BLACK TOP SHEEP BREEDERS

Had an Excellent Meeting at Union City Aug. 23.

The 19th annual meeting of the Improved Black Top Delaine Merino Sheep Breeders' Association was held Wednesday, Aug. 23, at the beautiful home of Mr. and Mrs. L. L. Harsh, near Union City. The attendance was not as large as could have been desired, yet nine different localities were well represented. There are 15 members of the association in and about Chelsea, but the delegation present on this occasion was small owing to the death of Mrs. D. E. Beach. Those who were present were Mr. and Mrs. D. C. Wacker, Wm. Laird and George E. Haist.

At the business meeting the following new members were admitted: George E. Haist, Chelsea; E. E. Ellsworth and Albert Mix, Eaton Rapids.

The officers elected for the ensuing year and the committees appointed were as follows:

President—L. L. Harsh, Union City.
Vice President—S. H. Sanford, Onondaga.

Secretary and Treasurer—O. M. Robertson, Eaton Rapids.
Corresponding Secretary—O. D. Luick, Chelsea.

Directors—W. H. Laird, C. E. Whitaker, Chelsea; A. D. Pullman, Burlington; Auditing Committee—F. E. Reichert, Ann Arbor; V. A. Backus, Potterville, J. J. Cowan, Rockford.

On Revision of By-Laws—L. W. Phillips, Union City; D. C. Wacker, O. D. Luick, Chelsea.

Viewing Committee—S. H. Sanford, Onondaga; O. M. Robertson, Eaton Rapids.

The time and place for holding the next meeting was left to the board of directors. The association will offer $50 in special premiums at the state fair in 1906 to exhibitors of Black Top sheep. This amount will be divided into three premiums. Information on this subject will be furnished on writing to the secretary-treasurer.

It was voted to allow those who entertain the association at the annual meeting $20 as a partial compensation for their work.

An effort to amend article 8, section 5, of the by-laws, resulted in laying it on the table for one year, and each member will be notified of its import before the next annual meeting.

The literary program was good. Robert Gibbons, of Detroit, the farmers' friend, was in attendance and gave an excellent paper on the origin and history of Merino sheep. The discussion and exchange of ideas was both pleasant and profitable.

The committee appointed to draft resolutions expressive of sympathy submitted the following:

Whereas, this association learns with deep regret of the death of Mrs. D. E. Beach, wife of one of our most esteemed members, and

Whereas, knowing the many estimable virtues of Mrs. Beach and the high esteem in which she was held by her friends; It is hereby resolved, that we tender the bereaved husband and family our deepest sympathy in their irreparable loss, and hope that the tender memories of many years' companionship will in a measure temper his great bereavement;

Resolved, that this association wishes to place on record its high appreciation of the character of Mrs. Beach, whose good deeds will long be kept green among its members.

D. C. WACKER,
Committee.

What the Printer's Devil Thought.

"Why is a newspaper like a woman?" asked the printer's devil as he wiped an ink smudge that adorned his nose all over the side of his face. "Because both have to be known to be appreciated," said the intelligent compositor. "Because it needs someone to run it," exclaimed the foreman, who glanced in contempt at the editor, who glared back and answered, "because she is a good advertising medium." "Nope, all wrong," said the devil. "Because every man should have one of his own and stop running after his neighbor's."

A New History of Washtenaw.

"Past and Present of Washtenaw County, Mich." is the title of a book which will be published during the early part of next year by the S. J. Clarke Publishing Co., of Chicago. The work is being compiled by S. W. Beakes, of Ann Arbor, and his long experience in newspaper work and wide acquaintance with men and things in the county make him peculiarly well fitted for such work, added to which his heart is in the work. There are guarantees that the work will be a valuable and good one. The book will contain a history of the county, cities and towns and biographical sketches of many of its prominent and leading citizens and illustrious dead, and will be illustrated. MICHIGAN HAPPENINGS

DYING IN AGONY, WIFE LEAVES ONLY A CURSE FOR HUSBAND.

NAOMI ALDRIDGE BOUND OVER ON CHARGE OF MURDER.

THE GOVERNOR'S POSITION ON THE CALLING OF A COURTMARTIAL.

A Suicide's Curse.

