W. C. T. U. DISTRICT CONVENTION

Wearers of the White Ribbon Badges
Are Here in Force.

The 29th annual convention of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union of the second district of Michigan has been in session at the Baptist church, Chelsea, during the past two days, and will continue its sessions over this evening—six in all. The good people of Chelsea have, with their usual unstinted hospitality, opened their doors to the delegates and others attending, for which they have received the sincere thanks of the convention. About 60 delegates from the 37 unions in the counties of Washtenaw, Lenawee, Hillsdale and Monroe are present, and the session are presided over by the courteous and efficient president Mrs. W. I. Hadley, of Waldron. The other district officers present are Mrs. Luella McCain, of Reading, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Martha J. Warner, of Ypsilanti, recording secretary; Mrs. Mary C. Wood, of Tecumseh, treasurer. The vice presidents are, for Lenawee county, Mrs. E. S. Ferguson; for Washtenaw, Mrs. Helen C. Thompson; for Monroe, Mrs. Mattie Duncan; for Hillsdale, Mrs. Fannie Schermerhorn.

The Chelsea ladies who are most prominent in looking after the details of the entertainment of the delegates are Mrs. M. G. Hill, chairman of the entertainment committee, Mrs. Mary Boyd, chairman of the reception committee, and Mrs. Ellis Keenan, chairman of the music committee, and they are ably assisted by other members of the local union.

The opening session Wednesday morning was devoted to roll call of officers and superintendents, responded to by quotations along the line of the work, and routine business.

An executive board meeting was held in the afternoon, followed with devotional exercises and reading of journal. The roll call of Unions, Y's and L. T. L's was well responded to, showing gains during the year. The reports of county presidents also showed gains in membership. Three new unions were established during the year, one Young People's Union and two Loyal Temperance Legions, the children's branch. The county superintendents reported work being done in all departments. The Ann Arbor and Ypsilanti unions have done a great deal of work in circulating petitions to have a 3-mile limit law enacted. The papers read were all good, especially "A plea for equality" by Mrs. Vena Hayes, and "Alcohol medication," an educational paper, by Mrs. A. B. Smith.

At the evening session after prayer by Rev. F. A. Stiles, of Hudson, welcoming addresses were made to the delegates by Rev. E. E. Caster in behalf of the churches, Prof. F. E. Wilcox in behalf of the schools, and by Mrs. Alice K. Stimson in behalf of the local union. All were brief, cordial and to the point, and were responded to in pleasant words by Mrs. Mary C. Wood, of Tecumseh.

After a splendid selection by the Bay View Reading Circle quartette, Mesdames Ellis Keenan and W. E. Depew, the Misses Florence Caster and Jessie Everett, the gold medal oratorical contest, conducted by Mrs. Luella McCain, of Reading, was proceeded with.

There were eight contestants, their names and subjects being: Miss Carrie Bond, London, "Under the shadow of a curse;" Miss Gladys Willits, Raisin Valley, "Shadows;" Miss Blanch Chase, Raisin Valley, "Nell;" Miss Lillian Wheeler, Litchfield, "The bridal wine cup;" Miss Edna Preston, Waldron, "Salvation lifeboat;" Miss Nellie Jones, Waldron, "The reason why;" Miss Baker, Addison, "The father's prayer;" Miss Cozie Tompkins, Litchfield, "The light from over the range." The numbers were all good, but the judges decided that "Salvation lifeboat," by Miss Edna Preston was the best and they awarded the medal to her. After the quartette had sung "The Old Oaken Bucket," Miss Rena Rodel, Master Leon Mohrlock and Mrs. French gave excellent recitations. The meeting was dismissed with the benediction.

The sessions today are being carried out according to the printed program. This evening there will be an address by Miss Margaret Wintinger, the national lecturer of the W. C. T. U.

FARMERS' CLUB MEETING.

Farewell Presentation to Rev. and Mrs. C. S. Jones.

The April meeting of the Western Washtenaw Farmers' Club was held last Friday with Mr. and Mrs. O. C. Burkhardt at their home on Jefferson street. Sixty-six people were present to enjoy the genial hospitality of the host and hostess. It was after 2 o'clock before the last one had partaken of the bountiful dinner provided, but before that time President Everett called the gathering to order and called on Rev. F. A. Stiles to make some remarks.

On taking the floor the reverend gentleman in a brief but touching manner spoke of the approaching departure of Rev. C. S. Jones and family from our midst to make their future home in St. Louis, Mo. He referred to the interest that Mr. Jones had always taken in the Farmers' Club as one of its members, of the active part he has always taken in its programs and discussions, of the hearty good fellowship that has always characterized his relations with the members of the club and the genuine sorrow that is felt by all at his departure from the place which has been his field of labor for more than six years. He then in the name of the club presented Mr. Jones with a handsome mantle clock and with it the best wishes of the club for the future of himself and family.

It took Mr. Jones some moments to collect himself and his feelings after Mr. Stiles' unexpected speech, and when he did so it was in broken tones that he alluded to the severance of many cherished ties of friendship and love that would result from their leaving Chelsea to take up the duties of a larger field of labor. He expressed the regret that would come to him and Mrs. Jones at parting with their friends of the Farmers' Club and how much they would miss the monthly meetings, very few of which they had missed since becoming members of it. He commended them all to the care of the Good Shepherd and hoped that if they should meet no more on earth they would meet in the home beyond the skies.

It was an affecting time during the address and response and there were not many dry eyes while they were being made.

The balance of the program was carried out as published. Rev. G. H. Gordon assembled the party on the lawn and secured an excellent photograph of them, all the likenesses being very clear and distinct. At the solicitation of some of the members he has printed a number of pictures and anyone desiring to can get one for 25 cents each either of him or at the Herald office.

The next meeting of the club will be held with Mr. and Mrs. T. E. Wood at their home on Orchard street.

TOM W. MINGAY, PUB.
CHELSEA, MICHIGAN

Perhaps Niagara wouldn't mind being spoken of disrespectfully if we would only let the water run down it and give it a chance to nag.

Dr. Charles Eastman, who is a full-blooded Sioux Indian, thinks that the total number of Indians in the United States is now as great as it was when Columbus discovered America.

The Philadelphia Record says that "an expert who has investigated the subject of good advertising" finds that not over seven per cent. of the advertising in a representative group of publications deal with food products. And yet the readers of these publications "spend for food about forty per cent. of their total earnings." The Record's conclusion is that—excepting the breakfast food firms—"those whose business it is to appease the national hunger are not fully awake to the opportunities publicity offers."

The Australian native who thought a photograph of himself represented either a ship or a kangaroo, and the inhabitant of Van Diemen's Land who stopped his ears at the first strains of a violin, were, if we judge them by the latest theory of aesthetics, both right. It would, however, be reassuring to be informed that even the taste for decorative art was really aesthetic, the New York Evening Post continues, and was not that more primitive desire for extravagant display which is satisfied by the beating of a tom-tom or the monstrous features of an aboriginal idol.

The coreless apple, which is also seedless, is the result of twelve years' experimentation, states the New York Times. As it is borne on a blossoming tree, the grower has little fear of the late spring frosts that kill fruit in bloom, and on the rudimentary stems that envelope the apples there is no harborage for the egg and grub of the codling moth. The new apple is grubless as well as seedless. It possesses one-fourth more solid flesh than the seedy apple of like proportions, and resembles the seedless orange in having a slightly hardened substance at the navel end which is being obliterated by culture.

In at least one respect the omnibus is distinctly superior to its rival, declares the New York Tribune. In extremely narrow streets it is less of an obstruction to drays, cabs and private carriages and is less liable to be delayed by a blockade than a vehicle which must follow a line of rails. The first cost of a motor omnibus is estimated by a correspondent of the Times as about the same as that of the trolley car, but the latter requires an additional investment of capital for track, overhead wire or conduit and power house. An omnibus line, then, calls for a smaller outlay to begin with. On the other hand, less power is needed to move a car than a carriage which runs on the ordinary pavement of a street. Rails facilitate movement by reducing friction.

Let us see how far the parallel runs between the conditions in Russia today and in France at the time of the Jacquerie, the Christian Register reflects. First, Russia today is feudal as France then was feudal. In France there was the peasant and his lord; in Russia there is the poor tiller of the soil and the noble landed proprietor. Between the two there is a great gulf fixed. The poverty of the peasant is pitiable. The noble lives luxuriously. The rural laborer eases, on the average, fourteen cents a day; the day is from fifteen to seventeen hours; a Russian peasant family's annual expenditure is about thirty-four dollars; the peasant is constantly underfed; between eighty and ninety per cent. of the people are illiterate; even in St. Petersburg, forty-three per cent. of the population cannot read; the burden of taxation is constantly greater than the serfdom peasant can bear, and now is laid upon his back the expense of a great foreign war. Are these conditions much different from those of the French of the Middle Ages? True, the Russian peasant does not suffer military arson, rape and pillage in internecine struggles, but famine constantly stares him in the face. Of this inert, ignorant, immobile mass of servile humans there are 100,000,000. Think of it—twenty millions more of these human cattle than there are people in the whole of this vast country of ours. We talk of their receiving a "constitutional government"—these peasants know not the meaning of the word "constitution." Imagine a people ninety per cent. illiterate with the right of universal suffrage!

SERIOUS LOSS BY FIRE IN STATE PRISON; PRISONERS RENDER AID.

HOUSE PASSES A DRASTIC ANTI-TRUST BILL BY UNANIMOUS VOTE.

REMARKABLE SURGICAL OPERATION SAVES YOUNG MAN FROM PARALYSIS.

State Prison Fire.

