Out-False Story of Break.

Governor-elect Fred M. Warner's attention was called to a story in a Grand Rapids paper of an alleged break between Mr. Warner and certain of the republican leaders, of the so called 'machine." The correspondent said that it was apparent that Mr. Warner had turned down an alleged "machine" slate of appointments and was living up to his campaign utterances that he would not be controlled by any faction or set of men either in appointments or policies, that the new executive would be the governor himself.

Mr. Warner, when referred to the article in question, said:

"There has been no break between any of the republican leaders and myself over appointments or anything else. I will say that I do intend to try to be the governor of Michigan, and you can take that for all it means.

"I want to use my best efforts to maintain harmony within the party so far as compatible with the welfare of the state. So far as appointments are concerned, no one knowns whom I am going to appoint to a single office, not even who is to be my private secretary. I have not told any man that I was or was not going to appoint him. I have and make my decisions known when I send the names in. -

"No man or coterie of men shall dictate the appointments or policies, although, naturally, I shall consult with the party leaders and those nearest to me as advisers.

"To the statement that, instead of which did not support me in the campaign, particularly Kent and Wayne, it will be my policy to be conciliatory. I can only add that I think it my duty to treat all parts of the state alike so far as possible without reference to what my vote was or was not in certain localities. I certainly shall be conciliatory, if that is the expression, because I bear no ill will, and it is my duty to treat all parts of the state alike."

WANTS LAND RECLAIMED.

Prof. Filbert Roth, professor of forestry at the university, is state warden, and he will ask the legislature at their next session to utilize more barren land for re-forestration.

The state adopted a new policy last year, setting aside a small tract of barren land as a forest reserve. Survey, protection and re-forestration are looked after by Warden Roth, a forester and two forest rangers. More than 5,000 trees have been set out and a nursery of over 5,000,000 trees has been established. At first the state authorities and many private citizens throughout the state were opposed to the plan, but now a marked change of sentiment is taking place. The people of the district are very well satisfied, and are rendering Warden Roth all possible assistance.

To them were born three daughters, the Misses Katherine and Alice Gorman of this village surviving, one daughter, Mrs. Jennie Gorman-Martin died in May 1900.

Mrs. Gorman was related to a number of the early settlers of Lyndon and was a woman who was held in high esteem by a large following of friends. Edward and Peter Gorman of Lyndon, and Hon. J. S. Gorman of this place were nephews.

The funeral was held from the Church of Our Lady of the Sacred Heart of which she was a member, at 9:30 o'clock Wednesday morning, December 7, 1904. Her pastor, Rev. Fr. Considine, sang mass and delivered a very fine sermon which was listened too with rapt attentien by the large gathering of friends and neighbors. The interment was at Mt. SCHOOL NOTES.

Last week closed the third month of December 1, the following officers were school, and now is our chance to make our record better, so lets begin at once. Parents aid the teachers and pupils as well, by helping the pupils get an early start and we will avoid some of those tardy marks. A small percentage of the pupils are kept out to work too often for the pupils benefit. We understand that it often seems absolutely necessary to keep pupils out to work, is deemed the champion killer of mice but are there not many times when it is not? We as pupils ought to of some member of the family. make a determined effort to be in our places every school day, to take advantage of the opportunities offered by the community, so that we may show our appreciation of the efforts of our parents and others to give us an education in order that we may in turn make the world wiser in the time to time into eternity by the rude, insistent

there would be Cash Left .- Cotton next

Secretary of Agriculture James Wilson, in his annual report to the president, enumerates some of the more important features of the year's work. Among them are the taking of preliminary steps to conduct feeding and breeding experiments; the war waged against the cotton boll weevel and against cattle mange; valuable research in successful shipping of fruit abroad; successful introduction of plants suited for light rainfall areas; establishment of pure food standards; the extension of agricultural education in primary and secondary schools and the extension of instruction to our island possessions to enable them to supply the country with $200,000,000 worth of domestic products, now imported from abroad.

Some interesting figures are presented showing the value of the country's crops. The report says:

"The corn crop of 1904 yields a farm value greater than ever before. The farmers could from the proceeds of this single crop pay the national debt, the interest thereon for one year, and still have enough left to pay a considerable portion of the government's yearly expenses. The cotton crop comes second in value, while hay and wheat contend for the third placs. Combined, these two crops will about equal in value the corn crop. Notwithstanding the wheat crop shows a lower production than any year since 1900, the farm value is the highest since 1881. Potatoes and barley reached their highest production in 1904; save in 1902 the oat crop was never so large by 60,000,-000 bushels. The present crop of rice promises a yield of 900,000,000 pounds-300,000,000 more than ever before.

"Horses and mules reach the highest point this year, with an aggregate value exceeding $1,354,000,000. On the other hand cattle, sheep and hogs all show a slight decline."

STARTLING EVIDENCE.

Fresh testimony in great quantity is constantly coming in, declaring Dr. King's New Discovery for consumption, coughs and colds to be unequaled. A recent expression from T. J. McFarland Bentorville, Va. serves as example. He writes: "I had bronchitis for three years and doctored all the time without being benefited. Then I began taking Dr. King's New Discovery, and a few bottles wholly cured me." Equally effective in curing all lung and throat troubles, consumption, pneumonia and grip. Document Deals Voluminously with Questions of State--- Tariff Left for Future Communication---Position of the Government Toward Organized Labor--- Dealing with Illegal Combinations.

Congress, read at the opening of the short session of that body, deals voluminously with questions of state. The subject of tariff revision is left for a further communication. Substantially the message is as follows: To the Senate and House of Represen-

The nation continues to enjoy noteworthy prosperity. Such prosperity is of course primarily due to the high individual average of our citizenship, taken together with our great natural resources; but an important factor therein is the working of our long-continued governmental policies. The people have emphatically expressed their approval of the principles underlying these policies, and their desire that these principles be kept substantially unchanged, although of course applied in a progressive spirit to meet changing conditions.

