HIS FAREWELL SERMON.

Rev. C. S. Jones Bade Farewell to Chelsea at Sunday Evening's Service.

The Congregational church, Chelsea, was never filled with so large a congregation on any occasion as it was Sunday evening, April 30, on the occasion of Rev. Carl S. Jones' last sermon in the church as its pastor. Out of deference to this fact the other Protestant churches in the village dispensed with their services and joined with their sister church in a union service. The church proper and the C. E. room were both filled to overflowing, the vestibule was filled and people even stood on the steps outside, unable to get in. On the platform with Mr. Jones were seated Revs. E. E. Caster, of the Methodist church, P. M. McKay, of the Baptist, and A. Schoen, of the Evangelical, all of whom took a part in the service. It was a beautiful, bright, cheerful service, yet tinged with a keynote of sadness at parting with a man whom nearly everyone was glad to hail as a friend, and who has been a power for good with his congregation and in the community.

All the ministers took some part in the service. The invocation was made by Rev. P. M. McKay. The scriptural lesson was read by Rev. C. S. Jones. It was from St. Paul's Epistle to the Thessalonians, that part of it which contains such touching words of cheerful farewell. The sermon was one of the best of the many splendid discourses that we have heard from the lips of our reverend friend and it was listened to with rapt attention by the large congregation. The prayer after the sermon was made by Rev. E. E. Caster, after which the beautiful hymn of farewell, "God be with you till we meet again," was sung by the choir and congregation, and the benediction was pronounced by Rev. A. Schoen.

During the service the choir sang some excellent selections and Miss Esther Schenk sang very prettily "The glory song."

At the close of the service Mr. Jones met everyone as they passed out of the door of the church and hearty hand clasps and earnest words were numerous as the people bade farewell to one of their favorite pastors and public speakers. It was estimated that fully 600 people were present at the service.

HINDELANG-SLOWEY.

Marriage of a Former Chelsea Boy at Albion.

A very pretty wedding occurred Tuesday, May 2, at St. John's church, Albion, when Miss Mary Eleanor Slowey, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Slowey, of that place, became the wife of Mr. John L. Hindelang, formerly of Chelsea.

The bride was attended by her sisters, the Misses Blanche and Isabelle Slowey, of Albion, and the groom by Messrs. Alphonsus Hindelang, of Chelsea, and John Frelinger, of Kalamazoo.

The bride was gowned in blue taffeta silk, Miss Blanch Slowey in brown silk and Miss Isabelle Slowey in pink silk voile.

After the ceremony was performed the guests repaired to the home of the bride's parents where a dainty wedding breakfast was served. The numerous and beautiful gifts attested to the esteem in which the young people were held by relatives and friends. Mr. and Mrs. Hindelang will be at home after May 20 at 208 Chestnut street, Albion.

Among the out of town guests were Mr. and Mrs. Edward Slowey, of Standish, Mr. John Frelinger and Mrs. Patrick Wall, of Kalamazoo, Mr. and Mrs. L. H. Hindelang, Miss Mary Hindelang and Mr. A. G. Hindelang, of Chelsea.

AFTER FASTER WEDDING.

Chas. E. Runciman and Miss Delia Mayer United at Waterloo.

A pretty after Easter wedding took place at the First U. B. church, Waterloo, Wednesday evening, April 26, when Mr. Charles A. Runciman, of Lyndon, and Miss Delia Mayer, of Waterloo, were united in marriage, Rev. F. B. Fowler performing the ring ceremony. The church was very nicely decorated, the draping being in white, the flowers used being Easter lilies, potted plants and ferns.

The bride was given away by her brother Mr. Louis Mayer. She was attended by Miss Edna Runciman, of Lyndon, as bridesmaid, and the groom's best man was Mr. Lawrence Quigley, of Waterloo. The bride was dressed in white silk, wore a bridal veil and carried a bouquet of Easter lilies. The bridesmaid's gown was of white mousseline de soie, and she carried a bouquet of pink carnations. As the bridal party entered the church Miss Inez Leek played Mendelssohn's Wedding March; she also played a pretty selection as they left the edifice.

Following the wedding ceremony came a wedding supper and reception at the home of the bride's mother Mrs. Mary Mayer, at which over 100 guests were present. The house was prettily decorated with Easter lilies and carnations.

The wedding presents were very numerous and beautiful, consisting mostly of silver and china ware, furniture, table linen, and articles of a useful nature.

Mr. and Mrs. Runciman have gone to housekeeping on his father's farm in Lyndon, residing in part of the homestead.

STATE NEWS

THE ALLEGED MURDERER IDENTIFIED BY A DEFORMED LITTLE FINGER.

KALAMAZOO HAS A SMALLPOX SCARE AND PUBLIC MEETINGS ARE OFF.

VARIOUS MATTERS OF INTEREST FROM ALL PARTS OF THE STATE BRIEFLY NOTED.

A Murder Mystery.

A murder mystery in which the alleged murderer was identified by means of a deformed little finger was reported to the Kalamazoo police Tuesday morning. Bert Miller, aged 28, who came from Battle Creek about two weeks ago, was found dead in his bed in a back room over a saloon on Rose street. His skull had been crushed in with some rather thin weapon and the bed was soaked with blood. Apparently Miller had been dead eight or nine hours when the case was reported. The room in which Miller's body was found is about 8x10 feet in size, with a low ceiling and very poorly furnished. There was a small opening like a place for a window looking into the hall just over the foot of the bed, but there was no window in this. It was here that the police found a clue which they hoped might reveal the murderer. The dust had accumulated deeply on this window ledge and right in the center of this was the imprint of a hand as though some one had leaned over to look down the hall to see if the coast was clear. This hand print showed plainly and the little finger was very clearly deformed and crooked. So the police went after a man with a crooked little finger.

Within three hours after the discovery of the murder the police had taken into custody on suspicion an aged man known as Milo Sexton, the husband of the woman of whom Miller rented his room. Developments followed thick and fast then, and it was shown that Sexton was none other than Milo Keep, who was recently released from Jackson prison after serving 10 years. He made love to the woman under the name of Milo Sexton. She did not learn of his identity until after their marriage and then he threatened her life repeatedly. Mrs. Sexton recently secured an injunction to compel him to leave her undisturbed and she also sent for Bert Miller, who was her nephew, the son of her sister, to live with her for protection.

Keep was arrested within a block of the scene of the murder. He had blood on his clothes and there was paint and marks on his boots such as might have been made by climbing a wire trellis, like that leading to the second story of the building in which the murder occurred. The records show that, under the name of Milo Sexton, Keep married the woman December 22, 1904. She began suit for divorce against him about a week ago, and in connection applied for injunction restraining him from visiting her. Mrs. Sexton says that her husband saw her Monday night and said to her, "If you don't drop the divorce suit against me I'll kill you."

Smallpox Epidemic.

The smallpox epidemic is becoming a serious menace in Kalamazoo and the abrogation of all public meetings is being advocated by cool headed citizens. Two high school pupils were taken ill with the dread disease within the past 24 hours and this in connection with the illness of two leading high school teachers is causing considerable alarm. Charles A. Carr was taken ill with smallpox Monday and removed to the detention hospital and the school board ordered the high school building to be closed. Tuesday Earle Goodenow, a high school senior, was also stricken and taken to the hospital. The situation is certainly more serious now than at any time and the most vigorous measures will have to be taken. Young Carr had the disease since Friday night and broke out with pustules on Monday morning, but did not go to a physician until Monday night. Carr carried a morning paper over the route on Saturday and Sunday mornings and it is feared that many exposures have resulted.

The Dundee Fire.

The worst fire that Dundee has experienced for many years occurred at noon Sunday when the Ann Arbor railway station and Frank Strong's grain elevator and feed mill were destroyed. Agent Ridge was building a fire in the waiting room and threw gasoline instead of kerosene on the kindling. He was badly burned, and before the alarm could be given the building was burning furiously and a high west wind had carried the flames across the tracks to the elevator and feed mill. A number of box cars on the side track, filled with merchandise, and the water tank were destroyed. The loss to the railway company is over $2,000, with no insurance, while Strong's loss is $15,000 or more, with $2,000 insurance.

Mrs. Frank Sheridan, of Pontiac, threw wood alcohol on the wood in her kitchen range to start a fire easily. She touched a match and in the resultant explosion she was completely covered with the blazing liquid. She rushed from the house completely enveloped in flames and screamed for help, but all of her clothing was burned off before a quilt could be thrown around her and the flames extinguished. She died in terrible agony in about three hours.

The cash balance in the state treasury at the close of business Saturday was $4,246,000.

A large granite monument is being put up for the late James Manning, who was one of the oldest residents of Clay township. He lived a hermit life, scarcely ever leaving his little shack. He was kept largely by friendly neighbors. He was 100 years old when he died.

The mystery in connection with the disappearance of Thomas Murphy, a well-known blacksmith of Saginaw 10 days ago, has been solved by the finding of his dead body in the river. He was 55 years of age, and leaves a widow. It is thought to be a case of accidental death.

