GRAND OPERA AT DETROIT.

Henry W. Savage's English Grand Opera Company, of 110 Singers and Orchestra of 40, Week of Nov. 28.

Music lovers in Detroit and surrounding cities will have another opportunity to hear the celebrated Savage English Grand Opera Company in a repertory of elaborate grand opera productions at the Detroit Opera House during the week of Nov. 28. The company has been considerably enlarged, having a number of new artists imported this season and now carries a full grand opera orchestra.
The approaching opera festival will afford the chief musical event of the year in this part of the state.

With this array of English singing artists, orchestra of 40 musicians and chorus of nearly 70 voices, Mr. Savage has the largest and best English grand opera company in the world. It numbers nearly 150 people, has its own chartered train of 12 cars to carry the immense equipment of scenery, costumes, properties and electric effects, required for each opera.

The opera festival will open with Puccini's beautiful "La Boheme," the operatic gem that took music lovers by storm when first produced in Detroit last spring, and the dates and arrangement of performances be as follows:

Monday evening, November 28—Puccini's "La Boheme."

Tuesday evening, November 29—Bizet's
"Carmen."

Wednesday matinee, November 30—
Only performance of Wagner's "Lohengrin."

Wednesday evening, November 30—
Only performance of Verdi's "Otello."

Thursday evening, December 1—A double bill: Mascagni's "Cavalleria Rusticana" and Leoncavallo's "I Pagliacci."

Friday evening, December 2—Puccini's
"La Boheme."

Saturday matinee, December 3—Bizet's
"Carmen."

Saturday evening, December 3—Farewell performance of the double bill.

Among the leading singers to be heard are Joseph Sheehan, the famous high C tenor; William Wegener, the Wagnerian tenor, and Reginald Roberts, the Australian tenor; Gertrude Rennyson and Jean Lane Brooks, two superb dramatic sopranos; Marion Iwell, the great contralto, whose "Carmen" has caused such wide comment, and Rita Newman, the mezzo-soprano, who is to be heard in Mme. Schumann-Heink's famous role of Ortrud; Winfred Goff, America's finest baritone, and Arthur Deans, the English baritone, direct from Covent Garden; Francis J. Boyle, the popular basso, and Harrison W. Bennett, the stalwart basso-cantante.

The orchestra will be under the musical direction of Wagnerian Conductor Elliott Schenck and the Chevalier N. B. Emanuel, who has had thirty years' experience in Europe.

During the opera week the scale of prices will range from $1.50 to 50 cents. The sale of seats and boxes will open Thursday morning, Nov.
24, Thanksgiving day. Out of town orders containing remittances and stamped envelope will be filled in the order of receipt.

Had Their Valuables Stolen.

Pickpockets were busy at Ann Arbor Saturday and reaped a big harvest. At least three Chelsea gentlemen were touched up by the thieves.
H. S. Holmes is now minus a valuable diamond pin. Bert Turnbull's pocketbook is as flat as a pancake, he having had $43 abstracted from his pocket during a crush at the depot while he was getting on the car.
He felt the fellow's hand in his pocket and had two fellows arrested for the deed, but as the money was not found on them they were let go. Dr.
McColgan's weasel skin also suffered to the tune of from $14 to $18.

Doesn't Respect Old Age.

It's shameful when youth fails to show proper respect for old age, but just the contrary in the case of Dr. King's New Life Pills. They cut off maladies no matter how severe and irrespective of old age.
Dyspepsia, jaundice, fever, constipation
all yield to this perfect pill. 25c at Glazier

Eastern Michigan Press Club.

The annual meeting of the Eastern Michigan Press Club was held in Detroit last Friday, a month later than the time set by the constitution of the club. There was a fair attendance. Excellent papers were read and discussed. The report of the secretary showed a gain in membership, that of the treasurer that the finances of the club were in excellent shape.

President Mitchell, of the Birmingham Eccentric, was honored with re-election and the other officers chosen are as follows: Vice president, A. B. Glaspie, Oxford Leader; secretary, David E. Hubbel, Mar-lette Leader; treasurer, T. M. Sheriff, Trenton Times, re-elected.

A trip to Halifax next summer was discussed somewhat, but while those members of the club who are well fixed with cash and have lots of time to spare for holidays favored it, those who are not so richly endowed in these things looked askance at it.

The Limited Cars on D. Y. A. & J.

The management of the D. Y. A.
& J. have announced that they expect to start their new limited service on or about Monday, Nov. 28.
The sidings are nearly completed and one of the cars is ready for the road, while the others are nearly ready.
Every other car that leaves Jackson will be a limited service, giving this service every two hours to Detroit.
The cars will stop at Chelsea and Grass Lake at the waiting rooms.
Ann Arbor at Seventh street and State street, in addition to the stop at the waiting room. In Ypsilanti the limited cars will stop at Summit, Prospect streets and the waiting room. East of Ypsilanti cars will stop at Wayne and Dearborn for passengers to and from Dearborn and points west on signal.

Stove Works Employees Celebrated.

The Glazier stove works employees celebrated their employer's election to the office of state treasurer last Friday night. Headed by the Chelsea band they formed in a parade, bearing torches, transparencies and banners, and marched to Mr. Glazier's home where they set off fireworks and cheered the coming state treasurer. They were invited into the house where Mr. Glazier made them a short speech, thanking them for the way they had stood by him.
They then marched back to the town hall, where a Warner cheese was cut and served out with crackers to the celebrants. Speeches were made by W. W. Wedemeyer, A. J. Sawyer, sr., H. Wirt Newkirk and Frank A. Stivers, of Ann Arbor, and F. P. Glazier.

Clark-Schwikerath.

At the Church of Our Lady of the Sacred Heart Wednesday morning, Nov. 16, occurred the marriage of Mr. Frederick H. Clark to Miss Anna M. Schwikerath. The ceremony was performed by Rev. W. P.
Considine. The best man was Mr.
M. Schwikerath, brother of the bride, and her cousin Miss Barbara Schwikerath was the bridesmaid. A goodly number of the relatives and friends were present.
After the ceremony a wedding breakfast was served at the home of the bride's mother. Mr. and Mrs. Clark went for a short wedding trip to Detroit and on their return will go to housekeeping in their newly erected home on South Main street.

A 38x136 feet barn was raised Thursday on the farm of the Allen estate in Lima to take the place of the one destroyed by fire some time ago through being struck by lightning. Seventy-five of the neighbors assisted Koch & Son, of Jerusalem, who are the contractors, and their force of men in doing the work. It is said to be the strongest barn frame that has been erected around here for many years past. The old barn was 60 years old and was the largest in the county. A bountiful dinner was served to all who took part in the raising.

The First Umbrellas.

Those who suppose that the umbrella is a modern contrivance will be surprised to learn that umbrellas may be found sculptured on some of the Egyptian monuments and on the Nineveh ruins. That umbrellas bearing a close resemblance to those of to-day were in use long before the Christian era is shown by their representation in the designs on ancient Greek vases. The umbrella made its first appearance in London about the middle of the eighteenth century, when one Jonas Hanway, it is said, thus protected himself from the weather at the cost of much ridicule.—Harper's Weekly.

Value of Eucalyptus Tree.

The Australian eucalyptus tree is being grown on a large scale in southern Europe and northern Africa because of its tendency to drain swamps. This was formerly supposed to be due to abundant exhalation of watery vapor from its leaves, but it has been shown that actually the transpiration of the eucalyptus is only one-half or one-third that of willows, birches and other trees, and it is therefore assumed that the phenomenon in question is due simply to the rapid growth of the eucalyptus.

An Honest Opinion.

Mineral, Idaho, Nov. 14th.—(Special.)—That a sure cure has been discovered for those sciatic pains that make so many lives miserable, is the firm opinion of Mr. D. S. Colson, a well known resident of this place, and he does not hesitate to say that cure is Dodd's Kidney Pills. The reason Mr. Colson is so firm in his opinion is that he had those terrible pains and is cured. Speaking of the matter he says:

"I am only too happy to say Dodd's Kidney Pills have done me lots of good. I had awful pains in my hip so I could hardly walk. Dodd's Kidney Pills stopped it entirely. I think they are a grand medicine."

