BIG REPUBLICAN RALLY.

People Turned Out en Masse to Hear Congressman Townsend.

Long before 8 o'clock Monday evening every seat in the town hall was filled by an audience of men, women and children anxious to hear Congressman Chas. E. Townsend, who was billed to speak here, together with A. J. Sawyer, of Ann Arbor. Before the speaking commenced standing room was at a premium, the vestibule was filled, and ladies were even seated on the stage with the chairman, the speakers, and other citizens who had seats there.

After a selection by the Chelsea band, A. W. Wilkinson, member of the county committee, called on H. G. Prettyman, of Ann Arbor, chairman of the congressional committee, to preside.

Mr. Prettyman expressed his gratification at the honor conferred on him, and called on the Aeolian Quartette, of Ypsilanti, for a selection which was encored.

He then introduced A. J. Sawyer, of Ann Arbor, as the first speaker, who devoted his attention for an hour and a half to the discussion of primary reform which he characterized as a delusion and a snare and something that afforded the politician the best chance in the world to get in his work. Mr. Sawyer wound up his speech by commencing to speak of each of the candidates for county offices in turn, but when he got as far as the county clerk and called on Jas. E. Harkins to come forward, the audience joined in and called so loudly for that gentleman that Mr. Sawyer had to give way.

Mr. Harkins sang a couple of his favorite songs which were loudly applauded and then the chairman introduced Congressman Townsend.

Mr. Townsend spoke of the lateness of the hour, but craved the indulgence of the audience as he had a few things he wanted to say to them. He answered Mr. Ferris' challenge to him to explain why he had changed his mind upon the question of primary reform. He said he had always advocated the purification of politics and was still doing so, and still believed in a primary election law but not of so sweeping a nature as Mr. Ferris advocated. He paid a warm tribute to Fred M. Warner, the Republican candidate for governor, who he said was a clean man, who in company with himself had labored with Governor Bliss not to make some appointments he had made, but to no avail. He spoke of President Roosevelt, of his sterling worth and merit, of his courage to do what he believed to be right in the face of all opposition. He arraigned the Southern members of the houses of congress for their hostile attitude towards the president because he did not look upon the colored race as they do, and spoke of the bad effect it would have on the business of the country if the Democrats came into power at this time. He concluded by briefly alluding to the work he had done for the establishment of solid rural delivery in Washtenaw and Jackson counties. In the latter it was already in force, and the inspector is now at work remodeling and laying out the new routes in this county. He was heartily applauded during the course of his speech.

After songs by Jas. E. Harkins and the Aeolian Quartette, the meeting broke up with cheers for the Republican candidates.

W. N. FERRIS AT CHELSEA.

He Created a Good Impression With a Large Audience.

Woodbridge N. Ferris, the Democratic primary reform candidate for governor of Michigan, accompanied by ex-Judge Edward Cahill, of Lansing, H. Kirk White, of Owosso, candidate for superintendent of public instruction, John P. Kirk, of Ypsilanti, candidate for congress from this district, and others came to Chelsea Saturday afternoon and held a public meeting in the town hall. Prior to the meeting an informal reception was held and Mr. Ferris was introduced to a large number of gentlemen, both Democrats and Republicans, who called on him at the Chelsea house. The Trades Council band, of Ann Arbor, which had been engaged for the occasion played some excellent selections of music while this was going on. Promptly at 3 o'clock a move was made for the town hall, which was well filled, 500 people about equally divided between Democrats and Republicans with a good sprinkling of ladies being present.

G. W. Beckwith, member of the county committee, called the meeting to order, thanked the people for such a good attendance and said that as the chairman of the county committee, John P. Kirk, was present he would call on him to preside over the meeting.

Mr. Kirk did not waste any time but promptly introduced as the first speaker ex-Judge Cahill, of Lansing. Mr. Cahill spoke briefly on the question of primary reform and the strength of the movement throughout the state, and gave the reasons why he, a Republican, was at this time found supporting and advocating the election of a Democratic governor. He gave a history of the passing of the census law of 1901 which gave Fred M. Warner the power of appointing an army of census enumerators, each of whom was a worker in his interest and was paid out of the funds of the county in which he was appointed, and who devoted more time to canvassing for Mr. Warner than they did to their duties as census enumerators.

Lawton T. Hemans, of Mason, was the next speaker, and devoted his time to a discussion of the great increase in the state taxes in the past ten years. He said the population of the state had increased about 17 per cent, but the taxes had increased 130 per cent. He spoke of the increasing cost year by year, of running the state legislature, which he said was largely due to the creation of numerous useless offices which were filled by political hangers on whom it was desired by the Republican machine to see rewarded for their services.

Prof. W. N. Ferris was then introduced to the audience and was warmly applauded. His voice showed the effects of the strain placed upon it by a long period of speech making, but for nearly an hour he held the close and earnest attention of his audience with a speech that was at times witty, again full of sarcasm, as he arraigned the Republican machine leaders for their broken pledges to the people on the primary reform question. At the end of his speech he challenged Congressman Townsend to give the reasons for his change of attitude towards the primary reform question since he addressed the legislature of 1903 on the subject. Mr. Ferris was warmly applauded during his speech and at its close.

At the beginning of the meeting William Bacon was introduced by Chairman Kirk. Mr. Bacon read the article printed last week in Senator Glazier's paper, the Chelsea Standard, which stated that Bacon had bartered for his appointment as one of the county auditors by agreeing to deliver 200 Republican votes in Sylvan to the Democrats. He branded the article as being as false as the man who owns the paper. He would, however, be glad to see not only 200 but 300 voters vote for Mr. Ferris in Sylvan.

How Webster Got Even.

Daniel Webster wrote after continued provocation to the editor of a newspaper which had referred to his private affairs and especially to his not paying his debts. He said: "It is true that I have not always paid my debts punctually, and that I owe money. The cause of this is that I have not pressed those who owe me, for payment. As an instance of this I enclose your father's note, made to me thirty years ago, for money lent him to educate his boys."

THE SOUTHERN HONEY LOCUST.

Once in the city park, Leaving the dust and heat and noise of the city, Wandering through narrow byways, Sudden my senses thrilled to an odor afar off: An odor just wafted, delicate, subtle, elusive, Breath of the Southland fanning the brow of the North.

Down the narrow path, The perfume bearing, expanding, ever increasing, Engulfing me now with billow ca lillow of fragrance, Uncertain I wandered, I thought I smelled the sweet-briar, The wild honeysuckle, but no, 'twas the locust! the locust!

Oh, locust! of the South! Your blossoms of honeyed snow full of tremulous motion! Were you gladdened to see me there in the fresh May morning, That you leaned to me so and beckoned with joyous insistence?

Down on the soft, cool earth, Down at the foot, 'neath the boughs of the white honey-locust, Pensive there in the sunlight and shade ever changing, Mused I, dreaming again the dreams of my childhood, Musing and dreaming so lay I until the white locust Hushed its low murmur and curtailed itself for the night.

STILL WATERS and PURLING BROOKS. BY KATHERINE S. BROWN.

HAVE you got a shovel handy?" asked Margaret Leslie, dropping down on the hard ground. "I'd like to brush up my spinal cord; it's been so thrilled to smithereens, I haven't any backbone left. You know, Conny, they drill on Van Ness avenue, right in front of our house. Will power can keep you from the window, but they've been giving their orders by bugle, and the very sound simply makes me want to howl!"

"I know," chimed in Constance Brice, waving a gold-headed cane, to which had been fastened a very spick and span silk flag; "there's a squand down near us, too."