Mrs. A. Hartzhorn, the woman from Holland, who has become a public charge on Kalamazoo county, because she refuses to work, gives as her reason that a lawyer refused to collect $150 for her from John Zourrijder, a young man whose passage she paid to this country.

The decomposed body of James Connell, a former bartender in Saratia, was found in the St. Clair river, below Stag Island, Sunday afternoon. He was one of the four men drowned last Thanksgiving night by the upsetting of a rowboat 50 feet from the Saratia ferry wharf, while they were on their way home on the night ferry.

MORE RIOTS

THE POLAND RIOTS WERE RUTHLESSLY QUELLED BY RUSSIAN TROOPS MONDAY.

THE RUSSIANS ARE GIVEN RELIGIOUS FREEDOM, A GREAT BOON TO MILLIONS.

LINEVITCH GOES ON A KISSING MISSION AND THE MEN WEPT.

Might Have Been Worse.

Bad as was the rioting at Warsaw, Lodz, Kallisz and other places in Poland Monday, and venomous as was the hostility everywhere displayed against the police and Russian authorities, the uprising was far less formidable and the results less bloody than anticipated. The authorities had given due warning of their intention to permit no demonstrations and the troops quelled the disturbances ruthlessly. All reports indicate that the demonstrations were comparatively few in number and that the vast bulk of the population fearing trouble remained indoors.

Kissed the Army.

A touching incident occurred during the Easter celebration at Gunshu Pass, Manchuria. After the morning service all the troops in the region around headquarters were drawn up in line before Gen. Linevitch's tent and the commander-in-chief came out, greeted the troops and passed down the line, saluting each and every soldier with a kiss. All the men were much moved and many wept. The incident served to increase their boundless worship of the old, gray leader.

Religious Freedom.

Real religious freedom conferred upon his subjects by Emperor Nicholas as an Easter gift is an historic event of the highest significance, in comparison with which the remission of millions of dollars of taxes to the peasantry, a long list of decorations and six pages of promotions of bureaucratic officials are hardly worth comment. Logically the emperor's action involves the complete reversal of the Russian policy of seeking national unity in conquered provinces in religious unity. He has accepted the axiom of the metropolitan Antonius: "You cannot hold strange children in the church against their will," and recognizes in religious variety good for the nation as well as for the church itself, a principle which, if acknowledged politically, would mean a federated Russia. The emperor's act will also affect about forty millions belonging to alien faiths, such as the Jews, Catholics and Lutherans of Poland and the Baltic provinces, the Protestants of Finland and the followers of Islam and Buddha in the Urals, the Crimea, the Caucasus, Turkestan and Central Asia. These figures are only approximate, as probably millions who are nominally orthodox secretly profess other religions. Whole villages of Mussulmans baptized into the orthodox communion by a ruse petitioned in vain to be permitted to return to Mohammedanism.

Russian Easter Day.

Easter day, Russia's greatest festival of joy and peace, was ushered in with none of the disorder and rioting that was predicted. As for centuries, throngs of the Russian faithful throughout the empire gathered at midnight in and around the cathedrals, churches and shrines to greet the risen Lord and to mark the end of the Lenten gloom and sadness of Passion week with illuminations, the pealing of bells and shouts of "Hallelujah, Christ is risen; He is risen indeed." Nothing could better illustrate the deep piety and devotion of the Russian folk than the universal participation in the midnight festival.

Though for days the people have been fed with rumors that terrorists and revolutionists intended to signalize the festival with a series of bomb outrages throughout the empire, no instance of such an attempt, which would be sure to bring down upon the party responsible the execration of the united Russian nation, has been reported, and it is believed the rumors were founded only on fears. The credulous authorities, however, took precautions on a grand scale as if the reports of plots to destroy the Easter gladness were really credited, and in St. Petersburg, Moscow and other affected centers strong forces of troops and police were held in readiness for any possible emergency.

Saved By Rain.

Heavy rain in Isoco county has extinguished the forest fires. Ossineke township was the heaviest loser, 500 cords of hardwood, value $1,200, having been destroyed on one farm. Many hundreds of rods of fence were burned. A vast amount of cedar and logs were saved in the nick of time by the united efforts of the farmers. The long drought is now over and the farmers are happy.

William Plankinton is dead in Milwaukee, Wis., aged 60. Leaves $15,000,000.

Hank Essler, just dead in Prairie du Chien, Wis., aged 107, was cutting his third set of teeth when he died.

After July 1 trading stamps in Nebraska will be redeemable in money under a law passed at the recent session of the legislature of that state.

Frank Teppoert, of Bay City, was repairing the roof of his barn last October, when he was precipitated to the ground. He lost his $65 watch. Saturday, when he removed a board from the building which he had been working on, he found it. The timepiece had been exposed to the weather all winter, and yet when wound up ran as good as ever.

THE STATE LEGISLATURE.

The legislators who have been in Detroit superintending the judicial recount are of the opinion that adjournment of the legislature is not more than 30 days distant and that some kind of a primary reform measure will be adopted. Both W. C. McMillan and Senator Alger have expressed their confidence that the legislature can be relied on to pass a satisfactory bill, and the senator adds: "The responsibility rests with the legislature, and we are in duty bound to give the measure a fair trial, though, personally, I have some doubts that it will prove as successful as its exponents believe."

One of the most important and revolutionary election bills yet offered in this session of the legislature is that of Rep. Nate Lovell, of Berrien county, and may be said to be a direct result of the Wayne county judicial recount revelation. The bill is to abolish the cross to signify the party the voter casts his ballot for and requires the voter to mark separately name of each candidate he desires to vote for. The bill follows the law of Rhode Island and other states.

The house by a vote of 82 to 8, passed Rep. Eichhorn's bill vesting interurban electric railroads with the power of eminent domain. There is no provision in the bill to burden the roads with the reciprocal obligations of common carriers, and the chances are that the farmer legislators who voted for the bill will have to make some explanations to their constituents when promoters begin to lay out lines through peach orchards and push hay stacks back a dozen rods or more. Rep. Greusel, of Wayne, sounded an alarm and on account of the new principle that was to be established in the state, wanted the bill sent to the committee on private corporations for further discussion, but his motion was voted down. The farmers desired the bill, and the house passed it.

The bill as reported by the committee did not suit the members from the upper peninsula, where there are vested rights of the mining corporations to protect. So at the request of several upper peninsula members an amendment was inserted providing that electric roads shall acquire no rights in mineral lands beneath the surface, and that mining companies shall not be bound to protect the roads from the disasters of a cave-in.

Representative McKay, of Tuscola, has introduced a joint resolution proposing an amendment to the constitution to limit the sessions of the legislature to 100 days. If such an amendment carried it would close off the talking about April 10 of each session.

Beginning May 2, the house will hold morning and afternoon sessions in an effort to pave the way for an early adjournment.

A bill introduced by Senator Jones would abolish the fee system of compensation for circuit court commissioners which is in vogue in many counties of the state, and places such officials on a salary ranging from $400 to $1,100 a year, according to the size of their counties. The Wayne commissioners are already on a salary basis.

Two Towns Ruined.

Twenty-one persons were killed and scores injured in Laredo and in New Laredo, Texas, by a tornado which tore through the cities late Friday night, crossing the Rio Grande. Rumors of others killed in places outside Laredo, lack confirmation. The property damage is large. A trip through Laredo fails to show a block which has not suffered from the storm. Trees, fences, telegraph and telephone poles, corrugated roofs, chimneys and walls and debris of all kinds strewn the streets. Conditions in New Laredo, across the Rio Grande, are similar to those existing on this side. It is not definitely known how many dead or injured there are in New Laredo. When the storm struck Laredo the huts occupied by the poorer classes were razed, and as the wind increased in force, the more substantially constructed buildings were unroofed and in many cases were demolished. Lightning flashed vividly and continuously, adding to the fears of the people. The storm lasted about one hour.

Cossacks Killed Strikers.

Troops and strikers clashed at Czestochowa (142 miles from Warsaw), near the frontier of Silesia. Four strikers were killed and over a score were wounded by volleys fired by the infantry. The trouble began when the police arrested a number of workmen. As a protest all the workmen struck today and a crowd gathered and demanded the release of the men arrested. A large force of Cossacks and infantry was assembled and the strikers were ordered not to advance. The latter refused to obey, placed women in front of their line and came on. The Cossacks thereupon charged and dispersed the mob. One of the strikers fired a revolver and then the infantry advanced and fired several volleys as the crowd retreated. Czestochowa is an old, historical city and has a population of about 30,000.

LATE NEWS

RIOTING AND BLOODSHED MARKS THE CHICAGO TEAMSTERS' GREAT STRIKE.

SEVERAL LABOR LEADERS ARE INDICTED ON CHARGES OF CONSPIRACY.

