SYLVAN TOWNSHIP ELECTION.

The Whole Republican Ticket Elected by Varying Majorities.

Monday's election in Sylvan was a corker so far as split tickets were concerned. The vote was a light one, 668 votes being polled as against 726 last year. The whole Republican township ticket was elected by majorities ranging from 10 for treasurer to 120 for school inspector. William Bacon for county auditor had 59 majority, but the other members of the old board of auditors J. D. Ryan and Jas. E. McGregor had majorities recorded against them of 97 and 85 respectively. The whole Republican state ticket received good majorities and the three amendments voted on were carried. There were 15 votes cast for the Prohibition ticket and 3 for the Socialist ticket.

Ryan received 18 majority, Jas. E. McGregor 22, and William Bacon 9. The township ticket was elected by the following vote. In the tie for highway commissioner Edwin C. ANN ARBOR.

Ann Arbor city elections went Republican. F. M. Hamilton was elected mayor, E. L. Gilmore president of the council, Andrew E. Gibson justice of the peace. Of the eight aldermen to be elected the Republicans got six. The council will stand Republicans 9, Democrats 5.

THE COUNTY AUDITORS.

Two Republican Nominees and Bacon, Republican, Named by Democrats, Elected.

The complete returns from Monday's election shows that George H. Fischer, of Ann Arbor, Frank Stowell, of Ypsilanti, and Wm. Bacon, of Chelsea, were elected as the board of county auditors Monday. This makes the board solidly Republican, as Mr. Bacon, although nominated by the Democrats, is and always has been a staunch Republican, far more so than many of those who seek to traduce him by making assertions to the contrary. The complete vote of the county was as follows:

Two years term—
Fischer, rep.,	4062—	100
Ryan, dem.,	3962
Four years term—
Stowell, rep.,	4110—	121

GRAND RAPIDS HAS A ONE HUNDRED THOUSAND DOLLAR FIRE.

JUNIPER STUMPS MADE INTO "SHIP KNEES" FOR THE MAINE BUILDERS.

EDWARD DECKER DISAPPEARS FROM A CAR FERRY IN MID LAKE.

The most spectacular fire in years started on the fifth floor of the six-story Gilbert block, in Grand Rapids, Monday, the building being entirely gutted, and Morse Dry Goods Company's loss will reach $100,000. Several firemen were injured. The flames spread so rapidly that many persons on the top floors were cut off from the stairway before they heard the alarm. Many started down the fire escapes, but the smoke and flames cut them off and when the fire department responded to the alarm quickly, the firemen found the fire escapes crowded with frantic women. These were rescued from their perilous position and a number of other women on the upper floors became helplessly panic-stricken. For a time it looked as though there would be serious loss of life, but the firemen worked so fast that all persons were saved, although several employees are missing. It was not known absolutely whether there was loss of life until the flames were conquered.

A New Industry.

Securing timber for use in shipbuilding on the Atlantic coast is a comparatively new industry in the Lake Superior region. The business was introduced by an Auburn, Me., man who furnishes shipyards with braces for wooden vessels, known in the Maine yards as "knees." The stumps left by the cutting are taken from the ground and trimmed so that one large root is left when the piece is squared and left L shaped and is ready for transportation. On arrival in Maine these braces, or "knees," are put through a planing mill and are ready for use. Each vessel uses from 400 to 600 of these braces, which are necessarily rather high in price, because of the work of getting them out and the cause of high freight rates. They cost about $325 to $350 per carload. This freight rate to Maine ranges from $110 to $140 a car, depending upon the location of the source of supply. None of the product is used on the lakes, where very few, if any, wooden vessels are now being built. Here the ships are all of steel construction. In the North Atlantic shipyards, however, a considerable number of wooden schooners are constructed every year. Most of them are four or five-masted schooners, measuring probably 380 feet long and drawing from 26 to 28 feet of water.

Facts Read Like Romance.

Like a page from a romance are the facts in connection with a recent reunion in Grand Rapids of the family of Henry Sutherland. During the civil war Sutherland left his home in Ontario on account of a disagreement with his wife, from whom he afterward secured a divorce. His children, until they were grown up, were led to believe their father was dead. Some 20 years ago his son, Daniel Sutherland, determined to locate his long-lost father, but not until two weeks ago did he get any trace of him. At that time he met by chance in a hotel at Mishawaka, Ind., Edward Sutherland, who proved to be his step-brother. The two planned the reunion, at which were present Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Sutherland, of the Corbett company; Mr. and Mrs. Frank Sutherland, of Detroit; Mr. and Mrs. Ed Sutherland, of Mishawaka, and their father, Miss Josephine Sutherland, of Detroit, was the only member of the family absent, she being kept away by illness.

The Hackley Estate.

It develops in the appraising of the estate of the late Charles H. Hackley that he was generous to his friends, as well as a philanthropist to his home city, as about a quarter of a million dollars worth of valueless paper in the shape of notes on which he loaned money form part of the estate. The appraisers have not yet finished their work, but have progressed far enough to find that the estate will not fall below $6,000,000. On $3,000,000 of this estate it is estimated that an inheritance tax will be paid to Michigan.

Fell Overboard.

Edward Decker, Jr., managing director of the Decker properties, which consist of eight banks, two newspapers, several manufacturing concerns and railroad interests, mysteriously disappeared Saturday night while en route from Ludington to Manitowoc on Pere Marquette ferry No. 18, and it is supposed he was drowned. Soon after embarking he took a powder to relieve a sick headache and retired to his stateroom. It is supposed that he stepped to the boat's rail to obtain fresh air and, becoming faint, fell overboard. He was 44 years old.

Fight Caused Death.

While Miss Mabel Rigney was at her desk in the St. Joseph telephone exchange a flash of lightning ran along the wires, frightening her greatly. She almost collapsed and the physician said her heart had been displaced by the shock. For two weeks past Miss Rigney had suffered intense agony, her heart beats growing more rapid until just before her death on Friday night 182 pulsations a minute were registered.

Statistics show that insanity is fast increasing in the upper peninsula.

The auditor general has refused to audit the bill of former Secretary of the State Board of Health Baker for the last half of March, on the ground that the bill making a change in the office took effect March 16, and that Dr. Baker ceased at that time to be an incumbent of the office, although he has taken charge of it since.

State Game Warden Chapman, in his monthly report to the secretary of state, says that wolves caused considerable destruction among deer in the upper peninsula during the winter, but that otherwise the deer wintered well. Baker was arrested, after having terrorized the passengers with a revolver. Later both man and wife regained their normal condition at a Cheyenne hotel.

Hundreds of fish are being caught with the bare hands by Kalamazoo urchins. The store has been burglarized nine times since it was purchased by Schaberg.

NEWS OF THE NATION

MRS. WALKER FINDS HER SIXTY MILLIONS AN UNCOMFORTABLE POSSESSION.

SERIOUS DISASTER AT ZEIGLER BY AN EXPLOSION IN LEITER'S MINE.

DR. GLADDEN'S REFERENCE TO GIFTS FROM MULTI-MILLIONAIRES IS CUTTING.

Mrs. Anne M. Weightman Walker, the richest woman in the world, is said to be living in fear of poison, and she has surrounded herself with detectives to foil any effort of her enemies to reach her. With $60,000,000 at her command, Mrs. Walker is, according to the stories that are being told, more unhappy than she ever was in her life over the efforts to break the will of her father, which made her so enormously wealthy. She is living in one of the most magnificent suites in the Hotel Renaissance, at Fifth avenue and Forty-second street. The entrance to her apartments is said to be constantly watched by the detectives, whom she recently engaged and who accompany her wherever she goes. Not one moment of the day or night is she unguarded.

Explosion Was Fearful.

A fearful gas explosion in the Joseph Leiter coal mine at Zeigler, Ill., occurred Monday. Twenty miners were killed and 18 wounded. According to reports the entire opening of the mine is wrecked. Although the explosion is attributed to gas, suspicion exists that there may have been another cause. Only non-union men are employed in the mine since the strike for increased wages some months ago, resulting in riots and the presence of militia and armed guards. The last of the troops were recently withdrawn, although reports were current that there had been attempts to bribe officials to permit outsiders to gain entrance to the mine, the supposed object being to make the mine unworkable. State Mine Inspector Atkinson reported at his last examination of the shaft that 190 men were employed in two shafts. The explosion is reported to have occurred as the two shifts were changing.

Gifts From Millionaires.

Rev. Dr. Washington Gladden, moderator of the general council of Congregational churches, preaching at the First Congregational church, Columbus, O., upon "The Christian of Today," said: "Some of the most gigantic robbers that the world has ever known, men who have accumulated hundreds of millions by wicked methods, are by some persons praised and flattered for their liberal gifts to churches and colleges and missions. Such an estimate does not represent the Christianity of today."

"The state is just so truly a divine institution as the church is, and the governor, the mayor, the superintendent of police, the member of the legislature, or the city council, or the school board is just as much a minister and servant of God as I am."

Off to the Wilds.

