POMONA GRANGE MEETING.

The Lyndon Grange Members Warmly Entertain Their Fellows.

The Washtenaw Pomona Grange held its regular May meeting with Eureka Grange, No. 2, at the town hall, Lyndon, on Tuesday last. There was a large attendance of members, 26 coming on the electric line from Ypsilanti and Ann Arbor. Eureka Grange furnished conveyances for these guests out to Lyndon Center.

The ladies of Eureka Grange had the hall beautifully decorated with bunting and cut flowers. Tables were set and an elegant dinner, such as the good wives of Eureka Grange know so well how to provide, was served at noon to all present. It is needless to say that the feast of good things was highly appreciated and very much relished by the visitors after their early morning start from home and the exhilarating ride from Chelsea over the hills to Lyndon Center. Such a ride would give an appetite to the most confirmed dyspeptic, therefore, imagine what effect it would have upon the appetites of good healthy farm people, or Grangers, if you please.

But the feast of good things to eat was not the only attractive part of the meeting. After the inner man was satisfied there was a literary feast of a very high order. The program for the Pomona meeting as given out some time ago was taken up and carried out in full. Every-one down on the program was present to take their respective parts. The program was embellished by songs rendered by A. R. Graves and C. M. Fellows, of Ypsilanti. Luke Reilly was induced to sing some of his old-time songs which created a ripple of merriment.

The members of Pomona Grange returned to their homes in the evening very much pleased with their second meeting with Eureka Grange and the cordial welcome so heartily and cheerfully accorded them.

The Chelsea Creamery.

Mr. Towar, of the Chelsea creamery, was a caller at the Herald office this morning. He said the creamery paid 29 cents per pound for butter fat for the month of April.

We suggested that 29 cents was pretty steep for butter and didn't think our better half was guilty of squandering that price on the butter we are accustomed to spread. Mr. Towar, however, said the Elgin price would warrant the payment of that amount during April. Of course, no one can predict what the May market would be, although many prophecy a year of high butter and cheese prices.

An old farmer at our elbow says, "You can't afford to feed calves on milk containing 29 cent butter. We will have to send it all to the creamery and the calves will have to get along with skim milk."

Washtenaw Rural Mail Carriers.

The Washtenaw county rural mail carriers held their semi-annual meeting Sunday afternoon in Ann Arbor. Carriers from Chelsea, Saline, Ypsilanti and Ann Arbor were present. Two new members were added to the association. President Whipple, of Chelsea, gave some good ideas to the men in regard to the new routes and Postmaster Pond gave a very helpful and instructive talk to the carriers. Edwin C. Krapf was elected delegate to the state convention to be held in Detroit in July and Ed. Weiss, of Chelsea, was elected alternate. After the business meeting refreshments were served.

GENEVIEVE YOUNG, Teacher.

Dr. Irving E. Sanders, who was in Chelsea about a year ago trying to organize a lodge of the Modern Brotherhood of America, was arrested in Detroit Friday at the instance of Mrs. Rosa Jones, of Tecumseh. The woman charges him with making love to her, proposing marriage, although he has a wife with whom he lives, and finally securing $925 from her for various things. Sanders gave her what he said was a receipt for the money, but which is really his note for the amount. Sanders and his wife live in Detroit.

BROWN PRIMARY SUBSTITUTE BILL BEFORE THE SENATE FOR ACTION.

KILLED HIS AGED WIFE AND THEN BLEW HIS OWN BRAINS OUT.

THE SHORTEST MURDER TRIAL EVER KNOWN IN MICHIGAN ENDED.

The senate committee Tuesday afternoon reported the Brown substitute for the Baird primary bill. It is a strict platform bill, and applies to all political districts except judicial districts and the political district of the state. It also repeals all local primary bills. The arrangements for holding the primaries and electing delegates to the state conventions are the same as in the Double-Ivory bill. The delegates to state conventions are apportioned according to the party vote for governor. The committee had a two hours' discussion on primary reform in the morning. The talk sifted down to the platform bill, though Senator Cook wanted governor and lieutenant governor added, and Senator Helme stood for an all state ticket. Senator Doherty was present and declared openly for governor and lieutenant governor and no more. However, he maintains that the majority principle is necessary to nominations.

Ended Two Lives.

Brandon Gardner, aged 65 years, closed his life in Traverse City with a terrible tragedy Monday, shooting and instantly killing his wife and then turning the 38-caliber revolver on himself, shooting himself through the temple, dying instantly. The tragedy occurred in the home of ex-Mayor Fulghum, Mrs. Gardner being the mother of Mrs. Fulghum, with whom she was living. The couple were divorced ten years ago, the facts leading to the divorce not being known, and Gardner went to Lafayette, Ind., and up to two weeks ago had not been seen in Traverse City since.

Mrs. Gardner and her daughter were alone in the house, when someone knocked at the front door. Mrs. Fulghum went to the door and opened it, when a man wearing a mask pushed his way in and asked for the man of the house. Mrs. Fulghum ran to the street screaming for help and immediately heard two reports from a revolver, and fell fainting to the walk. When the neighbors arrived they found that Gardner had dragged his wife to the kitchen and shot her. He then tore off the mask and, placing a revolver at each temple, shot himself. The double charge literally tore off the top of Gardner's head. It is believed the man was demented.

Mrs. Gardner was a gentle, refined woman of 58 years, who moved in the best social circles, and her tragic death was a shock to her many friends. She had never heard from her husband since he went away, 10 years ago. It is said Gardner had a grudge against his son-in-law, dating from before the marriage of the latter to his daughter, and it is believed he went to the Fulghum home with the intention of killing the whole family. Gardner's insane disposition is shown from the fact that some years ago he attempted to kill his father.

The Shortest on Record.

Chas. Smith, the Eaton Rapids boy who shot and killed Mort Kimes, January 17, was found guilty of murder in the first degree, in one of the shortest murder trials ever known in Charlotte, or Michigan. Only six hours was required to dispose of the case. Judge Smith had to order the jury taken to their rooms to give him time to prepare his charge. Charles Smith, aged 21, and his wife, who was May Wagner, aged 16, lived in a wood cutter's hut near Eaton Rapids. Morton Kimes, aged 16, boarded with them. Mrs. Smith was the only woman occupant of the house where half a dozen men besides her husband and Kimes lived. On January 11, so Smith claims, he discovered Kimes hugging and kissing his wife. In spite of his angry protests, this conduct is said to have been continued. The night before the murder Smith's wife refused to occupy the same room with him. Smith brought a shotgun into camp the next day and, entering the room where Kimes and a companion were sitting, aimed the gun at Kimes and shot him through the breast, killing him instantly.

Dropped 1,400 Feet.

Thirty-four men narrowly escaped death in the Red Jacket shaft of the Calumet & Hecla mine Friday morning. Had not the safety catches on the man cage worked the cage and the freight of human lives would have been precipitated one mile to the bottom of the shaft. The cable attached to the cage broke and the men dropped 1,400 feet before the safety catches worked.

Several men sustained minor injuries, but none were seriously hurt.

Mains Identified.

Robert Ball, held at Ketchikan, Alaska, for the murder of William Deppe, his former partner, was positively identified Friday as Charles R. Mains, of Battle Creek, the attorney who was disbarred in Michigan after some of the most sensational criminal and civil cases Michigan ever saw. Officers from San Francisco made the identification before the grand jury, as Ball had gone by his real name, Charles R. Mains, in San Francisco, where he was arrested on a big embezzlement charge. If convicted, Mains will probably be hanged.

WAR NEWS

ROJESTVENSKY AND NEBOGATOFF GET TOGETHER AND FLEET SAILS.

THE JAPS RESENT FRENCH ASSISTANCE TO THE RUSSIAN FLEET.

THE LIMITS OF THE WAR ZONE WILL NOT BE LIMITED BY JAPAN.