"The other day," went on Margaret, "I had such an experience. As I was coming home the soldiers were lying flat in the middle of Van Ness avenue, firing at the enemy over an embankment. It was perfectly stupendous! Of course, there wasn't really any firing, or embankment, or enemy, but seeing them gave me the war fever, I can tell you! Oh, if I were only a man I wouldn't be sitting here, or standing with my hands in my pockets, either" (a withering glance at their thus employed escort). "I'd—goodness, Tom Scott, look at that thing right down there in front of us. I am going to run this minute."

"What is it?" asked Constance. "A great, big, horrid old cannon!"

"Oh, hurry, Madge! Of course they'll fire a salute. Let's go home and watch the transports from our back porch."

"Haven't you had an object lesson in cannon at your kindergarten yet?" asked Tom, serenely; then, turning to Margaret: "Baby's little dog of war is muzzled; doggie can't bark at the little duds," and he reassuringly pointed out to the cap upon it.

"To change the subject," said Margaret, with a little cough, "did you ever see such an uninteresting looking mortal as that woman sitting by herself over there. Her face is absolutely expressionless. I'd just like to stick a pin in her to see if she'd take interest enough to squeal."

"Your hat pin with its army button end," suggested Constance. "I don't believe she has any patriotism, for she hasn't a ghost of a badge or button."

"I don't see what she came for. If she wants to read magazines such a day as this, she'd better stay at home."

"The leaves turn over pretty fast. She's probably only looking at the pictures—don't care for reading, you know. How long have we been here now?"

"One hour and forty minutes," answered Tom; then added encouragingly: "It's my opinion the transports won't go till night, then steal out quietly."

"They went on chatting of trivialities. Then, towards 5 o'clock—they had come to Block Point at 2—they began telling stories."

"I heard such a romantic one yesterday," said Margaret. "There was a girl of Spanish descent called Anita—Anita—oh, I can't remember her last name."

managed a private correspondence, but one sad day a telltale feather dropped from his wing, and the Spanish temper that hadn't been naturalized when papa got out his papers, flew into a rage that bade Anita choose once and forever between home ties and heart ties. It didn't take long. With only enough money to last a month, she pluckily came to San Francisco to earn her own living. As soon as her son of Mars heard it he insisted upon an immediate marriage. The wedding took place exactly a week ago, and to-day he goes to Manila."

"The poor little thing!" exclaimed Constance. "I expect she is just crying her eyes out now."

There was a far away whistle; a bell; a spontaneous burst of many whistles; the deep tone applause of a cannon. The transports had started. The patriotic city of San Francisco was giving its cheer to the departing vessels. Then, amid the universal thrill of brave, hopeful excitement, came the intruding possibility of death and disaster, and the siren moaned its low, irrepressible sob. The crowd at Block Point eagerly pressed forward to catch the first glimpse of the fleet.

Finally, around an abutting point of land, came the Peking, majestic, beautiful, awful. Hugging her side, in parting embrace, started the Utah, chartered to accompany the ships to the Heads for the benefit of the Red Cross Society. At a short interval followed the large flagship, the City of Australia; then, at a greater distance, and more slowly, glided the smaller City of Sydney—and around about them all, the group of friends to see them off, all sorts and conditions of craft, from the "rivulous small fry of a tug to the dignified old stern-wheeler."

Suddenly there was a lurid flash, a terrible blast, a tottering of the ground under their feet—a cannon, unseen by the girls, directly around the corner from them, had wished the Peking god-speed.

As each of the transports passed the Point, the cannon saluted, while the military island of Alcatraz bestowed her blessing in one long series of thirteen guns. Slowly, but too surely, our dear first fleet, with its priceless cargo of precious souls, passed from us out of the Golden Gate. But long after our poor earthly tatters of waving flags were lost to their view there rested about them the radiant glory of a glowing sun, ethereal clouds of soft fog, the deep, intense azure of the sky—the heavens had unfurled their red, white and blue.

The tears fell unchecked down Constance's face. Margaret shivered with a nervous chill. "Now is your hat pin chance," whispered the sacrilegious Tom, pointing to a solitary figure right in front of them.

It was the "uninteresting mortal." She stood motionless, looking out at sea. Then, a moment later, she turned her expressionless face upon their agitated ones.

"You have friends on board?" she asked, in a sweet, sympathetic voice. "No," sniffed back Constance. "Have you?"

"One," fell the soft answer—"my husband."

"Your husband?" repeated Margaret, for now that she saw her close, the woman was remarkably young and girlish in appearance.

The weary, motionless face awoke into its natural beauty. An exquisite flush vivified the dull, olive cheeks. The heavy brown eyes flashed with pride and joy and love. "Yes, my husband," she repeated rapturously; "we have been married just a week to-day."—New York News.

Five Popes. There are five Popes on the face of the globe. They are the Pope of the Latin Church, the schismatic, or orthodox, Pope; the Father of the Faithful, ruling in Constantinople; the Pope of Tibet, who has 500,000,000 subjects, and the schismatic Pope of the Mohammedan world, who reigns at Morocco. All five are threatened with hard times; 1904 has been unpropitious to them. He of Morocco takes his situation with the lightest heart, and goes on amusing himself with scientific toys. He is an amiable being, and the son of an English mother, who bargained in her marriage articles to be buried in British soil at Gibraltar or elsewhere. Since the signing of the Anglo-French accord German agents have given him no peace. He is glad of this. It opens to him a prospect of the Emperor William following toward France, civilly but firmly, a dog in the manger policy. The finest pastures in Africa are in Morocco, and the Germans hunger for them. Of the five Popes, Pius X. is the most venerable, Nicholas the most feared, the Sultan the most terror haunted and terrorist, and Dalai Lama the most mysterious, and the head of the Muslim schismatics the best fellow. We may see a few of them here some day taking the places of Daudet's "Rois en Exil."—Paris Correspondent London Truth.

Walking as a Fine Art. There is no virtue in a dawdling saunter. The slow and languid dragging of one foot after the other, which some people call walking, would tire an athlete; it utterly exhausts a weak person, and that is the reason why many delicate persons think they can not walk. To derive any benefit from the exercise, says the Family Doctor it is necessary to walk with a light, elastic step, which swings the weight of the body so easily from one leg to the other that its weight is not felt, and which produces a healthy glow, showing that the sluggish blood is stirred to action in the most remote veins.

Two severe cases of Ovarian Trouble and two terrible operations avoided. Mrs. Emmons and Mrs. Coleman each tell how they were saved by the use of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—I am so pleased with the results obtained from Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound that I feel it a duty and a privilege to write you about it."

"I suffered for more than five years with ovarian troubles, causing an unpleasant discharge, a great weakness, and at times a faintness would come over me which no amount of medicine, diet, or exercise seemed to correct. Your Vegetable Compound found the weak spot, however, within a few weeks—and saved me from an operation—all my troubles had disappeared, and I found myself once more healthy and well. Words fail to describe the real, true, grateful feeling that is in my heart, and I want to tell every sick and suffering sister. Don't dally with medicines you know nothing about, but take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and take my word for it, you will be a different woman in a short time."—Mrs. LAURA EMMONS, Walker-ville, Ont.

Another Case of Ovarian Trouble Cured Without an Operation.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—For several years I was troubled with ovarian trouble and a painful and inflamed condition, which kept me in bed part of the time. I did so dread a surgical operation."

