A Young Life Suddenly Ended.

Miss Amy Belle Whalian, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. S. Whalian, of North Lake, died at their home Thursday evening, April 13, after a brief illness, of pulmonary tuberculosis, aged 22 years, 10 months and 20 days.

The deceased young lady was of a bright, energetic disposition and was an apt student. She attended the North Lake school in her childhood days and graduated from it in the eighth grade. She was also a graduate of the Chelsea high school, and March 24, last, she graduated from the Normal College, Ypsilanti. She had accepted a position as teacher in the Marine City schools, but was forced to give it up when she was taken ill. She joined the M. E. church at an early age and through life had continued a member of it. The illness which resulted fatally to her was of but short duration, she being in Chelsea only a few days before her death.

The funeral services were held at the North Lake church Sunday morning and were conducted by Rev. F. E. Pearce, of Denton, assisted by Rev. Geo. W. Gordon, pastor of the church. Several of her former classmates and teachers were present. The interment was made in the North Lake cemetery.

A NEW HOME.

Chelsea Lodge, K. of P., Are About to Make a Move.

Chelsea Knights of Pythias are about to move from their present quarters which they have occupied for several years past. They have leased the upper floor of the McKune block for a term of 10 years with the privilege of five additional when that time expires. They now have men busily at work tearing out and moving partitions and fixing up the rooms to suit their purposes. The two front rooms will be used for a parlor and club room. The lodge room will be the room formerly used by the Foresters for that purpose. Beside these there will be a large cloak room, a paraphernalia room, a room for storing fuel, and a toilet room. The move was made necessary by the increasing growth of the membership which needed more space for its accommodation, added to which it was felt that it would be better to pay rent to one landlord instead of two as was being done. The K. P.'s will get into their new home by May 1.

A Fatal Accident Narrowly Averted.

What might have proved a fatal accident was prevented by presence of mind and prompt action at the White Portland Cement Co.'s plant at Four Mile Lake last week Wednesday afternoon. For some unknown reason the elevator used to carry up the marl, coke, etc., failed to stop when the desired point was reached, and had not Fred Chase, the foreman, been quick to grasp the situation and turn in an emergency call to the engineer, the lives of the four men on the elevator would most likely have been crushed out as the elevator went up as high as possible and then the cables pulled it out through the side of the building, causing a rupture that required several days' work to repair. It ordinarily takes the big Corliss engine about 6 minutes to stop after the steam is shut off, but Engineer Lighthall succeeded in bringing it to a standstill in about 50 seconds, and it was the slowing down of the machinery that gave the men on the elevator a chance to jump before the crash came.

NEWS OF MICHIGAN

GOV. WARNER ASKS THAT THE HOUSE PRIMARY BILL BE PASSED.

THE OWOSSO BANK IN THE HANDS OF A RECEIVER NOW.

REV. WELCH'S ATTORNEY'S THREW UP THE DEFENSE OF HIS CASE IN DISGUST.

In a letter from Farmington to Private Secretary Arthur P. Loomis, Gov. Warner made a formal announcement of his wish to see the Double-Ivory-Dickinson bill passed. His letter says:

"Thinking you may receive inquiries today, you may say that I believe that the house acted wisely in getting together on a measure so nearly satisfactory to all parties, and I trust the senate will see the wisdom of agreeing to the bill with equal unanimity.

"There are perhaps some minor changes which could be made to simplify the proposed primary system, but these should not require extended discussion or delay.

"I hope that by the end of the week the perfected bill may have been agreed to by both houses and without any friction. You may assure my friends that I will take pleasure in signing the bill at the earliest moment practicable. Yours truly,

"FRED M. WARNER."

"I shall vote for the Double-Ivory-Dickinson bill, but would advise a few amendments," said Senator Doherty. "I would ask Mr. Baird's plan of representation of counties in convention proportioned to the party vote for governor. I would close all saloons on primary day, and, above all, would abolish the Wayne and other local bills."

A fight will be made on the provision to prohibit advertising by candidates in newspapers, but the bill may not be reported this week.

Receiver For Owosso Bank.

In the United States district court, Bay City, Tuesday the Detroit Trust Co. was appointed receiver for M. L. Stewart & Co., the bankers at Owosso. A petition to declare the banking company bankrupt was filed by Jesse C. Shattuck, Michigan Sewing Machine & Organ Co., Thos. O. Christian and George T. Campbell. The petition represented that the appointment of a receiver was absolutely necessary for the preservation of the estate. Referee Joslyn, who acted in the absence of Judge Swan, fixed the bond of the receiver at $25,000. The receiver is directed to take hold of the estate, collect and receipt all amounts due and in general protect the assets and estate. The action of four depositors does not mean that the petitioners are unfriendly towards Mr. Stewart. The matter was decided on only after a conference with him. It was agreed best in order to prevent suits being brought against the bank before its affairs were straightened out. The feeling towards Mr. Stewart continues to be friendly from all sources.

Welch Convicted.

When on motion of the attorneys for the defense all testimony of the defense in the trial of Rev. Clarence M. Welch, of Nashville, charged with Nina Caven with illegal parentage, was stricken out and the case submitted on the evidence of the prosecution, a verdict of guilty was brought in by the jury after 30 minutes' deliberation, ordering him to pay $3 a week for the next two years, for the child's support, and $2 a week thereafter until the child is 14. The little one is now two years old. When Welch was led away to jail he evinced an ugly disposition. He said he had paid his attorneys $600; that he was not guilty of the crime, and that he would not pay the money provided by the court for the support of the child. He said he would lay in jail and let the maggot carry him out piecemeal through the keyhole, but would never pay the money.

The Tar and Feathers Case.

Another startling result of the tar and feather incident at Hudson, in which Mrs. Post was the victim, was seen Tuesday at Adrian, when Attorney Grant Fellows came to the county seat and started proceedings for divorce for Mrs. Loren Barrett against her husband, who is alleged to have been infatuated with Mrs. Post. She asks for alimony. The lawyer also represented the brothers of Barrett, who have applied for an injunction restraining Loren from disposing of his property, as it is feared, they say, that he will try to avoid further trouble by skipping out.

The Hackley Estate.

The inventory of the estate of Chas. H. Hackley, Muskegon's deceased millionaire, has been completed, showing holdings in Michigan aggregating $3,356,352, while in other states there are much larger holdings, the bulk of his real estate being outside of Michigan. There are plane lands in British Columbia and Louisiana, and the total value of the properties will be at least $7,000,000. A peculiar feature of the inventory was that of this large estate there was only $143 in cash on hand.