*Caution Against Extravagance. The enlargement of scope of the functions of the national government required by our development as a nation involves, of course, increase of expense; and the period of prosperity through which the country is passing justifies expenditures for permanent improvements far greater than would be wise in hard times. Battle ships and forts, public buildings, and improved waterways are investments which should be made when we have the money; but abundant revenues and a large surplus always invite extravagance, and constant care should be taken to guard against unnecessary increase of the ordinary expenses of gov

Capital and Labor. In the vast and complicated mechanism of our modern civilized life the dominant note is the note of industrialism; and the relations of capital and labor, and especially of organized capital and organized labor, to each other and to the public at large come second in importance only to the intimate questions of family life. As long as the states retain the primary control of the police power the circumstances must be altogether extreme which require interference by the federal authorities, whether in the way of safeguarding the rights of labor or in the way of seeing that wrong is not done by unruly persons who shield themselves behind the name of labor. If there is resistance to the federal courts, interference with the mails, or interstate commerce, or molestation of federal property. or if the state authorities in some crisis which they are unable to face call for help, then the federal government may interfere; but though such interference may be caused by a condition of things arising out of trouble connected with some question of labor, the interference itself simply takes the form of restoring order without regard to the questions which have caused the breach of orderfor to keep order is a primary duty and in a time of disorder and violence all other questions sink into abeyance until orof Columbia and in the territories the federal law covers the entire field of government; but the labor question is only acute in populous centers of commerce. manufactures, or mining. Nevertheless. both in the enactment and in the enforcement of law the federal government within its restricted sphere should set an example to the state governments, especially in a matter so vital as this affecting labor. I believe that under modern industrial conditions it is often necessary and even where not necessary, it is yet often wise, that there should be organization of labor in order better to secure the rights of the individual wage-worker All encouragement should be given to any such organization, so long as it is con ducted with a due and decent regard for the rights of others. There are in this country some labor unions which have habitually, and other labor unions which have often, been among the most effective agents in working for good citizenship and for uplifting the condition of those whose welfare should be closest to our hearts. Put when any labor union seeks improper ends, or seeks to achieve proper ends by improper means, all good citizens and more especially all honorable public servants must of pose the wrongdoing as resolutely as they would opposthe wrongdoing of any great corporation Of course any violence, brutality, or corruption, should not for one moment be tolerated. Wage-workers have an entire right to organize and by all peaceful and honorable means to endeavor to persuadetheir fellows to join with them in organizations - They have a legal right, which according to circumstances, may or may not be a moral right, to refuse to work in company with men who decline to join their organizations. They have under no circumstances the right to commit vio-

The message continues: There is no objection to employes of On this subject the message says: the government forming or belonging to unions; but the government can neither discriminate for nor discriminate against ment, or who seek to be employed under is to work, to be the breadwinner; it. Moreover, it is a very grave impropriety for government employes to band extorting improperly high salaries from nificance when compared with the tre government. Especially is this true of those within the classified service. The are as a whole an excellent body of puble servants. They should be amply paid. But their payment must be obtained by arguing their claims fairly and honorably efore the Congress, and not by banding gether for the defeat of those congress en who refuse to give promises which they can not in conscience give. President Roosevelt's message to | shortly lay before you in a special message the full report of the investigation of the bureau of labor into the Colorado mining strike, as this is a strike in which certain very evil forces, which are more or less at work everywhere under the conditions of modern industrialism, became startlingly prominent.

When we come to deal with great corporations the need for the government to act directly is far greater than in the case of labor, because great corporations can become such only by engaging in interstate commerce, and interstate commerce is peculiarly the field of the general government. It is an absurdity to expect to eliminate the abuses in great corporations by state action. It is difficult to be patient with an argument that such matters should be left to the states, be cause more than one state pursues the policy of creating on easy terms corporations which are never operated within that state at all, but in other states whose laws they ignore. The national government alone can deal adequately with these great corporations. To try to deal with them in an intemperate, de structive, or demagogic spirit would, in all probability, mean that nothing whatever would be accomplished, and, with absolute certainty, that if anything were accomplished it would be of a harmful nature. The American people need to continue to show the very qualities that they have shown-that is, moderation, good sense, the earnest desire to avoid doing any damage, and yet the quiet de- the prosperity of settlers, miners, or oth termination to proceed, step by step, without halt and without hurry, in emminating or at least in minimizing whatever of mischief or of evil there is to interstate commerce in the conduct of great corporations. They are acting in no spirit of hostility to wealth, either individual or corporate. They are not against the rich man any more than against the poor man. On the contrary they are friendly alike toward rich man and toward poor man, provided only that each acts in a spirit of justice and decency toward his fellows. Great corporations are necessary, and only men of great and singular mental power can manage such corporations successfully, and such man must have great rewards But these corporations should be managed with due regard to the interest of the public as a whole. Where this can be done under the present laws it must be done. Where these laws come short others should be enacted to supplement

While I am of the opinion that t present it would be andesirable, if it ere not impracticable, finally to cothe the Interstate Commerce Commission with general authority to fix railroad rates, I do not believe that, as a fair security to shippers, the Commission should e vested with the power, where a given rate has been challenged and after full hearing found to be unteasonable, to desubject to judicial review, what shall be a reasonable rate to take its place; the ruling of the commission to take effect immediately, and to obtain unless and until it is reversed by the court of review. Irrigation. During the two and a half years that have elapsed since the passage of the reclamation act rapid progress has been made in the surveys and examinations of the opportunities for reclamation in the thirteen states and three territories of the arid West. Construction has already been begun on the largest and most important of the irrigation works, and plans are being completed for works which will utilize the funds now available. The reclamation act has been found to be remarkably complete and effective, and so broad in its provisions that a wide range of undertakings has been possible under it. At the same time, economy is guaranteed by the fact that the funds must ultimately be returned to be used over

The progress of the Indians toward civ ilization, though not rapid, is perhaps all hat could be hoped for in view of the circumstances. The increase revenue during the year was $9,358,181.10. or 6.9 per cent, the total receipts amounting to $143.382.624.34. The expenditures were $152,362,116.70, an increase of about per cent over the previous year, being thus $8,979,492.36 in excess of the current revenue. Included in these expendi tures was a total appropriation of $12 956,637.85 for the continuation and extension of the tural free delivery service which was an increase of $4,902,237.35 mlawful for any person or corporation to over the amount expended for this pur cose in the preceding fiscal year. Statistics brought' down to the 1st of October, 1904. that on that date there were 27,138 rural routes established, serving approximately 2.000.000 of people in rural districts remote from postoffices, and that there were pending at that time 3,859 petitions for the establishment of new rural routes. Unquestionably some part of the general increase in receipts is due to the in creased postal facilities which the rural service has afforded. The revenues have also been aided greatly by amendments in the classification of mail matter, and the curtailment of abuses of the secondclass mailing privilege. The average in crease in the volume of mail matter fo he period beginning with 1902 and ending June, 1905 (that portion for 1905 being estimated), is 40.47 per cent, as compared with 25.46 per cent for the period mmediately preceding, and 15,92 for the four-year period immediately preceding

Extravagance in Printing.

