It is not at all likely that the amounts to be paid out weekly by the company for labor will be any less than at present for many moons to come, and when the company's building operations are completed and the manufacture of cement is under full headway it certainly will increase rather than decrease.

In view of these facts it does seem as though Chelsea business men should stir themselves if they really want to see the Boland line in operation and these substantial benefits accruing to them.

Sudden Death of a Child.

Lena C., the little 6 years old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Schiller, of Madison street, died Saturday morning under very distressing circumstances. The child had had a pain in her stomach Friday morning and Mrs. Schiller gave her some whiskey sling to ease the pain. When Mrs. Schiller went away she left the bottle of liquor standing on the table. The child got at it and drank a quantity of it. Shortly afterwards it fell asleep. About 3 o'clock it went into convulsions and despite all that medical aid could do the child could not be relieved and died Saturday morning. The funeral was held at the St. Paul's Evangelical church Monday Rev. A. Schoen officiating and the little one was laid to rest in Oak Grove cemetery.

Sylvan Tax Budget.

Township Treasurer Riemenschneider is now engaged in the collection of the taxes for the township of Sylvan. Up to the present the amount collected has not been large.

The total amount to be collected this year is $16,434.83, of which the state tax is $3,463.75, county tax $2,-200, school tax $6,895.24, poor fund $200, highway tax $1,445. The tax rate, minus the school tax in the several districts, is $5.09 on each $1.000 valuation. The total rate in the village is $10.65 per $1,000.

The electric railways pay over $1,-000 of the amount. The J. A. A. & D. contributes $447.12, the D. Y. A. A. & J. $553.40.

Estate Going a-Begging.

There is an estate in the Washtenaw probate office which is practically going a-begging, with no known heirs to claim it. It is that of Fred B. Campbell, a Freedom township farmer, who died without known heirs and his estate of $2,400 has no claimants. He was the adopted son of a farmer who lived in Jackson county, and he was never known to speak of his parents or say whether he had any living relatives. It has been reported unofficially to the probate court, however, that his real name was Pomeroy and that he has a sister somewhere in the state. Campbell inherited the property Fancy Howe Cranberries, from his adopted father.

"Wait a little, the lady bids you

It was the old dame. I waited until she hobbled near, thinking the damsel had sent a message. I was mistaken. It was more jollity the lady wished.

"Take your fish, my Lord of the World," the nurse mumbled from between loose teeth, as she held out the basket of trout I had left on the grass. "I'll answer for it that ye'll get ne'er bite nor sup to-day but these same, my Lord-my Lord Fishmonger."

Then she cacchinated, echoed in the woods by a fresh young voice. Milady was enjoying herself immensely. Such had been my meeting with Mistress Rosemary Allyn.

I laughed now as I recalled it. Mistress Rosemary Allyn thought me a boor, and because I dressed as the villagers, that I needs must be one of them. 'Sdeath! she might have seen with half an eye, had she not been so engrossed in her own little tempest, that my kerseymere was of the finest, and my linen being from the hand loom to Nance was of as sheer a texture as any to be had in London, aye, or even Paris. Again, I laughed as I looked abroad. For as far as eye could see from the emimy own land.

A Pair of Blue Eyes.

We reached a point where two roads met. I took the lower one, telling Gil that I should be home anon. Inclination and desire to again see Mistress Rosemary Allyn pulled my horse's bridle reins in the direction of Castle Drout.

Castle Drout was the only dwelling | Such daintiness, such femininity

"No," I returned. "I prefer to give

"Well, London," at last she admitted, with a shrug of her pretty shoulders. At which a lace scarf knotted about them became unloosed. "London of course-London the home of handsome women and gallant men. London should suit you, sir, and you suit London down to the ground," she added with a toss of her head, and quick change of expression as though to apply a compliment.

"Whereabouts in London?" I persistently asked.

"Seek and ye shall find," she briefly answered.

"If I should wish to see the maid." said, and I gave her a glance meant to be most taking, "where shall I find her?"

"Seek her, too, and ye shall find," she said smiling audaciously. "But would you not like to see the bird's cage-I mean the Castle?"

I acquiesced and followed her for very idleness I think, through the portals into the house. We passed many rooms of old and quaint furnishings. We came to the end of a long hall in a wing separated from the rest.