Mrs. A. Hartshorn, the woman from Holland, who has become a public charge on Kalamazoo county, because she refuses to work, gives as her reason that a lawyer refused to collect $150 for her from John Zounrijder, a young man whose passage she paid to this country.

Martin Goins, one of the quartet who escaped from Ingham county jail after assaulting the sheriff on the evening of March 17, has now to face the charge of breaking jail and is sorry he left without leave. Goins has already served half of a 30 days' sentence for jumping a board bill.

The senate judiciary committee has practically smothered Senator Rumer's bill calling for the abolition of the pardon board, and no legislation along those lines is expected at the hands of the present legislature. The members of the board, who realize that Rumer's bill means their jobs, have got in some effective work.

Reynier Stonehouse, of Grand Rapids, who had worked up in the mail service to the rank of first substitute mail carrier, and was ready for appointment, will not be given a job, as the indemnity company refused to go on his bond on account of his confession that he accepted a bribe in the water deal case.

Suits have been commenced against the Ann Arbor railroad by Dennis Harding and the administrator of the Fred Meyer estate for $10,000 and $25,000, respectively. Harding and Meyer were working on a wrecking car a few months ago when a derrick broke, killing Meyer and injuring Harding.

Because he was questioned as to his belief in regard to spirits, Reuben De Armon, an old man testifying in a lawsuit in circuit court in Owosso, left the stand and the courthouse in high temper Tuesday afternoon. As the case was one in chancery, Judge Smith refused to make a ruling to recall him or strike out his testimony.

NO SEA FIGHT YET

A FIGHT BETWEEN SCOUTING CRUISERS SEEMS TO BE ALL SO FAR.

TOGO THOUGHT TO BE SCHEMING TO WEAKEN RUSSIAN FLEET GRADUALLY.

RUSSIAN AND ENGLISH VIEWS OF THE COMING NAVAL BATTLE.

British naval men comment on the lack of secrecy regarding Admiral Rojestvensky's movements since his arrival in far eastern waters. The fact that he is keeping to the main trade route, although knowing his squadron would constantly be sighted and reported by passing vessels, they consider clearly shows that the Russian admiral is keenly anxious to meet Admiral Togo and fight it out to a finish.

It provides that at any time any party adopting the system should fire of it, the electors of such party may reject it on its being resubmitted. The most prominent features in both bills were amalgamated into a measure to be known as the Double-Ivory-Dickinson primary election bill, and it was passed by a vote of 92 to 1, Morrice, of Emmet, voting no.

A Small Scrap.

A report from Manila says that fighting has begun between the Russian and Japanese fleets near the Palawan islands, part of the Philippines group. The dispatch does not go into details, and while it is believed by naval men that there is a possibility of truth in it, it is not supposed that any of the heavy battleships of either fleet have been engaged. The fighting, if any has occurred, will probably prove to have been between scouting cruisers of the two fleets. Japanese scouts have been sighted in that locality within the last few days, and this fact lends some color to the report, as it is generally believed that the Russian fleet has anchored temporarily in some harbor in that vicinity in order to coal up and make other preparations before proceeding farther north.

Rojestvensky's Challenge.

High hopes are centered on Vice Admiral Rojestvensky, and gradually something like genuine enthusiasm has been aroused by the Russian admiral's hardihood in sailing straight for a combat with the Japanese. There are many Russian naval officers who do not believe that Vice Admiral Togo will accept the challenge. In their opinion the Japanese will be too prudent in such a crisis to risk the destruction of their fleet. They believe that Togo's tactics will be to avoid an open sea fight and that he will launch a series of desperate night torpedo attacks in the hope of throwing the Russian fleet into confusion, scattering the line of ships and giving his faster battleships and cruisers an opportunity to surround and destroy them individually, and if some of Rojestvensky's ships escape to Vladivostok to bottle them up there.

An English View.

There is a growing impression among British naval experts that, unless the Russian and Japanese fleets come together now, the long-looked-for sea fight may be postponed for two or three weeks, and may then resolve itself into a blockade of Vladivostok by Admiral Togo. It is thought by many close observers that the Japanese admiral may decide to avoid an open battle at sea and permit the Russians to reach Vladivostok, then close the entrances to the harbor and gradually wear down Rojestvensky's fleet, as he did the ships that were bottled up in Port Arthur.

Durand Depot Burned.

Sunday midnight the new Grand Trunk depot was practically destroyed by fire, all efforts of the local fire department and of the Flint fire department, which came to assist, being unavailing. The depot was completed a little over a year ago at a cost of $80,000 and with the equipment and furnishing the loss caused by the fire will amount to $125,000. The fire was discovered in the basement by the night watchman, who says the flames leaped at once to the third story, and spread so rapidly that within 15 minutes they were absolutely beyond control. He rushed to the third story to alarm Rose and Lydia Creek, waiters in the depot restaurant, who roomed in the building, and it was with difficulty that they were rescued. Hunter, the night watchman, fell and sustained injuries. He says he attempted to close the large iron doors that shut off the rear of the depot from the front, but the heat was so intense that he could not manage it.

THE LEGISLATURE.

A primary election bill providing for the nomination of candidates for the offices of governor and lieutenant governor by a direct vote of the people, should a majority of the electors of any political party so decide, and for the direct nomination of congressmen, state senators and representatives and county and judicial officers when a majority of the political electors in any political party in any congressional, legislative or judicial district or county so decides; a bill which, in short, goes further than the Republican platform—that is the kind of a measure passed by the house of representatives Thursday under a suspension of rules.

The new bill makes the submission of the primary question to the voters of all parties mandatory so far as governor and lieutenant governor are concerned, while for districts, from congressional districts down, the local option plan is to be followed. This bill does not affect in any way the laws already in operation in Wayne, Kent, Muskegon and Alpena counties.

It provides that at any time any party adopting the system should fire of it, the electors of such party may reject it on its being resubmitted. The most prominent features in both bills were amalgamated into a measure to be known as the Double-Ivory-Dickinson primary election bill, and it was passed by a vote of 92 to 1, Morrice, of Emmet, voting no.

The senate adjourned to meet Monday and will have time to think over the matter. The only objections thus far come from upper peninsula representatives, they declaring, in the words of Lieut. Gov. Maitland, that the amendments to the Double-Ivory bill were part of a plot to "defraud the upper peninsula out of the lieutenant governorship," which has been accorded to that section for 25 years. It has been suggested that the senate shall settle the whole issue Monday in a secret caucus, and come out to vote unanimously on whatever plan. In a caucus lieutenant governor might be eliminated. The governor wants a bill. He wants a platform bill if possible, a broader bill if it must be such a one. He says: "I shall sign the bill which the legislature in its best judgment approves. I stand on the platform."