I call your attention to the great exravagance in printing and binding government publications, and especially to the fact that altogether too many of these publications are printed. There is constant tendency to increase their number and their volume. It is an understatement to say that no appreciable harm would be caused by, and substantial benefit would accrue from, decreas ing the amount of printing now done by at least one-half.

Laws Concerning Citizenship. Not only are the laws relating to naturalization now defective, but those relating to citizenship of the United States ought also to be made the subject of scientific inquiry with a view to prob able further legislation. By what acts expatriation may be assumed to have pech accomplished, how long an Amer ican citizen may reside abroad and receive the protection of our passport. whether any degree of protection should be extended to one who has made the declaration of intention to become a citizen of the United States but has not secured naturalization, are questions of serious simport, involving personal rights and often producing friction between this government and foreign governments.

silent. I recommend that an examination be made into the subjects of citizenship, expatriation, and protection of Americans abroad, with a view to appropriate legislation.

The attention of the Congress should be especially given to the currency question, and that the standing committees on the matter in the two houses charged with the duty, take up the matter of our currency and see whether it is not possible to secure an agreement in the business world for bettering the system; the committees should consider the question of the retirement of the greenbacks and the problem of securing in our currency such elasticity as is consistent with safety. Every silver dollar should be made by law redeemable in gold at the option of the holder.

Merchant Marine. I especially commend to your immediate attention the encouragement of our merchant marine by appropriate legisla-

On the tariff I shall communicate with you later. Immigration and Naturalization.

In dealing with the questions of immigration and naturalization it is indispensable to keep certain facts ever before the minds of those who share in enacting the laws. First and foremost, let us remember that the question of being a good American has nothing whatever to do with a man's birthplace any more than it has to do with his creed. In every generation from the time this government was founded men of foreign birth have stood in the very foremost rank of good citizenship, and that not merely in one but in every field of Amercan activity; while to try to draw a distinction between the man whose parents came to this country and the man whose ancestors came to it several generations back is a mere absurdity. Good Americanism is a matter of heart, of conscience, of lofty aspiration, of sound common sense, but not of birthplace or of

There is no danger of having too many mmigrants of the right kind. But the itizenship of this country should not be debased. It is vital that we should keep high the standard of well-being among our wage-workers, and therefore we should not admit masses of men whose standards of living and whose personal customs and habits are such that they tend to lower the level of the American wage-worker; and above all we should not admit any man of an unworthy type, any man concerning whom we can say that he will himself be a bad citizen, or that his children and grandchildren will detract from instead of adding to the sum of the good citizenship of the country. Similarly we should take the greatcare about naturalization.

Under the Constitution it is in the cower of the Congress "to establish a uniform rule of naturalization." and numerous laws have from time to time been enacted for that purpose, which have been supplemented in a few states by state laws having special application. There should be a comprehensive revision of the naturalization laws. The courts having power to naturalize should be definitely named by national authority; the testimony upon which naturalization may be conferred should be definitely prescribed; publication of impending naturalization applications should be required in advance of their hearing in court: the form and wording of all certificates issued should be uniform throughout the country, and the courts should be required to make returns to the Secretary of State at stated periods of all naturalizations conferred.

Protection of Elections. The power of the government to proect the integrity of the elections of its own officials is inherent and has been ecognized and affirmed by repeated decatations of the Supreme court. There s no enemy of free government more angerous and none so insidious as the orruption of the electorate. No one deends or excuses corruption, and it would eem to follow that none would oppose igorous measures to eradicate it. recommend the enactment of a law diected against bribery and corruption in Federal elections. The details of such a aw may be safely left to the wise discretion of the Congress, but it should go as far as under the Constitution it is possible to go, and should include severe penalties against him who gives or receives a bribe intended to influence his act or opinion as an elector; and provisions for the publication not only of the expenditures for nominations and elections of all candidates but also of all. contributions received and expenditures nade by political committees. Delays in Criminal Prosecutions. No subject is better worthy the attenion of the Congress than that portion of he report of the Attorney-General dealng with the long delays and the great obstruction to justice experienced in the eases of Beavers, Green and Gaynor, and Benson. Were these isolated and special cases, I should not call your attention to them; but the difficulties encountered as regards these men who have been indicted for criminal practices are not exceptional; they are precisely similar in kind to what occurs again and again in the case of criminals who have sufficient means to enable them to take advantage of a system of procedure which grown up in the Federal courts and which amounts in effect to making the aw easy of enforcement against the man who has no money, and difficult of enforcement, even to the point of some times securing immunity, as regards the man who has money. In criminal cases the writ of the United States should run hroughout its borders. The wheels of justice should not be clogged, as they have been clogged in the cases above mentioned, where it has proved absolutey impossible to bring the accused to the place appointed by the Constitution for his trial.

At present the interests of the inno man are amply safeguarded; but the interests of the government, that is, the interests of honest administration. that is the interests of the people, are not recognized as they should be. No subject better warrants the attention of the Congress. Indeed, no subject bette warrants the attention of the bench and the bar throughout the United States. Many suggestions for the improvement of conditions in Alaska are made, among others the admission of a delegate from that territory to con-

Hawail and Porto Rico.