Admiral Nebogatoff's junction with Vice-Admiral Rojestvensky is now considered by the Russian admiralty as practically assured, and hope for a successful issue in the approaching struggle for mastery of the sea is greatly encouraged thereby. If the fleet reaches Vladivostok intact, however, naval officers claim that victory is won. Although there is a little more than 100,000 tons of coal at Vladivostok, with the reinforcement of the fleet by the Gromobol, Rossia and Bogaty and the torpedo boats and submarines now in the harbor there, they claim that Rojestvensky could drive Togo off the sea and leave Field Marshal Oyama's army stranded in Manchuria. Simultaneously with the increasing tension over the approach of a sea battle, comes news that Field Marshal Oyama is pressing the Russian right along Liao river, north of Falkoman, as if he is beginning a general engagement.

Resent French Acts.

The feeling in Japan of resentment against France for the assistance given to the Russian second Pacific squadron continues to run high and is finding expression in a variety of ways. The nearness of the Russian squadron and the nature of the preparations which Admiral Rojestvensky is known to have made in French waters seems to have suddenly convinced many people that it would have been impossible for Rojestvensky to come to the far east without outside assistance, which has given a sinister tone to the popular resentment.

In the crisis many eyes are turned toward Great Britain for assistance. It is argued that France rescued Rojestvensky from absolute failure to reach the China sea, and that the final aid given to the Russians in Indo-China amounts to an act of belligerency.

Fleets United.

According to dispatches to the Russian admiralty brought to Saigon by the hospital ship Kostroma, the junction of Vice-Admirals Rojestvensky and Nebogatoff is by this time an accomplished fact. The admiralty professes ignorance of the present location of the united squadrons, but in view of the long and uninterrupted voyage of Nebogatoff's division, it is believed his ships will spend some time in sheltered waters of the Chinese sea, near the coast, but outside the three-mile limit, in order to complete final re-coaling and other preparations before setting out on the last and crucial stage of the voyage.

Conspiracy Uncovered.

Sarrion de Herrera, former king-arms of the Spanish court, has been arrested at the instance of the Brazilian minister in Madrid on the charge of conspiring with others against the government of Brazil. A search of the residence of Senor de Herrera resulted in the discovery of a number of commissions for officers who were to organize an army in the state of Kuanai. The commissions bore the stamp of that state. Documents taken from De Herrera's residence show that organization was proceeding on a vast scale and that nearly 4,000 men had already been recruited in England, 4,000 in France and 4,000 in Spain, among the last named being included many Spanish reserve officers, some of whom are actually serving as active officers. An ex-revolutionary Spanish captain, who headed the rising in Badajoz in 1833, holds a commission of colonel in the future army of Kuanai, and it is stated that he is already receiving pay through an English banking house at which funds are deposited. De Herrera styled himself minister plenipotentiary of Spain for the state of Kuanai. The Brazilian government got wind of the affair and communicated with its minister at Madrid. The Spanish authorities were notified and acted promptly and the arrest of De Herrera followed.

The War Zone.

Japan has refused to agree to a definition of the limits of the war zone in Mongolia west of the present positions of the armies. Until after the Russian defeat at Mukden and while the operations were confined to Manchuria, the neutral zone was well established, although claims of violation were preferred by both belligerents. North of Tie Pass, Mongolia juts eastward across the railroad, and the limit of the zone of hostilities has never been fixed.

Chas. Lundberg, Chicago, is sued for divorce by his wife because he refuses to wear the clothing she makes for him.

Alligator farming is to be tried in France for the sake of the hides of the reptiles.

Adam Rickert, deaf, dumb, blind, 60 years old, has taken out in Milwaukee, Wis., a license to marry.

Gov. Hoch declares he will enforce the prohibitory law to the bitter end in Kansas and close numerous saloons now defiantly running wide open in large cities.

Gov. Hoch, of Kansas, arch foe of Standard Oil, has been discovered to be a heavy stockholder in an independent refinery which will compete with the Kansas state refinery soon to be built.

THE STATE LEGISLATURE.

The bill to add to the Michigan national guard a troop of cavalry, a battery of light artillery and an engineer corps is now before the governor and will soon become a law. Since the days of the civil war the state has never had any militia except infantry, and some of the Spanish war veterans have been enthusiastic in their desire to see a Michigan troop of cavalry.

Rep. Lord's bill, making it compulsory for the banking department to examine every bank in the state at least twice a year, will necessitate taking on one or two new examiners in the department. The bill does not make express provision for additional help, but the commissioner has power to employ such help as he may need, with certain limitations.

The latest figures show that the appropriations for this session will exceed those of two years by about $250,000.

The senate passed Senator Ashley's bill providing that all fees collected by the coroners of Wayne county shall be turned over to the county.

Senator Glasgow says that if the senate judiciary committee does not make a report on one of the cigarette bills next week a new measure will be introduced.

Senator Cook has introduced a bill to appropriate $500 a year for the next two years for the Michigan Poultry association, to be used for premiums on Michigan bred birds.

Auditor-General Bradley has refused to honor the warrants drawn by the Wayne recount committee for pay for clerks at $5 a day, claiming that the law allows only $3 a day.

With the recommendation that it pass, the senate taxation committee reported Rep. Read's bill providing for a tonnage tax on all steam vessels of 15-cents per ton.

The joint resolution of Rep. Adams, of Chippewa, proposing an amendment to the constitution, authorizes trial judges to disfranchise persons convicted of crime in addition to the regular punishment, was passed by the house.

The senate passed Senator Moriarty's bill providing for the erection of a tuberculosis sanitarium, and a grant of land by the state on which the hospital shall be located. An annual maintenance of $20,000 is provided for.

The house committee on ways and means has cut the Agricultural college appropriation from $335,000 to $94,000. The sum of $55,000 is allowed to rebuild the Welles dormitory, recently destroyed by fire; $20,000 for live stock development; $10,000 for barns and $9,000 for the upper peninsula experimental station.

The bill introduced by Rep. Agens, of Mason, to require contracts for the purchase of goods on the installment plan to be recorded with village, township or city clerks, when the title to such goods remains in the vendor until paid for, was killed in the house. Merchants from all over the state engaging in this class of business had sent in protests to members.

The house committee on agriculture has decided to report favorably on two bills introduced by Rep. Shell, of Wayne. One is to appropriate $8,000 to remove the Michigan building at the St. Louis exposition to the state fair grounds on Woodward avenue, and the other carries an appropriation of $5,000 a year for the next two years to be used by the state for premiums for Michigan exhibitors.

The senate elections committee after about an hour, decided by a vote of 4 to 0, Senator Brown not voting, to report favorably on the Ivory-Double-Dickinson primary bill. It will not come out on the floor of the senate in the same shape that it was received from the house a month or so ago. Senator Baird's threat to "go the limit" was carried into effect, and the bill was amended to provide for the direct nomination of all state officers. They didn't stop there, but included all city and county officers. It is broader than the Republican platform, it is broader than the bill that passed the house, and doesn't quite meet with the approval of the governor.

The Chicago Strike.

It was comparatively quiet in the downtown streets of Chicago Saturday, despite the unabated continuance of the teamsters' strike. There were a few scattered outbreaks, some shooting, and some resultant injuries, but there was a complete absence of the marching crowds that for days followed the wagons of boycotted firms through the streets and seized on every opportunity to attack drivers and wagon guards. Although there have been no positive developments as yet, there is a strong feeling, both on the part of the employers and the strikers, that the worst of the strike has been passed, and that in a few days the streets of the city will be cleared for traffic. Gov. Deneen received a telegram Saturday asking his service as mediator, to select one labor representative and one representative of the Employers' association and to act with them as a committee to investigate the present strike. The telegram was signed by President Shea, of the teamsters' union, and by President Dold, of the Chicago Federation of Labor. Gov. Deneen replied that the suggestion would receive due consideration.

Owl, Indian territory, was almost wiped out by a tornado Saturday. Two persons were killed and 10 injured, four fatally. Monetary loss, $50,000.