The state prison was threatened with total destruction by fire for one full hour just before noon Monday. Only splendid work by the city and prison fire departments saved the institution. The blaze broke out on the roof of the west end of the trip hammer shop, spreading rapidly. All of the night guards were called out and placed on the walls, heavily armed, while in the yards others were stationed. The prisoners were marched out from all the shops and with perfect discipline they aided in fighting the fire. There was not the slightest attempt to break and no sign of panic. The walls of the shop fell within half an hour after the fire started and at noon the building was in ruins. It was a one-story brick building about 50x120 feet, and about 50 men were employed. It is said that the engineer shut off the compressed air pressure of the oil pipes leading to the furnaces. He said he shut the air off to relieve the furnaces and immediately the oil had full play and the flames mounted to the top of the building. The prisoners jumped from the windows of the shop to save their lives and 60 men lost their clothes, which were in the lockers. The loss is $75,000 to $100,000; insurance on machinery, $20,000. A large share of the credit in preventing a disaster is due to the convicts, who by their good behavior, cool bravery and timely aid in fighting the flames, did much toward saving adjoining buildings and avoiding any semblance of a panic.

Wonderful Surgery.

Surgery has been triumphant in the case of Albert B. Tripp, a young medical student of Mt. Pleasant, who was shot in the spine two years ago, and who went to Philadelphia a few weeks ago in the hope of an operation saving him from paralysis. Tripp has started for his home with a silver binding together his spine, with feeling already returned to his legs and the lower part of his body, and U. S. physicians say in six months he will be himself again. He was told that there was small chance of his surviving, but he said that he would risk his life rather than exist a hopeless paralytic. To the surprise of the surgeons, he rallied splendidly, and to their great satisfaction and to the patient's unbounded delight, 24 hours after he had come out of the ether a tickling sensation began to shoot through his legs. In a few days the success of the operation had been demonstrated by the gradual returning of Tripp's control of his body.

Just two years ago Tripp was accidentally shot when studying in the University of Michigan in Ann Arbor. The bullet lodged in the spine, and for months his life was despaired of. Not one of the score of surgeons called from all parts of the country would advise an operation, saying that it inevitably would mean the young man's death.

Anti-Trust Bill is Sweeping.

The house passed the Bland anti-trust bill by a unanimous vote, 82 voting. This bill is the most sweeping and destructive anti-trust bill ever passed in the United States. If it becomes a law it will prevent the Standard Oil Co. from doing business here, as it applies to foreign and to state corporations alike. The fish trust, beef trust, biscuit trust, etc., would go down under it. The bill defines and declares illegal all corporations aimed at a monopoly of any business, trade, avocation or profession. Corporations now existing as well as those to be organized, are affected. The bill nullifies any agreement not to engage in a certain occupation. The bill is declared to be amendatory and declaratory of the law passed in 1901. It was drawn by F. A. Baker and J. Edward Bland, and it is said it will be made the basis of anti-trust regulation in other states. Edwin Denby, it is said, will make a fight in congress on the same line.

Knocked Out the Chief.

Chief of Police Henry Magoon, of Ludington, Mich., had a $40 experience with Detroit crooks Thursday night. He stopped here on his way to Montreal on business and took in a few Monroe-avenue saloons. He went to the Temple theater and afterwards dropped into a nearby saloon, but doesn't remember meeting anyone there. In fact he doesn't remember anything except finding his pockets empty in the Hotel Brunswick Friday morning. A roll of $40 was pinned in his vest pocket and whoever "touched" him was considerate enough to leave the pin. It is learned that a medium-sized man wearing a rain coat brought Magoon to the hotel, registered him under a fictitious name and left. "I didn't drink enough to knock me out," explains Magoon, "so I think I must have been drugged."

Henry N. Wilder and Dr. George Willett, of Grand Rapids, have left for Louisville, Ky., and Lookout Mountain, where they will attempt to locate, by aid of a map given to Willett by his dying brother, Ambrose Willett, in Butterworth hospital, $100,000 worth of gold and silver plate that had been buried there by Ambrose and his fellow camp followers, who had been looting southern homes during the civil war. They were pressed into service just before the battle of Lookout Mountain and buried the plate. All of Ambrose's companions were killed.

PLOT AMONG IMPERIAL GUARDS TO MURDER UNHAPPY CZAR.

THE CZAR ORDERS ROJESTVENSKY TO GET OUT OF FRENCH WATERS.

RUSSIAN ADMIRAL SAID TO BE EAGER AND READY FOR TOGO.

The Czar's Peril.

A plot to kill the czar and his kinmen has been discovered among the troops of the Imperial Guard. Many officers are involved, the very men upon whom the imperial family depends for personal safety. Gov.-Gen. Trepoff's secret agents unearthed the plot, and assert that several of the conspirators, of noble birth, were in possession of large quantities of dynamite. The discovery has unnerved the czar, who, it is reported, constantly exclaims, "Whom can I trust?" The conspirators, bound by oaths, remain silent even under dire threats and worse. Bruce Vassitchow has been unable to force a single soldier to confess his part in the plot.

At the popular theaters and music halls, performers are arousing great demonstrations by singing and reciting revolutionary verses. These rebellious verses are introduced as encores. The regular programs must be approved by the theatrical censor. Recently the performers have not hesitated to deride the imperial family under a thin disguise. On the trick being discovered, rigid instructions were issued to the police not to allow an encore not previously approved by the censor. To insure prompt action in case of demonstrations, the governors and other officials of all the provinces have been directed to remain in their offices during the Easter holidays and be prepared for any emergency.

Ordered to Sail.

French officers in Paris maintain that the gravity of the Franco-Japanese issue over neutrality has been considerably relieved by the vigorous measures which France adopted. Emperor Nicholas's orders to Vice-Admiral Rojostvensky to leave French waters are the direct result. To have the emperor give a decisive order, it is held, signifies such order must be obeyed, whereas Vice-Admiral Rojostvensky has exercised his personal discretion as to observing orders emanating from the Russian admiralty concerning French waters off the coast of Madagascar. Heretofore Kamranh bay has been an unknown spot, although an adventurous Frenchman, the Marquis de Merville, has established a small colony there. The marquis uses this colony as a base for hunting expeditions and for carrying on a considerable trade with coast points. Except for this primitive settlement Kamranh bay has no habitation, no telegraph, no custom house and no official establishment of any kind.

More Heroics.

A report comes from Saigon, Cochinchina, that Russian officers are reported to have declared that Admiral Rojostvensky is determined to fight Admiral Togo and will endeavor to vanquish the Japanese squadron or sink with it. Admiral Rojostvensky has given every detail of the coming conflict his particular attention. Togo's flagship will be his objective according to a special plan. The northern waters of the Sea of Japan, Tsugara straits and La Perouse straits are illuminated every night by the searchlights of Japanese torpedo boats to prevent the passage of the Vladivostok squadron. Blockade running to Vladivostok has ceased, owing to the vigilance of the Japanese.

Grafters Let Out.

Fred H. Wilson, acting superintendent, and seven clerks of the Indian warehouse in New York city were summarily dismissed from office Saturday by Secretary Hitchcock as the result of revelations made by an inspection of the office by Indian Inspector Nesler, who preferred charges of irregularities in the conduct of the office, including Wilson's accounts, in order to protect a number of employees who were not performing any service for the government. This Wilson was enabled to do by reason of the fact that he was the disbursing agent for the warehouse. There were 14 persons on the pay roll while Inspector Nesler asserts that four or five were all that were necessary. One of the non-active clerks was a barkeeper who, it is charged, seldom visited the office.

Joseph Jefferson Dead.

Joseph Jefferson, the eminent actor, died at his home, "The Reef," West Palm Beach, Fla., Sunday evening. The end came after a day of unconsciousness and after a heroic struggle of days which had exhausted his vitality. At his deathbed were his wife, his sons, Charles B. and Frank Jefferson, his nurse, Miss Mabel Bingham, Dr. R. B. Porter, and his faithful old servant Karl. The sickness of Mr. Jefferson, which ended in his death, was contracted, it is believed, while on a recent visit to his son, Charles B. Jefferson, at Hobe Sound, a few miles above Palm Beach, where he went to meet his friend, former President Cleveland.

Roosevelt Kills a Grizzly.

Secretary Loeb has returned from the president's camp and reports the party there is having a right good time. The President has killed a grizzly and Dr. Lambert shot a lynx. The party will break camp May 14 and start home May 15, stopping at Denver and Chicago a day each.

The companies of the Ninth infantry are on their way from their various posts to San Francisco, whence they will sail for the Philippines on May 1.

THE LEGISLATURE.

One effect of the revelations in the Equitable matter may be the raising of taxes on life insurance companies in Michigan. A bill for that purpose was introduced by Senator Doherty and had been reported out, when a lobby of insurance men appeared and asked for a hearing. Half a dozen agents, representing different companies, have been at the capitol during the past week; and an attorney has been retained to stay right on the ground and watch things. The argument advanced by some of these insurance companies is that life insurance companies are not run for profit, and that all the money made is used for the benefit of policy holders, but the developments in the Equitable case are making some of the senators figure that it might be well to get more in taxes, even if salaries of insurance men have to come down.

Senator Baird and his colleagues are mighty glad that the judicial recount has afforded them an opportunity of looking into Wayne county's election methods. They are having the time of their lives and, when not trying to look solemn when questioning some inspector, they poke each other in the ribs and laugh over the conditions of affairs that has been brought to light. He says regarding the passage of a direct voting bill: "The first thing, I believe, ought to be to get an opinion from the attorney general as to the constitutionality of the plan of submitting the direct voting question to the voters of the various parties, and I shall offer a resolution in the senate Monday night calling up the state's legal department for a written opinion on this point. The legislature ought certainly not to go on and pass a bill with a provision about whose legality there is so much doubt, without getting the best possible opinion on it."