The Alaskan natives should be given the right to acquire, hold, and dispose of property upon the same conditions as given other inhabitants; and the privilege of citizenship should be given to such as may be able to meet certain definite requirements. In Hawaii Congress should give the governor power to remove all the officials appointed under him. harbor of Honolulu should be dredged. The mafine-hospital service should be empowered to study leprosy in the islands. I ask special consideration for the report and recommendations of the governor of Porto Rico. Foreign Policy. In treating of our foreign policy and of the attitude that this great nation should assume in the world at large, it is absolutely necessary to consider the army and the navy, and the Congress, through which the thought of the nation finds its expression, should keep ever vividly in mind the fundamental fact that it impossible to treat our foreign policy. whether this policy takes shape in the

upon the attitude we are willing to take toward our army, and especially toward | western hemisphere. Unless our attitud our navy. It is not merely unwise, it is in these and all similar matters is to be dividual, to use high-sounding language to proclaim its purposes, or to take positions which are ridiculous if unsupported by potential force, and then to refuse to provide this force. If there is no intention of providing and of keeping the force necessary to back up a strong attitude, then it is far better not to assume such an attitude.

The steady aim of this nation, as of all enlightened nations, should be to strive to bring ever nearer the day when there shall prevail throughout the world the peace of justice. There are kinds of peace which are highly undesirable. which are in the long run as destructive as any war. Tyrants and oppressors have many times made a wilderness and called it peace. The peace of tyrannous terror, the peace of craven weakness, the peace of injustice, all these should be shunned as we shun unrighteous war. The goal to set before us as a nation, the goal which should be set before all mankind. is the attainment of the peace of justice, of the peace which comes when each nation is not merely safe-guarded in its own rights, but scrupulously recognizes and performs its duty toward others.

There is as yet no judicial way of enforcing a right in international law. When one nation wrongs another or wrongs many others, there is no tribunal before which the wrongdoer can be brought. Either it is necessary supinely to acquiesce in the wrong, and thus put a premium upon brutality and aggression, or else it is necessary for the aggrieved nation valiantly to stand up for its rights. Until some method is devised by which there shall be a degree of international control over offending nations, it would be a wicked thing for the most civilized powers, for those with most sense of international obligations and with keenest and most generous appreciation of the difference between right and wrong, to disarm. If the great civilized nations of the present day should completely disarm, the result would mean an immediate recrudescence of barbarism in one form or another. Arbitration Treatles.

We are in every way endeavoring to help on, with cordial good will, every movement which will tend to bring us into more friendly relations with the rest of mankind. In pursuance of this policy I shall shortly lay before the Senate treaties of arbitration with all powers which are willing to enter into these treaties with us. Furthermore, at the request of the Interparliamentary Union an eminent body composed of practical statesmen from all countries, I have asked the Powers to join with this government in a second Hague conference. at which it is hoped that the work already so happily begun at The Hague may be carried some steps further toward completion. This carries out the desire expressed by the first Hague conference itseif.

Policy on Western Hemisphere. It is not true that the United States feels any land hunger or entertains any projects as regards the other nations of the western hemisphere save such as are for their welfare. All that this country desires is to see the neighboring countries stable, orderly, and prosperous. Any country whose people conduct themselves well can count upon our hearty friendship. If a nation shows that it knows how to act with reasonable efficiency and decency in social and political matters, if it keeps order and pays its obligations, it need fear no interference from the United States. Chronic wrongdoing, or an impotence which results in general loosening of the ties of civilized society, may in America as elsewhere, ultimately require intervention by some civilized nation, and in the western hemisphere the adherents of the United States to the Monroe doctrine may force in flagrant cases of such wrongdoing or impotence, to the exercise of an international police power. Our interests and those of our southern neighbors are in reality identical. They have great natural riches, and if within their borders the reign of law and justice obtains, prosperity is sure to come to them. While they thus obey the primary laws of civilized society they may rest assured that they will be treated by us in a spirit of cordial and helpful sympathy. We would interfere with them only in the last resort, and then only if it became evident that their inability or unwillingness to do justice at home and abroad had violated the rights of the United States or had invited foreign aggression to the detriment of the entire body of American nations.

In asserting the Monroe doctrine, in taking such steps as we have taken in regard to Cuba, Venezuela, and Panama, and in endeavoring to circumscribe the theater of war in the far East, and to secure the open door in China, we have acted in our own interest as well as in the interest of humanity at large. There are, however, cases in which, while our own interests are not greatly involved, strong appeal is made to our sympathies. There are occasional crimes committed on so vast a scale and of such peculiar horror as to make us doubt whether it is not our manifest duty to endeavor at least to show our disapproval of the deed and our sympathy with those who have suffered by it. The cases must be extreme in which such a course is justiflable. But in extreme eases action may be justifiable and proper. What form the action shall take must depend upon the circumstances of the case; that is, upon the degree of the atrocity and upon our power to remedy it. The cases in which we could interfere by force arms as we interfered to put a stop to intolerable conditions in Cuba are necessarily very few. Yet it is not to be expected that a people like ours, which in pite of certain very obvious shortcomings, nevertheless as a whole shows by its consistent practice its belief in the principles of civil and religious liberty and of orderly freedom, a people among whom even the worst crime, like the time of lynching, is never more than sporadic, so that individuals lasses are molested in their fundamental fights-it is inevitable that such a nation should desire eagerly to give exression to its horror on an occasion like that of the massacre of the Jews in Kishenef, or when it witnesses such sysematic and long-extended cruelty and which the Armenians have been the cietims, and which have won for them he indignant pity of the civilized world. Rights of American Citizens Abroad. Even where it is not possible to secure in other nations the observance of the principles which we accept as axomatic, it is necessary for us firmly to nsist upon the rights of our own citizens without regard to their creed ace; without regard to whether they were born here or born abroad.