Mrs. J. B. Hill, of Ovid village, has just completed her semi-annual job of housecleaning. Although Mrs. Hill is totally blind, she did all the work without help.

William McDowell, Cincinnati, will ed $150 to his pet dog, Todde, to support it for the rest of its life, giving the balance of his estate to a niece on condition that she cherish the cur. She will contest the will.

Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Sims committed suicide at their home near Virden, Ill., leaving letters which indicate that the woman had been unfaithful to her husband, and that both preferred death to the knowledge of the disgrace.

SEN. BURROWS THINKS TAX ON BEER AND TOBACCO BEST THING.

CYCLONE IN KANSAS DESTROYS MANY LIVES AND WRECKS HOMES

THE MYSTERIOUS COMING AND GOING OF ALLEGED KIDNAPER PAT CROWE.

Senator Burrows, in an interview published here, advocates the adoption of maximum and minimum tariff schedules to meet changes in the tariff schedules of foreign countries. Burrows also says more revenue can be realized by placing a duty on articles now on the free list and reducing duties on some other articles, and intimates that a mistake was made in reducing the internal revenue tax on beer, which did not reduce the cost to the consumer. Burrows said in part: "We might raise additional revenue by internal taxes, for instance on tobacco and beer. In reducing the tax on beer after the Spanish war over $25,000,000 was cut off and $20,000,000 more was taken from tobacco. Beer is no cheaper to the consumer because of the reduced tax. A revision of the tariff to increase revenues must mean the imposition of rates on dutiable goods, which would flood our market and throw many of our people out of employment or lead to a reduction in wages. Some changes might perhaps be made advantageously, but would it pay to disturb business for that purpose and could, for instance, the iron and steel schedule be changed by reducing rates without other schedules having to meet like fate?"

"Does the nation's foreign trade show a need of reducing the rate? I do not think any Republican advocates a general revision of the tariff. One thing this country needs is a maximum and a minimum tariff for self-protection. In the nine months ended with March, we exported $59,929,943 in value of goods to France and imported $69,943,657 from that country. We buy from France over $20,000,000 more than we sell to her, which is explained on the ground that France imposed her maximum rates on many of our products, though other great nations get the minimum rates without maximum rates. We are without redress apparently. We shall soon be suffering in the same way from the maximum rate of Germany. If we had maximum and minimum rates we would not suffer in that way."

The Omaha Kidnaper.

As mysterious as the open return to Omaha Friday night of Pat Crowe, alleged kidnaper of Edward Cudahy, Jr., was Crowe's sudden disappearance Saturday. When Crowe left the office of an Omaha newspaper early in the morning, he remarked that he was going to the home of his brother in Council Bluffs, Ia., but he could not be found there. Chief of Police John J. Donahue declares that Crowe is the most slippery man he has ever had to deal with, at the same time admitting that the fugitive has baffled the efforts of the Omaha police repeatedly. Crowe's acquaintances now say that Crowe often came to Omaha during the four years following the kidnaping of young Cudahy. Both Chief Donahue and Edward Cudahy, father of the boy that was kidnaped, were emphatic in their declarations that Crowe would be tried if found. Edward Cudahy, who paid $25,000 ransom for the return of his son, declares that he would not sanction leniency if Crowe is guilty of the kidnaping or do anything to shield him. The police will continue to search for Crowe.

The Awful Cyclone.

Twenty-four persons are known to have been killed and over 35 were injured in a tornado, the most disastrous in the history of central Kansas, which swept over this portion of the state at midnight. The tornado seems to have formed three miles south of Marquette, and did not spend its force until it had passed many miles north of the town. In Marquette the residence portion west of the main street suffered the principal damage. The houses in the course of the tornado were all, with two or three exceptions, completely wrecked. In this section there were a number of modern residences of which only one, the home of R. A. Thompson, was left standing.

Tried to End His Life.

Perry Sanford, an old Kentucky slave, who is the oldest colored pioneer of Battle Creek, attempted to commit suicide in Nichols hospital by cutting his throat with a jackknife. He was taken to the hospital five months ago, suffering with paralysis, and on account of his condition has become despondent. It took him an hour to open the knife with his teeth and left hand, but he was discovered in the act of slashing his throat by a nurse, who took the knife from him. He is very weak and probably will not last long. He is 87 years old, and the last survivor of the invasion of the famous Quaker settlement in Cass county, in 1848, when armed Kentuckians forcibly attempted to capture a fugitive slave at the settlement. He came to Battle Creek the same year and for years has been a trusted employe of the Nichols & Shepard Threshing Machine Co.

To-Morrow

There are wonderful things we are going to do
Some other day:
And harbors we hope to drift into
Some other day:
With folded hands and ears that trail
We watch and wait for a favoring gale
To fill the folds of an idle sail,
Some other day.

We know we must toil, if ever we win,
Some other day:
But we say to ourselves, there's time to begin
Some other day:
And so, deferring, we letter on,
Until at last we find withdrawn
The strength of the hope we leaned upon,
Some other day.

A Ghost Story

BY J. C. PLUMMER

(Copyright, 1905, by Daily Story Pub. Co.)

We had passed out of the channel and were heading southwest bound on our long voyage to the Pacific. Just as night fell one of those sudden accidents occurred which mark the narrow boundary between life and death with the sailor. The mate had sent a man, Adolf Svendsen by name, out on the job boom on a minor duty and by some means he lost his hold and fell. Life preservers were thrown over but the man seemed to make no effort to save himself and was drawn under by the suction of the vessel and lost before a boat could be lowered. The misfortune cast a gloom over the crew for death is very impressive to the few men cooped up between the rails of a ship, and some of the elder sailors began boding ill-luck for the voyage.

"We'll never turn the Horn," said old Pete, a confirmed pessimist. I had been cast in the second mate's watch and was glad of it for I had sailed the previous voyage under Mr. Owens, and he had taken a fancy to me. We had many a yarn while walking up and down the decks during the dreary hours of the night watch. When he came aboard at the India docks I noted a great change in his manner. In place of the hearty, jovial man I had known he appeared down to the water line with trouble. His face was care-worn and his head drooped as if he had a cargo of pig iron stowed on the back of his neck. During the watches he made no offer of talking and of course a foremast hand has no business speaking first to an officer.

The night after Svendsen's death I came up with my watch and began my tramp up and down the starboard side. Mr. Owens passed me several times without a word, then he suddenly grasped my arm.

"Ave you seen Svendsen?" he asked, in a strained voice.

"Svendsen," I exclaimed, "why, the poor devil's drowned."

"They come back," he said, in a low voice, "drowned people come back. He'll expectin' to see 'im any minute."

I am not superstitious, but the earnestness of his speech and the utter silence of the sea made me look fearfully around.

"The dead never come back," I said, but not very assuredly.

We took a turn or two along the deck he still grasping my arm and saying nothing.

"Hi wish Hi was in Svendsen's place," he said, suddenly, "then Hi'd be hont of the trouble that's to come."

The manner of the man made my flesh creep.

"What's the matter, Mr. Owens?" I asked.

"Hi've no wife nor child," he said, "but Hi've a sister that Hi've taken care hof since she was a kid. She married Jack Porter, as good a seaman as ever cussed a sogerin' sailor, who's now mate hof the Skylark. They've a nice little 'ome in South-ark and she's a kid that's just beginnin' to talk. Hof course when I'm ashore Hi stay there and the night before Hi comes aboard this 'ere booker Hi was a sittin' in 'y room a listenin' to Kate singin' 'ue kid asleep. There's a big 'ouse cat that always makes friends with me and 'e was sittin' on the rug in front of me a dozin'.

"Ave you seen Svendsen?" he asked in a strained voice.

"Well?" said I, for he remained silent

"Hi don't want you to laugh at what Hi'm going to tell," he said savagely. "Hi won't stand hit from no man."

"I never laugh at any man's troubles," I said, "and I see you have some."