The Lovell bill, which reduces the number of tax commissioners from five to three, has been given a favorable report by the house committee on general taxation. There has been apparently a shift of position in regard to this measure, which may mean that the bill will pass. Gov. Warner, in his inaugural message, declared in favor of cutting down the number of commissioners, but Railroad Commissioner Atwood, so it was said, had taken the position that the number of commissioners should be kept at five, and it looked as if the measure was destined for the mausoleum.

Senator Peek, of Jackson, introduced a bill to provide for the state examining and registration of nurses. The senate in committee of the whole passed Senator Crosey's juvenile court bill, backed by the State Association of County Agents.

The house committee on military affairs reported Rep. Simpson's bill providing that aides on the governor's staff must be men of two years' military service; that the infantry companies of the state are to be reduced from 40 to 36; that there shall be two additional officers in the commissary department; that a retired list of commissioned officers of the National Guard shall be kept.

The house passed the Sault canal celebration appropriation bill of $15,000, reported without recommendation, by the committee on ways and means. The bill first asked for $25,000. The senate state affairs committee cut it to $20,000; the committee on finances to $15,000. When the house committee on ways and means offered to cut it to $10,000, Hon. Peter White asked the committee to report the bill without recommendation.

Rep. Wm. McKay, of Tascala, is doing his utmost to get his bill to increase liquor licenses from $500 to $1,000 reported by the committee on liquor traffic.

The governor sent to the senate the name of N. A. Reynolds, of Coldwater, as a member of the board of control of the state public school of Coldwater.

Rep. George Lord received a petition from 436 Detroit business firms urging the passage of the Hudson local option bill, and another from 50 firms against its passage.

The house committee on state affairs killed the senate bill providing a penalty of the loss of primary school moneys to the school district where the American flag was not duly displayed.

The house committee on railroads reported the Elchhorn bill, giving electric railways the right of eminent domain and power of condemnation. The bill will probably cause a lively fight in the house.

The house game committee report a bill protecting deer for five years in the lower peninsula. The Byrns bill, extending beaver protection in the upper peninsula for five years, was also reported.

Castro's Fusillade.

After holding it for a week, the state department today gave out the correspondence between Minister Bowen and President Castro, out of which grew the incident which Secretary Taft, acting for the president, is permitting to close itself because there is nothing of credit in it to the United States. This government asked Castro if he was disposed, yes or no, in a friendly way to submit all the questions at issue between the two governments to arbitration. At the same time, notice was served on Venezuela that if she would not submit them, the United States reserved the right to take such action as it might deem proper. The reservation is what caused the note to be regarded as in the nature of an ultimatum, although the essential feature of an ultimatum is the fixing of a time for a reply, was not contained in it. But it is the same sort of notice that Japan gave Russia as a warning to prepare for war.

Castro's answer, which Minister Bowen characterized as contemptuous and insulting, was of the same nature, crisp and to the point. He called attention to the fact that diplomatically speaking there were no questions at issue between the governments because all matters in which Americans were interested were then pending in the courts, according to the terms of the concessions that were the subject matter of the cases pending. The same course would have been taken by the United States had a similar proposal been made by any nation concerning matters before the courts of the United States or of any state. A request to withdraw a case from the courts would have been considered an insult.

How the Terrorists Were Caught.

Gradually many interesting details surrounding the recent arrest in Russia of a band of about a dozen terrorists are leaking out. The capture, which is regarded by the authorities as being of immense importance, was accomplished by Kashovsky, the Russian Sherlock Holmes, who was dismissed from the secret police several years ago on account of his connection with Philippe, the spiritualist, who created such a stir at court, and who then went to Paris to live. Perhaps the most romantic feature is the fact that Mlle. Leontieff converted two nieces of Governor-General Trepoeff, Mlle. Trepoeff and Princess Deinsheff, to the doctrine of assassination and that after the arrest of her mentor Mlle. Trepoeff actually attempted the life of her uncle, firing two shots at him, both of which missed. Thereupon the two girls became panic-stricken and attempted suicide. Mlle. Trepoeff, throwing herself under a train and Princess Deinsheff shooting herself. Neither of them succeeded in killing herself. The family has since tried to make it appear that the girls' acts were the result of a mutual pact for self-destruction, both being in love with the same man, an officer of the guards.

Chicago Is Not Nice.

Two Chicago women are said to form a link in the chain of evidence which the government is trying to forge around the packers. The women are Mrs. Irving A. Vant, wife of the assistant secretary of Swift & Co., and Mrs. Richard W. Hewes, wife of the head of the casings department of Swift & Co. The husband of each woman is in Canada. Messrs. Vant and Hewes left Chicago shortly before the grand jury convened. That the husbands are in Canada at the instigation of the legal advisers of a certain packing company, is a charge which it is said, the government seeks to prove from the testimony of the wives, both of whom returned from Canada within the last few days. Since returning Mrs. Hewes is said to have met an attorney connected with a prominent packing firm and discussed plans for a trip to Europe with her husband. A similar trip for the Vants is said to have been discussed at the time. The grand jury made special efforts to secure enough evidence to indict a high official of the leading packing firm in Chicago. The charge is attempting to influence government witnesses. Three witnesses were summoned on forthwith subpoenas and were rigidly questioned, but failed to tell as much as had been expected.

How Is Your Heart?

Is your pulse weak, too slow, too fast, or does it skip a beat? Do you have shortness of breath, weak or hungry spells, fainting, smothering or choking spells, palpitation, fluttering, pains around the heart, in side and shoulder, or hurt when lying on left side?

If you have any of these symptoms your heart is weak or diseased, and cannot get better without assistance.

Dr. Miles' Heart Cure strengthens weak hearts, and rarely ever fails to cure heart disease. Try it, and see how quickly you will find relief.

"About January 1st, 1902, I took down with weakness and dizziness, and gradually grew worse. I was told by my family physician that my case was hopeless. My neighbors and family had given me up to die. My limbs and body were swollen to one-third larger than normal size, and water had collected around my heart. For at least three months I had to sit propped up in bed to keep from smothering. I sent for five bottles of Dr. Miles' Heart Cure, and by the time I had taken them all I was entirely cured. I feel better than I have for twenty years, and I am able to do any kind of work on my farm. My attending physician told me that if it hadn't been for Dr. Miles' Heart Cure I would now be in my grave."

THURSDAY, APRIL 20, 1905

To the Public.