The Navy. The strong arm of the government in inforcing respect for its just rights in nternational matters is the navy of the 'nited States I most carnestly recomnend that there be no halt in the work : s no more patriotic duty before us as a people than to keep the navy adequate o the needs of this country's position. The Army.
Within the last three years the United States has set an example in disarmament where disarmament was proper. By law our army is fixed at a maximum of one hundred thousand and a minimum of sixty thousand men. When there was insurrection in the Philippines we kept the army at the maximum. Peace came in the Philippines, and now our army has been reduced to the minimum at which it is possible to keep it with due regard to its efficiency. The guns now mounted require twenty-eight thousand men, if the coast fortifications are to be adequately manned. Relatively to the nation, it is not now so large as the police force of New York or Chicago relatively to the population of either city. We need more officers; there are not enough to perform the regular army work. It is very important that the officers of the army should be accustomed to handle their men in masses, as it is also important that the national guard of the several states should be accustomed to actual field maneuvering, especially in connection with the regulars. For this reason we are to be congratulated upon the success of the field mas enuvers at Manassas last fall, maneuvers in which a larger number of regulars and national guard took part than was ever before assembled together in time of peace. No other civilized nation has, relatively to its population, such a diminutive army as ours; and while the army is so small we are not to be excused if we fail to keep it at a very high grade of proficiency.

Great progress has been made in protecting our coasts by adequate fortincations with sufficient guns. We should. however, pay much more heed than at present to the development of an extenive system of floating mines for use in all our more important harbors. These mines have been proved to be a most formidable safeguard against hostile fleets.

The Philippines. In the Philippine islands there has peen during the past year a continuation of the steady progress which has obtained ever since our troops definitely got the upper hand of the insurgents. The Philippine people, or, to speak more accurately, the many tribes, and even races, sundered from one another more or less sharply, who go to make up the people of the Philippine islands, contain many elements of good, and some elements which we have a right to hope stand for progress. At present they are utterly incapable of existing in independence at all or of building up a civlization of their own. I firmly believe that we can help them to rise higher and higher in the scale of civilization and of capacity for self-government, and nost earnestly hope that in the end they will be able to stand, if not entirely alone, yet in some such relation to the United States as Cuba now stands. This end not yet in sight, and it may be indefinitely postponed if our people are foolish enough to turn the attention of the Filipinos away from the problems of achieving moral and material prosperity. of working for a stable, orderly, and just government, and toward foolish and dangerous intrigues for a complete independence for which they are as yet totally

On the other hand our people must keep steadily before their minds the fact that the justification for our stay in the Philippines must ultimately rest chiefly ers carry stock for months longer upon the good we are able to do in the than they need to because they have islands. I do not overlook the fact that not learned that money spent in nited States, however reluctantly, in the development of our interests in the Pacific ocean and along its coasts, the Philippines have played and will play an important part, and that our interests have been served in more than one way by the possession of the islands. But our chief reason for continuing to hold them must be that we ought in good faith to try to do our share of the world's work, and this particular piece of work has been imposed upon us by the results of the war with Spain. problem presented to us in the Philippine islands is akin to, but not exactly like, the problems presented to the other great civilized powers which have pos sessions in the Orient. More distinctly than any of the powers we are endeavoring to develop the natives themselves so that they shall take an ever-increas ing share in their own government, and as far as is prudent we are already admitting their representatives to a governmental equality with our own. There are commissioners, judges, and governors in the islands who are Filipinos and who have exactly the same share in the government of the islands as have their colleagues who are Americans, while in the lower ranks, of course, the great majority of the public servants are Filipinos. Within two years we shall be trying the experiment of an elective lower house in Meanwhile our own people should rethe Philippine legislature. member that there is need for the highest standard of conduct among the Americans sent to the Philippine islands, not only among the public servants but among the private individuals who go to them. It is because I feel this so deeply that in the administration of these islands I have positively refused to permit any discrimination whatsoever political reasons and have insisted that in choosing the public servants consideration should be paid solely to the worth of the men chosen and to the needs of the islands. There is no higher body of men in our public service than we have in the Philippine islands under Gov. Wright and his associates. So far as possible these men should be given a free hand, and their suggestions should receive the hearty backing both of the Executive and of the Congress. There is need of a vigilant and disinterested support of our public servants in the Philippines by good citizens here in the United States. Unfortunately hitherto those of our people here at home who have specially claimed to be the champions of the Filipinos have in reality been their worst enemies. This will continue to be the case as long as they strive to make the Filipinos independent, oppression as the cruelty and oppression and stop all industrial development of the islands by crying out against the laws which would bring it on the ground that capitalists must not "exploit" islands, Such proceedings are not only unwise, but are most harmful to the Filipinos, who do not need independence atall, but who do need good laws, good public servants, and the industrial development that can only come if the investment of American and foreign capital in the islands is favored in all legitimate ways. Every measure taken concerning the islands should be taken primarily with a view to their advantage. We should certainly give them lower tariff rates on their exports to the United States; if this is not done it will be a wrong to of uptuilding the American navy. But it is no se cret that a good many of these birds are ruined for breeding purpose in a single campaign. It is not an unusual thing to have these prize birds sell for a fancy price, and the buyer be sadly disappointed when he comes to look for results. try may be rapidly built up if the head of the flock is every year a vigorous bird of high breeding. An old scrub will not do. Neither does it do to pick out a fine looking bird, if one of the grades. Using grades to head the flock can never improve the aver age of the flock.

Culling Out.

It does not pay to carry cuils any longer than it is possible to determine that they are culls. Prices are better now than they will be later in the fall, and the birds that are not suitable for breeders should be sent to market as soon as they can be prop erly fitted. If the breeder is trying to raise the standard of his flock it will pay him to cull closely.

Fall Buying.

The time to buy hens and roosters for breeding purposes is in the fall, as the price is then lower than at any other time of year. The large number of birds in the hands of breeders make it easy to secure bargains. When the flocks have all been cut down to half what they are in the fall it will not be so easy to get good birds at a reasonable price.

In Selling Breeders.

The best way to dispose of breeding birds is to advertise them in the agricultural papers. A good many breedvertising is well spent. The cost of advertising is largely paid by the saving in the cost of keeping the birds if they are not sold.

Good Prices for Good Birds. A man can afford to pay a good price for a good bird. A little more vigor than usual is worth money. If a man is intending to build up a flock out of which he hopes to bring prize winners he will find it to his advantage to have an expert score the birds he places at the head of the flock.

Got Rid of the Roosters. Very few roosters are needed in a flock. If the eggs the hens lay are not to be used for setting it is unnecessary to have a male head of the flock. Without him the eggs will keep

Not many fowls should be kept in one house. From 25 to 50 makes a good flock.

