MEMORIAL DAY IN THE SOUTH.

Rev. C. S. Jones Writes of Its Celebration at the National Cemetery, St. Louis, Missouri.

The following letter to the editor of the Herald will doubtless be read with much interest by the many friends of Rev. C. S. Jones in this vicinity, many of whom have asked us concerning him and his welfare:

Webster Groves, St. Louis, Mo., May 2, 1905.

Dear Friend Mingay:—We had a great trip Memorial day as we went down to Jefferson barracks and the national cemetery, where 18,000 soldiers are buried. It gives one an idea of war to look at those many stones, stretching away as far as you can see. It is a beautiful place, situated on high bluffs overlooking the Mississippi, with great elm and maple trees and shrubbery. The grass is like velvet and beautifully cared for. There were hundreds of graves of the unknown, marked with little square marble posts which were numbered on the top. I went over to one section of the cemetery where sleep hundreds of our Michigan boys and I longed for baskets of flowers to drop on their last resting places. They had no flowers upon their graves as they were too far from loved ones. All we could do was to shed a tear and breathe a prayer to the God of battles for the loved ones far away who would perhaps have been glad to have stood there. It was pathetic to see old grey haired veterans with bent, feeble bodies, standing for an hour or more beside the stones which marked the grave of a son, brother or comrade of the war and living over again in memory the awful days which robbed them of their loved ones.

The parade assembled on the parade grounds of the barracks. There were about 500 veterans in line and several hundreds of Spanish war veterans. They were escorted by a troop of regular cavalry, the 9th U. S., colored. It was a fine sight to see this troop with spirited horses galloping and wheeling upon the great parade ground, with banners flying and bugles calling, while the procession formed.

There was a great crowd. We went down on a special train with Ransom Post, of which our Mr. Ripley is adjutant. He kindly furnished us with tickets for the trip. There were two great excursion boats on the river which brought down several hundred from the city.

I wish you could have stood with us on the great bluffs and looked up and down the river and for miles across into Illinois, while far below rolled the great Father of Waters, dotted here and there with skiffs and steamers, while at our back rolled away the great, silent, beautiful, pathetic city of the dead. Off to the left around a great vine-covered pavilion, with banners designating each Post, hundreds of men in blue gathered and heard over with just pride from the lips of the orators the rehearsal of the history they helped to make. A background for this scene was the great massive brick slate covered walls of the barracks in the distance.

In strange contrast to all this was the hum and throb of the great city to which we returned at nightfall. All day long the ceaseless traffic of the city had gone on. The bells had summoned the children to school, the stores had trafficked in merchandise, the streets had been thronged with busy men and one felt that a generation had arisen which knew not Joseph, so to speak. Sad, sad the thought that this great day, so significant in our life, so needed for the uplifting of our national ideals, and so necessary for teaching men the cost and value of our institutions, should be passing away and changed into a day of amusement, hilarity or business.

We are glad to get the Herald. I wish you would send in for me a subscription to the Free Press. We have had no Michigan news since we left, and you may all be swept off the face of the earth by the tail end of some of the tornadoes we are having, or mercilessly plundered by Michigan politicians, for all we know. We must have a Michigan paper. Send in the subscription and send me the bill. If they don't print a twice-a-week edition send the once-a-week, but we must have the Michigan news.

Give our best regards to all our many friends. As always,
C. S. JONES.

Honor to Whom Honor Is Due.

The Herald wishes this week to correct an unintentional mistake it made in its last issue. It was there stated that the G. A. R. Post presented a U. S. flag to the Methodist church on Memorial Sunday. This was wrong. The Post had nothing to do with it further than one of the comrades made the presentation speech.

It is to the Women's Relief Corps that the honor all belongs. It was their money that paid for the flag, their idea in giving it, and furthermore they are going to keep it up on each Memorial Sunday, giving a flag to the church in which the exercises are held until all the churches have them.

The Herald apologizes to the W. R. C. for its error, which was due to our not being fully informed of the facts in the case and a natural supposition that as a G. A. R. man made the presentation speech it was the Post that gave the flag.

Had a Close Call.

There was a narrow escape from a serious accident at the Michigan Central depot Sunday evening. A party of Chelsea people were getting off from the excursion train from the west, among them being Mr. and Mrs. M. J. Noyes, Mr. and Mrs. M. Boyd and Miss Lulu Glover. They were alighting from the last car but one on the train and all had got off except Miss Glover. She was in the act of stepping down from the last step when the train started. She would have been drawn under the wheels had not Mr. Boyd seen her danger and grasping her quickly, pulled her clear from the car. In doing so both fell to the ground and rolled over and over, Miss Glover getting considerably bruised and Mr. Boyd having his hand cut from striking on the gravel walk.

A Very Sudden Death.

Miss Mary Winters, of Chelsea, died very suddenly in Chicago Saturday night, June 3, of peritonitis, aged 50 years, after being sick only a few days. The remains were brought home Monday accompanied by her brother Edward Winters and his wife. The funeral services were held at the Church of Our Lady of the Sacred Heart Wednesday morning, June 7, and the remains were interred in Mt. Olivet cemetery. Miss Winters was the oldest of a family of 12 children, four boys and eight girls, and hers was the first death to break the family circle, both her father and mother being also alive.

Death of a Former Chelsea Man.

Emory Fletcher, a former business man of Chelsea, died in Detroit Saturday, June 3, after a long protracted illness, of tuberculosis, aged 47 years. He was a son of the late Wm. Fletcher, of Sharon, by his first wife, and was born in that township. He was married to Miss Ella Hathaway, who survives him. The funeral services were held in Detroit Tuesday morning, and the remains were brought here on the D. Y. A. A. & J. funeral car and were interred in Oak Grove cemetery with Masonic honors by Olive Lodge, No. 156, F. & A. M., of which Mr. Fletcher was a member.

SALSBURY BEGS MERCY AND IS FINED $2,000 OR TWO YEARS.

THE STREET RAILWAY MEN IN SAGINAW TIE UP ROADS BY STRIKE.

THE ESCAPE OF MURDERER McGRATH FROM JACKSON QUEER.

Salsbury's Sentence.

Lant K. Salsbury was sentenced by Judge Wolcott in the Grand Rapids superior court Monday morning to pay a fine of $2,000. He was convicted December 4, 1901, of entering into a criminal conspiracy with Robert A. Cameron to secure a water contract from the city of Grand Rapids and of accepting a $75,000 bribe, or a portion of that amount, from Silson V. MacLeod, who was acting as Cameron's agent.

Salsbury's conviction was appealed to the supreme court, which affirmed the verdict of the lower court. Meanwhile Salsbury had served two years in the Detroit house of correction for violating the banking laws.

After his release from Detroit, Salsbury told his story of the water deal conspiracy involving many Grand Rapids officials and others.

When Judge Wolcott called Salsbury before him the respondent, with tears in his eyes, made a plea for mercy. He said:

"I can say nothing to add new light to the affair. I have testified repeatedly to the facts. I have no just cause to urge the court in my behalf. I realize that I had a duty to perform, as every citizen has. I violated that duty, as no more deeply realizes than myself. I have been dishonored and also my family. I am left to start in middle life, penniless and without friends."

"It may be said that the sentence already served by me was not connected with the water deal. I have done all that I could to right the wrong and will continue to do so. I do not blame anybody else. I blame myself. In making my public statement I had no promise of clemency."

Pleas were also made in his behalf by Wesley W. Hyde, who assisted in the trial when Salsbury was convicted, and by Judge W. E. Grove and Assistant Prosecutor Ward.

The fine of $2,000 was paid at once. Salsbury was the star witness for the prosecution in the water deal cases, and testified to bribing aldermen, other public officials and men of high standing. Salsbury was city attorney of Grand Rapids at the time.

McGrath's Escape.

Thomas McGrath, the life convict, who was convicted at Detroit of murdering Hotelkeeper Warren, did not go over the Jackson prison wall Thursday evening, as at first suspected, but waited in the yard over 24 hours and climbed out Saturday morning. Some points are not explainable except to the discredit of the prison officials.

Rules for guards are to have each convict come to his cell door when counted. Had this been done, the dummy in McGrath's cell could hardly have filled the bill. This was laxness, begot of frequent passing of the convict in the punishment cell. But what raises a most serious question is how McGrath could remain about the prison yards so long, even if in hiding, unless some of the officials winked at what they saw. The bounds were at a loss for a scent, and most officials conclude that a friend met McGrath as soon as he was out and gave him a change of clothes, an act which would thwart the utility of bloodhounds.

Michigan's First Governor.

The remains of Michigan's first governor, Stevens Thomson Mason, reached Detroit Sunday, accompanied by Miss Emily V. Mason, aged 92 years, a sister of the dead governor. A military escort met the remains, and escorted the cortege to the Light Guard armory.

In the presence of a commission appointed by the legislature, the body of the boy governor was removed Friday from New York where it had been interred in the family vault of his father-in-law, Thaddeus Phelps, in the little cemetery, now hidden in the middle of the block bounded by Second avenue, Second and Third streets and the Bowers. During the afternoon the remains were taken under military and civic escort to Capitol Square Park where they were interred on the spot where once stood the building over which he was chief executive.