All sciatic and Rheumatic pains are caused by Uric Acid in the blood. Dodd's Kidney Pills make healthy kidneys, and healthy kidneys strain all the Uric Acid out of the blood. With the cause removed there can be no Rheumatism or Sciatica.

He did not release them immediately but tightened his grasp as his eyes, grown suddenly keen, searched her face. His voice dropped low. "Randall, it is very unlikely that Elfgiva's scratches have brought you to this. Do you stand in need of reminding that any man who has angered you has angered me? That my sword lies under your hand?"

Her face seemed to have become glass before him, through which he looked into the innermost chambers of her mind. Terror-stricken, she snatched her hands away to cover it. "No, no!" she cried wildly. "I am angry with no one. I have found fault with no one. Draw no sword for me—only let me go!"

Again he turned from her and stood looking out at the clouds; but when at last he spoke, his voice was the gentlest she had ever heard it. "You are wise in this, as in other things, Frode's daughter," he said, "and you shall certainly have your way. Soldiers I can trust shall go with you, in case there be danger from Norman's people, and for women—"

She spoke up eagerly. "There is an old nun at Saint Mildred's, King, who loves me. I think she would come to me until others could be found."

"Go then," he granted. "Thorke shall see to it that men and horses are ready when you are." He held out his hand, but when she took it in both of hers and would have saluted it reverently, he would not let her but instead raised her finger to his lips. An odd note was in his voice. "Heavy is it for my tongue to say farewell to you, Frode's daughter," he said, "for your friendship has surpassed most other things in pleasantness to me."

Frank liking mingled with gratitude and reverence as she looked up at him. "I have got great kindness and favor from you, King Canute; I pray wife's British thrall. I got them before me and questioned them, and the Scar-Cheek boasted of having done it. This is his hair. If you remember anything about the fellow, you understand that he was not alive when I took it from him."

The King looked immovably at the yellow mass. "You have behaved in a chieftain-like way and I thank you for it," he said. "But I would have liked it better if you had come to me about the judgment that raised this wall between us—"

Rothgar's throat gave out a savage sound. "Tempt me not! I am no sluggish wolf. I tell you, now as heretofore, that it was your treachery which unsheathed a sword between us."

"Rothgar my brother—" the veil was rent from the King's face and he had stepped from the dais and seized the other by the shoulders as though he would wrestle bodily with him—"by the Holy Ring, I swear that I have never betrayed you! If you grudge not the land to the Englishman, you have no cause to grudge him anything under Ymer's skull. Can you not understand—"

But Rothgar's hand had fallen upon the other's breast and pushed him backward so that he was forced to catch at the chair-arm to save himself from falling. "You undertake too steep a climb when you try to make me believe in your love while before my eyes you give to the man I hate my lands and the woman you had promised me and my place above your men—" His rage choked him so that he was obliged to break off and stand drawing his sword from his sheath and slamming it back with a sharp sound. His voice came back in a hoarse roar. "When I reckon up the debt against you, I know that the only thing to wipe it out would be your life. Not taking poison nor underhandedly, but torn out of your deceitful body

"On your head it shall be to break the blood-oath."

that you will be very happy with your Queen."

Perhaps her gaze was not quite clear as she crossed the room, for she did not see that the door-curtains were moving until she was close upon them, when they were thrust apart to admit the form of Rothgar Lodbroksson. Stiffing a gasp, she shrank behind a tall chair.

He did not see her, however, for his eyes were fastened upon the King, who had turned back to the window. He had cast aside the splendor of the royal guards, wearing over his steel shirt a kirtle of blue that made his florid face seem redder and gave to his fiery hair a hotter glow. Two sentinels carrying shining pikes had followed him in, uncertainly, and now one plucked at his arm. But the Jotun shook him off to stride forward, clanking his heels with intentional noisiness upon the stone floor.

At the clatter the King looked around, and the tone in which he spoke his friend's name had in it more of passion than all the lover's phrases he had ever paid Elfgiva's ears. At the same time, he made a sharp sign to the two sentinels. "Get back to your posts," he said.

In a moment the doors beyond the curtain had closed behind them, and the two men were alone save for the girl hiding forgotten in the shadow of the chair.

Rothgar laughed jarringly. "Whatever has been told about you, you have not yet been accounted a coward. But I do not see how you know I shall not kill you. I have dreamed of it not a few times."

Something like a veil seemed to fall over the King's face; from behind it he spoke slowly as he moved away to the dais upon which his throne-chair stood, and mounted the steps. "The same dream has come to me, but never has it occurred to me to seek you out to tell you of it."

"No such purpose had I," the Jotun said with a touch of surliness. Pulling a bag from under his belt, he shook out of it upon the floor a mass of matted yellow hair. "If you want to know my errand, it is to bring you this. Yesterday it came to my ears that one of my men was suspected of having tried to give you poison through your as we stand face to face. If I could do that it might be that my anger would be quenched." Again he drew his blade out—and this time he did not shove it back. His huge body seemed to draw itself together, crouching, as he leaned forward. "Why do you stand there looking as if you were Odin? Do you think to blunt my weapon with your eyes? Why do you tempt me?"

The King had not moved away from the chair against which he had staggered, and the prints of his nails were on its arm. He was as though he had hardened to stone. "To show you that I am stronger than you, though I face you with bare hands," he said. "To show you that you dare not kill me."

"Dare not!" Rothgar's laughter was a hideous thing as he cleared at a bound the space between them. His sword was full-drawn now. "Shout for your guards! It may be that they will get here in time."

But the King neither gave back nor raised his voice. "I will not," he said, "nor will I lift hand against you. On your head it shall be to break the blood-oath."

Now they were breast to breast. In her mind, the girl in the shadow flung open the doors and shrieked to the sentinels and roused the palace; in her body, she stood spellbound, voiceless, breathless.

Still Rothgar did not strike. It was the King who spoke this time also. "Among the sayings of men in Norway," he said coldly, "there is one they tell of a traitor who carried a sword of death against his King, but lacked the boldness to use it before the King's face. So he begged his lord to wrap a cloak around his head that he might get the courage to ask a boon. When that had been done, he stabbed. Do you want me to cover my eyes?"

With a hoarse cry, Rothgar flung his sword back to his sheath, recoiling—there was even a kind of fear in his manner: "A fool would I be, to set your ghost free to follow me with that look on its face! Keep your life—and instead I will torture every Angle I can get under my grip, for it is they who have turned a great hero into a nothing—may they despise you as you have despised your people for their sakes!" Invoking the curse with a sweep of his handless arm, he strode from the room.

Randall did not see when he passed her, for her eyes were on the King as he stood looking after his foster-brother.

"Ah, God, what a terrible world hast Thou made!" she murmured, as she put up her hands to ease the swelling agony in her throat. "No longer will I try to live in it. I will go to the Sisters and remain with them always."

CHAPTER XXVIII.

In Time's Morning.

The hot glare of a July sun was on the stones of the Watling street and July winds were driving hosts of battling dust-clouds along the highway, but in the herb garden of Saint Mildred's cool shadows lay over the dew-beaded grass and all was restfulness and peace. The voice of the girl who was following Sister Wynfreda from mint clump to parsley bed, from fennel to rue, was not much louder than the droning of the bees in the lavender.

"If it be true as you say—" she was speaking with the passionate bitterness of wounded youth—"if it be true that in his place anyone would have believed what he believed, then is this a very hateful world and I want no further part in it."

Awhile, the nun's eyes widened and paled as eyes that see a vision, but at last she bowed her head to trace a cross upon her breast. "Not so; it is God's wisdom," she said, "else would the world be so beautiful that we would never hunger after heaven."

Mechanically, Randall's hands followed hers through the holy sign; then she clasped them before her to wring them in impatient pain. "That is so long to go hungry, Sister! I shall be past my appetite." Dropping down beside the other, her slim young fingers began to imitate the gnarled old ones as they weeded and straightened. "I wonder at it, Sister Wynfreda, that you do not urge me to creep in with you. A year ago, you wanted it when I wanted it not; but now when I am willing, you hold me off."