Unless wanted for setting, cockerels are useless adjuncts of the flock.

Dairy Notes.

The flavor producing bacteria are the first to perish when heat is applied. Wood is the least satisfactory of all materials used for inside creamery walls. Dairy products, being human food, should be produced in the most cleanly manner. Few people give enough weight to the question of pure water for washing butter. In Omaha cases of sickness on dairy farms must be reported to the Board of Health. . A government report say that the pasteurization of market milk is not yet generally practiced. Within the city limits of Omaha there are 89 herds of dairy cows, which total more than 2,000 daipy animals. As a rule, the larger the city the more milk is sold from stores; the smaller the city the more milk is sold from wagons. In some states milk and cream that have been exposed to contagion from sick persons or animals cannot be legally sold. A model dairy is not necessarily a place where money is lavishly expended for fine blooded cattle and highly adorned buildings. Of the large cities, Boston is the greatest consumer of milk, using over one pint per day. New Orleans is the smallest consumer, using only 27. 100 of a pint daily. In a report the United States Department of Agriculture says that the large southern cities consume per capita only half as much milk as do the northern cities.

At nightfall they have left the other astern, and the fleet greyhound seems to rush over the green waters like a hungry hound in pursuit of a hare. Now they near the American coast

Thus far the steamer has kept up to Jack's expectations, and he feels almost positive of landing before the others. Ts luck will have it, they run into a heavy fog and it becomes necessary to slow down. This promises to bring delay that will add hours to what seemed to presage a record-breaking passage.

Whitles are heard-one hoarse one ahead, where some steamer is plowing through the dense fog. As soon as Travers learns this vessel is going in the same way as themselves he smiles, confident that it is the one he chases.

At length about noon the fog rises and discloses the beach of Far Rockaway on Long Island. Jack's eyes are fastened upon the steamer just ahead, and which they promise to pass about Scotland Lightship.

It is the Anchoria. The Glasgow steamer might have reached port first only for floundering in the fog.

When they pass her black hull cheers are given from lusty throats, and returned with equal vim. Jack scans the passengers along her side. and his heart gives a sudden bound when through his field glasses he discovers-his wife!

The sensation is one not easily forgotten.

Near her hovers Senor Roblado and Juanita.

The latter talks with some gentleman-Jack cannot see him well at first, but when he moves the light strikes his face, and Travers grin's his teeth in sudden rage.

It is Howard Spencer, as dashing as ever, despite his smash-up in Edinburgh. Why does he follow them? Is it because he is a moth fluttering round the candle? The American who has just become an English squire and forsaken all his rich inheritance to go chasing after the girl who bears his name, yet care not whether she be wife or widow-this man frowns, and under his breath says dire things which he may visit upon the head of the offender in case the said Spencer persists in forcing his attentions on Jack Travers' wife.

Reaching quarantine first, the Teutonic is almost through a health exa amination when the other steamer comes limping up, her machinery in bad trim.

So Jack finds ample time after passing the customs ordeal to take a cab, send Ah Sin to an hotel, and in another reach the Anchor line pier just as the Anchoria is pushed into her berth by the noisy little tugs.

He screens himself from observation and thus watches the descent of the passengers as they fall into the hands of the inspectors.

Jack is careful not to show himself; t is to his advantage to have Roblado believe his plan for detaining him in Glasgow worked to a charm. Spencer is not with the party, he having troubles of his own.

As he stands there Jack recognizes in one of the inspectors an old acquaintance, with whom he once spent happy days on the plains. He learns that the authorities have party sailing on the Anchoria is bringing over a vast quantity of precious stones concealed somewhere about his person or luggage, and as the information has been vague, they appear to

His attitude is that of a second-rate tragedian on inspection, but the twinkle in his eye declares the man possessed of intense humor. Jack knows him at sight, and is intensely amused to see him here. "Why, hello, Smithers, my dear man! Been a long time turning up. Beat you across the big pond, you see?" he says, accepting the gravely extended hand of the Scotland Yard agent.

"I've been watching you for some time, sir, and endeavoring to puzzle it out. You were on the Teutonic, I imagine. How did you come to miss my note, and leave me the task of deciding how far I was to follow these peo-

Jack laughs and hastily sketches the manner in which he was so cleverly detained, at hearing which the detective puckers up his mouth as though to whistle.

"That we can decide on later. may want to you to accompany me to "Cuba? That will seem natural enough," returns Smithers, quickly. "You have been there before, then?" "Well, rather. Spent some years in Havana." "Good! I see we can arrange it nicely-that is, if you have no objections to returning there?"

"Well, I don't hanker after it, truth to tell: but business is business. If you want me we can arrange it."

They are close enough when the dor and his ladies move away to hear him direct the driver to the Brevoort house, and before the carriage has reached West street Jack and his companion are snugly esconced in another. having given the wide-awake Jehu orders to keep the first vehicle in sight Senor Roblado is attempting no little game, but brings up safely at the hotel, where his trunks also arrive, in doubtless a condition that makes him more than ever the inveterate foe of the Yankee.

Thus the translation from the Old to the New World has been effected.

There is something connected with this hasty trip of Don Roblado to Havana that Jack does not profess to understand-something that is tinged with mystery in its way, and which excites his curiosity not a little.

It would appear more natural for the senor to have remained in Great Britain until his claim in behalf of his hands of lawyers, and posting off in the Atlantic.

At first it appears as though they will have to go by the same boat, which makes the chances of discovery very great; but wise Jack, after an investigation, finds a way of reaching Havana ahead of the party, after seeing them off, by means of the train to

"Well, they're off," says Travers, rather gloomily, as he stands on the pier and sees the steamer moving toward the upper bay.

He has been looking through his marine glasses, but although the tall, arrogant figure of Roblado is readily discerned, the one he seeks is not in sight.

That is what gives him a fit of the blues. Jack is not at all the same fellow as of yore, for when once that burning feeling creeps into a chap's heart, good-by to his peace of mind and the bonhomie ways that formerly made him the best-liked of men: and the thought that renders him moody now is the possibility of her being in the cabin of the steamer in conversation with the detested Spencer.