President Roosevelt has cleared up his routine work, and it is evident that he thinks the emergency calendar is also well out of the way, as he started on his seven-weeks' hunting trip Monday morning. He is expected to have with him among others on the hunting expeditions, Sherman Bell, adjutant-general of Colorado; Phil Stewart, of Colorado Springs and one or two of the rough riders. His last most important act was the reorganization of the isthmian canal commission. The matters on which he will probably keep an eye during his absence are: The status in San Domingo, the Bowen-Castro feud in Venezuela, the expected invitation that the United States be the mediator between Russia and Japan, the ruffe between the United States and Haiti, and the American interest in the open door in Morocco, at which door Kaiser Wilhelm is also looking askance.

William Sommers, 18 years old, a driver for the Grand Rapids Brass Co., met with a rare and peculiar accident, and had a narrow escape from instant death Tuesday. The horse he was driving gave a sudden lurch forward and Sommers' head was thrown back suddenly, the violent jerk dislocating the skull from the spine at the first vertebra. Sommers was rushed to a hospital where a physician succeeded in setting it back. His head was placed in a cast, and physicians think he will recover if inflammation does not set in. Local physicians say this kind of an accident is the rarest kind known and one that requires one of the most critical operations known. If while setting the neck, the physicians had moved the head in such a way that the bones had pressed against the spinal cord, instant death would have resulted.

OYAMA IS ADVANCING ON RUSSIAN POSITIONS

A renewal of fighting is expected shortly. The concentration of the Russian army is complete with its advance lines south of the station of Sipinghai 74 miles north of Tie Pass.

The Japanese are screening their movements well by means of cavalry, and it is difficult to locate the bulk of their army. A heavy movement seems to be in progress on the Russian flank. The railroad station at Changtufu, 40 to 50 miles above Tie Pass, is occupied by Japanese artillery, but so far as ascertainable, it does not cover a large body of troops.

A two-wheeled cart of the Russo-Chinese bank, containing more than $500,000, which was lost during the retreat from Mukden, has been found, but the cash chest of the ninth regiment of artillery, which was also lost, is still undiscovered.

The authorities continue to find evidence of Terrorist activity in St. Petersburg and in spite of the precautions of the police another tragedy may occur at any moment. The fighting organization is known to have on its condemned list thirty persons, headed by Grand Duke Alexis and Governor General Trepoft, but the police, although they have arrested several persons with bombs in their possession and have taken many suspects into custody, have been completely baffled in their efforts to discover the invisible hand which is directing the campaign of the Terrorists.

The repeated announcements in regard to the proximity of peace are confirmed, it is asserted, by information from an unimpeachable source, showing that Russia and Japan have selected President Roosevelt as mediator, that negotiations are already in progress, and that the suspension of hostilities shortly may be expected. Some reports that the czar's stand on the peace or war question is still vacillating. One of the latest rumors is that he wants Rojostevsky to try conclusions with Togo first. If he wins the situation will be much improved for Russia. If he loses it will be worse.

Business is paralyzed and a general lack of confidence is shown. A majority of the female population is leaving Harbin. It is believed that the Japanese are preparing a bold turning movement, probably to the eastward, and the Russian army is operating widely in order to avoid a repetition of the surprise at Mukden. Snow has fallen and the roads are softening into mud and are in wretched condition.

Contradictory reports are being received from Chinese fugitives, most of which indicate that there is a constant movement of Japanese east, as if with the intention of effecting a turning movement at Kirin to cover the beginning of an attack on Vladivostok. Chinese report that the construction of a railway from Sipinghai to Mukden has begun.

The people of Vladivostok are in panic as a result of the Russian retreat at Mukden. Everybody who has been able to leave the city has done so and it is expected that the Japanese will attack the city as soon as the spring weather sets in. The spirit among the soldiers, the latter says, is excellent and work to strengthen the fortifications is going on incessantly. There are plenty of provisions and ammunition in the city and both officers and men are determined to surpass even the heroes of Port Arthur and feel confident of being able to repulse the Japanese. Mines have been placed in hundreds of places outside the fortifications and should the Japanese ever reach here their losses will be tremendous.

ARMY POSITIONS AND LOCATION OF SIPPINGHAI, WHERE THE RUSSIANS ARE RESTING.

In the map are shown the relative positions of the Japanese and Russian armies, the latter now being reported at Sipinghai, a little over seventy miles north of Tie Pass. They are, however, a long distance from Harbin, which is 260 miles north of Sipinghai. The arrow indicates the route of the flying column of Nogi's men, which is reported to be marching on Tsitsihar, about 300 miles northeast of Harbin.

The chief aim of Linvitch is believed to be to reach Chanchiatzu and destroy the bridge that there crosses the Sungari, which river is not fordable anywhere near that point. From Sipinghai to Chanchiatzu is about 110 miles, so that the Russians are yet a long distance from comparative safety, assuming that the Japanese will continue the pursuit.

Tampering With Witnesses.

The federal grand jury investigating the alleged beef trust, returned an indictment Tuesday night against Thomas J. Connors, general superintendent of Armour & Co. The charge is interfering with a witness summoned to appear before the grand jury.

Mr. Connors, who is one of J. Ogden Armour's most confidential employees and is the active head of one of the largest packing companies in the world, was arrested later and brought to the grand jury room. The indictment alleges that John E. Shields, of Brooklyn, a former employee of Armour & Co. who has been in Chicago since the investigation began, was approached, favored and entertained by Mr. Connors, and specifically charges that on March 25 the offense for which Mr. Connors is indicted occurred.

Killed By Lightning.

Mrs. Nelson Fowles, aged 20, of Sebewa, was instantly killed by lightning Wednesday night. During the storm she started home from a neighbor's, and when in the middle of the street two bolts flashed, one shattering a tree by her side, the other entered her left temple and left her body at her right foot, burning off her clothing and charring her body.

Her husband had come home during her absence and he and several neighbors saw her killed. Mrs. Fowles was a Mulikien girl and was married a year ago.

Senators who called on President Roosevelt Thursday to consult with him as to the probable time of the re-assembling of congress, were informed that it is likely that a special session will be called for October 16. The Canal Chairman.

Theodore P. Shonts, president of Toledo, St. Louis & Western railroad, has accepted the chairmanship of the new isthmian canal commission. He will be given the largest powers carry on the canal work, and he will constitute the executive committee. Secretary Morton said: "Shonts is a man of great energy and will deliver the goods." He is a civil engineer, a fine executive, an accountant, and a thorough business man, and understands all phases of railroading from personal experience. His friends say he is a "millionaire" and will now give up railroading to make the canal his life work. He is wealthy, and has homes in Chicago and Toledo.

A Broken Chord

All idly to and fro
Her window curtain sweeps,
In the lamplight's rosy glow
She sleeps, my lady sleeps,
And I catch the glint of gold
From her tresses uncontrolled,
Through the curtain's filmy fold,
And the heart within me leaps
As she sleeps, my lady sleeps!

Ah, then does she dream of me?
Mine the dearest name she keeps
In her ivory treasury?
She sleeps! My lady sleeps!
Soft! Her blossom lips now part!
Has she secret to impart?
And I wait with trembling heart!
Nay, a sound my soul annoys!
For she snores! My lady sleeps!

The LONG WHITE SEAM

(Copyright, 1935, by Daily Story Pub. Co.)

Bess, the pretty one, just home from college, lounged back in an arm chair, her white hands clasped behind her head and her amused eyes on her elder sister, Rachel, the plain one, sitting in the midst of drifts of white, busy sewing. And there was that in the sewing, or in the cloth, or in what it all meant, that had turned Rachel's plainness into something nearly akin to beauty.

"Rachel!" called a voice up the stairway. "Oh, Rachel! Come down a moment and help me with this side-board. I can't move it alone."

The girl emerged, smiling, from among the snowy drifts, and ran down stairs, light of foot and of heart. She came back presently, washed her hands and set to work again.

"Sister!" shouted a boyish voice from the gallery, "lend me another spool of that coarse thread. I've got the kite out ever so far, and my cord's out."

She arose again and went out; and Bess heard her talking merrily as she threaded the thread to the cord Danny held. When she returned and sat down at the machine, there was not a ripple of impatience on her contented face.

"How can you stand it?" asked Bess, still more amused. "I have kept time. In the last half hour you have been called away from your work eight times; and yet you come back looking so serene that it makes one want to shake you."

"I don't get much time to sew," Rachel answered, blushing a little. "But, then, I haven't many things to make, and it won't take so long. And they'll all miss me a good deal. I must do what I can for them, while I am here."

"It's the most ridiculous thing," said Bess, thoughtfully, "that you should be thinking of marrying! Somehow, nobody would ever have thought of you. Why, you have never even had a lover that I can remember; and I always had the house full of them, from the time I was a little thing with my hair in a pig-tail. And here am I, not thinking of being engaged yet—and there is sly, demure you, going to marry the finest man in all the country round. I'd just like to know how you did it, Miss Rachel Brand."

Rachel blushed more and more.