She threw open a door in a mysterious, sly manner, and said in a raised voice while her eyes were demurely dropped: "The mistress's."

The room was daintiness itself in its extreme femininity, albeit the bed was disarranged as if milady had but just arisen. Lace fine as cobwebs was valanced about bed and dressing table. The table was bare of any toilet articles, save a box or two, but many silken bows stuck here and there filled up the barreness, and gave a touch of beauty to the whole. A large roomy chair of blue and white damask, an immense divan upholstered in the same material, with a few spindle legged chairs was about all the room contained.

I received a thrust in the shoulder.

I came near the castle. It loomed still and quaint as a deserted house. I got off my horse and left him to graze. I sat down on a bowlder not many yards from its postern gate. I supposed I was hidden from the eyes of its inhabitants, yet from my place of vantage could see if perchance any one either emerged or went in through the narrow portals of the gate. I had not been there many minutes siting with my chin resting upon my hands, when a voice said: "What need to watch the cage when the bird has flown away?"

It was the wierdest place; people came upon one without a sound. I started and my face flushed.

Quickly I assumed an indifferent air, for one does not care to wear one's heart upon one's sleeve for daws to peck at, and certainly this was a daw -a most pert one-that stood beside me. It was a red-haired maid with bold black eyes, which peered saucily into mine who had spoken. She was capped, aproned, and had all the other accessories that go to make up the toilet of a fashionable lady's maid. "Bird? What bird, my pretty maid?" I asked. "As if the gentleman did not know?"

she said.

"I know that you're a deucedly pretty one," I affirmed, and I kissed her cheek.

"Oh, lud!" she cried, with a mock show of indignation. "What would Mistress Rosemary say?" To that terse question I had no an-

Then, "My good maid, tell me where Mistress Rosemary Allyn has goneif gone she has.? "Where would a fine lady go?" she

"You have a glib tongue, my girl,"

I put in sharply. "I serve a glib mistress," she retorted as sharply with a courtesy.

grew hot for shamefacedness at myself-an intruder-going there. turned away, but not before I had caught sight of a pale blue satin slipper hiding under a frail chair. To see was to desire-to desire was to obtain. But how? All sorts of ludicrous ideas flashed upon me as a means of becoming the owner of that crumpled slipper. The maid-most acute observer-divined my thoughts ere I had time to say a word. "Pretty, is it not?" she laughed. "Pretty, "indeed," I admitted, admiring her cunning.

"What will ye pay for it?" she

"What you will," I replied, delighted at being able to gain possession so

"A sovereign, please, sir," she said. I put my hand into my pocket and drew out the gold piece. I passed it into her greedy palms—fat pink palms. Evidently Mistress Rosemary

I picked up the slipper, and before I put it away balanced it lightly upon the tips of my fingers, while I yet stayed to banter the pretty maid, even to pinch her saucy cheeks.

spoiling of her hands.

I had my back to the door. The woman faced it. I read in the steadying of her too heavily bowed cupid's lips that some one stood in its entrance. I turned, and saw a youth the maid's faded as the lesser beauty must always before the greater when brought together. He looked not more than sixteen. He was blue-eyed, raven wigged, and as exquisitely appointed as a court beauty. Venetian lace fell over his jeweled fingers-ribbons knotted his low shoes. From his wrist a pouncet ball dangled and wafted all the odors of Arabia. He was a dazzling sight to behold. "Mistress Rosemary's brother!" gasped the maid, and then she flopped into the easy chair.

"To what, sir, am I indebted for the honor of seeing you in this poor

"The honor, sir, is mine," I replied, striving to make time in which some reasonable excuse should come to me for my presence in his sister's room "But why, sir, why?" he aske

"No why," I answered bluntly. "Idle

"Curiosity!" he echoed. "A wom in's excuse. And what pray is that oing in your pocket?"

He touched with his sword which he had been playing with since his advent into the room, the heel of the slipper sticking from where I had dropped it.

"My property, bought and paid for," answered jealously.

"Bought from a thieving maid," he said, while he glanced scornfully at her, who with her handkerchief to her face seemed doubled up with fears and tears. "Since you value it so highly, perhaps you'll not mind fighting for it?" "You see that I am unarmed," I replied with a shrug. "That can be soon remedied," he

He stepped to the wall and took a rapier from the rack hanging there.

