THE JUNE WEDDING

The June Bride and the Present are a trio that cause a deal of excitement in homes where they are in evidence.

The presents are a very important part of the occasion, indeed. And just as it would be impossible to have a wedding without a bride—it is impossible to have presents without a jewelry store.

We would like to make it plain to gift-givers that this store will undertake to supply them with attractive, artistic articles that are in every sense suitable—and in every particular worthy the occasion.

I doesn't take so very much money to own them either—not nearly as much as it used to.

Our offerings for June Weddings:

Diamond Wedding Rings,
Tecco Pottery, Rich Cut Glass,
Artistic Printed China, Hand Painted China,
Sterling Silver Ware, Silver Plated Ware.

We will gladly assist you in every possible way to make a selection at the

THE MEMORIAL SERVICE.

PRESENTATION OF A FLAG.

The Annual Sermon for the Post and Corps
Delivered at the Methodist Church Sunday
by Dr. E. E. Caster.

The members of R. P. Carpenter Post, No. 41 G. A. R. and the Women's Relief Corps met at their hall in this place Sunday morning, formed into line and marched to the M. E. church, where the annual memorial sermon was delivered by the Rev. E. E. Caster, D. D. The address was a masterly one, and the audience listened to it with rapt attention.

The members of the Baptist and Congregational churches united with the Methodists and the service was a union one and a large audience was present. The annual roll call was made by Theo. E. Wood.

The members of the Post and Corps presented to the M. E. church society a fine silk American flag about 3½x6 feet, nicely mounted on a staff. This is the first time so far as is known that a presentation of this character has ever taken place in the state, by a G. A. R. Post. Theo. E. Wood, in a few well chosen words made the presentation for the Post. The Post has decided that at the close of their annual memorial sermon, it will present to the church where the services are conducted a similar flag until every church in this village has been visited.

The Decoration Day Committees appointed by the Post and Corps visited the following cemeteries: Mt. Olivet, Oak Grove, St. Mary's, Sylvan Center, Vermont, Lima Center, Doud, John Moore and German M. E., and the last resting places of the departed veterans was marked with flags and flowers, in commemoration of their valor.

THE SYMPHONY CONCERT.

The University Orchestra a Distinct Success—Henri Ern, a Fine Conductor—Good Attendance.

The symphony concert given last Friday evening by the University Orchestra, Henri Ern, conductor, was a distinct success. A large and enthusiastic audience of music lovers responded to the very unusual opportunity of hearing a full orchestra in their home town, and if one may judge by the prolonged applause which followed each number the concert was greatly appreciated. The results obtained by Mr. Ern as a conductor are nothing less than remarkable when it is taken into consideration that the members of the orchestra are, almost without exception, amateurs. The fine shading in expression and the union of the playing even in the most technical passages were features which made their music decidedly creditable. There were times in some of their finer movements when the effect was surprisingly close to that of a symphony orchestra of the first class.

It would be difficult to say too much in appreciation of Mr. Ern as a violinist. The brilliancy of his playing, its technical perfection, and pure sweetness of tone one can seldom hear equaled even if he makes a business of hearing all the best music within his reach. He is every inch the artist and is coming to be recognized as a composer of ability. His second number, one of his own compositions, was especially enjoyed, as well as the final encore which the audience won by prolonged applause.

Miss Farlin has a sweet soprano voice and it is always a pleasure to hear her sing. Her three numbers required very different treatment, giving her an opportunity of showing that her study has been exceedingly thorough.

It is to be hoped that the return of the entire company can be arranged for next year. The encouraging patronage accorded it this year would certainly seem to warrant another appearance.

NEW PYTHIAN CASTLE.

One of the Finest Society Halls in Chelsea—Located in the McKune Building—Handsome Decorations.

The members of Chelsea Castle, K. of P. have got their new rooms in the McKune building all settled and nicely arranged, making them one of the finest society halls in this village.

Several weeks ago a committee composed of Geo. A. BeGole, H. D. Witherell, Dr. A. Guide, H. Lighthall and H. S. Holmes was appointed by the members of the order, with instructions to have the suite of rooms put in first-class condition. The work that has just been completed and represents an outlay of about $400.

The entire decorations of the ceilings and walls predominates in brown and green and the effect produced is very pleasing. The furniture is all made of golden oak with brown leather coverings and it harmonizes nicely with the interior decorations. Several new rugs have been placed on the floors that materially aid in beautifying the appearance of the numerous rooms. The windows are all draped with tapestry curtains that blend in unison with the other furnishings.

The rooms have been arranged so that there is a large hall for lodge purposes, an ante-room, reception parlor, billiard room, two cloak rooms, a kitchen, toilet room, paraphernalia room and at the head of the stairs a spacious vestibule entrance has been provided. The electric light fixtures are of the latest designs, and the lights are well arranged. The entire suite of rooms are so constructed that by opening the doors, they can be converted into one large assembly room.

COUNCIL PROCEEDINGS.

(OFFICIAL.)

Chelsea, Mich., May 17, 1905.

Board met in regular session.
Meeting called to order by the president.

Roll called by the clerk.

CARDINALS PLAYED BALL.

RESULTS OF THREE GAMES.

Two on Decoration Day and One at Jackson Last Saturday—Local Team Won Two of Them.

The K. A. C. of Detroit 8, Cardinals 0, was the result of the morning game on Decoration Day. Beissel who pitched this game for the local team put out 15 men and if he had received any support from the team in the field the Cardinals would have won the game. Sweeney of K. A. C. team made 4 hits out of 6 at the bat. The score was as follows:

1 2 3 4 5 6 7 8 9 R H E
K. A. C. 2 0 0 0 2 0 4 0 - 8 10 4
Cardinals 0 0 0 0 0 0 0 0 - 0 5 7
Batteries, B. Allen and Tyndall, Beissel and Steinbach.

The afternoon game Cardinals 6—K. A. C. 8. The results of this game shows that the local team can yet be termed "it" when they get down and work. The visiting routers were about the worst gang of "knockers" that ever visited the M. & B. park. The locals began to play the national game right at the start and kept it up until the last inning. Bacon for the locals made 4 hits out of 5 at the bat two of which were two baggers. A double play by McGuinness to Schenk to Steinbach was a fine one and entitled to the applause it received from the fans. McLaren in the right field caught a fly which resulted in a double play and loud cheers from the spectators. Ackley for the Cardinals struck out 12 men and was admirably supported by BeGole. The following is the result of the score:

1 2 3 4 5 6 7 8 9 R H E
Cardinals 3 4 0 1 0 1 0 x - 9 11 4
K. A. C. 1 0 0 1 0 1 0 0 - 3 4 8
Batteries, Ackley and BeGole, J. Allen and Longhead.

The Cardinals did not play the last half of the ninth innings. Ray Cook umpired both games.

Cardinals 4—Jackson high school 3. This is the result of one of the best ball games a Chelsea team ever played. The Cardinals with two defeats chalked up against them on their home grounds decided that a change would help them to victory, so invaded the enemies territory last Saturday with the above result. That Chelsea now has a winner, can not be disputed if the members of the team only keep up the good work of last Saturday. The boys played like a lot of veterans and everyone was in the game at all stages. Chelsea's runs were all scored in the first innings, and Jackson scored two in the first and one in third, this being the extent of the scoring. The features of the game was Bacon work at third and the pitching of Holmes. The score was as follows:

Jackson 2 0 1 0 0 0 0 0 - 3 5

Batteries, Holmes and BeGole, McCollough and Welch.

THE LINE IN OPERATION.

Auto-Bus Passenger Line Between Manchester and Chelsea Being Well Patronized—Car Can Be Chartered.

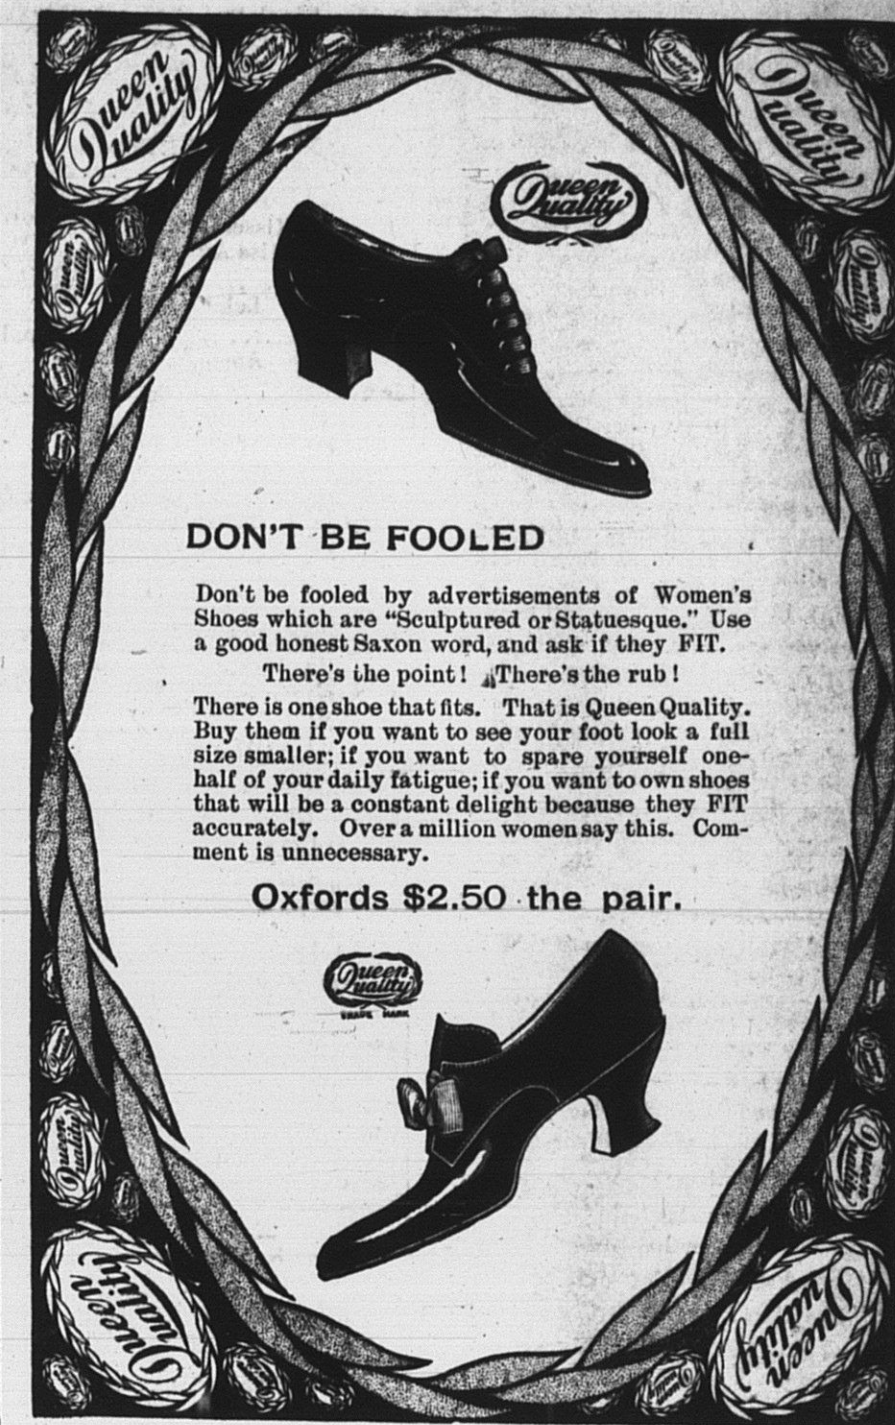

The auto-bus passenger line started by Wm. H. Blake, of Cheboygan, between Manchester and Chelsea has been in operation for nearly two weeks and is being liberally patronized, and the patrons are highly pleased with the service. It takes about one hour to make the trip between the two villages, and close connections are made here with the electric line.

The auto leaves Manchester at 6:30 in the morning and at 1:30 in the afternoon and leaves Chelsea at 11:10 in the forenoon and at 6:00 in the evening. Standard time. The fare one way is 50 cents, and 75 cents for a round trip ticket. Tickets are on sale at the Bank Drug store and the Chelsea House.

Robert Merithew, of Manchester, has taken the management of the business, and he informs The Standard that a low rate of fare for the farmers along the route will be made, and that the car can be chartered by our citizens for trips to the nearby lakes, between the schedule runs and for evening parties after 7:30.