Locusts Are Coming.

The 17-year locusts which dispatches say are spreading throughout southern Wisconsin are due to appear in some counties of Michigan this year, according to Prof. R. H. Pettit, of Michigan Agricultural college. The swarm is known as brood No. 5, and has been under observation for a number of years, but it is said that their numbers will not be sufficient to cause serious damage. According to Prof. Pettit the locusts are looked for this year in eastern Iowa, northern Illinois, northwestern Indiana, a part of Pennsylvania and in several counties in Michigan—Berrien, Branch, Cass, Hillsdale, Oakland and Wayne.

Lo! He Forgets.

The Indian who was arrested at Dowagiac for laying ties across the track in front of a passenger train gave his name as Mike Sawalk, and says he is from Hartford. He was placed in jail at Cassopolis and at his examination next Friday the Michigan Central attorneys will appear to prosecute him on a charge of attempted trainwrecking. Since sobering up Sawalk says that he remembers nothing of the affair.

POOR OLD RUSSIA

OYAMA GETS BUSY AGAIN AND LINEVITCH MUST FIGHT.

ENQUIST CANNOT REPAIR SHIPS AT MANILA—MUST DISARM.

THE CZAR SAID TO BE FIRM FOR CONTINUING THE WAR.

On To Vladivostok.

The emperor of Japan has forwarded orders to Marshal Oyama to begin at once a general movement of all the land forces against the troops under Linevitch. Taken in connection with the reports of disaffection among the Russian troops in the far east, which necessitated the execution of 325 soldiers last week for mutiny, news of another Japanese victory may soon be looked for. It is believed that the latest Japanese move has for its culminating point the attack on Vladivostok.

President Roosevelt on Saturday had a conference with Count Cassini, the Russian ambassador, and expressed the earnest hope that Russia would forthwith conclude peace with Japan. Prolongation of the war, he believes, will not result in victory for the Russian arms, and can only serve to increase Japan's indemnity and render more difficult the drafting of a treaty of peace which the czar, as well as the mikado, can sign. The president spoke, he said, as the friend of Russia no less than of Japan, and on behalf not only of the Washington government, but in the interest of humanity. Until his words have reached Tsarskoe-Selo and have been communicated to Emperor Nicholas in the friendly spirit in which they were uttered, their effect cannot be estimated.

Advices Peace.

President Roosevelt on Saturday had a conference with Count Cassini, the Russian ambassador, and expressed the earnest hope that Russia would forthwith conclude peace with Japan. Prolongation of the war, he believes, will not result in victory for the Russian arms, and can only serve to increase Japan's indemnity and render more difficult the drafting of a treaty of peace which the czar, as well as the mikado, can sign. The president spoke, he said, as the friend of Russia no less than of Japan, and on behalf not only of the Washington government, but in the interest of humanity. Until his words have reached Tsarskoe-Selo and have been communicated to Emperor Nicholas in the friendly spirit in which they were uttered, their effect cannot be estimated.

The Verge of Civil War.

Serious as are the reports from Manchuria as to the effect that the Russian naval disaster has had among the czar's troops, the situation in Russia is even more foreboding. Russia seems to be on the verge of open outbreak, and it is doubtful if the expected calling of a national assembly will relieve the pressure. One of the czar's most influential ministers declared on Sunday that the emperor had not yet changed his position with regard to the prosecution of the war, on account of the destruction of Vice-Admiral Rojestvensky's fleet.

Remnants of Shattered Fleet.

Rear-Admirals Train and Enquist are now conferring in reference to the Russian warships which arrived in Manila Bay Saturday. According to an unofficial report, Rear-Admiral Enquist asks for 14 days' time in which to repair, coal and provision his vessels. It is said further that he alleges that the ships are unseaworthy and are damaged below the water line. Rear-Admiral Train will probably appoint a board to investigate the condition of the Russian vessels. Both he and Rear-Admiral Enquist are working in harmony. Thirty-four seriously wounded Russian sailors were placed in the naval hospital at Cavite today.

Call Him Coward.

Indignation against Rear Admiral Nebogoff is growing in St. Petersburg. The epithets "coward" and "traitor" are coupled with his name, especially since the receipt of the Tokio dispatches showing that his surrender was not in the heat of battle, but with the land close under his lee to which his crews could have escaped after the destruction of the ships. Ugly stories are circulating of the demoralization and even treachery of the crews of several of the Russian ships during the battle and it is even said that the crew of the battleship Orel bound their officers and hoisted the white flag.

Shattered and Useless.

Admiral Enquist will not be allowed to repair his ships at Manila. This government has decided that as the injuries were not caused either by the sea or storm they will be obliged to refuse permission for the vessels to be repaired there. Secretary Taft cabled the following instructions to Gov. Wright at Manila regarding the ships: "Time cannot be given for the repair of the injuries received in battle. Therefore the vessels cannot be repaired unless interned until the end of hostilities." Admiral Train has been instructed accordingly. It was said by Secretary Taft that if the Russian vessels agreed to leave Manila in their present condition they were welcome to do so. Enquist's ships are the Aurora, Oleg and Jemtechug. It is thought he will agree to intern them.

Leo, Fleischman, 17, missing from his New York home for a year, for whom a reward of $1,000 was offered by his distracted parents, has been discovered serving as a cadet on board the naval receiving ship Franklin, off Norfolk, Va. He says he ran away to be independent.

California "big trees" need not become extinct. Is the announcement of the United States bureau of forestry. The trees seed freely, but rarely germinate and it has been discovered that they take root quickly where the ground has recently been burned over. Many will now be planted in districts suited to their growth.

Because little Mary Selo, aged 6, of New Haven, Conn., wouldn't play with her little cousin, Corato Corda, aged 5, he chased her. The tot slapped his face, and in a fury Corato seized a big stone and cruelly beat his little playmate about the head and body so that she died.

THE LEGISLATURE.

Gov. Warner is firm in his stand against the two bills now before the senate, one of which would reduce the state tax commission from five to three members, and the other of which would give that body the right to equalize the assessments of railroad property with those of the general properties of the state, so that, possibly, the taxes of the roads may be reduced from the $3,500,000-a-year mark, against which they are so bitterly contending. If there is to be any readjustment his excellency wants to name all the men who are to do the assessing, and there is evidence in his talk that if the senate, like the house, passes the bills in such a way that the tax commission, as at present organized, will name the figures at which the railroads are to be taxed in the future, he will veto the bills, and the roads will again have to be taxed under the old law, which has been sustained in the federal court at Grand Rapids and under which the railroads owe the state over $5,000,000.

The fight over these bills will be the climax of the present session, which is to wind up Wednesday night. Rarely, if ever, have the railroads found themselves in a more difficult situation than that which confronts them now, and the fight which is on the boards at Lansing. The governor while in Detroit Saturday was asked if he had changed his position on the railroad tax bills, in line with the compromise, hints of which were heard in Lansing last week, the governor said:

"I have heard of no compromise, and if there is any such a thing on foot, nobody has said anything to me about it. In fact, I can't see any chance for a compromise."

"I shall insist that the bills to be passed will provide that the tax commission shall not have the right to equalize railroad assessments with those of general properties until the tax commission has been reorganized. I can't see any opportunity for any half-way position on this proposition."

Thus far the revenge play of the senators and representatives from cities which lost in the fight for the state fair to prevent the passage of the bill providing the usual $10,000 appropriation for the fair has been successful. Senators Martindale and Docherty went before the senate agricultural committee, which has the bill in charge, and urged that it be reported out, but Senator Seeley, the chairman, who comes from Pontiac, which lost the fair, and Senator Russell, of Kent county, which wants a slice for the Western Michigan fair, succeeded in holding the bill up. Their plea was that there is to be a hearing on the matter next Tuesday. As the legislature is to quit work next Wednesday night, this may mean that the bill will be lost in the closing rush.

Rep. Lovell, of Berrien, introduced a bill to provide for an inquiry by the future state highway commissioner into the cost of a trap rock quarry in the upper peninsula, a prison for 1,000 convicts adjacent and the cost of transportation of crushed stone for good roads to various counties of the state. The commissioner is to report to the next legislature. The idea of the bill is that so often exploited by Rep. Merritt of Detroit.

Gov. Warner has sent the name of H. S. Earle as highway commissioner to the senate.

Run on a Flint Bank.

A run on the Union Trust and Savings bank of Flint, resulting from a rumor the source of which cannot be traced, was started Wednesday afternoon and was in full swing Thursday. More than 100 depositors drew out their money before the bank closed and Thursday morning a crowd of between 200 and 300 assembled in front of the bank waiting for its doors to open. The officers and stockholders of the bank, who include some of the wealthiest men of the city, declare that the institution was never in better financial condition than at present and that all deposits will be paid on demand. Offers of assistance were received from Detroit and Jackson and many local merchants and manufacturers were ready to draw their money out of their banks and deposit it with the Union Trust and Savings. The Durant-Dort Co. offered to transfer all its accounts to this bank if the money is needed. It is thought that the run will subside after the people understand the situation.