With the last message, "I hope my curse may go with him and his people forever," meaning her husband, Mrs. James McCarthy, wife of a wealthy farmer living near Kalamazoo, committed suicide Saturday by taking poison. Death was accompanied by terrible agony, as the woman was found in her front yard face downward, and each hand having a light grasp on a bunch of grass. Her face showed signs of the agony and the ground about her was torn up. Mrs. McCarthy was at home alone when she took the poison. Her husband had gone to a neighbor's house to get a horse to bring her to the city. Mr. McCarthy, the husband, admitted that they have been having considerable trouble, but refused to state the nature of it. He said that she has applied three times for a divorce, but each time they got together and settled the differences. They evidently had another quarrel Saturday morning, as she demanded that he bring her to the city so that they might have a settlement and part forever. The note found at the woman's side read as follows:

"The money in my purse was left me by my mother. I want that to go to my people. That much I demand of my husband. I hope my curse may go with him and his people forever. The letter also contained a request that she be buried by her brothers."

Mrs. Aldridge Bound Over.

Mrs. Naomi Aldridge was bound over to the Ogemaw county circuit court, Saturday, to stand her trial on a charge of murder. W. A. Coomer, of Frederic, testified to Mrs. Aldridge having notified the National Relief society that her child had died of appendicitis. Mrs. Davis said Mrs. Aldridge had given her little girl money to buy rat poison, and had shown no emotion when the boy died. Mrs. Barber testified to Mrs. Aldridge having had sole charge of the children during their illness. The case will come up in the circuit court on Sept. 18.

That Courtmartial.

Gov. Warner states that he has decided to be guided solely by the military board as to the course to be adopted in connection with the trouble between the Detroit militia officers. "I don't know anything about military law," he said, "and these gentlemen do, so I will do whatever they say. I have heard nothing officially about the matter yet except that Gen. McGurra has asked me when he could meet me and talk over the matter. I expect the military board will meet in Lansing early in the week to discuss the matter."

Elijah Has His Mad Up.

"Elijah" Dowle and the hosts of Zion have broken camp at Ben Mac Dhuil, near Muskegon, and returned by boat to Zion City. It is said that the trouble arose through some of the flock demanding about the same measure of self-government as is allowed to Russian peasants. Dowle was incensed at the attack upon his autocratic authority and led the host back to the Chicago boat. He may delay the host the use of his ground at Ben Mac Dhuil for a summer camp in future, for he is mad clear through.

Powder Mills Blown Up.

The Anthony Powder works near Ishpeming, blew up Friday night, fortunately without loss of life. It is believed the explosion was caused by a fire in the engine house. The works were located 12 miles from Marquette, but the explosion was distinctly felt in the city. There were four explosions, and practically every building at the plant was destroyed. Much damage was done in both Neegaunee and Ishpeming. Windows were broken in hundreds of residences, and the plate glass fronts of 20 business blocks were shattered.

George Gage had been out of work a long time at Decatur, Ill., when his home and contents were burned, his wife barely escaping with a tiny babe in her arms. He came to Battle Creek six months ago and secured work at Advance Thresher Works. Saturday evening he suddenly dropped dead.

The capsizing of the boat in which Dyer Wickham, of Kansas, and Nelson Bullis, of Gregory, went fishing on Brain lake, resulted in the drowning of Wickham, Bullis managing to save himself. Wickham was 65 years old, and is survived by a widow and two children. Arriving from Kansas on a visit to relatives, the family were attending a picnic at the lake, and were forced to witness the death of husband and father.

The Big Four train was wrecked one mile south of Benton Harbor Monday night, and traffic was tied up on the road for over eight hours. Ten loaded cars were piled up in the ditch. The train was going at 25 miles an hour when the wreck occurred. The crew saved their lives by jumping from the train.

By the explosion of a gasoline stove in the residence of Mrs. Phoebe Proatz of Kalamazoo, Mrs. Proatz was so badly burned that she died at 2 o'clock Tuesday morning, a neighbor badly scorched, a grandchild almost suffocated by smoke, the house burned down and the two adjoining ones damaged to the extent of $500 each.

Because William Burns, of Morristown, a fireman on the Pere Marquette, became so excited on the morning of his wedding day as to forget the license when he went to claim his bride, Miss Lizzie King, who was waiting at the Hazelton Catholic church, the ceremony was postponed by the priest until evening, he having driven to Corunna and secured the necessary document.

PEACE AT LAST

JAPAN YIELDS AND NOW PEACE AND JOY WILL REIGN.