"I tried different remedies hoping to get better, but nothing seemed to bring relief until a friend who had been cured of ovarian trouble, through the use of your compound, induced me to try it. I took it faithfully for three months, and at the end of that time was glad to find that I was a well woman. Health is nature's best gift to woman, and if you lose it and can have it restored through Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound I feel that all suffering women should know of this."—Mrs. LAURA BELLE COLEMAN, Commercial Hotel, Nashville, Tenn.

It is well to remember such letters as above when some druggist tries to get you to buy something which he says is "just as good." That is impossible, as no other medicine has such a record of cures as Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound; accept no other and you will be glad.

Don't hesitate to write to Mrs. Pinkham if there is anything about your sickness you do not understand. She will treat you with kindness and her advice is free. No woman ever regretted writing her and she has helped thousands. Address Lynn, Mass.

KILLED AT THE CROSSING.

Watchman August Zulke Met Death While Doing His Duty.

A terribly sad and fatal accident was that of Tuesday afternoon, when August Zulke, an old and faithful employee of the Michigan Central railroad lost his life.

As watchman at the Main street crossing he was attending to his duties about 5 o'clock Tuesday afternoon. A freight train was going westward, another train was going eastward, and he was standing between the eastbound track and the sidetrack which runs to the freight shed, motioning to the driver of a team and to Mrs. James Dann, who was coming along the sidewalk, to keep back. He did not see an engine and coal dump car which was backing towards the freight house. Mrs. Dann, however, saw his danger and screamed to him to attract his attention to it, but he was still motioning to her when the car struck him. His left arm was almost cut off and that side of his head was crushed in, killing him instantly. The car left the track.

After the remains had been viewed by the coroner's jury impaneled by Justice J. P. Wood, they were removed to Staffan & Son's undertaking rooms, where they were taken care of and afterwards removed to his home on West Middle street.

Mr. Zulke was 56 years old, an honest, industrious man, and a good citizen. His wife, one son and two daughters survive him.

The funeral services were held at the Church of Our Lady of the Sacred Heart this morning, Rev. W. P. Considine officiating.

The inquest was adjourned until tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock, when it will be held in the basement of the town hall.

Lulu Stanhope, St. Louis: "I used to have a horrid complexion. I took Hollister's Rocky Mountain Tea and am called the prettiest girl in the city." Tea or tablets. 35 cents. Glazier & Stimson.

Those who follow every caprice of fashion, as well as those who have only the usual desire to appear becomingly dressed, will find the November Delinator exceptionally interesting and suggestive, while in the matter of fiction and general literature an equally high standard is maintained.

Too Many for Them. When Bernard Shaw's play, "Arms and the Man," was produced in London for the first time it was well received and at the fall of the curtain there were clamorous calls for the author, to which Mr. Shaw was at length induced to respond. The audience was still cheering, but there was one dissentient in the gallery, who "booming" with the full power of a pair of very strong lungs. Mr. Shaw looked up at the disturber and said, very seriously: "Yes, sir, I quite agree with you; but what can we two do against a whole household?"

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials. Address F. J. CHENEY & CO., Toledo, O. Sold by druggists, 75c. Take Hall's Family Pills for constipation.

Three to One. The failure of the formalin injection in the case of Editor Gonzalez weakens faith in the New York discovery that it was a remedy for blood poisoning. Nevertheless the fact of three successes against one failure should not discourage investigation.

The Jackson Patriot, wishing to ascertain Mr. Brown's position upon the state issues, wrote to him and received the following clean cut reply:

"Ann Arbor, Mich., October 1, 1904.

"Mr. Editor: You have asked me as a candidate for the senate for this district, my opinion upon the use of railroad passes by public officials—whether I would vote for a law making the acceptance and use of railroad passes a public offense and also whether I would vote for such a measure of primary reform as would bring about 'honest elections.' These questions are pertinent and proper and it gives me pleasure to answer them. If elected to the senate I shall not accept or ride upon railroad passes. A man of any self respect must feel embarrassed and humiliated to be obliged to act upon matters concerning the conflicting interest of the railroads and the public after accepting valuable favors from the railroads, and I see no reason why such an indirect system of bribery should not be made a criminal offense by law. Of course without 'honest elections' republican government is a farce. Without honest elections 'government of the people, for the people and by the people' must sooner or later perish from the earth. So I am heartily in favor of such a measure of primary reform as will take the political power from bosses and rings and restore it to the people. To that end I shall vote, if elected to the senate, for such a measure as will secure to the people themselves the power to select their officials from governor to coroner by a primary election. Of all matters of public administration that of taxation is the most intricate and important. Notwithstanding the large payments to the state treasury from various sources like payments from the Federal government and inheritance taxes, the state property taxes continually increase—increasing in greater ratio than the increase in the wealth and population of the state. The state taxes which a few years ago were almost nominal are rapidly becoming a burden to the people. I believe that there is something here which needs a thorough investigation and radical reform. Should I be elected to the senate I want it understood that I shall not be the tool of any ring or boss, but so far as my ability and ambition goes, the impartial servant of all the people.

"Respectfully yours, 'ARTHUR BROWN.'

The "Fcz" of the Turks.

Until a few years ago Fez, the capital of Morocco, where the sultan has been besieged lately by the pretender to his throne, had practically a monopoly in the manufacture of the Turkish national head dress named after it—the "fez"—as it was supposed that the peculiar dull crimson color of the tasseled skull cap could be obtained only by using the dye made from a certain berry largely grown in the neighborhood of the city. The berry is also much used in the dyeing of morocco leather. Now, however, France and Turkey, and to a certain extent Austria, actively compete with Fez for what is still a very lucrative trade.

Many Places for Study.

Showing What's Doing in All Sections of the State

OVER THE FENCE.

Four Long-Termers Escape From Jackson Prison.

Four convicts escaped from the Jackson prison Sunday night at 6 o'clock by simply picking up a ladder, placing it against the outer wall and dropping down and slipping out of sight. The quartet at liberty are Robin Terry, the star pitcher for the prison ball nine, serving from six to ten years from Ingham county for assault; James McGee, in for eight years for burglary in Cass county; Mont Harding, sent from Kalamazoo for nine years on the same charge, and Harry A. Gilbert, a forger from Calhoun county, doing from one to three years.

These men, with two others, have been engaged for several Sundays in painting the smokestacks of the factories within the prison walls, it being impossible to do the work on week days because of the heat from the furnaces. They were not closely watched, as it was not thought they could get over the walls under the eyes of the sentinels. But at 6 o'clock, when the guard was being changed, and there was no one to watch their movements, the quartet hunted up a ladder and were over the wall and away, taking their painters' suits, pails and brushes. The men are all young and are said to be smooth characters.

Eight prisoners have escaped from the Mason jail within the past six weeks, three getting away yesterday. The men are: Thomas Mow, sentenced to Jackson for from one to 14 years for forgery; William Brenner, awaiting trial on a charge of highway robbery, and William Sewell, colored, awaiting trial for burglary.

Shockingly Injured.

Edward Merrifield, son of Mrs. Carrie Merrifield, and William Haley, Jr., of Owosso, each aged about 15 years, were probably fatally injured by an explosion of dynamite in battery caps. Merrifield's face was literally filled with bits of the copper casing and the sight of the left eye is destroyed, while lockjaw is almost sure to ensue. Haley's left temple was punctured and a piece of copper was also driven into his leg.

The boys were playing in a vacant lot when they found the caps attached to a copper wire and intending to sell the wire for junk, they threw the coils into a fire, the explosion following, while they were bending over the blaze. Merrifield presented a pitiful appearance, his face being so covered with blood that he could not be recognized, while he staggered about the street, shrieking "save me," at the top of his voice.