"Well, the big cat sat dozin' on the rug and Hi was a listenin' to Kate when the cat puts hup 'is back and begins to growl."

"What's hup?" says I.

"'E got hup and began to creep towards the door, growlin' with 'is back hunched and 'is tail a swellin'. Hi was afraid 'e'd go hin the room where the kid was and wake 'im so Hi catches "'is face was dead white," 'im by the scruff of the neck and brings 'im back to the rug.

"You're goin' to 'ave a fit," says Hi, hand Hi watched 'im. Hi was a startin' to bring 'im back again when 'e starts to back away from the door comin' towards me a growlin' like has if 'e saw somethin' a comin' hin the door.

"'E backs until 'e reaches my cheer, and then Hi looks haround the room to see hif there was anythin' to make the bloomin' cat act that haway and when Hi claps my heyes on 'im again 'e was a backin' haway from me."

"'is heyes was fixed on my cheer and 'is was glowin' like stars, 'is back was hunched and 'is tail was as big as my harm. Hi was gettin' 'up to leave 'im hont of 'is window for Hi was sure 'e was mad when Hi feels a tap hon my shoulder. Hi looks haround and there stood Jack Porter. That of hifself was strange enough for Jack is somewheres in the Hindian Hocean bound 'ome which 'e can't reach for two months yet, but the way 'e looked made my 'eart stop. 'is face was dead white and 'is heyes 'ad that stare that a drowned person's has. 'E was drippin' wet and 'is 'air was plastered on 'is forehead. The sight was such 'orror to me that Hi 'id my face hin my 'ands like a skeered kid. When Hi raised my 'ead the thing was gone hand the cat was sittin' hon the rug. Now, the drift of hit is that poor Jack's drowned and 'e came to tell me."

"That's an easy course to lay," said I, "you fell asleep and dreamed it."

"Hi tell you Hi was wide awake has Hi ham now, and," with a disgusted intonation, "do you think Hi'd dream hof a cat?"

"Did you tell your sister?" I asked.

"Hi 'adn't the 'eart," he replied, gloomily. "Hif Hi could Hi'd a stayed 'ome with 'er, but Hi'd been advanced some money on this voyage and 'ad to go. When Hi thinks of poor Kate cryin' over 'er 'usband and that little kid Hi wishes Hi was drowned, too."

"Svendsen's a wife hin Norway," he continued, after a pause, "and that's what brings hit so sharp to my mind. What's that?"

"Only the creaking of this brace," I said, but I had started as he did at the sound.

We bowled south at a good rate, but Mr. Owens became gloomier each day and I feared he would leap overboard. It was his settled conviction that his brother-in-law was drowned.

One bright morning a man aloft shouted "sail ho!" and we began to rapidly raise a bark on our lee quarter. She came within hailing distance when Owens gave a cry.

"Hi's the Skylark!" he exclaimed.

"Hail her, Mr. Owens," said the mate, who was chipping tobacco.

Owens put the trumpet to his lips but couldn't utter a sound. He handed to the mate, helplessly, and leaned against the rail.

"The mate sent his strident voice over the water.

"Skylark, Ranseon for London," came back an answer to the hail.

"Hask 'im if Jack Porter's aboard," said Owens, huskily, then he snatched at the mate's arm. "No, don't ask. Hi'm afraid to 'ear." It was too late, the interrogation had been thundered through the trumpet.

"Yes, hearty as roast beef, that's him on the fo'castle," was the reply, and the bark filled away.

Two years later I was a guest at the christening of Mr. Jack Porter's second son, and Owens whispered to me at the church door: "Hi'd die 'appy hif 'i knew what that there cat saw."

BOY STRICTLY UP TO DATE.

Knew His Value and Was Able to Impress it on Others.

A boy came briskly into the office, doffed his hat and turned to the boss.

"I understand that you want a boy, sir?" he said.

"What sort of a place do you want?"

"Where there is a little work and as much pay as the house can stand."

"Most boys who come here are willing to take all work and no pay."

"I'm not most boys."

"Do you expect to get the kind of a job you want?"

"No, sir; nobody gets what he wants exactly, but it doesn't hurt him to expect a good deal."

"What pay do you think you should have?"

"Three per week."

"The other boys have only been paid $2."

"How many did you have last year?"

"Eight or ten."

"I thought so. That's the kind of a boy a two-dollar boy is. I'm not that kind. I come, I hang up my hat and stay."

"Suppose we should bounce you?"

"I'll be glad of it, sir. Yes, sir; if the house isn't satisfied with the right kind of a boy it isn't the right kind of a house for the right kind of a boy to be in. It's time I was going to work if I'm going to work, and if I'm not, it's time I left."

"Well," concluded the boss, "hang up your hat and go to work."

Dividing the Work.

Elder Edgecomb was for many years pastor of the Free Baptist Church in Vienna, Me., in which town lived a simple-minded man named Perry Wood.

One hot Sunday in summer the parson had occasion to admonish some of his hearers for going to sleep during the service. The next Sunday, while the minister was in the midst of his sermon, he heard something whiz across the room and strike the wall.

He continued his sermon, but kept one suspicious eye on the congregation. Soon he saw the simple-minded Perry, who was sitting in the stove room in the rear of the church, rise, take an apple from his pocket and bring his arm back preparatory for a throw at the head of a sleeping deacon.

"Perry Wood," exclaimed the irate parson, "you put that apple up, and if you ever throw another one in this church I'll—"

"You hold right on, elder," broke in the excited Perry, "you tend to your preaching and I'll keep them awake."

What Was the Use?

There was once a man who said that he would show his wife how to clean house; that he could do it in half the time and with half the trouble she could. He would do it, he said, for the sake of avoiding the annual upheaval and disturbance in their home.

And she dared him to do it.

So he pitched in and took up carpets and beat them, and mopped floors and washed windows, and dusted pictures and cleaned cupboards—and he finished the work in less than half the time she took to do it.

But it availed naught.

For she went all over the house after he had finished, taking up carpets and taking down pictures and clearing out cupboards, to see if he had done the work properly.

Even when a reformer accomplishes anything his accounts have to be audited.

How It Turned Out.

I went because it seemed to be a pleasant place to stay—Where I could go and drink some tea And while the hours away.

The girl appeared to be a quite Refined and modest sort. But though I went there every night I did not go to court.

We sat upon the sofa and The lights were burning low. At times I even held her hand—No harm in that, you know. I surely thought so, anyway.

It had no real import, And I'm sincere now when I say I didn't go to court.

I never thought she would be so Unprincipled and base: To me it was an awful blow. That breach-of-promise case, To pay her damages was gall, For payin'g's not my forte. I had to pay, though. After all I had to go to court.

Helen's P. S.

Helen had been taught to say her prayers every night, and the little prayer beginning, "Now I lay me down to sleep," was the prayer used. One day an old friend of the family, "Auntie Benson," came to spend the day, and on leaving asked Helen to remember her in her prayers. Helen agreed. That night, after asking that a blessing should rest on her mother, father, grandparents, aunts, uncles, cousins, friends, etc., Helen rose from her knees. She walked across the room, and jumped into bed. Then like a shot she jumped out again, sank down on her knees and exclaimed: "Postscript, and Auntie Benson!"

SCIENCE and INVENTION

For the Sketching Girl.

A clever addition to the list of chateleine attachments with which the girl of to-day is familiar, if not the actual possessor, is the sketching case here illustrated. It is of foreign design and in the larger case, which may be had either in gold or silver, pencil, brushes and eight or ten water color tablets may be carried, the receptacle being but a trifle larger than an ordinary match box. The second case—long and narrow—is about as large as a flat pencil. With either of these cases at hand the girl who likes to jot down in artist's language her impressions during excursions by sea or land is prepared to make an effective record.

New Fuel from Pulp Refuse.