STRIKERS APPEAL TO THE PRESIDENT WHO WILL RECEIVE THEIR PETITION.

Chicago Strike.

Twelve labor leaders, prominently identified with the teamsters' strike now in progress in Chicago, were indicted Saturday night by a grand jury. This was the last day's session of the present jury, and the indictments were returned to Judge McEwen just before the jury adjourned. Each indictment contains six counts and charges the men with conspiracy. Bills were returned against the following: Cornelius P. Shea, president of the International Teamsters' union; Hugh McGee, president of the Truck Drivers' union; Jeremiah McCarthy, business agent of the Truck Drivers' union; M. F. Kelly, president of the Market Drivers' union; Charles Wilbrandt, secretary of the Teamsters' joint council; George F. Golden, president of the Packing House Teamsters' union; James B. Barry, president of the Railroad Express Drivers' union; John Smyth, president of the Coal Drivers' union; Harry Lapp, business agent of the Coal Drivers' union; Charles Doid, president of the Chicago Federation of Labor; Steven Sumner, president of the Milk Drivers' union; J. W. Young, business agent of the Baggage and Parcel Drivers' union.

The employers' association issued a formal statement of the issue at stake, as seen from the standpoint of its members. The statement declared that between the teamsters' union and the employers, a contract forbidding sympathetic strikes existed and that it has been violated by the union.

Fighting in the streets Saturday was the most vicious since the beginning of the strike. Three persons were shot, two were stabbed and fully a score suffered bruises and scalp wounds. It is not expected that any one of the injured will die.

Wholesale importation of non-union men from St. Louis and the arrival of "strike breaker" Farley from New York gave a new turn Monday to the teamsters' strike in Chicago. Immediately on his arrival Farley had a conference with representatives of the employers. Plans for putting him in charge of all "strike breakers" were said to have been decided on. Farley managed the men in the New York subway strike. Non-union men in forces said to be almost unprecedented are on their way to Chicago. President Roosevelt has agreed to give the Chicago striking teamsters an opportunity to present their petition when he reaches Chicago on May 10.

Bloodshed and rioting again Tuesday marked the progress of the teamsters' strike in Chicago. Strikers attacked a party of negro strike-breakers on Wabash avenue and gave several of them severe beatings. Henry Schultz, a striker, was seriously shot during the melee. Employers demanded that team owners make deliveries to boycotted stores. If they do so 5,000 more strikers will strike. One hundred strike-breakers struck when they fused rifles for self-protection.

EXILED QUEEN'S DILEMMA.

The former ruler of the island of Madagascar, who is forced by France to live in exile in Algeria, has petitioned the Governor for an increased allowance, claiming that she has barely enough to keep herself and entourage from starvation. Seek the Bermudas

(Special Correspondence.)

Increasing Number of Tourists find Health and Pleasure in These Beautiful Islands.

American pleasure seekers have at last discovered Bermuda. The first considerable winter emigration was made recently on the Bermudian, whose arrival at Hamilton marked an epoch, it is asserted, in the history of the island. Half the population of the colony from St. George's to Somerset was assembled on Front street to see the new boat warp up in the dock. The passengers, who had left New York in a snowstorm, walked off into the bright, sunny, flower-scented air and saw all the flags ashore flying to welcome the new boat that brought them. While the Bermudian lay two days at dock a dinner and a reception were given on board.

It is now the height of the winter season in Bermuda. The bi-weekly dances at the hotels are beginning, and the gaiety of social and outdoor life is increasing. Golf, sailing and swimming, excursions to the reefs and to the deep sea coral gardens in the clear waters, yachting in the great sound and exploration of the island, riding driving and walking occupy the visitor from the frozen north. There are fewer invalids in Bermuda this year and more active outdoor people than ever before. There are many students of nature on sea and shore, taking their pleasure in leisurely observation of the wonders of the coral reefs or botanizing or studying birds or fishes.

Pleasure for Biologists.

The Bermuda Marine Biological Station, incorporated by the Colonial legislature under the auspices of the local Natural History Society, is another source of attraction. This internationally useful station is destined to make the Summer Islands popular. It was started by Prof. Bristol of New York university, who introduced the angel fish, the moon fish and other picturesque Bermuda fishes into the aquarium at the Battery. With Prof. C. L. Mark of Harvard university, he has already led fifty American biologists and teachers, men and women, of twenty-eight different states, in six weeks of summer study in the rich marine fields of these islands; one may almost live on the water and in the water during all the year. The United States consul, Mr. Maxwell Greene, and the local secretary, Mr. Goodwin Gosling, are other leaders in the movement which attracts students of marine biology to the mid-Atlantic, as Louis Agassiz first led them out from New England's shore to the island. The Bermudians expect to provide camps and cottages for hundreds of such visitors in future years, as well as for those who come for pleasure or fish.

A new excursion steamer to run to Castle Island and to other romantic and little known beauty spots of the island is being put in order and made ready for Mr. W. B. Smith, who prepared the unique distilling ship that distilled tens of thousands of gallons of sea water every day for the forty-five hundred Boer prisoners of war who spent a year or so on the islands of the Great Sound during and after the war in South Africa. Eight of those Boers are still in Bermuda, at Sunnyslands, irconciliable, who refuse to sign allegiance to Great Britain and go to their distant home.

The winter visitors sail out to and about the islands where the Boer prisoners lived. The places where they dwelt in tents have become one of the sights to show to tourists. But those eight men at Sunnyslands work for their daily bread with their hands a little band that will not give in.

Roses and Lilies in Bloom.

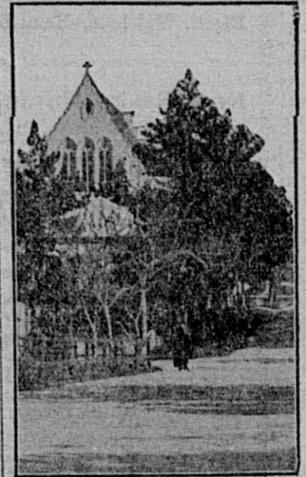

Here there are a hundred varieties of roses in bloom, and by next week fore you alone that fascinates one in Bermuda. There is besides the charm of the light on the white roofs of the little homes, or the large ones that cuddle among the cedars and palmettos and thickets of oleander trees or behind high hedges of scarlet hibiscus in bloom.

Peace and plenty abound in Bermuda. There is no bitter poverty in the islands; there are no slums. Cleanliness and good nourishment have prevented contagion. The Bermudians are much of one family in mutual interest and good will. As all the world knows, they are descendants of the English, who settled these islands in Shakespeare's time, and the colored population about them are descendants of those blacks brought here by their ancestors from the West Indies before the days of Wilberforce. There is no better community of colored people on earth—law abiding, civil, courteous, many of them studious or desirous of education for their children.

Paradise for Children.

Bermuda is a paradise for children of all nationalities. They need never be within doors. Most of them learn to swim soon after they learn to walk. Army and navy mothers are always glad to be stationed where they can turn their little ones out in the gardens of the white-roofed villas of the isles. Few American children are to be seen as yet, but when you find one at play or at school it is with the usual infantile record of exemption from childish ailments or of those of very light and slight duration.

Visitors usually love or hate Bermuda. Those who experience the second emotion have spent only a week or two during a rainy spell, when the wind was blowing. It can rain and the wind can blow in Bermuda. It is about seven hundred miles straight out in the ocean from Cape Hatteras, as well as seven hundred miles on the other deep sea angle from New York. When Ariel has twisted all the airs into hard knots of Hatteras he makes for the Bermudas and unearls those airs and sets them loose to rattle things about in the island. The island is nearly always a place of peace, and sometimes the sea all the way across the gulf stream is a calm as any river.

One might never know that it is winter in Summer island. Girls and women go about in white dresses whenever the sun shines again after a shower. The moonlight lends a peculiar charm to this winter resort. The sanitary regulation requires the roofs of all buildings to be white and to be washed frequently. The rain caught from these roofs in great tanks and cisterns constitutes the domestic water supply, and the insuring of its purity by the whitewash regulation furnishes the condensed essence of poetry on a moonlight night.

THE NEWPORT COMPASS.

Because Conductor Bale, of the Detroit, Monroe & Toledo electric line, forgot that Saturday there was half-hour service on the line, two cars crashed together just north of Newport village. One man was killed, another so badly hurt that his death will result, and half a score of others are more or less seriously injured. Ordinarily the cars on the line run but once an hour, but Saturday half-hourly service was instituted. The regular meeting place of cars is at the first switch north of the village, but with the half-hourly schedule it is necessary for them to pass each other on the switch in the village. Orders had been given to the conductors of both No. 507 and No. 517 to meet in Newport. No. 517, southbound, was therefore hurrying at full speed toward the village. No. 507 stopped in the village, but instead of waiting as he should have done, Conductor Bale gave his motorman the bell to go ahead. The motorman turned on the power and had gotten but a short distance out of the village when, rounding a curve, he saw No. 517 coming toward him. There is a double curve at this spot, and it is impossible to see more than half a dozen car lengths ahead. The front compartment of the southbound car was smashed to splinters, and Harry R. Wheeler, of Detroit, who was sitting in it, was injured so badly that he died shortly after being removed from the wreck. The injured are:

Frank Carmon, of Monroe, motorman of car No. 517; leg broken and injured internally; will die.