"I should have thrown him into a duck pond, or clipped his wings in some way," is the rather vicious thought that intrudes upon his mind. The day of reckoning will come sooner or later, and may discharge this debt.

Sharks and War. The fishermen of the northern part of the Adriatic sea are alarmed at the number and size of the sharks that have been caught there since June. Three were taken in Istria one was caught lately in Quarnero. The Adriatic fishermen declare that hese sharks are fish that have been driven out of the Yellow sea and the Siberian waters by the many frightful submarine mine explosions. They allege that since the beginning of the Russo-Japanese war the number of sharks in the Mediterranean sea has increased steadily.

It has been known for some time that the Suez canal has been the means of bringing a great many big sharks into the Mediterranean every year. The shark is a fish which will follow a ship for days and weeks, once he finds that a steady supply of offal is thrown overboard. The amount cast into the sea daily from a big passenger steamship is so great that it would suffice for half a dozen sharks, greedy as these brutes are. Therefore, it is not strange that practically every liner is dogged all the way from Asiatic vaters by big sharks. The Suez canal does not stop them, and they stay with the ship till it leaves the Straits of Gibraltar. By that time most of them have found the great schools of tunny and other fish that fill the Mediterranean, and they desert the ship and stay thereafter in the great interior ocean, to the vast injury of the fishermen.

Safeguarding the Paper Currency.

To the average man the paper used by Uncle Sam for currency outranks all others in value and attractiveness. This paper, used variously for money, bonds, checks, internal revenue stamps, etc., is made in Pittsfield. Mass., in one of the most perfect paper manufactories in the world. In the eyes of the government it is the perfection of its manufacture that gives value to what is known as "money paper," and there is, contrary to the general impression, no secret in either the process or formula.

Reliance against imitation is placed on the sitall required, and on the fact that the machinery essential to prowith the aids of the well-known silk fibers and the statutory provisions against its unauthorized manufacture and possession, offer the chief protection against counterfeiting; and it is acknowledged by the secret service that the government paper itself is a greater safeguard to the treasury than the intricacies of design and engrav-

Only in money paper are silk threads used, but while the sheet is still soft the government watermark is pressed into the other papers. This watermark is the simple monogram, "U. S. T. D." for check paper, "U. S. P. D." for postage stamps, and "U. S. I. R." for revenue paper.

Never was the Iron Duke more gracious than on that day which the boy Kendall, son of his grace's valet, spent with him, greatly to the lad's surprise. "We dine at 1 o'clock, sir," the wouth had answered. "And a very good hour," Wellington had replied. "I did so when I was at school. Well, I have ordered an early dinner."

So his grace and the boy of 10 sat down alone, much to the alarm of the valet, who thought the end of all things was near.

After grace the duke told the lad that he had ordered several things to be brought, and would help him to each, "For," he added, "I know little boys like to taste all they see." During the meal the duke talked constantly and always kindly. Dinner ended, his grace shook hands with Kendall and bade him good-bye.

"Be a good boy and do your duty. Now you may go to your father."

ATTACKS DARWIN THEORY.

Holland Professor Electrifies Congress of Arts and Science by Denouncing Popular Idea.

Combating the theory of Darwin as to the origin of species and advancing a theory of his own which revolutionizes all ideas of biologists and phyologists, Prof. Hugo De Vries, professor of botany in the University of Amsterdam, Holland, electrified 350 members of the congress of arts and science who gathered at the meeting of the section of phylogony in convention hall at St. Louis recently.

His address, which gave for the first time to the scientific world in detail the results of a lifetime research, roused immediate interest, and following the eminent European Prof. Charles O. Whitman, of the University of Chicago, took instant objection to his theories. President David Starr Jordan, the most noted of the defenders of Darwinism, and biologists from all sections of the world participated in the hot debate which followed.

Prof. De Vries does not wholly discredit Darwin. On the contrary, he rather emphasizes some of the main essentials of that renowned scientist. but in such a manner that if the thought of the Hollander becomes recognized as a basic principle of evolution Darwin must necessarily be relegated to the ranks of those who for a time have occupied the stage of ac-

In theoretical language the thought of Prof. De Vries is in this strain: Natural selection is only a seine and is no force of nature, no direct force of nature as has so often been asserted. Artificial selection consists of two main principles, called variety-testing and racial improvement. Species as we see them in nature fluctuate within fixed limits which are not seen to be transgressd.

ROOSTERS CROW FOR PRIZE

Cock-a-Doodle-Do Contest Looked Upon in Gay Paris as an Ideal Sport.

Great preparations are being made for a cock-crowing competition which is to take place in Paris soon. The owners of the gay chanticleers are assiduously experimenting with their birds in order to find the best means of training them.

One man has hit upon the idea of keeping the roosters cooped up in the dark all the time and then suuddenly letting them out into the light at the hour at about which the competition is announced to take place. The birds on seeing the light think it is dawn and set up a lusty crowing, which they keep up joyously for several minutes. They are then shut up in a well aired but dark coop until the next day at the same hour. Every day the birds keep up theircrowat Wiles Dexter's new residence on ing a few seconds longer, and the proud Dexter street, John Oliver had a narrow owner hopes that he will eventually suc-

Each owner has a special composition with which he feeds his birds, but meat and phosphates form a part of all. During the competition a timekeeper registers the number and notes of the cock's crow, and the bird which crows the oftenest and has the most melodious notes carries off a handsome prize. The French Bantam club has made the discovery that the best crowers are the roosters whose hens lay the best eggs. so that this bloodless but noisy mode of competition is likely not only to supersede cock fighting, but in the long run perhaps will improve the qualities of

"I have used it in my family for piles, cuts and burns for years and can recommend it to be the best salve on the market. Every family should keep it, as it is an invaluable household remedy, and should always be kept on hand for immediate use. Mrs. Samuel Gage, of North Bush, N. Y., says: "I had a fever sore on my ankle for twelve years that the doctors could not core. All salves and blood remedies proved worthless. I could not walk for over two years. Finally I was persuaded to try DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve, which has completely cured me. It is a wonderful relief." DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve cures without leaving a scar. ## BILIOUSNESS CONSTIPATION CURED BY THEDFORDS BLACK-DRAUGHT

Because the liver is neglected people suffer with constipation, biliousness, headaches and fevers. Colds attack the lungs and contagious diseases take hold of the system. It is safe to say that if the liver were always kept in proper working order, illness would be almost unknown.