"I hardly know how it was," she said shyly. "Brother John brought him over for a week, and they went hunting a good deal—and I was busy, of course, for mother was not very well that week and Susan went home to her sister's funeral—so I had the cooking to do—and Brother John is so thoughtful—he would persist in bringing him into the kitchen. You

"How can you stand it?" asked Bess. "Don't know how mortified I was—"

Bess broke into a laugh. "Oh, you deceitful minx!" she cried. "You and Brother John made it up between you, I know—luring him out there where he could see our careful Martha with her sleeves rolled up, conducting herself as a busy housewife should. And this to a man who has been living in a boarding house! No wonder he fell a prey to your artful devices! Well, when he comes this evening, I shall make myself duly scarce. After falling in love with the Model Woman, as set forth in my elater Rachel, he would not even deign to look at a useless creature like me, who couldn't even boil water decently."

And Bess took herself off, notwithstanding Rachel's laughing protests, and wrote letters until she wearied of them, and left the wind to blow them where it would.

The wind blew one of them down into the orchard at the side of the house, where Rachel sat with a dainty little piece of handwork, while the low afternoon sun sent pale green rays through the apple boughs. Rachel caught it as it flew past her, not knowing what it was, until her eyes had swept along several lines.

"—amused at Rachel, who was always cut out for an old maid, we "Do you still want us to be married?" she whispered.

decided so long ago. She sits up there, all day long—except when they call her for something, which is about every two minutes, for Rachel is a helpful somebody, and not at all like her good-for-nothing sister—she sits there, I say, sewing, sewing, on her trousseau—sewing the long white seam," as Jean Ingelow says—and with the most calmly, placidly happy expression on her face, as though the earth and love and everything like that had been made just for her. It makes me—"

Rachel's eyes were wet with a shining happy moisture, when Danny came running, sending a jubilant shout before him:

"Sister! Yonder he comes! An' I bet he's brought me a new baseball!"

"Mr. Arnold, this is Bess," she said, a little later, blushing and smiling, until even one who did not love her very much would have seen that she was no longer plain.

"I think I shall go over to Arkwright on a visit to Ethel Joyner," said Bess a week later. Somehow, her vacation was beginning to pall upon her and she was restless.

"I think I would not go," said Rachel, quietly. She was still sewing, but rather slowly; as though there were no need for haste. As Bess looked at her with quick inquiry she said: "Mother is anxious for you to help her a little—or at least, to want to help her—and well, I wouldn't go."

And then Rachel hummed a low tune, to show how much she was at ease.

Other days went by, and Rachel pushed the machine back against the wall. "There is no haste," she said. "I am a little tired of sewing so long. I think I will rest for a few days."

And she rested, not being strong enough to go on a picnic with her lover and the family, and feeling too tired for the walk to church. Bess grew more irritable, and began letters and threw them into the fire, and started books, and forgot how far she had read.

"I think I shall go to the city and find employment," she suggested; and Rachel turned upon her with a pale face.

"Bess, you shall not go!" she cried, with a little desolate wail in her voice. "Just stay here—it will all come right. I—I need you to stand by me. You see—I am not quite sure whether I will marry Fred—after all. I am not positive that I love him—and one ought to be very sure, don't you think so?" And with lips white and trembling, she looked into Bess's eyes.

The next day Bess went out for a walk, and before the walk was finished she was on her way to see Ethel, leaving a saucy, merry little note behind her. "I'm not a very useful creature," she said to herself, "but at least I can do this one generous thing—while there is time."

Rachel was very pale when she met her lover.

"Bess has gone away," she said quietly, with her eyes on his face. "She grew a little restless, I suppose—and she has gone over to Arkwright to see a friend of hers—"

"Yes?" said Mr. Arnold, with friendly inquiry. "She'll come back to our wedding, of course?"

Rachel's face grew rosy red under a sudden rush of color.

"Do you—do you still—want us to be married?" she whispered; and his look of utter amazement was sufficient answer.

"You haven't been like yourself since Bess came home," he said wrathfully. "Somehow she didn't take to me—though I tried with all my might to win her over. Never mind—it's all right now."

Half an hour later he tried to call her down from that upper room where the machine was making a steady whirr, as of a whole colony of exceedingly busy bees.

"Come down to the orchard—it's lovely under the trees. What are you doing there, anyhow, Rachel?"

"Sewing the long white seam," she murmured, as she rose to answer his call; and Bess's legacy of peace was on her face as she went.

FORTUNE WORRIES POOR WOMAN

Was Bequeathed a Neat Sum and Can't Get Used to It.

"The wealthy do have their worries," said Mrs. Cynthia Nicholson, who is worth $50,000, looking up to-day from the steaming bathtub over which she had toiled for many years to support her family, and which she finds it difficult to leave in spite of her snug little fortune. "I have a whole lot of money now," she continued. "I have put it in bank, but goodness, burglars rob banks, and so do bank officers! I want somebody to watch the bank officers and somebody to watch the watchers."

Judge Henry S. Stevenson yesterday afternoon sought out Mrs. Nicholson, who is a widow, in her rooms on the third floor, rear, of a tenement house in Harriet street, says a Bridgeport (Conn.) special to the New York Herald, and told her that her uncle, William Germond of Middletown, had died, leaving an estate of which her share will be between $40,000 and $50,000, and handed her a certified check for $1,000 as the first installment of her fortune.

"I toiled for forty years," said this energetic widow, who is now 59 years old, "without being able to save a single penny for a rainy day, and I never can get used to having money. It troubles me. It makes me suspicious and I keep thinking everyone is trying to swindle me out of it. I would like to build myself a comfortable home, but I am afraid of the real estate agents and builders, and I know I could never trust a lawyer."

"Of course I am glad I haven't to work any more, and the children will be able to live well on the money when I am gone, but I was happy enough before I became wealthy. Now I am worried half to death."

Profit in Making Rag Dolls.

Two women, one having business ability, and the other artistic talent, started out some little time ago to earn their living. They chose the manufacture of rag dolls. They took a room on a business street, and began to supply the dolls by the wholesale, to firms who would sell them at retail.

The artistic woman painted the faces, and the companion did the more practical part of forming the bodies and making the costumes of the dolls. The business grew. The price of the dolls rose in proportion to the elaborate make-up of the doll, till some of them brought $8 to $10.

The young women no longer could do all the work themselves. They began to give out the little garments, caps and socks to be made by the dozen. This business has progressed until now two floors in a building on a public street are utilized. Quite a number of helpers is employed. The success of the firm has come from the practical way in which the members went to work, their reliability and the excellence of the article supplied.

To a Girl.
I know what is the object
Of that little sigh,
And why the secret languor
That lurks within your eye.

You smile? You'll learn some morning,
Sweet maid, why this is so;
Perchance you now suspect it,
I know!

I know what things you dream of,
And what you see in sleep;
I read, that you would keep!
You smile? You'll learn some morning,
Sweet maid, why this is so;
Perchance you now suspect it,
I know!

I know your laughter's reason,
And why you weep apart;
I penetrate the mystery
Of your woman's heart!
You smile? You'll learn some morning,
Sweet maid, why this is so;
What, feeling, you know naught of,
I past all feeling, know!

How Many Did You Get?

The total output of the New York oyster industry during the past year was 6,982,960 bushels, according to the annual report of Superintendent Wood, of the Shell Fish Bureau of the State Forest, Fish and Game Department. Their value is estimated at $7,603,700. During the year, 2,129 acres of land under water were leased for this industry, making a total of 30,000 acres within the State on which oysters are cultivated.—Recreation.

HEALTH CAMP FOR CONSUMPTIVES

Worthy Enterprise Established in Southern California—So Arranged That Patients May Be Self-Supporting.

A New York paper publishes an account of a successful effort recently made by Mr. N. O. Nelson, in Southern California, to provide for the poor classes. Mr. Nelson has established at Indio, in Southern California, what he calls a health camp for consumptives. We quote the following description of this worthy enterprise with the hope that it may encourage others to do likewise; for certainly no more beneficent work can be undertaken by anyone:

"The camp is located in a desert valley, cut off from the ocean by the mountains. There is no rain, no fog, no clouds. The winter days are all warm, the nights comparatively cold."

"The camp was established in December, 1902, to provide in part for the large number of consumptives and other invalids who go to Southern California. Most of the invalids have little means; they can not afford expensive sanitariums, and are not wanted by hotels and boarding houses."

"To meet the requirements of such patients, Mr. Nelson bought one hundred and twenty-five acres of land adjoining the Indio depot. This tract he has improved by sinking artesian wells, and by putting most of the land under cultivation, in order to give convalescents something to do."

"Tents, with all necessary equipment for sleeping and taking meals, have been set up. Land and water are free to those who have their own outfit. A small rental for tents is made to those who can not pay, and where necessary, board is given them. All expenses need not be more than from $2.50 to $4.00 a week."

"Work is provided for those who are able to do it, so that their care does not become a burden on the camp."