Allen Mulholland, conductor No. 517, badly injured about the face and body.

Joseph Strike, South Rockwood, leg broken and injured about the body.

John Marx, of Wyandotte, face cut and ribs broken.

Morgan Levy, of Toledo, side injured; left leg fractured.

Thomas H. Heale, Monroe, face badly cut.

S. A. Bone, Pontiac, skull fractured.

James Kaminski, Detroit, hands and arms cut.

Robert Peterson, Addison, serious scalp wounds.

Miss Tillie Knapp, Monroe, leg injured.

John Godkin, colored, Detroit, gash over left eye.

S. E. Kemp, colored, Detroit, knee cap split.

Mrs. L. Hall, Plymouth, injured internally.

NEW COMPASS CARD

Naval Officer's Invention, It is Believed, Will Simplify Maritime Problems

It is an age of reform and reform has even struck the sailor's guiding light, the Mariner's compass. After having stood the test of ages and guided millions of ships in the way they ought to go, a proposition is made to revolutionize this cardinal safeguard of the maritime world. The proposed change will lessen the difficulties that beset the compass card which has been in use for centuries. This card is marked by 32 points, 8 for each quadrant of the circle. Most people have heard a sailor rattle over the names of these points, just as a child does his A, B, C's, an exercise technically known as "boxing the compass," and without knowing which no man can claim to be a sailor. To an ordinary man it sounds like a jumble of norths, easts, souths and wests interspersed by halves and quarters. The proposed change among other things would greatly simplify this process.

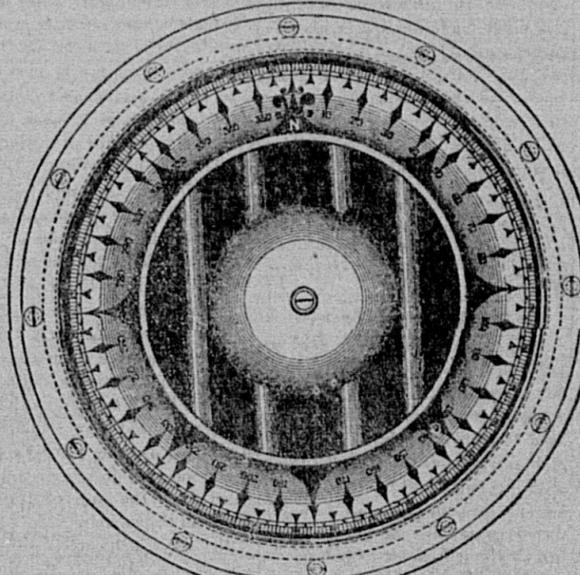

The new compass card has been designed by Lieutenant Commander S. W. B. Diehl, U. S. N., superintendent of compasses in the Bureau of Equipment, Navy Department, Washington. It is graduated in a circle of degrees continuously from 9 degrees at the north to 360 degrees, omitting the present system of points. The circumference of the card is subdivided into divisions of 10 degrees, accentuated by heavy lines on the graduated rim and by the necessary geometric figures on the card, each ten-degree division being indicated in figures of its number from 9 or north. Each ten-degree division is subdivided into half and quarter divisions appropriately marked.

Every fifth degree line of the graduated circle between the ten degree divisions is marked in figures indicating that one division is equal to 10 degrees, half a division to 5 degrees and a quarter division to 2.5 degrees. Each division is a multiple of ten and it is further stated that the easterly and westerly deviations are far more easily calculated than in the present system.

The proposed change would give courses and bearings in degrees instead of points. Some changes would also have to be made in the azimuth and other tables, but others could be entirely eliminated. It is claimed on behalf of the proposed card that its marking as described would result in greater accuracy in navigation, so far as the compass goes. Courses would be laid far more accurately than under the present system. For instance, the course of SW. by W. 1/4 West, "a little westerly," would be reduced to the exact course of 240 degrees. Chances of error in the application of the deviation to compass courses would be lessened. The conversion of points into degrees and degrees into points would be entirely eliminated. "Boxing the compass" could be learned in a few minutes by any layman of average intelligence. Sailing directions would be simplified and all compass work would be facilitated by the new system.

While the compass card to-day is practically that of by-gone ages, so far as its points go, the needle differs a good deal from the one whose variation scared the sailors of Columbus. It consists of several parallel needles, bundles of needles or strips of steel attached to the under surface of the card, the latter being frequently made of aluminum. In the "dry" compass the whole revolves on a sapphire cap set upon a sapphire point. In the "wet" compass the bowl contains a ing its proper number from 0, or north. The cardinal and intercardinal directions are emphasized in geometric figures.

The object of the proposed change is to omit the present system of points and fractions and to use degrees solely. The present card consists of points and degrees. The conversion of one into the other is a natural result of the presence of both, but it is not a necessity, as would be speedily recognized were the points omitted. Accuracy requires expression in degrees for courses, bearings and compass errors, and not in points, the use of the latter being a duplication of work.

The present card of 360 degrees is divided into 32 points. One of these is equal to 11.25 degrees; a half point is equal to 5.625 degrees and a quarter point to 2.8125 degrees, the graduated circle being marked in degrees in each quadrant from 0 degree north and south to 90 degrees at east and west.

In the proposed card the 360 degrees are divided into 36 divisions, so mixture of alcohol and water, which helps to lessen the friction on the point and also to counteract the motion of the ship when at sea.

It is a rather singular fact that while the magnetic qualities of the loadstone are said to have been known to the Chinese 2,000 years before the Christian era, and in Europe about the twelfth century, little more is known about the dip and variation of the needle than in the days of Columbus. Modern science has defined certain lines of equal declination, or variation, as sailors call it, in both hemispheres, but there is nothing actually known of the cause of the phenomenon. Why the needle for a series of years should trend to the eastward for a certain number of degrees, then return to the pole and trend for several more years to the westward is a problem that has yet to be solved.

NEW FIELD FOR YOUNG WOMEN

Comparatively Short Course Makes Trained Attendants of Them.

The young man in chambers and the young woman in her tiny flat are subject to ailments like the rest of mankind, says a writer in Leslie's Weekly. They are very likely living alone, without relatives or near friends to help them, and they cannot afford to either house a professional nurse or to pay her price. Many of these, with a natural shrinking from a hospital, are grateful for the services of a trained attendant who lives in her own place and attends by the day or week.

This comparatively new profession opens up a large and, so far, uncrowded field for the young woman whom nature has not endowed with a special talent for anything else, and who needs must become a servant, a shop girl and young women an opportunity, and also to supply the demand for trained attendants in homes of both rich and poor, training schools have been established in several large cities under the auspices of the Young Women's Christian association. The original school of this nature is in Boston, the largest and most efficient in Manhattan, with an auxiliary in Brooklyn

"SETTLER" FOR THE PARSON.

Pleasant Remark and Reply Ended the Conversation.

Some sixty years ago the Rev. Jacob C. Goss accepted a call to the pastorate of the Congregational Church in Sanford, Maine. Mr. Goss went to board with Deacon William L. Emery pending the arrival of his household goods. The deacon was a manufacturer of tinware, and had in his employ a man named James Mitchell, who was better known as "Uncle Jim." He was a taciturn old fellow and the terror of the small boys in the neighborhood.

One day the deacon invited the minister to take a ride around the village to see the sights, and together they went to the tinshop, where the deacon requested him to remain till he harnessed the horse. "Uncle Jim" was busy at the bench and the parson watched him for a few minutes, and as "Uncle Jim" did not speak the parson thought he would relieve the monotony of the situation by a little pleasantry, so he remarked: "Mr. Mitchell, aren't you afraid I shall steal your trade?"

"I'd a d—d sight quicker think you'd steal my tools," replied the imperious James.

The parson walked away and made no further effort to become acquainted with the deacon's hired man.

FATHER OF PRESSED STEEL.

Philadelphia Cooper Led by Accident to Inaugurate Great Industry.

The pressed steel industry, which is one of the largest in the country today, was born in a little cooper shop not far from St. John and Buttonwood streets, in Philadelphia.

Charles J. Schoen, who is literally the father of this business, was engaged in Philadelphia following the occupation of a cooper and presided over a little plant at which he constituted the entire force of workmen.

While doing this he conceived the idea of making a doorstop for railroad cars, which at once forced itself into popularity with carbuilders and was generally adopted. It was an instant success, for the reason that it was extremely simple and at the same time effective, holding the door open by a spring in the floor of the car.

The demand for these devices soon overtaxed the capacity of the little cooper shop and in casting about for some quicker means of making the things the idea of pressing them out of steel was hit upon. From this humble beginning pressed steel was soon found available for other purposes in carbuilding, and to-day the entire freight car, including the wheels, is made in this manner, no wood entering into the construction whatever.