I will thank the Herald for space to make a brief statement and enter an earnest appeal. Early in the past autumn the pastors of the churches in Chelsea, together with one layman from each, arranged and became responsible for a course of public lectures and concerts to the extent of six numbers, costing about $400.

The course has been filled to the entire satisfaction of all, so far as we know. Indeed, we are certain that a more able and satisfactory series of entertainments has not been given anywhere. But from some cause or other the venture was not patronized as largely as we had anticipated, and, as a result, we find ourselves a little less than $40 short of expenses. To meet this deficiency we have asked Rev. C. S. Jones to give a farewell lecture at the Hall on Tuesday evening, April 25, with admission of 15 cents. We believe that our friends and the friends of Bro. Jones will readily avail themselves of this opportunity to relieve the committee of its embarrassment, do honor to the speaker and hear a first-class lecture.

VARICOCELE CURED

NO NAMES USED WITHOUT WRITTEN CONSENT.
Confined to His Home for Weeks.

"Heavy work, severe straining and evil habits in youth brought on a double varicocele. When I worked hard the aching would become severe and I was often laid up for a week at a time. My family physician told me an operation was my only hope but I dreaded it. I tried several specialists, but soon found out that all they wanted was my money. I commenced to look upon all doctors as little better than rogues. One day my boss asked me to take treatment from them himself and knew they were square and skilful. He wrote them and got the New Method Treatment for me. My progress was somewhat slow and during the first month's treatment I was somewhat discouraged. However, I continued treatment for three months longer and was rewarded with a complete cure. I could only earn $12 a week in a machine shop before treatment, now I am earning $21 and never lose a day. I wish all sufferers knew of your valuable treatment."

When a woman asks a number of questions she is possessed of idle curiosity. When a man asks a number he is animated by a keen desire to improve his mind and enlarge his sphere of knowledge. EVERY ONE ASKS HIM

HOW HE GOT RID OF HIS OBSTINATE MUSCULAR RHEUMATISM.

Mr. Jones Tells of the Way by Which He Treated Himself Successfully When Doctors Failed.

Six physicians, all of them good, one of them a specialist, had done their best for Mr. Jones at different times during three years, and still he suffered fearfully from the tortures of rheumatism.

The rheumatism that had been dormant in his system was suddenly brought to an acute stage by exposure while he was drawing ice in February, 1901. From that time on for a period more than three years he was a constant sufferer. He tried many kinds of treatment, but the rheumatism wouldn't budge. When regular doctors failed, and one remedy after another proved useless, many said: "I should think he would give it up and save his money."

Of his condition at this time, Mr. Jones says: "My rheumatism started in my right thigh, but in time it appeared in every muscle of my body. I lost the use of my left arm entirely and nearly lost the use of my right one. My feet were badly affected, especially the bottoms of the heels. When my right side was affected there was swelling, but the left side didn't swell when the disease settled there. The internal organs didn't seem to be involved at all. The trouble was all in the muscles and the nerves."

Among the few who still encouraged Mr. Jones to think that a cure might yet be found was a friend who had reason for great confidence in Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and acting on her advice he bought a box of them in September, 1904. The story of what followed is brief, but nothing could be more satisfactory.

"When I was on the third box," says Mr. Jones, "I could realize a change for the better. I felt sure then that Dr. Williams' Pink Pills were the right medicine for my case. I kept on with them for several weeks longer and now I am entirely well, and everybody is asking what I took."

Mr. William Jones lives at Oxford, Mich. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills effect wonderful cures in rheumatism, because they work directly on the blood which is the seat of the disease. They are sold by every druggist.

"Five days!" I repeated. "This is the night when I am to meet Lady Felton and receive it back again. I must get up—help me, Gil!"

"You cannot; you are not able," said he.

"She will think I do not care," I pleaded; "I must get up."

"It does not matter, my lord; the lady is not in London," said he.

"Ah, yes, you said that you had seen her—where has she gone?" I asked.

"I do not know," he returned.

I fell back exhausted from talking, big drops of sweat stood upon my face. I made a motion for him to explain.

"Three nights ago," he began, "at the close of another day of unrequited search, tired out, I was dozing in my chair. You see, sir, I have not slept in a bed since our parting."

"Poor Gil!" I murmured.

I remembered how he had ridden to and from Long Hunt without rest, and now this wearying search.

"You were right—it may be some consolation for you to know—there is nothing to beat this looking after young sparks for taking the pounds off one, hey Gil?" I said drolly. "You will be as slender as our friend, Noel, when next you meet."

"I had not finished my supper," he went on, heedless of my interruption.

"I intended to go out again as soon as my cloak was dried; and, as I said, I fell asleep in my chair. I was awakened by Torridge, who came and said that the lady was at the lodge door. You will know that I am not at the Blue Boar, but in an old house on the fringe of town."

"What lady?" I asked him.

"The handsome one that came to the Tabard," he explained.

"I hurried on my clothes to be decent and went down to the door, where the fool had left her standing. I begged her to come in. She was ing other profuse apologies, when he discovered that the mirror was broken, shattered into a thousand tiny bits. 'A bad omen, ma cousin,' he said, 'a death!' His face glowed with the liveliest interest, and malignity was not far off. I twitted him with being spiteful because of losing the wager—I was not gentle with him."

"I may say I believed her, for upon the telling of the circumstance, her eyes sparkled like glow worms on a summer's night," was Gil's comment.

"He dallied with the locket," the lady continued her narrative, in a disdainful manner, turning it now this way, now that, while I waited his pleasure. Finally he gave it an extra fillip and the thin gold partition, which backed the mirror, fell out, and with it a bit of paper folded into a tiny square to fit the locket. Again there was a scramble, and again Raoul Dwight was the successful one.

In spite of my expostulations, he opened and read what was written on the paper aloud—the dishonorable bond! 'A love letter,' he cried mockingly; 'a rendezvous, too!' He then held it up so that all the dandies present might see. I was in distress, for now I thought I understood why Mister Waters had been so solicitous about the locket—he should have trusted me if it is of any value to him."

"It is not mine," I cried, scarcely knowing what I said. "See it is not, cousin," he replied, for the date on the billet doux, although almost indistinguishable, antedates your birth by some years—and I beg your pardon, coz," he added. The men's muttered cries of 'Shame,' helped him to fasten his slipping temper.

"Then he hastened to hand it to me, for he had seen what I too saw; my father watching us. You must know," she explained to me, "that I have a father here in London, although 'tis little indeed I see of him, living, as I mostly do, at Lady Dwight's. My father now came to me, for he had seen what I too saw; my father watching us. You must know," she explained to me, "that I have a father here in London, although 'tis little indeed I see of him, living, as I mostly do, at Lady Dwight's. My father now came to dread—pale—big black rings were under her eyes."