Representative Manzelmann, who is a member of the house committee on the state prison at Jackson, says: "I have determined to offer a resolution in the house calling for an investigation of the manner in which the annual contracts were awarded by the Jackson prison board of control. Representative Stockdale, of Allegan, chairman of the house committee, feels just as I do about the matter, that it would not do for the legislature to allow such a serious charge to go without an attempt to obtain the facts for the public."

Senator Martindale succeeded in passing the bill to allow the laying of Detroit water pipe lines to the state fair grounds, and it was given immediate effect. Rep. Snell pushed the bill through the house in the same manner.

Rep. Snell introduced a bill for the transportation of the Michigan building of the St. Louis fair to the state fair grounds. Rep. Watt introduced a bill calling for $5,000 for 1905 and $5,000 for 1906 for state fair premiums.

With a list of 56 bills on the general order, the house passed on third reading a bill of Rep. Canfield's requiring the filing of chattel mortgages. Failure to file, under this bill, would mean a forfeit of the mortgage to the mortgagor.

On general order, the Lander bill, to prohibit hunting on Sunday in Kent county was passed, after Rep. Fisk made a fight to make the bill state wide.

The Lovell bill, forbidding saloons within 100 rods of a state educational institution, was passed.

Must Refund Bonus.

The supreme court has affirmed Judge Smith's decision in the case of the village of Morris vs. Sutton & Mackey. The village of Morris gave Sutton & Mackey a $2,000 bonus to put up and run a flouring mill and electric plant. There was trouble with the company because it did not fulfill its contract and the village sued to recover the amount of its bonus. Judge Smith gave the village a judgment of $2,000 and interest from the date of giving the bonus, amounting to about $300. This opinion of the supreme court settles the question of giving bonuses and establishes the right of any municipality to sue and recover bonuses given in the past. Practically all of Owosso's and Flint's big industries were fostered by bonuses. Owosso alone has in the past four years given more than $75,000 in bonuses, but citizens have no regret except in a few cases.

The Sauer Verdict.

Without emotion except a slight show of surprise, Wm. Sauer received the verdict of involuntary manslaughter from the jury in his trial for the murder of Constable Elisha Moore, of Algonac. It was ten minutes after midnight when the jury came in, having deliberated seven hours and fifteen minutes. The mercy of the court was recommended. The prisoner's aged mother likewise displayed fortitude and did not show any sign of grief. On the first 12 ballots eight stood for acquittal, three for manslaughter and one for murder in the first degree. The verdict was reached on the thirteenth ballot.

Senator Platt's Funeral.

With a simple service from the ritual of the Episcopal church and without words of eulogy, the funeral of United States Senator Orville H. Platt took place from the church on the Green in Washington, Conn., Tuesday afternoon. It was a service in keeping with the simplicity of the senator's life, in accord with his own wishes, and at the request of Mrs. Platt.

Thirteen lives were lost by the destruction by fire Thursday night of a convent at St. Genevieve, Quebec. The victims were eight girls, ranging in age from 14 to 18 years, one nun and four old women domiciled there, one being 98. The convent was conducted by Roman Catholic sisters.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Drew, of Saunegan, N. H., a wealthy couple, were driven mad by the ravaged air in the mountains near San Jose, Cal. They believed they were the king and queen of heaven, and wrecked their cottage.

STORY FROM AN ILLINOIS TOWN OF MOST SHOCKING DETAILS.

Inhuman Cruelty.

The indictment of Mrs. Archibald McKinney, society queen and church worker, and the wife of a wealthy banker and property owner, on the charge of beating and cruelly torturing a helpless orphan girl in her household has aroused Alamo, Ill., as nothing in its previous history has ever stirred it. The girl was brought before the jury and told the story of the alleged mistreatment which she received in the McKinney home. It is said that it differed in no particular from her former statements in regard to the fearful torture which she claims she received at the hands of Mrs. McKinney. More eloquent than words of her own could have been, the scars told the story of her years of torture. Fresh wounds, some of them evidently made with a twisting fork, deeper cuts where the girl said scissors had been jabbed into her flesh, black and blue marks hinting at severe beatings, brought to the jurors visible evidence of the sufferings which the girl had endured.

"Mrs. McKinney used to beat me nearly every day. She would tell me I must get so much work done in so many minutes, and if I didn't she would punish me."

"But it seemed as though she used to punish me whether I did it or not," said the little creature, wearily.

"I never could work fast enough to suit her, and when she was awful mad she used to hit me with the twisting fork or the scissors or whatever came handy."

"They used to hurt terrible when she stuck them into my shoulders, and then she used to scratch me when she got awful mad and pull my hair out. When I went away she put a switch on my hair so it wouldn't show where it was torn off and ordered me not to tell anybody she hit me or pulled it out."

Frenzied Finance.

Frank G. Bigelow, who defaulted the funds of the First National Bank for $1,500,000, was a director of the Milwaukee Trust Co., but when his default became known he was removed as such by the board of directors. Despite assurances that the trust company was in no manner involved by the financial troubles of Bigelow, crowds of people Monday waited long before the opening of the trust company bank to withdraw their deposits. The notices posted on the bank windows, which the depositors mostly working people, eagerly scanned, announced this fact, and that the trust company was abundantly able and prepared to meet the demands of all depositors and creditors. The notices posted on the windows of the First National bank and signed by the directors that the company was solvent seemed to reassure the depositors somewhat.

Wants a Receiver.

A bill for the appointment of a receiver for the Equitable Life Assurance Society and seeking an accounting was filed in the United States circuit court, Chicago, Friday by Attorney D. J. Schuyler. The petition was filed in the name of Abraham Sitton and others, policyholders in the society. Sitton says he holds a $2,000 policy in the society, and that his interests are being dissipated by the officers and directors of the society. He names specifically President J. W. Alexander and Vice-President James H. Hyde.

President Alexander and Vice-President Hyde are charged with misappropriation of funds and mismanagement. The bill also declares that 10 years the charter of the company and the laws of New York have been violated inasmuch as the officials have failed to distribute the profits of the company among the policyholders.

The Rebate Question.

It is reported that Messrs. Harmon and Judson, special counsel for the department of justice, have in their possession, it is stated, a letter signed by Paul Morton, showing that it was by his authority that the Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe Railroad Co. granted rebates to the Colorado Fuel & Iron Co. The discovery, it is further added, was made by accident. A footnote to a certain letter, No. —, as authority, Messrs. Judson and Harmon then upon began a search for the letter upon referred to. They found it, according to the statement of a man who knows, it was signed by Paul Morton, then vice-president of the Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe, and now secretary of the navy in President Roosevelt's cabinet.

At Classic Oxford

(Special Correspondence.)

Oxford! What thoughts does the mere name conjure up! What emotions inspire—what hallowed memories arouse of a past replete with historic interest!

A classic atmosphere seems to pervade the place; the very shops resemble lecture-rooms rather than men's furnishing departments.

The town of Oxford is situated in one of the most picturesque portions of old England, amid scenes of rare landscape beauty. On one hand is the glorious view of the Cherwell and Thames rivers, while stretching out as far as the eye can reach and forming a beautiful background, are rolling hills covered with verdure of green and such foliage as only a poet's pen could fully describe. As Hawthorne says: "The world surely has not another place like Oxford; it is a despair to see such a place and to leave it, for it would take a lifetime, and more than one, to comprehend and enjoy it satisfactorily."

The foundation of the university itself is ascribed to King Alfred, but in the accepted sense of the word, this is erroneous. That Alfred did establish a place for the fostering of learning at "Oxenford," or Ford of the Oxen, as it was originally called, can-

The most imposing quadrangle, or "quad," as it is called, is that of Christ church. This college was founded by Cardinal Wolsey in 1524, and renamed by Henry VIII in 1546. The handsome gateway called the old Louis gate, was begun by Wolsey, but completed by Wren in 1662. The bell, "Great Tom," strikes a curfew of 101 strokes every night at 9 o'clock, indicating the original number of students on foundation. Five minutes later the college gates all over Oxford are closed.

Life of Students.

All the students live in their college buildings and dine in the hall. Five or six club together and have a "scout," or servant. Students are not allowed to be out after midnight, and the "bull dogs" are college policemen, or proctors, whose only aim in life is to see that this law is enforced.

There is also—note the conservatism of England in preserving old customs and traditions—"rights of sanctuary"—i. e., certain steps of churches and portals of certain college buildings, where the pursued student is safe. If he reaches those places before he is caught, the "bull dog" cannot touch him nor lay hands upon him.

Christ Church.

not be doubted, but it was more a gathering of monks who preserved learning rather than gave it out, as must be the function of a university. The old monks brought together by Alfred kept learning from disappearing altogether, and just so far may be regarded as the founders of Oxford university. It was not until the twelfth century that there was a gathering of masters and scholars not attached to a monastic institution, and only in the thirteenth century was anything seen like modern colleges, i. e., incorporated masters and students within the university.

Long a Great University.

In the thirteenth century Oxford was ranked as one of the foremost universities in Europe—a position she has ever since retained.

There are colleges of every grade. Some are handsomely endowed and frequented by the fashion of England. Some are strict in scholastic attainments, others lax. Some are as poor as the proverbial church mouse, and will more poorly attended. To sum up—it is just as if we in America should bring every university of every grade and requirement to one spot and form a corporate whole of a number of units.

As I have said before, there are twenty-four colleges and three halls at Oxford. Roughly speaking, the halls are attended by the townspeople. Many of the colleges have been richly endowed, and these are the most fashionable. The college buildings are grim, antique-looking piles, and in their mute majesty tell their story of times gone by. One can hardly believe that he is of the twentieth century when he steps from the noisy streets into a quiet and somber "quad," where groups of students converse in subdued tones and walk about with slow and measured tread.