A Great Discovery.

Clayton, Tex., May 1st.—(Special)—That a genuine cure for Diabetes has been discovered is the opinion of Mr. J. H. Bailey of this place. Speaking of the matter, Mr. Bailey says:

"I believe Dodd's Kidney Pills is the best remedy for Diabetes and the only one that has ever been discovered that will cure Diabetes.

"I have a genuine case of Diabetes. I have taken seven boxes of Dodd's Kidney Pills and am still taking them. They have helped me so much that I am now up and able to work some. I believe that if I had conformed strictly to a Diabetes diet I would now have been completely cured."

Dodd's Kidney Pills have cured hundreds of cases of Diabetes and never once failed. It is an old saying that what will cure Diabetes will cure any form of Kidney Disease and that's just exactly what Dodd's Kidney Pills do. They cure all kidney diseases from Backache to Bright's Disease.

Tired Nervous

When you feel languid, tired, nervous and irritable, your vitality is low—your supply of nerve energy exhausted, and your system running down for lack of power,

The organs of the body are working poorly, or not at all, and you are not getting the nourishment needed. This soon impoverishes the blood and instead of throwing off the impurities, distributes it all through the body. This brings disease and misery.

Feed the nerves with Dr. Miles' Nerve, a nerve food, a nerve medicine, that nourishes and strengthens the nerves, and see how quickly you will get strong and vigorous.

"My wife suffered with nervousness previous to a recent attack of typhoid fever, but after her recovery from the fever, she was much worse, and could hardly control herself, being exceedingly nervous when the least excited. She was very restless at night, and never had a good night's rest. She also suffered much from nervous headache. Dr. Miles' Nerve was recommended by a friend. After the first three doses she had a good night's rest, and at the end of the first week's treatment she was wonderfully improved. Continued use of Nerve has completed her entire cure."

The Late Mrs. H. M. Twamley.

Mrs. Henry M. Twamley died at the home of her daughter Mrs. Fred Glenn, at North Lake, Thursday, April 27, after a lingering illness, aged 66 years and 8 days. The funeral services were held Saturday morning, conducted by Rev. G. W. Gordon, and the remains were interred beside those of her husband in Oak Grove cemetery, Chelsea.

Lorraine Eugenia Peatt was born in Scio April 19, 1841, her father Thomas Peatt being the miller at Dexter for many years. New Year's day, 1867, she was married to Henry M. Twamley and went to live on the farm at North Lake, which was their home until they moved to Chelsea in 1894. Mr. Twamley died in March, 1902, and since then Mrs. Twamley had divided her time between living at her home here and visiting her son and daughter.

Two children, Harry Twamley, of Detroit, and Mrs. Tirzah E. Glenn, of North Lake, survive her, also a sister Mrs. Sarah Gill, of Detroit, and two half brothers Jay Peatt, of Dexter, and George Peatt, of Webster.

Mrs. Twamley united with the Methodist church in early life, and was for many years a Sunday school worker and teacher, a work which she loved. She was a good friend and a kind neighbor and there are many who sincerely regret her death.

"I Thank the Lord!"

Rev. and Mrs. C. S. Jones Handsomely Remembered at Their Farewell Reception.

The farewell reception tendered to Rev. and Mrs. C. S. Jones at the Congregational church, Chelsea, Friday evening, April 28, was a largely attended and representative gathering of all classes, conditions and creeds, and it was a pleasing testimonial of the worth and popularity of the reverend gentleman and his wife and family, who have made their home among us for the past six years and over, but who have now gone to a more extended field of labor in a southern clime at Webster Groves, St. Louis, Mo.

The reception was a delightfully informal affair and the utmost spirit of good will and cordiality prevailed. A pleasing episode was when Rev. F. A. Stiles called Mr. and Mrs. Jones to take a seat in front of the people present, who gathered in a circle around them. Then in fitting words, in which he spoke of Mr. Jones' career in Chelsea—as a minister who preached the word of Christ crucified, as a friend to all, as a man whose character was above reproach, as a worker for all that is good and ennobling—he presented that gentleman, in the name of and with the good wishes of his numerous friends, with a beautiful solid gold case open faced Elgin movement watch, and on behalf of his companions of Olive Chapter, No. 633, R. A. M., with a gold mounted keystone charm. The intrinsic value of the articles was $60, but their value to Mr. Jones will be incalculable, bearing as they do the imprint of the warm friendly feeling that exists towards him in Chelsea. The watch and charm were both purchased of A. E. Winans, the jeweler, and are beautiful specimens of the jeweler's handicraft.

Mr. Jones was completely taken off his feet at the speech and presentation, but he did manage to briefly thank his friends for their kind gifts, feelingly referring to the many days they had spent together in gladness and in sorrow, in health and in sickness. He thanked them one and all for their uniform and unfailing kindness to himself and family and with the request that they would excuse him from further remarks as his heart was too full, he commended them all to the care of Him who doeth all things well.

Mr. Jones had scarcely seated himself before Mrs. D. C. McLaren moved forward and with a few gracefully spoken words, on behalf of the ladies of the church and community, presented Mrs. Jones with a handsome set of solid silver teaspoons, expressing the hope that when she used them she would sometimes think of the friends she left behind in Chelsea.

Mrs. Jones returned her sincere thanks to the kind donors for their beautiful gift, in a few words.

During the evening light refreshments of ice cream and cake were served and it was a late hour in the evening before all had made their farewells to Mr. and Mrs. Jones and had separated for their several homes.

Walter J. Snyder, secretary of the Detroit Driving Club, announces that Michigan's two classic events, the $10,000 Merchants' and $5,000 Chamber of Commerce pacing stakes have filled beyond expectation. A total of thirty-five responded to the call for entries in the Blue Ribbon classics—twenty-three in the M. and M. and twelve in the C. of C. Michigan is represented in the M. and M. by Nanco entered by Muir & Rooks, of Grand Rapids. As usual the best horses in are numbered among those entered and next July when the bell rings the greatest race ever witnessed should be the result.

BLOOD DISEASES CURED

Drs. K. & K. Established 25 Years.

He was surprised at how the sores healed—I took your New Method Treatment for a serious blood disease with which I had been afflicted for twelve years. I had consulted a score of physicians, taken all kinds of blood medicine, visited Hot Springs and other mineral water resorts, but only got temporary relief. They would help me for a time, but after discontinuing the medicines the symptoms would break out again—running sores, blotches, rheumatic pains, looseness of the hair, swelling of the glands, palms of the hands scaling, itchingness of the skin, dyspeptic stomach, etc. I had given up in despair when a friend advised me to consult you, as you had cured him of a similar disease 8 years ago. I had no hope, but took his advice. In three weeks' time the sores commenced to heal up and I became encouraged. I continued the New Method Treatment for four months and at the end of that time every symptom had disappeared. I was cured 7 years ago and no signs of any disease since. My boy, three years old, is sound and healthy. I certainly can recommend your treatment with all my heart. You can refer any person to me privately, but you can use this testimonial as you wish." W. Man's Unreasonableness is often as great as woman's, but Thos. S. Austin, manager of the "Republican," of Leavenworth, Ind., was not unreasonable when he refused to allow the doctors to operate on his wife for female trouble. "Instead," he says, "we concluded to try Electric Bitters. My wife was then so sick she could hardly leave her bed and five (5) physicians had failed to relieve her. After taking Electric Bitters she was perfectly cured and can now perform all her household duties." Guaranteed by Bank Drug Store; price 50c.

CHAPTER XXII.—Continued.

I sat down on the boulder outside of the postern gate. How long ago it seemed—though in reality not so many weeks—since I had sat in that same place, and unconsciously I assumed the same attitude of that other time when I had watched and waited even as a Silivus for his Phoebe. Here Nell Gwyn, in all a serving maid's masquerade, had purposely surprised me. Had I then seen her as I did later up the stage doing her infatigable mimicry I had not been so taken in, for once seen she was never to be mistaken for anyone else.

I called to mind another and a prettier picture—sweet Rosemary in her farthingales! Rosemary (had ever name so pleasant a sound?) as she appeared when I killed her falcon. Some day she should have another like unto it, I thought fondly, and my lips curved as I recalled how she had flouted me. The rose in her hair had faded in beauty beside her, its cream tint not so delicate as the skin which it caressed.

I heard a little quivering sigh or sob. It was so like that other day of which I was thinking that I started up. There in the pathway she stood; out of the mist she grew, until from a wreath in pale ceremonies she came to be Rosemary of flesh and blood. Rosemary with eager eyes dilated and hands fluttering toward me.

"You!" she whispered. "They told me you were dead."

"Quick enough, love," I cried, as I took her trembling hands in mine and drew her to my breast. For a moment she lay there.