"Is it clear before your mind that you are willing, my daughter?" the nun asked gently. As she drew herself to her feet with the aid of a bush, the cramping of her feeble stiffened muscles contracted her face in momentary pain, but her eyes were serene as the altar lamps. "It lies upon you to remember, little sister, that those who would serve God around the altar must not go thither only because the world has mistreated them and they would cast it off to avenge the smart. She who puts on the yoke of Christ must needs do so because it is the thing she would desire of all, were all precious things spread out for her choosing. Can you look into my eyes and say that it would be so with you?"

Where she knelt before her, the girl suddenly threw her arms around the woman and hid her face in the faded robes. The frail hand stroked the dark hair affectionately.

"Think not that I would upbraid you with it, child as dear as my own heart. When the Power that took you from me led you back again, and I read what God's fingers had written on your face that before was like a lineless parchment, I could not find it in my mind to wish you otherwise. I felt only shame for the weakness of my faith, and joy past all telling."

Under the soothing hand, Randall's sobs slowly ceased; when at last she raised her wet eyes, there was no longer rebellion in them but only youth's measureless despair. "Sister, now as always, I want to do what you would have me—but I am so full of grief! Must I go back to Avalomb and begin all over again? It seems to me that my life stretches before me no more alluringly than yonder dusty road, that runs straight on, on, over vast spaces but always empty."

CARE OF A RAZOR.

Its Occasional Real Need is the Rest Cure—Steel Gets Tired.

"The average man who shaves himself doesn't know how to take care of his razor, despite all the advice that has been given to him in the public prints from time to time," says G. A. Helglass, expert barber.

"He will get a good razor and use it day after day, then wonder why at the end of a short time it loses its edge, even though he strops it most carefully. A razor needs brief intervals of rest or it will grow dull, no matter what efforts are made to keep it sharp. If you have a good razor and it appears to be losing its edge, just try a rest for it, instead of having it sharpened up again. The chances are that when you put it into use again, at the expiration of three or four days, it will prove as sharp as if it had been carefully honed."

Take a Course of Corn Food.

There is more than a grain of truth in the statement recently made that in our scramble for new breakfast foods we have failed to appreciate the nourishing, health-giving properties of corn and of corn meal. And the context of the statement mentioned deals in facts when it says that the mush and milk of a few years back produced children of a ruddier hue than those we are accustomed to see in these times. Corn meal is possessed of just those properties that make it a highly suitable winter food. Besides this, it seems an accompaniment the most natural for pork chops, sausages and such things that we Americans favor for cold weather breakfasts. Let us take, then, a course in corn products.

English Wheat Imports.

Statistics which have been collected relative to the wheat acreage of England show that whereas in 1868 it was 3,500,000 acres, in 1904 it was only 1,375,000 acres, the shrinkage since 1903 being 13 per cent. Under these circumstances it is not surprising that England is the heaviest importer of wheat and wheat flour in the world. Heretofore this trade has largely been held by the United States which had until 1903 furnished more than half the British imports of wheat and three-fourths of their imports of flour. But in 1903, though Great Britain imported 164,505,380 bushels, the United States supplied only 45,167,991 bushels, or about 27 per cent. During the first eight months of the present year or up to August 31st, the United Kingdom imported from all sources 113,390,350 bushels, or about 9,000,000 bushels more than during the same period last year, and of the total the United States furnished less than 16 per cent, the balance being obtained from Russia, Argentina, British India, and Australasia. This independence of the United States as a source of supply only deepens the mystery of the present extraordinarily high price of wheat in this country. True the crop is under the average and much of the Northwestern wheat will rank below milling grade, but unless the supply is insufficient for home consumption, and that is not claimed, it is difficult to account for abnormal values on any other basis than speculative manipulation of the market. High prices are of course factors in the decline of wheat exports.

Nut-Bearing Trees.

Most of our people take little interest in the growing of nuts, and it is rather remarkable that in the light of this we should still have the amount of nuts on the market we do—nuts sufficient to supply the demands of a large population. But with the increase of population we must expect to see the demand for nuts increase. That there will all ways be a good market for nuts is without controversy. An increase in the price is not going to stimulate production to the point where there will be an over-supply. It takes too many years to bring a nut tree to the point of bearing for us ever to have a very great over-supply.

But just at this time the question of reforesting many plots on the farm is being considered. Why not plant groves of nut trees as well as other kinds of trees. The woods of some nut trees are quite valuable. The planter will have the satisfaction of seeing a grove of beautiful trees growing up on his farm and may live to reap the fruit of them. Where single trees are to be planted in pastures it will be hard to find trees more suitable than some of those that bear nuts.

Poultry House Floors.

It is much easier to build good walls to a poultry house than it is to build a floor that will be satisfactory. A good many people try to get along with earth floors. These, however, have the great detriment of being damp, especially in cold weather. As a result of damp floors come rheumatism, colds, roup and digestive disorders. Cement floors also develop more or less dampness. This dampness, however, might be obviated by laying the cement on a thick layer of broken stone. Generally our builders get back to the board floors raised a short distance, say a foot, above the earth. If it is desired to make this particularly good it should be double with tarred paper between. In the use of boards for flooring it should be seen that the ventilation is good and that the floor is not approachable by rats. If the rats cannot get a foot hold they cannot gnaw a hole through the floor.

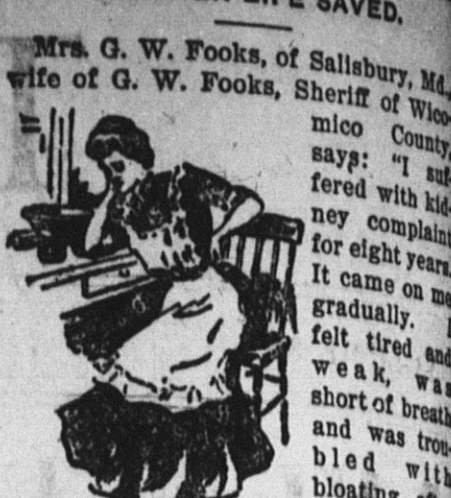

Bulk of Rough Feed.

Nearly all kinds of rough feed contain the nutrients the cow must have. The straw of grain contains the very things the cow needs out of which to make milk and butter-fat. But we have to consider the bulk. One hundred pounds of oat straw would furnish enough nutrients to make ten quarts of milk with a richness of 4 per cent. But no cow could digest more than a third of that amount in a day. Therefore straw is of very little practical value in the feeding of milk cows. We must have more concentrated roughage, such as clover hay or corn stalks. It is of course different with oat hay. That is out at a time when the grain is in the dough stage and much of the substance is still in the stalks and leaves.

Hand Separator Cream.

Hand separator cream needs to be kept as carefully as any other kind of cream. Progress in this has been made but slowly since the introduction of the gathered cream system, or indeed since the introduction of the hand separator. Considering the small volume of gathered cream compared with the whole milk system there seems little reason in every farm not having a perfect arrangement for keeping it. But it must be acknowledged that so far as we are able to learn by far the greater part of the cream from hand separators is still kept in cellars with vegetables and all kinds of things that have an odor that is not an addition to the flavor of the cream.

ANOTHER LIFE SAVED.

Mrs. G. W. Fooks, of Salisbury, Md., wife of G. W. Fooks, Sheriff of Wicomico County, says: "I suffered with kidney complaint for eight years. It came on me gradually. I felt tired and weak, was short of breath and was troubled with bloating after eating, and my limbs were badly swollen. One doctor told me it would finally turn to Bright's disease. I was laid up one time for three weeks. I had not taken Doan's Kidney Pills more than three days when the distressing aching across my back disappeared, and I was soon entirely cured."

Washing Soda Adulterated.

One of London's official analysts has called attention to the adulteration of washing soda with Glauber's salts, which is useless for cleaning purposes. "It is a disgrace," he says, "that poor washerwomen should be fruitlessly through the use of such materials, wasting time and money on such frauds, without any remedy."

Coffee Known for Centuries.

A pamphlet published by an Arab sheik in 1566 sheds light upon the origin and early use of coffee. This Arab sheik asserted that coffee was introduced into Arabia from Abyssinia about the opening of the fifteenth century and that it had been known as a beverage in the latter country from the most remote period. Its peculiar properties were taken advantage of by the Mohammedans in connection with their prolonged religious ceremonies, but its use as a devotional antisoporific stirred up the fiercest opposition on the part of the orthodox element of the priests. Coffee was declared to be an intoxicant and was accordingly prohibited in the koran, but in spite of this the coffee-drinking habit spread rapidly. For two centuries the world's supply of coffee was obtained from the province of Yemen in southern Arabia, where the well-known Mocha is still cultivated.

