the country the brains, brawn and muscle of a single immigrant, nor induce the ivestment here of a dollar of capital. Of course such armament as may be necessary for the security of the country and the protection of the rights of its citizens, at home or abroad, must be maintained. I protest, however, against the feeling, now far too prevalent, that by reason of the commanding position we have assumed in the world we must take part in the disputes and broils of foreign countries; and that because we have grown great we should intervene in every important question that arises in other parts of the world. arises in other parts of the world.

I also protest against the erection of any such military establishment as would be required to maintain the country in that attitude. We should confine our international activities solely to matters in which the rights of the country or of our citizens are directly involved. That is not a situation of isolation but of independence. isolation but of independence.

The government of the United States was organized solely for the people of the United States. While it was contemplated that this country should become a refuge for the oppressed of every land who might be fit to dis-charge the duties of our citizenship and while we have always sympathized with the people of every nation in their struggles for self-government the government was not created for a career of political or civilizing evangelization in foreign countries or among alien races. The most efficient work we can do in uplifting the people of other countries is by the presentation of a happy, prosperous, self-governing na-tion as an ideal to be emulated, a model to be followed. The general occupation of our citizens in the arts of peace or the absence of large military armaments. tends to impair neither patriotism nor hysical courage, and for the truth of this I refer the young men of today to the history of the civil war. For 50 years with the exception of the war with Mexico, this country had been at peace, with a standing army most of the time of less than 10,000 men. He who thinks that the nation had grown effeminate during that per-iod should read the casualty rolls of the armies on either side at Shiloh, Antietam, Fredericksburg and Gettys-burg, at Stone River and Chickamauga. I would be the last man to pluck a single laurel from the crown of any one of the military heroes to whom this country owes so much, but I in-sist that their most heroic deeds proceeded infinitely more from devotion to the country, than from martial spirit.

One Term Enough.

As I have already proceeded at too great length, other questions suggested in the platform, must await my letter

Mr. Chairman: In most graceful speech you have reminded me of the great responsibility, as well as the great honor of the nomination bestowed upon me by the convention you represent this day. Be assured that both are appreciated—so keenly appreciated that I am humbled in their presence.

I accept, gentlemen of the committee, the nomination, and if the action of the convention shall be indorsed by an election by the people, I will, God helping me, give to the discharge of the duties of that exalted office the best service of which I am capable, and at the end of the term retire to private life. I shall not be a candidate for re-

Several reasons might be advanced for this position, but the controlling one with me is that I am fully persuaded that no incumbent of that office should ever be placed in a situation of possible temptation to consider what the effect of action taken by him in an administrative matter of great import-ance might have upon his political fortunes. Questions of momentuous consequence to all of the people have been in the past and will be in the future presented to the president for deterpresented to the president for determination, and in approaching their consideration, as well as in weighing the facts and the arguments bearing upon them, he should be unembarrassed by any possible thought of the influence his decision may have upon anything whatever that may affect him person-

I make this statement, not in criticism of any of our presidents from lamages for instigating that sacrido tha, lad?' he said. 'An' tha thinks washington down who have either held the office for two terms or sought to succeed themselves; for strong arguing his bones were deposited in a wrinkle about it? Tha's reight, lad. succeed themselves; for strong arguments can be advanced in suuport of the re-election of a president. It is simply my judgment that the interests of this country are now so vast and the questions presented are frequently of such overpowering magnitude to the people that it is indispensable to the maintenance of a benitting attitude before the people, not only that the chief magistrate should be independent, but that that independence should be knewn of all men.

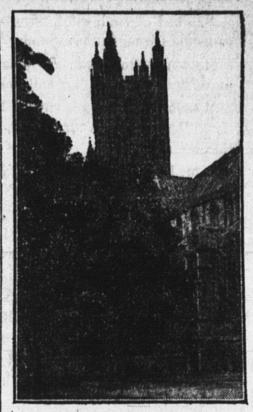

Americans who are coming to England this year and intend visiting Canterbury will be disappointed to hear that builders have just begun to surround the central tower of the famous cathedral with a huge scaffolding by which its beauties will be completely hidden for probably many months to come. The temporary disfigurement is necessitated by the unsound condition of this portion of the structure, which has made its restoration imperative lest the tower should share the fate of Venice's Campanile. Historically known as the "Bell Harry" tower, this crowning achievement of Canterbury's architect is commonly regarded as the finest example of the perpendicular style of church architecture in England, although the name of its designer has not been handed down to posterity. Its construction was begun in 1472, and it replaced a former tower called the 'Angel Steeple," a name bestowed on it because of the gilded cherubim who was perched on the pinnacle. It is 235 feet high and 35 feet in diameter, but such is the dignity and stateliness of the design that it conveys the impression of much larger dimensions. After Westminster abbey and St.

Paul's, Canterbury cathedral is the most highly prized of England's churches, both for its architectural beauty and its historic associations. It originated, it is said, in a church formerly used by the Roman Christians, and which St. Augustine consecrated under the name of Christ's church when he became archbishop of Canterbury in 597. Enlarged some 350 years later by Archbishop Odo, it was totally destroyed by fire in 1067. Archbishop Lanfranc rebuilt it, but the choir was again wholly burned down in 1174, and to rebuild it a number of French and English artificers were summoned. Among the former was one William of Sens, who turned out to be a man of real genius, and to him the work was intrusted. He died, however, in 1778, before the work was finished, but a worthy successor was found in another William. this time an Englishman, and to him monial rights and privileges, and determined to set up as head of the English church himself. He despoiled Becket's shrine, getting over a score cartloads of treasure therefrom, erased his name from the calendar of the saints and ordered his bones to be burnt and the ashes to be scattered to the four winds.

Whether this was really done, no one can tell at this day. In 1888 a stone coffin, with the remains of a The lynching part had not progressed skeleton which some declared to be that of the martyred archbishop, was discovered in the crypt and re-buried after careful examination. A curious mosaic pavement still remains in front of the place where the shrine stood, and in the stone steps which lead up to it are deep hollows worm.

"Of the cowards that eat my bread is there none will rid me of this turbulent priest?" hastily exclaimed King Henry II, wearying of his long quarrels with the soldier prelate and champion of church supremacy. Dr. Davidson was the bishop of Winchester when appointed by King Edward in 1903 to succeed Dr. Temple, as primate of all England. At that time he had been a bishop for 11 years, first occupying the see of Rochester, from which he was transferred to Winchester in 1895. For many years he has been a prominent figure in ecclesiastical life in England, partly through the personal appreciation of his capacity shown by Queen Victoria, who had him appointed dean of Windsor in 1883. Dr. Davidson's views on the chief matters of controversy in the English church are well known. In the house of lords he has gained a high place among the Episcopal statesmen, especially in regard

Four Boys Tried a Mock Lynching Coe

John Harvey, of Calumet, had war-rants sworn out for the arrest of four young men, Emmet Downing, Harvey Jones, Peter Wertin and Christ Mess-ner, on the charge of ill-treating his two sons, William and Alfred Harvey. The four young men are about 20 years of age, and the Harvey boys about 17. From what could be learned from the father of the boys and the lads themselves, their companions enticed them to go into the woods with them for a little fun. The larger boys hit upon the idea of having a mock lynching. Of course, the younger members of the crowd were the victims. Their hands were bound, and they were made to dance around with scarcely any clothing on. This done, a rope was placed about their neck. very far before the boys began to yell, which scared the lynchers, who finally desisted. The neck of one of the Harveys was left quite raw by the rubbing of the rope.