THE TREATY AND ARMISTICE WILL BE DRAWN UP AND RATIFIED.

WITTE RECEIVES AN OVATION AND TAKES THE CREDIT OF THE RESULT.

Peace between Russia and Japan was practically concluded at this morning's session of the peace conference. In the final struggle the Russians achieved the victory. For the sake of peace, the Japanese, with a magnanimity worthy of their heroic achievements in this war, met the ultimatum of the czar and abandoned their demands not only for reimbursement for the cost of the war, but for the repurchase of the northern half of Sakhalin, Russia at the same time agreeing to a division of the island. The Japanese also withdrew articles 10 and 11 of the peace conditions originally proposed (demand for the surrender of the interned warships and limitation of the Russian naval power in the far east). The delegates began during the afternoon session the actual work of formulating the treaty of peace.

A scene of greatest excitement followed the receipt of the news in the lobby of the Hotel Wentworth. The official bulletin was telephoned from the conference room at the navy yard by Mr. Sato, and like an electric thrill flooded through the room. There were screams of joy. Men threw their hats aloft, women actually wept. Then there was a rush for the telegraph offices and in an instant the news was speeding to the remotest corners of the earth. Mr. Witte, accompanied by Baron Rosen, came to the hotel for luncheon. There was a wonderful demonstration upon their arrival. A great crowd had collected under the porte cochere of the annex where the Russians are quartered, and when their automobile drew up the air was torn with frantic cheers. Hats were thrown aloft.

Mr. Witte as he stepped out of the motor car seemed quite overcome. Too full for utterance, he could only grasp and shake the hands that were extended to him. Baron Rosen also was equally moved and received the congratulations of the crowd in silence. For about five minutes the two plenipotentiaries were kept upon the porch listening to the incoherent praises of the hotel guests. "Do you pay indemnity?" was the universal interrogation. "Pas un sou" (not a cent), was Mr. Witte's response.

The two plenipotentiaries have respectively proposed to their emperors the conclusion of an immediate armistice. The details of the armistice will be discussed, and immediately after the question of the release of the Russian prisoners.

When Mr. Witte reached his room he was practically overcome by the momentous result of the conference. He threw himself into his arm chair and, after a few minutes to "pull himself together," he began to speak, slowly and deliberately—almost as if he were talking to himself. "It seems incredible," he said, "I do not believe any other man in my place would have dared to hope for the possibility of peace on the conditions to which we have just agreed. From all sides, from President Roosevelt down to my own friends in Russia, I received, up to the last moment, even this morning, urgent representations that something should be paid to Japan."

At this point M. Witte, who was still laboring under excitement, almost lost control of himself. He paused a moment. Then he went on:

"The Japanese wanted to take our interned ships, and I have not consented. The Japanese wanted to limit our naval power in the far east, and I have not consented. The Japanese wanted war indemnity or reimbursement of the cost of the war; aye, demanded it, and I have not consented. The Japanese wanted the Chinese Eastern railway south of Harbin, but I gave them only the railroad in the possession of their troops south of Chantafu.

"The Japanese wanted the island of Sakhalin and I refused it, agreeing, however, at the last moment to cede the southern half, and then only because I was commanded by my sovereign to yield, and obeyed."

"Not only do we not pay so much as a kopeck, but we obtain half of Sakhalin, now in their possession. "At this morning's meeting I presented my written proposition, which was the Russian ultimatum. It was accepted by the Japanese. I was amazed. Until I was in the conference room I did not think what would happen. I could not anticipate such a great and happy issue.

By the agreement which results in peace between Japan and Russia Japan gets only the fruits of victory which she now has in her hands.

Japan expected more, but in the interests of humanity and following exactly the appeal made by President

Charles Canopi, eight years old, of Yonkers, N. Y., has been in an unbroken trance-like sleep for more than four months, and it is probable a consultation of specialists in nervous diseases will be called to investigate the case. April 6 last, while whirling around a lamp, he became dizzy, fell to the ground and struck on the back of his head. Two days later he lapsed into unconsciousness.

The bookmakers got the $46,000 he stole from the D. P. Morgan estate, said James P. Hennessey, cashier of the estate in New York, in confessing to being that amount short in his accounts.

Roosevelt, has given up everything not involved in the original quarrel with Russia except one-half of the island of Sakhalin.