Too Many Apples.

For the first time in several years, Battle Creek is completely flooded with apples. The country is so thoroughly overstocked with the fruit that it is impossible to find a market. Hundreds of bushels will rot on the trees, as farmers cannot get men at $1.50 a day and board to pick the fruit and can scarcely sell it when it is picked and barrelled. One farmer offered to sell his orchard of 200 bushels to the Hewes & Bush Storage Co. for $10. The storage people said they would refuse if the farmer paid them $10 to accept the apples. More apples are stored in private cellars here than in any past year, and farmers cannot sell the best eating apples for more than 25 cents a bushel from door to door.

War of Clubs.

Since the crusade started in Kalamazoo by the women's clubs of the city against high school fraternities, the members of the fraternities have come back by announcing "everlasting and unending war on women's clubs." Pronouncing them as "injurious to the home and a general detriment to the public welfare." How far the boys will carry their war is not known, but instead of jesting they seem to be very much in earnest.

Poor Wheat Crop.

The monthly crop report issued by the secretary of state places an estimate of 5,500,000 bushels on the wheat crop of the state this year, the estimated yield being eight bushels per acre. The quality of the wheat produced is very poor, and much of it will be unfit for milling purposes. The acreage sown this fall as compared with an average is, in the southern and central counties 87, in the northern counties 82, and in the state 86.

Fake Orders Sent.

Three times lately "fake" train orders have been sent from the Michigan Central office in Standish, it is said, without the knowledge of the operator, which, if followed, might have caused serious wrecks and loss of life on the Mackinac division. The company has employed a detective on the assumption that the orders are the work of somebody having a grudge against either the company or the Standish operator.

Smallpox Spreads.

Two new smallpox cases were discovered Wednesday night in Battle Creek. James McGruder and A. Moore, colored, being removed to the detention hospital. This makes eight patients at the hospital—black, white and Indian. The Indians near Athens are improving, and no cases are reported in the village itself. The two latest patients in this city do not know where they caught the disease.

The Volunteer mine at Palmer has suspended operations and nearly 300 men are thrown out of employment. The Richmond mine, located in the same village, will suspend operations with the close of navigation, letting out 75 men more. These mines are the sole sustenance of a village of nearly 1,000 people, and the closing of mines so near winter when other work is scarce will be a severe blow.

E. W. Wheelock, despondent because of his poverty, committed suicide by swallowing morphine at his home near Battle Creek.

MAN HUNT.

Donahue in the Wilderness of Berrien County.

It is reported that Edward Donahue, charged with the murder of A. M. Northrup of Benton Harbor, and who is being hunted like a wild beast by a sheriff's posse, has reached the Thunder Knob district in the northern part of Berrien county. This is a very wild section of country and it is likely that Donahue will hold out against his pursuers until starvation drives him to end the siege. A farmer in Van Buren county reports having seen Donahue along a roadside, hatless and with his clothes torn to shreds by the underbrush he had struggled through. He said the man appeared exhausted and fled at the farmer's approach. The sheriff realizes that he is dealing with a man who will sell his life as dearly as possible, and will not press Donahue too closely. Donahue lived in Grand Rapids several years ago, but was not known as a bad man. At Jackson, where he lived some 12 years ago, however, he had a bad reputation. He is wanted by the officials of Michigan City, Ind., prison for violating his parole.

SAFE CRACKERS.

Work Hubbardston and Escape in Stolen Big.

Safe crackers invaded Hubbardston Thursday morning between 1 and 2 o'clock and terrorized the inhabitants. They first tried to get into the store of John W. Cowman, but failed. They then went to the saloon of James Sommer, drilled the safe and dynamited it, blowing the cash box to pieces. They got only $3 in money, Mrs. Sommer's wedding ring and a few trinkets. Entering Grill's store, they had the safe drilled and ready for the fuse when they were discovered by Dennis Henley, who was aroused by the explosion at Sommer's place. The trio then went to the barn of Dr. Cook, where they stole his horse and buggy and escaped. The leader of the bandits was a tall, smooth-faced, well-dressed man, who carried a russet-colored grip and had the appearance of refinement. One pal was a whiskered, short old man, of 60, and the third was a boy of 19. The three were seen Wednesday walking from Pewamo to Hubbardston.

Plain Speaking.

Sensational talks marked the convention of the State Federation of Women's clubs held in Bay City. Caroline H. Wright, of Grand Rapids, in discussing shopping ethics, strongly condemned the moral conditions which are forced on young girls working for small wages, stating that women could practically control the situation, as the big department and other stores depend on their patronage. Mrs. Wright declared that often when young women apply to managers for wages sufficient to enable them to live decently, they are met with the question, "Haven't you some gentleman friend who can help you out?"

Two Falls.

Mrs. Margaret Casey, aged 86 years, fell down an elevator shaft at St. Joseph's hospital in Houghton and received injuries from which she died within 10 minutes. One of the sisters tried to intercept the fall by catching at Mrs. Casey's shawl, but a pin at the neck gave way, and the unfortunate woman was hurled to the bottom.

As the result of a 200-foot fall through a chute in No. 2 shaft of the Quincy mine, an unknown man lies at St. Joseph's hospital, Hancock, between life and death. His escape from instant death was miraculous.

Saved by Fright.

A "young cyclone" blew things about promiscuously at Muskegon Heights, where the brick wall of the Gray Bros' Manufacturing company was blown down. D. D. Walker, Frank Gray and a stenographer were in the office. Mr. Gray and Mr. Walker rushed outdoors, the former escaping unscathed. The latter, however, was caught under the falling bricks and sustained possibly fatal internal injuries. The stenographer was too frightened to move, and, although bricks and debris fell about her, she was unhurt.

The Michigan Building.

If the movement inaugurated by the State Agricultural society of Michigan is successful, the Michigan building at the World's fair will be moved after the close of the exposition, to Detroit. The idea of the State Agricultural society is to have the pavilion taken to Detroit and there erected as one of the buildings of the Michigan state fair. It is probable that the building will be used as the administration building, the pavilion being well adapted for that purpose. It cost $20,000.

Tired of Life.

While eating dinner with her husband at a restaurant, Mrs. Henriette Pauls, of Grand Rapids, mysteriously disappeared from the table, and her body was found in Grand River. She had been ill for some time with a nervous trouble, and she left a note saying that the future held out no prospect of better health for her. Mrs. Pauls had been a teacher in the public schools of the city for a number of years, and had served the First Reformed church as organist for 15 years.

The Mecosta county normal, located in Big Rapids, has the largest enrollment of any normal in the state, according to Delos Fall, state superintendent of public instruction.

Wild geese are now daily seen going south over northern Michigan. Many alight in Saginaw bay and other waters to rest from their long flight from the north, and quite a few are killed by local sportsmen.

The second death from lockjaw in this city, within two weeks, occurred here on Thursday, the victim being George Wellman, 14 years old. He was sick over a week, the cause being an injury received in his hand from the discharge of a toy pistol.

A month ago George Osborn, a young farmer, 22 years of age, disappeared from his home in Sturgis, leaving his young wife and a baby. He left no word as to where he was going, and nothing was heard from him until Thursday, when he returned home again without any explanation.

Thirteen-year-old Melissa Gilfoil, the sister of William Gilfoil, now serving time for murdering James Gaffney, is in the custody of the sheriff. It is claimed the girl has been an incorrigible since she was four years of age and the authorities at Coldwater claim they can do nothing with her. She will probably be taken to Adrian for the school for girls.