"I felt you were alive," she cried joyfully. "Would earth be so sweet if you were dead? Oh, no! I told myself so again and again, while I yet chided myself for being gay when they assured me that you were no more!"

I would have taken her again to my heart, but she held me off.

"You are pale and thin—you have been ill?" she asked.

"We Feltons are not loath to stand up before one we deem our enemy—but we could not strike a blow in the dark."

"No doubt of that, love," I said to still her suspicions, which, while she yet silenced, cut her to the heart; "witness how a slender youth stood before my long arm and rapier, and made me do penance for the killing of a falcon."

"Yes," she cried, throwing off her depression; "and to think you did not recognize me. I trembled in my boots for fear you might. The next time when Neil and I were at the White Swan and passed you, we were on our guard, for from the window we had seen you enter the court yard. Immediately I gave the order for our coach to be gotten ready, although we had intended to rest there most of the day. How we chuckled when you let us go, for in my pocket snug and safe lay the little paper you had won in so disgraceful a manner—sic, sir, how could you?" She shook her finger at me, and before I could reply in a manner that permitted of no words, she added: "I thought, we shall see whether Mister Quentin Waters gets so much enjoyment out of that piece of paper as he expects to in London town. I will acknowledge, sir, that I did not love you then."

"And I loved you from the first moment my eyes lighted upon you," I said, reproachfully.

"And I, sir, I know not when," she said. "There is an old verse, old but true; I have oft heard it. I will repeat it for you:

"Pray how comes love,
Love comes unsought, unmet,
Pray how goes love?
That was not love that went."

"Now it is proverbially known that we Feltons are good haters, still this is the time when the exception proves the rule, I began by being angry with you about the falcon, and when I found the paper on the floor—oh, I assure you I was wild! I decided to punish you by not letting you know

she led the way through a disused kitchen and I followed. We met no one. The few servants were busy in the rear. We could hear them talking as we mounted the staircase. We had hardly reached the landing when Rosemary cried:

"Quick, in here."

She opened the door of a large room and we passed hurriedly in. Then I heard the sound of a man's heavy tread. She pushed me behind a hanging arras and stepped beside me, pulling the curtains together. I could almost hear her heart beat.

"I say you do wrong," said a high voice. It was Lady Dwight who was speaking. "I care not if he is my son—you shall not force her into a distasteful marriage—I shall not consent to it."

"Wrong! not at all, Madame," the strenuous voice of Lord Felton replied. "You should be pleased—she will bring to your empty coffers much gold."

His tone was ironical in the extreme.

"Gold—gold is not all in this world, let me tell you, my Lord Felton," she said. "Moreover, it is outrageous to keep us here in this ruinous old place. The damp is like to kill us—I feel a twinge of rheumatism yesterday."

"I am sorry, Madame," he said politely. "Why need you stay? The door is open."

Sanile Conceit.

James B. Hammond of New York, the noted typewriter inventor, was describing a conceited man.

"He is as conceited," Mr. Hammond said, "as an old fellow who lived in Germany while I was a student at the University of Halle."

"This old fellow sat one night in conversation with a group of men, and the talk turned to greatness."

"Numerous instances were mentioned in proof of the fact that the great die young. Finally it was agreed that there was more truth in this claim than there is in most proverbs."

"Yes," said the leading spirit of the party. "It ought to be a proverb, for it is true. The great die young. There is no doubt of it. The great, alas, die young."

"The old man, who had sat silent and impatient for a long time, now spoke up:

"If I'm not dead already, is it my fault?" he said.

Farming in the White House.

Mrs. Jackson died just before the general's first administration, and during the eight years that he was at the White House he practically managed the plantation himself from Washington, says Oliver Bronson Capen in Country Life in America. As a farmer Andrew Jackson was more successful than George Washington, and as a breeder of horses he was more successful than Henry Clay. And yet, so great were his achievements in pursuits as far removed from the pastoral as the poles, that popular tradition does not reckon with one of the most important sides of his character. Lawyer, politician, judge, statesman, soldier—closer to his heart than all these were a country home and a farm.

"It was valuable to me," I said. "You would keep it?" she asked jealously.

"Indeed I would, if I could but find it," I answered.

"Do you know who wrote it?" she questioned.

"No," I replied. "My father gave it to me to find out, if possible, the writer—it is strange where it could have disappeared to."

"I am sure I could not have lost it," she affirmed. "I slept with it attached to a slender chain about my neck."

"You are sure you never laid it down?" I still persistently inquired.

"Yes, sure," she began, and then stopped. "Once, now I remember, while at my bath it lay for a few moments on my dressing table," she added.

"Could anyone have entered your room then?" I asked.

"No one but my maid or Aunt Elaine," she admitted.

"Then rest assured that one or the other of them have it," I returned.

"What would either of them want with that old love letter?" she said; "besides I heard no one at the time."

"You say that Lady Dwight is with you?" I said. "I must see her at once—I have a message from the dead which admits of no delay—I have also to claim Raoul Dwight as a brother."

"Brother!" she exclaimed.

"Yes," I nodded. "Let us hasten to the Castle—too long has this news been on the way—there you shall learn all."

"It is dangerous," she returned; "for if the men see you they would set upon you and—" she shuddered.

"I shall try to hold my own," I grimly said; "but against Raoul Dwight I will never lift hand nor sword—I would be no second Cain."

"Ah, you would not, but would not he?" she asked. "He hates you!"

"Yes," I sighed, "we were ever biting and snarling. I would I had known sooner that he was my brother. I long to take his hand in good fellowship."

"With him love and hate war equally, as good and evil do, but then, you must remember he thinks he loves me," she whispered.

"I would he did not—I would he did not," I said. "Then it would be comparatively easy sailing. He would understand when he knew all. But how can he help it?" I looked at her with all a lover's fondness. I deemed the world might envy me and with cause.

She laughed deliciously at my look, whereat I took her into my arms and lifted her high (I was not such a weakling but I could do that) and kissed her lingeringly on her mouth.

"Come let us to Lady Dwight," I said soberly, when I had put her down.

She led the way through a disused kitchen and I followed. We met no one. The few servants were busy in the rear. We could hear them talking as we mounted the staircase. We had hardly reached the landing when Rosemary cried:

"Quick, in here."

She opened the door of a large room and we passed hurriedly in. Then I heard the sound of a man's heavy tread. She pushed me behind a hanging arras and stepped beside me, pulling the curtains together. I could almost hear her heart beat.

"I am sorry, Madame," he said politely. "Why need you stay? The door is open."

Setting Out Strawberries.

Much depends upon this work of setting the plants, which should be thoroughly done and with the least exposure to the plants. For this reason procure a small, light box or basin to carry the plants in. Take a bunch of 25 or 30, as the case may be, and trim off about one-third of the long roots (some take off half).

Provide yourself with a dibble (made of steel), or a wooden one will do if the planting is not to be a large one. A dibble is made like a medium-sized butcher knife with a handle across the end, the blade being about twice to three times as thick and provided with a double cutting edge, not so sharp as the knife. The wooden one can be made easily out of a piece of hard wood, osage orange being very suitable for this purpose. Take the dibble and push it into the soil (on the line), draw it toward you before withdrawing it, which will leave an opening for the roots of the plant to be set. Now, with your left hand take out one of the plants and place the roots about half way across the opening, and with the dibble in the right hand draw the blade of the dibble across the roots, and with the curved portion press the roots down into the opening in such a way that when the dibble reaches to the bottom the roots will not be doubled up, but be straight down in the hole. A little practice will soon show how easily it is done. Next take the dibble and push it down about two inches ahead of the plant and draw the soil toward the plant, firming it well, so as to cover the opening. Make another draw a little farther ahead and the plant is set, which should leave the crown just peeping out of the ground. Continue the planting at from 18 to 20 inches apart. Some set two feet, others three feet apart, depending on the variety or the manner of after culture. Where it is intended that the cultivation is to be both ways the plants are set three feet apart.—Henry N. Willd.

Harrowing Alfalfa.

Your letter asking for an opinion on a question asked by Mr. W. H. Carter, of Kerby, Ore., has been referred to me for reply. Alfalfa that is three years old will certainly be benefited by harrowing with the common spike-tooth harrow or by the disc harrow. The disc harrow may be set so as to not throw the soil a great deal and can be weighted so as to cut as deeply as desired. I have even disked alfalfa both ways with a disc harrow, arranged as above stated, and it appears that the treatment would certainly ruin the alfalfa, but it proved to be a great benefit. Such treatment loosens up the soil above the crowns of the alfalfa and may cut some of them open and thicken up the stand in that way. In the alfalfa districts of Kansas where I have had considerable experience they consider the spring disking as essential as the cultivation of any crop. I have also practiced disking alfalfa after the different cuttings and found it a profitable venture. The spring disking should be done, however, before the alfalfa has made much growth, though it would be better to disk it or harrow it even after it had started several inches. In the case of the gentleman who has written you it would perhaps be best now to let the disking go until he had cut the first crop, then if he takes the hay off it would certainly be a good thing for the alfalfa to loosen the ground up before it has started for the second crop.