One is likely to be disappointed if he goes to Oxford with any exalted idea about the magnificence of the buildings. They are interesting and romantic-looking enough, but many American universities have finer

FIRST MAPLE SIRUP

DUE TO SQUAW'S ABSENTMIND-EDNESS, 'TIS SAID.

Indian Chief the First to Enjoy This One of the Greatest of Nature's Delicacies—Business Now on Commercial Basis.

As the legend runs, a big Indian chief had instructed his squaw to cook a piece of venison for his sole enjoyment on his return from a long chase.

After putting the meat in water obtained by melting snow, it seems that the squaw became so absorbed in making a pair of moccasins that she let the meat burn, just as many more civilized housewives have done many times since.

Also, like the more modern housewife, she seems to have been ready to meet the emergency. As there was no time to melt snow again, she thought herself of the water running from the maple tree behind the wigwam. Securing a quantity of this, she poured it in with the meat.

The hunter was delayed in his coming, so that when he returned there was nothing but a sticky mess in the bottom of the pot.

Fearing a storm, the squaw hid when she heard her husband coming, but hearing no outburst, she ventured forth and found the luscious chief oblivious to everything about him except the pot, which he held between his knees, eating the contents with the utmost delight and licking his fingers with great gusto.

This was the first dish of maple syrup that was ever served, but it was a most fortunate discovery, for our forefathers tell us that as far back as 1730 the first maple syrup and sugar were made in Vermont, and for many years thereafter her output was nearly one-third of all that was made in the country.

In those olden days maple sugar making was not only a regular picnic, where many a love match began, but it was a most necessary function, for maple sugar was the only kind of sweet known to the early settlers.

Nearly every well-to-do farmer in those days owned his own sugar camp, and every member of the family was called upon to lend a hand in the labors of sugar-making time.

Primitive sugar making has gone its way along with the candle dipping and many of the other home industries of early days. The ingenuity of man has brought about most wonderful changes, among them the evaporators, clearing and straining and boiling down, the syrup passing from one pan to another, seemingly without the aid of human hands.

Latest statistics show that the great maple sugar producing states are Ohio, Vermont and New York. But the greatest producing county in the world, according to its area, is on the Western reserve, and it is Geauga county.

There have been tapped in Geauga county during the last fifteen years an average of 550,000 trees—469,000 in 1890, and 631,000 in 1904, an increase of 162,000. There has been an average per year of 150,000 gallons of maple syrup made.

To produce 100 gallons of syrup it has required, on the average, 366 trees, or nearly 2 1/3 pounds of sugar per tree. The average contract bulk price has been 5 1/2 cents per gallon, making an annual average income at the contract price of $89,250.

Won His Bet.

A hotel proprietor in Baltimore tells an amusing story, in which the main figure is an old gentleman well known to the waiters in the hotels of the Monumental City for his aversion to the "tipping" system.

One evening the old gentleman, having finished his dinner, was preparing to leave the hotel when the darky who had served him bowed and said: "Thank you very much, sah."

"What the deuce are you thanking me for?" angrily demanded the old fellow. "I haven't given you anything."

"Dat's jest it, boss," responded the waiter. "I bet No. 10 fifty cents dat you wouldn't 'tip' me."—Harper's Weekly.

The Senate Desks.

Senator Spooner proposes to make the desks in the senate a basis for hero worship. At present it is said that none of the senate employees knows what desk Daniel Webster occupied. It is proposed to find out and label it.

It is known what desks Clay and Calhoun occupied, but few ever notice them particularly. Senator Hale has the desk that James G. Blaine occupied, but seldom refers to it.

The desk of Jefferson Davis is occupied by Senator Cockrell.

But it will be interesting when all the desks in the senate bear the names of all who ever occupied them, though this will not bring them back.

Fishing for Tarpon

"Dah dey roll!"

This is the cry of the colored watcher on key or houseboat, on guard while the sportsmen are killing time over minor game—barracouta, crocodile, kingfish, jack, or what not—when the tarpon breaks water in the pass. It is a call to action, like the oldtime "There she blows!" of the Nantucket whalers. It summons the anglers to make ready for the silver king, and to test their skill and mettle as rods-men, says a writer in the New York Sun.

Anglers from every part of the United States are now southward bound for the tarpon fishing. The big fish abound in every estuary, lagoon and creek.

Rod in hand, as the angler awaits in his rowboat the coming of the tarpon, he has to display both activity and patience—the first to save the bit of mullet from the thousands of catfish and crabs that are a constant pest to him, the second to be ready, despite all discomforts, when the mighty denizen of the waters is in the humor to take the bait.

Huge as it is, the tarpon mouths the end of mullet as gently as a lamb nibbling its first grass, or as smoothly as an eel sucking in a bob of worms. At the faint twitch that tells that the big fish is mouthing the bait the angler pays out the coiled-up slack of the line and holds his breath in excitement.

A quick strike will be sure to lose the fish. As with the pilgrim from the Blarney stone, the motto at this juncture must be, "Don't hope to hinder him, or to bewilder him!" Only when the bait has been gorged may the rod be lifted and the fight started.

The tarpon hooked in the throat at still fishing in this way are the ones that jump and plunge the most to break free, and while the struggle rages the playing of the big fish is an excitement that atones for all the hours of waiting and battling with the bait-stealing pests of fins and claws.

Sharks Steal Angler's Prey.

More than once a shark has nipped off part of a tarpon, as the fish has been hoisted on the tackle to the waiting sloop after being killed, and sharks are always a nuisance to the anglers as bait stealers. On this account the tarpon hooks are rigged on so that a shark may bite off the bait and chase away, with a "good ridance" from the fisherman to speed the robber.

The hook for bottom fishing is tied to a stout line of cotton bound with copper wire, but some six or eight inches nearest to the hook is unprotected, to accommodate Mr. Shark, or else the hook is fastened to a rawhide thong. Once the bait is swallowed, neither the snell of wirebound line nor the rawhide will be cut by the rough cartilage of the tarpon's jaws.

As fly casting is superior to bait fishing for trout, the best sport with the tarpon lies not in bottom, but in surface fishing. The inlets between the mangrove and scrub clad keys that form the chain of breakwaters between the Florida lagoons and the Atlantic, termed the passes, are the haunts of the true tarpon sportsman.

The tarpon are caught on the changing tides, with live fish, or its imitation, as bait, which is floated on the current from an anchored rowboat, and by trolling when the tide does not serve. Anchors are slipped when a fish is hooked and the kill is usually made by landing the fish on the beach.

Trolling a New Sport.

Trolling for tarpon is a comparatively new variation of the sport, for only by accident was it discovered that the fish so often seen leaping in the passes by the men at bottom fishing could be caught in this way. The sport dates back only to 1895, and among the first amateurs to engage in the pastime with the proper equipment were the late Pierre Lorillard and the still eager angler John G. Hecksher.

Reward for Woman Angler

The rapid water and the force with which the strike must be made necessitate a somewhat stiffer rod and a tougher line than are used in bottom fishing. Split bamboo, the rod that has been brought to greatest perfection in this country and has supplanted the old time wood rods even in English trout streams and Scotch salmon rivers, is the chosen material for the pass outfit. The length will be some seven feet, the weight from twenty-four to twenty-six ounces, with independent butts, and the tips weighing fourteen ounces.

The line is from twenty-one to thirty thread hand twisted linen, of which the large multiplying reel will hold some 600 feet. The hook is fastened by a length of German silver chain, which breaks the rigidity, to a snell of piano wire, about five feet in length, attached by a swivel to the line. The rougher snell used in bottom fishing would frighten off the tarpon in the clear water of the passes.

There will be a drag, to serve as a brake, on the reel usually, while the hook is of a special device. The tarpon, which thrives on hard shell crabs and similar tropical sea food of tough epidermis, rejoices in a mouth impervious to a hook, as glass will turn all materials less sharp than a diamond.

One Vulnerable Place.

The one vulnerable place, its heel of Achilles, is the corner of the jaw. A well rounded hook with a peculiar turned point is deemed the best pattern.

Statistics have it that only one fish in four struck is hooked, and of those hooked only one in four is landed. The tarpon, thanks to the difficulty of embedding the barb of the hook, is a fighter that may at any time win out from the angler, and as the bait is cast out, make off with a contemptuous flap of his tail. As a matter of fact, the hook often drops from the mouth of the fish on the beach, revealing how lightly it has been imbedded and how much the skill of the angler has aided in bringing the tarpon to hook.

The fishermen who own their own yachts or houseboats and are free to seek out a lonely pass obtain usually the cream of the sport. But the tarpon is no tuff-hunter and bites as readily for the haremoged native as the duck-clad millionaire. In fact, many of the biggest fish have been caught by anglers out for a trip on a hired sloop.

The size and gameness of the fish often compel a long struggle, sometimes of hours, and in the long run the exhaustion of the angler accounts for the loss of many a tarpon.

WATCH SAVED HIS LIFE.

But Not in the Conventional Way It Always Does in the Story Books.

There came that unaccountable lull in the conversation at the dinner table that all hostess dread, but it gave the gushing girl her opportunity.

"Ah, Colonel," she said, "I'm sure that you've had many thrilling adventures, wonderful escapes from death, just like the heroes in the novels."

"Well," admitted the Colonel, "I've had some pretty close calls."

"Yes, yes. Was your life ever saved by a cherished Bible, a watch or a pack of cards that stopped the course of the bullet?"

"Not exactly," protested the victim, blushing, "but, lemme see, my life was once saved by my watch. See, here it is."

"But," went on the fair inquisitor, glancing at the timepiece, "I see no trace of a bullet on it. How did it save your life?"

"Why," stammered the Colonel, "when I first came to New York a pawnshop advanced me the price of ten meals on it."