The line will be a great accommodation to the residents of Manchester as it allows them to leave their home after dinner, spend about two hours in Ann Arbor and reach home in time for supper. The service of a competent man has been secured to operate the car, and as Manchester has no immediate prospects of an electric car line, the auto-bus will in a large measure fill the bill. If the business increases as fast as the manager believes it will they will put more cars on the route and extend it to towns south of Manchester, and the trips between Chelsea and there will be increased so as to handle the travelling public to the best interests of all concerned.

JOAN OF THE SWORD HAND

By S. R. CROCKETT, Author of "The Raiders," etc.
(Copyright, 1898, 1900, by S. R. Crockett.)

CHAPTER VIII.—Continued.

At the little chalet among the hills where the Duchess Joan had so suddenly disappeared they found two of her attendants and her aged nurse impatiently awaiting their mistress. To them entered that composite and puzzling youth the ex-architect and secretary of the embassy of Plessenburg, Johann, Count von Loen. And, wonder of wonders, in an hour Joan of the Sword Hand was riding eagerly towards her capital city with her due retinue, as if she had been only taking a little summer breathing space at a country seat.

It was six months afterwards that the Sparhawk, who had been given the command of a troop of good Hohenstein lancers, asked permission to go on a journey.

"Whither would you go?" asked his mistress.

"To Courtland," he confessed, somewhat reluctantly, looking down at the peaked toe of his tanned leather riding boot.

"And what takes you to Courtland?" said Joan: "you are in danger there. Besides, would you leave my service and engage with some other?"

"Nay, my lady," he burst out; "that will not I, so long as life lasts! But—the truth is—he hesitated as he spoke—"I cannot get out of my mind the Princess who kissed me in the dark. The like never happened before to any man. I cannot forget her, do what I will. No, nor rest till I have looked upon her face."

"Wait," said Joan. "Only wait till the spring and it is my map to ride to Courtland for my marriage day. Then I promise you shall see somewhat of her—the Lord send it be not more than enough!"

So through many bitter days the Sparhawk abode at the castle of Kernsburg, ill content.

CHAPTER IX.

The Sparhawk in the Tolls.

It was the end of May, and the full bursting glory of a northern spring, when at last the bridal cavalcade wound down from the towers of the Castle of Kernsburg.

As they rode toward the gate of Courtland they were aware of a splendid cavalcade which came out to receive them in the name of the prince, and to conduct them with honor to the palace prepared for them.

In the center of a brilliant company rode the Princess Margaret. At sight of the duchess' party the princess alighted from her steed with the help of a cavalier. At the same moment Joan of the Sword Hand leaped down of her own accord and came forward to meet her new sister.

The face of the princess showed a trace of emotion. She appeared to be struggling with some recollection she was unable to locate with precision.

"I hope you will be very happy with my brother," she faltered; then after a moment she added, "Have you not perchance a brother of your own?"

But before Joan could reply, a representative of the prince had come forward to conduct the bride-elect to her rooms, and the princess gave place to him.

But all the same she kept her eyes keenly about her, and presently they rested with a sudden brightness upon the young Dane, Maurice von Lynar, at the head of his troop of horses.

"He is different—he is changed," she said to herself; "but how—wait till we get to the palace, and I shall soon find out."

And immediately she caused it to be intimated that all the captains of troops and the superior officers of the escort of the Duchess Joan were to be entertained at the palace of the Princess Margaret.

So at that moment when Joan was own land and then come back to flout her for it."

Maurice understood her to refer to the kiss given and returned in the darkness of the night. He knew not of how many other indiscretions he was now to bear the brunt, or he had turned on the spot and fled once more across the river.

"Princess," he said, standing humbly before her, "I did wrong. But consider the temptation, the darkness of the night—"

"The darkness of the night," she said, stamping her foot, and in an instinctively mocking tone; "you are indeed well inspired. You remind me of what I ventured that you should be free. The darkness of the night, indeed! I suppose that is all that sticks in your memory, because you gained something tangible by it. You have forgotten the walk through the corridors of the palace, all you taught me in the rose garden, and—how apt a pupil you said I was. Pray, good Master Forgetfulness, who hath forgotten all that, tell me what you did in Courtland eight months ago?"

"I came—I came," faltered the Sparhawk, fearful of yet further committing himself. "I came to find and save my dear mistress."

"Your—dear—mistress?" The princess spoke slowly, and the blue eyes hardened till they overtopped and beat down the bold, black ones of Maurice von Lynar; "and you dare to tell me this—me, to whom you swore that you had never loved woman in the world before, never spoken to them word of wooing or compliment! Out of my sight, fellow! The prince, my brother, will deal with you."

Then all suddenly her pride gave way. The disappointment was too keen. She sank down on a silk-covered ottoman by the window side, sobbing.

Now Maurice von Lynar was not quick in discernment where woman was concerned, but on this occasion he recognized that he was blindly playing the hand of another, a hand, moreover, of which he could not hope to see the cards. He did the only thing which could have saved him with the princess. He came near and sank on one knee before her.

"Madam," he said humbly and in a moved voice, "I beseech you not to be angry—not to condemn me unheard. In the sense of being in love, I never loved any but yourself. I would rather die than put the least slight upon one so surpassingly fair, whose memory has never departed from me, sleeping or waking, whose image, dimly seen, has never for a moment been erased from my heart's tablets."

"But you said just now that you came to Courtland to see 'your dear mistress'?"

The young man put his hand to his head.

"You must bear with me," he said, "if perchance for a little my words are wild. I had, indeed, no right to speak of you as my dear mistress."

"Oh, it was of me that you spoke," said the princess, beginning to smile a little; "I begin to understand."

"Of what other could I speak?" said the shameless von Lynar, who now began to feel his way a little clearer.

"I have indeed been very ill, and when I am in straits my head is still unsettled. It springs from a secret wound that at the time I knew nothing of."

As he kneeled thus the princess bent over him with a quizzical expression on her face:

"You are sure that you speak the truth now? Your wound is not causing you to dote?"

"Nay," said the Sparhawk; "indeed, 'tis almost healed."

"Where was the wound?" queried the princess, anxiously.

"There were two," answered von Lynar, diplomatically; "one in my shoulder at the base of my neck, and the other, more dangerous, because internal, on the head, itself."

"Let me see."

She came and stood above him as he put his hand to the collar of his doublet, and, unfastening a tie, he slipped it down a little and showed her at the spring of his neck Werner von Orseln's thrust.

"And the other," she said, covering it up with a little shudder, "that on the head, where is it?"

The youth blushed, but answered valiantly enough.

"It never was an open wound, and so is a little difficult to find. Here, where my hand is, above my brow."

"Hold up your head," said the princess. "On what side was it? On the right? Strange, I cannot find it. You are too far beneath me. The light falls not aright. Ah, that is better!"

Von Lynar looked at the princess. Their position was one as charming as it was dangerous. They were kneeling opposite to one another, their faces, drawn together by the interest of the surgical examination, had approached very close. The dark eyes squarely looked into the blue. With stiff inflammable, fire and tow in such conjunction, who knows what conflagration might have ensued had von Lynar's eyes continued thus to dwell on those of the princess?

But the young man's gaze passed over her shoulder. Behind Margaret of Courtland he saw a man standing at the door with his hand still on the latch. A dark frown overspread his face. The princess, instantly conscious that the interest had gone out of the situation, followed the direction of von Lynar's eyes. She rose to her feet as the young Dane also had done a moment before.

Maurice recognized the man who stood by the door as the same whom he had seen on the ground in the yew-tree walk when he and Joan of the Sword Hand had faced the howling mob of the city. For the second time Prince Wasp had interfered with the amusements of the Princess Margaret.

The lady looked haughtily at the intruder.

"To what," she said, "am I so fortunate as to owe the unexpected honor of this visit?"

"I came to pay my respects to your highness," said Prince Wasp, bowing low. "I did not know the princess was amusing herself. It is my ill-fortune, not my fault, that I interrupted at a point so full of interest."

"You are at liberty to leave me now," said the princess, falling back on a certain haughty dignity which she kept behind her headlong impulsiveness.

"I obey, madam," he replied; "but first I have a message from your brother. He asks you to be good enough to accompany his bride to the minister to-morrow. He has been ill all day with his old trouble, and cannot wait in person upon his betrothed. He must abide in solitude for this day at least. Your highness is apparently more fortunate!"

"Only in the heart!" she added.

The purpose of the insult was plain; but the Princess Margaret restrained herself, not, however, hating the insulter less.

"I pray you, Prince Ivan," she said, "return to my brother and tell him that his commands are ever an honor, and shall be obeyed to the letter."

She bowed in dignified dismissal. Prince Wasp swept his plumed hat along the floor with the depth of his retiring salutation, and in the same moment he flashed out his sting.

"I leave your highness with less regret as I perceive that solitude has its compensations!" he said.

The pair was left alone, but all things seemed altered now. Margaret of Courtland was silent and distraught. Von Lynar had a frown upon his brow, and his eyes were very dark and angry.

"Next time I must kill the fellow!" he muttered. He took the hand of the princess and respectfully kissed it.

"I am your servant," he said; "I will do your bidding in all things, in life or in death. If I have forgotten anything, in aught been remiss, believe me that it was fate and not I. I will never presume, never count on your friendship past your desire, never recall your ancient goodness. I am but a poor soldier, but at least I can faithfully keep my word."

The princess withdrew her hand as if she had been somewhat fatigued.

"Do not be afraid," she said a little bitterly, "I shall not forget. I have not been wounded in the head! Only in the heart!" she added, as she turned away.

Northern Settlers' Hospitality.
The north country settlers are nothing if not hospitable," said A. S. Power of Ely. "It is proverbial that the traveler is always welcome at homes in sparsely settled regions in nearly all parts of the world, and the rule holds good through northern Minnesota."

In traversing the vast stretches of forest that still remain in the country to the north of Ely you only occasionally come across a settler's cabin, but when such a place is reached, you may be sure that you will be welcomed to stop for the night or longer.

If there is no one at home, which is often the case, you will find almost every instance, and that the door is unlocked, and perhaps there will be a notice written on the door inviting you to make the most of the conveniences about the house while you remain in that vicinity. It is seldom, if ever, that such privileges are abused. To the man making his way along the rivers and lakes in a canoe the opportunity to stop over night in a house, such as it is, with a stove to cook on, is usually eagerly seized.—Duluth Herald.

Deepest Haul of a Net.
The deepest haul of a net ever made in the world was achieved by Americans on the Tonga Islands in the South Pacific.

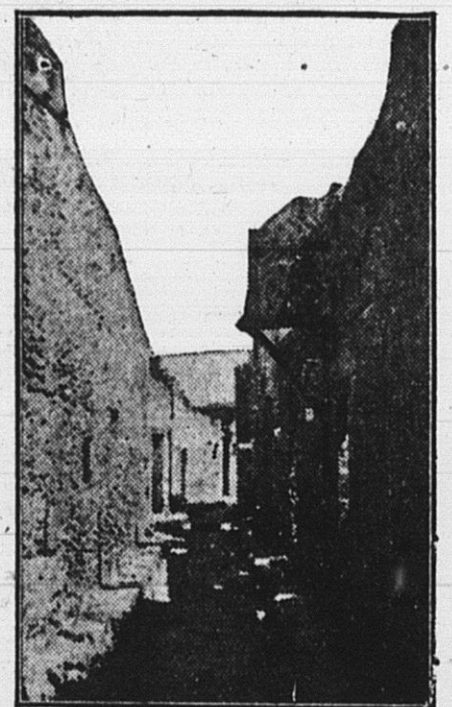

The trawl struck bottom 23,000 feet below the surface; that is considerably more than four miles down, but even at that depth animal life was found. Those strange beings lived in water whose temperature was constantly just above the freezing point, and under a pressure of 9,000 pounds to the square inch. To sink that net and bring it back again took a whole day of steady labor.—St. Nicholas.

From Dead Pompeii

(Special Correspondence.)

The traveler who has gone over the world and made acquaintance with many men and with cities, like to the wise wanderer of old Greece, and who has become familiar with grand landscapes and high mountains and famous rivers, will probably acknowledge that his first visit to the dead city of Pompeii has given him a unique and never-to-be-forgotten experience. To wander in the desolate streets of that disturbed little city, between ruined walls that are as the skeletons of houses, to note throughout the whole city hints and suggestions of a vigorous and many-sided life, is to pass in review a whole past history, and to be placed before problems of profound interest.