"The camp is situated in the midst of a sandy valley one hundred miles long and three to ten miles wide. The mountains on each side rise by degrees to four thousand and five thousand feet high. In some places in the foothills there are springs and vegetation."

"In the valleys most of the land has been taken up in the past few years. The crops of melons and vegetables are early and bring high prices. From $100 to $200 an acre is an ordinary yield. Alfalfa hay is cut ten times a year, giving twelve to fifteen tons an acre."

"When the campers get well enough to work, they buy or lease a few acres. They can either buy the land on the installment plan, or lease it on shares for such length of time as desired."

Alcohol and Tuberculosis.

Dr. S. A. Knopf, the eminent New York physician who has given a great deal of attention to the subject of tuberculosis, took occasion not long since in a scientific paper to condemn the popular notion that alcohol is a remedy for consumption. He says:

"There is an idea that alcohol is a remedy or even a specific remedy for consumption. There has never been a greater mistake made. Alcohol has never cured and never will cure tuberculosis. It will either prevent or retard recovery. It is like a two-edged weapon; on one side it poisons the system, and on the other side it ruins the stomach and thus prevents this organ from properly digesting the necessary food. Truly pathetic are the results of this erroneous doctrine in the families of the poor, where, instead of procuring good nourishment for the invalid, liquor has been bought in far too large quantities, so that often there was not enough money left for food for the sufferer nor for the other members of the family."

Predisposition to Tuberculosis.

The abnormal fear of tuberculosis which haunts so many minds is bred of ignorance. The awful results of the "white terror" have impressed themselves upon all, but as with the aborigine, when he first encountered the gun-bearing explorer, the reason why is hidden. The native heard the gun speak and saw his brother fall. The sudden death terrified him. He did not stop to inquire the cause. He fled in abject fear.

Today the ravages of tuberculosis are stupendous. Are you inquiring into the why, or are you trembling lest it seize you? Are you trying to dodge an inscrutable foe, or are you studying to give intelligent battle? The tenement dweller says, "I can not escape the plague. I will await my turn." The son or brother of a consumptive says: "It is in the family. I must suffer the same death." The weakened victim of intemperance or neglect of vital laws says: "My constitution is wrecked—I am no match for this relentless foe."

Dr. Knopf asks and answers the following pertinent query: "Who are the individuals who must be particularly careful so as not to be attacked by the almost ever present tubercle bacillus."

"There are four classes: First, those who have a hereditary predisposition to consumption; secondly, those who have weakened their system and thus predisposed themselves to consumption by the immoderate use of alcoholic beverages; by a dissipated life, by excesses of all kinds, etc.; thirdly, those whose constitution has been weakened through disease; fourthly, those whose occupations, trades or professions, such as printing, hat making, tailoring, weaving, and all occupations where the worker is much exposed to the inhalation of various kinds of dust, have rendered them particularly liable to consumption."

Let every one take courage and live above tuberculosis. If you are already suffering from it strive to rise above it. Avoid alcoholic beverages, condiments, pastries, tea and coffee. Live out of doors, provide fresh air for your bed room, study the laws of your body and return to the natural way of living.

Food for Brain Workers.

Mental work requires much less food than does physical labor. Recent careful experiments which have been made, show that men engaged in active mental labor and abstaining from muscular exertion, require practically no more food than men at rest. This is a fact of very great importance for students, ministers, and other professional men whose occupation does not require any considerable amount of effort, since the taking of food in excess of that which is required results in the filling of the blood with poisons, and in consequence crowding of the tissues with tissue wastes and poisonous matters which interfere with all the bodily functions, and especially with the functions of the brain and nerves. Mental activity is clouded, sleep may be prevented, and all the effects of nervous exhaustion produced by a comparatively slight expenditure of energy, giving rise to languor, sometimes depression, and at other times irritability, confusion, and indecision of mind, even moroseness and melancholy.

That Tired Feeling.

The condition of lethargy produced by excessive eating or habitual drunkenness must be distinguished from fatigue due to work. Persons in this condition often decline to exercise because they "feel so tired." This state of lassitude and enervation cannot be overcome by rest. Carefully graduated exercises and regulation of the dietary are the proper remedies. There are many chronic invalids whose sufferings and disability are wholly due to this cause, and who may be readily restored to usefulness by a spare and simple dietary combined with outdoor exercises, gradually increased in vigor and duration as the strength improves.

Water Purification.

A physician connected with the United States Agricultural department has called attention to the fact that an extremely small quantity of sulphate of copper will prevent the growth of algae in lakes, ponds and storage reservoirs, and will destroy typhoid and cholera germs. The question at once arises whether this method can be considered thoroughly hygienic. The probability is that the small amount of copper thus employed would be neutralized by combining with vegetable substances so that the water will be left practically pure; nevertheless, the addition of chemical substances to water cannot be considered the most desirable method of purification. Boiling and filtering through a Pasteur filter are really the best methods. Filters are cheap, and boiling is an easy and simple process. The old-fashioned charcoal and gravel filters cannot be relied upon.

Warning Against Tight Corsets.

Nature abhors a vacuum. There is no unoccupied space in the body; and to render any part of it smaller than nature designed, is to cause the organs occupying that part to diminish in size, or to crowd together, one upon another. In either case, nature's processes are sadly interrupted.—C. E. Hastings, M. D.

SOME SIMPLE DISHES.

Breakfast Toast.—Cut rather thin slices of bread into two or three pieces. Put these into the oven and let them bake very slowly for two or three hours, or until of a golden color and crisp throughout. This is an excellent substitute for breads and much more wholesome. It is delicious served with cocoanut or dairy cream or butter.

Cocoanut Cream.—Cut fresh cocoanut into thin slices and grind the nut very fine in a chopper or some strong hand mill. If nothing of this sort is available, the cocoanut may be grated. To each cup of the prepared nut add one cup of hot water, stirring and beating with a spoon to extract as much of the juice as possible. Drain off the liquid and add a similar quantity of hot water, and after beating again very thoroughly, strain through a cloth or very fine sieve, pressing out all the liquid possible. This may be used at once as a substitute for milk, to be eaten with rice or other grains, or to prepare puddings or sauces. It is excellent served with granose flakes or eaten with zwieback. If placed on the ice for a few hours, the cream will rise to the top and may be taken off, making a pure cocoanut butter.

Strawberry Egg-nog.—Beat the yolk and white of one egg separately, and to each add one teaspoonful of sugar. To the yolk add one teaspoonful of lemon juice and two tablespoonfuls of strawberry juice. Stir in the white, leaving enough to serve as a meringue for the top.

THE LEGISLATURE.

A bill recently passed both house and senate making it unlawful for any person to catch fish in any way except with hook and line, from that part of Thunder bay lying inside or south and "east" of a straight line extending from the mouth of Thunder bay river to South Point. The object of the bill was to prevent fishing with submarine nets along shore. As the bill reads it prohibits fishing in any part of Thunder bay, as the bill should have read "west" instead of "east." However, the bill, which was to go into effect April 1, has not been signed by Gov. Warner. As the territory intended to cover includes several commercial fisheries, with nets operated in deep water and several thousand dollars invested in the business, these fishermen have entered a protest, and the bill will probably be amended.

Senator Cropsey introduced a bill to provide for juvenile courts.

Rep. Van Keuren introduced a resolution calling for two sessions a day hereafter in the house. The resolution carried.

Senator Helme, of Bay City, introduced a resolution in the senate calling for a committee to investigate the salt business in the state. The plan is on a survey of some of the work of the salt trust.

Senator Rumer, of Genesee, introduced his long expected bill affecting the indeterminate sentence law, by allowing the trial judge to fix the maximum as well as the minimum sentence, and to appoint in every county advisory agents in pardons and paroles to do the work now done by the pardon board.

The committees on ways and means of the house and finances and appropriations of the senate met with the governor Wednesday night. It is the sense of the committees that $1,780,000 can be cut from the appropriations asked for. Lanning institutions will feel the economy movement. The state may not rebuild the $60,000 dormitory lately burned at the M. A. C., it being felt that outside accommodations can be secured by students, as at the university. The new chapel at the industrial school, $25,000, will be cut out also.

Congressman Townsend addressed the house Thursday morning on his bill in congress, providing for a commission to regulate freight rates. He is in favor of direct nomination for governor, lieutenant-governor and members of congress, and says he will be very much disappointed if the legislature does not pass such a bill.

Senator Glasgow's "primary election bill" simply provides for a secret ballot in all conventions and caucuses, and does not provide for the direct nomination of any candidates for office.

Rep. Partlow's bill to authorize the incorporation of savings banks with $10,000 capital in towns of 1,000 inhabitants was re-referred to the senate committee on banks and corporations.

No Shirt is the name of an Umatilla Indian chief who has come all the way from Oregon to Washington in connection with the land fraud investigation in that state.

THE MARKETS.

Detroit—Handy cattle and shipping steers were 10 to 20 cents higher, with not enough of this kind on sale to supply the demand. Cows, bulls and common butchers' cattle were nearly steady. Stockers and feeders were scarce and active. Milch cows were active and $2 to $3 apiece higher, at $25 to $45 each. Veal calves were active and 25 cents higher, at $4.50 to $6.50 per hundred weight.