Oldtime Remedy for Cold.

"You have a cold, eh?" said the physician. "Well, suppose I give you the same prescription that Queen Elizabeth used?"

He took down an ancient folio.

"Dr. William Bulleyn's prescription for a cold, which Queen Elizabeth used all her life, was this," he said.

"Take nutmegs, the root called dornike, which the apothecaries have, setwall, gatagall, mastike, long pepper, the bark of pomecitron, of melon, of sage, bazel, marjorum, dill, spiknard, wood of aloes, cubebe, cardamon (called graynes of paradise), lavender, pennyroyals, the bone of a hart's heart grated, cut and stamped, and beat your spices grossly in a mortar. Put in ambergrise and musk, of each half a drachm. Distill this in a simple aqua vitae, made with a strong ale, in a serpentine. To tell the virtue of this water against cold, phlegme, dropsy, heaviness of mind, coming of melancholy, I can not well at the present, for it is too great."

Married a Negro.

James Wall, a full-blooded negro, was arrested in Bay City Saturday on a charge of criminal assault alleged to have been committed upon Ida Lambin, a 15-year-old white girl, to whom he was married last Thursday. The negro applied for a marriage license and swore that the girl was 18 years old and a mulatto. The girl is very pretty and well developed and insists that she is 18 years old, although her parents say she is but 15. She told the officers that her father had beaten her cruelly and had kicked her after knocking her down. She became acquainted with Wall while the latter boarded at a nearby miners' boarding house and after receiving an unusually severe beating, she claims, she went to Wall, who proposed marriage. At the police station the mother of the girl first refused to believe that a marriage had taken place, but upon being shown the license she began upbraiding her daughter, concluding by attacking her and beating her before the officers could interfere. The prosecuting attorney will first determine the girl's age before going on with the case against Wall.

Lifted the Mortgage.

John W. Mains of Eckford, the father of the notorious Chas. Mains, is the happiest man in Calhoun county. When his son was tried in the circuit court of this county six years ago for forgery, Mr. Mains employed the best legal talent in the county to defend him, there being five lawyers engaged in defending Mains. This cost his father no less than five mortgages on his small farm in Eckford. John Mains is now past 70 years old, but this morning he came to the office of register of deeds and discharged the last mortgage on his property. At the time of the trial Mr. Mains' friends said he was a ruined man as the result of his son's trial.

A State Joke.

Representatives of Genesee county secured the submission to the voters of the state of two constitutional amendments which were carried by the state vote, but which it now appears were turned down in Genesee itself on the ground of economy. One allows for extra compensation for the circuit judge; the other provides for a board of county auditors.

Neuralgia And Other Pain.

All pain in any disease is nerve pain, the result of a turbulent condition of the nerves. The stabbing, lacerating, darting, burning, agonizing pain that comes from the prominent nerve branches, or sensory nerves, is neuralgia, and is the "big brother" of all the other pains.

Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills rarely ever fail to relieve these pains by soothing these larger nerves, and restoring their tranquility.

Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills leave no bad after-effects, and are a reliable remedy for every kind of pain, such as headache, backache, stomachache, sciatica, rheumatism and neuralgia.

They also relieve Dizziness, Sleeplessness, Nervousness, Car-Sickness, and Distress after eating.

"For many years I have been a constant sufferer from neuralgia and headache, and have never been able to obtain any relief from various headache powders and capsules, until I tried Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills. They always cure my headache in five minutes time." FRED R. SWINLEY, Cashier 1st Nat. Bank, Atkinson, Neb.

Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills are sold by your druggist, who will guarantee that the first package will benefit. If it fails he will return your money. 25 doses, 25 cents. Never sold in bulk. Miles Medical Co., Elkhart, Ind.

TO MARK THE SITE

Of St. Mary's Church, Sylvan, Trees Have Been Planted.

William Cassidy, of Lyndon, has planted in the grounds of the old St. Mary's church in Sylvan, four spruce trees to mark the corners of the site of the old Catholic church, and a cut-leaved weeping birch where the altar used to stand. His father, the late John Cassidy, was the first Catholic to permanently settle in what is now St. Mary's parish, Chelsea, having come here in 1836 and lived here continuously until his death in 1890.

With one exception—Peter Knauf—the pioneers, those who brought the Catholic religion and Catholic faith into the parish when the place was a wilderness and who were largely instrumental in making the parish what it is as a parish, were Irishmen, and except Mr. Thomas O'Neil they are all buried in the old Sylvan cemetery.

The little church they made sacrifices to build when they were poor and few in number was wantonly burned a few years ago.

The old church, the old cemetery, and the people who are buried there form the first most highly creditable chapter of the parish history.

Don't Borrow Trouble.

It is a bad habit to borrow anything, but the worst thing you can possibly borrow is trouble. When sick, sore, heavy, weary and worn out by the pains and poisons of dyspepsia, biliousness, Bright's disease and similar internal disorders, don't sit down and brood over your symptoms, but fly for relief to Electric Bitters. Here you will find sure and permanent forgetfulness of all your troubles, and your body will not be burdened by a load of debt disease. At Bank Drug Store; price 50c; guaranteed.

Cement Works Notes.

The Italian gang will hereafter work seven nights each week, commencing Saturday night.

J. E. Bartlett, wife and family, of Jackson, were guests of Supt. H. C. Millen and family Tuesday.

A special order is now on hand for 10,000 barrels of cement to be delivered during the month of May.

A reservoir to hold 90,000 gallons of water for fire protection is now in the course of erection, the one now in use being deemed too small.

Chas. Turk, of Dexter, who has been employed at the works for the past year, died suddenly at his home Saturday afternoon of spinal meningitis. The funeral was held Monday.

Mrs. Seitz was twice married, first to Jacob Haist, and after his death to Martin Seitz, whom she also survived. STRICTURE AND KIDNEY DISEASE CURED.

"I had stricture for eleven years. It finally brought on Bright's Disease of the Kidneys. I had an uncomfortable shooting pain in the groin and feeling as though something was in the urethra. My back was weak and I could scarcely stoop over. Urine was full of sediment. Had a desire to urinate frequently. Family doctor, so-called specialists, patent medicines, electric belts, all failed. I was discouraged. I had spent hundreds of dollars in vain. Finally I consulted Dr. Kennedy & Kergan as the last resort. I had heard a great deal about them and concluded from the fact that they had been established over 25 years that they understood their business. I am delighted with the results. In one week I felt better and in a few weeks was entirely cured. Have gained sixteen pounds in weight." G. E. WRIGHT, Lansing.

Mistress Rosemary Allyn

By MILLICENT E. MANN

Copyright, 1904, by LUCAS-LINCOLN CO.

CHAPTER XX—Continued.

"Cease at once," I commanded. "Would you add insult to injury? What is your love to me?" "Have a care, Rosemary," he cried. "Do not drive a man to extremes. Quentin Waters has bewitched you with his dark foreign face—and he had grace, I will acknowledge; but am I altogether without charm?" "Leave, Oh, leave me," I begged. "I am weary with you all." "I will molest you no more, if you will not promise to think of me," he pleaded. "Oh, Rosemary, listen to my love." He stretched out his arms to draw me to his breast. "I will intercede with Lord Felton; you shall not leave town if you care to stay—only leave me a little."

"You listened," I cried; "I am finding out some of the characteristics of my cousin to-night—I hate you—and if Quentin Waters is dead, I shall be his bride in heaven." "So you said before to-night," he retorted. "I saw that he was holding his temper in check. You liked me well enough before this upstart came to town—you shall like me, more than like me again when time shall have healed the wound. Adieu, my coz; I hope you will find your sojourn in France to your taste. Fairly well, if I do not see the face of my Cousin Raoul Dwight," I returned. "That you will have to put up with to some extent," he observed, "since Lord Felton has asked me to attend him." I had no words to say to this, and I motioned him from my presence.

"I have almost finished," at this point the lady said, and her voice broke like a harp that had but one string. "Here is the locket and the paper is inside of it. Tell Mister Waters, if you find him alive, what I have told you, since it is impossible for me to meet him. If dead, place it upon his breast and whisper to him that it has lain upon my heart all the time."

"She had ended and there were

I swear it. Imprison me, but let one so sweet go."

So time dragged on until at last I regained consciousness, only to repeat when asleep from sheer weakness, "She is innocent—innocent."

How wearying it was to him, poor Gil! those long hours in which I raved, for he blamed himself greatly that he had not waited until I was stronger before he had told me about the locket or given it to me, and also restrained himself when speaking of Lady Felton. I forgave him that, indeed I never referred to it, his humility was so sincere. I knew him well enough to know that he meant nothing, his bark was ever worse than his bite, witness what he did for "pretty Alice Lyndon" and her daft mate. He sent them on to Bristol escorted by Torrance and Pat, when he had need of them both. He also paid their passage in a vessel soon to sail for the States, and heartened their trip with a well-filled purse.

"The house on Bow Street is closed, you say, Gil?" I asked, "and also Lady Felton's. You are sure the servants left in charge know nothing of their whereabouts?"

"As sure as I am that my mother's bones lie in St. Swithin's churchyard," he said grimly. "My lord," he added after a pause, "do you think you will be able to travel by the end of the week, so we can go to Long Haut?"

"There is no need to hasten now, Gil," I replied. "Lord Waters has been laid here to rest a week ago at least. I did not see his face, calm, I hope, in death; after his life's restless wave of turbulence may he sleep well. Ah! me! my errand into London as far as my father's message is concerned was of little avail. Lady Dwight has left town; God knows when I shall see her again!"

"Since she has waited so many years, a longer wait will not matter," chapel at home and rest my eyes upon the spot where my father lies."