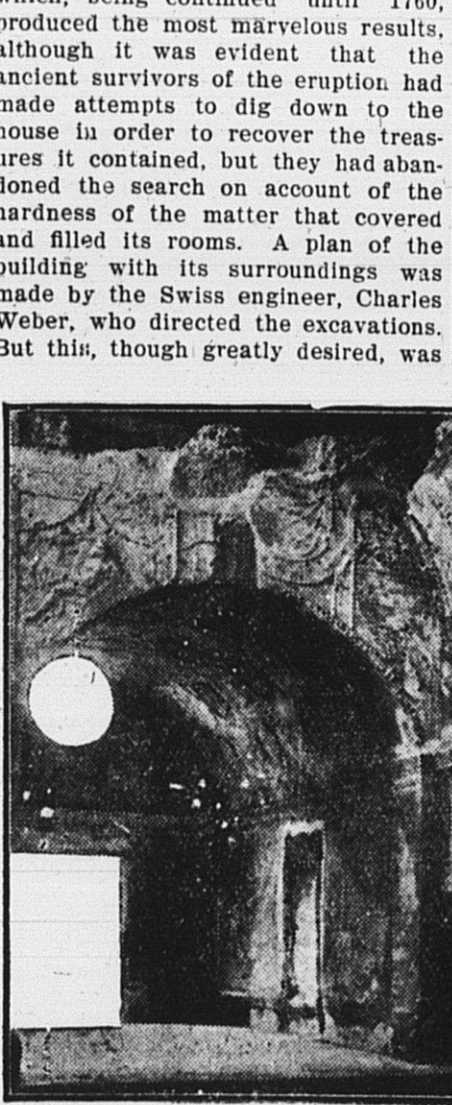

Of all the dwellings that have been unearthed from the ruins of Pompeii, or Stabia, or Herculaneum, says E. Breton, the most important both in itself and by the objects which were found in it, is that which is design-named under the names of the country house, or the House of the Papyri, or of the Aristides.

The same chance which brought about the discovery of the great theater led to that of this splendid dwelling, situated near it. In 1750 an individual while digging a well fell in with ancient walls. The king, Charles III, ordered excavations to be made, which, being continued until 1760, produced the most marvelous results, although it was evident that the ancient survivors of the eruption had made attempts to dig down to the house in order to recover the treasures it contained, but they had abandoned the search on account of the hardness of the matter that covered and filled its rooms. A plan of the building with its surroundings was made by the Swiss engineer, Charles Weber, who directed the excavations. But this, though greatly desired, was not found until about 1879, when it was published by Giulio de Petra in "Pompei e la Regione Sottopetrata dal Vesuvio nell' Anno LXXIX." That plan indicates the splendor and extent of the villa—an indication which is confirmed by a visit to the Museum at Naples. We know concerning it that the most of its floors and pavements were of marble, and that there was, as in the house of Diomedes at Pompeii, a vast garden with a large pond where live fish for the use of the table were kept, and that there was a grand peristyle in a rectangular form surrounded with stucco adorned columns.

Importance of Discovery.
But it is when we consider what has been extracted from this house that the sense of its importance is borne in upon us. There are gems of art in the Museum at Naples which have been furnished by the houses of Pompeii; but these pass into the second rank when placed beside the results furnished by this one house.

Winckelmann, who must have seen these works of art in their places which they adorned when the house was unearthed, tells us that statues of women and busts decorated the interior. These are six celebrated statues of women dancing and the busts of Cl. Marcellus, Sappho, Epichorus, Plato, Archytas, Heracleides, Democritus, Seneca, Sulpio Africanus, Sylla, Lepidus, Augustus, Livia, Cains and Lucius Caesar. As-rippina, Caligula, Ptolemy Philadelphus, Ptolemy Philometor, Ptolemy IX, called Alexander I, Ptolemy Apion—a very feminine head with peculiar curling locks—and Ptolemy Soter I, as well as the two Berenices, besides others to which no certain name has been given.

The magnificent bronze, the Drunken Faun, lying on a half-empty wine-skin, was found here at the edge of the pond between two charming figures, also of bronze, represented nude and leaning forward with their hands extended forward as if they were about to plunge into the water. The Faun is an admirable piece of sculpture; with his right hand raised he snaps his fingers at fate; his half vacant stare and his laughing features show that he is in a state of inebriety, and that, for the moment, he is merry.

Some of the busts are world renowned. That which is entitled "Plato" is reputed to be the finest bronze head in Europe. The personage represented is looking down as if in deep meditation, and every detail of his hair and beard—almost every particular hair—has been elaborately worked out. Some enthusiasts have seen in this bust a likeness to the portraits of Christ, but to ordinary eyes there is no resemblance between the two.

Another bust, which is almost as renowned as that of Plato, is the bronze representation of an aged philosopher to which the name of Seneca is attached. The report of its discovery is related by Charles Weber, in Spanish, under date of April 21, 1759, where he describes it as representing the head of an aged philosopher with beard. Sig. Comparetti has declared, and apparently proved to the satisfaction of the critics, that this bust represents the owner of the house, Calpurnius Piso Cesonius. Ordinary folks may not question the conclusions of such an authority as Comparetti, but it may be called to mind that copies of this bronze bust made in marble are very common in the museums of Europe, where they are known as busts of Seneca, the tutor of the emperor and the victim of that mad ruler's eccentricity. The head is of great artistic merit and marvelous realistic rendering. It is evidently a portrait from the life, and it gives to the world to-day the man, whoever he may be, in his habit as he lived.

Treasures of Ancient Art.

The statue called sometimes Aristides, but more frequently Eschines, an Athenian orator who flourished in the fourth century B. C., is one of the great statues of the ancient world. It rivals with the splendid Sophocles of the Lateran, and far beyond the Demosthenes of the Vatican. Though it is of marble, its grand lines and magnificent simplicity lend it a life like that of a statue, and the great orator with his right arm on his breast seems in the act of pronouncing a grand oration.

Among these treasures it is necessary to mention five monochrome paintings on marble, the work of one or more Greek artists. They are in outline, and of one color—a dark red. Perhaps the most beautiful of all, and the purest of all the ancient paintings that have come down to our age, represents two beautiful Greek girls playing at knucklebones. Three of their companions are standing by looking on at the game. The exquisite drawing of the lovely outlines and the expression, although suggested rather than delineated, make the picture a joy to look at. The old game which young girls have played at down through the centuries is here presented in its exquisiteness. "One touch of nature makes the whole world kin," and the existence of a childish game in the long past centuries is a link that binds the past to the present.

The Swiss-Spanish commercial treaty expires Aug. 31, 1905. If it is not renewed, American cheap watches, alarm clocks and similar products may win back the leading place they formerly held in the Barcelona market.

HAD TO SPEAK PLAINLY.

Cashier's Somewhat Stilted Politeness Misunderstood.

Such a dainty and dignified little old lady was she, and so different in every way from those who go to Chestnut street banks to have checks cashed, that the paying teller felt that he could not use the general phraseology of financial institutions when dealing with her. She approached the drafting window almost timidly and, on taking the check from a very old-fashioned reticule which hung about her wrist, presented it to the teller.

It called for a large amount, and somehow he could not bring himself to utter the brusque "How'll y' have it?" she was so much a picture of the olden days, of those times when phrases were gently turned, when "lady" had a real significance.

In trying to be formal he became merely stilted, and murmured, "Denomination, please?"

The prim old lady looked up in a puzzled fashion, smiled and then said: "Why, Presbyterian. I didn't know that made any difference in banks." The teller had, after all, to drift into the language of the commonplace.—Philadelphia Press.

ULCEHS FOR 30 YEARS.

Painful Eruptions From Knees to Feet Seemed Incurable—Cuticura Ends Misery.

Another of those remarkable cures by Cuticura, after doctors and all else had failed, is testified to by Mr. M. C. Moss of Galveston, Texas, in the following letter: "For over thirty years I suffered from painful ulcers and an eruption from my knees to feet, and could find neither doctors nor medicine to help me, until I used Cuticura Soap, Ointment and Pills, which cured me in six months. They helped me the very first time I used them, and I am glad to write this so that others suffering as I did may be saved from misery."

Affidavit, Please!

One day last week, W. T. Knight, a prosperous farmer of the eastern part of the county, gave a rail-splitting, and there's one tree in particular that we want you to take notice of, viz.: This tree made four cuts, ten feet long. The first cut split 107 rails; the four cuts altogether made 325 rails. Staten Wetherington says it looks like a man couldn't get forgiveness for telling such a tale as that, but he says he's the man that counted them, and will vouch for the above statement.—Jasper (Fla.) Britisher Alarmed.

"Yesterday I bought," writes a startled Briton to a London newspaper, "some black jet buttons and when I got home I found on the card, 'Best Austrian make.' I took a pencil to write in my account book; I found it had 'U. S. A.' upon it. I sharpened the point and on the sharpener was 'New York.' I got out a match to light the lamp and on the box was 'Made in Sweden.' I lit the lamp and found on it, 'Made in Bavaria.'"

Willing to Use the Ring.

A country couple came in one day to Dr. George L. Perin's study at the Every-Day church to be married. During the course of a preliminary conversation Dr. Perin asked the would-be groom if they would be married with a ring. "Well, yes," he said, hesitatingly, "if—if you have one handy, I guess we will."—Boston Herald.

BOOK OF BOOKS.

Over 30,000,000 Published.

An Oakland lady who has a taste for good literature, tells what a happy time she had on "The Road to Wellville." She says:

"I drank coffee freely for eight years before I began to perceive any evil effects from it. Then I noticed that I was becoming very nervous, and that my stomach was gradually losing the power to properly assimilate my food. In time I got so weak that I dreaded to leave the house—for no reason whatever but because of the miserable condition of my nerves and stomach. I attributed the trouble to anything in the world but coffee, of course. I dosed myself with medicines, which in the end would leave me in a worse condition than at first. I was most wretched and discouraged—not 30 years old and feeling that life was a failure!"

"I had given up all hope of ever enjoying myself like other people, till one day I read the little book 'The Road to Wellville.' It opened my eyes, and taught me a lesson I shall never forget and cannot value too highly. I immediately quit the use of the old kind of coffee and began to drink Postum Food Coffee. I noticed the beginning of an improvement in the whole tone of my system, after only two days' use of the new drink, and in a very short time realized that I could go about like other people without the least return of the nervous dread that formerly gave me so much trouble. In fact my nervousness disappeared entirely and has never returned, although it is now a year that I have been drinking Postum Food Coffee. And my stomach is now like iron—nothing can upset it!"

"Last week, during the big Conclave in San Francisco, I was on the go day and night without the slightest fatigue; and as I stood in the immense crowd watching the great parade that lasted for hours, I thought to myself, 'This strength is what Postum Food Coffee has given me!' Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

There's a reason. The little book "The Road to Wellville" may be found in every pkg.

EVERY WALK IN LIFE.

A. A. Boyce, a farmer, living near Trenton, Mo., says:

"A severe cold settled in my kidneys and developed a quickly that I was obliged to lay off work on account of the aching in my back and sides. For a time I was unable to walk at all, and every morning I tried and all the medicine I took had not the slightest effect. My back continued to grow weaker until I began taking Doan's Kidney Pills, and I must say I was more than surprised and gratified to notice the back ache disappearing gradually until I finally stopped."

Mother's Devotion.

To her children is one of the most beautiful things in life. When they are sick, the wise mother, who has taken the pains to study their best interests, promptly gives them Caldwell's (laxative) Syrup. It quickly relieves pain and fever, and can never do anything but good. Try it.

A New Terror.

Someone has lately discovered a new terror in the golf voice, necessitating a denunciation of golf for ladies. Unable to repress their natural propensity, even when separated by a considerable distance on the links, the fair golfers are accused of creating this new terror—a golf voice, loud, of course, and once acquired said to be incapable of control.

Breaking It Gently.

ATAXIA IS CURABLE

REPORTED CURE STANDS TEST OF FULL INVESTIGATION.

A Former Victim of Locomotor Ataxia Now Free from Suffering and Actively at Work.

"Yes," said Mr. Watkins to a reporter, "it is true that I have been cured of ataxia by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills."

"Are you sure you had locomotor ataxia?"

"The doctors themselves told me so. Besides I recognized the symptoms."