Hogs were dull and 10 cents lower than last week's close. Quality common. Outlook easy. Range of prices: Light to good butchers, $5.10 to $5.25; pigs, $4.90 to $4.95; light Yorkers, $5.00 to $5.10; roughs, $4.50 to $4.55.

Periodic Pains.

Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills are a most remarkable remedy for the relief of periodic pains, backache, nervous or sick headache, or any of the distressing aches and pains that cause women so much suffering.

As pain is weakening, and leaves the system in an exhausted condition, it is wrong to suffer a moment longer than necessary, and you should take the Anti-Pain Pills on first indication of an attack.

If taken as directed you may have entire confidence in their effectiveness, as well as in the fact that they will leave no disagreeable after-effects.

They contain no morphine, opium, chloral, cocaine or other dangerous drugs.

"For a long time I have suffered greatly with spells of backache, that seem almost more than I can endure. These attacks come on every month, and last two or three days. I have never been able to get anything that would give me much relief until I began the use of Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills, and they always relieve me in a short time. My sister, who suffers the same way, has used them with the same results." MRS. PARK, 723 S. Michigan St., South Bend, Ind.

Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills are sold by your druggist, who will guarantee that the first package will benefit. If it fails he will return your money. 25 doses, 25 cents. Never sold in bulk. Miles Medical Co., Elkhart, Ind.

THURSDAY, APRIL 6, 1905

The members of the Michigan legislature showed just what kind of stuff they are made of Tuesday night, when they voted down Representative Waters' amendment providing that any member of the legislature who accepts a free railroad pass be expelled from office.

Some recent statements touching the extent of the divorce evil in Michigan well justify the demand, voiced by circuit judges and prominent attorneys as well as by ministers of the gospel, that some prompt and radical restrictive legislation should be enacted. Certainly it is not desirable from any point of view that the character of the laws of our state should in any way contribute to the deplorable situation that exists.

Willard Stearns, the veteran editor and proprietor of the Adrian Weekly Press, has laid down the pen and shears after 28 years service and has retired from the newspaper business, and his action will be sincerely regretted by his brethren of the quill. He has sold out his business to E. L. White, proprietor of the Daily Telegram job office, and will in the future practice law. The Herald wishes him success in his new field of labors.

While it is quite true that there are two points of view to the question as to whether or not the state law taxing mortgages should be repealed, it would seem that the affirmative should prevail. It is not at all probable that the revenue from that source equals the loss to the state as a whole through the presence of this mortgage taxation law on our state books. It is not so much a question of abstract right or wrong as it is one of gain or loss to the people of Michigan.

Representative Canfield's bill to amend the state tax law should be allowed to remain where it now reposes—on the table. If made a law it would only result in mixing people up more than ever on a subject that is already sufficiently well mixed. Added to which it is manifestly unfair to a large class of people who have bought tax titles, or are the possessors of land acquired through a tax title. The person who forgets (?) to pay his taxes generally does it knowingly, either in an endeavor to evade payment of them altogether, or to stave off paying them until the last moment. To attempt to protect such people would be a mistaken idea entirely.

Raise in Electric Line Fares.

A change of passenger rates went into effect on the D. Y. A. A. & J. electric line April 1 which is in nowise satisfactory to its patrons. So far as we have learned the raise in price only affects the division west of Ann Arbor. The fares from Chelsea to Ann Arbor, Grass Lake and Jackson are now 5 cents more to each place than they were before if tickets are purchased at the depot. If fares are paid on the cars 2 cents a mile is charged. Mileage books purchased before April 1 are good for the number of miles travel they call for, but all mileage books purchased on and after April 1 contain a contract clause that 1 1/2 miles shall be taken off for each mile traveled, which is being done.

Unhappy Spanish Royalty.

The family of Don Carlos, the pretender to the Spanish throne, seems likely to establish a record for unhappy marriages. Of his three daughters, Donna Beatrice tried to drown herself in the Tiber, out of jealousy of her husband; Princess Elvira eloped with a married artist named Folchi, and recently Princess Alice, wife of Prince Frederick of Schonberg-Waldenburg, fled from her husband—Leslie's Weekly.

The Underbred Man and the Girl.

One of the difficulties that a well-bred girl has to encounter in the working world is the underbred man. He regards himself as an eligible party and suspects every girl he meets of having designs upon him. He wears a conquering air that is highly disproportionate to his prowess in the tournament of Cupid, and is altogether a ridiculous and despicable object.—Truth.

The subject of Rev. P. M. McKay's sermon at the Baptist church next Sunday evening, April 9, will be "The new commandment." This will conclude the series of sermons on the commandments.

Honors were easy between the old lady and the grocer when she unloaded a good sized round stone in her roll of butter, which the grocer later returned to her in a sack of coffee. There were no remarks made by either party.

The members of Rev. C. S. Jones' Whittling Club are very enthusiastic over it and evidently would like to see it continue in its ways of usefulness after he is gone, for the other day one of the little fellows said to him, "Do you suppose that other duffer will let us have a Whittling Club when he comes?" But, of course, the duffer could not tell.

The Birmingham Eccentric says: "If you know what we don't know and don't tell us, how do you expect us to know what you know, so as to tell your neighbors what you know and we don't know? Let us know what you know and we'll tell everything we know to everybody we know and then everybody will know what you know and we know, don't you know?"

Ann Arbor Commandery, No. 13, K. T., elected the following officers Tuesday evening: Sid W. Millard, com.; John Lindenschmitt, gen.; Ross Grainger, capt. gen.; Elmer E. Beal, S. W.; Philip Blum, J. An Irishman was sitting in the depot, smoking the other day when a woman came in and sitting down remarked: "Sir, if you were a gentleman you wouldn't smoke here." "Mum," he said, "If yez was a leddy ye'd sit farther away." Pretty soon the woman burst out: "If you were my husband I'd give you poison." "Well mum," returned the Irishman as he puffed away at his pipe, "If yez was me woife I'd take it."

Mistress Rosemary Allyn

Copyright, 1901, by LUCAS-LINCOLN CO.

CHAPTER XVII.—Continued.

The Captain, upon the landlord's telling him that there was no other outlet from the cellar, called his men and proceeded to drink to their success. When they had satisfied their thirst, bound up their scratches, and laughed a little over little incidents in the affray, they began to parley with the prisoner, Quentin Waters by name.

The man being promised safe conduct back to jail, came forth, a grin on his dare-devil face. Doubt began to flit from one to another that they had spent their strength in taking the wrong man. They questioned him. He knew nothing of the prisoner or his friends, denied being Quentin Waters of Long Hunt; hooted at the idea. He was Anthony Bryne, a tinker, on the way to London in search of work. He had happened in at the inn for a bite of supper, and had only seen the men as they rushed out of the house to meet the Guards. When the men had pounced upon him he had in desperation defended himself with his cudgel.

He told his story well, and mine host of the Tabard corroborated what he said. Consternation came upon them. One of the men said that Quentin Waters was a gentleman about town, and that the boor could not possibly be he. To clap the climax, another one asserted with positiveness that the fellow was not the prisoner wanted, for he had seen Quentin Waters often about London, and that he was at least two inches taller, and also of a darker complexion.

At this the captain wanted to know why in hell he hadn't said so before. The soldier replied that he hadn't been near enough to get a good look at him. So with crimination and recrimination, they were like to have a small fight among themselves when the captain hot-mouthed remembered his dignity, and put the still smiling fellow under arrest.

It being now too late to go in search of the man, and a heavy fog about, they returned to London a sorry lot.

CHAPTER XVIII.

The Loan of a Locket.

Lady Felton and I left the ivy-crown south wall, the deep-throated well, and the sound of clanking steel

"Is there anything I would not do for you, consistent with my honor?"

"Then in earnest of what you say I have a request to make of you," she whispered.

"Dear Rosemary, I beg of you not to hesitate," I pleaded.

"I would borrow the locket you wear upon your breast," she said coquettishly.

I raised my hand and felt of the locket she desired. Yes, it was safe and hung by its rossette of ribbons. Truly a little enough request to grant, yet I knew not what to say; for what she coveted was a locket with a jeweled front and mirrored back, such as gentlemen of fashion used to see if their wigs were on straight. This one of mine had a space between the jeweled front and the mirror, and in that space I had hidden the letter given me by my father. Intricately concealed in the rim was a spring, which when pressed opened the locket.

I thought at first of telling her about the paper; how Lady Dwight had been my father's first wife, and that Raoul Dwight was my half-brother. But something held me; respect for Lady Dwight, who should be the first one seen, and her wishes regarding her son. She might still not wish him to know that Lord Waters was his father. I was pondering these things when she spoke:

"I have a desire to wear it at the ball to-morrow night—on my breast. It is very pretty. It will look well among the ruffles of my new gown."

"To show another scalp at your girdle, as they say the red men in America number their victims," I suggested.