Mirrors Used by Anglers.

Rather a quaint idea comes from France, where anglers are in some waters using a tiny mirror attached to the line near the baited hook. The idea is that the fish, seeing itself reflected, hastens to snatch the bait from its supposed rival. Very successful results have been obtained through the employment of this simple device.

Makeshift Wedding Rings.

Recently five couples of gypsies were to be married at a church in Surrey, England, but only two gentlemen had the necessary ring. The church warden, however, came to the rescue by cutting off the rings from the kneeling hassocks and the ceremony was satisfactorily performed.

TILL NOON.

The Simple Dish That Keeps One Vigorous and Well Fed.

When the doctor takes his own medicine and the grocer eats the food he recommends some confidence comes to the observer.

A Grocer of Ossian, Ind., had a practical experience with food worth anyone's attention.

He says: "Six years ago I became so weak from stomach and bowel trouble that I was finally compelled to give up all work in my store, and in fact all sorts of work, for about four years. The last year I was confined to the bed nearly all of the time, and much of the time unable to retain food of any sort on my stomach. My bowels were badly constipated continually and I lost in weight from 165 pounds down to 88 pounds."

"When at the bottom of the ladder I changed treatment entirely and started in on Grape-Nuts and cream for nourishment. I used absolutely nothing but this for about three months. I slowly improved until I got out of bed and began to move about."

"I have been improving regularly and now in the past two years have been working about fifteen hours a day in the store and never felt better in my life."

"During these two years I have never missed a breakfast of Grape-Nuts and cream, and often have two meals a day, but the entire breakfast is always made of Grape-Nuts and cream alone."

"Since commencing the use of Grape-Nuts I have never used anything to stimulate the action of the bowels, a thing I had to do for years, but this food keeps me regular and in fine shape, and I am growing stronger and heavier every day."

"My customers, naturally, have been interested and I am compelled to answer a great many questions about Grape-Nuts."

"Some people would think that a simple dish of Grape-Nuts and cream would not carry one through to the noonday meal, but it will and in the most vigorous fashion."

MAGIC IN THE ZUNI TRIBE.
 Priest Apparently Lifted a Jug of Water with a Feather.

"The most startling feat I ever saw," said a guest at the Diller last night, who has made a study of Indians in various parts of the United States for his own edification, "was performed by the priests of the Zuni tribe in Arizona, or, as they were called, 'The Ancients of Creation.' They seat themselves in a circle on the clay floor, around a jar that will hold perhaps a gallon, an ancient and sacred earthen vessel, which is filled with water. The chief priest carries in his hand two ordinary eagle feathers, which are tied together at the quill ends so that they make a fork. Behind the circle of the priests are other members of the tribe and the musicians with their drums and gongs, who join in the chants with emotion.

"The incantations continue for several hours and when the participants and spectators are brought up to a proper pitch of excitement the priest dips the feather tips into the water, lifts the jar with them and holds it suspended for a minute or two at a height level with his face or breast. Then he lowers it slowly to the ground. This feat is repeated several times during the performance. Apparently there is nothing in the hand of the priest but the feathers and they appear to be inserted into the mouth of the jar only two or three inches. Of course, there is some trick about it, but I was never able to discover it."—Seattle Post-Intelligencer.

LATEST IN HOUSE DECORATING

All Rooms Done in Various Tones of One Color.

A fad of the moment, says the Brooklyn Citizen, is to decorate all the rooms of a house in various tones of one color. This has been done in as many as eighteen rooms under one roof, with wonderfully fine effect. The mistress of this house made a point of getting variety of designs and treatment in the one ever-pleasing color—green.

The successful decorators, like the most artistic dressmakers, are those who are copying nature's color cards and combinations.

There must be a warming note in every room before the decoration is complete. It may come from a lamp shade, or a sofa cushion merely, but there it must be to give the full complement of colors into which the white ray is broken.

In the present era of rug popularity for floors, extra care must be taken that wall coverings harmonize or contrast successfully with them. It is owing to the many colors and patterns of rugs that very often a plain wall background is the best. If figured walls are selected draperies at doors and windows and upholstered furniture should be in plain colors. It is the unfortunate mingling of incongruous designs, quite as much as colors, that offend the artistic taste.

Plain papers in dull finish and others simulating tapestry are taking well this fall. In bathrooms and kitchens there comes a tile glazed paper that may be washed with water and a sponge, hence its sanitary usefulness.

IRVING'S WELL-TIMED SARCASTIC.

Judge's Sleepiness Was Easily Accounted for by Actor.

At the Players' club the other day an elderly English actor described the hardships that attended on Sir Henry Irving's youth.

"Up to middle life," the doctor said, "Irving was so poor that I remember a Christmas when one of his friends gave him a Christmas gift of two suits of winter underwear, and the gift was heartily appreciated."

"With Irving, as with the rest of us, it was uphill work at the start. The things most counted on turned out the greatest failures."

"Once I was touring with him, and in a certain town our hopes were raised by the news that a prominent judge had taken a box."

"Aha!" he said, "luck will turn now. The judge will enjoy the performance and recommend it to his friends. The newspapers will note his distinguished presence in a lodge. To come to see us play here will become both fashionable and popular."

"Alas!" the judge came and occupied the box, but at the beginning of the second act he fell asleep. The audience tittered as his head nodded in slumber. Irving stood in the wings awaiting his cue. I hurried to him and told him how the judge was disgracing us.

"Shall we awaken him?" I asked.

"No," said Irving bitterly. Let him sleep. He thinks he is on the bench."

It Puzzled the Expert.

The customs official was greatly puzzled. He knitted his brow and frowned darkly. He even tapped his foot nervously on the polished floor.

"What seems to be the difficulty?" inquired a sympathetic subordinate.

The chief turned to him with a troubled stare.

"I'm bothered," he growled. "I'm badly stumped. And yet I am the very man who classified frogs' legs as 'dressed poultry,' and admitted a colt from Canada as 'household furniture.'"

"And what's the question now?" the subordinate respectfully asked.

The chief ran his hand through his matted hair.

"I'm worried to death," he cried, "over a proper classification for a three-legged stool. It isn't a biped and it isn't a quadruped and there you are!"—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Patience.

Let patience have her perfect work—James 1, 3.

Lord, give this grace of Thine to me, That I may live aright; However dark the path may be, Let patience bring me light.

When my heart falls in the storm, And there is none to save, Let this friend put her hand in mine, And patience make me brave.

When strife and turmoil are around, And weak has grown my will, Let patience like an angel come And teach me to be still.

Let quiet patience help my soul Beneath the scourge of wrong, And check my angry words of wrath And turn them into song.

Lord, I am very weak and frail, And am not good or great, Yet shall I worship thee if Thou Wilt give me grace to wait.

And so I pray, whatever come Of trouble, pain or care, Bid patience my companion be Beside me everywhere.—Marianne Farmingham.

His Diplomacy.

"How did you work father so beautifully?"

"With diplomacy, my dear, pure diplomacy. I told him I wanted to marry one of his daughters. He glared at me and asked me which one of the six. I said Myrtle."

"You said Myrtle?"

"Uh-huh. All diplomacy, my dear. He flew into an awful rage and said I couldn't have her. He said she was too good for me. I insisted. He grew madder. I still insisted. Then he roared out:

"You can't have Myrtle, you know nothing! Grace is plenty good enough for you!"

"And that's the way I go you, Grace. Dear. Wasn't it beautiful diplomacy?"

QUEER OLD FUNERAL CUSTOM.

Ceremony in County Wexford, Ireland, Is Centuries Old.

In the district known as "the barony of Forth," in County Wexford, Ireland, is to be found a race of hard-working, industrious peasants, living in thatched cottages with clean white-washed walls, which by their perfect whiteness at once arrest the attention of the visitor. These people differ in many respects from the inhabitants of the other parts of the same county and have habits and customs peculiar to themselves. They are strong believers in the efficacy of prayers for the dead. When a funeral takes place two wooden crosses are provided. On the way to the cemetery a halt is made at a certain spot by the side of the road. Here prayers are said for the deceased, after which one cross is deposited in a hawthorn bush or under it. The procession then goes on its way, and after the interment the other cross is fixed at the head of the grave. This strange custom dates from time immemorial, as the great pile of crosses by the roadside indicate.