Saginaw Kicks.

The action of the state military board in ordering the mustering out of Company C, M. N. G., stationed in Saginaw, east side, has caused a strong protest to go to Gov. Warner. More lobbying has been done in the past few days on this matter than on any state action this year. Former Gov. Bliss has joined in the movement. The company has been in existence for thirty-two years and its rolls contain the names of many of Saginaw's prominent citizens. Incidentally they give an explanation for the profusion of military titles that for years have been bantered about by "mutual-admiration-society" Saginawians. In no city in the state are there so many "colonels," "captains," etc., etc., prefixed to the names of business and professional men as here, and it is true that a muster call could draw out a full-sized battalion of what is now generally termed "feather-bed" generals.

The president will call a special session of congress about the middle of November.

Spanish anarchists tossed a bomb into the palace of the governor-general at Barcelona on Friday evening. No one was killed, but considerable damage was done.

A report reaches Nagasaki to the effect that little hope is entertained of the recovery of Admiral Rojestvensky, who is now in a hospital at Sasebo. His wounds consist of a bruise on the forehead and a slight fracture of the skull. The nature of his internal injuries is not known. The admiral's temperature and pulse are normal and there is no sign of brain trouble. He has other wounds, but they are not serious.

NEWS OF THE WORLD

THE CHICAGO STRIKERS IN FOR MORE TROUBLE OR PEACE.

BIGAMIST HOCH TO BE HANGED FOR HIS CRIMES IN JUNE.

THE DEPORTATION OF P. M. MEN FROM CANADA UP FOR DECISION.

Developments of the utmost significance in the teamsters' strike hinge on the outcome of arbitration negotiations between the team owners and the teamsters within the next few days. Both sides are in an aggressive mood and failure to reach an agreement, it is predicted, will force a walk-out of 10,000 more teamsters and bring idleness to thousands of workmen in Chicago. If the members of the Chicago Team Owners' association force the issue with their drivers similar action on the part of the teaming organizations, it is said, is practically certain.

It is alleged that during the grand jury investigation of the strike it became known to the jury that certain labor leaders had been planning the assassination of David M. Parry, of Indianapolis, and Judge Jesse Holdom, of Chicago. Parry is noted for his anti-union utterances and Judge Holdom for his strong rulings for law and order.

P. M. Officials Arrested.

The chief of the Dominion police arrived in St. Thomas Saturday with warrants for two of the railway officials to be deported. E. E. Cain and James G. Gihula, trainmaster and chief dispatcher respectively, were placed under arrest. The solicitor for the railway will apply in Toronto courts for a writ of habeas corpus restraining the police from deporting them. Both of the arrested officials are American citizens and came to St. Thomas about six months ago. If the application for the writ is not successful the men will be deported at once. The railway people in the city are much agitated. Messrs. Robinson and Green are acting as counsel for the men, and assert that they intend fighting the matter to the end in the courts.

A Peculiar Case.

A peculiar case of coma accompanying cerebro-spinal meningitis is reported in Yonkers, N. Y., where Joseph Canopi, the 6-year-old son of a contractor, has slept 58 days. All efforts to arouse him have failed, but the doctors believe that if he survives a few days more they will succeed in dissolving a blood clot on the brain and save him. The boy fell ill directly after he had eaten a hearty supper. That night he lapsed into unconsciousness, and has remained so ever since. Meantime his right eye has gone blind, and he has been fed through a tube. His spine has been covered with sores and applications are constantly made to the head. The lad's weight has fallen from 67 to 35 pounds.

The Beef Trust.

Indictments against 30 Chicago men have been drawn, it is said, as a result of the evidence secured by the "beef trust" grand jury in its two months' hearing of witnesses. Assistant Attorney General Oliver E. Hagin, who is now in Washington conferring with Attorney General Moody, is working on the papers. Since the adjournment of the federal grand jury District Attorney C. R. Morrison and Attorney Hagin have been in daily conference concerning the form of indictments, and it is said 30 true bills have been drawn by Attorney Hagin, while at least 10 more are to be drawn as a result of the trip to Washington.

Hoch Must Hang.

Johann Hoch, convicted wife murderer and confessed bigamist, was sentenced by Judge Kersten, of Chicago, Saturday, to be hanged June 23. Only a few persons were in court when the sentence was pronounced. The passing of sentence came after a dramatic scene in court. Hoch forgave the prosecutors, the police, the jurors and the many witnesses who testified against him and asked that God have mercy on their souls. He said: "I am convinced that my poor dear wife was murdered, but I am not her murderer."

Nebogoff's Crew Mutinied.

Details from a trustworthy source leave little room for doubt, says a Times dispatch from St. Petersburg, that Admiral Nebogoff's sailors mutinied in the battle of the Sea of Japan and either threw the admiral and many officers overboard, or, according to another version, bound them to their cabins and hoisted the white flag. Eight men in Nebogoff's squadron were, it is again asserted, hanged for mutiny while still in the Red sea.

Charles J. Bonaparte, of Baltimore, Md., who will succeed Paul Morton as secretary of the navy, is a grand nephew of the great Napoleon. He never figured as an aspirant for office, and what honors he has accepted have been forced on him in recognition of his high ideals of public administration.

An attempt to assassinate King Alfonso, of Spain, who is in Paris for a week's visit, and President Loubet, of France, was made at midnight June 1 by an anarchist, who hurled a bomb beneath the carriage containing the two rulers as they were leaving the opera.

As if by a miracle, both the King and President escaped uninjured, but fragments of the missile seriously injured five persons, killed or maimed a number of cavalry horses forming the escort, and knocked out a child's eye.

Alfonse XIII., King of Spain, is just past 19 years of age. He was born at the palace in Madrid, May 17, 1886. All through childhood he was delicate almost to feebleness, but has grown rugged and strong as he approached manhood, and the quiet manner of an effeminate youth has given place to a positive and forceful habit. He has developed a will of his own, and a brain power strong enough to win his way with the courtiers and councilors about the palace. He has looked forward with the greatest eagerness to this Parisian visit, his first excursion into the world "away from home."

ANIMALS NEVER IN IDLENESS.

They Reap Not, Neither Do They Spin, but Are Always Busy.

How is it that birds and beasts manage to pass through life without succumbing to ennui, or at least without being bored nearly to death? asks the Indian Times. Animals, as a rule, do not loaf; it is not thus that they solve the problem. Loafing is an art which few living creatures understand. Lizards, crocodiles and chapsarras are the greatest authorities on the subject. Animals have acquired the knack of making much ado about nothing; they have learned to be very busy without doing anything. This accomplishment obviously differs from that of loafing. It is one which animals have brought to perfection, and of which many human beings—chiefly women—are very able exponents. There is overheard a wasp busy exploring the holes in the trunk of a tree. Why he does this he probably does not know; he has no time to stop and think. He is quite content to explore away as though his life depended upon it. Five times within the last six minutes he has minutely inspected every portion of the same hole. All this labor is useless, in a sense. Without it, however, the wasp would in all probability die of ennui. The wasp is not an isolated case. Most animals are experts at frittering away time; they spend much of their lives in activity doing nothing. Watch a canary in a cage. He hops backward and forward between two perches as though he was paid by the distance for doing so. Look at a butterfly. He leads an aimless existence. Nevertheless he is always busy. A bee probably visits twenty times as many flowers in a day as a butterfly; for all that the butterfly is always on the move.

THE DEAD FRIEND EXHIBITED.

Announcement of Undertaker Rather Out of Place.

My father was a member for several years of the New Hampshire and Vermont Methodist Episcopal conferences, says a writer in the Boston Herald. In common with all country pastors, he had some laughable experiences, and he never failed to see the point in each one.

At one time he was called to attend the funeral of a man who had been well known and highly respected by his townspeople. 'Twas a delightful summer day, and the attendance of friends was large and crowded the small farmhouse, so it was decided to place the casket in the front yard.

The undertaker was a man of good intentions, but not gifted in speech, and when the time came for the friends to view the remains he electrified the officiating clergyman and some others by extending the invitation in this manner:

"The house being small, our dead friend will be exhibited outdoors."

Lace-Bark.

There are in all about half a dozen lace-bark trees in the world, so called because the inner bark yields a natural lace in ready-made sheet form, which can be made up in serviceable articles of apparel. Only four of these curious species of trees are of much practical value. Tourists who have stopped at Hawaii or Samoa may recall the lace-bark clothing of the natives—clothing of a neat brown color when new, of remarkable strength and of a fragrant odor, like freshly cured tobacco leaf. The native tapa cloth, as it is called, is made from the bark of the bruseoneta papirifera, but it is not usually included among the real lace-bark trees.

Out of Doors.