Russia has given up nothing but the half of Sakhalin island that was seized by her from Japan 30 years ago. The rest that Russia agreed to amounted only to an acknowledgment that through defeat she had lost control of Manchuria.

Japan, being in a position to seize Vladivostok, Harbin, the Amur valley and Siberian coast, with little trouble, expected Russia to pay her for not doing so and for ceasing hostilities. Russia refused to pay for what she had not already lost, and further refused to pay anything for the northern part of Sakhalin, already in Japanese possession.

By the war Japan has ended Russia's dream of Chinese conquest and an open seaport on the Pacific. Russia has been compelled to agree to: Japanese protectorate over Korea. Mutual evacuation of Manchuria. Return to China of Manchuria, and the open door in that province.

The integrity of China. Cession of the Chinese Eastern railroad to China; Japan to get the price of it from China.

Cession of Russian leases of Port Arthur, Dalny, the Elliott Islands, etc., to Japan.

Grant to Japan of fishing rights off Siberian coast.

Allowing railroad from Harbin to Vladivostok, which remains in Russian hands, to be patrolled only by Chinese guards.

Cession of southern half of Sakhalin to Japan.

Japan has agreed to forego reimbursement for the cost of the war, claim to interned Russian warships, demand for limitation of Russian naval power and redemption price of north Sakhalin.

Russia also agrees to pay liberally for the care of the 100,000 prisoners of war Japan is now holding. It is estimated she will pay $1,000 per man, of about $100,000,000.

THE PURPOSE.

JAPAN'S CHIVALROUS SACRIFICE; LONDON VIEW.

The following summary, purporting to give the "exact nature of the work accomplished and the broad characteristics of the latest tendencies which underlay the endeavors of either side" at Portsmouth, is printed in London. The dispatch says: "Speaking generally, a fourfold purpose may be discerned in the twelve historic proposals carefully drafted by the Japanese diplomatists:

"First—To restore the entire set of political conditions which the treaty of Shimonoeki was calculated to establish.

"Second—To remove, counteract or assimilate the disturbing factors, political, economical and military, which have come into existence since then.

"Third—To hinder the growth of the new disturbing factors created by the aggressive policy of Count Muraviev and Admiral Alexieff, and

"Fourth—To play the enviable role of a chivalrous prince in releasing the Chinese and Korean princesses from the power of the sorcerer's spell, and in helping Europe and the civilized world to rights too long withheld."

NATIONAL MATTERS

ON THE BOTTOM OF LONG ISLAND SOUND IN THE PLUNGER.

THE PRESIDENT TRIES LIFE OF A SUBMARINE FOR A TIME.

CABINET CHANGES MAY INCLUDE MR. NEWBERRY, OF MICHIGAN.

President Roosevelt late Friday made a descent in Long Island sound on board the submarine torpedo boat Plunger, the crack submarine of the navy. He was aboard the vessel about three hours. At one time the little boat was submerged for 50 minutes and in that time was put through all of the submarine feats of which she is capable.

Soon after the vessel reached the necessary depth of water she was directed downward until she rested on the bottom of the sound. Then the mechanism of the craft was explained minutely to the president by Lieut. Nelson, so that he afterward experienced no difficulty in understanding the maneuvers.

While the president thus was resting on the bottom of the sound in a submarine boat, a storm 40 feet above him was raging unnoticed. The rain descended in torrents and the north-easter whipped the surface of the water into big rollers, but it was as quiet and peaceful where the president sat as an easy chair would be.

Lieut. Nelson made his boat perform the remarkable feat of diving to a depth of 20 feet, and, while going at full speed at that depth, reversing her course. The complete turn occupied only one minute.

Subsequently the engines were stopped and the vessel was submerged to a depth of 40 feet. There she was kept motionless—a demonstration of her ability to remain in that position for hours while waiting an opportunity to launch one of her torpedoes at a vessel of a blockading squadron which might be passing or repassing a given point.

Mr. Newberry's Place.

Truman H. Newberry, of Detroit, for postmaster-general, is given as President Roosevelt's new arrangement for his cabinet. It will be remembered that when Mr. Newberry was given the appointment of assistant secretary of the navy, with it came the understanding that when Secretary Paul Morton stepped out Newberry was to be promoted to the head of the department.