From the refuse of paper pulp mills an Indiana glass worker has invented a new fuel which is said to possess more heat units per pound than either coal or wood and which can be manufactured and sold at a profit at one-half the cost of coal. The refuse, a combination of soda and lime, is mixed with crude oil until the finished product has a consistency of putty, being manufactured much as a plaster maker makes mortar. In this state it may be cut with a spade and thrown into the furnace or beneath the boiler, no kindling being necessary, as the material ignites readily from the flame of a match and burns with an intense heat and without smoke, except when under a strong draft. Its success as a fuel for domestic purposes was determined some time ago, but not until recently, when it was used beneath an engine boiler, has its value for manufacturing purposes been demonstrated. In this test a bushel basket of the fuel beneath a sixteen horsepower boiler kept steam up for eight hours, no clinkers and little ash remaining after the fire had burned down. Aside from the possibility of a cheaper fuel, the invention is of importance in converting the thousands of tons of refuse which every pulp mill in the country turns out annually into a valuable byproduct.—Chicago Trib-

Armored Mitten.

It is deplorable that so many hands and arms have been torn off by being caught between the rollers of corn-huskers and rolling machines. Sooner or later, through inattention or inadvertency, the operator's pliable fingers reach the rollers and, once caught, the hand or arm is almost certain to be crushed. Based on the fact that a hard and smooth, or a hard and comparatively blunt, object, even when purposely pressed against such rollers is not drawn between them. William C. Niebuhr of Fielden, Minn., has perfected an "armored" mitten to avert these too frequent accidents. The body of the mitten is of ordinary construction and material, but the tip and thumb are provided with metallic shells, the former being very blunt and a little wider than the body of the mitten, while the latter is finished with serrations. The metal thumb cap is of peculiar shape, as shown, to afford clearance for the thumb joint when this is bent. The flexible body of the mitten enables the wearer to manipulate stalks or other material being fed to a husking or chopping machine with considerable dexterity, while at the same time the metal tips prevent accidents of the kind referred to. The inventor of course, expects to apply a modification of this principle to gloves, but for the most part a mitten is preferable.

Costliness of Turbines.

An enormous amount of care and labor and a great length of time are required in the making of the turbines of ocean-going vessels and it is this that renders the building of turbine steamships so expensive. The first ocean liner of the turbine type recently made its maiden trip across the ocean. There were no fewer than 1,500,000 separate pieces used in the building of the three turbines by which the vessels were driven.

Conger Acquitted.

Eugene D. Conger, publisher of the Grand Rapids Herald, was indicted for conspiracy with Lant K. Salsbury and others to obtain a contract for bringing Lake Michigan water to the city by means of bribing the mayor, common council and board of public works, or some of them. It was claimed on the trial that Salsbury paid Mr. Conger $10,000 and promised him as much more. For four weeks the trial was on, ending Thursday morning in a verdict of acquittal. It is believed that Conger's acquittal will result in the quashing of the charges of conspiracy and bribery against all persons implicated by Salsbury's "confessions." It has always been claimed that the prosecution had the strongest case against Conger, and for that reason he was twice tried before others were tried. It is believed also that ex-City Clerk Lamoreaux will now change his plea to not guilty in the superior court.

Storm Was Fierce.

One of the fiercest hail and wind storms ever witnessed in Grand Rapids came up Thursday afternoon. Hail in the shape of huge, hard icicles fell with terrific force, breaking windows in hundreds of residences and doing untold damage to fruit in the surrounding country. The storm lasted an hour. The hail entirely destroyed the windows of every greenhouse in the city, entailing a total loss of $5,000. Skylights on Monroe and Canal streets were broken and 80 square feet of glass in the Gilbert block was smashed. The hail scared horses tied on the streets and numerous runaways occurred, three horses being killed and several people injured. Nearly every window in the high school was broken by hail and school was dismissed. Windows in street cars were also broken.

Herald Rhode, the 3-year-old child who disappeared at Newway last Thursday, was found Saturday after a continuous search since that time. The party was led by dogs to a hole at the end of a log on the river bank, where the child was found, mummy and rigid, and barely alive. It is thought he will recover.

THE MARKETS.

Detroit—Receipts of cattle light. Prime shipping steers were about 10 cents lower than they were a week ago. There was a fair demand for stockers and feeders, all steady. Last week's prices: Milch cows and springers sold well and the best grades a little better than they did a week ago. Best grades sold as high as $50, but they had to be extra good. # WHY WOMEN ARE LATE.

A Scene in the Squibbob Household Explains the Sex's Tardiness. "It's just 7 o'clock," said Squibbob, "and so you have plenty of time to dress yourself carefully for the theater. With this margin of time, Henrietta, you can surely have no excuse for being unprepared at the last moment, a trait confined to your sex."

"Yes, dear, I'll start dressing right now," said his helpmeet dutifully.

"And I myself will show you a good example in promptness," said Squibbob kindly. "I'll start right in myself. By the way, where are my shirts?"

"Here they are."

"Put the shirt studs in it, will you? And, er—by the way, this dress suit is rather rumpled. I must have tossed it around in the drawer. You are rather handy at those things, Henrietta—can't you press it into some sort of shape?"

"All right, dear."

"And, while you are at it, fix the pearls in my shirt front. Guffer! I wish you'd chase up my cuff buttons!"

Mrs. Squibbob flew around with deft and willing hands, gathering the masculine apparel together, while Squibbob calmly dressed himself in the intervals of his rapid-fire directions. "Got my top hat?" he asked. "Good. Now please fix my necktie and—why—er—er—"

Squibbob gasped in surprise, looked at the clock hands, which pointed to 8, and then surveyed the hurried little woman.

"Ginger!" he said in fine scorn. "aren't you dressed yet? Well, if that isn't just like a woman!"

FRIENDS HE HAD NONE.

This Man Doomed by His Occupation to Be a Hermit Among Men.

Outside the theater lobby, dismal by contrast with the light and laughter within, a dejected looking man stood, his strong face quivering with emotion.

"Ah, my friend," said a cheerful Samaritan at his elbow, "cheer up."

"Ah, such a thing is hardly possible to me," said the man with a sad smile. "I am doomed by my occupation to be a hermit in the midst of men."

"Tut, tut," persisted the optimist. "No matter how lowly or how degraded a man may be he can still have friends; then why not you?"

"Just a moment. You are a theatergoer, and presumably read the newspaper criticisms of the performance, players and playwright. Did you ever reflect that when praise is given it is always regarded as but the just due of theatrical people, but, on the other hand, when censure is administered it is looked upon by them as spite, envy and insult?"

"And you?"

"I can have no friends—I am a dramatic critic."

With a stifled sob the friendless man rushed out into exterior darkness.

Heart Weakness.

Dr. Miles' Heart Cure has made many hearts well after they have been pronounced hopeless. It has completely cured thousands, and will almost invariably cure or benefit every case of heart disease.

Short breath, pain around heart, palpitation, fluttering, dizzy, fainting and smothering spells should not be neglected. Take Dr. Miles' Heart Cure and see how quick you will be relieved.

It cannot make a new heart, but will restore a sick one by strengthening the heart nerves and muscles, relieving the unnatural strain, and restoring its vitality.

"I had a very bad case of heart trouble. For six months I could not work. Last July I was plowing corn and feeling bad all day; in the afternoon in plowing one row I had to lay down, or fall down, three times. My heart throbbed as though it would burst through, and I had difficulty in getting my breath. I purchased a bottle of Dr. Miles' Heart Cure, and before I had used half of it I could lay down and sleep all night. Previously I had to get up from five to ten times a night. I have taken several bottles, and my heart is as regular as clock work. I feel like a new man, and can work considerable for an old man, 84 1/2 years old."

H. D. McGILL, Frost, Ohio.
Dr. Miles' Heart Cure is sold by your druggist, who will guarantee that the first bottle will benefit. If it fails he will refund your money.

THURSDAY, MAY 11, 1905.

Senator Peck's bill allowing the docking of horses' tails, bone and all, on the certificate of a veterinary surgeon, has been defeated and tabled. It is refreshing to know that the senators have some humanitarian ideas and that this barbarous custom of mutilating horses will not be allowed to prevail in Michigan.