He held it out hilt to hilt with the one that he had, measuring them. "You see they are alike," he said.

I bowed and accepted the swordcould do no less. "Surely not here?" I made one more protest. "Oh, lud!" the maid cried.

"Silence, you have brought it upon yourself," he said to her. To me with a bow, "Tis as good a place as another."

I intended to lesson him quickly and have done with the business, which conferred no honor upon me. Back and forth we swept. I would not forget he was her brother! I soon found that his slender wrists were like steel, and that he was as agile as a cat. I was warm parrying his dexterous thrusts and sought an opportunity to end the affair with as little harm as I could; but fighting gets into the blood when you have a bright point before you, and we both fought as though we loved it.

I had him against the wall-he was almost tired out-his breath came in gasps. I looked into his face with a half laugh before giving him the pink which should stop proceedings. God! he had eyes like his sister's, and the same daintily curved lips. It put me off my guard for the briefest second, but it was enough. Being a youth of great quickness, he took advantage of my momentary aberration. I received a thrust in the shoulder. He lowered his sword.

"First blood!" cried the maid authoritatively. "It is enough."

Honor was satisfied. The young spark was smiling slightly, but his face was as white as the lace handkerchief he drew back and forth over the gleaming length of his rapier, reddening it.

"As the gentleman has paid twice for the shoe in both blood and money, I think, sir, it belongs to him," said the maid persuasively.

The youth shrugged his shoulders while he muttered something about its being an old thing, and consequently of no account-a brother's view.

"I am afraid, sir, that you are more seriously wounded than you think," he said, as he pointed to the dark spot gradually enlarging on my shirt. "A scratch; no more," I hastily said.

"Let me bind it up," begged the maid. "I pray you accept of the maid's services," said the youth; "you will find her an adept at all such tasks." He gave out a soft laugh.

Yorkshiremen, is one of the best of the home-brewed drinks. Made from freshly-plucked sweet violets, it is often kept for years by farmers, who drink it sparingly in tiny glasses, yet it retains all the delicious aroma of the fragrant flower from which it takes its name.

Home-made sloe wine is a drink which takes a lot of beating as a thirst-quencher. It is especially popular in Durham.

Cowslip wine is another prime favorite unknown to the inhabitants of cities. So, too, are a host of "teas," famous in rural parts not only for their refreshing, but also for their curative powers. Years ago, before the tea from

India and China could be bought cheaply, beverages brewed from mint, pennyroyal, dandelion, wild thyme, marjoram, camomile, balm, calamint and similar herbs, were almost uni-

Violet cordial, a liquor beloved of plants and current bushes make a fragrant beverage, as do ribwort and thoroughwort, the latter both as a refresher and a curative, being found in very many households. Strange as it may seem, a drink can be made from sawdust. Here is the recipe: Two tons of sawdust are boiled with sulphuric acid for three hours, the liquid matter then extracted by pressure, neutralized, left for eighteen hours to cool and clarify, and then fermented for four or five days.

The resulting alcohol is afterward distilled and rectified, but a yield of about nine and one-half quarts of spirit to every hundred-weight of sawdust is obtained. Quantities of this are consumed in France.

Palm wine is made from the sap oozing from the cut-off blossom stems of the oily palm tree, and of the cocoa tree. It is a pleasant, refreshing beverage, and not sufficiently known. Isitshimiyana is the weirdy name given to a deadly intoxicant made from molasses by the natives of Natal. An analysis of this drink made some time ago by an eminent doctor showed that it was 50 per cent stronger than any known alcohol.—Straw Stories.

Flounder

The expression "as flat as a fluon- is in the position of the eye. In some der" has become proverbial, but it does not apply to very young flounders, which differ so much from the adult ones that they can hardly be recognized as belonging to the same family as their parents. Most boys and girls are familiar with full-grown flounders, but very few of them, and few older people, know anything about the appearance of young flounders and the wonderful transformations they undergo.