Just to be out of doors! So still! So green! With untroubled air, illimitable, clean. With soft, sweet scent of happy growing things. The leaves' soft flutter, sound of sudden wings. The far faint hills, the water wide between. Breast of the great earth-mother! Here we lean. With no conventions hard to intervene. Content, with the contentment nature brings. Just to be out of doors. And under all the feeling half foreseen. Of what this lovely world will come to mean. To all of us when the uncounted strings are keyed aright, and one clear music rings. In all our hearts. Joy universal, keen, Just to be out of doors. —Charlotte Gilman, in the Cosmopolitan.

One Music Pupil's Handicaps.

A certain teacher of music in a New England town never allows a chance of self-glorification to escape him. One of his pupils, a blind young cripple, recently passed a stiff examination, and the delighted music master rushed to the editor of the local paper with the fact.

He was sorry he did, however, when this paragraph appeared in the Journal:

"Our young townsman, who, besides being blind has lost the use of his legs, was prepared for this examination by Mr. B.—, a local teacher of music. Yet, despite all these handicaps, he came out of the ordeal with flying colors."

In Chinese Quarter

There are 7,000 Chinese in and about New York. Of these not more than 5,000 are nominally or actively residents of the greater city and less than 2,000 live in the triangle formed by Mott, Pell and Doyers streets, says a writer in the New York Sun. There are more Syrians than that in Greater New York, more Armenians and probably more Russians of Aryan blood.

One seldom hears of the New York Syrians as a people. The internal politics of the Syrians and the Armenians do not get into the police courts. But as for the Chinese, this handful of strangers, with their queer customs, their strange psychology and their halting efforts to adapt themselves to institutions which are not of their making, have managed in the past six months to involve nearly all the legal machinery of the city, including the district attorney's office, the police courts and the detective organization at police headquarters, in a little private quarrel of their own.

Chinatown as the whites know it is really only the market place and the Tenderloin of the Chinese population. Five thousand of the 7,000 live outside. Some of them are married and keep their families in Harlem flats or Brooklyn houses; some of them lodge behind their laundries.

They come into Chinatown by night to buy at the stores, to feast at the restaurants, to spend their money in the gambling houses or in other places of questionable reputation which flourish in this Chinese Tenderloin. It follows that the permanent residents of the district include all the toughs, the dissolute and the dishonest of the Chinese colony.

Why Quarter Exists.

The quarter has three reasons for being—straight commerce, vice—and tourists.

The Chinese cling with tenacity to their native diet, however they abandon their native dress; buy their Chinese radishes and sugar cane, their varnished pig, their planked roast duck at these stores. More than half of the goods offered for sale come from far abroad.

Many Chinese vegetables do not flourish in the cold climate of New Proclamation From the Consul.

York. So these vegetables, from sprouted rice to yams, are raised near New Orleans by a Chinese syndicate and from there shipped fresh every day or so to a syndicate of dealers which supplies the restaurants and stores.

The condiments and preserves, from plain pickled ginger to expensive bird's nests, come from China. So do many of the preserved fish and meats, and such uncommon delicacies as bird's nests, purple seaweed pancakes for soups and sprouted lily bulbs.

Most of the poor Chinese in New York are "washmen." When they had only native washerwomen to compete with, their natural industry and their man strength won out every time. But the steam laundry pulled down prices and improved work, so that there is now very little money in the laundry business. This has reacted on trade all along the line.

Once, too, when Chuck Connors was in his glory, and Chinatown was supposed to be thrillingly, terribly wicked, the tourist trade was considerable. That has fallen off in size and quality. Even the rubberneck wagon has helped but little, for the up-country lopsters come to look and not to spend.

Few Have Great Wealth.

There are references now and then to "Chinese millionaires." It is hard to tell anything about the wealth of any Chinese; that is a thing which they conceal even from one another for fear of blackmail. But it is probable that there are no conspicuously wealthy men in the quarter.

Gambling is at once the delight and the trouble-maker of the Chinese quarter. Here and in China it is the benetting vice and the favorite amusement.

Except for that one weakness it may be said that the Chinamen are on the whole more moral than the white people who surround them. They do not drink, and there are fewer opium smokers among them than there would be drunkards among an equal number of whites away from the restraints of home.

As a matter of fact, their gambling is mainly for excitement. Half of the games raided in the periodical police clean-ups are no more harmful than a society game of bridge or a quiet hand of poker at the club.

A laundryman drifting into Chinatown after his day's work forgets the cares of the day by winning or losing 95 cents in the course of an evening at pie-gow and returns to his laundry refreshed for another day of scrubbing. On the other hand, there are games where men play for the money in it, and there is a small class of professional gamblers who live by bucking the tiger.

Their Gambling Games.

The games are three. First is the lottery, a complicated system of spotting out numbers in long rows of figures. It costs 25 or 50 cents to spot a ticket, and the player, by a fortunate combination of numbers, stands to win several hundred dollars. Lottery tickets are sold almost openly. The drawings are held at noon in four or five different houses.

Pie-gow is only dominoes with Chinese complications. This is a mild game, usually about as innocent in the matter of stakes as playing pinochle for the drinks. It is the pet evening pastime in the back rooms of clubs.

Fan-tan is the game for plungers. This is the simplest device for losing money ever invented by man.

On the four sides of the table are the Chinese characters for 1, 2, 3, and 4. The dealer puts a handful of counters, or Chinese cash, into a bowl and dumps them out on the table.

With a rake he draws them out of the pile four at a time. If, after the last four have been drawn there, are two odd cash on the table, No. 2 wins, if three, No. 3 wins, and so on.

The players on the lucky number get triple stakes minus a percentage for the house. It is as simple as sinning.

What the Cat Would Have.

The following story is one that was related by the late Stephen C. Pattee of Warner, N. H., who was for several years a member of the school board:

One day, while he was visiting a school, a class in reading was heard, by the teacher. It was made up of the smaller pupils, who had not progressed very far in reading. One little girl got along very well until she came to the word "enough." This seemed to puzzle her, and she stopped and spelled it out, but could not tell what it was.

Thinking to help her a little, Mr. Pattee said: "If your kitty had all the good things she wanted to eat, and all the nice milk she wanted to drink, what would she have?"

The little girl pondered a minute, and then answered, "Kittens."

Who He Wanted to See There.

Some years ago, when the stage coaches were running between Boston and Providence, a man named Aaron Barrows kept a tavern known as Barrows' Tavern, on the pike in "Attleboro City," a part of North Attleboro. Being of an inquisitive turn of mind, and anxious to know everybody's business, there were few travelers escaped his questions.

One day he saw an Irishman coming up the pike tramping to Boston. He hastened to meet him, putting the usual queries as to who he was, where from, how long on the road and where he was going.

Learning that his destination was Boston, Barrows said: "And who do you want to see when you get there?"

Quick as a flash Pat answered: "Be jabbers, I want to see meself there."

Crazy Over Shares.

Money is easy in France. The French allotment of shares in the Central Mining and Investment Corporation (the new South African trust) were applied for nearly ninety times over. Subscribers get only about 1 1/4 per cent of their applications. Already the shares are at 13 per cent premium. That reads a good deal like the days of John Law and the first days of the French Panama canal.

HOW RUSSIAN FLAGSHIP WAS SUNK

Japanese Officers Tell of Havoc Wrought by Japanese on the Kniaz Souvaroff and of Flight and Capture of Rojestvensky

The first detailed stories of the sinking of the Russian flagship and the capture of Admiral Rojestvensky have been obtained from Japanese officers. The captain of the torpedo boat destroyer Murasama, which attacked the flagship, said:

"At daybreak of May 27 we received a wireless message of warning that the enemy's fleet was approaching and had arrived near Quelpart Island. The carrying out of our preconcerted plan then began. Our duty was to guard a certain roadstead. The main strength of the third squadron and a destroyer flotilla to which we were attached enticed the enemy to the waters of Iki and then checked him north toward Genkainada.

Russians Fall Upon Decoy. "Our fleet, headed by the Matsushima, opened fire from a certain concealed place which the Russian guns could not possibly reach. We merely threatened them, and they, without suspecting, promptly returned the fire. At this juncture the Japanese main fleet pressed the enemy from the north and the great battle began. "My destroyer was in a position outside the battle circle, watching the movements of the Russians, whose firing was lamentable. Many of their shells passed over the Japanese fleet and dropped in the waters beyond. One of these, having missed its real object, hit us astern.

"At the same time the order came to us to attack the enemy's flagship, the Kniaz Souvaroff. We dashed through the heavy seas toward the enemy's ship to within a distance of 100 meters, when we fired our first torpedo, a fish-shaped 18-inch Whitehead. We saw it strike the Kniaz Souvaroff astern and soon realized that it had smashed her steering gear.

Flagship Scene of Terror. "From this moment the whole of the shell fire of the Japanese fleet was concentrated upon Rojestvensky's flagship. Her funnels were shot into tinsel. Her masts, with one exception, collapsed with a terrible noise. The officers and sailors crowded around the one remaining mast, as if they were demented. It was really an awful sight, even for men who in war have witnessed many incidents of a terrible nature.

"When we fired our second torpedo, it struck the engine compartment, and the flagship immediately listed nearly to the water's edge.