As was to be expected the opponents of primary reform in the state senate have hopelessly gold bricked the primary reform bill by inserting a clause in it which requires that candidates for governor and lieutenant governor must get a majority of all votes cast at the primaries or else a state convention is to make the nominations as is now done.

The initial number of Jackson's new morning daily The Jackson Daily News has made its appearance on our table. The News announces itself as "absolutely independent in politics." It has private leased wires and a full press service to furnish its readers with the latest news and its local and editorial columns are well filled. The News has struck a good gait and should meet with a full measure of success.

Speaking of the big Milwaukee bank failure, by which the First National Bank of Milwaukee lost $1,500,000, which was appropriated by its president, an exchange says:

"This condition of affairs contradicts the old adage 'Figures can't lie.' The last published statement of this bank showed resources of $19,500,000 and everything balanced to a cent. This shows how little bank examinations really amount to. An expert can come into a bank and count up the cash and check off the resources, and the bank's figures make a good showing, while the true condition may be very different. Changing and juggling the face figures is where the dishonesty, if there is any, is covered up."

The real security of bank depositors is in the men behind the bank. If they are conservative, safe men of affairs, whose businesses have prospered by reason of these methods, the bank is safe enough and the depositors are in no danger. But if the men behind the bank are rash, speculative fellows, given to plunging in their deals, look out for that bank and keep your money in your pockets if you have no safer place to put it.

Man's Unreasonableness

is often as great as woman's, but Thos. S. Austin, manager of the "Republican," of Leavenworth, Ind., was not unreasonable when he refused to allow the doctors to operate on his wife for female trouble. "Instead," he says, "we concluded to try Electric Bitters. My wife was then so sick she could hardly leave her bed and five (5) physicians had failed to relieve her. After taking Electric Bitters she was perfectly cured and can now perform all her household duties." Guaranteed by Bank Drug Store; price 50c.

THREATENED WITH PARALYSIS.

Peter E. Summers, of Kalamazoo, Mich., relates his experience: "I was troubled with Nervous Debility for many years. I lay it to indigestion and excesses in early youth. I became very despondent and didn't care whether I worked or not. I imagined everybody who looked at me, guessed my secret. Imaginative dreams at night weakened me—my back ached, had pains in the back of my head, hands and feet were cold, tired in the morning, poor appetite, fingers were shaky, eyes blurred, hair loose, memory poor, etc. Numerous first-class physicians set in and the doctor told me he feared paralysis. I took all kinds of medicines and tried many first-class physicians, were an electric belt for three months, went to Mt. Clemens for baths, but received little benefit. While at Mt. Clemens I was induced to consult Dr. Kennedy & Kergan, though I had lost all faith in doctors. Like a drowning man I commenced the New Method Treatment and it saved my life. The improvement was like magic—I could feel the vigor going through my nerves. I was cured mentally, physically and sexually. I have sent them many patients and will continue to do so."

"IT SAVED MY LIFE"

PRaise FOR A FAMOUS MEDICINE

Mrs. Willadsen Tells How She Tried Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Just in Time.

Mrs. T. C. Willadsen, of Manning, Iowa, writes to Mrs. Pinkham:

"I can truly say that you have saved my life, and I cannot express my gratitude to you in words."

"Before I wrote to you, telling you how I felt, I had doctored for over two years steady and spent lots of money on medicines besides, but it all failed to help me. My monthly periods had ceased and I suffered much pain, with fainting spells, headache, backache and bearing-down pains, and I was so weak I could hardly keep around. As a last resort I decided to write you and try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and I am so thankful that I did, for after following your instructions, which you sent me free of all charge, my monthly periods started; I am regular and in perfect health. Had it not been for you I would be in my grave to day."

"I sincerely trust that this letter may lead every suffering woman in the country to write you for help as I did."

When women are troubled with irregular or painful menstruation, weakness, leucorrhoea, displacement or ulceration of the womb, that bearing-down feeling, inflammation of the ovaries, backache, flatulence, general debility, indigestion and nervous prostration, they should remember there is one tried and true remedy. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound at once removes such troubles.

No other female medicine in the world has received such widespread and unqualified endorsement. Refuse all substitutes.

Mrs. Pinkham invites all sick women to write her for advice. She has guided thousands to health. Address, Lynn, Mass.

Escapes Milk Inspector. "He is one of the most artful men we have to deal with," said a sanitary inspector in a London police court of a milkman, who was fined. MOST PROFITABLE FARM INVESTMENT.

This is what the Cream Separator has proved to be. Twenty years of experience upon the part of hundreds of thousands of users in every country of the world bear witness to the fact. No one disputes it.

There never was a better time to make this all-important farm investment than the present. Butter is unprecedentedly high in price. It is most desirable that none be left to waste, and that the quality be such as to command top prices.

If you have cream to separate you cannot afford to delay this investment a single day. If you haven't the ready cash the machine will earn its cost while you are paying for it.

CHAPTER XXIII.—Continued.

"Open or shut it matters not to me," she returned curtly. "You know that I would not leave her alone in your hands. All this fuss, too, over an old bit of paper, that you know well enough was never a love letter written to her."

"How do you know, Madame?" he questioned eagerly.

"Know? Who better?" she said. "Since I have it."

"You?" he cried.

"Yes, I," she replied, amused at his vehemence.

The missing paper was discovered. I started, and in my agitation grasped the curtain, which moved and gave out a sound that had they not been so engrossed in defying each other they must have heard.

She unpinned the paper, hidden under a lapel on her bosom.

"Give it to me," he commanded in a still voice.

"To you—why?" she inquired.

"I have a right to any clandestine letters of my daughter's," he replied, evasively.

"Clandestine? Nonsense!" she cried indignantly. "You know as well as I do that it is an old letter written before Rosemary was born—so much Raoul told me. The letter, as I said, I have never read."

"I would read it then," he muttered.

"I will read it to you, if you have not heard it before, since you take such an interest in it," she said, and her voice was quite as sarcastic as my lord's own.

While saying, she had put up her glass in a deliberate manner. He watched her with a diabolic expression on his face, and his fingers tapped the snuff-box he held in his hand.

She read: "Elaine!" (my own name) and she sniffed disdainfully; then began again: "Elaine—adorable one. The hour will be eleven o'clock. R. W. will be on duty. Je t'embrasse."

"R."

"Em-m, the King's signet—it grows interesting—and the date is Dwight," I said, "about that old bit of paper you hold in your hand, and which seems to have been equally felicitous in being in demand. On the day of January 16th, 1839, my lord is right as to the date—I bowed to him—a man high in court, so high that he made men envious of his standing—one so much so that he planned his destruction—was waiting for an audience with that unfortunate King Charles I at Whitehall. A page came rushing up to him and handed him a note—you have it in your hand. The man took it and read it, before he realized that it was not intended for him, in fact, as the opening shows, it was for a woman. He half smiled, thinking of the page's stupidity, and that he had happened upon a liaison of that most virtuous King. He was giving it back to the lad, when something in his craven face made him inquire to whom he was to deliver it. The lad hemmed and hawed and then refused to say—but the man compelled him at last to admit that it was for—Lady Waters."

I continued slowly, so as to give her time to grasp what I was saying—she was so anguished. "She was the man's wife."

"He thought that of me!" she wailed. It was the cry of a broken heart.

"It was a kingly assignation—but he was more fastidious than the men of the present day." I went hurriedly on. "It drove him mad. He fled the town without verifying the note—without seeing the King—without one word to his young wife. The man who planned the dastardly deed was only too well aware of his sensitive nature. Lord Waters joined Cromwell's army, and thus obtained a divorce from his wife, who had in the meantime gone to France. He loved his first wife so dearly that, believing in her infidelity, she was dead to him henceforth. Later he married again. His second wife soon died; and the lonely man, oppressed by the thought of his first wife and the wrong he might have done her, dragged out a January—Jan-January." She stopped and held it closer to her nose and re-adjusted her glass as she strove to make out the faded figures.