Anthracnose of Beans.

This disease should be guarded against at time of planting. Its presence on the bean pod is shown by the appearance of deep dark pits, which materially decrease the quantity of marketable beans. The spores of this disease are carried over from one season to the next in the bean itself. If infected seed is planted, the plants soon show it by not growing at all, or, if they do, the disease soon spreads to other plants. The infected seed is often discolored and shriveled and beans having that appearance should not be planted. Where the disease has existed on the farm it is best to soak the seed for an hour in a solution made by combining three ounces of copper carbonate, one quart of ammonia and 18 quarts of water.

Ashes.

Ashes are valuable for fertilizer on most lands, but on some lands have the opposite effect, on account of the lime in them combining with some of the mineral elements of the soil. The great value of ashes is due to both lime and potassium contained. Hardwood gives a richer ash than soft wood and the hardwood trees differ in the mineral contents of the ash. The elm tree is especially rich in potassium. On acid soils ashes are especially valuable on account of the lime, which neutralizes the acids.

It is evident that the yield of wheat in this country is to be greatly increased in the next few years. A great many stations and private individuals are working unceasingly to improve the possibilities of wheat yields, and the fruits are now becoming apparent.

TALES TOLD BY OLD POTTERY.

Old Stoneware That Brings to Mind Half-Forgotten Customs.

Pottery students and collectors find much to charm them in the old wares they sometimes hit upon. For instance Micah Salt of Buxton, England, says the Philadelphia Record, has gathered eleven pieces of pottery illustrating the sports of bear-baiting, bull-fighting and cock fighting.

Some of them are of Nottingham make and probably date from the seventeenth century. They are all drinking vessels. The bears are shown muzzled and in various attitudes. Shakespeare has references to the sport of bear-baiting. Bear gardens, each kept by a bearsward, were common in his day. Bull-fighting and cock-fighting are also illustrated. The figure of the cock is formed of the ware which is characteristic of the Asbury-Wood period and previous to the cream ware development of Josiah Wedgwood. The yellowish white is shaded by patches of brown. The black eye is characteristic of the period.

Trying Chinese Bride's Temper.

On the day of a Chinese marriage uninvited friends and neighbors, or even perfect strangers, are allowed to come in and see the bride and they may make any remark about her, or to her, they please, says the Boudoir. Sometimes things horribly rude and disgusting are said:

To try her temper a man will say: "Fetch your husband a cup of tea!" If she does so, all will say jeeringly: "What an obedient wife you are!"

If she sulks and does not do as she is told they remark: "That is a pretty vixen with which to begin married life. We cannot congratulate you on that tartar," and other words to similar effect.

Then the poor thing is made to stand on an inverted cup to show how small are her feet.

Find Oil Paintings.

In the recent overhauling of an ancient moated farmhouse near Birmingham a collection of oil paintings was found under an old rotted floor. The pictures date back as far as the sixteenth century and are considered very valuable.

A VOICE FROM THE PULPIT.

Rev. Jacob D. Van Doren, of 57 Sixth street, Fond Du Lac, Wis., Presbyterian clergyman, says: "I had attacks of kidney disorders which kept me in the house for days at a time, unable to do anything. What I suffered can hardly be told. Complications set in, the particulars of which I will be pleased to give in a personal interview to any one who requires information. This I can conscientiously say, Doan's Kidney Pills caused a general improvement in my health. They brought great relief by lessening the pain and correcting the action of the kidney secretions."

Immigration Branch, Department of the Interior, Ottawa, Canada:

Am sending you the return of two fields of wheat grown on my home farm last year. These returns are perfectly accurate, and not over-estimated.

I summer-fallow about one-third of my farm every year, and afterward take off two crops and summer-fallow again. The summer-fallow is ploughed twice during the summer, first shallow, afterwards deep and no weed allowed to grow. The stubble is left as long as possible when cutting the first crop, and is burned the following spring, drilled directly afterwards, and harrowed after drilling. This gives much better result than fall-ploughing.

THE END OF THE GRIP

REACHED AFTER EIGHT YEARS OF COMPLICATED TROUBLES.

Deafness, Hissing Sounds in Head, Stomach Disorder, Palpitation of Heart and Debility Overcome at Last.

Mr. Newman certainly had a very tough time with the grip, and it is no wonder that he thinks that the remedy that cured him can't be beat. His case shows how profoundly grip poisons the system and how obstinately it resists all ordinary efforts to eradicate it.

Few cases can be worse than Mr. Newman's for he had head, heart and stomach troubles combined with great weakness. He recently said:

"The attack of grip which I had eight years ago left me in a very bad fix. I became nearly deaf and my head ached continually and was filled with hissing and roaring sounds. My heart fluttered and had regular running-away spells. My stomach was so sore that I could hardly bear a touch on that part of my body. I had a great deal of pain in the region of my liver and the doctor said that organ was enlarged. My kidneys ached so at times that I could hardly stand."

"Didn't you give up and go to bed?" he was asked.

"No, I simply wouldn't. My head and my back ached dreadfully, but I obstinately dragged myself about, kept growing worse and finally ran down to almost nothing."

"What did you do to get relief?"

"First I tried a doctor, but he did me no good. Then I took all kinds of advertised preparations but nothing proved helpful until I began to use Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. As soon as I got them I knew that I had at last hit the right remedy for my case. The very first bottle did more for me than anything else I had ever taken. They gave me relief right away and in three months they positively cured me. I think I was scarcely ever in better health in my life than I am at present."

Mr. William A. Newman is a well-known Camden county farmer, living at Saguana, Missouri. His case was a severe test for any remedy, but Dr. Williams' Pink Pills met every requirement. Other remedies merely drive the poison of the grip into hiding, but Dr. Williams' Pink Pills drive it out of the system. They are sold by every druggist.

A TRAINED NURSE

After Years of Experience, Advises Women in Regard to Their Health.

Mrs. Martha Pohlman of 55 Chester Avenue, Newark, N. J., who is a graduate nurse from the Blockley Training School, at Philadelphia, and for six years Chief Clinician at the Philadelphia Hospital, writes the letter printed below. She has the advantage of personal experience, besides her professional education, and what she has to say may be absolutely relied upon.

Mrs. Martha Pohlman

Many other women are afflicted as she was. They can regain health in the same way. It is prudent to heed such advice from such a source.

Mrs. Pohlman writes: "I am firmly persuaded, after eight years of experience with Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, that it is the safest and best medicine for any suffering woman to use."

"Immediately after my marriage I found that my health began to fail. I became weak and pale, with severe bearing-down pains, frequent backaches and frequent dizzy spells. The doctors prescribed for me, yet I did not improve. I would bleed after eating and frequently become nauseated. I had an acid discharge and pains down through my limbs so I could hardly walk. It was as bad a case of female trouble as I have ever known. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, however, cured me within four months. Since that time I have had occasion to recommend it to a number of patients suffering from all forms of female difficulties, and I find that while it is considered unprofessional to recommend a patent medicine, I can honestly recommend Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, for I have found that it cures female ills, where all other medicine fails. It is a grand medicine for sick women."

Money cannot buy such testimony as this—merit alone can produce such results, and the ablest specialists now agree that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is the most universally successful remedy for all female diseases known to medicine.

The needless suffering of women from diseases peculiar to their sex is terrible to see. The money which they pay to doctors who do not help them is an enormous waste. The pain is cured and the money is saved by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Experience has proved this.

When women are troubled with irregular, suppressed or painful menstruation, weakness, leucorrhoea, displacement or ulceration of the womb, that bearing-down feeling, inflammation of the ovaries, backache, bloating (or flatulence), general debility, indigestion, and nervous prostration, or are beset with such symptoms as dizziness,

It is well for women who are ill to write Mrs. Pinkham, at Lynn, Mass. In her great experience, which covers many years, she has probably had to deal with dozens of cases just like yours. Her advice is free and confidential.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Succeeds Where Others Fail.

OLD PORTRAITS IN HORN.

The Likenesses of Many Historical Characters Thus Preserved. Most of the specimens that have been handed down to us of impressed horn work, so greatly valued at the time, says the London Queen, date from about the sixteenth century to the very early part of the nineteenth; but it was from the middle of this period, about 1750, that the best specimens have been left us.

When the well-dressed beaux in Queen Anne's reign took to carrying snuff boxes this gave a great impetus to an art produced by softening the horn in hot water, and so pressing it into molds, which were specially sharp cut and clear of outline. In this way many portraits have been handed down to us, not always of those living at the time but from some cause or other brought prominently forward. The Stuart kings found special acceptance with the Jacobites, and the arms of noted families have been perpetuated with their portraits.

The two most famous artists in horn work were John Osborn, who was hard at work in Amsterdam in the second decade of the seventeenth century, and John O'Brisset, whose handiworks were executed in England early in the eighteenth.