It took us no longer to leave London than it had Long Haut. But this time instead of the quick men, one was worn with vigils, and the other sick, whom all shunned for fear the plague had laid her clammy fingers on him.

We skirted the town, especially the plague-stricken spots in it. We heard the crier cry, "Bring out your dead," a gruesome sound. But more gruesome was the sight of his cart piled high with corpses on the way to dump them into St. Olave's churchyard.

Let us hasten out of that city of fearsome sights; grim with its horrors, putrid with its smells and hasten to the clean, pure atmosphere of Long Haut.

The only thing that enlivened us on the journey were the remarks upon the open country made by that cockney, Pat the linkman, who had never been outside of London.

We reached Long Haut in the evening. The sun setting in brilliancy—where were sunsets more brilliant than in that south country?—threw its light upon the windows of the huts, and the village looked adame.

How pleasantly the smells of the sea came to our nostrils, after the close breath of the town! How good its earthy smell! How good the smell of the hay in the fields!

We reached the hall and passed into the kitchen. Before the fire, crooning over it, sat old Nance, the same as ever, with perhaps a few more wrinkles added. She did not even start upon seeing us.

"I was but now dreaming you were here, dear lord," she said as she hobbled toward me.

I took her withered shape in my arms and gave her a sounding kiss upon her brown cheeks.

"Tis half killed they have you in that pesky hole," she muttered. "Sit ye down while I see to your bed and give you something decent to eat," and she mothered me like I were a babe. I laughed for joy at being home again.

CHAPTER XXII

"Pray, How Comes Love?"

I was up early the next morning. Ah! as Gil said, there was nothing like this air fresh from the sea to put new life into one. At once I was strengthened. My blood ran quicker through my veins. All lassitude fell from me, and I longed to do outrageous things, even as a boy escaped from restraint might.

I left Gil snoring in his bed, sleeping the sleep a man feels he is entitled to after having spent days and nights of vigil with an exacting patient, now that he has brought him safe home.

I did justice to the bowl of porridge and home-brewed ale Nance set before me, and in spite of her protests that I was not strong enough went to the chapel. I looked about me. How still it was in that house of prayer and how familiar, save my father's seat draped in black and that newly-carved stone resting upon all that remained of him whose name I bore. Candles burned upon the altar, while through the stained memorial window the dead resting beneath those flagstones—life has so much to give to some, so little to others—how would it be with me? I account every man responsible for what his life is—whether he make or mar it. But mostly I thought of the newly buried, and while I said a prayer for the peace of his soul, I vowed that never should my feet rest until I had found Lady Dwight and delivered my father's message. After that was done, I should seek the lady of my heart, and by all the laws of nature she should be mine, though all the world should say me nay.

I went down the bridge path and took the short cut through the woods, which led past Castle Drou—Castle Drou that in the distance and the gray mist of the early morn looked like a fairy's house.

Bright Doggie.

M. M. Williams, of this place, has a very fine thoroughbred Fields water sparrow (imported) that is truly a wonder in his way, says the Titusville (Fla.) Star. He can do almost anything except talk, and is able to find a lost article on being sent for by his acute sense of smell. An illustration was given a member of the Star staff, who witnessed an exhibition of his acuteness in this direction recently. Mr. Williams took from his vest pocket a good sized roll of bills, and, going away from his dog a distance of 150 yards, hid his money and returned. Upon being told to bring it back, the sparrow went straight and returned immediately to his master with the lost greenbacks intact, not a single bill missing. This fine specimen of canine intelligence recently recovered a very valuable and highly prized gold hunting case watch for Isaac Jenkins, a very heavy grain buyer of Jacksonville.

Two Motives.

John Kendrick Bangs was invited to dine at the New York Yacht club, and of the event the Sun tells this story. The medallion and motto of the Yale club just across the street attracted Mr. Bangs' attention.

"That's very nice," he said. "That gives an air to that building that attracts me, Lux et veritas. Why don't you yacht club chaps put a motto on your own door?"

"Possibly because we don't happen to have one," answered the host.

"Nonsense," said Mr. Bangs. "If the Yale club can use Lux et veritas, why can't you fellows use Ducks et demitasse? It's quite as appropriate."

STRANGERS MADE AT HOME

Hospitality a Cardinal Virtue Throughout Africa.

Hospitality may be considered as one of the characteristics of not only the Veis, but of the whole African race, says a writer in the Century. It is considered the duty of every citizen to entertain strangers without the smallest compensation. Places of rest stand always open, and when these are found occupied by strangers, a man goes and tells his wife, who will send her servants with water for the strangers to wash their feet; for, as they wear no shoes, they naturally need such accommodation. Afterward rooms and cloth wrappers are given them, food is brought from all quarters, or they are invited to eat with the people. They continue to be so provided for, even if they stay months. Their garments are also washed and returned to them.

Enemies of Oysters.

Starfish are the principal enemies of oyster beds. It is estimated by the fish commission of the United States that they do damage to the extent of $250,000 annually to American oyster beds.

For Growing Girls.

West Pembroke, Me., April 24.—Mrs. A. L. Smith, of this place, says that Dodd's Kidney Pills are the best remedy for growing girls. Mrs. Smith emphasizes her recommendation by the following experience:

"My daughter was thirteen years old last November and it is now two years since she was first taken with Crazy Spells that would last a week and would then pass off. In a month she would have the spells again. At these times she would eat very little and was very yellow; even the whites of her eyes would be yellow.

"The doctors gave us no encouragement, they all said they could not help her. After taking one box of Dodd's Kidney Pills, she has not had one bad spell. Of course, we continued the treatment until she had used in all about a dozen boxes, and we still give them to her occasionally, when she is not feeling well. Dodd's Kidney Pills are certainly the best medicine for growing girls."

Mothers should heed the advice of Mrs. Smith, for by so doing, they may save their daughters much pain and sickness and ensure a healthy, happy future for them.

A Lonesome Place.

It may be all right for people to mind their own business, but life wouldn't be worth living if everybody should do so.—Detroit Tribune.

TORTURING HUMOUR.

Body a Mass of Sores—Treated by Three Doctors but Grew Worse.—Cured by Cuticura for 75c.

"My little daughter was a mass of sores all over her body. Her face was eaten away, and her ears looked as if they would drop off. I called in three doctors, but she grew worse. Neighbors advised Cuticura, and before I had used half of the cake of soap and box of ointment the sores had all healed, and my little one's skin was as clear as a newborn babe's. I would not be without Cuticura again if it cost five dollars, instead of seventy-five cents, which is all it cost us to cure our baby. Mrs. G. J. Steese, 701 Coburn St., Akron, Ohio."

Plead for peace until there is nothing left but to fight.

A Heavy Fine.

Under the Elkins law, any railroad company which pays rebates in any form, or any shipper who accepts them, is liable to a fine of from $1,000 to $20,000, upon conviction. It also prohibits the carrying of freight at less than the published tariffs. The Interstate Commerce Commission is empowered to detect and prosecute violators of this statute. President Knapp of the Commission states that since this law was passed, rebate paying has been as rare as forgery.

It is more difficult to keep a fortune than to make one.

Only one dose a day. Write at once to the Vernal Remedy Company, Le Roy, N. Some men never wander from their own firesides because they dwell in steam-heated flats.

Women Replace Male Workers.

The Stevens Arms and Tool Company at Chicopee, Mass., has begun to replace men and boys with women in the machine rooms. "Young men and boys, we have found, do not pay strict attention to business," said the assistant superintendent. "Young women are more conscientious and their work is satisfactory. The men and boys will gradually be replaced."

A juvenile idea of a hero is a bad little boy who keeps pestering a good one.

"I had Inflammation of the Rectum, but I am well now, thanks to Dr. David Kennedy's Pile Remedy. It's my best friend." Garrett Lansing, Troy, N. Y.

If all men were wise the gold brick industry would cease to flourish.

The sun sets on most people while they are waiting for it to rise.

Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup. For children teething, softens the gums, reduces inflammation, allays pain, cures wind colic. See bottle.

Rice as a Sleeping Potion.

"If people would eat plenty of rice they would not need drugs to make them sleep," said the drug clerk, pausing for a moment in putting up a sleeping potion for a woman. "There is much said just now about rice as a strengthening food, but few Americans know that it has soporific powers. If properly cooked it has. Rice should be washed many times, until the water no longer appears milky. It should then be soaked a few hours, salted and boiled rapidly about thirty minutes. When cooked in this way it can be eaten each day with relish, and the person who eats it sleeps, and dreams not at all."—New York Sun.

Naval Constructors' Pay.

In England, as in the United States, there is difficulty in getting naval constructors, private firms paying the good men more than the government. The chief constructor of the British navy is paid at the rate of $15,000 a year. But before entering the service he was earning four times as much.

Nervous School Children.

Statistics gathered by various School Boards, show that a large percentage of school children suffer from different forms of nervousness, mild or exaggerated. Some showed a tendency to melancholy, others mental depression, and many the nervous twitches of mild chorea, or St. Vitus' dance. Most of these troubles can be overcome by proper food, sufficient sleep, and Dr. Caldwell's (Laxative) Syrup Pepsin. It is a universal children's medicine, because, if good food is eaten, it insures that the food is properly digested and indigestion and nerve poisons properly thrown out. It is pleasant to take, and safe and sure in results. Try it. Sold by all druggists at 50c and $1.00. Money back if it fails.

The Fountain Pen Spouts.

"Queer fad, this fountain pen one, isn't it?" said Mr. Cooke. "Ever notice how jealous a man is of his pet pen? When a man takes out his fountain pen every other fellow in reach who has one does the same and begins to blow about its wonderful capabilities. I've seen bosom friends almost come to blows about the little pocket contrivance. Now, this pen of mine has been in constant use for more than three years and is the best thing of the sort on the market today—Going? Why, what's your hurry?"