"What were they?"

"Well, the first indications were a stiffness about the knee joints that came on about four years ago. A few months after that appeared, my walk got to be uncertain, shaky-like. I lost confidence in my power to control the movements of my legs. Once, when I was in the cellar, I started to pick up two scuttles of coal, and my legs gave way suddenly, and I tumbled all in a heap in a basket. I couldn't close my eyes and keep my balance to save my life. Then I had fearful pains over my whole body and I lost control over my kidneys and my bowels."

"How about your general health?"

"Sometimes I was so weak that I had to keep my bed and my weight fell off twenty pounds. Things looked pretty bad for me until I ran across a young man who had been cured by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and who advised me to try them."

"Did these pills help you right away?"

"I didn't see much improvement until I had used six boxes. The first benefit I noticed was a better circulation and a picking up in strength and weight. I gradually got confidence in my ability to direct the movements of my legs, and in the course of seven or eight months all the troubles had disappeared."

"Do you regard yourself as entirely well now?"

"I do the work of a well man at any rate. I can close my eyes and stand up all right and move about the same as other men. The pains are all gone except an occasional twitch in the calves of my legs."

Mr. James H. Watkins resides at No. 72 Westerlo street, Albany, N. Y. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills can be obtained at any drug store. They should be used as soon as the first signs of locomotor ataxia appear in a peculiar numbness of the feet.

THINK OF IT!

My Pretty Matron Had Headache and Backache and Her Condition Was Serious.

E-RU-NA CURED

MRS. M. BRICKNER.

99 Eleventh Street, Milwaukee, Wis.

"A short time ago I found my condition very serious. I had headaches, pains in the back, and frequent dizzy spells which grew worse every month. I tried two remedies before Peruna, and was discouraged when I took the first dose, but my courage soon returned. In less than two months my health was restored."—Mrs. M. Brickner.

The reason of so many failures to cure cases similar to the above is the fact that diseases peculiar to the female sex are not commonly recognized as being caused by catarrh.

Catarrh of one organ is exactly the same as catarrh of any other organ. What will cure catarrh of the head will cure catarrh of the pelvic organs. Peruna cures these cases simply because it cures the catarrh.

If you have catarrh write at once to Dr. Hartman, giving a full statement of your case, and he will be pleased to give you his valuable advice gratis.

LEGEND OF THE OSTRICH.

Dwells in Solitude as Punishment for Presumption.

Among the Arabs there is a curious legend to account for the ostrich's residence in the desert. "On a certain day appointed," so the story goes, "all created beings met together to decide upon their respective order and precedence. All went smoothly until the ostrich, pleading its inability to fly, disowned the birds and claimed to take rank with the mammals.

"These, however, would have nothing to say to a creature clothed not with fur, but with feathers, while the birds, when the ostrich went dejectedly back, repudiated it also as a traitor to its race. But the ostrich was equal to the occasion and declared that being neither mammal or bird it must be an angel.

"At this all the other animals indignantly rushed upon the ostrich and drove it before them into the desert, where it has lived in solitude ever since, with no one to contradict it."

Turned the Tables.

A well known woman novelist tells a good story which rather goes against herself. While speaking at a working girls' club she gave the members some good advice, asking them how much they earned and counseling them to put by a certain amount from their weekly wages. A few nights later there was a ring at the novelist's own doorbell and a visitor was announced. It was one of the members of the club, who had come to inquire what the novelist's own income was in order that she might advise her how much of it to set aside. The novelist was, for once, at a loss for words.

In Record Time.

Piney Flats, Tenn., May 29th.—(Special)—Cured in two days of Rheumatism that had made his life a torture for two years, D. S. Hilton of this place naturally wants every other sufferer from rheumatism to know what cured him. It was Dodd's Kidney Pills.

"Dodd's Kidney Pills are the grandest pill on earth," says Mr. Hilton. "I would not take any sum of money for what they did for me. For two years I had what the doctors called rheumatism. I could hardly walk around the house. It seemed to be in my back and hip and legs. I tried everything but nothing helped me till I got Dodd's Kidney Pills."

"Two days after I took the first dose all pain left me and it has never come back since. I can't praise Dodd's Kidney Pills too much."

Rheumatism is caused by uric acid in the blood. Healthy kidneys take all the Uric Acid out of the blood. Dodd's Kidney Pills make healthy kidneys.

RECENT LEGAL DECISIONS

Knowledge by a bank of the insolvency of factors possessing authority to deposit money belonging to their customers in their own names is held, in Interstate National bank vs. Claxton (Tex.), 65 L. R. A. 820, not to be sufficient to charge it with liability for the misappropriation of such funds which it permits to be checked out in favor of third persons, although by the exercise of care it might have known that a misappropriation was being effected.

A small boat used for the common carriage of passengers for hire, and having neither sleeping apartments nor places for meals, is held, in People vs. Bernard (Mich.), 65 L. R. A. 559, not to be a dwelling house, so as to justify the forcible resistance of an officer who attempts to enter it to serve process, although a seat in the boat is used for a sleeping place by the person in possession of the boat.

The right of the owner of an island to an injunction to compel the removal of nets set in the adjoining waters in such a manner as to constitute a public nuisance is sustained in Reburn vs. Sawyer (N. C.), 65 L. R. A. 930, where they interfere with the access to and from the island and the one responsible for them is insolvent, so that an action for damages would not afford adequate relief.

A judgment determining the amount to be contributed by the stockholders of an insolvent corporation for the payment of its debts under constitutional and statutory provisions making stockholders liable for debts to the amount of the par value of the stock held by them is held, in Dight vs. Chapman (Ore.), 65 L. R. A. 793, to render the amount due from each stockholder a debt provable in bankruptcy proceedings against him, so as to be canceled by a discharge, although he did not appear in the proceeding against the corporation, where the judgment there is binding upon him.

Merely placing a design on the covers of an edition of an author's works without registering it as a trademark, or giving notice that it is claimed as such, is held, in Kipling vs. G. P. Putnam's Sons (C. C. A. 2d C.), 65 L. R. A. 873, not to protect it from use by others.

An assignment of wages to be earned in the future under an existing contract is held, in Mallin vs. Wenham (Ill.), 65 L. R. A. 602, to be valid, and the fact that the term of employment is not of definite duration is held to be immaterial.

TOUCHED THE DOCTOR'S HEART.

Pathetic Little Speech Won Over Angry Physician.

A Washington physician, who is described as possessing a "hair-trigger temper," although he does not suspect it, tells of one of the many experiences which try his patience; but this one touched his sympathies, too.

"It isn't often that I get out of patience," said the doctor, "but yesterday I was tried beyond endurance; worried by the senseless talk of women who make a sad of being invalids, and worried still worse over the case of a woman who has been smiling at death for months. Just as my office hours were over a stranger insisted on seeing me. She was young and elegantly dressed, and carried a covered basket on her arm.

"I want you to see Toby," she said. "He has such a cough." Here she opened the basket and took out an ordinary black and white cat.

"I took off his collar to have it mended, and I'm afraid he took cold, poor dear. Can't you help him?"

"I was angry all through. 'I am not a cat doctor, madam,' I said. 'I was going to ask her why she didn't find something better to take up her time than a cat, but she evidently didn't see that I was out of patience.

"But couldn't you do something for him?" she went on. "We're so fond of him. He was our little girl's pet, the very last thing she ever spoke about."

"Yes, I did. I treated that cat, and I'm proud to say I cured him."—Washington Post.

Kept His Word.

"I was up in Northern New York at a hotel for two weeks last summer," said a Philadelphia man, "and of all the inconvenient, barren sites I ever saw for a hotel that took the cake. The meals were poor, the beds worse and, as for service, you had mostly to wait upon yourself. Being alone, I stuck it out, but when ready to go I said to the landlord:

"Does this thing pay you?"

"Not a cent."

"Then why don't you burn the blamed thing down for the insurance?"

"I'm going to this winter."

"And he has kept his word like a man. Only a week ago I saw that the hotel had gone up in smoke, with the usual explanation: 'Probably spontaneous combustion.'"

LIFE ON THE MISSISSIPPI.

Veteran River Man Tells of the Days That Are Departed.

"Rafting and lumbering on the upper Mississippi has passed away with the disappearance of the great forest along the father of waters and its tributaries," said Capt. Peter Conley of Winona, Minn. Mr. Conley is one of the pioneer river men of the Mississippi and has been connected with rafting on the river for twenty-five years.

"Five and ten years ago there were at least fifty boats plying the upper river engaged only in towing rafts to the mills. This year there will be not more than ten. Packet lines afforded employment to some of the old pilots, but many have passed away and others have gone to Alaska, while some are now piloting boats on southern waters.

"The transfer of the lumbering industry from the northern waters of the Mississippi to southern has afforded the steamboat man a chance for employment far from his home. Many accumulated fortunes while working for the great lumbermen of the river and have built homes and settled down to staid occupation. Traveling on the river during the summer months is a pursuit which gives one a nomadic disposition hard to lose.

"Some of the pilots and captains I know have become owners of tow lines and some of packet lines. Others are now engaged in general business, but they always desire to get back on the river and feel the tremble of the boat when under full steam."—Milwaukee Free Press.

FIXING RAILROAD RATES.

Making railroad rates is like playing a game of checkers or chess. Communities to be benefited, producers, manufacturers or shippers to be aided represent the pieces used. Every possible move is studied for its effect on the general result by skilled traffic managers. A false move in the making of freight rates may mean the ruin of a city, of a great manufacturing interest, of an agricultural community. Railroads strive to build up all these so that each may have an equal chance in the sharp competition of business. So sensitive to this rivalry are the railroads that in order to build up business along their lines they frequently allow the shipper to practically dictate rates. Rate making has been a matter of development; of mutual concessions for mutual benefit. That is why the railroads of the United States have voluntarily made freight rates so much lower in this country than they are on the government-owned and operated railways of Europe and Australia that they are now the lowest transportation rates in the world.

Cheerfulness As a Tonic.

Cheerfulness, says Ruskin, is just as natural to the heart of a man in strong health as color to his cheek; and, wherever there is habitual gloom, there must be either bad air, unwholesome food, improperly severe labor, or erring habits of life. Cheerfulness is the best promoter of health, remarks Addison. Repinings and murmurings of the heart give imperceptible strokes to those delicate fibres of which the vital parts are composed, and wear out the machine. Cheerfulness is as friendly to the mind as to the body.

Those Newspapers.

"Now about those numerous scandals," observed the Pollock philosopher, as he bit off a fresh chew of navy plug. "The situation is just this: The papers say they wouldn't print 'em if the people didn't read 'em and the people say they wouldn't read 'em if the papers didn't print 'em, and there ye be."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

Keep Children Busy.

The child who has plenty to do does not get into mischief, and the secret of success with boys and girls is to give them so much that it is interesting to do that there is no time for mischief.

Billville Item.

"We know a fellow," says the Billville Banner, "who got married the other day and killed himself when presented with a bill for house rent. It does look like the women won't rise up and make a living for the men these days."—Atlanta-Constitution

Backache, "The Blues"

Both Symptoms of Organic Derangement in Women—Thousands of Sufferers Find Relief.

Mrs. J. G. Holmes Emma Cotrely

How often do we hear women say: "It seems as though my back would break," or "Don't speak to me, I am all out of sorts?" These significant remarks prove that the system requires attention.

Backache and "the blues" are direct symptoms of an inward trouble which will sooner or later declare itself. It may be caused by diseased kidneys or some uterine derangement. Nature requires assistance and at once, and Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound instantly asserts its curative powers in all those peculiar ailments of women. It has been the standby of intelligent American women for twenty years, and the ablest specialists agree that it is the most universally successful remedy for woman's ills known to medicine.

The following letters from Mrs. Holmes and Mrs. Cotrely are among the many thousands which Mrs. Pinkham has received this year from those whom she has relieved.

Surely such testimony is convincing. Mrs. J. G. Holmes, of Larimore, North Dakota, writes:

Dear Mrs. Pinkham:—

"I have suffered everything with backache and womb trouble—I let the trouble run on until my system was in such a condition that I was unable to be about, and then it was I commenced to use Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. If I had only known how much suffering I would have saved, I should have taken it months sooner—for a few weeks' treatment made me well and strong. My backaches and headaches are all gone and I suffer no pain at my menstrual periods, whereas before I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound I suffered intense pain."