Morton went out, but Charles A. Bonaparte took his place. This selection is said to have been brought about by Morton himself. He was a close personal friend of Bonaparte, whom he told that when he went out of office he would put in a good word to the president for his friend. He did that, and the president was so taken up with the friend, as well as anything Morton had to say about anybody, that Bonaparte got the air-planting, the president meantime arranging to take better care of Newberry, for whom he is known to have a great personal liking.

In February Postmaster-General Cortelyou is said to be slated for secretary of the treasury, and that is where Newberry's elevation to a cabinet position is coming in. He will take Cortelyou's place.

That will make the second time a Detroit man will have filled that cabinet position, Don M. Dickinson having been postmaster-general in President Cleveland's cabinet.

Starving Spain.

Heartrending reports continue to reach the provincial authorities from the outlying famine-stricken districts in Spain. The latest reports received are from Osuna and Almorog, the respective mayors of which notify the authorities that their resources are exhausted and that they are unable to further assist the famished laborers and the women and children, as the distress is too acute.

At Ecija the population has looted the bakers' stores.

The mortality among infants and aged persons is attaining terrifying proportions and in many localities the working people are living on roots. The government has organized public works on a small scale, employing about 600 men, but this is a mere drop in the ocean of misery, as a moderate calculation shows that 200,000 are out of employment.

Robbed a Priest.

Upon the statement made to the police by Rev. Benedict Rosinski, a Catholic priest of St. Stanislas church, Cleveland, that he had been held prisoner for twenty-four hours, without food, and forced to sign two notes for $500 each, and two checks for like amounts, which had been since cashed, besides being robbed of $30 and zone jewelry, two men and a woman were arrested Saturday. The woman is said to have lured the priest to net room in Cedar avenue, by pretending to be ill and in need of spiritual consolation, and the men are said to have rushed in upon them and held Rev. Rosinski prisoner until he had satisfied their demands.

John C. Christy, once county commissioner and poor director of Beaver county, Pennsylvania, a friend of Senator Quay, has just been sent with his aged wife to the poorhouse of which he once had charge. His fortune was swept away by indorsing notes for a "friend."

Not content with their tips and pay, it is charged, systematic collusion between the waiters, checkers and cashiers of the Hotel Astor in New York, has been going on for some time, the management losing $200 a day by the thefts. A number of arrests have been made and confessions taken.

A Living Monument.

If we were to assemble all those who have been cured of heart disease by Dr. Miles' Heart Cure, and who would to-day be in their graves had not Dr. Miles' been successful in perfecting this wonderful heart specific, they would populate a large city.

What a remarkable record—a breathing, thinking, moving monument, composed of human lives,—that for which every other earthly possession is sacrificed.

The Miles Medical Co. receive thousands of letters from these people like the following:

"I feel indebted to the Dr. Miles' Heart Cure for my life. I desire to call the attention of others suffering as I did to this remarkable remedy for the heart. For a long time I had suffered from shortness of breath after any little exertion, palpitation of the heart, and at times terrible pain in the region of the heart, so serious that I feared that I would some time drop dead upon the street. One day I read one of your circulars, and immediately went to my druggist and purchased two bottles of the Heart Cure, and took it according to directions, with the result that I am entirely cured. Since then I never miss an opportunity to recommend this remedy to my friends who have heart trouble; in fact I am a traveling advertisement for it, and am widely known in this locality."

HOMER C. MILLEN'S STORY

Of the Cement Works Trouble—He Claims the Whites Want to Freeze Him Out.

In a 4-column long article in the Ann Arbor Argus of Friday Homer C. Millen gives his side of the Four Mile Lake cement works trouble and an account of his connection with the cement making business since 1876 up to the present time. In substance it is as follows:

Commencing with the year 1901, it gives his first connection with the West German Portland Cement Co., of Four Mile Lake, and his purchase of the entire stock of the company. It then gives in detail Mr. Millen's meeting with Blair Kincaid, of Detroit, who introduced him to his brother-in-law Harry W. White; their visit to the Four Mile Lake plant and the plant south of Jackson; Millen's visits to New York and interviews with Wm. J. White, who, after all arrangements had been talked over, purchased a three-fourths interest in the business for $75,000, and agreed that in consideration of his holding a controlling interest in the company Millen should be general manager with absolute control of the business for ten years.

The article then goes on to show that Wm. J. White represented himself to Millen as being a millionaire and that he would furnish funds as fast as needed for the erection of the plant, which was to turn out 350 barrels of cement in 10 hours and 500 barrels in 20 hours of each day. It tells of the difficulties encountered in obtaining necessary funds from White, of the loss of large amounts of money in discounts, liens upon the property, law suits and attorneys' fees, besides a delay of four months in the completion of the plant.