Life-Saving Family.

Life saving runs in the family of Mr. J. Parsons, a young lighterman, of the Hollows, Brentford, England, who, on his twenty-third birthday, received the Royal Humane Society's certificate for rescuing two boys from drowning. His father saved forty-eight persons from drowning, and the son now has a total of twenty-three lives to his credit.

ANOTHER RECORD IN LAND HUNTING.

This Spring's Exodus to Canada Greater Than Ever.

It was thought in 1903, when over forty-five thousand people went from the United States to Canada, that the limit of the yearly immigration to the wheat zone of the Continent had been reached. But when in 1904 about as large a number of American citizens signified their intention of becoming settlers on Canadian lands, the general public were prepared for the announcement of large numbers in 1905. No surprise therefore will be caused when it is made known that predictions of fully fifty thousand more in 1905 are warranted in the fact that the Spring movement Canadawards is greater than it has ever been. The special trains from Omaha, Chicago, St. Paul, Detroit, and other gateways has been crowded. Many have gone to join friends and relatives who have prepared homes for them and others have gone relying upon their own resources, satisfied that what others have done can also be done by them. This year much new territory has been opened up by the railroads which are extending their main lines and throwing out branches in their march across the continent. This new territory has attractions for those desiring to homestead on the one hundred and sixty acres granted each settler by the Canadian Government. Many also take advantage of the opportunity to purchase lands at the low figures at which they are now being offered.

It does not require much thought to convince one that if Iowa, Illinois, Minnesota and other lands, with a value of from fifty to one hundred and fifty dollars an acre will give a good living by producing ten to thirteen bushels of wheat to the acre and thirty to fifty bushels of corn to the acre, the lands of Western Canada at seven to ten dollars an acre, producing from twenty to thirty bushels of a superior wheat to the acre should produce a competence to the ordinary farmer in a very few years. These are the facts as they confront the reader. There are millions of acres of such land in Western Canada in addition to the other millions that are considered to be portion of the biggest and best ranges that ever invited the cattle and horse producer of the North American continent. What is particularly evident in Western Canada is the fact that the wheat lands, adjoining the grazing lands, make farming particularly agreeable and profitable. The agents of the Canadian Government, who are always willing to give information and advice to intending settlers, say that the acreage put under crop this season is greatly in excess of last season.

Edison's Prophecy is Fulfilled.

THE TEACHER'S PROBLEM

A LIFE ALWAYS THREATENED BY NERVOUS PROSTRATION.

One Who Broke Down from Six Years' Overwork Tells How She Escaped Misery of Enforced Idleness.

"I had been teaching in the schools steadily for six years," said Miss James, whose recent return to the work from which she was driven by nervous collapse has attracted attention. "I was greatly overworked, especially the primary department of which I was in charge, and I had been doing the work of two teachers. The strain was much for my nerves and two years ago the crisis came."

"I was prostrated mentally and physically, sent in my resignation and expected to be able to resume work. I seemed to me then that I was the miserable woman on earth. I was tortured by nervous headaches, worn out inability to sleep, and had so much blood that I was as white as chalk."

"After my active life, it was hard to bear idleness, and terribly discouraging to keep paying out the savings of years for medicines which did me no good."

"How did you get back your health?"

"A bare chance and a lot of faith in me to cure. After I had suffered many months, and when I was on the verge of despair, I happened to read an account of some cures effected by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. The statements were so convincing that I somehow felt assured that these pills would help me. Most people, I think, buy one box for a trial, but I purchased boxes at once, and when I had taken them up, I was indeed well and had need of more medicine."

"Dr. Williams' Pink Pills enriched my blood, gave me back my sleep, stored my appetite, gave me strength, walk long distances without fatigue, fact freed me from all my numerous ailments. I have already taught for several months, and I cannot say enough in praise of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills."

Miss Margaret M. James is now at No. 123 Clay street, Dayton, Ohio. Many of her fellow teachers have used Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and are enthusiastic about their merits. Good digestion, strength, ambition, and cheerful spirits quickly follow their use. They are sold in every drug store in the world.

Dyspepsia of Women

ABSOLUTELY NEEDLESS AGONY

Caused by Uterine Disorders and Cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

A great many women suffer with a form of indigestion or dyspepsia which does not seem to yield to ordinary treatment. While the symptoms seem to be similar to those of ordinary indigestion, yet the medicines universally prescribed do not seem to restore the patient's normal condition.

Mrs. M. Wright

Mrs. Pinkham claims that there is a kind of dyspepsia that is caused by a derangement of the female organism, and which, while it causes a disturbance similar to ordinary indigestion, cannot be relieved without a medicine which not only acts as a stomach tonic, but has peculiar uterine-nerve effects also.

As proof of this theory we call attention to the case of Mrs. Maggie Wright, Brooklyn, N. Y., who was completely cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound after everything else had failed. She writes:

"For two years I suffered with dyspepsia which so degenerated my entire system that I was unable to attend to my daily duties. I felt weak and nervous, and during that time I lost my appetite and my digestion was so bad that I could not eat. I tried different dyspepsia cures, but nothing seemed to help me. I was advised to give Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial, and was happily surprised to find that it acted like a fine tonic, and in a few days I began to enjoy and properly digest my food. My recovery was rapid, and in five weeks I was a well woman. I have recommended it to many suffering women."

No other medicine in the world has received such widespread and unqualified endorsement, or has such a record of cures of female troubles, as has Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Alabastine Your Walls

The most desirable thing in wall covering is opacity (covering power). Next to that is ease of application. In both of these Alabastine stands pre-eminent. Then there are other points—the firmness, the permanence, the binding qualities, and it is mixed with clear, pure water. Alabastine is not dependent on sour paste, nor smelly glue to bind it to the wall, it is an Alabastine cement that sets on the wall. It is the purest, the nicest, the best wall covering made. The most beautiful color effects, the most beautiful color schemes, the most beautiful designs are possible in Alabastine.

ALABASTINE is especially suitable for church and school house work. Write us for color ideas for such work.

What It Is to Live

To grapple fate and fearlessly

Defy its stubborn, stern decree

Until, disarmed, the terror lies

Beneath our feet, recoils and dies;

To look beyond, content to wait

And dignify our low estate

By bending lower, e'er to seek

To help the fallen, lift the weak;

To take no backward step—to wit,

Be sure that each ascends a bit.

To love the best, the best to give—

This is the meaning solved, to live.

CONFESSED

By NELLIE CONVEY GILMORE

(Copyright, 1905, by Daily Story Pub. Co.)

Ashleigh glanced questionably across the tea-table at his wife. That "bright particular star," who for the past two years had been the faithful custodian of his Lares and Penates—as well as of his loyal heart—answered him with smiling eyes.

"Well?" she queried, her soft hands fluttering like white butterflies above the Dresden.

He did not reply at once, and Francesco leaned coaxingly across the tea-tray curiously, and a tiny, dawning shadow coming into her face, "I hope it isn't anything unpleasant—"

"Oh, no—not exactly; not in the way you mean," Ashleigh laughed, tilting back in his chair in a little contemplative way, and regarding her with a dubious expression. "I was just wondering," he pursued, "whether you would rather go to that ball this evening or remain at home with me? I find that I shall be somewhat late, but perhaps Kendrick—"

"Kendrix, indeed! Why, you silly boy, will you ever outgrow your infancy? Which do you suppose I would rather do?"

"That settles it then. I was a bit worried for fear you might be disappointed."

A little laugh that sounded to Ashleigh like the music of gurgling water bubbled up to her lips.

Francesco left her chair and, going over to where he sat, rested two soft, pink palms on his shoulders. "I don't believe there are any two people in the world quite as happy as ourselves," she said, letting her hands slip up till they touched his cheeks. After a moment he rose and kissed her for answer. A servant came in to clear the table, and they went back to the cozy little sitting-room, where the light from pretty, rose-skirted candles glowed warm and mellow.

Ashleigh gave his attention to some accounts he had brought up from the office, and Francesco went to the piano. A half hour passed, and tiring of her music, she went over to the fireplace and threw herself into a prodigious leather chair that almost swallowed her up. She stretched out the tips of her slippers to the brass fender, and watched the sleepy bed of pink and purple coals with musing eyes.

After awhile, Ashleigh put aside his papers, and drawing up a hassock, sat down beside her, laying one of his strong brown hands over her dainty white one that rested enticingly on the arm of her chair.

For some time, neither spoke. Presently, he gave her fingers a playful little pressure. "Penny for your thoughts," he said, smiling up into her half-closed eyes.

"Are you just awfully anxious to know?"

"I am."

"Make a guess."

"Me?" he asked.

They both laughed. Francesco did not answer immediately, and he shook his head half-deprecatingly as he looked toward her for corroboration.

"It occurred to me," she began reflectively, "that most of the married people I have seen, seem—after a time—to grow weary and indifferent, if not actually discontented or unhappy and—"

"Don't talk that way," he interrupted somewhat impatiently; "it's foolish and—not natural. You are not yourself. Of course we shall always be happy, happier and happier as the years go by."

"If things were always what they seemed," she persisted absently.

"Well, and if they are not? What do appearances—what does anything

"I hope it isn't anything unpleasant?" matter so long as it is the one real love?"

Francesco had drawn a little away from him, and looking at her closely, he noticed that the brightness of tears was in her eyes, and the pink quite gone from the delicate curving cheek. He had never seen her that way before, and a wave of apprehension swept over him.

"I wish you would tell me what it is worrying you to-night?" He leaned toward her suddenly, touching the loosened heap of shining brown curls with gentle, persuasive fingers. "What is it, Francesco? What is the trouble?"