Mrs. Emma Cotrely, 109 East 12th Street, New York City, writes:

Ask Mrs. Pinkham's Advice—A Woman Best Understands a Woman's Ills.

FREE ADVICE TO WOMEN.

Remember, every woman is cordially invited to write to Mrs. Pinkham if there is anything about her symptoms she does not understand. Mrs. Pinkham's address is Lynn, Mass., her advice is free and cheerfully given to every ailing woman who asks for it. Her advice and medicine have restored to health more than one hundred thousand women.

Save the Babies.

INFANT MORTALITY is something frightful. We can hardly realize that of all the children born in civilized countries, twenty-two per cent., or nearly one-quarter, die before they reach one year; thirty-seven per cent., or more than one-third, before they are five, and one-half before they are fifteen!

We do not hesitate to say that a timely use of Castoria would save a majority of these precious lives. Neither do we hesitate to say that many of these infantile deaths are occasioned by the use of narcotic preparations. Drops, tinctures and soothing syrups sold for children's complaints contain more or less opium, or morphine. They are, in considerable quantities, deadly poisons. In any quantity they stupefy, retard circulation and lead to congestions, sickness, death. Castoria operates exactly the reverse, but you must see that it bears the signature of Chas. H. Fletcher. Castoria causes the blood to circulate properly, opens the pores of the skin and allays fever.

Letters from Prominent Physicians addressed to Chas. H. Fletcher.

Dr. A. F. Peeler, of St. Louis, Mo., says: "I have prescribed your Castoria in many cases and have always found it an efficient and speedy remedy."

Dr. E. Down, of Philadelphia, Pa., says: "I have prescribed your Castoria in my practice for many years with great satisfaction to myself and benefit to my patients."

Dr. J. E. Waggoner, of Chicago, Ill., says: "I can most heartily recommend your Castoria to the public as a remedy for children's complaints. I have tried it and found it of great value."

Dr. Edward Parrish, of Brooklyn, N. Y., says: "I have used your Castoria in my own household with good results, and have advised several patients to use it for its mild laxative effect and freedom from harm."

Dr. J. B. Elliott, of New York City, says: "Having during the past six years prescribed your Castoria for infantile stomach disorders, I most heartily commend its use. The formula contains nothing deleterious to the most delicate of children."

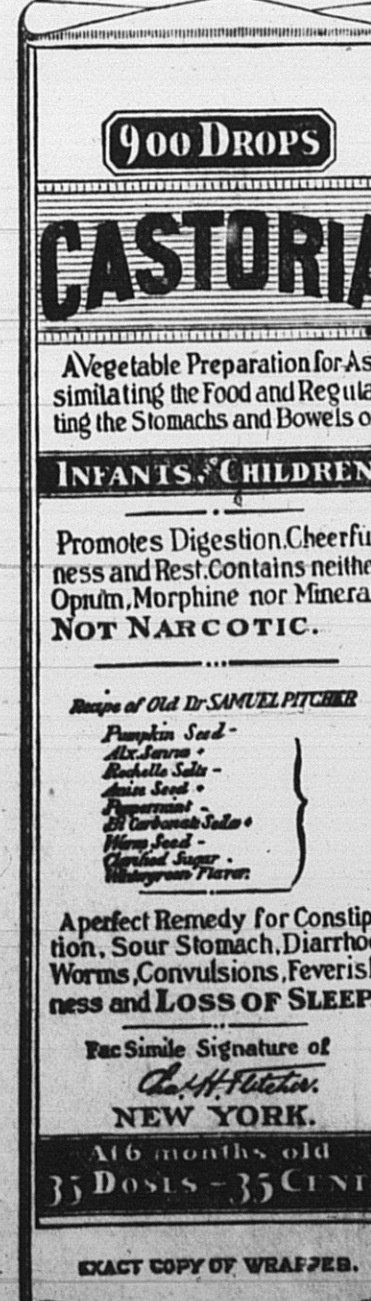

Dr. C. G. Sprague, of Omaha, Neb., says: "Your Castoria is an ideal medicine for children, and I frequently prescribe it. While I do not advocate the indiscriminate use of proprietary medicines, yet Castoria is an exception for conditions which arise in the care of children."

Dr. J. A. Parker, of Kansas City, Mo., says: "Your Castoria holds the esteem of the medical profession in a manner held by no other proprietary preparation. It is a sure and reliable medicine for infants and children. In fact, it is the universal household remedy for infantile ailments."

Dr. H. F. Merrill, of Augusta, Me., says: "Castoria is one of the very finest and most remarkable remedies for infants and children. In my opinion your Castoria has saved thousands from an early grave. I can furnish hundreds of testimonials from this locality as to its efficiency and merit."

Dr. Norman M. Geer, of Cleveland, Ohio, says: "During the last twelve years I have frequently recommended your Castoria as one of the best preparations of the kind, being safe in the hands of parents and very effective in relieving children's disorders, while the ease with which such a pleasant preparation can be administered is a great advantage."

Dr. F. H. Kyle, of St. Paul, Minn., says: "It affords me pleasure to add my name to the long list of those who have used and now endorse your Castoria. The fact of the ingredients being known through the printing of the formula on the wrapper is one good and sufficient reason for the recommendation of any physician. I know of its good qualities and recommend it cheerfully."

A WONDERFUL OFFER

CAL-CURA GUARANTEED.

We want to do our utmost to convince all sufferers from kidney and bladder troubles, as we are convinced, that Dr. Kennedy's Cal-Cura Solvent will cure these dangerous troubles. Cal-Cura Solvent's wonderful power to cure diseases of the kidneys and bladder is the happy result of the efforts of that skilled physician and surgeon, Dr. David Kennedy, to make a medicine that would dissolve and expel from the system stone, gravel and uric acid. In this way, Cal-Cura Solvent not only cures the disease, but also removes all irritating causes. It is not a patent medicine, but a prescription used by Dr. Kennedy in his large private practice with untiring success. To show our great confidence in this scientific remedy, we make this wonderful offer - to pay for what Cal-Cura Solvent you use if it does not help you. It is the only guaranteed cure for kidney diseases. Try it at our expense; it will make you well. All druggists, $5.00.

THE BAIRD PRIMARY BILL PASSED BY THE HOUSE, UP TO GOVERNOR.

BILL FOR EXAMINING BOOKS OF RAILROADS FOR EVIDENCE PASSED.

WOMAN TIRED OF HIM AND THE AGED DOCTOR KILLED HER.

That Primary Bill. Senator John Baird's primary bill passed the house Wednesday with hardly a hitch, and at last the two houses and the administration have agreed on a primary reform measure to be submitted to the people. The bill passed by a vote of 89 to 8, the largest vote cast in the house this session, only three members being absent. All amendments were defeated.

Can Examine Books.

"Everybody stand pat if you want this bill to pass. The senate has had a change of heart and is looking for this bill to kill it if it goes back there." With that stentorian declaration Representative Simpson of Van Buren Wednesday afternoon tore away from the Michigan Central lobbyists their last chance to hang up the bill allowing the attorney-general to investigate the books of the company in the state's efforts to recover $4,400,000 of taxes held back by that road.

The result of the fight was that Representative Heald's motion to suspend the rules and put the bill on its immediate passage was carried by 70 to 27. The roll call was as follows:

Yeas—Adams (R. N.), Agens, Att-ridge, Beal, Benton, Bland, Bosley, Brockway, Clark, Decker, Dewey, Dickinson, Duncan, Durbin, Ellis, Fairbanks (M. W.), Fairbanks, Earl, Fisher, Fisk, Gruessel, Hanlon, Harris, Heald, Herkimer, Holmes, Hudson, Hunt, Ivory, Jerome, Kelley (L. Slew His Paramour.

Alexander Greene, of Temperance village, known throughout southeastern Michigan and northwestern Ohio as a traveling doctor and vendor of patent medicines of his concoction, is in jail in Bowling Green, O., the self-confessed murderer of Mrs. Ella Tiffin, a much younger woman, infatuation for whom led him to abandon his family and who cast him aside when he could no longer supply her with money. For many years Alexander Greene, now 60 years of age, was a highly respected, well-to-do resident of Temperance village, having established a business for his remedies which he made and delivered by driving through the country. His former home is a comfortable place. He had been married 20 years, and had four children, two boys and two girls. The woman gave up her aged lover, who was made penniless in securing a divorce for her. Then a son started him in business again and he made money, which he lavished on her. His wife pursued a divorce and the old man hurried to his inamorata, who refused to marry him, saying she was going to marry another man, when he shot her. He said in his confession: "I fired two shots. The first one she was close to me and seemed to dodge, and the next one she was four or five feet away, and I shot her in the back of the head and she fell to the floor and only said, 'My God!'"

Mobbed Motorman.

Conductor Harry Doolan and Motorman Frank Beebe, of Clay avenue car No. 105, had to fight for their lives on Sunday afternoon in Detroit, to save themselves from being lynched by a crowd infuriated at the car having run over and killed little Marvin Feldman, the 4-year-old son of Max J. Feldman. Things assumed an ugly aspect. The story had got around that the conductor had made some brutal remark about the people of the neighborhood, and the cry was raised, "Lynch him!" The conductor seized the switch bar and the motorman the controls and they kept the crowd at bay until a patrol wagon with a load of policemen arrived in response to a riot call. The motorman got the worst of it, his lip being cut by a knife thrown at him, according to some of the spectators and some of his teeth knocked out. Later in the day the crowd gathered in the street to wreak their vengeance on the car crew, and the patrol wagon had to be called out again to disperse them.

NEWS OF THE STRIKE

OUTLOOK IS FOR SERIOUS COMPLICATIONS IN BUILDING TRADES.

SYMPATHETIC STRIKES MAY ADD SIXTY THOUSAND MEN TO IDLERS.

THE TEAMSTERS WANT TO RAISE ONE MILLION DOLLARS FOR FIGHT.

The building industry of Chicago faced a fresh complication Friday in sympathetic strikes among carpenters and other workmen. At a dozen buildings the contractors encountered the alternative of sending back lumber delivered by non-union teamsters, or having strikes to deal with. In a number of instances the lumber was accepted by the contractors, whereupon the carpenters and other workmen promptly laid down tools and quit. While the carpenters' district council has refused to authorize a strike, the members of the union declare there is a tacit understanding that they are not required to work under police protection or with lumber delivered under police protection. Carpenters are not included in this organization, but there are 60,000 union men who will be involved should the delegates take a stand against working where non-union teamsters deliver materials. As yet the carpenters' district council has taken no action against the so-called "unfair" lumber. The carpenters acting upon their own initiative, however, have quit work in many instances and more are threatening to take like action.

In the face of declarations by the employers that the police department of the city is absolutely inadequate to afford protection to property as a result of conditions brought about by the strike's spread to the lumber district, Mayor Dunne announced that there will be no necessity to call for troops this week. The employers are angry at the mayor's decision.

In preparation for a protracted strike siege, the teamsters' joint council has arranged to send agents to all parts of the country for the purpose of gathering funds. It is the ambition of the strike leaders to realize $1,000,000 by July 1.

One of the first moves of the strike leaders to keep the men in line will be to increase the weekly strike benefits. The drivers on strike now receive $10 a week. The express drivers' union has arranged, according to the officials, to pay its 900 members $12 weekly.

President Shea, of the teamsters' union, has escaped sentence to jail for alleged contempt of court. Federal Judge Kohlsaat last evening decided that Shea, being under indictment for conspiracy, was warranted in refusing to answer questions which Shea believed might tend to incrimination. Judge Kohlsaat, however, ruled that circumstances were different as to Shea's associates, Mulligan and Donohue, who were ordered committed to jail.

HEAD OF CZAR'S FORCES.

Eleven Locomotives Burned. In a fierce fire Monday night lasting less than an hour, the large Pere Marquette roundhouse in Muskegon was completely destroyed, together with 11 engines. The fire when discovered by two switchmen was but a small blaze on the north side of the building. The building was old and of a nature to make excellent food for the flames, which spread with alarming rapidity, threatening that end of the city. It was soon found impossible to remove the engines and efforts were directed to getting passenger coaches and loaded freight cars out of reach. There were not enough engines with steam up to do the work, and volunteers with crowbars got many valuable cars out of danger. The fire will be a serious blow to the railroad, and cripple trade, as all engines are in use. It is not known definitely whether the roundhouse will be rebuilt, as Muskegon is far away from the main offices.

The loss is variously estimated from $100,000 to $200,000.