The article claims that Mr. White has actually loaned the company about $100,000, for which he received 10-year first mortgage gold bonds bearing 6 per cent interest. It says the Whites never paid any attention to the business of the company or attended stockholders' or directors' meetings until one meeting held some time in June, 1905. It tells of the financial straits of the company during February, 1905, of Harry W. White's appearance of the scene and his application to W. J. White for funds, without success. That all this time Mrs. Millen was procuring the money with which to pay the labor accounts from her own private funds. When matters finally became desperate Millen sent Harry W. White to Palm Beach to obtain his father's signature to the $100,000 of gold bonds, and to tell W. J. White that if he was unable to secure the money to finish taking up the bonds, that he (Millen) had a friend who would take up the entire $100,000. Thereupon H. W. White went to Cleveland and raised $2,000, which he sent to Millen. Later he received $2,500 from W. J. White, but the bonds were not returned to the company's office until April 18.

It then tells of Millen urging W. J. White to come to Chelsea and help extricate the company from its financial difficulties, and of his sending his attorney C. F. Goddard, who, after making a thorough investigation of the plant and talking with Auditor Hawkins, took back with him to W. J. White a report which that gentleman claimed made him suspicious. Goddard, however, informed Millen that his visit to the plant and the information obtained had strengthened the confidence of himself and Mr. White in the business and its management and in Millen's integrity.

The manufacture of cement was started before the plant was finished in order to furnish money to pay the labor accounts, and the product was sold on a contract to J. E. Bartlett & Co., of Jackson, who, however, took advantage of 30 days' time allowed by the contract and again the financial condition was in a bad way. At this time W. J. White agreed to send $2,000 a week for four weeks, until Bartlett could resume payment. The first installment of $2,000 came, but no more, and Mrs. Millen again came to the rescue with two checks for $1,000 each, and which she has been forced to sue the company for.

Matters were again desperate and H. W. White went to New York to see his father and get money. They returned to Chelsea together and then began the series of events already related in the Herald, which led up to the several suits that have been started in the circuit court.

Mr. Millen says that when he was deposed as manager the plant was making 350 barrels of cement daily, at a profit of $96 a day, according to Mr. White's own figures, and would have turned out 500 barrels a day if sufficient labor could have been obtained.

Millen further claims that the plant is not a perfect failure, as claimed by White, as a responsible firm has offered to take the plant entirely off the hands of the present company and pay a royalty of 10 cents a barrel on the output, which would mean an income of $15,000 a year, or between 6 and 7 per cent clear on the investment. That after he had been removed as secretary he proposed to White to either buy or sell their respective stocks and settle up the matter, which offer was refused. He says Mrs. Millen and himself have $27,000 invested in the business and that Wm. J. White has started a systematic scheme to freeze them out.

Monday afternoon the Argus received the following telegram from W. J. White, at New York, in answer to Mr. Millen's offer to buy or sell the stock:

"According to your issue of Aug 25 Millen states he is ready to buy the plant. I will take $200,000 for my interest, which is about $20,000 less than the actual cash put in by me, they to assume all obligations and to accept and collect all accounts."

Slips in "Robinson Crusoe."

Defoe made some amusing slips in his immortal "Robinson Crusoe." On one memorable occasion, it will be remembered, after making his hero strip in order to swim with greater comfort, he pictures him as providently filling his pockets with biscuits, and he represents the Spaniards giving a written agreement to Friday's father, sublimely regardless of the fact that both ink and paper were nonexistent.

Judgment on a Judge's "Jokes."

The Solicitors' Journal, an English publication, criticizes a certain judge's jokes in these terms: "Nature does not seem to have endowed him with the faculty of making a jest which would pass muster outside the walls of his court. His so-called jokes, if uttered by a professional jester of the sawdust, would ensure his immediate dismissal."

Debates Affected Thermometer.

"Lord Peel tells of a curious circumstance garnered from his experience as speaker of the house of commons," writes Henry W. Lucy. "It was found that whenever discussion became heated the thermometer which guides the engineer in his adjustment of the temperature invariably went up, falling as soon as order was restored."