Miss Maude Fenner, of Quincy, who was voted the handsomest and most popular young lady in Branch county at the summer street carnival, has gone to the St. Louis exposition. The happy young girl took with her a well-filled purse presented by the carnival management, and the freedom of the fair grounds has been extended her by the exposition officials.

Mrs. Henry Haynes, the Charlevoix woman who fell unconscious in Flint on Friday night last, is still ill in the hospital. Yesterday she was visited by two ladies from Charlevoix, who promise to see that she is cared for and returned to her home. Mrs. Haynes' husband died two years ago, leaving her a forty-acre farm, but the estate is still in probate court.

The Cleveland Cliffs Iron company will in the near future move its big charcoal iron furnace and chemical works from Gladstone to Munising, the reason given being that the company has to transport its ore and wood to Gladstone over railroads in which it has no interest. By locating the plant at Munising the ore and wood would be freighted over its own lines.

"I am the Naïad of this cascade," said a pretty French girl, perfectly nude, as she stood up in the basin of a Paris fountain. Passersby on the Bois de Boulogne, who saw her head bobbing on the water had gathered around and the crowd attracted police attention. The Naïad refused to come out and an officer stepped in to get her. When she laughingly arose with the above remark, an overcoat was placed on her and she was taken to the police station. She belongs to a good Paris family, and had suddenly lost her reason.

NEWS OF THE WORLD

A Brief Chronicle of All Important Happenings

APPALLING SLAUGHTER.

Over 60,000 Fall—The Russians Losing a Large Portion of the Number.

Mukden, October 17.—6:31 p. m.—Yesterday the Russians were not only successful on their right, but carried out some brilliant movements on the left, where they assumed an energetic offensive against the Japanese position at Soukhetung, southeast of Hun pass. Soukhetung is on the high road which runs to Bentshaputze, joining the Mandarin road where the Hun river intersects it. It is a mile north of Hun pass, which is four miles north of Shakhe. The Petrovsky, Neuchlet and Wilminstrand regiments stormed the Japanese trenches at Soukhetung and carried them after desperate resistance, capturing ten guns. The Japanese losses were enormous.

Tokio, October 17.—There is a strong appeal for peace in the appalling tragedy of our Besshu detachment, 1,500; before the right column, 200; near Kion, inkok and north of Tumentun, 1,200; near Chienliao, 300; north of Panlansun and near Wumingsu, 150; before the left column near Shotakou and northward, 300. Total, 4,500. The number left in other places has not been counted yet, but it is large. The enemy's loss in this direction must exceed 20,000. Among the trophies reported captured are 200 shells, six ammunition wagons and much uncounted munitions. The enemy's losses in the direction of the center and left armies is under investigation." Field Marshal Oyama's triumphant troops have driven the Russians north to a line along the Sha (Sakhe) river. They are vigorously pressing the pursuit and probably will inflict further severe damage on Kuropatkin's forces.

The feeling in St. Petersburg is one of extreme gloom and depression. The lack of official news, the undoubted checking of Gen. Kuropatkin's aggressive move and the enormous Russian losses in men and guns, compared with the optimistic reports from Tokio, all combine to prepare the public for anything short of a total rout of the Russians. Nevertheless, the reports of the newspaper correspondents at the front, while admitting the heavy losses of Russian troops and their retreat beyond Shakhe, describe the soldiers as fighting with undiminished ardor.

GRAND DUKE NICHOLAS.

NICHOLAS NICHOLAIVITCH.

The czar has virtually settled upon this grand duke as the commander-in-chief of the forces in Manchuria, although an official announcement to this effect is not expected until the second army, to be commanded by Gen. Gripenberg, is ready to take the field.

HEAVY LOSSES.

Defeat Coming to the Russians in Large Chunks.

St. Petersburg, October 14.—12 m.—The emperor has received the following dispatch, dated yesterday, from Gen. Kuropatkin:

Two regiments of the Russian right on October 12 sustained heavy losses. The commander of one was killed and the brigade commander was wounded. Both regiments were compelled to withdraw, abandoning their artillery, but subsequently under Col. Yannosky, who temporarily assumed command of the brigade, they, after a desperate assault, regained possession of the guns with the exception of 16 which remained in the hands of the Japanese. The final issue of the battle Wednesday on this flank was unsuccessful for us. On account of a night attack of the Japanese, who executed a turning movement, our troops were forced not only to abandon their positions, but again lost the guns previously recovered to the Japanese. Our forces retired to the position previously prepared on the Shakhe river.

London, October 14.—A dispatch to a news agency from Harbin today says that the hospitals there are preparing for the reception of 37 officers and 1,200 men wounded during the recent fighting before Yentai and who are now on their way to Harbin by train.

3 p. m.—Gen. Kuropatkin reports that he has ordered the Russian troops on his left to retire because Japanese reinforcements threatened to cut him off.

Used a Pocketknife.

Having forgotten his pocket instrument case in his haste to respond to a call in the country, Dr. E. E. Morgan, of Fort Wayne, Ind., was compelled to use a pocketknife in performing a dangerous operation, not having time on account of the patient's condition to send after proper instruments, and there is a strong probability that the patient, who is Mrs. Clarence Rhoades, of Aibolt township, will recover.

The grape harvest has begun on the early varieties, Concord, Wordens and Delawares will require a week more. The crop will not be large, owing to the spring frosts and hail, but the quality is good. Probably from 700 to 900 carloads will be shipped from the grape belt.

John Alexander Dowle is preparing to begin work on the new Zion City tannery, to cost $800,000, and accommodate 16,000 persons. Ground will be broken November 1. The construction will provide employment for all the men in Zion City not working in the factories.

GREAT SLAUGHTER.

Thirty Thousand Russians Killed and Wounded Last Week.

Succeeding reports increase the extent of the Russian slaughter in the desperate battle that has raged for the past week. Gen. Kuroki has reported that his army alone has buried 4,500 Russian dead. The reports of Gen. Nodzu and Oku are incomplete, but everything indicates that Field Marshal Oyama's estimate of the Russian loss at 30,000 men will fall far below the actual mark. A report dealing with the Russian losses received during Saturday night from the Japanese field headquarters, says:

"Bodies left near Besshu on the left bank of the Taitse river, 350; in front of our Besshu detachment, 1,500; at Talien, 300; near Tumentun, 1,500; before the right column, 200; near Kion, inkok and north of Tumentun, 1,200; near Chienliao, 300; north of Panlansun and near Wumingsu, 150; before the left column near Shotakou and northward, 300. Total, 4,500. The number left in other places has not been counted yet, but it is large. The enemy's loss in this direction must exceed 20,000. Among the trophies reported captured are 200 shells, six ammunition wagons and much uncounted munitions. The enemy's losses in the direction of the center and left armies is under investigation." Field Marshal Oyama's triumphant troops have driven the Russians north to a line along the Sha (Sakhe) river. They are vigorously pressing the pursuit and probably will inflict further severe damage on Kuropatkin's forces.

The feeling in St. Petersburg is one of extreme gloom and depression. The lack of official news, the undoubted checking of Gen. Kuropatkin's aggressive move and the enormous Russian losses in men and guns, compared with the optimistic reports from Tokio, all combine to prepare the public for anything short of a total rout of the Russians. Nevertheless, the reports of the newspaper correspondents at the front, while admitting the heavy losses of Russian troops and their retreat beyond Shakhe, describe the soldiers as fighting with undiminished ardor.