"If he is dead," I violently cried, "you have killed him!"

"Your master," she faltered. "Have you found him yet?"

"No," I replied, "and I have searched everywhere."

"I am afraid," she said, "that he is dead. Her voice broke and died away in a sob."

"What makes you think so?" I asked, stubborn enough still to contest the thought with anyone that you could be dead."

"Yes, dead," she repeated, "and a woman's vanity has been the cause!"

I thought, if so, she would not be the first woman to do a man to his death by the same. I restrained myself, however, and gave her no hint of my thoughts."

I could have smiled any other time, he took so much virtue to himself at that restraint, but anxiety consumed me and I motioned him to continue."

"You must know," she said, "that my cousin, Sir Raoul Dwight, laid me a wager—it was to be a pair of jeweled gloves against my carol ring—that I could not get Mister Waters to loan me that locket he wore upon his breast. I could not let the wager pass; and that was the reason why I came to the Tabard instead of sending someone to see him and to coax it from him."

"I will tell you that her voice lagged in the telling of this."

"No side remarks, if you please, Gil," I interrupted sharply.

"The night of the ball," the lady continued, "I wore the locket; it hung among the lace ruffles which encircled my neck. At once Cousin Raoul saw it—I knew, he saw it, although he said nothing, and I flitted my triumph in his face. Tired of the minut, someone proposed a country dance. I like them not—they are rough. We were in the midst of one, where the gentlemen hold their swords up and the ladies pass beneath them. In a moment, I understand not yet how it happened, we all got bunched together. In the mix-up my dress was torn and the locket—Mister Waters' locket—fell to the floor. Raoul Dwight's foot in an instant covered the bauble with the gentleman with whom I was dancing had time to stoop for it. Cousin Raoul was handing it to me (he had been the quicker to pick it up) with a low bow of mock humility, bewailing his awkwardness and makward us, pushing back the crowd debonairly. I forestalled the words on his lips by crying gayly to Raoul Dwight: 'I have won the wager; the gloves are mine.' But my father was not so easily to be put to rout. 'Allow me to see the paper, Mary,' he requested. But I courtseyed low before him, and replied, 'You must excuse me, sir; it would not interest you.' Moreover, it does not belong to me! I placed the paper back in the locket and fastened on the gold back."

"The men began making apologies for the fracas, and Raoul Dwight, as if to make amends for his rudeness, born of pique, and as I afterward learned, desire to see if the locket which Mister Waters habitually wore contained the pledge of my hand, lingered to appease Lord Felton. I understood that Raoul Dwight was explaining about the paper. I heard him say (my ears are keen) words to the effect that it was naught but an old love letter written to Elaine, of which Mister Waters must be choice indeed, since he treasured it so; and if it were ever to come again under his notice he would destroy it. And his information was punctuated with malicious chuckles. Which proved to me that it was of value to its owner, and that Raoul Dwight had either seen or heard of it before. I promised myself that, as far as I had the saying, he should never see it again."

"I did not look at my father, but I could feel his eyes follow me as I walked down the hall room with my partner, and I knew that he was furious at being thwarted in his inquisitiveness. That was not to be the end of the affair. There is much more to tell, much more!"

"I thought to escape an interview with him that night by spending it at Lady Dwight's. I had hardly entered the hall of her house when Lord Felton stood before me. After many pleasant words and compliments for my father knows how to be most gracious when he chooses, and he can be the fiend incarnate when he pleases, also, he asked to see the billet doux. Again I refused graciously, but firmly. He was at a white heat with anger, and I was afraid that he would use force to wrench it from me. I should have known him better than that. He recovered himself and in his most suave manner said slowly and impressively: 'You are wasting your strength, my dear; better build a new fire upon the ashes of this old one—you will never see Quentin Waters—your lover—again. I think that you will not care to so unloved, no, not unloved, you could never be that, but unloving to the grave. Moreover, have your maid prepare your clothes; to-morrow I am going to take you away with me. I have left you too long to your own devices; and your lovers.'

"You have called Quentin Waters my lover," I replied. "I am more than happy to introduce him to you as such. When a father gambles away his daughter's hand in a room crowded with gamblers, holding her name as light as a thistle down—oh, I hate the thought of it!—he should thank her if she meet him in any spirit whatsoever. But if she acquiesces in what he has done, something more than thanks, are, I think, her due." Of course he told you that?" he said. His aplomb was admirable. "And you believed him?"

"Of course—he did not tell me that," I retorted. "He only lately became aware of the fact that Lady Mary Felton and Rosemary Allyn, whom he had seen at Castle Drou, were the same person. I saw—and possessed the paper the day he won it—I recognized my father's writing! He winced now, and the blood came to the surface of his face. 'Then to make assurance doubly sure, I asked one who had witnessed the proceedings that night at the Lodge, and from him I learned the facts of the case. You and Cousin Raoul need not have been so anxious about the paper, since it has been in my possession all the time. Quentin Waters is not the man to force an unwelcome bride.'

"I'm afraid he'll have to take a bride in heaven," he said harshly; 'he'll get no earthly one.'

"Then will I be that bride," I returned. Seeing there would be no end to the argument, he left me, after requesting my presence at home on the morrow."

"He had hardly gotten out of the door before Raoul Dwight put in an appearance. I had undergone my limit that night; patience not being a cardinal virtue with me, and I had no words for him. I was passing to my room, when he barred my way. 'A moment, sweet coz, I would have a word with you,' he said. 'I pray you grant me pardon for what happened at the ball to-night. I wished to know what that locket contained; I have found out.' At that I cried, 'You dared make a fool of me for your base deeds?' 'Everything is excusable in love and war,' he answered. 'Again I crave your pardon—it seems there was no need of such rough measures, for I am confident that Quentin Waters is dead.'

"If he is dead," I violently cried, 'you have killed him!' He answered, 'I would have killed him joyfully in a duel, face to face, but I am no knave to stab a man in the back.' 'Not?' I tauntingly questioned; 'but perhaps hire men (and there are plenty about town who ask no better way to coin money) to do your delicate work for you.' He retorted, 'I think you would not care to know, if such was the case, the name of the man in whose brain the plan was created.'

"I looked scornfully at him and cried: 'Coward! You not only make light of a woman before an assembly, but strike in the dark the character of one older than yourself—better not tell him your suspicions—coward!' 'Peace, cousin, peace,' he said. 'I have proof that Quentin Waters was struck from his horse, and then mysteriously disappeared. At first I thought his man, Gil—the ape—had taken care of his body. But he has been hanging about the Duke's theater, obviously as much at sea as the rest of us as to the destiny of his master. I firmly believe that he is dead. Sweet coz, turn your thoughts from a dead man to me, a quick one, who has loved you for years—am I never to be rewarded for my fidelity?' (To be continued.)