Tortoise shell, turtle, elk horn and wood were treated in the same fashion. The wooden impressed work pertains to Germany, and among other examples one depicting Louis X., king of France, survives.

Many of the finest examples of this horn work are set in silver, as the profiles here shown of William and Mary.

WOVEN BY GIANT SPIDERS.

Beautiful Piece of Silk Exhibited at Paris Exposition.

One of the wonders of the Paris exhibition of 1900 was a piece of silk, eighteen yards long and eighteen inches wide, woven from the web of the giant spiders of Madagascar. Into its manufacture entered 100,000 yards of spun thread of twenty-four strands of spiders' web. Twenty-five thousand spiders had to be brought into requisition for the purpose, and these were procured by offering the natives so much a hundred; but not knowing or ignoring the purposes for which the insects were required, and having a "get-rich-quick" desire, they brought them in by the basketfuls—mostly dead. So that it was found necessary for the winding-off machines to go to the spiders, instead of calling in the spiders to the filatures. However, the piece of cloth was finally completed, and was of a shimmering golden-yellow color.

Those Awful Ham Sandwiches.

The careful hostess happened casually to follow with her eyes a guest who had just taken a ham sandwich. As he took the first bite she noticed an expression on his face which she had not hitherto associated with the consumption of ham sandwiches, and her glance immediately ceased to be casual. The guest, unconscious of observation, made his way slowly but surely to the fire, and with infinite dexterity cast away the ham sandwich. In great agitation, the hostess watched the remaining sandwiches, and with deepening emotion saw another and another guest execute the same maneuver. She had the rest of the sandwiches removed, and tried to forget them for the time being. Afterwards a searching investigation revealed the awful truth. One of her small children had abstracted all the ham from the sandwiches, and substituted pieces of an old redannel garment, carefully trimmed to sandwich size.—Exchange.

Memories of Last Night.

Across the gray of last night's skies
The stars like white narcissus clung,
And, sweetheart, mirrored in your eyes
The halo of their glory hung.
While far and wide the moonlight
Shone
And somewhere, in our world apart,
A mocker's sudden music swung—
Last night, sweetheart.
The song below, the stars above,
Seemed but to meet and melt into
A silver symphony of love.
That thrilled our listening senses through:
And, close within my arms, you knew
The depth of each unspoken thought.
White life for me held only you—
Last night, sweetheart.
And, oh, can there be more than this
Beyond the mystery of the skies?
A heaven sweeter than your kiss?
An Eden dearer than your eyes?
I am not good, nor great, nor wise,
And yet by some strange chance Fate wrought
I found the way to paradise—
Last night, sweetheart.

Church Holidays Mixed Up.

In Constantinople three Christmas celebrations, two New Year's days and two other holy days follow each other in quick succession. As the "old style" calendar brings December 25 two weeks after the same day "new style," two Christmases, the first Latin and the second Greek, are inevitable. And as stormy weather kept a delegation of Armenians from attending an ecumenical council at Chalcedon in 451, at which council the date of Christmas was changed from Jan. 6 to Dec. 25, the Armenians have ever since kept their old day.

Wanted to Get Even.

A correspondent sends us the following extract from the pious petition of a good old colored brother, in a Georgia settlement:
"Lawd, we wants a blessin' fer ever' one, 'cept one; en dat one is a yaller nigger what boarded de railroad train en runned off wid de whole collection what wuz took up ter pay my salary wid! Lawd, please make de train jump de track—don't hurt de yuther passengers, but take off one leg fum lat nigger!"—Atlanta Constitution

Protesting Against Rate Reduction. Atlanta, Ga.—The recent proposition of J. Pope Brown, Chairman of the Georgia Railroad commission, to reduce the passenger rate in Georgia from three to two cents per mile was protested against by the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, the Order of Railway Conductors, and unions of the blacksmiths, machinists and telegraphers, boiler-makers, railway trainmen, carpenters and joiners, clerks and car men. These organizations employed an attorney especially to represent them, who urged that such a reduction would work against the prosperity of the state and lead to a reduction in the number of railroad employes, as well as of their wages. The Travelers' Protective Association also protested that a reduction, as proposed, would result in fewer trains and poorer service.

When Mrs. Stowe Awoke. A friend of mine, a Northern woman, long resident in Florida, once gave me the following account of a visit from Mrs. Stowe: "I had invited her to spend the day, with several other ladies, at my villa. She came with an old white fur tippet wrapped about her neck. She sat all day near the open fire, occupied apparently with her own thoughts, for she spoke to no one. When the day was well nigh spent, one of the guests related the remarkable experience of a woman who had passed through some danger, I forget of what sort. Mrs. Stowe presently startled us all by inquiring, with some show of interest, 'Did the woman live?'—Julia Ward Howe's Article on Harriet Beecher Stowe, in the Reader Magazine.

Contagions of the Soul. Petrarch says: "Let no man deceive himself by thinking that the contagions of the soul are less than those of the body. They are greater—they sink deeper and come on more unsuspectingly."

FAMOUS ATHLETES PAY GLOWING TRIBUTE TO PE-RU-NA

As a Spring Tonic to Get the System in Good Shape.

John Glenister, Champion Swimmer and Only Athlete to Successfully Swim Through the Michigan Whirlpool Rapids.

PE-RU-NA Renovates, Regulates, Restores a System Depleted by Calarrh. John W. Glenister, of Providence, R. I., champion long distance swimmer of America, has performed notable feats in this country and England. He has used Peruna as a tonic and gives his opinion of it in the following letter:

New York. The Peruna Medicine Company, Columbus, Ohio: Gentlemen—"This spring for the first time I have taken two bottles of Peruna, and, as it has done me a great deal of good, I feel as if I ought to say a good word for its worth. "During the springtime for the last few years, I have taken several kinds of spring tonics, and have never received any benefit whatever. This year, through the advice of a friend, I have tried Peruna and it has given satisfaction. "I advise all athletes who are about to go in training to try a bottle, for it certainly gets the system in good shape." Yours truly, JOHN W. GLENISTER.

ATHLETES realize the importance of keeping in good bodily trim. The digestion must be good, the circulation perfect, sleep regular and enough of it. If the slightest catarrhal condition of lungs or stomach is allowed to remain, neither digestion nor sleep will be strength-sustaining. Those who lead very active lives, like athletes, with good muscular development, find the spring months especially trying. Athletes everywhere praise Peruna because they, of all men, appreciate the value of a tonic that dispels physical depression. The vocation of some men may allow them to endure the depressing feelings incident to spring weather, but the athlete must never allow himself to get "under the weather." He must keep in the "pink of condition" all the time. In order to do this he must avail himself of a spring tonic upon which he can rely. Therefore athletes are especially friendly toward Peruna. Peruna never fails them.

Let Common Sense Decide

Do you honestly believe, that coffee sold loose (in bulk), exposed to dust, germs and insects, passing through many hands (some of them not over-clean), "blended," you don't know how or by whom, is fit for your use? Of course you don't. But LION COFFEE is another story. The green berries, selected by keen judges at the plantation, are skillfully roasted at our factories, where precautions you would not dream of are taken to secure perfect cleanliness, flavor, strength and uniformity.

From the time the coffee leaves the factory no hand touches it till it is opened in your kitchen.

This has made LION COFFEE the LEADER OF ALL PACKAGE COFFEES. Millions of American Homes welcome LION COFFEE daily. There is no stronger proof of merit than continued and increasing popularity. "Quality survives all opposition."

Dr. Gustave A. Elsengraeber, of St. Paul, Minn., says: "I have used your Castoria repeatedly in my practice with good results, and can recommend it as an excellent, mild and harmless remedy for children."

Dr. E. J. Dennis, of St. Louis, Mo., says: "I have used and prescribed your Castoria in my sanitarium and outside practice for a number of years and find it to be an excellent remedy for children."

Dr. L. R. Robinson, of Kansas City, Mo., says: "Your Castoria certainly has merit. Is not its age, its continued use by mothers through all these years, and the many attempts to imitate it, sufficient recommendation? What can a physician add? Leave it to the mothers."

Dr. Albert J. Weston, of Cleveland, O., says: "I have used your Castoria in my practice for the past eighteen years with the utmost success."

Dr. Edwin F. Pardee, of New York City, says: "For several years I have recommended your Castoria and shall always continue to do so, as it has invariably produced beneficial results."

Dr. N. B. Sizer, of Brooklyn, N. Y., says: "I object to what are called patent medicines, where maker alone knows what ingredients are put in them, but I know the formula of your Castoria and advise its use."

I was all run down from nervousness and overwork and had to resign my position and take a rest. I found that I was not gaining my strength and health as fast as I could wish, and as your Wine of Cardui was recommended as such a good medicine for the ills of our sex, I bought a bottle and began using it. I was satisfied with the results from the use of the first bottle, and took three more and then found I was restored to good health and strength and able to take up my work with renewed vigor. I consider it a fine tonic and excellent for worn-out, nervous condition, and am pleased to endorse it.