Will Tie Up Business.

Spreading of the teamsters' strike began promptly Monday, as a result of the refusal of the teamsters' joint council, Saturday night, to endorse the settlement provisionally arranged with the employers by President C. P. Shea of the teamsters' union. It will stop the delivery of building material when building is at an unprecedented large volume and it is estimated that the employment of nearly 100,000 men in yards, mills, factories and on construction work will be hung up.

Twenty-five per cent of the members of the Vassar College graduating class, or 50 seniors, are engaged to be married.

Prof. Eckstein, Chicago, fled from his flat to a hut on the shore of Lake Michigan to escape piano maulers, hand organ racket, and city noises in general, and not from any eccentricity.

The foreign office in London has raised the salary of Sir Henry Mortimer Durand, British ambassador to the United States, from $32,500 to $38,500, so that he may dwell in "Jeffersonian simplicity."

ORDER BY CANADA DEPORTS MEN ON THE PERE MARQUETTE RAILROAD.

HELEN GOULD VICTIM OF A TWO MILLION DOLLAR SWINDLE.

RETALIATION MAY HIT CANADIANS IN UNITED STATES—COMPANY TO APPEAL.

Eleven American railroad officials in the employ of the Pere Marquette Railroad are to be deported from Canada, according to an order just issued by the department of labor of the Dominion government.

The order may cause retaliatory measures on the part of the United States, and may cause disturbances all along the border.

The railroad will appeal to the solicitor-general of Canada to have the order, which was issued by the department of labor under an alien labor law ruling, rescinded on the ground that the government has no right to exclude skilled labor from its territory.

If this appeal fails, the case probably will be carried to the state department at Washington, and international complications may exist between the United States and Canada.

Retaliatory measures would force hundreds of Canadians now occupying more or less high salaried positions in American cities either to become American citizens or to throw up such positions and return to their own land.

The first immediate effect of the agitation for the deportation of Pere Marquette officials is the closing of the storekeeper's department of the road in St. Thomas. This means a loss of $12,000 monthly to St. Thomas and vicinity, and a number of Canadian clerks are out of jobs. The office will be moved to Detroit.

Close the Doors.

The Merchants' Trust Company of New York closed its doors Tuesday. The attack of Thomas W. Lawson on the stock market and his assertion that he would set a day for all depositors of certain trust companies to withdraw their deposits, in his campaign to wreck the "system," are believed by many to have helped in putting the Merchants' Trust Co. out of business.

The company is trustee of a $4,000,000 consolidated mortgage on the property of the Hudson Valley Railway Co., which is a consolidation of trolley lines around Albany, Troy, Saratoga and Lake George. The bank examiners accepted the company's valuation of the securities of the Hudson Valley Railway Co., held by it. The company was organized in 1899. In May, 1903, the stock reached a high point, 290 being bid for it.

The situation is further complicated by threats to prosecute certain directors of the Merchants' Trust Co. for criminal conspiracy and a petition for the removal of Frederick D. Toasts by an Absentminded Poet

Here's to the red of Somebody's head—
I mean of Somebody's lips;
Of course I did not mean what I said,
Please pardon these little slips.

Here's to Somebody's sapphire nose,
The sky's and the ocean's hue;
I had in mind, as the context shows,
Somebody's lamp of blue.

Here's to the ring of Somebody's voice—
I mean the rings of their eyes;
No, I mean the ring of Somebody's choice
That Somebody's sweetheart buys.

Here's to the gems that Somebody bakes—
The pearl in her mouth—sweet chink—
I mean. What makes me make such mistakes?
Am I going upon the drink or the blink?

AN EYE OPENER

BY ALICE DE CARRET
(Copyright, 1905, by Daily Story Pub. Co.)

Miss Gilchrist had boarded an elevated train on her way to the shopping district. It was crowded with men and women going to business, but she was fortunate enough to get a corner seat, next to those running crosswise.

It was not yet nine o'clock, but Miss Gilchrist was anxious to get to the shops early and have her purchases sent home before night. There were several things, an evening waist or two, a fashionable wrap and a stylish hat, that she must have before she could let herself be seen by anybody.

"Anybody" meant Horace Whiting, the dashing New Yorker whom she had met the summer before at her home in Pineville. His advent had made her extremely critical of the men she had known all her life, particularly of Oliver Leighton, the greatest catch in Pineville. At any time previous she joyfully would have taken Oliver for better or worse, had she been able to bring him to the point of asking her to, but now she began to keep him at bay with a discreet mixture of coyness and coquetry that bewildered him, and naturally his ardor grew as she became indifferent. Whiting was certainly no better looking than her Pineville admirer, and not half as well bred, but his air of knowing it all, his clothes and the way he wore them quite dazzled her. She began to have brilliant visions of life in New York that made Pineville seem unendurably dull and tame.

She couldn't say that Whiting had made love to her, but he had taken her driving, singled her out on every occasion, paid her many floral compliments, and made her promise again and again that she would let him know the minute she came to New York. So she could easily picture his delight at learning that she was here, and that he would have an opportunity to entertain her as he had so often assured her he longed to do. Whether anything serious would follow she, of course, could not tell, but she had no intention of binding herself to any one else until she had given Whiting a chance to meet her again. Meanwhile she had obtained a refusal on Leighton, to whom she had promised an answer within a couple of weeks. The intervening time she would spend in New York, and thus fit herself to come to a proper decision.

Miss Gilchrist's pleasing meditations on new frocks and hats, and the theater and operas to which she would wear them, were rudely broken in upon by some one's tramping on her toes. Two men were pushing roughly by several women in their eagerness to get possession of the cross seat next her, which was just being vacated.

Indignant at their indecent manner, she cast a look of contempt at their backs as they settled themselves comfortably.

"Well, this is luck!" said one. "I've been out every night this week, and dead tired."

The voice made Miss Gilchrist start and shrink back into her corner in dismay. For an instant she was conscious of nothing but the danger of being discovered in her out-of-date attire by the man who had spoken, the very one on whose approval hung so many of her plans. Her heart beat hard and fast, but as she remembered the thick veil she wore her mind grew easier, and she began to study furtively the profile that was so familiar, and yet so different from her recollection of it. Some way Whiting did not look at all as he had in Pineville. He had pushed his hat back

Fortunate enough to get a corner seat, her being discovered in her out-of-date attire by the man who had spoken, the very one on whose approval hung so many of her plans. Her heart beat hard and fast, but as she remembered the thick veil she wore her mind grew easier, and she began to study furtively the profile that was so familiar, and yet so different from her recollection of it. Some way Whiting did not look at all as he had in Pineville. He had pushed his hat back on his head, which gave him a boorish air, and as for his clothes, they were not conspicuous here; indeed, there were half a dozen men in the car who surpassed him on this ground.

"How's business?" asked the companion of the man she was scrutinizing.

"Slow!" growled the latter. "I'm dead sick of it! Makes me feel like crawling into a hole and staying there. But no matter what happens, money seem to think you've got people to burn. Girls are the worst. Pay them the slightest attention and they think you are bound to keep it up. There's never a let-up with them. That reminds me," feeling in his pockets, "of a letter I had this morning from a girl just in from the country. Met her last summer. Not a bad little thing at all; the best there was in

"Not a bad little thing, at all," the place. Not a bad note, either, is it," handing it to his friend.

"Not at all," replied the latter, glancing over it and handing it back. "Quite clever, in fact."

"Just so. Means, of course, that she wants me to take her to the theater and so on. So I would if things were a little easier, but I ain't in shape to do it now. When you come to figure it out, it don't pay. There's five dollars for seats, flowers five, carriage five, supper ten—twenty-five in all. Take the girl home, press her hand at the door, bid her good night. 'Tain't worth it! I'll just wait a few days 'til she's gone back, then write her a nice letter, telling her I've been out of town, awfully sorry to miss her, and all that kind of thing. It's too bad, but a fellow must draw the line somewhere."

The speaker wound up with a great yawn, and threw his hat tumbled into the lap of the girl behind him.

"I beg your pardon, madam!" he cried, waving his arm wildly behind him in an attempt to regain his fedora. "Why, she's carrying it all along with her. Confound it, she's trod all over it. What's the matter with the woman, anyway?"

The other passengers grinned, but the object of his remarks was already out of the car. They were still a long way from the shopping district, but Miss Gilchrist had lost all interest in her purchases. Her only desire was to get back to Pineville, and to dear, dear Oliver.

Their wedding came off three months later.

Military Honors for Seagull.

A seagull, which, with clipped wings, had remained in the Golden Hill Fort, Freshwater, Isle of Wight, as a pet of the Royal Garrison Artillery stationed there, has just died and has been buried with a semblance of military honors.

The body of the gull, which was known as "Mac," was placed in a coffin and covered with a sheet. Two gunners acted as bearers, and others followed the coffin as mourners to the grave outside the fort, where it was buried with due ceremony. The soldiers saluted the coffin as it passed.—London Daily Mail.

Eagle Whipped by Crows.

One hundred crows whipped a big eagle in a fight to-day at the farm of Darlington Beebe of Westtown, and drove it several miles from the place. The crows attacked the king of birds in a body, and at one time had so exhausted that it alighted in a field and fell over on the ground, though it finally escaped.—West Chester correspondence Philadelphia Record.

STORY OF "DEAN'S" KINDNESS.

How Jefferson Gave a Treat to a Shut-In.

At the Drexel Institute one recent afternoon a group of people recalled a very charming incident in which the recently deceased actor, Joe Jefferson, acted a kindly part a few years ago, says the Philadelphia Record.

President McAllister had introduced Mr. Jefferson, who had made his address to the students, and was about to leave, when the doctor told him how delighted a certain art student would be if she could meet him. This girl was brought every day in her roller chair and had been a shut-in up to that time.

The veteran actor was delighted. So was the girl.

He talked, and talked well, and she listened.

In the course of the conversation he learned that not only had she never seen him act, but that she never had been to a theater, and didn't think it possible to go.

That was enough for Joe Jefferson. It was arranged in less time than it takes to tell it to have her brought to the stage door ten minutes before the raising of the curtain that evening.

When she was brought to that door, around which clings so much mystery, she was met by "Rip" himself in his quaint make-up, just as he has been received thousands of times by applauding audiences.

Throughout the performance the girl in her roller chair remained a charmed listener at one side of the stage.

IS NATION OF CHAUFFEURS.

Every Boy in France Will Soon Be Familiar With the Machine.

The French nation so closely guards her supremacy in the motor world that plans are being made so that every French boy will be made familiar with the operation and principles involved in the construction of the automobile, says the Philadelphia Record. A course of instruction in being arranged for introduction into the public schools. There are a number of technical schools where the details of automobile instructions are imparted to those who desire such knowledge.

It is said that no city in the world gives the same encouragement to automobilism as Paris. It has been decided that all the public hospitals shall be equipped with self-propelled ambulances and a very speedy car has been ordered to be attached to the municipal laboratory, where all the bombs found on the streets of that city shall be taken for investigation and destruction.

Might Have Been Worse.

Notwithstanding her tender years, Catherine's characteristics are in evidence; and the most pronounced of them all is the unfeeling tendency, in the most harrowing situations, to look on the bright side.

On one occasion, having got hold of a hammer, she ambitiously endeavored to drive a tack into the wall, on which to hang her doll's hat. After repeated failures to hit the troublesome tack by clutching the hammer in both fat hands and thus delivering a terrific blow, she next tried holding the tack in one hand and dealing a less powerful stroke with the hammer in the other hand. The result of this experiment brought the whole family running to the nursery.

After the damaged finger had been bathed and kissed and bandaged, in the midst of various consolations and commiserations, Catherine's tears began to stop and her philosophy to rise. "It don't hurt so awful bad now, mama. 'Sides, when my finger got hit, I was jus' holdin' the hammer in only one han'—an' jus' s'pose I'd been strikin' with both hands!"

Tobacco in Olden Times.

Master Prynn, the weak, well-meaning puritan, who is 1633 wrote an attack upon the stage, tells us that in his day tobacco pipes were offered to ladies at the theater in lieu of apples between the acts. A French traveler, M. Torevin de Rochefort, who published his journal in 1677, confirms this by telling us that he found smoking a general custom in England, as well among women as among men. Both sexes, he adds, held that life without tobacco would be intolerable, "because they say it dissipates the evil humors of the brain." When ladies stopped smoking they took to snuff. Women of quality about a century ago would not stir without their snuffboxes—beautiful enameled receptacles of perfumed mild rappee. Lord Bellingbroke said of Queen Anne and her grace of Marlborough: "The nation is governed by a pair of snuffers; no wonder the light of its glory is extinguished!"