"Meanwhile the cannonading of the whole of the Japanese fleet, as if controlled by one automatic switch, was concentrated upon the crowd of officers and men standing beneath the solitary mast, and within a few seconds they were scattered into fragments in the air like dry leaves before the wind.

"Almost simultaneously the flagship reared up as perpendicular as a pole imbedded in the ground and plunged to the bottom of the sea."

Rojestvensky Forced to Flee. The circumstances under which Admiral Rojestvensky was captured are related as follows:

The Russian commander was at first on board his fighting ship, the Kniaz Souvaroff. From the beginning of the battle on May 27 he fought with magnificent courage, but on May 28 his flagship became separated from the remainder of the fleet. It was isolated, but kept on firing all its guns one battle ship against such overwhelming odds.

For a time she was the solitary target of the Japanese fleet. Shells swept her decks like a cyclone and it was soon evident she must speedily sink. Therefore the admiral, with eight of his staff officers, was removed to the destroyer Bledovy.

All the while the Japanese continued to pour in their storm of shells. Rojestvensky, having fled from the his flagship, was now the target of the combined fleet.

The destroyer, now the admiral's flagship, attempted to break away, first pointing her head one way, then another, in her efforts to find a gap in the ring of ships and guns.

Destroyers in Deadly Duel.

The Japanese destroyer Sasannami advanced from the lines to meet the admiral's destroyer, and she glided through the water, pouring in a terrible and close fire. The Bledovy became disabled and was unable to use her steering gear, which had been shattered.

It was now that Rojestvensky and his chief of staff were wounded again, and this time the admiral was seriously injured. The Bledovy was boarded by the crew of the Sasannami.

The Japanese searched high and low. All the Russians on the Bledovy were made prisoners, and Rojestvensky was the last man on board to be discovered. He was found hiding in the bottom of the destroyer, bleeding freely from many wounds.

The admiral, who arrived here on May 30, had the forehead frontal bone broken by a splinter of shell. His chest and left thigh also were slightly wounded. He received medical treatment at the naval hospital and is now out of danger.

Japanese Shots Hit Mark.

Their torpedo attack in high winds and heavy seas was perfect. Every torpedo that was fired, with rare exceptions, struck. One torpedo resulted in a Russian battleship turning turtle completely.

In the course of twenty hours the torpedo boats sent seven Russian warships to the bottom. Many of the guns of the Russian fleet were rusty and some of them burst during action.

Furthermore, the Russian warships were in a filthy condition inside and out, and seaweed had grown below their water line.

Admiral Togo on the night before the battle, when he knew from his scouts that the Russians would be off Tsu Island the following morning, slept soundly.—Chicago Record-Herald.

Sick Headache

When your head aches, there is a storm in the nervous system, centering in the brain.

This irritation produces pain in the head, and the turbulent nerve current sent to the stomach causes nausea, vomiting.

This is sick headache, and is dangerous, as frequent and prolonged attacks weaken the brain, resulting in loss of memory, inflammation, epilepsy, fits, dizziness, etc.

Allay this stormy, irritated, aching condition by taking Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills.

They stop the pain by soothing, strengthening and relieving the tension upon the nerves—not by paralyzing them, as do most headache remedies.

Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills do not contain opium, morphine, chloral, cocaine or similar drugs.

"Sick headache is hereditary in my family. My father suffered a great deal, and for many years I have had spells that were so severe that I was unable to attend to my business affairs for a day or so at a time. During a very severe attack of headache, I took Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills and they relieved me almost immediately. Since then I take them when I feel the spell coming on and it stops it at once."

CHAPTER IV.

Disclosures.

Mr. Bruce, the detective, met with no difficulties in learning what he wished to know regarding Mrs. Anderson of New Jersey, who, it appeared, by some unaccountable freak of nature, had been given emerald hair as a head covering, and stranger yet, in spite of this, was a beautiful woman. Mr. Bruce, for reasons of his own, chose to go to Miss Talbert for information, and was amply rewarded. He was told in as few words as possible all that was known about the strange lady. Finally, Miss Talbert, asking to be excused for a moment, left the room and returned almost immediately with a fine, hem-stitched handkerchief with an intricate embroidered design in the corner.

"And what may that be?" asked the puzzled detective. "Her handkerchief?"

"Yes, she dropped it in the hall as she went out. One of the girls saw it drop and called to her, but she did not hear."

"Mary."

"Then," thought the detective, "the woman is not likely to be Lenora, and Mrs. Hamilton may be right. Poe's poems are haunting, certainly; but somehow I felt as if this woman was the Lenora of his dream."

"Perhaps you had better say nothing about my inquiries," he said to Miss Talbert upon leaving.

"Very well. I will remember your caution," she answered, and she watched with some curiosity, as he went down the street and turned the corner. "He is going to the bank," she thought; and she was right.

Arrived there, he found that the business being carried on was all of examination as you desire, you find deposits not credited in the bank books, you may rest assured if I failed to make the entry it was a mistake, and if others have done it I know nothing about it. As for Osborn, he is as honest as the day. I am unable to return at present, but shall do so as soon as I can. Show this letter to my wife."

"A curious letter," said the detective, staring blankly at the ceiling. "Yes, he must have seen the newspaper reports. What does the letter mean, do you think?"

"There seem to be two meanings, and which flatly contradict each other. He throws suspicion on Osborn, and yet says he is as honest as the day. If there is any complicity on the clerk's part, it would be for Hamilton's interest to have him thought innocent. On the other hand, they seem at odds. Hamilton hints at others, and Osborn states that he saw Hamilton enter the bank on the night of the twenty-second."

"True," said President Hastings, looking puzzled. "It is a strange case, taken in all its aspects."

"Mr. Hamilton was, I hear, a man much respected."

"He was, and his wife still has implicit trust in him."

Remembering Mrs. Hamilton's manner, Mr. Bruce could not perfectly agree with him, but said nothing.

"You are in her employ, are you not?" asked Mr. Hastings.

"I am. I reported to her this morning."

"Did she show you her advertisement of the reward she offers for information of her husband?"

"No, perhaps she thought I had seen it."

The president handed him a journal and pointed to the notice. The detective read:

"$500 Reward.—Vane C. Hamilton, of Grovedale, N. H., has been missing since May 10th, unless, as is stated by one person, he was at the savings but I am empowered to offer $1,000 more, making the sum $1,500, though for the present no change will be made in the wording, unless you advise it."

"I do not advise it. A change would alarm Hamilton, showing that suspicions had been awakened. To show that he is thought to have absconded with funds of the bank would alarm him directly and put him beyond our reach. But he might even return if he thought nothing was suspected, if it should be authentically stated by you, for instance, that upon examination everything had been found correct. Still, he must know the affair of the altered note would leak out some time."

"Yes, and there may be others of still larger amount, Mr. Bruce."

"True. One thing more I wish to ask you. Who presented the note and received the money at the Boston bank?"

"Mr. Hamilton, himself."

"Are you sure?"

"I have the written word of Simon Low, the cashier of the bank. Low has been here more than once. He knows Hamilton nearly as well as I do."

"A dark look!"

"Couldn't look much blacker, hey?"

"No; but I am sorry for his wife," said the detective. "It will be sharp work hunting him up."

Mr. Bruce took his departure shortly afterward, musing deeply over the present developments of the mysterious affair, for exceedingly mysterious it seemed to him. In the whole course of his calling he had known of nothing like it, so puzzling and complicated with what appeared to be such adverse matters.

Here was a man universally esteemed, who for years had been guilty of nothing worse than mysterious yearly journeys (yet which were supposed to be innocent enough until now); a devoted husband and father; a member of the Congregational church, of which he was deacon, though young for the position; cashier of the savings bank where the poor people who worked at his mill deposited their earnings—this man, it seemed, was a defaulter, a forger, the deserter of his wife and family. Worse yet, it appeared also that he had left his wife and went away in company with another woman, though this did not seem quite so evident.

Confirmation, slight though it might be, was waiting at the corner of the street in the person of Miss Talbert.

"I saw you," she began directly, "when you left the bank, and as I had given you a wrong idea I felt bound to set it right at once."

"How do you mean?"

"About the handkerchief. Mary, our chambermaid, came in soon after you left and asked if she might have it, as it was marked with her name, and she was the only Mary in the house."

"I suppose you might as well have it, then," I said; "but how did you happen to know about it?" "Oh," said Mary, "I handed it to Mrs. Anderson when she first came. She was continually dropping things, and I noticed the name. She asked me what it was, and I told her Mary. She said she did not notice that it had a name on it when she bought it. Before she thought, Mary asked her if it wasn't her name then, and she said no, her name was Lenora."

The detective was startled out of his general immobility by the internal workings of the matter. A development like that was startling, when it would have seemed so much more likely to have never come to the surface. But he managed to thank Miss Talbert for her information and to say, "No wonder she did not recognize the name herself. It looked quite as much like a rosebud or a wheelbarrow. You gave the handkerchief to Mary, I conclude; Mary—what?"

"Mary O'Neil. Yes, I gave it to her."

BUILT WITH SECRET DRAWERS.