HOW VINSON WALSH WAS KILLED AND OTHERS INJURED IN AUTO ACCIDENT

ton, and both were still very young. Thomas Walsh's home is 1420 New York avenue, Washington. He came from Tipperary, Ireland, in 1870, as a poor boy of 19 and settled at once in Colorado. All he touched turned to riches. There are few wealthier mine owners than Walsh in the entire country. Educated only in the public schools, he made a close study in his young manhood of metallurgy, mineralogy and geology, and to good purpose. He invented new methods of mining and his great property is the Camp Bird mines in Ouray, Col. Five years ago he was made one of the national commissioners to the Paris Exposition. He has taken a great interest in the agricultural development of the west and is president of the National Irrigation Association.

That Mrs. "Jimmie" Kernochan should be injured in an automobile accident is one of the travesties of fate. For over a long period of years there were no people more opposed to the motor car than the Kernochans of Hempstead. Both superb cross country riders, probably the very best in America, they not only were against the automobile, but they opposed it tooth and nail.

The other members of the party were immature youths. Herbert Pell, jr., is a son of Herbert Pell, who married Katharine Kernochan, a sister of James L. Kernochan. The Pells home is at Tuxedo, and they are active in Newport and New York society. Young Harry Oelrichs, Charles M. Oelrichs' son, is a nephew of the famous Herman Oelrichs, who married Tessie Fair, one of the Fair heiresses. William K. Vanderbilt, jr., wedded the other, Virginia. The Charles Oelrichs are very rich and live on Madison avenue, Manhattan. Mrs. Oelrichs was Blanche de Loosay.

BATTLE WITH TEN-FOOT SHARK.

Man-Eating Dog of Ocean Fights Fishers on Bay.

A ten-foot man-eating shark engaged in a fierce battle with two Italian fishermen yesterday afternoon in the bay, says a San Francisco dispatch. The contest lasted two hours, and the Italians were exhausted when the fish was vanquished. They towed it to Melgus' wharf, where it is now on exhibition.

Jose and Pietro Carniglia had their net set off Angel island yesterday morning, when they felt the boat start. The speed increased in a rapid rate and they realized that a shark had become entangled in the net. They started to haul it in, but little progress could be made. Forward and back the boat was hauled, and after more than an hour the struggles of the shark ceased. The net was hauled in, but when the man-eater came to the surface there ensued a terrific struggle.

With oars the fishermen hammered the head of the shark. At times the tiger of the sea leaped from the water and threw itself against the boat. The side of the boat was partly crushed and the water started to flow in. Finally the shark ceased to struggle.

FOUND SECRET OF GREEKS.

Hungarian Professor Knows How to Make Mortar Imperishable.

A Hungarian professor and chemist of the Brunu university claims to have rediscovered the secret of the ancient Greeks by which they were able to render mortar imperishable. The reason for the remarkable preservation and hard texture of the sealing material of the Acropolis at Athens, which is as good to-day as it was when first laid centuries ago, has always puzzled scientists and archaeologists. This Hungarian some twenty-five years ago procured a piece of this flintlike mortar and ever since has been engaged upon ascertaining the secret of its manufacture. He has invented a chemical compound, liquid in character and yellowish color. The claims of this inventor are that by the application of this compound the density of nearly every description of stone, including granite, is doubled, and is rendered absolutely impervious to water; it imparts to all metals the power to resist rust and is a great, powerful germicide. These properties are not transient, but everlasting.

Modern Sedan Chair.

The good old sedan chair is still in use in certain corners of the world. It is about the same kind of furniture that royally used in Queen Elizabeth's days. Recently, during the Paston Week, King Alfonso of Spain was carried around in a sedan chair: just as the fine ladies were when all the world saw high society at Tunbridge Wells and Bath.

How Owls Caught Chickens.

When I was a chunk of a boy I shot a horned owl, the spread of whose wings was 4½ feet, and to the surprise of the boy who had carried it for several miles the weight was only four pounds.

They were rather numerous at that time in that section of the country, and were troublesome about carrying off chickens, which mostly roosted in apple trees about the farm buildings. The belief that they could carry away full grown hens was a common one.

It was also commonly believed that an owl never picked a chicken off the roost, but, alighting on the limb, crowded the chickens off, and as it flew toward the ground caught it on the wing.—Forest and Stream.

Churches Turned Into Inns.