"Rosa di Pietro," said Coroner Jackson, of New York city, kindly, "the coroner's jury has found that you killed Michele Rago in defense of your honor and your life, and has exonerated you with a verdict of justifiable homicide. You have my sympathy and I would gladly let you return to your home, but under the law you can be set free." There is no doubt as to what the grand jury will do.

Dora Meek, the Centralia, Ill., girl who slept nearly six months during the winter of 1901, is dead, as the result of a general decline, following an attack of measles last March.

Confidence.

I'm taking life right easy
Cause I read the papers some
An' I'm baskin' in the promise
Of a better time to come.
The bands have started playin'
An' the stary banners float
An' the only thing that's needed
Is for me to cast my vote.

They've studied the requirements
With intelligence and skill
An' if one don't make us happy
Why another surely will.
So I've got my ballot ready
An' I sing my little song.
If you judge by what they promise
There's no chance of goin' wrong.

HER Husband's Advice

BY VEE LA WEE

In the beginning Sylvia had complained to her husband one evening as he slipped on his top coat:

"I don't see why you won't ever wait and see Bert. Do you know, we have a great deal in common; we are very much alike."

"As a woman, Sylvia, you're a poem," replied Mr. Browne, picking up his stick. "As a man, you'd be a tame cat. For myself, I don't like cats."

Unfortunately, Mr. Browne was kept extremely busy at his office these days, and so Bertram, with his fine, distinguished airs, his poetical tastes, his immaculate grooming, was able to make his innings. From the early discovery that they were affinities, it wasn't a great step to prove to Sylvia that the laws of God and man were interfering things at times and upon proper provocation could be set aside.

"Great love, like yours and mine," he announced to her one day, "is born of the vastness and loneliness of the sea, and makes human conventions utterly pointless."

Mrs. Browne was very unhappy and miserable in spite of this uplifting announcement. One morning at breakfast, as she was darning a cherry by its stalk just above her pretty lips and making little snaps at it, her eyes somehow lingered admiringly upon her husband's chin. It was such a firm, manly chin, and, after all, she was such an undecided, dependent sort of little body, she sighed to herself. Yes, she would ask his advice about the momentous question that was knocking at her door for a decision.

"Jack," she began, gulping down her cherry, "I want your advice about something. A girl I know is in trouble, and I—I don't know exactly what to tell her to do. You don't mind my not mentioning her name, Jack?"

"Much rather you didn't," said he. He laid down the paper he was reading with the disappointed air of a man who has left the stock market unread and began sipping his coffee.

How blunt and uncouth he was! But then, for the matter of that, even in the old, dear, sweetheart days, hadn't he always been that? What could have been more blunt than the way he had told her first that she was the prettiest girl he'd ever seen? Sylvia tried to compare the remark unflatteringly with Bert's way of telling her that "her eyes were pools of purple, her mouth a scarlet thread."

"Well, Sylvia, what about your friend?" Her husband's voice fetched her back to the matter in hand. She hesitated, pushed her muffs aside, drew a deep breath and plunged:

"Why, Jack, she's married, you see, and she's utterly miserable. Her husband and she have scarcely a taste in common. She's really going to leave him, I think; but she's asked my advice."

"He's a beast, I suppose?" commented Mr. Browne, meditatively balancing a fork on his finger. "Knocks

She was so unhappy.

her up against the furniture—no? He drinks, then?"

"No—on, no!" Sylvia's tone gave the impression that any of these things would have been insignificant trifles. "But they're thoroughly unconvincing. He loves his business and his cigars and newspapers, and she loves poetry and romance and—the finer things of life." She gave a vague, comprehensive little gesture with her left hand.

"Under such conditions, marriage is such a mockery," she went on, hurriedly. "The argument was one of Bert's, and had made an impression on her.) "Besides, you see, there's another man who loves her in the way she wishes to be loved, and so they're going to find happiness together and snap their fingers at the world's conventions."

Sylvia had risen from the table, and now flung herself with an air of dainty, defiant bravado on a couch in the corner. Mr. Browne began stroking that firm chin of his in a way that signified nothing to his wife, but even the clerks in his office knew it to be a sign of deep perplexity.

"And that's what you want my advice about?" he said slowly, at last.

"Do you love me?"

"Well, dear, tell your friend that it is women—nice, clean women—who talk about 'saapping their fingers at the world's conventions.' Men don't take much stock in it. They know too well what it means." He paused, then went on measuredly:

"To be sure, Sylvia, if your friend's husband were a beast, or brutal to her, or didn't support her, she might get a divorce in conventional order. For myself, I'm not in for divorces; though that's a matter of taste, maybe. But if she leaves him and runs off with another man—why, do you realize what that would mean to a nice woman?"

"What would it mean?" Sylvia began nervously to punch holes in the sofa cushion with her scarfpin.

"That for the future her friends must be among a set of people who really are what she is merely called; that the man for whom she sacrificed everything couldn't sacrifice enough for her to point out to her that duty was stronger than love. Love isn't everything, dear."

There was a certain big, caressing tone in his voice which unconsciously made Sylvia hark back to the old honeymoon days before she had discovered that marriage with him was "a mockery." She took out her handkerchief, a ridiculous bit of lawn and lace, and touched her eyes furtively.

"That's from the world's viewpoint," he continued. "Then, there's the husband. I judge from what you say he isn't wholly a rum lot. Perhaps—even if he hasn't very fine, poetic tastes—perhaps he also realizes that he bores the woman he loves. Maybe he does love her in spite of his blunt, ordinary brusqueness. Maybe he thinks all day at the office how, if this or that deal goes through, it'll mean more dainty luxuries for her. Maybe he hurries home after business hours so that he can put on his dinner clothes, knowing that pleases her fastidious tastes and makes him a bit more congenial to her. Perhaps, even if he does pick up his newspapers, and doesn't read poetry to her, it's a kind of paradise merely to have her in the room with him. Some men are made like that, you know."

There was another furtive mop with the ridiculous little handkerchief. Why did her husband's voice, when it was tender, always have that mastery over her?

"And some evening," pursued that masterful voice, "when he has hurried home, perhaps he finds pinned to one of his ties a note saying it's all been a mistake; that at last she's found a man 'congenial' to her and has run off with him. And while the cook, all unsuspecting, is about to serve the dinner for two, he stands there cold and stunned—turned out of paradise! The worst of it is," Jack added, beginning to pace slowly up and down the room, "the worst of it is, he'll never get rid of the reproach that if he hadn't married her, and led her to make this mistake, she might always have been as white and pure as a swan." Silence.

"So you advise me to—tell her that—?" there was a queer little catch in Sylvia's voice; she could get no further.

"Yes, dear," came her husband's voice, tenderly. "Tell her that perhaps she made a mistake in thinking it's all a mistake. A fellow's not as big as a woman's first ideals of him are; but he's usually bigger and better than she thinks when she's disillusioned."

Sylvia had buried her face in the sofa cushion and was sobbing outright now. Her husband crossed the room and, sitting beside her, began to soothe the little curls and tendrils of her hair.

"Sweetheart," he said, choking a bit, "tell her to love and be patient with her husband, as you love and are patient with me. You do love me?" wistfully.

"Don't I, though!" cried Sylvia, joyfully, throwing her arms about his neck and smothering him with neglected kisses. "And you certainly know how to give advice, Jack!"—Vee La Wee, in New York Press.

"NEW" POTATOES A FRAUD.

Westerner Said to Make Much Money by Shrewd Trick.