The flounders begin life as do ordinary fishes. When they first emerge from the egg they swim vertically, with the head turned upward. Their bodies are symmetrical and their eyes are on opposite sides of the head. Gradually the position of the body changes from vertical to horizontal, and the fish remains thus for some time, swimming like ordinary fishes; but while still very small there is foreshadowing of the bottom life they are destined for, and they enter upon a series of remarkable changes.

flounders the eye moves around the front of the head; in others it moves directly through the head. This shifting of the eye's position is accompanied by a change in the position of the body, which ceases to be upright and becomes more and more oblique. The side of the body from which the eve is moving gradually becomes inferior to the other, until by the time the change of the eye is complete the fish swims with its blind side underneath, and this position is ever after maintained. The flounder then ceases its free swimming habit and sinks to the bottom. Some species of flounders are right-sided and others are left-sided. In the right-sided forms the left eye moves to the right side, and the left side becomes undermost. In the left-sided species the opposite conditions prevail. It rarely happens that right-sided species have left-sided individuals. and vice versa. In a few species both right-sided and left-sided fish occur in The most striking of these changes about equal numbers.-St. Nicnolas.

The disturbing element in hunting elephant you have wounded comes elephant or seladang or rhino has been smashing his way in your direction always, to me at least, the feeling of uncertainty as to whether or not I could stop the animal if I wounded it and it charged me, as it did on an average of once in three times.

Based on my experience, therefore, I should place the elephant first and the rhino third after the seladang, which is fully as formidable as the Cape buffalo, and is miscalled the bison all over India. Each of these animals is dangerous on different and individual grounds; the elephant, though less likely to charge than any his enormous strength, which stops "Castle Drout will yet be your un- at no obstacle, and the extreme difficulty of reaching a vital spot, especiany if, with trunk tightly corled, he is because of the thick jungle he seeks when wounded, but more especially because of his tremendous vitality and his usual, though not invariable, habit of awaiting the hunter on his tracks and charging suddenly, swiftly and viciously. Giver Must Have Clear, High Stand ard of His Cwn.

From the top of a mountain you can see into the valley around aboutyour horizon is very broad, and you can distinguish the details that it encompasses; but, from the valley, you cannot see the top of the mountain and your horizon is limited, says Annie Payson Call in Leslie's Monthly.

This illustrates truly the breadth and power of wholesome human sympathy. With a real love for human natureif a man has a clear, high standard of his own-a standard which he does not attribute to his own intelligencehis understanding of the lower standards of other men will also be very clear, and he will take all sorts and conditions of men into the region within the horizon of his mind. Not my that, but he will recognize the fact when the standard of another men is higher than his own, and will be ready to ascend at once when he be comes aware of a higher point of view. On the other hand, when selfishness is sympathizing with selfishness, there is no ascent possible, but only the one little low place limited by the personal selfish interests of those concerned.

"My wife has been a sufferer from complication of diseases for the past twenty-five years. Her case has baffled the skill of some of the most noted physicians. One of her worst troubles was chronic constipation of several years' standing. She was also passing through that most critical period in the life of a woman-change "In June, 1895, I wrote to you about her case. You advised a course of Peruna and Manalin, which we at once commenced, and have to say it completely cured her.

"About the same time I wrote you about my own case of catarrh, which had been of twenty-five years' standing. At times I was almost past going. I commenced to use Peruna according to your instructions and continued its use for about a year, and it has completely cured me. Your remedies do all that you claim for them, and even more."-John O. Atkinson.

In a letter dated January 1, 1900, Mr. Atkinson says, after five years' experience with Peruna:

DEVIL GUARDED THE GOLD.

His Satanic Majesty's Portrait Indicated Treasurer House. In this instance, as often, His Satanic Majesty proved a good guide to riches. Recently workmen were papering a wall in an old house at Perpignon, in the south of France. On the wall was fixed, as a curious ornament, a very ancient sculptured chair. The workman found it necessary to remove this, and discovered that the back of the chair had hidden a mural painting of the devil, horns, tail, cloven foot, diabolic grin-all.

Sounding the wall with their hammers the workmen easily found there was a hollow space behind it, into which they broke. There lay a big pile of tarnished gold pieces, some French, most of them Spanish.

Of course this wealth amounting to some thousands of francs, reverted to the owner of the house. He rewarded handsomely those who found it, and does not concern himself whether it was accumulated by the aid of the sulphurous personage whose portrait indicated its hiding place.

RAPID SPREAD OF PLANTS.

Seize Wide Stretches of Land in Glorious Profusion.