"January 16th, 1839," Lord Felton, engrossed, supplied the date.

"Yes, that is it, January 16th, 1839. How did you know?" she quickly asked. "Ah! there is more in this than I thought," she gasped, and sank back into a chair. "January 16th, 1839! The date is stamped upon my brain—it was the night Lord Waters left me!"

miserable existence in solitude at Long Haut. The outcome of this brooding of many years was to feel that he had been too hasty; that the page had purposely deceived him. These thoughts so rankled in his brain that they were his death. I am the offspring of this second marriage, Lady Dwight, and before my father died he sent me to London to dig out, if possible, the truth of the matter, and to make such reparation as was possible and ask forgiveness of the woman he was sure he had most grievously wronged."

"How could he?" she faltered, "how could he—I loved him."

"How could he, indeed," I murmured.

"Did you succeed in finding the person who did this infamous deed?" Sir Raoul Dwight asked. His voice was as hard as the nehermost stone, and a dangerous glint was in his eye.

I did not answer him immediately and he explained:

"You must know, sir, that this is the first intimation I ever had of my mother's sorrow, and that my father did not die before I was born. It was a fond solicitation on my mother's part, if, perhaps, a mistaken one, in not letting me know all."

He kissed his mother's hand as if apologizing for blaming her in the least part.

"I could not—I could not," she whispered; "my pride would not let me tell my child that his father had left me."

"The name, sir; the name of this person," he demanded; "if alive I would meet him, if dead I would know his name to curse him."

"The man who drove a loving husband from his home, and broke the heart of a beautiful woman—a woman with an unborn babe, the man who did this deed—"

I stopped and looked at Lord Felton. He stood as a courteous man of the world might, displaying only an interested curiosity upon the hearing of an old bit of gossip. Ah! he was brave enough, mad man that he was, and he awaited the blow as he would

CHAPTER XXIV.

The Ties of Kinship.

Yes, my eyes questioned—how did you know? To this question I read the answer in his eyes that met mine for one fleeting second. Run to earth by his own inadvertent words, he acknowledged himself guilty. Should I expose him? He would not ask for pity, that I knew full well. There was no cringing in his attitude.

We had stepped from our hiding place when Lady Dwight began to read the note, but they had been so absorbed in it and themselves that they had not heeded us or that other spectator, Raoul Dwight, who had been standing in the doorway, until now.

There was a sardonic, devil-care look upon Lord Felton's face as he took a pinch of snuff. Then he leisurely closed his snuff box and flicked with his lace kerchief the floating particles of snuff, which he imagined adhered to his cravat. He seemed rather to be enjoying the situation under the scrutiny of our pairs of eyes. It was as if he had known that the time must come when his carefully-guarded secret would out, and he had studied how he should act when the time came till it fitted him like his skin, and the acting of an ignoble part he would make glorious.

I went up to Lady Dwight, who sat in her chair, wonderment, curiosity, and the demand to be gratified in them, written on her face.

"I have a tale to relate, Lady have the ax of the headsman, with an inward flinching but an outward composure.

"The man is—dead—and I cannot divulge his name," I finished.

Then Lord Felton's face flushed. I saw him open his mouth to speak; I felt the words, "He lies—I am the man," trembled on his lips. He looked at his daughter, Rosemary, and saw fear and relief commingled; at Lady Dwight, who had trusted him for years, and saw suspicion dawning there—and, they were unuttered.

"Lord Waters died without knowing, Lady Dwight, that he had another son," I continued. "I was imprisoned, although promised safety and reinstatement by the king, immediately after I found it out. This I was unable either to convey to you or to my father the word I desired. I was struck upon the head and lay for a time sick. When I recovered it was too late for me to receive Lord Waters' blessing and give him the tidings that might have made his passage into heaven easier."

"He is dead!" she exclaimed.

Rosemary, kneeling at her side, took her shaking hands in her firm young ones and fondled her.

"Lady Dwight, my father left vast estates, and to these your son, Raoul Dwight, as his father's son, succeeds."

She made a motion of protest, and her son Raoul raised his head with expectancy.

"I shall not be exactly poor," I smiled and said, for I read her womanly heart. "My mother was Squire Hadley's daughter and heiress. As you know, her mother was Elinor Sackett, and brought vast estates to her country squire, whom in marrying the world thought she had taken a step backward, but she thought otherwise."

I dismissed that subject with a wave of the hand, while I turned to the two men.

"Lord Felton and Sir Raoul Dwight," I said, "I have a request to make to each of you. I am a bold man—it will cost you much. Of you," I bowed to Sir Raoul, "that you will take my hand in friendship for our father's sake. Of you," I bowed to Lord Felton, "that you will give me Rosemary to wed."

I had said what I wished, and I waited the result. In each face I read the conflict going on in their souls. Lord Felton, having nothing to lose (Rosemary had been nothing to him for years), was the first to speak.

"Lady Dwight," he said, "you have occupied the place of mother to Mary for years, ever since her own mother died. Are you pleased that she should marry Quentin Waters?"

"Indeed yes, an she love him," replied the sweet lady. She kissed the blushing Rosemary at her side.

"Then Mister Quentin Waters—I believe your title on your mother's side is Lord Sackett—"

I nodded.

"Lord Sackett—it is no more than right that you should be called by it—I give my daughter into your keeping, and may you make her happy." He finished with a great show of virtue, and put Rosemary's hand in mine like the fond parent on the stage, bowed, gave a French shrug to his shoulders, and stepped back. He had to his satisfaction paid the debt he owed me.

Sir Raoul Dwight, with a good grace he said, for no doubt he thought he loved Rosemary—with some men love of money and love of women are not distinguishable, they are so closely woven; one is the web and the other the warp of the loom—now came forward. With a low bow he said, extending his hand:

"I would we had known before, sir, that the ties of kinship bound us—I request your friendship."

We clasped hands heartily.

"As for you, sweet coz," he said to Rosemary, "I am as ever your devoted cousin"—and bending over her he kissed her cheek and took the rose from her hair, asking, "May I keep it?"

And she answered lowly, "Yes."

THE END.

Coleridge the Soldier.

Substance could not, however, be made on the reading and writing of pamphlets, nor the means of livelihood obtained by the most eloquent and entrancing of conversations, and Coleridge, finding himself both forlorn and destitute in London, enlisted as a soldier in the Fifteenth (Elliot's) Life Dragoons, says the English House Beautiful.

"On his arrival at the quarters of the regiment," says his friend and biographer, Mr. Gillman, "the general of the district inspected the recruits, and looking hard at Coleridge with a military air inquired, 'What's your name, sir?'"

"Comberbach" (the name he had assumed). "What do you come here for, sir?" as if doubting whether he had any business there. "Sir," said Coleridge, "for what most persons come—to be made a soldier." "Do you think," said the general, "you can run a Frenchman through the body?" "I do not know," replied Coleridge, "as I have never tried; but I'll let a Frenchman run me through the body before I'll run away." "That will do," said the general, and Coleridge was turned into the ranks."

Reformer in Trouble.

Isidora Duncan, a California girl who has revived the dances of the Greeks, was fined $30 by a German court recently for insulting a government bailiff. The official called to hand some documents to Miss Duncan, who called him an insolent person. Isidora Duncan appeared in court in a pure white costume, her hair in a fillet, her bare feet in sandals, and told the judge she was nervous and hysterical from overwork. The judge admitted her plea, inflicting a fine only.

WHO RANG THE BELL?

Incident For the Society of Psychological Research.

For thirty-one years Harrison Elmer had rung, precisely at 12 o'clock noon and 9 o'clock p. m., the town bell, which hung in the belfry of the old Congregational church, in the town of Ashfield, Mass. A most peculiar man, having very little to say unless one solicited speech of him, he made few friends and no enemies.