"The wooden nutmeg of Connecticut was the first imitation food," said a grocer, "and then came the mean Bostonian who dried snow and sold it for salt. This year we have an imitation new potato."

"A Westerner put the imitation new potato on the market, and they say he has made about 80-per cent profit out of it. I am speaking seriously now, mind. Of course it was in a joking way that I alluded to the nutmeg and the salt."

"The Westerner, to accomplish his deception, plants on toward the end of the summer a crop of late potatoes of a kind that keep well. These ripen and are dug up just before the first frost. They are sorted, and all the bad ones are thrown out. Then the rest are buried in a field.

"The crop lies buried, preserved from all harm under the soil, till early spring. About two months before the first genuine potatoes have appeared it is dug up.

"A great bath of a solution of lye is prepared and in this bath the potatoes are dipped. When they emerge from their plunge their skins are pink and curly, and their flesh is hard and firm. In a word, they are to all appearances new potatoes, and they would deceive anyone.

"There are many imitation foods," the grocer ended. "We have imitation butter, imitation syrup, imitation jellies and jams, imitation coffee, imitation honey and imitation maple sugar. Not one of these frauds, though is as hard to detect as the imitation new potato."

Of Interest to Peach Growers.

A bulletin in course of preparation at the Department of Agriculture, it is said, describing a method of exterminating a peach tree parasite known as "little peach." The reason this pest was so named is because a tree bearing large fruit when attacked by these parasites is affected by the disease commonly known among peach growers of western Maryland as the "go back," and thereafter produces a small and bitter peach, instead of the former large and luscious product. The Agricultural Department experts have been experimenting with this matter for ten years, it is stated. Mr. Morton B. Waite, chief of the division of orchard fruits, reports that the parasite can be exterminated by cutting out of the orchard every tree affected by the "little peach."

"He that overcometh shall inherit all things."—Revelation, xxi, 7.

One time the sea was wide—so wide That men declared That one could find its further side, Yet one man dared; One man who dreamed of things to do, One man who fought his doubting crew, And ventured all his dreams came true. Then others fared His way, till all the sea might hide Their work had bared.

One time the plains were dull and still And all untrod, And men gazed at each distant hill With doubting nod, But one man braved the lonely miles, Blazed pathways through the forest aisles;

Men went his way in eager files; With chain and rod They marked the place for mart and mill Upon the sod.

The man who is content to rest Secure from harms, In fear of toil's tremendous test Or war's alarms, Who hugs, untempted, his safe hearth, Gives little proof of strength or worth; His pride is strangled in its birth, And sly, sly charms Have barred the tale of noble quest From out his arms.

Railroad Building in Africa.

At the half-yearly meeting of the Rhodesia railways it was stated that 321 miles of line had been opened for traffic. The trunk lines south of Gwelo, Selukwe and Matoppos branches had also been completed. The total railway system open for traffic was now 1,309 miles. The bridge over the Victoria falls was being erected, the construction of the extension north of the river had begun and the permanent way material was being carried across by a cable way concurrently with the building of the bridge.—London Engineer.

Mozart's Great Gifts

(Special Correspondence.)

The composer, Wolfgang Amadeus Mozart, was born in Salzburg, Jan. 27, 1756. His father, Leopold Mozart, was capellmeister in the service of one of the archbishops. Leopold Mozart and his wife were spoken of as the handsomest couple in Salzburg. And we know from the portraits the strange and fascinating beauty in the face of Wolfgang Mozart. Therefore is his memory revered to-day for his sweetness and love of humanity; his testimony of vast genius.

From his earliest childhood Mozart

loved music passionately. As a child at play he was fond of musical games, and always happy if some one would play for the children in all their games. His sense of hearing was extraordinary. He was able to detect the difference of an eighth note in the tuning of a violin; and small sounds were to him annoying although many times these same noises were unnoticed by other people. Loud noises were a source of absolute torture to him.

At the age of 5 years, Mozart's skill upon the harpsichord was very unusual. But the little lad's shyness of playing before musicians was strong.

When Mozart was but 6 years old his genius and skill were so great and his fame so widespread that the elder Mozart planned to take the children to Vienna to the court of the Emperor Francis and the beautiful Empress Maria Theresa, both of whom were fond of music.

It is related that even at this early age the little Mozart was of so sweet and winning a nature that he made friends with the customs officers, played a minuet upon his little violin, and presto, "Pass, free of duty," said the officer.

The imperial family were sincere lovers of music and with a court so favorably disposed it was not surprising that Leopold Mozart should receive a command shortly after his arrival to present the two wonderful children at court at Schonbrunn, an imperial palace near Vienna, and all this without the least solicitation on the part of the father.

Mozart at this time was a wonderfully handsome child, very attractive, his manners quite frank and natural and instinctively good. He was a bit shy when he was presented to the Empress. Then he looked up, and into her eyes. Her beautiful face was smiling, and in a moment the lad had kissed her, although he had been instructed to kneel to his Empress. And the Empress was much pleased.

Mozart's appearance at the court of Austria was a decided success. The Emperor ordered 100 ducats to be paid to Mozart; the Empress sent the family costly dresses. The gift to Mozart to Wolferl, as he was intimately called, was the clothing he wore in the painting which is preserved of him in Salzburg, and is of fine cloth, lilac-colored, the vest of silk of the same markable skill and genius. They were commanded to appear at the French court at Versailles. From Paris to London, through Holland and Switzerland, and, after two years, they returned home to Salzburg.

Mozart was then 8 years old. And his father, that year, published for him four sonatas for the piano and violin, thus introducing the boy as a composer at this remarkable age.

The next six years were full of study for the boy. Some few compositions were published. His father determined now to take him to Italy. Italy proved one long series of delightful experiences for the boy. Fame and glory abounded. In Milan he received an order for an opera, and accomplished his work very satisfactorily—at 15 years of age!

In Rome the Pope, Clement XIV., conferred upon him the order of the Golden Spur, a very high compliment, and thus the boy of 14 wore the title of Chevalier Mozart!

From one of his fathers' letters we learn that while in Rome Mozart heard the famous "Miserere" by Allegri sung in the Sistine chapel, and the rendering made so deep an impression upon the lad that on reaching home he wrote down from memory every bar of the music—a great work, which musicians were forbidden to copy any part of.

At 16 the city of Munich gave the young composer an order to write an opera, and the work was a great success. The archbishop of Salzburg employed him now as concert master. The salary was small and the archbishop not only exacting but jealous of the young man's success. So those years under Jerome, the archbishop, were hard ones.

When Mozart was 20 he and his mother went to Paris (he having left the service of the archbishop), where Frau Mozart was taken ill suddenly and died. Paris now seemed so horrible to the young man that he left the city and returned to Munich, where he wrote his opera "Idomeneo," which met with great success.

At 26 Mozart married Constance Weber, and, like the people in the story books, they lived happily ever after until the too soon ending of the life of this wonderful man.

The writing of the "Marriage of Figaro" and "Don Giovanni" followed his marriage, and in these operas we find the strongest music Mozart had written up to this time. The operas at once made a marvelous success, and gained at a jump a place in the world that they have always kept. The Emperor at this time appointed Mozart court composer. Then came the "Magic Flute," wherein Mozart is at his best.