The Blind and the Deaf.

Some persons allege that blind persons are usually cheerful, while deaf persons are usually gloomy and suspicious. The reasons for these characteristics were recently given, in reply to inquiries, the deaf man saying: "When anyone speaks to me, I am reminded of my infirmity." The blind man said: "As soon as any person speaks to me I forget my misfortune."—New York Tribune.

A Scotch gamekeeper, a great light in one of the kirks, was asked the difference between the Free and the United Free churches. TERRIBLE SUFFERING

THIS YOUNG WOMAN APPEARED IN VAIN FOR HELP.

When Hope had Almost Settled Into Utter Despair Relief Came from an Unexpected Source.

Mrs. Emma Heidebreder, of No. 1323 Joy street, Burlington, Iowa, whose husband is an employee of the Rand Lumber Co., tells a story of pitiable suffering:

"For about five years," she says, "I had a host of physical ills that kept me an invalid and puzzled the doctors. Some of them thought I was going into consumption. At times I was so weak that I could not comb my hair or even wash my face. Then excruciating pains ran suddenly up my thigh and I had to be carried to bed screaming in my agony. I could no longer do my work and the drain upon my husband's purse was very heavy. I craved food but what I ate only gave me discomfort. My liver was torpid, and often I had to be carried to the door for air to save me from suffocating."

"The worst was the pain which seemed as if my thigh were being pushed out of my body. The best doctors could do was to deaden it by narcotics. Once they thought I could not live for more than two days. In one of my worst attacks, a friend said: 'Why don't you try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills? They are the only thing that ever helped my rheumatism.'"

"I took his advice. After using one box I felt better, and I continued to use the pills for three or four months with steady improvement until I was well. For four years I have been able to do all my household work, and no longer have to take medicine for any serious trouble. I gave one box of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills to a man on crutches because of rheumatism and advised my market woman to buy a box when she was complaining of the same trouble. I heard that he was soon able to throw his crutches away, and she told me she had got rid of the rheumatism by the use of one box and could not thank me too much."

Testimony multiplies as to the magnificent curative powers of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People in cases of rheumatism, neuralgia, nervous headache, palpitation of the heart and all forms of weakness in either male or female. They are sold by all druggists throughout the world.

A prominent Southern lady, Mrs. Blanchard, of Nashville, Tenn., tells how she was cured of backache, dizziness, painful and irregular periods by the use of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—Gratitude compels me to acknowledge the great merit of your Vegetable Compound. I have suffered for four years with irregular and painful menstruation, also dizziness, pains in the back and lower limbs, and fitful sleep. I dreaded the time to come which would only mean suffering to me."

"Better health is all I wanted, and cure if possible. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound brought me health and happiness in a few short months. I feel like another person now. My aches and pains have left me. Life seems new and sweet to me, and everything seems pleasant and easy."

"Six bottles brought me health, and was worth more than months under the doctor's care, which really did not benefit me at all. I am satisfied there is no medicine so good for sick women as your Vegetable Compound, and I advocate it to my lady friends in need of medical help."—Mrs. B. A. BLANCHARD, 422 Broad St., Nashville, Tenn.

When women are troubled with irregular, suppressed or painful menstruation, weakness, leucorrhoea, displacement or ulceration of the womb, that bearing-down feeling, inflammation of the ovaries, backache, bloating (or flatulence), general debility, indigestion, and nervous prostration, or are beset with such symptoms as dizziness, faintness, lassitude, excitability, irritability, nervousness, sleeplessness, melancholy, "all-gone" and "want-to-be-left-alone" feelings, blues and hopelessness, they should remember there is one tried and true remedy. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound at once removes such troubles. Refuse to buy any other medicine, for you need the best.

A Severe Case of Womb Trouble Cured in Philadelphia.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—I have been cured of severe female troubles by the use of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I was nearly ready to give up, but seeing your advertisement I purchased one bottle of your medicine, and it did me so much good that I purchased another, and the result was so satisfactory that I bought six more bottles, and am now feeling like a new woman. I shall never be without it. I hope that my testimonial will convince women that your Vegetable Compound is the greatest medicine in the world for falling of the womb or any other female complaints."—Mrs. MARY COPE, 2660 Birch St., Philadelphia, Pa.

Remember, every woman is cordially invited to write to Mrs. Pinkham if there is anything about her symptoms she does not understand. Her address is Lynn, Mass., her advice is free and cheerfully given to every ailing woman who asks for it.

D. 1888, and was duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds of Washtenaw county, Michigan, on the first day of June, A. The Christmas Delineator.

The December Delineator, with its message of good cheer helpfulness, will be welcomed in every home. The fashion pages are unusually attractive, illustrating and describing the very latest modes in a way to make their construction during the busy festive season a pleasure instead of a task, and the literary and pictorial features are of rare excellence. A selection of love songs from the Wagner Operas, rendered into English by Richard de Gallienne and beautifully illustrated in colors by J. C. Leyendecker, occupies a prominent place, and a chapter in the Composer's Series, relating the romance of Wagner and Cosima, is an interesting supplement to the lyrics. A very clever paper entitled "The Court Circles of the Republic," describing some unique phases of Washington social life is from an unnamed contributor, who is said to write from the inner circles of society. There are short stories from the pens of F. Hopkins Smith, Robert Grant, Alice Brown, Mary Stewart Cutting and Elmer Elliott Peake, and such interesting writers as Julia Gagruder, L. Frank Baum, and Grace MacGowan Cooke hold the attention of the children. Many Christmas suggestions are given in needle work and the cookery pages are replete with the Christmas feast. In addition, there are the regular departments of the magazine, with many special articles on topics relating to woman's interests within and without the home.

"Taint no use to sit down and whine,
When no fish get tangled in your line;
Bait your hook with a bumble bee,
And keep on taking Rocky Mountain Tea."

THURSDAY, NOVEMBER 17, 1904.

It is stated that a definite plan has been arranged to abolish the present state tax commission and replace it with a new board of three members. Legislation to that end will be introduced at the coming session of the legislature.

In a long editorial on the causes for the sweeping Republican victory of Nov. 8, Willard Stearns, the Democratic editor of the Adrian Press, says in his closing sentences: "There are just as many Democrats today in the north as ever."

"But they will demand that the party stand for a principle long enough to enable it to get to the ballot box before there is a change."

Adrian Press: There are many objections to primary reform abuses, but the present method of nominating by delegates is the most rotten that can be devised. Almost anything that will get the choice of the people, is better than the method that gets the choice of the money. The man who ever frames a practical, satisfactory primary reform election law is a dandy. But the man who is content with the present system is an idiot.

So say we all of us.

The smallpox scare at Milan has died out and business is beginning to go on again as if nothing had happened. In connection with this fact it is pertinent to inquire why it is that if a contagious disease gets even ever so small a hold in a small place such a hullabaloo is made about it? There is seldom a week passes in a large town or city that contagious diseases of some kind or another are not prevalent, and yet no such fuss is made about them. It is right and proper that every precaution should be used to isolate cases of contagious disease and prevent their spreading, by disinfection and fumigation of the places in which they make their appearance, but to make a howl and cry about the matter does not improve it and really does more harm than good. If the village boards and the health officers do their respective duties there should be no trouble even with contagious diseases. But they must do their duty and enforce their quarantine regulations strictly and rigidly and not spare their fumigants and disinfectants.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers, that they offer one hundred dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

Clothcraft Belted Overcoats

Many people have the idea that a belted overcoat is the same as any other, the only difference being that it has a belt.

That may be true of the majority of belted overcoats, but it's NOT true of the Clothcraft kind.

They are cut on special patterns which allow the belt to draw without wrinkling the goods in the wrong place, tightening the coat or destroying its fit and shape in the least.

The style illustrated is the "Eton."

It's one of the snappiest coats ever produced.

Materials are the popular mixed goods, Cheviots, Tweeds, Freizes and Meltons. Come in and ask us to show you these coats.