Hidden Compartments in All Up-to-date Furniture.

The woman in a fashionable furniture store looked the new sideboard all over, but seemed so indifferent that the salesman despaired of a sale. He was preparing to accept the usual "will call again" when an idea occurred to him. Opening a cabinet on the side intended for cruet bottles, he touched a spring. To the astonished customer was revealed a secret drawer, large enough to hold a dozen letters or so, a bank book, and a few jewels. The salesman closed the drawer.

"Now open it," he said to the customer.

She tried in vain. She asked the salesman to show her how. He said he would with pleasure if she bought the sideboard, otherwise it was against the rules of the house.

"This is an evolution of the secret drawers in writing desks," he said to an onlooker. "It is not up-to-date now to put secret compartments in desks. That is the first place anybody looking for hidden documents is sure to look. But they never think of searching in a folding bed or a dining room sideboard. It is the women who run most strongly to this freak feature in furniture. A man has his fireproof deposit vault or a safe place in his office for any papers he wants to keep out of sight. A woman seldom has anything but a desk at home, that is as available to everybody else in the family as it is to her. She never knows what moment her cherished little secrets may be uncovered and laughed at. With such a compartment as the one in that sideboard she need never worry."

FARM MISCELLANY

Creamery Stock.

The question is now being discussed as to whether the stock of co-operative creameries should be owned by others than the men that are supplying milk or cream to the creamery. Some take one side of the controversy and some the other, but the strongest arguments seem to be in favor of the stock being kept entirely in the hands of the farmers that are directly interested in the success of the creamery. As much of such stock does not pay interest, it is evident that the outside owners of stock might in time come to feel that they could no longer let the creamery have their money without some returns, and would begin an agitation to turn the co-operative creamery into a stock company creamery. In some co-operative creameries only one share is held by one person, and that one share so credited to the farm, not the man. When he sells his farm the share goes, too. That prevents the trading in shares.

Corn Cultivation.

Use good seed corn. To obtain it, go through your cornfield as soon as the silk is black and select the best ears. Hang it up in the garret or barn. Break up your corn land, disk it in the spring and plant it as soon as the ground permits, using no less than three grains and no more than five in a hill. A week after planting, harrow it with a slanted, fine-toothed harrow made for that purpose. Harrow a week later, and again when your corn is four inches high. This will keep the weeds out of the hills. If your land is rich, plant it three feet by six inches. Keep away from the hill when cultivating, but cultivate deep until after July 4; then bring some soil to the corn, but have your cultivation more shallow.

Barrels or Boxes.

The apple sellers in the vicinity of Three Rivers, Quebec, were polled by the American consul there as to their preference for barrels or boxes for packing apples. The consensus of opinion was that more apples of a fancy class could be sold in boxes, but that common apples should be sent in barrels. The boxes require more handling, as it takes three boxes to equal one barrel, and during the rush season it is doubtful if the same quantity of apples could be handled in boxes as in barrels without the employing of increased help. One experienced apple handler said: "We like some fancy apples and fruit of an extra quality for holiday seasons in boxes, but we prefer the average apple in barrels."

The Soy Bean.

The soy bean (glycine hispida), also known as soja bean and coffee berry, is a native of southeastern Asia. This leguminous plant has been cultivated for centuries in China and Japan. In those countries it is one of the important articles of food, but as such has never found favor in the United States. In the countries mentioned it has developed many different forms and varieties. This plant was imported into England about 100 years ago, but received there no attention, and no one considered it a food plant for man or beast. It was grown for a long time in the Southern States before it attracted attention, but finally its great worth was recognized. Now it is famous.

Feeding Spring Pigs.

Our pigs are now large enough to need very little milk from the sows and they are getting little. We are feeding them a good deal of skim-milk, and in a few days when we turn them out on pasture even this will be reduced. We have a good blue grass pasture, and we depend on the blue grass to help balance the ration of soaked corn that we begin to feed about this time. The balancing process is much helped by the skim-milk they get. Later we will begin to feed new corn and then will not need to soak the old. It is my experience, however, that the soaking does a great deal of good and makes the corn more fully digestible.—John Bean, in Farmers' Review.

Temperature of Soil.

The temperature of the soil has much to do with the success or failure of the planting operations. Sometimes what is charged to poor seed is really due to low temperature of the soil. One lot of seed was planted in soil at a temperature of 55 degrees. Cold weather came on and rain and the seed rotted. Then the atmosphere cleared and the sun came out warm and in two days raised the temperature of well-drained land to 65 degrees. The second lot of seed was sown and soon came up. It was the temperature that did it. You can't farm by the almanac. Even the thermometer is safer than that.

The Swine Crate.

The crate in which the pig is to be shipped must be made strong, but it must be also as light as possible. Where many pigs are to be sold during the year it is best to keep on hand a supply of light and tough crating material, which will then have a chance to season. Elm is regarded as one of the best crating materials that can be found. Measure the pig carefully before building the crate.

REDEEMS ALL BAD MONEY.

New York Church Member Keeps Collections at Par.

"We have a member of this congregation," said an usher in a Lexington avenue church, according to the New York Press, "who contributes to its support in an unusual way. He pays his pew rent all right, but he has a rooted objection to dropping a coin in the collection plate. No matter whether the contribution is for church expenses or for foreign missions, this man ducks the plate when it passes his pew. He says he abhors 'giving alms before men.' But he redeems all the bad money that others drop into the plate as a way of getting even with his conscience."

"When the collection is counted all the bad coin is picked out and given to the treasurer of the church. Some Sundays there is a good deal of it. It seems as though men and women who have Canadian dimes and quarters, mutilated coins of all denominations and money that was never made in the mint feel justified in dropping it into the collection box. When the treasurer gets a handful of this money he calls the old man into the vestry after the Wednesday evening prayer meeting and gets good money for it. The old man puts the bad coin in his pocket and takes it home."

Thought She Couldn't Live.

Moravia, N. Y., June 5.—Mr. Benjamin Wilson, a highly respected resident of this place, came very near losing his wife and now that she is cured and restored to good health his gratitude knows no bounds. He says:

"My wife has suffered everything with Sugar Diabetes. She has been sick four years. She doctor'd with two good doctors but kept growing worse. The doctors said she could not live. She failed from 200 pounds down to 130 pounds. This was her weight when she began to use Dodd's Kidney Pills, and now she weighs 190, is well and feeling stronger every day."

"She used to have rheumatism so bad that it would raise great bumps all over her body and this is all gone too."

"Dodd's Kidney Pills are a God-send to those who suffer as my wife did. They are all that saved her. We can't praise them enough."

Tea Cigarettes Supplant Morphine.

London fashion devotees are said to be giving up morphine tablets in favor of cigarettes made from carefully blended green and black teas, the nervous effects of smoking which are even more powerful than that produced by tobacco. Dizziness, partial stupor and extravagant visions are given as the leading symptoms, victims having frequently to be sent to private sanatoria.—London Good Health.

After Many Years.

The grandfather sat in his easy chair and the grandson laughed: "Ho! Ho!" while he repeated the very latest joke—but it filled his heart with woe, when the old man sadly smiled and said: "My boy, that's a good joke, I know; I laughed myself when I heard it first—some fifty years ago."

FEED YOU MONEY.

Feed Your Brain, and It Will Feed You Money and Fame.

"Ever since boyhood I have been especially fond of meats, and I am convinced I ate too rapidly, and failed to masticate my food properly."

"The result was that I found myself, a few years ago, afflicted with ailments of the stomach and kidneys, which interfered seriously with my business."

"At last I took the advice of friends and began to eat Grape-Nuts instead of the heavy meats, etc., that had constituted my former diet."

"I found that I was at once benefited by the change, that I was soon relieved from the heart-burn and the indigestion that used to follow my meals, that the pains in my back from my kidney affection had ceased, showing that those organs had been healed, and that my nerves, which used to be unsteady, and my brain, which was slow and lethargic from a heavy diet of meats and greasy foods, had, not in a moment, but gradually, and none the less surely, been restored to normal efficiency. Now every nerve is steady and my brain and thinking faculties are quicker and more acute than for years past."

"After my old style breakfasts I used to suffer during the forenoon from a feeling of weakness which hindered me seriously in my work, but since I have begun to use Grape-Nuts food I can work till dinner time with all ease and comfort." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

COMPLETELY RESTORED.

Mrs. P. Brunzel, wife of P. Brunzel, stock dealer, residence 3111 Grand Ave., Everett, Wash., says: "For fifteen years I suffered with terrible pain in my back. I did not know what it was to enjoy a night's rest and arose in the morning feeling tired and unrefreshed. My suffering sometimes was simply indescribable. When I finished the first box of Doan's Kidney Pills I felt like a different woman. I continued until I had taken five boxes."

Doan's Kidney Pills act very effectively, very promptly, relieve the aching pains and all other annoying difficulties."

Prefer Black Teeth.
The trade of tooth-stainer, followed in eastern Asia, is as odd a calling as any. The natives prefer black teeth to the whiter kind, and the tooth-stainer, with a little box of brushes and coloring matter calls on his customers and stains their teeth. The process is not unlike that of blacking a boot, for a fine polish is given to the teeth. The pigment is harmless.