Call of the Wild.

The bee in the clover,
The bird in the tree,
Are happy and laughin'
As loud as can be.
An' I'm here a-workin',
An' I've done it all!
The meadows and bays
Are givin' their call.

The meadows are callin':
"The plow is here!"
The bays are callin':
"Our waters are clear."
An', doggone it all!
I'm here workin'; I wish
I could get just a day
And could hike out and fish!

Could hike out and fish,
Where bays are wild,
An' where trout are waitin'
Down deep in their tide;
Or, I'd love to lie
Beneath a wide tree,
The lazy bird's brother,
The chum of the bee!

The lazy bird's brother,
The chum of the bee;
The bee sleeps all winter
An' that's all right;
The bird hops a twig
The first thing in the spring.
An' don't do a thing
But just perch there an' sing.

REV. JAMES D. MOFFAT MODERATOR OF THE PRESBYTERIAN ASSEMBLY

The Rev. James D. Moffat, elected moderator by the Presbyterian assembly at Winona Lake, Ind., is president of Washington and Jefferson College, Washington, Pa. He has been at the head of that institution since 1882. Previously he had for eleven years been pastor of the Second Presbyterian Church at Wheeling, Pa. Since 1893 he has also been assistant editor of the Presbyterian Banner, of Pittsburgh. Dr. Moffat was born at Lisbon, O., in 1846, and was graduated from Washington and Jefferson College in 1869.

Dr. J. Addison Henry, the retiring moderator of the Presbyterian general assembly, is a veteran minister of Philadelphia, having occupied a pulpit in that city for forty-five years. He is the only moderator elected by acclamation.

HEAVY READING FOR JAPS.

Little Demand in Country for Lighter Literature.

The Japanese are serious-minded people, as their literary habits show. They take life seriously and devote their time to the reading of what would be called in America solid books. The recent report of the librarian of the imperial library at Tokio shows that there is little demand for light literature in that capital, for fiction of any sort, contrary to the experience of most of the popular libraries in England, France and America. The Japanese mind runs to science, mathematics, medicine, language and to what may be termed the graver forms of literature. More than 40 per cent of the works taken out of the imperial library are of this character. The Japanese are very fond of history, in the making of which they are extensively engaged at present in the eastern war. Engineering, military and naval science receive much attention. The interest in these subjects has been greatly stimulated by the war.

VALUE OF SMALL COLLEGE.

Best Institution That Young Men Can Attend.

Complaint has been made that many college professors nowadays are more interested writing learned treatises on their subjects than in teaching them to their classes. It used to be said that Mark Hopkins, with a class of boys on a log, would make a college; but that time seems to have gone by. The modern professor in a big school is a reader of lectures and a preparer of examination papers. The real instruction for the student who desires to get simply an all-around education, before taking up a professional course of study, is rather the small college with a good faculty. Better than costly buildings, better than big libraries, better than elaborate apparatus and ingenious appointments, is a live teacher, well informed and intelligent, sympathetic with the mind and temper of youth.—New Orleans Picayune.

Mayor Breaks City Ordinance.

Mayor William B. Harp, of Pittsburgh, is coming in for vigorous condemnation on account of the manner in which he deliberately violated the ordinance governing the speed of automobiles. The river and harbors congressional committee was in town and the members were taken for a spin around the parks. Mayor Harp was in the automobile with Congressmen Burton and when the party started his honor told the chauffeur to "cut loose." The speed ordinance was shattered in a minute. Park policemen tried to stop the procession, but were waved back by the mayor, who is now the object of general condemnation.

Dean of Patent Office Force.

Prof. A. G. Wilkinson is dean of the patent office examining corps in Washington, having been in charge of a division since 1888. He graduated in the Yale class of '56 along with Justices Brown and Brewer of the United States supreme court. Senator Dewey and Gen. Wager Swayne. Mr. Wilkinson first went to the patent office on July 1, 1884. During his term of service the patents granted have increased from about 43,000 to more than 700,000. The examining force has grown from less than fifty to 320.

STATE CHOOSES GOOD MAN

New Connecticut Senator Won Spurs in Lower House.

Frank Bosworth Brandegee, the United States senator chosen to succeed the late Orville H. Platt of Connecticut, has an inherited gift of oratory, his father, Augustus Brandegee, having for years been the chief spellbinder of Eastern Connecticut. He is forceful, witty, has a genius for epigrams and his subject matter is well thought out. He is retiring to a degree hardly expected of a man who has been in the public eye so much for the last few years, and gives the impression at times that on the whole it is rather a bore to be a public man. Senator Brandegee is one of the numerous senators who won their spurs in the house of representatives. Among the others are Hopkins of Illinois, Hale and Frye of Maine, Lodge of Massachusetts, Burrows of Michigan, Allison and Doolittle of Iowa, McCreery of Kentucky, Newlands of Nevada, Dick of Ohio, Bailey of Texas, Carmack of Tennessee, Lathrop of South Carolina, Long of Kansas, Burkett of Nebraska, and Hemenway of Indiana.

APPALLING WASTE OF FIRE.

Tax on Nation Amounts to $25 Per Family Annually.

One thousand million dollars, said President Washburn of the board of fire underwriters at its meeting in this city, is the country's loss by fire in six years. The loss for 1904 surpassed all previous records, reaching $229,000,000, of which $50,000,000 disappeared in the Baltimore blaze. But that is not the real total destruction. It does not include all lonely, uninsured farmhouses of small value burned. It does not fully cover the losses of household goods in general less adequately insured than buildings. It takes no note of forest fires, the most irreparable of all calamities. The figures might almost be doubled without exaggeration. The true annual fire tax of the nation is doubtless $25 per family. No other civilized nation knows such an appalling waste.—New York World.

Underwriters Fear for Czar.

The czar has been the most active recent risk in English companies, says a writer in Leslie's Monthly. Up to a week before last Christmas the rate on his life was 5 per cent per annum. On December twenty holders of Russian bonds, who insured him with Lloyd's for some tens of thousands of pounds, had to pay 15 per cent for a policy running only ten months. After the assassination of Grand Duke Sergius and the terrorist threat to wipe out the imperial family the czar suddenly retired from activity as an insurance risk. Nobody wanted him at the price the underwriters placed on his life.

Loubet Forgets Gallantry.

Mme. Patti (Baroness Cederstrom) has received from President Loubet the ribbon of the Legion of Honor in recognition of her charitable work in Paris. In signing the decree conferring the decoration President Loubet is said to have uttered a remark so undiplomatic as to make every other Frenchman blush. "I do this," he is reported to have said, "with as much pleasure as I experienced long ago, when I had no gray hairs, and when I heard Mme. Adeline Patti sing in 'Lucia' and in 'La Sonnambula'."

Feeds Lamb From Bottle.

A lamb nursing from a bottle the same as a baby was the spectacle that Annapolitans witnessed the other day. The lamb was being driven about the city on a dory. It was seated on the lap of the driver, and was nursing from a bottle to which a small rubber nipple was attached, the same as to a baby's bottle.—Annapolis (Md.) Chronicle.

Continents of World.

Modern usage recognizes four continents, Eurasia, Africa, North America and Australia, which is variously styled a continent and a continental island. The title Antarctic continent is sometimes given to a great body of land supposed to occupy the south polar region. Formerly Europe and Asia were accounted as two continents.

Nervous Exhaustion.

Gives rise to headache, inability to concentrate the attention, defective memory, and usually sleeplessness. The digestive system is certain to share the trouble; and constipation more or less severe, will follow. Successful treatment can only be inaugurated when the cause of the morbid change is removed.

Phrases Used in Australia.

Here are a few Australian phrases: An inexperienced farm hand is called a jackaroo; tall hat, a belltopper; food, tucker; native wild dog, dingoo; aboriginal child, pickaninny; a worthless fellow, larrikin; farmers' sons, rouseabouts; a sweetheart, donah; tramp, sundowner or swagman.

Manatee and Calf at Play.

A manatee and her calf have been seen playing in the water off the residences of F. D. Casey and B. C. Snyder for several days. A fine view of these mammals can be had from the high bluff when they come up near shore in shoal water.—Cocoa and Rockledge (Fla.) News.

An Easy Blacklander.

When Preacher Hartley takes his place An' tells of truth an' right,
Of love, an' all his savin' grace,
An' heaven shinin' bright,
My heart gets full, an' I resolve
To go the narrow way,
An' I could do it, too, if he Could preach his sermons right at me
Each minute in the day.
—Detroit Tribune.

Percentage of Water in Fish.

The choicest fish contains the largest per centage of water. Thus turbot and sole are credited with 78 per cent, while the commoner inhabitants of the deep blue sea are content with from 40 to 60 per cent, as in the case of the homely herring.

Very Much United Family.

At Munich three brothers married three sisters on the same day and a brother of the three brides married a sister of the three bridegrooms. After this one may easily believe that Germany has established a record in very united families.

World's Greatest Coffee Drinkers.

According to customs returns, says the Paris Petit Journal, the inhabitants of the Island of Groix, off the coast of Brittany, are the greatest coffee drinkers in the world, consuming thirty pounds per head annually.

GOVERNMENT LIGHT.

HISTORIC CHICKAMAUGA PARK ABLAZE WITH ILLUMINATION.

United States System of Lighting Military Post Pronounced Gratifyingly Successful—Six and One-Half Miles of Mains—Sixty-Five Street Lights.

Chickamauga Park Ga., May 31.—The United States government has here in operation one of the largest acetylene gas plants in the world. The military post at the entrance of the historical Chickamauga battlefield where thirty thousand Union and Confederate soldiers were lost in the memorable battle of Sept. 19 and 20, 1863, contains about one hundred buildings, the seventy-five principal ones of which are lighted with acetylene. To accomplish this six and one-half miles of mains and two miles of service pipes are in use, while sixty-five street lamps brilliantly illuminate the avenues of the post.

In 1903 the War Department installed a test acetylene plant at Fort Meyer, Virginia. The results were so gratifying and the superiority of the illuminant so evident that the government, March 20, 1904, placed the contract for the Chickamauga plant, in which every citizen of the United States should have his pro rata of pride.

But the government has not confined its acceptance of acetylene to this military post. Since becoming satisfied of the efficiency, superiority and economical advantages of this particular illuminant, the United States has installed a number of plants in Indian schools and other government institutions.

Acetylene gas is one of the simplest as well as the most perfect of artificial lights. It is made by the contact of water and carbide, (a manufactured product for sale at a nominal price), is absolutely safe and gives a beautiful white light soothing to the eyes and nerves. It can be produced anywhere—in the farm home, the village store, the town hall, the church—and is so easily maintained as to be practical for all classes.

It is a matter for national congratulation that in beautifying so historic a spot as Chickamauga, nothing but the best, including the lighting system, has been deemed good enough for the American people.

Enthusiasm of Value.

Any decided interest in life, whether it is dignified by the name of an occupation or is simply an enthusiasm, or even mentioned slightly as a fad, is eminently desirable.—Chicago Journal.

Are the Packers Receiving Fair Play?

When the Garfield report on the business methods of the packers appeared, after eight months' investigation, it was severely criticised and roundly denounced. After three months of publicity it is significant that those who attempted to discredit it have failed to controvert the figures contained in that exhaustive document. The public is beginning to notice this omission, and the feeling is rapidly growing that the sensational charges out of which the "Beef Investigation" arose were without foundation. If the official statements of the report are susceptible of contradiction, a good many people are now asking why the facts and figures are not furnished to contradict them.

The truth seems to be that most of the charges contain unfounded sensational assertions. A flagrant example of this appeared in a recent article in an Eastern magazine, to the effect that "forty Iowa banks were forced to close their doors in 1903-4 by the Beef Trust's manipulation of cattle prices." Chief Clerk Cox, of the banking department of the Iowa State Auditor's office, has tabulated the list of banks given in the magazine article and has publicly denounced the statement as utterly untrue. He gives separately the reasons for each failure mentioned and officially states that they have been caused by unwise speculations and by reckless banking methods. It may be well to suspend judgment upon the packers until the charges against them are proved.

Gen. Gomez will probably be nominated for president by the Cuban liberals.