It is marvelous how rapidly some plants will spread themselves over wide stretches of land, says Longman's Magazine. The writer was struck with the way in which the yellow charlock took possession of the line when the Meon Valley railway was being made a few years ago. The very next spring after the embankments were thrown up their sides were clothed with this rampant and conspicuous crucifier. A line of yellow across the country marked in many places the course of the railway. Poppies, too, for some unknown reason, will occasionally appear in strange and wonderful profusion. The striking instance related by Lord Macaulay may be quoted by way of illustration. After the batte of Landen the ground, he tells us, "during many months was strewn with skulls and bones of men and horses, and with fragments of hats and shoes, saddles and holsters. The next summer, the soil, fertilized by twenty thousand corpses, broke forth into millions of Photography Foreshadowed. La Fontaine, who died long before Scheele was born, gives in one of his fables a method of picture-making which may be regarded as foreshadowing the beautiful art which is now of service to mankind in so many different ways. It occurs under the title "Voyage Suppose," and a description runs as follows: "There was no painter in that country; but if anybody wished to have the portrait of a friend, of a picture, a beautiful landscape, or of any other object, water was placed in great basins of gold or silver, and then the object desired to be painted was placed in front of that water. After a while the water froze and became a glass mirror, on which an ineffaceable image remained."-T. L. Hopeworth in Chambers' Journal.

Memories of Lady Tennyson. Shortly after Lady Tennyson's marriage one of her women friends wrote the following: "We would find Mrs. Tennyson alone in the large drawing room-always writing-arrayed in a dress of soft gray merino trimmed with velvet or fur, and with a long train, a piece of rich old lace, worn instead of a cap, drooping over her hair behind and coming to a point in front. She was extremely kind in lending us books; among these I particularly remember Fichte's philosophical works, which she admired greatly Her manner was always most gracious and dignified-perhaps rather languid, but this arose chiefly from lack of vitality or physical strength."

I have spent twelve years at the University of Cambridge and nine years of this period I have spent in teaching. I have always found that the fool at sports is the fool at books. Conversely, the good athlete is also a good student. The explanation is perfectly simple. A man or woman without brains cannot learn anything. They will be as great fools at games as they are fools at study.-Letter in London Mail.

Singing Insects of Japan. Among the natural curiosities of Japan are its singing insects. The jet of falling water consists ordinarily most prized of these tiny musicians is of two parts-a clear column and a black beetle named "susumushi," which means 'insect bell." Trying Spring Weather.

One of the odd observations of the medical profession is that of the deaths in all parts of the country, the number is larger in March and April of each year and smaller in October and November.

The letters of Miss Merkley, whose picture is printed above, and Miss Claussen, prove beyond question that thousands of cases of inflammation of the ovaries and womb are annually cured by the use of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

"Dear Mrs. Pinkham: — Gradual loss of strength and nerve force told me something was radically wrong with me. I had severe shooting pains throught the pelvic organs, cramps and extreme irritation compelled me to seek medical advice. The doctor said that I had ovarian trouble and ulceration, and advised an operation. Istrongly objected to this and decided to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I soon found that my judgment was correct, and that all the good things said about this medicine were true, and day by day I felt less pain and increased appetite. The ulceration soon healed, and the other complications disappeared and in eleven weeks I was once more strong and vigorous and perfectly well.

"My heartiest thanks are sent to you for the great good you have done me." - Sincerely yours, Miss MARGARET MERKLEY, 275 Third St.,

Miss Claussen Saved from a Surgical Operation.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM: - It seems to me that all the endorsements that I have read of the value of Lydia E. Pinkham's Compound do not express one-half of the virtue the great medicine really possesses. I know that it saved my life and I want to give the credit where it belongs. I suffered with ovarian trouble for five years, had three operations and spent hundreds of dollars on doctors and medicines but this did not cure me

"However, what doctors and medicines failed to do, Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound did. Twenty bottles restored me to perfect health and I feel sure that had I known of its value before, and let the doctors alone, I would have been spared all the pain and expense that fruitless operations cost me. If the women who are suffering, and the doctors do not help them, will try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, they will not be disappointed with the results."— MISS CLARA M. CLAUSSEN, 1307 Penn St., Kansas City, Mo.

Sick Headache

When your head aches, there is a storm in the nervous system, centering in the brain.

This irritation produces pain in the head, and the turbulent nerve current sent to the stomach causes nausea, vomiting.

This is sick headache, and is dangerous, as frequent and prolonged attacks weaken the brain, resulting in loss of memory, inflammation, epi-lepsy, fits, dizziness, etc.