On the evening of Jan. 13, 1890, the old bell did not ring at 9 o'clock as usual. The people waited and wondered. Harrison had been always punctual at his post. That night, just as the clocks in the village struck 12, one long, wierd stroke of the old bell rang out, awakening the sleepers of the "Plain." Harrison had that night passed away. Who or what rang the bell?

A Post-Mortem Bleeding.

You can no more breed a polo pony than you can breed a business man, says a writer in Country Life in America. You find them high, and you find them low. It's a matter of chance. And polo players have theories about it because they're players, not horsemen. I have seen a bunch of them speculating as to what was alling a pony when the horse had been dead for full five minutes. Then they started in to give it a post-mortem bleeding. They were polo players. Those are the men that think they can breed the ponies.

Women of the Kaffirs.

The Kaffirs believe that a woman is a necessary appendage to a household; the women care for their huts and do all the housework, while the men watch the cattle. They do not always marry as young as they like, and yet the youngest and most attractive girls often go to the ugly, old men with plenty of money. A man is not worried because he can not win the favor of the girl he wants. Her likes and dislikes count for little.

Bring Messages from Dead.

There is a curious burial custom among the Mordovinians, who inhabit the middle Volga provinces of Russia and are professedly Christians. They believe that a deceased relative forty days after interment returns to his old home. Falling his visible return the next of kin personates him, dressed in his clothes, and professes to deliver solemn messages from the other side of the grave.

How Carpenter Drives Nail.

How many hammer strokes does a carpenter use in driving a nail? Perhaps not one carpenter in a thousand or one layman in ten times that number can tell, or ever thinks of it. The truth of the matter is this: The carpenter takes seven strokes in driving a nail into ordinary wood and twelve regular strokes and two finishing taps in driving nails into hardwood.

What Actuates a Woman.

Tell the average woman that a maximum of mutton means a minimum of morals, and she will probably laugh at you and go on eating mutton (if she likes it). But assure her that a charming complexion will result from vegetarianism and the butcher may justifiably feel forebodings of coming disaster.—Exchange.

Darning Machine.

A darning machine, one which will in ten minutes cover a hole that an industrious woman could hardly fill in an hour, is a recently invented piece of labor saving apparatus.

COFFEE HEART

Very Plain in Some People.

A great many people go on suffering from annoying ailments for a long time before they can get their own consent to give up the indulgence from which their trouble arises.

A gentleman in Brooklyn describes his experience as follows:

"I became satisfied some months ago that I owed the palpitation of the heart, from which I suffered almost daily, to the use of coffee (I had been a coffee drinker for 20 years), but I found it very hard to give up the beverage.

"I realized that I must give up the harmful indulgence in coffee but I felt the necessity for a hot table drink, and as tea is not to my liking, I was at a loss for awhile what to do.

"One day I ran across a very sensible and straightforward presentation of the claims of Postum Food Coffee, and was so impressed thereby that I concluded to give it a trial. My experience with it was unsatisfactory till I learned how it ought to be prepared—by thorough boiling for not less than 15 or 20 minutes. After I learned that lesson there was no trouble. Postum Food Coffee proved to be a most palatable and satisfactory hot beverage, and I have used it ever since.

"The effect on my health has been most salutary. It has completely cured the heart palpitation from which I used to suffer so much, particularly after breakfast, and I never have a return of it except when I dine or lunch away from home and am compelled to drink the old kind of coffee because Postum is not served. I find that Postum Food Coffee cheers and invigorates while it produces no harmful stimulation." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

There's a reason.

Ten days' trial proves an eye opener to many.

HAPPY WOMEN.

Mrs. Pare, wife of C. B. Pare, a prominent resident of Glasgow, Ky., says: "I was suffering from a complication of kidney troubles. Besides a bad back, I had a great deal of trouble with the secretions, which were exceedingly variable, sometimes excessive and at other times scanty. The color was high, and passages were accompanied with a searing sensation. Doan's Kidney Pills soon regulated the kidney secretion, making their color normal and abolished the inflammation which caused the scalding sensation. I can truly say, my back is strong and sound and I feel much better in every way."

Where the Money Goes.

The American people spent as much money last year for gems and jewelry as they spent for pianos and other musical instruments, and more than three times as much as they spent on sewing machines.—New York Sun.

Investigation of the Packers.

Very general interest has been manifested in the government investigation now in progress into the mode of conducting business by the large packers located in Chicago and elsewhere. Much has been written upon the alleged illegal and improper methods of business procedure connected with the packing industry; but it seems that far no definite charge of any kind has been sustained and no proof of illegal or inequitable methods has been closed to the public. While a wave of severe criticism of this great industry is now passing over the country it might be well to remember that the packers have had as yet no opportunity to make specific denial of the many indefinite charges of wrongdoing having never been formulated so that a categorical answer could be made.

The recent report of Commissioner Garfield, which embodied the results of an official investigation undertaken by the Department of Commerce and Labor of the United States, was a vindication of the Western packers, this result having been unexpected attempts in many quarters to discredit were made.

In view of the situation as it stands, however, attention may properly be called to a few facts that are of popular clamor are now being apparently overlooked. Fair treatment in this country has heretofore been accorded to all citizens whose affairs of some prominence in the public eye bear some relation of the packers to this measure of the country may at this time be briefly alluded to. It would be difficult to estimate the benefits gained by the farmers of the country resulting from the energetic enterprise of the packers, for whatever is of benefit to the farmer is a gain to the commerce of the country. And connected with their continuous aggressive work no feature perhaps has been more important than their efforts seeking outlets all over the world for the surplus products of the farm. Our total exports of agricultural products have gained but little in the past twenty years, and leaving out of the total of all other farm products was far less in 1903 than in 1891. In packing house products there is considerable gain during this period because an organized and powerful force has been behind them seeking new and broader markets.

Besides the benefits reaped by farmers on account of the enterprise and energy exercised by the packers in obtaining commercial results by foreign trade, the great development in the manufacture of packing house products has added enormously to the value of all live stock raised in the United States. The waste material twenty years ago, then an expensive packer, is now converted into articles of great value, and as an economic fact, this must correspondingly increase the value to the farmer of every head of cattle marketed at numerous stockyards of the country. Let these facts be remembered and now it is so popular to regard great packing industry as deserving condemnation. At least it must be admitted that, so far, there is no adequate reason for the almost unanimous howl that may be heard everywhere in the face of the Garfield report above alluded to which practically exonerates the packers from the secure and indefinite charges that have been for some time past made the subject of popular comment.—American Homestead.

Charity generally begins at home and with lots of folks never gets as far as their front door.

With the coming of May, Hudson River navigation opens, and both day line and the night boats—palaces of elegance and models of comfort—will be once again in active service. Travel the earth over one will find more beautiful water trip than journey up or down the historic Hudson that flows majestically through a valley of peace, still bearing the steps and scars of battle; still echoing with the sounds of war.—From "Pocket Confidences," in Four-Trade News for May.

Lots of folks find it more to the liking to argue about Christianity than to practice it.

BILIOUSNESS AND CONSTIPATION CURED BY THE DRAUGHT

THE DRAUGHT

Because the liver is neglected people suffer with constipation, biliousness, headaches and fevers. Colds attack the lungs and contagious diseases take hold of the system. It is safe to say that if the liver were always kept in proper working order, illness would be almost unknown.

The Draught is so successful in curing such sickness because it is without a rival as a liver regulator. This great family medicine is not a strong and drastic drug, but a mild and healthful laxative that cures constipation and may be taken by a mere child without possible harm.

The healthful action on the liver cures biliousness. It has an invigorating effect on the kidneys. Because the liver and kidneys do not work regularly, the poisonous acids along with the waste from the bowels get back into the blood and virulent contagion results.

Timely treatment with The Draught removes the dangers which lurk in constipation, liver and kidney troubles, and will positively forestall the inroads of Bright's disease, for which disease in advanced stages there is no cure. Ask your dealer for a 25c. package of The Draught.