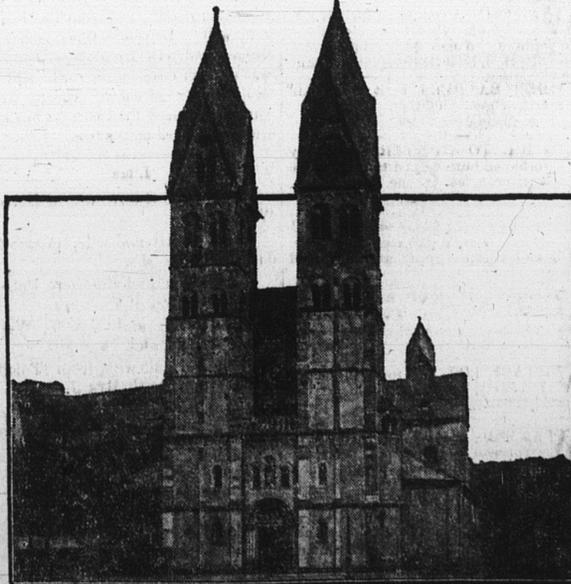

His wife, joining him in Vienna, was much shocked at Mozart's weakness. He was working hard upon his "Requiem"; he had withdrawn from all pleasures and wrote, wrote, wrote until it seemed his young life was being woven into the music. He grew steadily weaker, and on the 5th of December, 1791, the young man of but 35 laid down his pen, giving careful directions for the finishing of his masterly work, the "Requiem."

Mozart left over 600 compositions, including operas, 15 masses, 49 symphonies. His symphony in G minor is one of which Schubert said: "You can hear the angels singing in it." He wrote many quartets, and they are among his greatest works, songs, sonatas and chamber music; and finally the "Requiem," the greatest in the world's history of music.

The Mozart family left the Austrian court and traveled through southern Germany to Paris. There they found the fame of the child had preceded them, and every one eager to welcome the boy who possessed such re-

Ancient Water Clocks.

Plato introduced the clepsydra into Greece. It was used by the Romans also. The king of Persia is said to have presented Charlemagne with a water clock of bronze, inlaid with gold. Water clocks were used up to the seventeenth century. Even with the introduction of the pendulum, water served "as the motor and the pendulum as a regulator."

So-Called Prophecies.

Any man of a lively fancy, who knows enough of human nature to realize its abiding needs, can enumerate future discoveries by the dozen with a fair chance that perhaps one in a thousand may be realized within a century, says the London Spectator. To the same class belong the curious anticipation by native tribes, which generally take the form of news known, when by no conceivable means could information have reached them by ordinary channels. The present writer believes that this phenomenon, which some have explained by telegraphy, is simply a form of anticipation. The native is an inextinguishable guesser and since his tongue never ceases and his invention is active, he makes enough attempts to be fairly certain of stumbling now and then on the truth.

Childish Ideas of Life.

A curious and amusing mixture of early piety and worldliness came to light in a city schoolroom one day when the teacher had asked the children to write on their pads of paper something about the profession or occupation in which they would like to engage when they became men and women. One little girl wrote briefly but effectively: "I would desire to be a lady rider at a circus if it was the Lord's will." Another little girl with equally mixed ideas wrote: "Missionary, but if not that, millinery or clerk in candy store."—Lippincott's.

SAFEST FOOD

In Any Time of Trouble Is Grape-Nuts.

Food to rebuild the strength and that is pre-digested must be selected when one is convalescent. At this time there is nothing so valuable as Grape-Nuts, for the reason that this food is all nourishment and is also all digestible nourishment. A woman who used it says:

"Some time ago I was very ill with typhoid fever, so ill everyone thought I would die, even myself. It left me so weak I could not properly digest food of any kind and I also had much bowel trouble which left me a weak, helpless wreck.

"I needed nourishment as badly as anyone could, but none of the tonics helped me until I finally tried Grape-Nuts food morning and evening. This not only supplied food that I thought delicious as could be, but it also made me perfectly well and strong again so I can do all my housework, sleep well, can eat anything without any trace of bowel trouble and for that reason alone Grape-Nuts food is worth its weight in gold." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

Typhoid fever, like some other diseases, attacks the bowels and frequently sets up bleeding and makes them for months incapable of digesting the starches and therefore pre-digested Grape-Nuts is invaluable for the well-known reason that in Grape-Nuts all the starches have been transformed into grape sugar. This means that the first stage of digestion has been mechanically accomplished in Grape-Nuts food at the factories and therefore anyone, no matter how weak the stomach, can handle it and grow strong, for all the nourishment is still there.

There's a sound reason and 10 days' trial proves.

Letters from People Who Have Been Cured.

Sick Two Years—Cured in 13 Days.

Jackson, Mich., Sept. 21, 1904.
I live in New Mexico, and I came to Michigan last spring to get cured. I first went to the Battle Creek Sanitarium, but got little relief. I next tried one of the best physicians in Grand Rapids without being benefited. Then I came to Jackson and tried another physician, but grew worse. I then sent for Dr. Wilkinson to come and see me, for I had got so bad I could not go to his office. He diagnosed my case different from that of any of the other doctors. My heart was so bad I had to do all my sleeping in a chair, and my legs were so swollen with dropsy I could hardly walk. I began to think there was no help for me, but Dr. Wilkinson gave me medicine and the second night I slept soundly all night lying down in bed, and in four days the swollen condition of my legs had disappeared entirely, and now I feel so well I will start for my home in New Mexico next Saturday. I write this for the benefit of others who are sick, and not to benefit Dr. Wilkinson, for I have paid him for his services.

Having heard Wine of Cardui praised by several of my friends, I sent for a bottle and was certainly very pleased with the results. Within three days my appetite returned and my stomach troubled me no more. I could digest my food without difficulty and the nervousness gradually diminished. Clothcraft Double Breasted Sacks

A double breasted sack suit must be cut with the greatest accuracy or it won't fit properly. The sweep of the lapels and the hang of the fronts have to be absolutely symmetrical or the coat looks even worse than a poorly fitting single breasted one. You can count on Clothcraft Clothes to be rightly tailored. The illustration demonstrates that. But you say: "These are pictures, the clothes wouldn't look so well in use." Allow us to assure you that the illustration is from life, and that the clothes will look EVEN BETTER on you. Clothcraft Clothes are never misrepresented either in pictures or by what we say of them. The two models shown are the "Cornell" and the "Essex." They're made of handsome mixed materials in light and dark colors, also of black and blue Cheviots. You can get just the style you want, just the goods you want and a perfect fit at $10 to $25. The price may seem cheap, but it's the only cheap thing about Clothcraft Clothes.

VARICOCELE & STRICTURE

No other disease is so prevalent among men as Varicocele. As it interferes with the nutrition of the sexual organs it produces weakness, loss of semen through the urine, decay of the organs, pains in the loins, aching in the back, nervousness, dependancy, bashfulness, palpitation of the heart, constipation, and a combination of these results in complete LOSS OF MANHOOD. Thousands of young and middle-aged men are troubled with STRICTURE. If you have reason to believe you are afflicted with it, don't neglect it. It will ruin you. Don't let doctors experiment on you by cutting, stretching or tearing it. Our NEW METHOD TREATMENT dissolves the stricture tissue, hence it disappears and can never return. We cure Varicocele and Stricture without operation or loss of time. The treatment is guaranteed to cure any disease of these organs or no pay.

Kidneys & Bladder

All sexual complaints affect these organs, hence the kidneys are a great source of disease. Have you aching or weakness over the small of the back, tendency to urinate frequently, deposit in urine, coldness of hands or feet, a drowsy feeling in the morning, don't neglect your kidneys. Our NEW METHOD TREATMENT is guaranteed to cure any disease of these organs or no pay.