Allay this stormy, irritated, aching condition by taking Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills.

They stop the pain by soothing, strengthening and relieving the tension upon the nerves -not by paralyzing them, as do most headache remedies.

Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills do not contain opium, morphine, chloral, cocaine or similar drugs. "Sick headache is hereditary in my family. My father suffered a great deal, and for many years I have had spells that were so severe that I was unable to attend to my business affairs for a day or so at a time. During a very severe attack of headache, I took Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills and they relieved me almost immediately. Since then I take them when I feel the spell coming on and it stops it at once."

The state institutions of Michigan have made demands on the state legislature for appropriations for the ensuing blennial period aggregating $2,073,460. From this sum the state board of corpriations approved by the board two years ago was $1,688,250, so that if the legislature approves the recommendations of the board of corrections

HENIOUS OFFENSE

Child Tells a Story and Then Denles

The fate of Calvin French and Mrs. Nancey Tracey, prisoners in the Eaton county jail, hangs upon the word of the latter's 14-year-old daughter, Blanche Woodruff. It was due to statements made by the child to a friend that the mother and her farmer friend, French, find themselves facing a charge, the particulars of which are as degrading as they are heinous. But now that the arrests have been made and Proseprepared what he considers a strong case, the child denies the truth of the statements she herself made. During the summer the child found ber way to Mrs. Harmon's where she told the most shocking tale. The charge against French was an infamous one. Equally so was the statement regarding the mother, whom the child charged with forcing her to submit to the degradation imposed upon her by French. Mrs. Harmon finally acquainted the officials of the county with the statements made to her by the child and the charge was prepared.

observed quietly, after they had covered half the distance to the house, "isn't it rather odd to build such a home as yours in so wild a place? I did not suppose there was even a log cabin within a hundred miles."

"My father likes the location," the girl said coldly, "and so do I. Here we are now-that is my father on the piazza."

As she spoke they passed from behind a hedge of transplanted New England barberry bushes, brilliant with their scarlet clusters of seedy fruit, directly in front of the entrance. Her father had half risen and was looking down at them inquiringly.

"This is a man I caught in our horse stable, father," the girl explained. "He says he was looking in out of curiosity, but I believe he is the thief who has been taking our horses. You can talk with him though, and find out. Watch him closely, for he's armed. I will go round to the kitchen and see if the Chinaman has got dinner about

As she disappeared in the house the stranger turned away to hide a smile. These people were not very experienced in thief-taking.

"You will excuse my not rising, sir," the host was saying courteously, "but unfortunately I am at present a little indisposed. Please step up on the piazza and take that chair. Place the books upon the table."

There were several small tables on the piazza and a number of chairs, and tables and chairs were all occupied by books. The prisoner went to the chair indicated and removed the books to the table at the man's elbow. As he did so he gazed at the thin, smoothly-shaven face with a puzzled look that was half recognition.

But the keen, quizzical eyes were piercing him through and through, and as he sat down he had a feeling that he was back at college and his professor was probing him for the truth of some misdemeanor. Soon, however, the man's face cleared and the searching eyes lost their look of fixed inquiry.

"You are blameless, sir," the incisive voice declared conclusively, "and I apologize for my daughter's suspicion. Perhaps, though, it was natural under the circumstances. Of course you will stay to dinner. May I ask your name?"

"I shall always keep the bullet as the direct cause of my great happiness, Mary," he said, with a low laugh. "I had counted on spending the rest of my life in this wilderness, for I love freedom. But the prospect was never wholly satisfactory. Sometimes the influence of the East came over me, with a longing for its books, and I had to fight the feeling away. This valley now brings me the East with cultured people to talk to, and with the freedom of the wilderness at the very door. It is a perfect combination- h you."