Astronomer's Strange Diet.
The eminent French astronomer, Lalande, either rarely possessed, or else affected, an excessive fondness for spiders and caterpillars as articles of diet, and would eat them with apparent relish. He always carried a supply of these insects about with him in a bonbonniere.—Critic.

HER WEAKNESS GONE

HOT FLASHES AND SINKING SPELLS CONQUERED AT LAST.

Mrs. Murphy Tells Her Fellow-Sufferers How She Got Rid of Serious Troubles by Simple Home Treatment.

"I had been bothered for several years," said Mrs. Murphy, "by stomach disorder, and finally I became very weak and nervous. Flashes of heat would pass over me, and I would feel as if I was sinking down. At such times I could not do any household work, but would have to lie down, and afterwards I would have very trying nervous spells."

"Didn't you have a doctor?" she was asked.

"Yes, I consulted several doctors but my health did not improve. One day a friend asked me why I did not try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. She assured me that they had proved of the greatest benefit in the case of her daughter. In fact, she praised them so enthusiastically that my husband got me a box."

"And what was the result?"

"Before I had taken half of the first box my condition was greatly improved. The quickness with which they reached and relieved all my troubles was really surprising. After I had used only three boxes I had no more heat-flashes or weak spells. Thanks to them, I have become a well woman."

Mrs. Mary D. Murphy lives at No. 1903 Force street, Fort Wayne, Indiana. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, the remedy which she found so satisfactory, furnish directly to the blood the elements that give vigor to every tissue of the body. They can be depended on to revive failing strength, and to banish nervousness. Their tonic properties are absolutely unsurpassed.

PISO'S CURE FOR CONSUMPTION

MISS MARIA DUCHARME.

Every Woman in America is Interested in This Young Girl's Experience.

PELVIC CATARRH WAS DESTROYING HER LIFE. PE-RU-NA SAVED HER.

Miss Maria Ducharme, 183 St. Elizabeth street, Montreal, Can., writes:

"I am satisfied that thousands of women suffer because they do not realize how bad they really need treatment and feel a natural delicacy in consulting a physician."

"I felt badly for years, had terrible pains, and at times was unable to attend to my daily duties. I tried to cure myself, but finally my attention was called to an advertisement of Peruna in a similar case to mine, and I decided to give it a trial."

"My improvement began as soon as I started to use Peruna and soon I was a well woman. I feel that I owe my life and my health to your wonderful medicine and gratefully acknowledge this fact."—Maria Ducharme.

What Fatigue Really Is.

Tiredness is as natural a condition of life as is the ability to perform work, writes Andrew Wilson in the Illustrated London News. It is nature's signal that rest and repose are necessary in order to recuperate the vital powers. Think for a moment of the supply of nourishment (which means the giving of energy or "the power of doing work") to any part. The healthy frame receives its due quota of food materials, and out of them builds up its substance and obtains its working power. But the supply of energy is not constant. Hence, after a certain exhaustion of the store it originally possessed, the human engine demands more coal and water. Fatigue is the sign-manual which authorizes the fresh supply.

Fortune in Fighting Bulls.

Statistics published in Spain state that during 1904 nearly 12,000 bulls were killed in bull fights. The bulls killed about 10,000 horses. The best and most valuable bulls for the arena are raised on the vast estates of the duke of Veragua, in Andalusia, who has made a fortune out of this business.—London Globe.

Coins Out of Circulation

One frequently comes across the old jolly-looking big copper cents, particularly in small towns and country places. It was in 1857 that their coinage was discontinued by act of Congress, and late archives in the Treasury department show that at the end of the last fiscal year there were of them outstanding over a million dollars.

Further coinage of the half-cent coins ended at the same time. The total amount of these coined all together was about $40,000,000, speaking in round numbers. The two-cent pieces were of bronze metal. Their enforced retirement from commercial activity began in 1873, since which date the mints have not been busy with their manufacture. The little silver three-cent pieces trouble the marts no longer, though some of them may be hidden away somewhere to serve as relics. Their coinage began in 1857 and continued until February, 1873. The smiling little silver half-dime, the coinage of which began over a century ago, received its quietus, so far as its manufacture was concerned, at the same date as the three-cent silver piece.

Other of these minor coins that have had their day are in honorable retirement in the hoards of collectors, in museums and elsewhere. Among these are the nickel three-cent piece and the little old gray-faced nickel cents, though it is easy to run across one of these little coins occasionally. Their making at the mints lasted from 1857 to 1864. Then there used to be a silver twenty-cent piece. This is also among the list of "has-beens."

Many of course can remember the days of the infants of coinage, the one-dollar piece that was in the habit of losing itself, so little it was, in the vest pocket or in any other part of one's apparel where it was allowed to lie around loose. There were about 19,000,000 of the babies coined. Where are they roaming now? Then there was at one time a three-dollar gold coin. Their manufacture was discontinued by an act of Congress passed Sept. 26, 1880, the same date that marked the beginning of the end of the gold dollar. In all there were over a million and a half dollars of these coined.—Washington Star.

Long Sought Passage Found

According to dispatches from San Francisco Capt. Ronald Amundsen has discovered the northwest passage. If so, he has finished the labors of hardy sailors and other explorers for centuries past. It was the commercial instinct that led to the first great voyages of discovery. This instinct had two phases. One was to extend the limits of the northern fisheries. The prosecution of the whaling industries is estimated to have added over $600,000,000 to the wealth of the world in the 200 years before the middle of the nineteenth century. The other phase of the commercial instinct was the desire to shorten the water route between the ports of western Europe and the rich orient. The era of scientific research in polar exploration did not begin until the last half of the nineteenth century. The humanitarian spirit that led many expeditions to engage in the search for Sir John Franklin resulted in enormous additions to the world's knowledge of those regions.

John Davis in 1588 succeeded in reaching what is now Godthaab, Greenland, and his three voyages gave the first great impulse toward the northwest passage. There followed a succession of brave men, each of whom added something to what was already known, and then in the last century, in the '40s, came the ill-fated expedition of Sir John Franklin. Franklin had two ships and 129 men. Years after his departure a member of McClintock's party found, in 1859, records which showed that the Franklin ships had been abandoned April 22, 1848. Franklin and twenty-three others having previously died. And 105 men had perished in an attempt to reach Fish river. Their route is marked by graves and skeletons and the whole party practically vanished from human knowledge. The last search for news of Franklin was made in 1878-79 by F. Schwatka and W. H. Gilder, who in King William's Land found many skeletons and relics. The northwest passage successfully resisted all attempts at discovery.

Much easier was the northeast passage. As in the case of the northwest passage, men began looking for it soon after the discovery of America. Two of the earliest English explorers were Willoughby and Chancellor who in 1553 opened Archangel bay. Later the Russians took up the matter. It was Adolf Erik Nordenskjöld, a Finn, who first solved the problem of the circumnavigation of Asia and Europe. He reached Yokohama in 1879, from Vega, in Russia, having made the northeast passage without disaster.

Tiniest of All Athletes

Smaun Sing Hpo, the smallest athlete in the world, is the latest wonder India has sent to London, says a special to the St. Louis Post-Dispatch. He is 22 years of age. His height is 34 inches, his chest measurement 22 1/2 inches, his hip measurement also 22 1/2 inches, and his fighting weight twenty pounds.

Sing Hpo, unlike the ordinary dwarf, is exceedingly well developed and symmetrically built. He wears an immaculate frock coat some fifteen inches in length, a pair of daintily cut trousers, a fancy vest, perfectly correct collar and tie, and a shiny silk hat of 1905 shape, just large enough to fit over the fist of an ordinary man.

His companion, Capt. Wetzel, invited him to show his acrobatic skill, whereupon the little man took hold of the captain's hands in a firm grasp, raised his body gracefully in the air, and performed what is known in gymnastic circles as a "long arm balance" in the most approved style. Then, using the captain's hands as a pair of "rings," Sing Hpo, turning a somersault, stretched out his tiny body rigidly in the manner adopted by every gymnast when showing his paces.

Sing Hpo's accomplishments are not, however, confined to acrobatic tricks. He is a good linguist, for he speaks English well, German fluently and French slightly, not to mention his native Burmese.

Perhaps the most amazing thing about Sing Hpo is the fact that his appetite is not at all in proportion to his size. He is accustomed to sit down with ordinary mortals and eat just as much as any one at the table.

For breakfast he likes three or four eggs, and as a pick-me-up he is accustomed to swallow a couple of dozen oysters at a sitting. He eats a large quantity of meat, but is not fond of potatoes or other vegetables.

Among his treasured possessions is a gold bracelet, slightly larger than a wedding ring, which he wears round his little brown wrist. It was given to him by Miss Loe Fuller, an American dancer.

The Men of Old

I know not that the men of old Were better than men now, Of heart more kind, of hand more bold, Of more ingenious brow; I need not those who pine for force A ghost of time to raise, As if they thus could check the course Of these appointed days.