JUDGING BY THEIR COLOR.

Fisherman Employed Somebody to "Break in" His Shirts.

The late Capt. Alfred Rice, the noted shad fisherman of the Delaware river, was no less remarkable for personal cleanliness than for his unequalled handling of the mile-long shad seine.

Capt. Rice was not only clean and neat himself; he insisted upon cleanliness and neatness in his men. If a new man proved to be a sloven, he very soon mended his ways under the captain's criticisms, or else he sought another job.

There was a new man, one shad season, who always wore a dirty white shirt. In shad fishing it is best to wear a black jersey. If, however, a white shirt is chosen, there is no reason why it should not be a clean one. So, at least, Capt. Rice thought.

He stood his new man's dirty white shirts for a month. Then, calling the fisherman up to him, he said:

"Friend, who the deuce is it that you always get to wear your shirts the first week for you?"—Los Angeles Times.

Wit Worth Overcharge.

A commendable characteristic of W. I. Douglas, governor of Massachusetts, is his enjoyment of a joke on himself as much as on the other fellow. Not long ago he dropped into a strange barber shop to have his scant hair trimmed. After the job had been completed, the barber handed Mr. Douglas a check for fifty cents.

"How's this?" said Mr. Douglas.

"Doesn't that sign over there say 'first-class hair-cut for twenty-five cents'?"

"Yes—yes," replied the barber, "but you haven't first-class hair."

FOLLOWING A RELIGIOUS RITE.

A Custom That is in Vogue in One Part of Italy.

In the "vanity" section of a museum at Florence, says the London Telegraph, there is an interesting collection of blocks used for what is called "religious tattooing" among the Italian peasants of the district enclosed between the Aruzzi, Umbria and the Adriatic.

Peasants in these parts at work with shirt sleeves rolled up display a Christian symbol of some sort or text tattooed in blue ink on their brown skin. This has been imprinted on the occasion of some special festival.

A wooden block is pressed upon the tightly drawn skin to make the outlines of the design. This is then punctured and a blue ink is rubbed into the wounds, which usually heal in about twenty-four hours. The custom, which is essentially Christian, is in commemoration of the branding of St. Francis, who founded a monastery close to Loretto.

Charms of the Riviera.

It has been pointed out that the temperature on the Riviera is a very few degrees above that of the south of England, but the charm lies in the almost constant succession of days of sunshine.

A Wonderful Discovery.

Broadland, S. Dak., April 17.—Quite a sensation has been created here by the publication of the story of G. W. Gray, who after a special treatment for three months was prostrate and helpless and given up to die with Bright's Disease. Bright's Disease has always been considered incurable, but evidently from the story told by Mr. Gray, there is a remedy which will cure it even in the most advanced stages. This is what he says:

"I was helpless as a little babe. My wife and I searched everything and read everything we could find about Bright's Disease, hoping that I would be able to find a remedy. After many failures my wife insisted that I should try Dodd's Kidney Pills. I praise God for the day when I decided to do so, for this remedy met every phase of my case and in a short time I was able to get out of bed and after a few weeks' treatment I was a strong, well man. Dodd's Kidney Pills saved my life."

A remedy that will cure Bright's Disease will cure any lesser Kidney Disease. Dodd's Kidney Pills are certainly the most wonderful discovery which modern medical research has given to the world.

Advice to a Schoolboy.

William Hazlitt, the celebrated essayist and critic, wrote a letter to his son (of the same name) when sending him to school, says St. Nicholas. It contains excellent advice, is written in simple and direct style and will be found well worth your reading, though decidedly old-fashioned—a quality that makes it the more delightful. Hazlitt warns his son against being too fond of books, saying they "are but one inlet of knowledge; and the pores of the mind, like those of the body, should be left open to all impressions"—wherein the worthy father shows considerable ignorance of physiology. And, by the way, Hazlitt's essays touch upon every sort of subject, and all are charmingly written, so you might make a note of this when you wish for a book that is not a story.

A Personal Illustration.

Some years ago in a town meeting in Needham, Mass., a hot debate took place on the question of abating some alleged nuisances in the form of large piggeries. The claim was strongly made that they were a menace to health. One of the owners, a strapping, rosy-cheeked young farmer, who was much more at ease while feeding his swine than on the floor of a town meeting, rose to defend the sanitary side of his occupation by using himself as a striking illustration. Angrily sweeping his hand toward the objectors, he said: "These folks say hogs ain't healthy. Look at me!"

HONEST CONFESSION.

A Doctor's Talk on Food.

There are no fairer set of men on earth than the doctors, and when they find they have been in error they are usually apt to make honest and manly confession of the fact.

A case in point is that of an eminent practitioner, one of the good old school, who lives in Texas. His plain, unvarnished tale needs no dressing up:

"I had always had an intense prejudice, which I can now see was unwarrantable and unreasonable, against all much advertised foods. Hence, I never read a line of the many 'ads.' of Grape-Nuts, nor tested the food till last winter."

"While in Corpus Christi for my health, and visiting my youngest son, who has four of the ruddiest, healthiest little boys I ever saw. I ate my first dish of Grape-Nuts food for supper with my little grandsons. I became exceedingly fond of it and have eaten a package of it every week since, and find it a delicious, refreshing and strengthening food, leaving no ill effects whatever, causing no eructations (with which I was formerly much troubled), no sense of fullness, nausea, nor distress of stomach in any way."

"There is no other food that agrees with me so well, or sits as lightly or pleasantly upon my stomach as this does. I am stronger and more active since I began the use of Grape-Nuts than I have been for 10 years, and am no longer troubled with nausea and indigestion." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

ALL BROKEN DOWN.

No Sleep—No Appetite—Just a Continual Backache.

Joseph McCauley, of 144 South street, Chicago, Sackem of Tecumseh Lodge, says: "Two years ago my health was completely broken down. My back ached and was so lame that I was hardly able to dress myself. I lost my appetite and was unable to sleep. There seemed to be no relief until I took Doan's Kidney Pills; but four boxes of this remedy effected a complete and permanent cure. If suffering humanity knew the value of Doan's Kidney Pills they would use nothing else, as it is the only positive cure I know."

"MY WIFE'S PEOPLE COMING."

We have had a splendid winter in Western Canada.