Municipal Lodging House. In "Six Weeks in Beggardom, Everybody's Magazine, Theodore Waters begins an account of his investigation of the beggar problem for that magazine. The following is a partia! description of his experiences, disguised as a destitute workingman, in the Municipal Lodging House of New York:

"After the medical examination we filed through the outer office, where we gave over our pedigrees and the envelopes, in which we had been obliged to put our trinkets, to the bookkeeper; and after that we went down a flight of steps to the basement where hundreds of dirty men were being made clean. Every man was instructed to remove his clothing and place it in a net bag given him for the purpose. The garments were then hung in a great oven and subjected to a temperature of 230 degrees F. The men meantime were compelled to take a handful of green soap and rub it upon their heads, and then to stand under a very Niagara of water which descended from taps in the ceiling. There was no escaping this drenching process. A big attendant armed with a mop handle inspected each man as he went under the water, and never failed to object vigorously when any attempted to escape while the slightest particle of grime remained upon him. I saw what I felt sure must be the dirtiest man in New York give up his clothes and go under the shower grudgingly, and after determined urging on the part of the attendant, come out clean. There were many such in the City Lodging II du House that night, but the majority of them welcomed the bath, the spotless night-gown, the comfortable slippers, and finally the repose on the cleanest of beds."

Mrs. Patrick Campbell, famous for her dramatic art and her pet dog Pinky Panky Poo, a Japanese spaniel of high culture, while in Washington recently went driving one day and incidentally dropped in to see a friend. The air was chilly, in fact cold, and Mrs. Campbell wore a long coat of Russian sable. Pinky or Panky or Poo was in a warm spot underneath the coat, his shaggy little head, his eyes, and white teeth peering out.

"Oh, what a lovely coat that is," exclaimed Mrs. Campbell's hostess as she stroked it: "and what an odd frog you've got there at the button," as she took hold of Pinky's head. Pinky repulsed the gentle squeeze with a snap. "My heavens!" exclaimed the actress's friend. "What is that?" "Oh!" exclaimed the actress laughingly. "It's just a little Jap thats got under a Russian's hide."-New York

Chapel Built by Nature

Ex-President Cleveland, during his sojourn in New Hampshire the last summer, attended divine service in a chapel unique on an island in picturesque Lake Asquam.

Eighteen or twenty years ago Ernest Balch, who was then a student at Harvard college, conceived the idea of a summer athletic school for boys, and chose the island mentioned as the location. "Camp Chocorua" was there established, and had a very successful existence for a decade, being the pioneer of the large number, of such schools now in existence. There was provided a chapel, original in conception with Mr. Balch. Its walls were the environing trees of the forest. Its ceiling was the everchanging sky. Rustic seats were built for choir and congregation. The heavy stone cross.

Ten years of disuse now has wrought sad havoc with the once trim structures of the camp. The forest chapel alone remains intact, with very little change, and is still put to the use for which it was designed by its builders. Hardy was convicted on purely circumstantial evidence and there is some evidence that he was never guilty of the crime at all. It seems that he became acquainted with a stranger from Chicago, and they loafed around together. The stranger asked him about the people of the vicinity and learned that Mrs. Leonard had about $700. One evening he and Hardy were in a fishing shanty with some liquor, and Hardy went to his home to get something for them to eat. While he was gone, he claimed, this old lady was murdered by the stranger, who secured her money, returned to the fishing shanty and gave Hardy $100, telling him to keep his mouth shut. The stranger disappeared.

Fight Will Be Bitter.

Those who will persist in closing their ears against the continual recommendation of Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, will have a long and bitter fight with their troubles, if not ended earlier by fatal termination. Read what T. R. Beall, of Beall, Miss, has to say: "Last fall my wife had every symptom of consumption. She took Dr King's New Discovery after everything else had failed. Improvement came at once and four bottles entirely cured her." Guaranteed by Glazier & Commissioners' Notice.

"Heavy work, severe straining and evil habits in youth brought on a double varicocele. When I worked hard the aching would become severe and I was often laid up for a week at a time. My family physician told me an operation was my only hope—but I dreaded it. I tried several specialists, but soon found out all they wanted was my money. I commenced to look upon all doctors as little better than rogues. One day my boss asked me why I was off work so much and I told him my condition. He advised me to consult Drs. Kennedy and Kergan, as he had taken treatment from them himself and knew they were square than skillful. He wrote them and got the New Method Treatment for me. My progress was somewhat slow and during the first month's treatment I was somewhat discouraged. However, I continued treatment for three months longer and was rewarded st month's treatment I was somewhat discouraged. However, continued treatment for three months longer and was rewarded ith a complete cure. I could only earn $12 a week in a machine alop before treatment, now I am earning $21 and never lose a lay. I wish all sufferers knew of your valuable treatment. HENRY C. LOCUST.