Still, it is true, and over-true, That I delight to close This book of life self-wise and new, And let my thoughts repose On all that humble happiness The world has since foregone— The daylight of contentedness That on those faces shone!

With rights, though not too closely scanned, Enjoyed as far as known, With will by no reverse unmann'd, With pulse of even tone, They from to-day, and from to-night, Expected nothing more Than yesterday and yesterday Had proffered them before.

To them was life a simple art Of duties to be done, A game where each man took his part, A race where all must run; A battle whose great scheme and scope They little care to know, Content as men-at-arms, to cope Each with his fronting foe.

No Hope for His Affliction.

Buoyancy of spirits is one of the chief traits in the character of the Rev. Frank W. Gunsaulus, head of the Armour Institute in Chicago.

A watchful newspaper reporter overheard the famous preacher ask at a hotel office for Dr. Lorenz, the hip specialist. Thinking that here was a story, the reporter waited until Dr. Gunsaulus came down, then approached him with the question: "Was there anything of public significance in your call on Dr. Lorenz?"

Man now his virtue's diadem Puts on, and proudly wears— Great thoughts, great feelings, came to them.

Like instincts unawares; Blending their souls' sublimest needs With tasks of every day, They went about their gravest deeds As noble boys at play.

And what if nature's fearful wound They did not probe and bare, For that their spirits never swooned To watch the misery there— For that their love had flowed more fast, Their charity more free, Not conscious what mere drops they cast In the evil sea.

A man's best things are nearest him, Lie close about his feet; It is the distant and the dim That we are sick to greet; For flowers that grow our hands beneath We struggle and aspire— Our hearts must die, except they breathe The air of fresh desire.

Yet, brothers, who up reason's hill Advance with hopeful cheer— Oh, better not those heights are chill, As chill as they are clear, And still restrain your haughty gaze The loftier that ye go, Remembering distance leaves a haze On all that lies below.

—Richard Moncton Mills.

"Oh, no," said Dr. Gunsaulus. "I consulted him about this affliction in my walk. But he said: 'Cheer up, There's no hope for you. You'll never be any better.'—The Sunday Magazine.

Just Discrimination in Railway Rates.

All railroad men qualified to speak on the subject in a responsible way are likely to agree with President Samuel Spencer of the Southern Railway when he says: "There is no division of opinion as to the desirability of stopping all secret or unjustly discriminatory devices and practices of whatsoever character."

Mr. Spencer, in speaking of "unjustly discriminatory" rates and devices, makes a distinction which is at once apparent to common sense. There may be discrimination in freight rates which is just, reasonable and imperatively required by the complex commercial and geographical conditions with which expert rate makers have to deal. To abolish such open and honest discrimination might paralyze the industries of cities, states and whole sections of our national territory.

This distinction between just and unjust discrimination is clearly recognized in the conclusions of the International Railway Congress, published yesterday:

"Tariffs should be based on commercial principles, taking into account the special conditions which bear upon the commercial value of the services rendered. With the reservation that rates shall be charged without arbitrary discrimination to all shippers alike under like conditions, the making of rates should as far as possible have all the elasticity necessary to permit the development of the traffic and to produce the greatest results to the public and to the railroads themselves."

The present proposal is, as Mr. Walker D. Hines of Louisville showed in his remarkable testimony the other day before the Senate Committee at Washington, to crystallize flexible and justly discriminatory rates into fixed government rates which cannot be changed except by the intervention of some government tribunal, and by this very process to increase "the temptation to depart from the published rate and the lawful rate in order to meet some overpowering and urgent commercial condition."—New York Sun.

MILK CRUST ON BABY.

Lost All His Hair—Scratched Till Blood Ran—Grateful Mother Tells of His Cure by Cuticura for 75c.

"When our baby boy was three months old he had the milk crust very badly on his head, so that all the hair came out, and it itched so bad he would scratch until the blood ran. I got a cake of Cuticura Soap and a box of Cuticura Ointment. I applied the Cuticura and put a thin cap on his head, and before I had used half of the box it was entirely cured, his hair commenced to grow out nicely again, and he has had no return of the trouble. THE BIG COCOA PALM.

Grow in Salty Soil, Defying Hurricanes of the Tropics.

The coconut means a great deal to the West Indian negro, says Country Life. A dark-skinned man ran lightly up the tall stem, with suspiciously prehensile feet, stopping at the fruit cluster to select and pull off a great nut, which he tossed to the ground. I examined it with curiosity, for it was little enough like the coconut of the stores in the north. A smooth green covering, hard, impervious to anything but a heavy knife—no wonder the cocoa palm spreads among these islands! Boat-shaped, in a sense; light enough to float easily, the big seed is always ready for a sea voyage. Cast ashore on a sandy beach, it quickly germinates and holds fast in the salty soil, soon growing to its estate of beauty and fruitfulness and able to defy the hurricanes of the tropics.

Restful as were the isolated cocoa palms, it was not until I came upon a real grove of them that I could fully appreciate the tropical latitude. A visit to "Crusoe beach," fringed by the great palms, hanging full of heavy nuts, with liberty to wander where the sandy ground—it was winter, mind you!—was covered, not with fallen leaves of oak and beech, but with great fronds eight or ten feet long drooping from the clean-stemmed giants with feather-duster heads—this took away the last memory of the ice-bound and coal-smoked north.

INTERESTING LETTER

WRITTEN BY A NOTABLE WOMAN

Mrs. Sarah Kellogg of Denver, Color Bearer of the Woman's Relief Corps, Sends Thanks to Mrs. Pinkham.

The following letter was written by Mrs. Kellogg, of 1638 Lincoln Ave., Denver, Colo., to Mrs. Pinkham, Lynn, Mass.

"For five years I was troubled with a tumor, which kept growing, causing me intense agony and great mental depression. I was unable to attend to my house work, and life became a burden to me. I was confined for days to my bed, lost my appetite, my courage and all hope."

"I could not bear to think of an operation, and in my distress I tried every remedy I thought it only meant temporary relief, but to my great surprise I found that I kept gaining, while the tumor lessened in size."

"The Compound continued to build up my general health and the tumor seemed to be absorbed, until, in seven months the tumor was entirely gone and I a well woman. I am so thankful for my recovery that I ask you to publish my letter in newspapers, so other women may know of the wonderful curative powers of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound."

When women are troubled with irregular or painful menstruation, weakness, leucorrhoea, displacement or ulceration of the womb, that bearing-down feeling, inflammation of the ovaries, backache, flatulence, general debility, indigestion and nervous prostration, they should remember there is one tried and true remedy. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound at once removes such troubles."

No other medicine in the world has received such widespread and unqualified endorsement. No other medicine has such a record of cures of female troubles. Refuse to buy any other medicine."

Mrs. Pinkham invites all sick women to write her for advice. She has guided thousands to health. Address, Lynn, Mass.

Health is too valuable to risk in experiments with unknown and untried medicines or methods of treatment. Remember that it is Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound that is curing women, and don't allow any druggist to sell you anything else in its place."

A GRASS LAKE MAN.

Had Two Cancers on His Face.

I was a great sufferer from asthma for twenty-five years. For weeks at a time I could not lie down at night to sleep. Of course I doctored with every doctor in reach and used all the patent medicines on the market, but I got only temporary relief. I commenced to treat with Dr. Wilkinson, 25 Dwight building, Jackson, Mich., several months ago, and since then I have had but very little asthma and I have had no sign of the disease for two months. No one but asthmatics know how pleased I am to get cured.

I think all people having asthma should go to Dr. Wilkinson, for he can cure the worst kind of cases. Mrs. Wm. H. Hark, May 6, 1905. Albion, Mich.

CANCER CURED.

R. F. D. No. 4,

Grass Lake, Mich., Feb. 28, 1904.

I had two cancers on my face—one on chin and one on left cheek—for 5 months. The one on my chin was as large as a silver dollar. I failed to get relief elsewhere so I called on Dr. Wilkinson, Jackson, Mich., Dec. 21, 1904. He removed two large cancers and today the wounds are healed up for the first time and the indications are now that I am permanently cured. GEORGE MAIN.

VARICOCELE CURED

NO NAMES USED WITHOUT WRITTEN CONSENT.

Confined to His Home for Weeks.

"Heavy work, severe straining and evil habits in youth brought on a double varicocele. When I worked hard the aching would become severe and I was often laid up for a week at a time. My family physician told me an operation was my only hope—but I dreaded it. I tried several specialists, but soon found out all they wanted was my money. I commenced to look upon all doctors as little better than rogues. One day my boss asked me why I was of no work so much and I told him my condition. He advised me to consult Dr. Kennedy and Kergan, as he had taken treatment from them himself and knew they were square. I went to them and got the New Method Treatment and found it was somewhat discouraged. However, first month's treatment I was somewhat slow and during the second month's treatment for three months longer and was rewarded with a complete cure. I could only earn $12 a week in a machine shop before treatment, now I am earning $1 and never lose a day. I wish all sufferers knew of your valuable treatment."