Canada's inrush this year is wonderfully great and considerably ahead of any previous year. It is always interesting to those who contemplate moving to read expressions of opinion from those living in the country. It is therefore our pleasure to reproduce the following, written to an Agent of the Government and forwarded to the Immigration Branch of the Department of the Interior at Ottawa: Birch Hills, Sask., Canada, Feb. 1, 1905.

Dear Sir:—I take pleasure in dropping you a few lines to let you know how we are getting along up here and how we like the place. We have been here close on to a year now and think the place is fine. We have been every day this winter working in the bush getting out logs for building etc., getting rails for fencing. We have not suffered with the cold as much as we did in Chicago. My little boys are out every day with the sleighs having a good time. The lowest temperature has been the winter is 24 below, and it is very still now.

We had a splendid summer, we put up about 50 tons of hay and have about 20 tons to sell. Hay brings $3 per ton now and will be higher in the spring. We have acres broke and ready for crop. We worked on the Can. Nor. Ry. while this summer and am just miles from the R. R. and town. The steel is all laid to within miles of the river and we often see the train bringing supplies for the Bridge.

My wife's people are coming about May. I wish you would write them and if there should be any coming to Prince Albert that could with a half a car let them know. The homesteads are all taken up with 12 miles of us. I often think if the land were only in the States what rush there would be. It is the richest land and most productive I ever saw, and the climate is O. K.

I know that people back there write to do not believe me when we are having. They think we are frozen up. We have only about inches of snow, and there are no on the range that have not been rounded up this winter. Day after the Ther. raises up to 50 and 60, and I don't believe we have had a winter this winter that it stayed at zero. My wife says that we used to think that zero was cold in Chicago. We don't mind it one bit. Christmas night we went out and drove 5 miles with our 3 little boys, it was 20 below, and there was not a whimper from any one of them; I'd hate to do it in old Chicago.

Well, I guess I will close, and can tell any one in the U. S. that cannot do better than come to Prince Albert District. I remain,

Yours truly,

(Signed) J. D. Hend.

Liberty and Education.

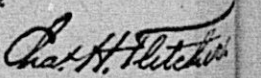

When Texas revolted from Mexico its declaration of independence contained the following: "It (Mexico) failed to establish any public system of education, although possessed almost unlimited resources (the public domain), and although it is axiomatic in political science that unless a people are educated and enlightened it is idle to expect the continuance of civil liberty or the capacity of self-government."

PAINFUL PERIODS

Suggestions How to Find Relief from Such Suffering.

While no woman is entirely free from periodical suffering, it does not seem to be the plan of nature that women should suffer so severely. Menstruation is a severe strain on a woman's vitality. If it is painful or irregular something is wrong which should be set right or it will lead to a serious derangement of the whole female organism.

More than fifty thousand women have testified in grateful letters to Mrs. Pinkham that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound overcomes painful and irregular menstruation.

It provides a safe and sure way of escape from distressing and dangerous weaknesses and diseases. The two following letters tell so convincingly what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will do for women, they cannot fail to bring hope to thousands of sufferers.

Miss Nellie Holmes of 540 N. Davidson Street, Buffalo, N. Y., writes:

Dear Mrs. Pinkham:—Your medicine is indeed an ideal medicine for women. I suffered misery for years with painful periods, headaches, and bearing-down pains. I consulted two different physicians but failed to get any relief. A friend from the East advised me to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I did so, and no longer suffer as I did before. My periods are natural; every ache and pain is gone, and my general health is much improved. I advise all women who suffer to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Mrs. Tillie Hart, of Larimore, N. D., writes:—Dear Mrs. Pinkham:—I might have been spared many months of suffering and pain had I only known of the efficacy of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

HE HAD A MANIA FOR PROPOSING

Excuse of an Ardent Irishman Who Jilted a Widow.

"A weakness for proposing marriage to any good-looking woman he came across," was part of the defense raised in a breach of promise action heard at Liverpool assizes, says the London Mail.

The ardent lover was James W. O'Hara, formerly a village gardener, who two years ago became entitled, with his two sisters, to £24,000 left by an aunt. The woman who sued was a middle-aged widow, Martha Fairhurst of Aughton, Ormskirk.

The wooing was not romantic, and Mr. O'Hara's views, continued counsel, were represented in words of Owen Meredith: We may live without poetry, music or art. We may live without conscience and live without heart. We may live without friends, we may live without books. But civilized man cannot live without cooks.

At first the widow thought Mr. O'Hara was "merely chaffing her," but he wrote a formal offer of marriage, asked the consent of her sons and daughters and invited neighbors to the wedding. Then his ardor cooled and he refused explanations.

The defense was Mr. O'Hara had an inclination for making proposals when intoxicated. A woman said Mr. O'Hara had asked her, as well as her mother and her sister, to be his wife, while another witness remarked that two or three other women were waiting the result of the present action before going for Mr. O'Hara for solatiums for blighted hopes.

The jury awarded Mrs. Fairhurst £225 damages.

PRINCESS STARTS A CAFE.

But It Is a Charity Establishment for the Poor of Athens.

Society at Athens was invited to the inauguration of the new restaurant for the poor, or "Syssition," established by the crown princess of Greece, near the Acropolis.

The ceremony of the inauguration was honored by the presence of the king and queen and all the members of the royal family, says the New York Herald. Princess Sophie herself was the first to taste the food which the poor of the city will have at a nominal price.

A large number of poor people were waiting outside and entered as soon as the doors were opened, most of them being aged men, women and children. They were served on that day by the most distinguished women of Athens.

The king and members of the royal family went frequently to the kitchen and through the rooms and took great pleasure in seeing the satisfaction of the poor people.

A similar restaurant for the poor, called "Syssition," is already in existence in another quarter of the city, near the market, due to the same benevolent fondness. Princess Sophie has already acquired the name of "Good Princess," and has now made herself more popular than ever by the new establishment.

Doctor's Wife Was Squeaked. "Late the other night," remarked the doctor, "when my wife decided I must not make any more calls, the telephone bell rang. She went to the phone and assured the party I was not at home."

Asked to suggest something to calm a baby patient my wife turned her head and asked me what she should advise. I told her to tell the folks to give fifteen drops of paregoric. Then came the inquiry:

"What shall I do if the paregoric does not work?" Again my wife looked in my direction and I said: "Give a few drops of laudanum." Once more my wife repeated my advice. Vexed, the party at the other end of the wire came back with:

"The next time the doctor is away from home, if you have occasion to use the telephone and there is a man in your room, please have the decency to place your hand over the receiver of the telephone when you speak to him."—Chicago Tribune.