There was complete silence for a moment. An almost imperceptible glow overspread her face, losing itself abruptly in a quick rush of pallor. She winced involuntarily, but forced a smile to disguise the deep shadows that clung insistently to her eyes.

"Nothing," she returned, "nothing at all—unless, perhaps—I am a little out of gear." Her voice broke, but he did not appear to notice her emotion. She sat very still and silent for a long time. Once or twice she drew in her breath in a little sharp way, and averted her head, lest he should see, and read some of the tragedy of her face.

A long time passed. When she looked toward her husband again there was a certain bitter determination in her eyes. "I have been thinking of a story," she said mechanically. "Shall I—do you think you would care about hearing it?" She gave him a quick, tentative glance. "Don't—don't look at me that way, Dick. You—you vex me. I'm nervous and—and silly, I suppose." She tried to smile at him through stubborn tears.

Ashleigh drew a deep sigh of relief, answering her with obvious interest.

"Not many years ago," she commenced in a low tone, to hide its meaning, "there lived a girl who was young—very young, and innocent and credulous. This girl had a mother who was all that was devoted and kind, but—ambitious, and withal, perhaps a little bit unwise. After one or two attempts, she managed to marry her daughter to a man with a stolen title—no name at all. When the money—the girl's money—was all gone, the man disappeared. A short time after, there came on the scene, another woman—his wife. She—the girl was crushed, but still self-respecting. She tried to put it all out of her life forever. Everyone—everyone has a right to a little happiness in the world. Two years later, she married—someone else who loved her for herself alone—who—"

She broke off miserably and covered her face with both hands. But in a second she puffed herself together and looked up with her old brave expression.

Ashleigh glanced at her a little strangely and something queer stirred in his heart. "Well?" he asked gravely.

"That's all—except that he—the last one—never knew." She had risen and was leaning listlessly against the mantel-piece, her face the color of ashes.

He looked up at her slowly, wonderingly, comprehendingly, and all at once his eyes filled.

"Do you think she did wrong?" she asked, trying hard to keep her self-control. Her voice quivered suddenly, under its veneer of calm.

Ashleigh rose quickly and drew her into his arms. He felt her sob against his coat, almost convulsive. "What does anything matter," he repeated, "so long as it is the one real love?"

THRIVE ON VEGETARIAN DIET.

Wild and Domestic Animals Grow Fat and Intelligent.

Although carnivorous animals are capable of marvelous feats of strength they have nothing like the endurance of the herbivorous animals, nor are they so long-lived. The animals of greatest service to man on account of their strength, fleetness or endurance—the horse, the elephant, the camel, the ox—are all vegetarian animals.

The gorilla, which is said to be, for his size, the strongest and most intelligent beast in the forest, is frugivorous. He has often been known to beat a lion to death with a club, and it is said that he will even kill an elephant in like manner.

Dogs are in much better condition in every way when confined to a strictly vegetarian diet. Every dog-trainer knows that meat spoils a dog's wind, and also his scent. On this point an old hunter told West said: "I have a dog that can scent a bird two hundred feet away; but when I feed him meat he can't scent a bird half a rod off. Besides that, when I feed him meat he has no wind; he can't run."

That cats also can be kept in perfect condition on a vegetarian diet may be testified to by a handsome pair of kittens says of them: "These beautiful Maltese kittens are vegetarians. They have never eaten meat of any kind. Their favorite dishes are protose, nut-tolene, potatoes, green corn and baked beans. In disposition they are gentle, affectionate and unusually intelligent. My children have taught them to run a race, try to catch a rubber ball, and play a game of hide-and-seek. Fat, healthy and happy are these vegetarian kittens."—Exchange.

The Road.

There is no new pathway that is not rough. Yet who would walk in a well-worn way? The warden of life is aged and gruff. But nevertheless he is guard to-day.

What would you do? Would you stop to rest? Or argue the question of go or stay? Better pass on in an untired quest. Than beg for a crust in a well-worn way.

Stumble you will, in the tangled turn. Where the vines have grown and the sweet briar spread. But the fountain you find and the lessons you learn. Will be newer and dearer than those oft read.

Then smile at the warden and pay his fee. For life has demands that are somewhat bold. He has weighed the soul of a you and me. And he knows our strength when he points the road.

—Lura Kelsey Clendenning.

Henry Clay in His Prime.

An Englishman who traveled in the United States in the early part of the last century visited Washington and describes Henry Clay as follows: "He is tall, thin and not a very muscular man; his gait is stately, but swinging, and his countenance, while it indicates genius, denotes dissipation. Though there is want of rapidity and fluency in his elocution, yet he has a great deal of fire and vigor in his expression. When he speaks he is full of animation and earnestness; his face brightens, his eye beams with additional luster and his whole figure indicates that he is entirely occupied with the subject on which his eloquence is employed."

Rush of Modern Life.

A well-known artist thus comments on the rush and hurry of our modern life: "Man's business requires haste. The average business and professional man eats in a hurry and gets dyspepsia. He walks in a hurry and gets apoplexy. He talks in a hurry and gets the lie. He does business in a hurry and becomes a bankrupt. He reads in a hurry, and is superficial. He marries in a hurry and gets a divorce. He trains his children in a hurry, and develops spendthrifts and criminals. He gets religion in a hurry and forgets it in a great hurry. He makes his will in a hurry and leaves a legal contest. He dies in a hurry and goes to the devil."

Leisure of Japanese Generals.

During the winter just past Japan's generals along the Shamo spent their time variously. "Gen. Nodzu," according to Japanese newspapers, "studied calligraphy. Gen. Kuroki kept barnyard fowls. During the Heikantai engagement Gen. Kodama scarcely slept at all for a whole week, but did not seem one whit the worse for his experience." Gen. Oyama was reported as being "the same robust, merry-hearted gentleman as ever."

Ought to Stay Dead.

A physician in St. Louis, by a solution of salt infused into the veins of a woman who was supposed to be dead, so revived her that she is now believed to be on the high road to recovery. This was all right in the case of this good woman, but there should be some restrictions placed on such physicians. There are some people who should be allowed to stay dead when they die.—Mobile Item.

In an article in The Outlook for July, 1899, by George Kennan, who heard Quesada speak at the Esteban Theatre, Matanzas, Cuba, he said: "I have seen many audiences under the spell of eloquent speech and in the grip of strong emotional excitement; but I have rarely witnessed such a scene as at the close of Quesada's eulogy upon the dead patriot, Mari." In a letter to The Peruna Medicine Company, written from Washington, D. C., Senor Quesada says:

"Peruna I can recommend as a very good medicine. It is an excellent strengthening tonic, and it is also an efficacious cure for the almost universal complaint of catarrh."—Gonzalo De Quesada.

Congressman J. H. Bankhead, of Alabama, one of the most influential members of the House of Representatives, in a letter written from Washington, D. C., gives his endorsement to the great catarrh remedy, Peruna, in the following words:

"Your Peruna is one of the best medicines I ever tried, and no family should be without your remarkable remedy. As a tonic and catarrh cure I know of nothing better."—J. H. Bankhead.

This great stock medicine is a money saver for stock raisers. It is a medicine, not a cheap food or condition powder. Though put up in coarser form than Theodor's Black-Draught, renowned for the cure of the digestion troubles of persons, it has the same qualities of invigorating digestion, stirring up the torpid liver and loosening the constipated bowels for all stock and poultry. It is carefully prepared and its action is so healthful that stock grow and thrive with an occasional dose in their food. It cures hog cholera and makes hogs grow fat. It cures chicken cholera and roup and makes hens lay. It cures constipation, distemper and colds in horses, murrain in cattle, and makes a draught animal do more work for the food consumed. It gives animals and fowls of all kinds new life. Every farmer and raiser should certainly give it a trial.

Mrs. Mabel Reynolds, the beloved daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Z. A. Hartsuff, died of neuralgia of the heart at her home in Seattle, Wash., Wednesday, April 12, aged 29 years. She was born in Unadilla Feb. 21, 1876, and lived here until Nov. 20, 1903, when she went to Redmond, Wash. On June 3, 1904, she was married to Barney C. Reynolds and moved to Seattle, where she lived until her death. She remains arrived at her old home Friday morning, April 21, accompanied by the bereaved husband. The funeral was held at the M. E. church Sunday, April 23, at 10:30 a. m. the service being conducted by Rev. G. W. Gordon. The L. O. T. M. M., of which she was a member, attended in a body and conducted their burial service. The attendance was the largest that ever gathered at a funeral in this place. When a young girl Mabel was converted and joined the M. E. church, of which she has since been a faithful member. During her illness she was attended by the best medical talent and everything was done for her that love could suggest or skill perform. Her gay spirit and unflinching generosity made her a great favorite with her young companions, and best of all her sunny temper, her frank, impulsive ways made her the light of home and the idol of the community. She was kind in word and deed to everyone. All who knew this bright young life have sorrowed at seeing its joyous light so early quenched in the dark waters of that river which every mortal must cross. At the funeral the floral designs were numerous and touchingly appropriate. Loving hands covered the white casket of the fair sleeper with these mute yet eloquent emblems of a deathless affection. She leaves a husband, father and mother, one sister and three brothers to mourn the loss of a kind and loving wife, daughter and sister, and may the bereaved husband, parents, sister and brothers see in these influences the type of that "Land of the Blest, where the flowers of earthly affection shall bloom in immortal beauty beside the crystal waters of the river of life, proceeding out of the throne of God."

We were treated to a running view of one of the new auto cars on its way to Waterloo last Tuesday. The car is for the bus line between Mason and Chelsea via Waterloo and is named the Waterloo. That much we made out as the car whizzed by at a rate of speed not much exceeding that of a trolley car. If it can make such speed at all times it will be a success so far as speed is concerned.