Thedford's Black-Draught is so successful in curing such sickness because it is without a rival as a liver regulator. This great family medicine is not a strong and drastic drug, but a mild and healthful laxative that cures constination and may be taken but stipation and may be taken by a mere child without possible

The healthful action on the liver cures biliousness. It has an invigorating effect on the kidneys. Because the liver and kidneys do not work regularly, the poisonous acids along with the waste from the bowels get back into the blood and virulent contagion results.

Timely treatment with Thed-ford's Black-Draught removes the dangers which lurk in constipation, liver and kidney troubles, and will positively forestall the inroads of Bright's disease, for which disease in advanced stages there is no cure. Athletics may be for good or evil and in the same manner as a two-edged The prime object in athletics is improvement of the general health. One writer has said that health, like happiness, does not exist. He said the body consists of a number of mechanisms which have the closest and most exact relations, and as they approximate to harmony there is health, but when disordered there is ill health. To obtain good health muscle-building is not a necessity. One cannot judge the boys and Grevengoed turned on of a person's health by the size and him. ### Newberry's Prospect.

It is said Truman H. Newberry, of Detroit, will be appointed assistant secretary of the navy. Mr Newberry has enjoyed the friendship of President Roosevelt for many years, and their intimacy was shown when Mr. Roosevelt was assistant secretary of the navy. At that time Mr. Roosevelt wrote a history of the battle of Lake Erie in the war of 1812, and he spent month on Mr. Newberry's yacht, the Truant, while gathering material for his literary work. Last summer, Mr. Newberry spent two weeks with the president and his family at Oyster Bay. A position of honor in the navy department would probably be peculiarly satisfactory - to Mr. Newberry. He has always taken a great deal of interest in naval affairs, being one of the organizers of the Naval Reserves sword, opines the Medical Record. of Detroit, and having served as an officer on the Yosemite during the Spanish-American war.

FOUR MILE LAKE.

William Coe left Monday for Saline where he will spend the next two weeks making contracts with farmers to grow sugar beets for the Detroit Sugar Beet

Last Thursday evening some one left a hand car on the Boland track near the cement plant, and first car for the works Friday morning ran into it and the men were badly shaken up, but fortunately none of them were seriously injured. Owing to the snow and darkness the men did not observe the obstruction until they were upon it.

Wm. Coe had 30 acres of sugar beets on his farm this year that he thinks will produce 13 or 14 carloads. He uses the side tracks of the White Portland Cement Co., near his home, where he loads the cars, and they are shipped to the Mt. Clemens plant of the Detroit Sugar Beet Co., who contracted for the crop last spring. Mr. Coe has already shipped several car loads, and when asked for his opinion as to the paying qualities of the crop he at once pronounced the beet crop as the best paying one on the farm. The prospects are good for an increase in acerage in this vicinity next year, over the present

Bread of Nations.

Even the poor in the United States and England eat white bread. In most of the continental countries of Europe rye bread is the staple. The Russians use buckwheat. The Laplanders have a bread made of oaten meal mixed with pine bark, and the Icelanders make their flour from lichens. Banana flour is used in the South Sea islands.

GIBRALTAR'S 200 YEARS.

On August 4, 1704 (new style), the Rock of Gibraltar was captured by Great Britain, and it has remained in her possession from that day to this. Among the many possessions scattered all over the globe that are comprised in the British Empire today there is none that the nation holds with greater tenacity for reasons both of sentiment and of material interest, and none that it would lose with more poignant shame and sorrow, than the redoubtable stronghold we took from Spain at the beginning of the reign of Queen Anne. The fact that throughout the eighteenth century, when so many conquests in both hemispheres changed hands backward and forward in successive wars and under successive treaties, Gibraltar remained permanently in the keeping of England might seem to prove that British sentiment with regard to it was from the first the same as it is today. But this is far from having been the case. For, although at the end of 200 years of our possession of the fortress, at a time when the imperial instinct of Englishmen has become more consciously developed and more deeply ingrained than ever before, and at the same time more intelligently appreciative of the true meaning of sea power and alive to the strategical requirements of its maintenance, the retention of the key of Mediterranean has become an essential article of our political creed, it was a considerable time before the imvalue of the acquisition was fully realized by British statesmen.

It seems strange enough to us to remember that King George I, and his Ministers were ready to give up Gibraltar merely to secure Spain's acquiescence in the arrangement by which the quadruple alliance was anxious to make some petti-fogging medifications in the shuffle of territories affected by the treaty of Ut-recht, but it is still more extraordinary that so clear sighted, patriotic and high us to recover Minorca-and this, moreover, at a time when the forcess had been in our hands for more than half a century and its vital importance to our growing maritime supremacy had already been abundantly proved in the naval wars of the period. Happily the Spaniards were as blind as ourselves to the supreme importance of the position, commanding the road from the Atlantic to the Mediterranean. The truth is, as readers of Mahan do not need to be reminded, that the importance of sea power and the nature of the foundations on which it is based were very imperfectly grasped even by gland in the seventeenth and the first half of the eighteenth century, and scarcely at all by any other European power. Occasionally at intervals some statesman like Colbert, in France, or Alberoni, in Spain, had more than an inkling of the truth, but no nation except England made deliberate and sustained efforts with a view to maritime development. Even England did so rather by instinct than by insight. Of this blindness to the true principles of maritime policy the taking of Gibraltar and its history during the following three-quarters of a century afford a striking illustration. Just as the vast importance of its acquisition was at the time underrated both by England and Spain, so its actual capture by the former was an afterthought and (it may almost be said) an accident. It became a British possession in the first instance because at a time when we happened to be at war with one of the rival claimants to the with one of the rival claimants to the Spanish throne our admiral in the Mediterranean happened to have no particular objective in view, and, having failed in his only enterprise of that year, was unwilling to return home with a fine fleet that had done nothing for the honor of the flag. So he thought he might as well make an attack on Gibraltar as do anything else. Nevertheless, his action has