"Tush, sir!" she cried. "Your comparison is odious."

"But what matter it?" I continued; "I would all the world might know I am your lover."

Certainly she should wear the locket; I hesitated not a moment upon that point. It was a small thing to do for Rosemary—and I would take the paper out. Upon second thought I decided to let it remain where it was. She had guarded the other bit of paper so successfully, she should have the guarding of this one also.

The spring was so cunningly concealed she would never know that it was meant to open, later I should tell her about it.

"You—you?" I said. "Pretty Alice Lynson?"

behind us and rode toward the open country.

The fog thickened. We rode close. My knees touched her horse's belly. I bethought me in such a fog there was no need to go in a roundabout way.

"No one will be able to recognize us in this fog," I said, "we will ride for the bridge; we shall have time to cross it before the guards will have reached it and can station men there—trust Gil for that."

"Yet an I were you," she returned, "I would cover my face when we do cross it, for who knows who may be flashing lights about."

"I shall be cautious, never fear," I said; "for your sake it would not do for me to be recognized."

On a sudden there rang out through the gloom a ripple of laughter. It was as startling and as lovely as if a nightingale had burst into song at my head. It was Rosemary laughing in the very abandonment of life and love and joy.

"Pleasant thoughts come to you, sweet," I said; "may I partake of them?"

"It is naught of consequence," she replied. "I am fey at times—and now there came before me the picture of Aunt Elaine's face as she should want to see her niece to-night. An empty bed—a scandal—she will be horror-stricken—poor dear!" Again she laughed.

"I sincerely hope the fates will keep her from your room to-night until you are safe at home and snuggled in your bed," I said quite devoutly.

"Oh! you must know that Aunt Elaine loves me dearly," she explained. "I can twist her about my fingers as I can one of my rings."

"As you do all who come near you," I affirmed.

"Not so," she quickly retorted; "you yourself are not so amenable."

"If" I questioned in astonishment.

We reached the bridge. There were lighted flambeaux at its entrances, but we passed over unnoted, as ordinary wayfarers.

I dismounted her at the stables of the Bow Street mansion, where I had difficulty in arousing the hostler. Then we walked to the side entrance of the house. The key of this door Rosemary had taken the precaution to slip into her pocket, so as to be able to let herself in without awakening any one.

Before I bade her good-bye, I pinned the rossette upon her bosom.

"Take care of it, sweetheart," I said; "it was my mother's. For that reason I value it highly, but the setting is too old-fashioned to suit me; I shall have it reset when I return—with the other jewels to deck my bride."

"You are going?" she questioned.

"To Long Hunt on a sorrowful errand—to bury my father," I said.

"Your father is dead?" she exclaimed in an awe-stricken voice.

"Yes," I replied, "I only learned the sad news to-night from Gil. I never knew my father as a well man—God rest his soul! After I have laid him to rest among his ancestors in the old church of Long Hunt, I will return, yes in five days I shall be here to finish a task, over which God forgive me! I have not wasted my energy." Then after a slight pause: "It is late (Gil will be waiting, poor fellow; I have taxed his strength to the utmost)—although I long to stay with you, I must be on my way—Good-bye, good-bye, sweet!"

I took her in my arms and this time she did not deny me; I kissed her lips. I watched her into the house and waited until I heard the door close and heard her say, "Oh, Moffet! how you frightened me!" Then I turned and remounting my horse rode slowly out of the grounds. I passed the high pillars of stone at its entrance.

A light was swung before my eyes. I heard a whisper, "Tis he." A thousand colors flashed before me. I clutched at something—anything to save myself from falling. Then I knew no more.

CHAPTER XIX.

Pretty Alice Lynson.

Buzz-buzz-buzz sounded throughout the room. What fretted me most was that the noise kept time to the beatings in my temples.

"Master Arnold," I muttered, "'tis a fine way to treat your guests—drink 'em under the table—first time in life—your wine's too newly drawn—too new I say. Oh, my head's as heavy as a laggard's feet—No, no, my lord, the game is mine, mine, I say."

So murmuring I awakened. I was dreaming I was at the lodge, and with Lord Felton was again playing that memorable game, in which I had won the hand of Lady Felton.

I turned me over and tried to raise myself upon an elbow. My head fell back on the pillow. I was dropping off into sleep again when the noise which I have before mentioned aroused my ire.

"Gil, for God's sake," I cried out petulantly, "stop your clatter. You make more noise than a lot of fish wives chattering at a country fair."

The noise did not abate, but a figure raised itself from a chair at the foot of the bed whereon I lay.

"You idiot," I stormed, "will you keep still?"

The figure came tiptoeing to my side. I yawned, and then rubbed my eyes. It was "pretty Alice Lynson," as you please.

"You—you," I said wonderment in my voice. "Pretty Alice Lynson, on my life 'tis—pretty Alice Lynson," I repeated dryly, "what do you here?"

"Oh, sir, sir," she blubbered, and with the tail of her gown she wiped away the tear from her eyes. "God in heaven but I am glad—I never thought to hear you speak rationally again."

I looked at her inquiringly.

"Kind sir," she said, "you have been most grievously hurt."

"Hurt," I repeated.

"Yes," she nodded. "Struck upon the head. For five days you have been unconscious; even at death's door."

I raised my hand and felt of my head—it was sore to the touch, and about it there was a cloth.

"But how came you here?" I questioned.

"Here," she repeated. "'Tis but a poor room that I rent from day to day."

"I see," I said whimsically, "I should have said how came I here?"

"It is a long tale," she began, "and I am afraid the chirologist will not want me to talk to you for fear of your fever coming back."

"Never mind the chirologist," said I. "I am more like to die of impatience if you keep me long waiting. But first ask Gil to stop his jabbering there in the corner—tell him to come here—why doesn't he come here—perhaps I can induce him to satisfy my curiosity, since you are so reluctant."

She did not move from my side.

"Gil, Gil," I cried. I marvelled at my voice gave out so small a sound.

"Oh, sir," she said, "I'm afraid you will do yourself harm. Drink this, please, and then I will tell you what I know." She took a cup from among the bottles on a chair near the bed, and put it to my lips. I meekly drank. It contained a nasty concoction of drugs.

"Your pardon," I begged, for while she had my head raised I had peered more closely into the dingy corner. "My head is not very clear, and I thought 'twas Gil humming as he oft does one of his outlandish verses to himself. Where is the fellow any way?" I added petulantly.

(To be continued.)

TELL THE COMING WEATHER.

Observant Persons Need Never Be Caught Napping.

"If the chickweed and scarlet pimpernel expand their tiny petals, rain need not be expected for a few hours," says a writer. "Bees work with redoubled energy just before a rain. If the flies are unusually persistent either in the house or around stock there is rain in the air. The cricket sings at the approach of cold weather. Squirrels store a large supply of nuts, the husks of corn are unusually thick and the buds of deciduous trees have a firmer protecting coat if a severe winter is at hand. If the poplar or quaking aspen leaves turn up the under side rain will soon follow."

"If the camphor bottle becomes roily it is going to storm. When it clears settled weather may be expected. This idea has seemingly been utilized in the manufacture of some of our cheap barometers. The main trouble is, they seldom foretell the change until about the time it arrives."

"Last, but not least, the rheumatics can always tell it in their bones" when a storm is approaching, and of this prognostication the octogenarian of to-day is as firm an advocate as were his forefathers."

A Financier.

Bismarck had to confer with the Iron Cross on a hero in the ranks one day and, thinking to try his humor, which was of the elephantine order, on the man, he said:

"I am authorized to offer you, instead of the cross, a hundred thalers. What do you say?"

"What is the cross worth?" quietly asked the man.

"About three thalers."

"Very well, then, your Highness, I'll take the cross and ninety-seven thalers."

THE STRAIN OF WORK.

Best of Backs Give Out Under the Burden of Daily Toil.

Lieutenant George G. Warren, of No. 3 Chemical, Washington, D. C., says: "It's an honest fact that Doan's Kidney Pills did me a great lot of good, and if it were not true I would not recommend them. It was the strain of lifting that brought on kidney trouble and weakened my back, but since using Doan's Kidney Pills I have lifted 600 pounds and felt no bad effects. I have not felt the trouble come back since, although I had suffered for five or six years, and other remedies had not helped me at all."

Nature's Electric Lights.

Not only is the sun like a great arc light, but all the stars in the sky are nature's electric lights, illuminating immeasurable space.

BABY ONE SOLID SORE.

Could Not Shut Eyes to Sleep—Spent $100 on Doctors—Baby Grew Worse—Cured by Cuticura for $5.

"A scab formed on my baby's face, spreading until it completely covered her from head to foot, followed by boils, having forty on her head at one time, and more on her body. Then her skin started to dry up and it became so bad she could not shut her eyes to sleep. One month's treatment with Cuticura Soap and Ointment made a complete cure. Doctors and medicines had cost over $100, with baby growing worse. Then we spent less than $5 for Cuticura and cured her. (Signed) Mrs. G. H. Tucker, Jr., 335 Greenfield Ave., Milwaukee, Wis."