There is more catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be constitutional disease and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials. Address: F. J. Every

Heart-Ache

Every pain in the breast, difficult breathing, palpitation, fluttering or dizzy spell means that your heart is straining itself in its effort to keep in motion. This is dangerous.

Some sudden strain from over-exertion or excitement will completely exhaust the nerves, or rupture the walls or arteries of the heart, and it will stop.

Relieve this terrible strain at once with Dr. Miles' Heart Cure. It invigorates and strengthens the heart nerves and muscles, stimulates the heart action, and relieves the pain and misery.

Take no chances; make your heart strong and vigorous with Dr. Miles' Heart Cure.

"I suffered terribly with heart disease. I have been treated by different physicians for my trouble without results. I went to a physician in Memphis, who claimed that I had dropsy of the heart. He put the X-ray on me, and in connection with his medicine he came near making a finish of me. Some time before this a Mr. Young, of St. Louis, was in our town. He saw my condition, and recommended Dr. Miles' Heart Cure to me. He gave it little attention until my return from Memphis, when I concluded to try it, and am pleased to say three bottles cured me."

CHARLES GOODRICH, No. Caruthersville, Mo.

Dr. Miles' Heart Cure is sold by your druggist, who will guarantee that the first bottle will benefit. If it fails he will refund your money.

REDINGOTE COSTUME
IN LINEN.

THE NEW FOLD-OVER
SHAPE

TRAVELING COSTUME IN PLAITED MODE

CLEVER MODE FOR PETITE WOMAN.

EVENING TOILETTE OF CHIFFON AND REAL LACE.

THE bride of today plans her trousseau with a careless disregard for expense that would have made her forbears—even the wealthiest of them—hold up their hands in holy horror and ask of themselves and each other: "What can the child be coming to?"

But the stress and the strain of social life is such that those same good old ladies could never have kept up with; and the question of gowns and costumes for her appearance at all of the festivities given in her honor, first as a fiancée and later as a bride, is one that takes an amount of thought and care and planning from which even the wealthiest cannot escape.

Of course, once the date of the wedding is set the first thought is for the bridal toilet, the procession of bridesmaids and what they shall wear on that auspicious and momentous occasion. The family possessions in the way of old dresses are looked up; and anything and everything that has ever figured in the family weddings is taken out, discussed and its possible use on this latest occasion decided.

A wealthy man whose only daughter is to be married in June consulted an old friend, a woman of the world, an aunt the bridegroom. The simple old gentleman explained that as he never expected to give his daughter another wedding he would let her have the best gown that money could buy; and suggested that he was willing to go to even $500 for that purpose if necessary. Imagine the dear old man's surprise when his old-time friend suggested that if his daughter would spend at least three times that amount on lace for her wedding gown it might save five hundred for lace and then save to think of the gown itself afterwards.

One often wonders how it is that those who are in real lace know so far ahead what will be worn for wedding gowns. The simplest of the real lace wedding will take not less than a year in making; and many there are that require three years in the fashioning. And making features of the mode current at the moment of their wearing.

The Chinese gown is a strong favorite with the brides whose build and style and mannerisms will carry this somewhat trying design well. Of course with the more courtly the more trying features of the Chinese mode can be manipulated; and one point is that the straight, unbroken lines of this gown will go far to make the petite bride take on an air of being several inches taller than she really is, a most flattering deception truly.

Crope de Chine is a vast favorite with the best makers of the mode in Paris; and wonderful to behold is the amount of hand embroidery that is lavished upon this soft and sheer material. All-around lace is popularly supposed to have symbolized purity has made them favorites for bridal costumes; and the embroidered are often supplemented with appliques of the real seed pearls that the edge of the gown is the sweetest of these dainty robes are trimmed with draped bodices, high collars, and long sleeves, much beaded with lace, and the frock, fitting and not at all tightly, over the made of the most moderate length; even abroad where the wedding gown is so often used afterward for presentation at court, a half-yard on the floor being considered quite sufficient for even the tall and willowy brides. The double width crope de Chine are the best ones for this purpose, since being the full tailor-made width they obviate so many seams and plaques in development of the wide of today comes her traveling costume; and for this the smartest of woollen tailormades is usually the selection. The skirt is at its best just clearing the ground; indeed, this is what Dame Fashion most imperatively demands in all of the outdoor costumes. The coats, however, are delightfully many and various. There are the short frocks and frills type of jacket that ends its very abbreder; and in the smart skillemmes these are made with a sheer silk lining just across the shoulders and in the sleeves only, just enough to make the coat slip on and off easily.

With these smart tailormades are worn the sheerest and daintiest of lingerie waists. A June bride has just received a round dozen of these, each one of which was made by one of her chums.

rest, provided a little shield-shaped pocket in each sleeve into which the over-necessary dress shield could be instantly slipped and its presence be less conspicuous than when it is worn in the usual way.

That this is a silken summer the trousseau-purchasing bride-elect realizes; and therefore many of her frocks are planned in this rich and seemingly extravagant is a very smart bodice that follows the new jacket lines—a delightful invention, for it can be worn either as a coat or as a corsage with equally good effect, the very sheer lingerie blouse making not a particle of difference in the fit when it is worn with the gown.

The skirt to this fascinating frock follows the double or tunic mode. The upper part is sun-plaited and stitched down where the other flounce finishes out the length to the foot. A very smart appearance is given in the banding of a lighter shade of frambiose on the edges of each flounce, this also appearing in very clever touches upon the coat bodice.

DESCRIPTIONS.

Traveling Costume in Plaited Mode
A raspberry-pink henrietta is used for this smart gown. The bodice is on blouse lines, with an open front to display the sheer blouse beneath, crosswise tuckings disposing of the fulness. The sleeve is a very full, shirred model ending below the elbow in a full frill. The skirt is an especially good model, the upper part in sun-plaited style, with fancy emplacements stitched down on the hips to hold the plaits in shape. The lower or underskirt follows the same plaitings and a smart air is given in the bandings of silk, a tone or two lighter than the henrietta, that are used on both edges.

Redingote Costume in Linen.
The redingote costume in linen is one of the leaders for the summertime, and the model shows one of the unfinished linens decorated with Cluny lace—the real thing—and some narrow, white, braid. The coat is made with a loose Eton top, this trimmed all around with the braid-edged lace, and the fitted skirt of the coat comes almost to the ankle. The skirt is a full-circle pattern with an insertion of lace headed and followed with fancy-shaped applique in flounce fashion of the linen, and made to clear the ground all around.

Evening Toilet of Chiffon and Real Lace.

The decollete gown is far more favored than formerly for restaurant and theater wear in the evening hours. The model is in white chiffon over coral silk, with princess point liberally used all over the gown after a festooned pattern. The corsage is cut V back and front and drops loosely into the girle of white satin that comes down in a marked point in the front. The sleeve is simple, stopping above the elbow, and with a handkerchief drape of the lace falling at the back. The skirt is of circular cut, the lace following the festoons, with a flounce of particularly good design edged with rose-pink velvet at the foot. The foundation slip of coral silk has a Paquin flounce at the foot, covered with chiffon ruffles, this making the daintiest of finishes for the lace of the outer skirt.

The New Fold-Over Shape.

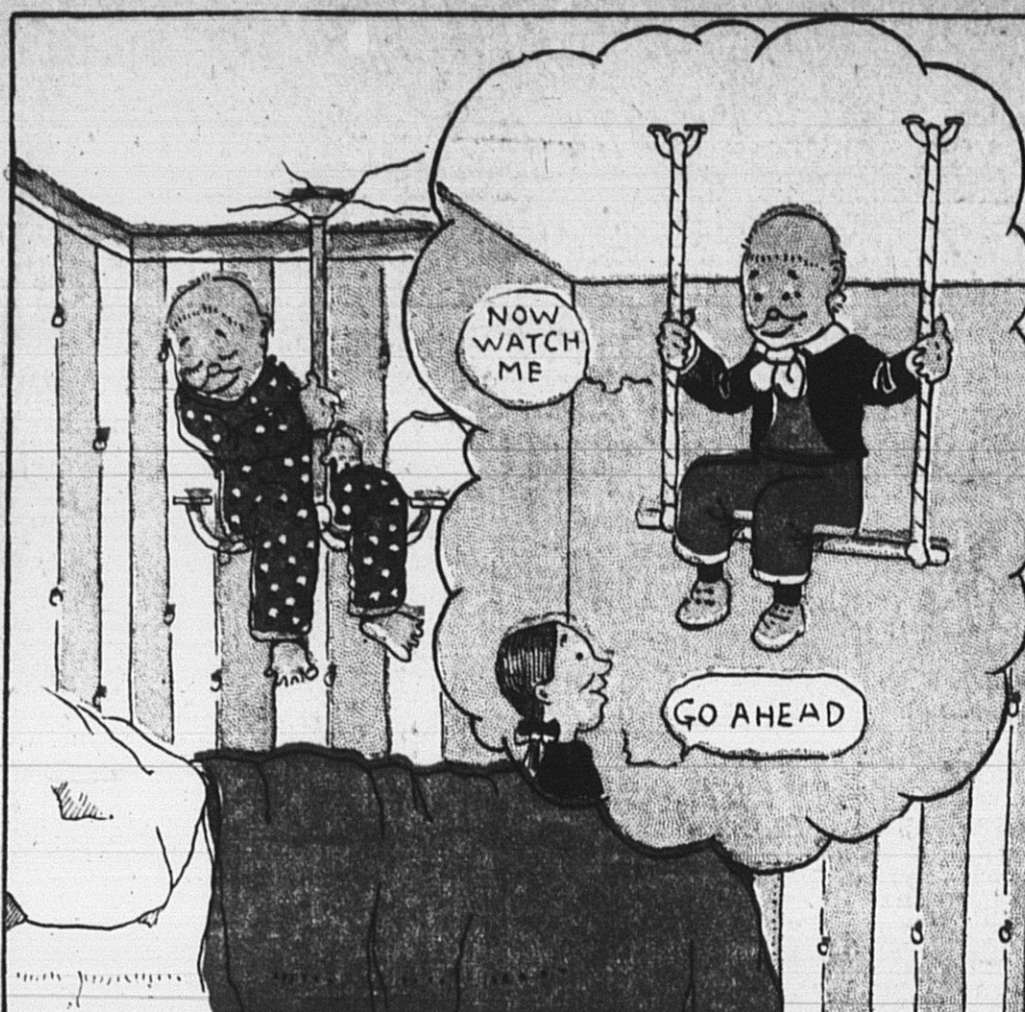

Loose effects are in high vogue in the summer chapeaux, and this shape in a pale-pink chip, shows the fold-over effect charmingly. There is a bandeau beneath that fits the shape to the head, this trimmed with a loose roll of pale-pink tulle. The upper parts of the hat are ruffled at the edge with a cream-white lace, and the side, that receives all of the trimming scheme, shows a lace rosette catching the stems of the fluffy ostrich feathers, a satin ribbon bow falling on the hair.

Clever Mode for Petite Woman.

The lines of this costume are cleverly arranged to make the most of the height of the petite woman. The blouse has a round yoke of lace overlaid with daisy-shaped motifs, and the full silk part drops into a deeply-pointed belt that is stayed down the fronts with featherbones. The skirt shows alternate long and short panels, the latter having a flounce shirred over cords applied below the knee, while the former extends in straight, unbroken lines from belt to hem, this aid-

NATURE'S WARNING.

People must Recognize and Heed It. Kidney ills come quietly, mysteriously. But nature always warns you through the urine. Notice the kidney secretions. See if the color is unhealthy. If there are settlements and sediment. Passages too frequent, scanty, painful. It's time then to use Doan's Kidney Pills.

To ward off Bright's disease or diabetes. Lawrence O'Toole, of 1825 Hill street, Ann Arbor, Mich., says: "The pains across my back were almost constant, and were so severe at times that I was often obliged to get my back against the wall before I could straighten. I could hardly rest in any position and was as tired in the morning as the night before. I could not stoop to pick anything off the ground and was generally speaking used up. The kidney secretions deposited a heavy sediment and were too frequent, greatly disturbing my rest at night. I was bothered much with headache and spells of dizziness. I wore plaster until I was tired of them, and took a lot of medicine but it did me no good. When I saw Doan's Kidney Pills advertised I felt confident they would help me, and I got a box. They helped at once, and in a short time thoroughly cured me."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States. Remember the name Doan's and take no other.