I was all run down from nervousness and overwork and had to resign my position and take a rest. I found that I was not gaining my strength and health as fast as I could wish, and as your Wine of Cardui was recommended as such a good medicine for the ills of our sex, I bought a bottle and began using it. I was satisfied with the results from the use of the first bottle, and took three more and then found I was restored to good health and strength and able to take up my work with renewed vigor. I consider it a fine tonic and excellent for worn-out, nervous condition, and am pleased to endorse it.

People go to the city to buy goods, thinking they can buy them cheaper. Ordinarily prices are higher in the city than in the country and the only reason the customer does not buy at home is because he thinks he can buy cheaper in the city. It devolves upon the home merchant to obliterate that "think" by liberal advertising and backing up what he advertises with the goods.

THE GRIDIRON.

How the U. of M. and Chicago Fought for Victory.

During the four years that the U. of M. has held the championship of the west on the football field there has been a feeling that Trainer Fitzpatrick and Coach Yost could and did and would make the team invincible, but the swift and skillful playing of Chicago University's eleven was a surprise, and for a time in the first half gave the backers of the Ann Arbor players the shivers. The errors made by the home eleven were costly.

Four touchdowns were made by the Ann Arbor eleven, all earned by hard played football, marked by a few brilliant dashes through, but by one run of any great length—that a sprint for 45 yards made by Heston—the ball being advanced generally by the onslaughts of Heston, Tom Hammond and Longman, varied at times, until his legs gave out and he was unable to continue at this line of work by quarterback runs by Norcross. Three of these touchdowns came in the first half, and one, the one above referred to, in the second. Chicago got one in each half, the first being earned by a great exhibition of line bucking, after an error of judgment in the backfield had put the U. of M. within striking distance of the goal. The other was fluky in its nature, Eckersall snatching the ball out of the air after one of Michigan's too numerous fumbles, and running unblocked for 35 yards for a touchdown.

The second half was a hard-fought and fast-played battle for the game and resulted in a score of 22 to 12 in favor of Michigan. The attendance was not less than 10,000. Numerous special trains brought in thousands from Chicago, Detroit and other parts of the state.

EARLY RETURNS SHOW THE REPUBLICANS SWEEPED MICHIGAN FROM END TO END---LIST OF SUCCESSFUL CONGRESSIONAL CANDIDATES.

RESULT IN MICHIGAN.

Warner, Congressional Delegation and Legislature by Large Majorities.

Surprising as the results of Tuesday's election were, Michigan added to them. Fred M. Warner was elected governor by a majority estimated at 50 per cent larger than that of Aaron T. Bliss over L. T. Durand two years ago, and the entire Republican state ticket, including every state senatorial

HON. FRED M. WARNER.

HON. FRED M. WARNER,
and legislative candidate, was elected, according to the latest returns.
The Wolverine state gives Theodore Roosevelt an unprecedented majority, which will exceed 150,000 when the returns are in. It was a landslide astonishing to even the most sanguine Republican. Michigan will have a solid Republican delegation in congress, as every Republican candidate for reelection was victorious by good majorities and Edwin Denby in Detroit defeated Alfred Lucking, the only Democratic member of the present delegation.

Oh! the farm was bright, Thanksgiving

Oh! the farm was bright, Thanksgiving
morn,
With its stacks of hay and shocks of corn,
Its pumpkin heaps in the rambling shed,
And its apples brown and green and red,
And in its cellar its winter store
In bins that were filled and running o'er
With all the things that a farm could keep,
In barrel and bin and goodly heap,
Hung to the rafters and hid away—
Oh! the farm was a goodly sight that

The skating pond with its fringe of bay—
Oh! the farm was a pleasant sight that day!

The big home-barn was a place of joy
For the romping girl and the climbing boy.
With beams and mows and ladders to mount,
Horses and oxen and sheep to count;
Hunting of nests of sly old hens,
Tunneling hay and fashioning dens,
Helping the men to do up the chores

And here and there were the Jersey stock,
The sheep and horses—old Prince and Jock—
The turkeys and geese and awkward calf,
And the goat that made the children laugh.
A pair of mules that a friend had sent
Out to the farm on experiment;
Pigeons and fowls and a guinea-pig.
Dogs that were small and dogs that were big,
Chickens that were white and black and gray—
Oh! the farm was a pleasant place to stay!

Oh! the pantry shelves were loaded down
With cakes that were plump and rich
And brown,
With apple pies and pumpkin and mince
And jellies and jams and preserves
And quince,
Cranberry sauce and puddings and rice
The dessert dishes that look so nice,
Vegetables, breads and bonbons sweet
A great brown turkey and plates of Sauces fixed in the daintiest way—
Oh! 'twas a glorious sight that day!

Out back of the house the orchard stood
Then came the brook and the chestnut wood,
The mill where the children play,
The fodder barn with its piles of hay,
The walnut grove and the cranberry bog,
The woodchuck hole and the barking dog,
The wintergreen and the robber's cave (Wherein who entered was counted brave),

Oh, the farm was bright Thanksgiving
morn,
The sun shone clear on the hay and corn
The guests came early with laugh and cheer
And the boys and girls scattered about Seeking the pets they had known before Climbing through window instead of door,
Racing from barn to corn-crib or mill Shouting and laughing with glee, until The dinner horn sounded. Oh, I say
'Twas pleasant upon the farm that day

"Well, I declare!" said Aunt Nancy, "I never did see a turkey fat like'n that one! I tell you, Pa, early an' help fix things for dinner an' then you an' her could visit longer, she said."

"Well," said Aunt Nancy, "that's real good of Marietty. There'll be quite a lot of work fixin' the vegetables an' such, an' I guess she can help me quite a little. I'm real glad he's comin', poor soul!"

The next morning when Uncle Isaac, in his Sunday clothes, came into the kitchen and lifted his chin high so Aunt Nancy could adjust his collar button and necktie, the dear old lady said: "If I was you, Pa, I'd look all over the meetin'-house an' pick out the lonesomest-lookin' person there—anybody you think ain't invited nowhere to Thanksgivin' dinner—an' ask 'em to come along home

"Anybody," asked Uncle Isaac. Did you say anybody, Nancy?"

Aunt Nancy started swiftly toward the oven door. "Land sakes! I believe that turkey's bolilin' dry," she said, as she opened the oven door with a clang and poured hot water into the sizzling roasting-pan. Her dusky face peered into the big, savory-smelling oven.

"Yes," she said, "ask anybody you think looks lonesome."

Uncle Isaac drove off to meeting with a merry jingling of sleigh bells. He chuckled to himself as he drove along. "I shouldn't wonder if Silas Sumner would be lookin' kind of lonesome to-day," he said. "Great unts! Who'd ever think I'd take to hatchmakin' at my time o' life?"

When the Thanksgiving sermon had been preached and the last hymn sung, the congregation moved toward the doors. Silas Plummer buttoned his overcoat and prepared to go his lonely way. But Uncle Isaac, unhitching the old white horse, called to him. "Hold on, Silas," he said, "don't you want to ride along with me? An', by the way, Nancy said she'd like first-rate to have you eat Thanksgiving' dinner with us."

Silas Plummer hesitated—and was lost. "Much obliged, Uncle Isaac," he said; "you and Aunt Nancy are very kind, but I was calculatin' on my own plan, the restaurant for my dinner."

"Restaurant nothin'!" cried Uncle Isaac, jovially. "Come, pile in here with us! We'll go home. Nancy'll be jest bled to death!"

But privately Uncle Isaac wasn't so sure of that. "Merciful Moses!" he thought, "mebby I've gone an' put my foot in it. But we'll wait an' see how it turns out. If Nancy scolds, I'll tell her the poor fellow looked onesome, an' sure enough he did."

The cutter stopped at the side door with a jangle of bells. Aunt Nancy came to the window and looked out. "Of all things!" she said to herself, "what in the world possessed Pa to go an' do that! My land! what shall do? Here's Marietta, an' there's Elias, an' they won't speak—I know they won't!"

Marietta was in the kitchen-chopping cabbage, and did not see the newcomer, who was ushered into the sitting-room by Aunt Nancy, whose Marietta stopped chopping cabbage and filled her arms with wood from the wood box. She looked very nice in her best black dress and lace-trimmed apron. The warm kitchen had given a flush to her cheeks and the pink ribbon at her throat was very becoming.