Need Not Fear Heart Disease.

"Don't run," and "avoid rheumatism," are among the health recipes which ought to be first considered by the man or woman who wants his or her heart to keep on ticking normally for three score and ten years or longer. It is safe to say that a person of temperate habits in eating and drinking, who takes six or eight hours sleep out of the twenty-four and some exercise afoot in the open air every day, and who absolutely refuses to worry and fret over his business or anything else, will never die of heart disease."

Women's Poetic Yearnings.

A woman takes the sort of wooing that is offered her, because it is the best she can get, but her heart and soul yearn for something far different—something romantic, poetic, ideal, and she never quite forgives the man who might have made beautiful love to her and didn't.—Cosmopolitan Review.

Women's Trousers at Hyderabad.

The first time I was introduced into the harem of one of the noblemen of Hyderabad, in the Deccan, I was surprised to find the Begum and her ladies dressed in tight-fitting trousers made of rich damask silks. It being the fashion to have these trousers as close-fitting as possible, they are actually sewn on, and are taken off and changed about once a fortnight.—London Daily Mail.

Lazy Germ an Invited Guest.

The scientist who announced not long since that he had discovered the germ which produces the disease of laziness may not have been wholly in error. But doubtless the symptoms often come first, and the microbes afterward—by invitation.

CHILDREN AFFECTED.

By Mother's Food and Drink.

Many babies have been launched into life with constitutions weakened by disease taken in with their mother's milk. Mothers cannot be too careful as to the food they use while nursing their babies. The experience of a Kansas City mother is a case in point:

"I was a great coffee drinker from a child, and thought I could not eat a meal without it. But I found at last it was doing me harm. For years I had been troubled with dizziness, spots before my eyes and pain in my heart, to which was added two years ago, a chronic sour stomach. The baby was born 7 months ago, and almost from the beginning, it, too, suffered from sour stomach. She was taking it from me!"

"In my distress I consulted a friend of more experience than mine, and she told me to quit coffee, that coffee did not make good milk, I have since ascertained that it really dries up the milk."

"So, I quit coffee, and tried tea and at last cocoa. But they did not agree with me. Then I turned to Postum Coffee with the happiest results. It proved to be the very thing I needed. It not only agreed perfectly with baby and myself, but it increased the flow of my milk. My husband then quit coffee and used Postum, quickly got well of the dyspepsia with which he had been troubled. I no longer suffer from the dizziness, blind spells, pain in my heart or sour stomach. Postum has cured them."

"Now we all drink Postum from my husband to my seven months' old baby. It has proved to be the best hot drink we have ever used. We would not give up Postum for the best coffee we ever drank. Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich."

There's a reason. Get the little book "The Road to Wellville" in each pkg.

EFFECTS OF PROSPERITY.

In the six years of the country's greatest prosperity, from 1897 to 1903, average prices of breadstuffs advanced 65 per cent., meats 23.1 per cent., dairy and garden products 50.1 per cent., and clothing 24.1. All these were products of the farmer and stockman who profited more than any other class of the community by these advances. The miner benefited 42.1 per cent by that advance in the average price of metals. The only decrease in the average prices of commodities in that period was in railway freight rates which decreased from .738 per ton-mile in 1897 to .763 in 1903, a loss of 4.4 per cent. The report of the Interstate Commerce Commission shows that the average increase in the pay of railroad employees in the period was a trifle above 8.5 per cent.

Two Wise Reflections.

If it be my lot to crawl, I will crawl contentedly; if to fly, I will fly with alacrity; but as long as I can possibly avoid it I will never be unhappy. If with a pleasant wife, three children and many friends who wish me well I cannot be happy, I am a very silly, foolish fellow and what becomes of me is of very little consequence.—From a Letter by Sydney Smith.

Indifference may not wreck the man's life at any one turn, but it will destroy him with a kind of dry rot in the long run. To keep your mind already made up is to be dull and fossiliferous; not to be able to make it up at all is to be watery and supine.—From Bliss Carman's "Friendship of Art."

Only Art.

The studio "tea" had been a great success; the one small and very youthful member of the company had walked softly about, looking at the pictures. Just before the party broke up the artist discovered him surveying a picture of a lion with awe and interest.

"Don't be afraid, little chap," said the artist, genially, patting his small guest on the head. "He won't hurt you."

"Or, I'm not afraid at all," came the response in a clear treble that caused every one to listen. "He does not look a bit as if he were alive, you know."—Youth's Companion.

If You Would Sleep Well.

Form a habit of throwing off, before going to bed at night, all the cares and anxieties of the day; everything which can possibly cause mental wear and tear or deprive you of rest.

What Everybody Says.

Jamboree, Ky., April 3rd.—(Special.)—"I suffered for years with my back," says Mr. J. M. Coleman, a well known resident of this place. "Then I used Dodd's Kidney Pills and I have not felt a pain since. My little girl complained of her back. She used about one-half box of Dodd's Kidney Pills and she is sound and well."

It is thousands of statements like the above that show Dodd's Kidney Pills to be the one cure for Backache or any other symptom of deranged kidneys. For Backache is simply a sign that the kidneys need help.

Dodd's Kidney Pills always cure Backache. They also always cure Bright's Disease, Diabetes, Dropsy, Rheumatism, Bladder and Urinary Troubles and Heart Disease. These are more advanced stages of kidney disease. Cure your Backache with Dodd's Kidney Pills and you need never fear them.

Value of Time.

There is nothing so valuable to the man who is going to carve out his own fortunes (and the fortune that is not carved out by oneself is not worth having), as time. Minutes, hours, days; they are things the value of which man cannot compute. They mean everything to young men. They are tides that come and go and leave him a wreck or carry him along with them to success. They can spell ruin just as well as they can spell hope; they will see a man fall just as readily as they will see him rise. One hour may mean an era of mental advancement and development to the man who spends it profitably; it may mean simply sixty minutes of time passed in shooting pool or billiards. You take your choice and you reap accordingly.—Chicago Tribune.

Domestic Economy.

Said Brown unto his wife one day: "We've nothing left to eat; if things go on in this queer way, we can't make both ends meet." His wife replied in words discreet: "Oh, we'll not be badly fed; you hustle and make one end meat and I'll make the other bread."

Sahara Sands Shifting.

Along the northern edge of the Sahara ruins of the old Roman villas and temples half buried in the sands are found. A GREAT MEDICINE

BRINGS HEALTH TO THREE MEMBERS OF SAME FAMILY.

Cures a Wife's Debility After Malaria, Husband's Rheumatism, a Daughter's Nervous Prostration.

"I have recommended Dr. Williams' Pink Pills to many people," said Mr. Gossett, "because I have seen such good results, time after time, right in my own family. There are three of us who have no doubt about their merits. We do need to take anybody's word on the subject for our own experience has taught us how well they deserve praise."

"It was just about ten years ago that I first read about Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and bought my first box. I was that time all run down, weak, nervous and without ambition. I had been suffering all summer for malaria, stomach trouble. Everybody thought I was going into consumption, as my mother had died of that disease."

"Thanks to Dr. Williams' Pink Pills I am now alive and hearty. I began to improve as soon as I began to take the pills, and when I had taken three boxes I was well woman. Everyone wonders how I keep so well and am able to care for my home and six children without help. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills explain it."

"My oldest girl's health began to improve when she was about fourteen. She was nervous, complained of sharp pains in her head, would get dully sick and have to leave the school room to get fresh air to revive her. I gave some pills to her. She took only a few boxes, but they cured her troubles, and caused her to develop into a perfect picture of health. Then my husband took them for rheumatism. He found that they would cure that too. You see we have all got great good from using them, and that is why we recommend them to others."

Mrs. Minnie B. Gossett lives in Ulrichville, Tuscarawas Co., Ohio, and is well known, as she has resided in the same neighborhood for more than thirty years. Her story shows that medicine which makes the blood pure and the nerves strong, overcomes a variety of diseases and should be found in every household. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are sold by all druggists everywhere. They have cured anaemia, and all forms of weakness, also the most stubborn cases of dyspepsia and rheumatism. They are indispensable for growing

STOP! WOMEN,

AND CONSIDER THE
ALL-IMPORTANT
FACT

That in addressing Mrs. Pinkham you are confiding your private ills to a woman—a woman whose experience with women's diseases covers a great many years. You can talk freely to a woman when it is revolting to relate your private troubles to a man—besides a man does not understand—simply because he is a man.

Many women suffer in silence and drift along from bad to worse, knowing full well that they ought to have immediate assistance, but a natural modesty impels them to shrink from exposing themselves to the questions and probably examinations of even their family physician. It is unnecessary. Without money or price you can consult a woman whose knowledge from actual experience is great.