A Hat Experiment.

A gentleman who visited a pumping station of a city water works was shown into the engine room. "What I am proudest of here is my draft," said the engineer. "Here it is." He raised a trap door in the floor, disclosing a black hole about a foot square, and the visitor looked in eagerly. Nothing was to be seen, but a tremendous draft sucked in his silk hat. "Ha, ha," cried the engineer, joyously. "Now, this is an interesting experiment. Just watch that tall stack over there." He pointed to a lofty stack, and as he did so the silk hat shot straight out of it fifty feet up in the air, and then, like a big black bird, sailed slowly away. "Grand experiment, indeed," said the visitor, "and I thank you for it. I will now endeavor to secure the remains of my hat." And he chased away after his property, while the engineer looked on with an amused smile.

The Vindictive Poet.

The poet looked up with a vindictive glare. "I am getting even," he snarled as he scribbled wildly on the sheet before him.

"What are you doing?" queried the alarmed caller.

"The editors say that I must write on one side of the paper only," the poet replied. "And I am doing my best with this piece of blunt crayon to ruin the other side, so that they can't utilize it for any merely sordid purpose."

And he savagely crisscrossed the next virgin page.

FISHES FROM OCEAN'S BED.

Unusual Characteristics of Inhabitants of the Deep Sea.

When a deep-sea fish is brought to the surface, how gradually and carefully soever, its bones are often like so much touchwood and its muscles like rotten pulp, while its eyes are burst from their sockets and its viscera are often blown out of the body cavity by the expansion of the air bladder. It frequently happens that deep-sea fishes are found floating helplessly on the surface of the ocean, with large prey in their stomachs. Their appearance under these circumstances is accounted for by the efforts of their struggling victims to escape from their jaws, causing them to ascend beyond the horizontal zone which they usually inhabit. Deep-sea fishes are commonly black or dark brown. But although it is claimed that light is essential to the formation of colors, some deep-sea fishes are scarlet in parts, or uniform red or rosy. Others are silvery white, while, according to Alcock, the neocopus is "one dazzling sheen of purple and silver and burnished gold, amid which is a sparkling constellation of luminous organs."

Weather Indications.

If it clears off in the night look for rain the next day. If smoke from the chimney settles instead of rising there is a storm at hand. When sound travels a long distance there is also a storm near. Never expect much storm in the old of the moon. The absence of dew and an unusually heavy dew are alike forerunners of rain. Not much frost need be expected in the light of the moon. An owl hooting in the hollow is a sign of a cold storm; on the hill it foretells a thaw.

Provided Handsomely for Pets.

Quite a large sum was left by a Rajput prince some thirty years ago "for the maintenance in comfort" of his three favorite elephants and a pet tiger. A curious provision was that special trappings and cloths were to be provided for the elephants, while the tiger was to be regaled with a specially mentioned diet, and was to be provided with a solid gold collar studded with a large number of precious stones.

Bishop Brooks at New Haven.

The late Phillips Brooks' ready wit is well illustrated by the remark once made by him, as he was starting for New Haven, in company with Dr. Edward Everett Hale, to witness a Harvard-Yale football game. To a friend who met him on his way to the train, and who inquired where he was going, he replied: "I'm going down to New Haven to yell with Hale."

The Present Rate Law.

The duties of the present Interstate Commerce Commission are to correct all discriminations in railroad rates. If it finds that an unjust rate is in effect, the railroad is notified. If it declines to change it, the Commission can bring suit in Court and if the Court decides in favor of the Commission's finding, the railroad must obey, or its officers may be brought up for contempt of court and summarily dealt with.

QUEEN OF ACTRESSES PRAISES PE-RU-NA.

MISS JULIA MARLOWE Heartily Approves of Peruna for the Nerves.

In a recent letter to The Peruna Medicine Co., Miss Julia Marlowe, of New York City, writes the following:

"I am glad to write my endorsement of the great remedy, Peruna, as a nerve tonic. I do so most heartily."—Julia Marlowe.

Nervousness is very common among women. This condition is due to anemic nerve centers. The nerve centers are the reservoirs of nervous vitality. These centers become bloodless for want of proper nutrition. This is especially true in the spring season. Every spring a host of invalids are produced as the direct result of weak nerves.

This can be easily obviated by using Peruna. Peruna strikes at the root of the difficulty by correcting the digestion.

Digestion furnishes nutrition for the nerve centers. Properly digested food furnishes these reservoirs of life with vitality which leads to strong, steady nerves and thus nourishes life.

Peruna is in great favor among women, especially those who have vocations that are trying to the nerves.

Buy a bottle of Peruna to-day. If you do not receive all the benefits from Peruna that you expected, write to Dr. S. B. Hartman, Columbus, Ohio.

Under the provisions of an ordinance granted to W. A. No cars have been run over the road for several months past and President E. E. Brown has been instructed by the Grass Lake common council to take immediate steps to enforce the provisions of the franchise, the contention being that if the same is annulled the village may be able to get some concessions from any other company that may desire to operate their cars over Main street.

WHY MEN REMAIN SINGLE.

Only Two Excuses Bachelors May Put Forth.

The reasons why some men remain unmarried are two—either the women they have wanted to marry wouldn't have them or they have never happened to run across a woman who kindled in their hearts the inexplicable spark that drives men to take chances vastly greater than any the law imposes. Whoever proclaims that his single state is a result of his own deliberate and final choice, made because women and laws are not different from what they are, is a mere humbug whose fitting fate would be to fall helplessly into infatuation with a woman capable of using him for breach of promise. And no punishment for lying could be devised which would be severer than that—New York Times.

The Old Quilting Bee.

Softly down the winding years
From some sweet other time
An echo comes as musical
And mellow as the rhyme
The poet makes while dreaming
In his mood of ecstasy—
The voices of old women at
The old-time quilting bee.

They talk of knitting needles, of spinning wheels and such,
Of how the old-time method gave the cloth a finer touch;
Of husbands, too, they gossip (old angels without wings),
Of crops, and cows, and whooping cough,
And never once of politics, except perhaps to say
The youngster in the cradle was the big man of the day.

Softly down the winding years
From some sweet other time
An echo comes as musical
And mellow as the rhyme
The poet makes while dreaming
In his mood of ecstasy—
The voices of old women at
The old-time quilting bee.

They never spoke of fashions then, the low-cut neck and train;
The styles were very simple, and everything was plain;
The pictures were the grass-knit lawn, the waving wood-skirt field;
The music, of bright-throated birds, and of the orchard's yield—
They never spoke of politics, except perhaps to say
The youngster in the cradle would be president some day.