She went through the dining-room and into the sitting-room. Aunt Nancy, listening intently in the kitchen, heard the sudden dropping of the tumbler of wood. "My sakes alive!" she said, "whatever shall I do. They'll both get mad an' go home most likely. Dear, dear, what did Pa go an' ask him for?"

way which used to be so pleasant to her until that misunderstanding came between them. He took her hand and led her into the sunny kitchen where Aunt Nancy was about to take Uncle Isaac to task.

The good old people started in astonishment as Marietta and Silas entered hand in hand. The lovers looked ten years younger.

"Aunt Nancy," said Silas Plummer, "you an' Uncle Isaac have made a real Thanksgiving for me."

"An' me too!" chimed in Marietta, with blushing cheeks. "Oh, Aunt Nancy, we've made it up an' we're as good friends as ever!"

She looked anxiously at the clock.

“But land, Nancy! I believe them two wouldn't have known the difference if it had been plain salt pork an' johnny-cake. My! my! to think what a good matchmaker I am. It's just amazin', ain't it?”

And Aunt Nancy smiled serenely and said it was.

Comes Home From Alaska—A Man With Lots of Money.

Having Just Recently Returned from the Gold Fields and Purchased a Fine Farm Near Chelsea for a Newly Married Niece and Husband, Will Start Them in Life as a Wedding Gift—A Realistic Romance.

A few days ago there arrived in this village a gentleman familiarly known among old friends as Uncle Bill, or Klondike Bill, as it was in Alaska that he had just recently accumulated a fortune in the gold fields. He had with him his newly married niece, Fannie, and her husband, John.

They went directly to Boyd's Hotel. "This is a typical Michigan hotel of first-class style. I have long known Mr. Boyd, the present proprietor. He is mine host after mine heart, a thorough business man, endowed with that delightful intuition that makes a guest feel at home, comfortable, contented, and in mighty good luck. The house is one of convenience, and a home for the traveling public. The apartments are well furnished and the cuisine all that a superior chef and unlimited orders on the market can make it. I have engaged rooms for you to occupy until your own home is in readiness." With this remark Uncle Bill graciously presented the deed of the fine farm he had bought for them.

"Now children, you have bought the lumber and shingles for the new house and barn, where can we find a carpenter to do the work?" "That's so," said the old man, "we don't want a botcher to do the work either, so in order that we may find good men, I will go with you and see if we cannot get John J. Schaufele to do the work—that is if we can get him, but I understand he is always busy and has built some of the best houses here in Chelsea. He is a builder of wide experience and considered the best carpenter and builder in the country." John J. Schaufele got the contract for both house and barn and received the praise of all for his excellent workmanship. He is now building houses for Dr. Schmidt, Wilson West, Mrs. Gates and others.

"How about the plumbing, Uncle," inquired Fannie, "you remember you said you would see somebody about that." "Jesse so, Jesse so; and we shan't have any bother to get that work done either. I'll go and see George H. Foster & Co., shop in the Wilkinson & Turnbull building. We've got to have gas and water pipes put in, a hot water heater and a porcelain bath tub besides some sanitary fixtures, and it is the very best house to do the work. They observe closely all the hygienic laws guarding against dangers from sewer gases. You can always feel safe about the house when practical men, as I know George H. Foster to be, has done the work."

The aforesaid contract, did just what Uncle Bill said, and won Fannie's praise for his excellent workmanship. He also sells windmills, pumps, and puts down drive wells, and does everything cheap in the line of repairing in the plumbing and gas fitting line. Uncle Bill ordered everything he wanted at Foster's.

"Having provided you with a cage for the bird," said Uncle Bill, "now the first thing we'll look after will be the furnishings for it." Hereupon Fannie energetically declared that she had heard so much about W. J. Knapp, the furniture and hardware dealer, that she had decided to go there. The result was that they were ushered into such a bewildering display that the girl was at first at a loss how to select. But she soon yielded to the seductiveness of a magnificent parlor suite and bedroom suite in golden oak finish that would do credit to any parlor bedroom. To this she added an easy rocker for Uncle Bill, also one of those elegant, antique finished bed room sets for the servant girl and didn't forget a most convenient writing desk for "Hubby" John at W. J. Knapp's.

"A pretty good start," said the old man, "and now we will go into his hardware department and buy our hardware, stoves, tinware, etc." Here Fannie's housewife instincts had full play in the marvels of kitchen apparatus. "There is not an establishment in this section that carries a more comprehensive stock of household furnishings than W. J. Knapp, of Chelsea," remarked Uncle Bill. "Every possible piece of kitchen furniture from a tin dipper to a cooking range is here in all styles and varieties." If Fannie fails to accomplish wonders in the culinary art, it will not be for the want of superior cooking utensils, for she purchased an elegant Garland steel range, and also a Genuine Round Oak Heater, a gas-line stove, and a Round Oak furnace, together with all equipment needed in a well regulated kitchen.

"And in the matter of insurance," he continued, "that is of importance. You'll want a risk on your new house, and fire, lightning and tornado insurance on your farm property, and I understand that Geo. A. BeGole, assistant cashier of the Kempf Commercial and Savings Bank, with office in the bank, represents 'The Cooper,' and several other first-class companies. Then you can't do a more sensible thing than to take out a three-years' policy for insurance on all the buildings and also on the household furniture, as my old friend Geo. A. BeGole, is a general insurance agent for fire, and not only has lines of the solidest and best companies but is a trustworthy underwriter. He has a large number of companies, all of which belong to the old, reliable category being known for their prompt and satisfactory adjustment of losses. It's better to be safe than sorry, and you'll surely be safe in Geo. A. BeGole's agencies.

"By the way," remarked Uncle Bill as they reached the street, "I must run down to the Kempf Commercial and Savings Bank and get another check book. Come along with me and get acquainted with J. A. Palmer, the cashier, and also Geo. A. BeGole, the assistant cashier, for of course you will do business with them, and it is always more pleasant to be personally acquainted with the people you do business with. This bank is a solid institution and has a strong working capital. And say, John, the Kempf Commercial and Savings Bank is one of the best banks doing business in this section of the state. You will find them ever ready to extend any accommodations compatible with business principles. The bank with its combined wealth of its stockholders are well worth $1,500,000.00. They have safety deposit vaults and private rooms for patrons. They also have a commercial savings department and loan money on first-class security.

"I would like to make you acquainted with my dentist friend, Dr. H. H. Avery, too," said the old man, "whose office is over Raftery's tailor shop on East Middle street. If you ever have to supplement your natural teeth—" "Ugh! don't mention false teeth to me," cried Fannie. "I'll never carry pearly lies in my mouth if I go toothless." "Oh, as to that," laughed Uncle Bill, "if you'll consult a good dentist in time, you can save the catastrophe. Dr. Avery, for instance, is a wonderful expert in saving natural teeth by crowning and bridge work, and he has the skill and every mechanical appliance necessary to do his work with the least discomfort to his patrons. And he makes tooth extracting or filling a pleasure when he uses that local anaesthetic of his. I know, because he used it on me and it's a daisy."

Uncle Bill now suggested their return to the hotel for dinner. At the table the old man waxed philosophical. "Never neglect your larder," said he, "that important adjunct to housekeeping controls masculine temper. To that end you must patronize a grocer on whom you can depend for honest goods. Through a long term of years I have found John Farrell, next door to the postoffice on North Main street the leading grocer, perfectly reliable. You will find him a careful dealer, always fully stocked with everything in staple and fancy groceries, cereals, fine confectionery and fruits which are always fresh and first-class, no shelf-worn goods there, while the prices are down to brass tacks. To keep peace in the family you get goods of John Farrell, the cheapest store in Chelsea. He takes produce in exchange for goods. He also sells gents' footwear cheap."

"Yes, and while we are on this important topic of gastronomy, we must not forget meat. It goes hand in hand with groceries. Now to locate a meat market, where you can get prime tender meats of all kinds and game in season, the Central Meat Market, kept by Adam Eppler, is the boss market of the village and popular with everybody who is particular to have the best. The reason for this is because he is very careful in the selection of stock and gets the best of everything and keeps nothing but the very best, and you are waited upon in a jiffy by a neat and polite assistant. To keep your 'hubby' in good humor, Fannie, trade at Adam Eppler's market every time as nearly all the people of the village and surrounding country do."