Mrs. Pinkham's Standing Invitation:
Women suffering from any form of female weakness are invited to promptly communicate with Mrs. Pinkham at Lynn, Mass. All letters are received, opened, read and answered by women only. A woman can freely talk of her private illness to a woman; thus has been established the eternal confidence between Mrs. Pinkham and the women of America which has never been broken. Out of the vast volume of experience which she has to draw from, it is more than possible that she has gained the very knowledge that will help your case. She asks nothing in return except your good-will, and her advice has relieved thousands. Surely any woman, rich or poor, is very foolish if she does not take advantage of this generous offer of assistance. — Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass.

Following we publish two letters from a woman who accepted this invitation. Note the result.

First letter.
"Dear Mrs. Pinkham:—For eight years I have suffered something terrible every month with my periods. The pains are excruciating and I can hardly stand them. My doctor says I have ovarian and womb trouble, and I must go through an operation if I want to get well. I do not want to submit to it if I can possibly help it. Please tell me what to do. I hope you can relieve me."—Mrs. Mary Dimmick, 59th and E. Capitol Sts., Benning P.O., Washington, D.C.

Second letter.
"Dear Mrs. Pinkham:—After following carefully your advice, and taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, I am very anxious to send you my testimonial. I wish you to know that your valued what you have done for me."

PROGRESS SLOW IN TURKEY.

Electricity Has Not Been Welcomed in the Sultan's Domains.
Among other curious features which make Turkey an anomaly in Europe and among modern governments is the ban against electricity in the dominions of the sultan. There are no electric lights, yet there are gas plants; there are no telephones, yet the Turks utilize the telegraph, and the first electric railway is to be built, although steam roads are no longer a novelty. It will not be long, however, before this barrier to progress will be removed, for, according to United States Consul Ravndal, plans for an electric railway and for electric lighting at Damascus are under serious consideration. That such a project should be taken up in this, the oldest surviving city in history, indicates that Turkey is about to keep step, in this respect at least, with the modern world. High government officials are interested in the Damascus lighting undertaking, for which $200,000 is to be raised. Ahmed Izzet Pasha, second secretary to the sultan, and his brother, Mustafa Bey, have both promised to take stock, as has also the council of the province. If this should prove the entering wedge, which it seems, there is a field for the immediate attention of American electrical engineers, manufacturers and promoters.

ANGORA GOAT FARM PAYS.

Maryland Boy Winning Fame and Fortune Raising Them.

William J. Cohill, son of School Commissioner Edwin P. Cohill of Hancock, Md., is winning fame and making money by raising Angora goats, says the Baltimore American. Although only 17 years of age, he has been engaged in breeding Angora goats for seven years, and is thoroughly familiar with all of the details of goat culture. When he engaged in the business seven years ago the goats were purchased primarily for the purpose of having them clear the underbrush from a large tract of mountain land belonging to his father.

To-day the tract is set in apple and other fruit trees, which will soon be in bearing condition. The flock of goats has been added to until now young Mr. Cohill has several hundred Angoras, some of them blooded stock. At the St. Louis exposition his exhibit of goats won $100 in gold, and in addition he received an order from Hagenbeck, the animal trainer, for eight of his best Angoras, to be sent to Hamburg for starting a goat herd there. At the recent poultry and pet stock show at Madison Square garden, New York city, he won a $100 silver cup for the best specimen of Angora.

Tollers.

Here digs the sod, with hanging head, One curst of God to toll for bread.
The whelp of toll, the wolf of want, Aye, snap his heel, grim, hungry, gaunt.
Against his dim, dull, weary eyes, The Sword of Flame shuts Paradise.
With sweaty brow, rough, grimy hand, He drives the plow, he tills the land.
He's forth by dawn; his labors close When light draws on, brings rest, repose.
He struggles on through heat of day, Till parting sun flings level ray.
He digs till dark the stubborn earth, And deems his work of little worth.
In mind appears tall spires and domes, Where riches rear fair, stately homes.
In proud parade before him rise The marts of trade, rare merchandise.
Unnoticed, lone, he toils along, Yet yearns to join the swarming throng.
Here's one that's born decreed to live An atom in a human hive.
His labors yield no fruit, seem vain; He reaps no field of ripened grain.
No vital seed in fertile earth He sows to breed in fruitful birth.
Unwonted dreams, strange visions rise, Of wand'ring streams, soft, balmy skies.
These walls are woods, those roofs the vale, While peaceful herds browse yonder dale.
Regret by wall of brick and stone, Till Fate's last call he drudges on.
When all is o'er, their lowly cry Is, God, how poor, how curst am I.
Yet each has served his fellow men; Their last reward will be, "Well done." — Charles E. Milroy.

Judge Bishop and Gen. Butler.

During a session of the superior court at East Cambridge, Mass., when Judge Robert R. Bishop was on the bench, a case was called in which a back-country farmer appeared as witness. While giving his testimony the question of dates came up. "It happened in 1882," said the witness. "Are you sure it was that year?" asked the counsel. "Dead sure," said the witness. "Will you tell the court why you are so certain about the year?" asked the counsel. "Well," drawled the witness, "I know, because it was the year Ben Butler defeated Rob Bishop for governor."

Speed of Electric Waves.

Electric waves measured by Hertz—and named after him—were found by the great scientist to be 150 feet from the top of one wave to the top of the next. The waves used by Marconi in telegraphing across the Atlantic are much longer. They are said to be 600 feet or more. They travel at the same speed as light, 184,000 miles a second. But the light wave measures only a few millionths of an inch.

MRS. MABLE BRADFORD

Mrs. Mable Bradford, 13 Church street, Burlington, Vt., Secretary Whittier Oratorio Society, writes:

"Peruna is certainly a wonderful medicine for the ills of women. I have heard it spoken of in the highest praise by many, and certainly my experience is well worthy of a good word."

"I began to have severe pains across my back about a year ago, brought on by a cold, and each subsequent month brought me pain and distress."

"Your remedy was prescribed, and the way it acted upon my system was almost too good to be true. I certainly have regained my health and strength, and I no longer suffer periodical pains and extreme lassitude."—Mable Bradford.

Thousands of Women Cured Every Year by Correspondence—This is What Dr. Hartman Proposes to Do For You Without Charge.

Women who suffer should read the evidences presented here. We have thousands of letters from grateful friends who tell the same story.

Mrs. Lizzie Redding, 3134 B Clifton Place, St. Louis, Mo., writes:

"I found after trying many different medicines to restore me to health, that Peruna was the only thing which could be depended upon. I began taking it when I was in a decline, induced by female weakness and overwrought nerves."

"I began to feel stronger during the first week I took Peruna and my health improved daily until now I am in perfect health and enjoy life as I never did before."—Lizzie Redding.

MRS. LIZZIE REDDING

Thousands of testimonials to this effect are received by Dr. Hartman every year. The good that Peruna has accomplished in this class of cases can scarcely be over-estimated.

Truths that Strike Home

Your grocer is honest and—if he cares to do so—can tell you that he knows very little about the bulk coffee he sells you. How can he know, where it originally came from, how it was blended—or with what—or when roasted? If you buy your coffee loose by the pound, how can you expect purity and uniform quality?

LION COFFEE, the LEADER OF ALL PACKAGE COFFEES, is of necessity uniform in quality, strength and flavor. For OVER A QUARTER OF A CENTURY, LION COFFEE has been the standard coffee in millions of homes.

LION COFFEE is carefully packed at our factories, and until opened in your home, has no chance of being adulterated, or of coming in contact with dust, dirt, germs, or unclean hands.

In each package of LION COFFEE you get one full pound of Pure Coffee. Insist upon getting the genuine. (Lion head on every package.)

A JACKSON MAN

Had Asthma But a Jackson Physician Cured Him Permanently in Four Weeks.

READ HIS TWO STATEMENTS.

R. F. D. No. 7,
Jackson, Mich., Oct. 8, 1904.
I feel it my duty to others suffering with asthma to state that I commenced treating with Dr. Wilkinson for my asthma last July and I was relieved at once, and in 4 weeks I was entirely free of the disease, and have been ever since. It is certainly gratifying to get cured of this distressing malady, and I thoroughly believe that Dr. Wilkinson, 25 Dwight Bldg., Jackson, Mich., can cure any and every case of asthma if they will obey his instructions, which is not difficult to do.

E. W. BROMLEY.

A Later Statement.

March 27, 1905.

It gives me much pleasure to say at this time that I have not been bothered with asthma at all since I wrote the above, and furthermore I have not taken any asthma medicine whatever since December 1, 1904. Dr. Wilkinson has certainly been successful in handling my case.

Wine of Cardui Cured Her.

213 South Prior Street,
ATLANTA, GA., March 21, 1903.

I suffered for four months with extreme nervousness and lassitude. I had a sinking feeling in my stomach which no medicine seemed to relieve, and losing my appetite I became weak and lost my vitality. In three weeks I lost fourteen pounds of flesh and felt that I must find speedy relief to regain my health. Having heard of Wine of Cardui, I sent for a bottle and was certainly very pleased with the results. Within three days my appetite returned and my stomach troubled me no more. I could digest my food without difficulty and the nervousness gradually diminished. Nature performed her functions without difficulty and I am once more a happy and well woman.