"Law sakes," suddenly exclaimed Uncle Bill, "all this trading and shopping around town has caused me to forget one of the greatest essentials to future existence. I have heard it said that newly married folks could live on love and fine scenery, but an old man of my experience knows better. Speaking of flour reminds me that your table would look slim without bread; it's the staff of life you know. Fannie, you must meet my old friend, Wm. Caspary, proprietor of the City Bakery on West Middle street, phone 46. His home-made bread, cakes, pies and nic nacs are conceded by all to be the best on earth. Remember, John, there is no use of your 'ootsy tootsy' bothering yourself about baking so long as there is a good bakery in town like Wm. Caspary's city bakery. He makes all kinds of fancy cakes for weddings, parties, picnics, etc. And when you give your ice cream social, call on him for ice cream, sure. He has also a restaurant in connection. He sells bread for 6c per loaf."

While Uncle Bill was pondering where to go next, Fannie suddenly asked, "Uncle, where can I find the leading millinery establishment?" "Why as for that we will have to go down South Main to the new Staffan block and see Miss Mary Haab, who, by the way, has on hand the best and most complete stock of millinery to be found in this village. You can get what you want there, the latest styles and the lowest prices being her motto. Her experience guarantees that when you have purchased your millinery from Miss Mary Haab you have the thing according to fashion and a satisfaction that your work has been done by a competent artist, and her extra fine selection of new fall and winter millinery is not equaled in style and extent in this village."

In a few hours there was never a happier girl than Fannie, for her new hat was a perfect dream of loveliness. "You see all those nicely dressed gentlemen, John?" said Uncle Bill. "Well those men have all their clothes made to order by J. J. Raftery & Son, artistic merchant tailors, store on East Middle street. Mr. J. J. Raftery is the best tailor and draper in Washtenaw county, and a person can have his clothing made to order at Raftery's tailor shop almost as cheap as they can buy them ready made, and you know, my boy, a suit made to order is much better in both fit and workmanship than are clothes ready made and as you will require a Sunday suit, you had better go with me and leave an order with J. J. Raftery & Son for a suit and a fall and winter overcoat, and I will also have a new suit made to order as it is pleasant to deal with J. J. Raftery & Son, as their greatest aim is to give perfect satisfaction to every customer. They also do pressing and dry cleaning very reasonable."

Uncle Bill next called John's attention to Tommy McNamara's Sample Rooms sign, near the bank, and as he and John had a few minutes to spare the old man suggested that while Fannie was busily engaged nearby in selecting some fancy goods for their house, that they go in and see his old friend, Tommy McNamara, the proprietor of the saloon, which is located on West Middle street, remarking that Mr. McNamara handles the best makes of beer, made from the purest malt and hops and brewed by the most expert brewers in the United States. "Besides," said Uncle Bill, "he keeps nothing but the best brands of wines and pure malt whiskeys that money can buy. Imported goods of all kinds. He is a highly respected gentleman and good citizen and his saloon is one of the best and neatest in Chelsea."

"Now, John," said Uncle Bill, "since we have been all around and examined the different buggies, you say you like those buggies and wagons that you saw at A. G. Falst's carriage shop on West Middle street. Well, now, you and Fannie have good taste in your selections of all kinds of vehicles, as A. G. Falst's own make of wagons and buggies are the finest on earth as he manufactures them all himself and uses only first-class material and good workmanship in their construction. Mr. Falst is always ready to deal with you in any of his lines and give you the best bargains on goods possible." So they selected a handsome surrey, a farm wagon, a sleigh, and a top buggy and found the prices very reasonable. They also bought a light road wagon to run around in. Mr. Falst does all kinds of buggy and wagon repairing cheap.

"Holy smoke, John, where in the name of creation did you get that snipe? That's about the worst weed I ever came in contact with," laughingly remarked Uncle Bill. "Step in here and get a 'Pickwick' cigar or a 'Stick's Special,' which are made here by L. Burg, the leading cigar manufacturer of Chelsea. These cigars are high grade 5 cent cigars and equal in quality to almost any 10-cent cigar. L. Burg's brands of cigars are the best on earth and then you'll have a gentleman's smoke and, by the way, L. Burg's 'Pickwick,' 'Stick's Special' and other brands have an extensive sale with all the dealers here in the adjoining towns and villages. These cigars are crack-a-jacks, and contain all the qualities of a delicious puff. The manufacturer takes great pride in keeping these cigars up to the highest standard and consequently they grow more popular every day." John was so well pleased with the "Pickwick" and "Stick's Special" cigars that he bought a whole box of each brand Mr. Burg makes.

"Uncle Bill," said John, "now while Fannie is looking around town, I would like to have you take me to some place where we can have a game of pool or billiards as you know, Uncle, I am quite a crank on billiards and pool playing." "It that so?" said Uncle Bill, "well, let's see, there is 'The Gem,' which is the only first-class restaurant and billiard parlor in Chelsea, which is kept by my old friends, Gilroy and Jackson, on East Middle street, and as they also keep cigars and a short order lunch counter in connection, it makes it by far the best place in town to spend a few minutes recreation, and as you say you are somewhat of a crank on billiards and pool playing, why I will be pleased to have you meet my friends, Gilroy and Jackson, at their billiard parlor and restaurant, as it is quite a resort for all the bon-ton men of the town, as they keep a neat and orderly place and their tables are all new. Therefore, Gilroy & Jackson are the men by all means to patronize." So they started for Gilroy & Jackson's "The Gem."

"Uncle Bill," said John, "while living down east I heard a great deal about a man who lives in or near Chelsea, Mich., by the name of R. A. Snyder, whom they call down there the onion king of Michigan. I wonder if he still lives here?" "R. A. Snyder, the great onion grower and shipper of Michigan, I should say he does, and say," said the old man, "if you children are interested enough in wanting to see the largest onion patch owned by any one man in Michigan I will drive you out to Mr. Snyder's farm of upwards of 80 acres, over one-half of which is planted in onions of the red and yellow varieties, which are among the best selling varieties. Besides carrying on his large onion farming operations," said Uncle Bill, "Mr. Snyder buys and ships onions all over the country. He buys and ships in carload lots and during the season ships hundreds of carloads to all sections of the United States, Canada, New Brunswick and Nova Scotia. He employs scores of people during the planting and harvesting seasons, and is considered one of the largest employers of laboring men in this section of the country. He owns a handsome home in Chelsea, while his onion farm is only a short distance out and near what is known as Taylor's big spring. He is an enterprising and whole souled man, generous to a fault, and highly esteemed by all who know him." Both Fannie and John were greatly delighted with what they saw and what they term the onion patch and both at once decided to go into raising onions on their farm. Uncle Bill then took them down to see Mr. Snyder's immense warehouses near the Michigan Central railroad tracks having a capacity of storing 75 to 100 carloads of onions, remarking that Mr. Snyder will ship this season several hundred carloads of onions.

Upon summing up the wonderful events of the day, Fannie began to express thanks. "You have bought us everything," she exclaimed. "Excepting one thing," replied Uncle Bill reflectively, "but I can remedy that; W. J. Knapp, the furniture and hardware man, always has a nice line of them and you can see one whenever you want it; I'll pay for the best." "W-h-y, Uncle, what can it be?" "Well, it's a baby-buggy, and-a-a." But Fannie had fainting.

He was surprised at how the sores healed—"I took your New Method Treatment for a serious blood disease with which I had been afflicted for twelve years. I had consulted a score of physicians, taken all kinds of blood medicine, visited Hot Springs and other mineral water resorts, but only got temporary relief. They would help me for a time, but after discontinuing the medicines the symptoms would break out again—running sores, blotches, rheumatic pains, looseness of the hair, swellings of the glands, palms of the hands scaling, itchiness of the skin, dyspeptic stomach, etc. I had given up in despair when a friend advised me to consult you, as you had cured him of a similar disease 8 years ago. I had no hope, but took his advice. In three weeks' time the sores commenced to heal up and I became encouraged. I continued the New Method Treatment for four months and at the end of that time every symptom had disappeared. I was cured 7 years ago and no more of my disease since.