At Great Easton, three miles from Rockingham Station, there is a Wesleyan chapel which is now an inn. When built a stone was placed over the entrance with the words inscribed, "To the Glory of God," and the inscription still remains over the portal of the licensed premises.

At Newcastle-under-Lyme a chapel was built in 1849, in the time of the Wesleyan reform movement, which after a time became too small, and a larger building some distance away was bought from the Wesleyans, the smaller one being sold. After passing through various hands the former building is now a licensed house and a music hall.—London Daily News.

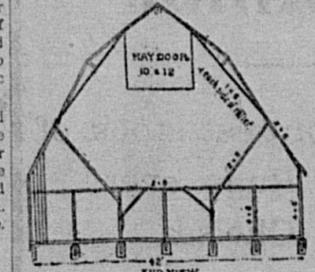

Salad Grown at Table.

The experiment of serving a dinner party with salad grown under the guests' own eyes was recently tried in Berlin. Here is the recipe: Take good germinating lettuce seed and soak it in alcohol for about six hours, sow it in an equal mixture of rich soil and unslaked lime, and place it on the table. After the soup water it with lukewarm water, whereupon it commences to sprout immediately. The thing worked like a charm, and the lettuce when plucked and prepared for eating were the size of Barcelona ants.

Hints for Building and Improvements

Plan of Grain Barn.

The above cut shows the plan of a barn, which combines capacity with cheapness. The upright supports may be either 4x6 posts, or round poles, and where large, flat stones are not available may be set in holes with concrete in the bottom and all around the posts well up and beveled at the top, so as to shed the water. The barn is 42 feet wide by any desired length, the side posts to be set 8 feet apart. On account of the double angle of the roof purline posts are not required. As there are no timbers in the center there is plenty of room for hay.

Ventilating a Damp Basement.

C. B.—I have a barn 40x56 feet, with underground stables, which are very damp. Three feet of the wall are of concrete, with five and one-half feet of wooden work, which reaches the ceiling. How could this basement be ventilated?

A good way to ventilate your stable is to place four or six inch tiles underneath your wall, in the shape of a U, having the end outside the wall high enough so that no dirt or drainage can get in. Cover it with a screen. Have the end on the inside of the wall reach a few inches above the floor. This makes a better fresh air intake pipe than a tile straight through the wall, as it creates more suction. Have these intake pipes in the feed alleys if possible in front of stock. Then put in air flues made of one-inch boards about eight inches square, or a galvanized iron pipe will do, running from the roof of the barn down the gable ends or the center purline posts through the floor of the barn to a few inches below the under side of the joist. These flues will take off the heated air and thus draw on the fresh air pipes to fill the stable with pure fresh air. You can use as many of these flues as you require. The average number for a barn 40x56 or 60 feet is four of each kind. In severe weather some of the intake pipes may be covered if the stable is too cold.

Material for Cement Blocks.

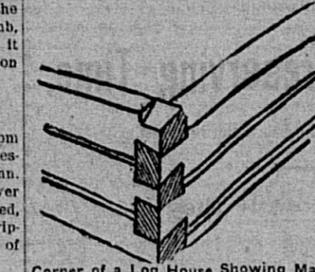

J. R. F.—I intend to build a house of concrete blocks. How much cement will be required to be mixed with each cubic yard of sand in making the concrete? 2. If the wall has an air space in the center is it necessary to lath and plaster on the inside to prevent dampness?

If sand is used in making the cement blocks, it will take two barrels of Portland cement to one cubic yard of sand. If fine gravel is used it will take one and one-quarter barrels of cement to one cubic yard of gravel and would make as good a block. A continuous air space as described is generally sufficient, but if strapped, lathed and plastered it would be sure to make a thoroughly dry wall.

Notching Logs for a House.

Subscriber.—Give an illustration of the manner in which logs are notched in building a log house.

The accompanying cut shows the manner in which logs are notched and joined for building. Another method, and one that has cheapness to recommend it, is to notch the logs one into the other, but by this method the ends of the logs stick over.

Determining Power of an Engine.

W. B.—Please publish a rule to figure out the power of a steam or gasoline engine by the brake test.

The formula for estimating the horse power of an engine by the brake test is as follows: The diameter of the wheel to which the brake is applied, multiplied by 3.17 to give the circumference; this multiplied by the number of revolutions per minute during the test; this again by the difference between the weight hung to the free end of the rope below the fly-wheel and that indicated by the spring balance at the other end of the rope above the fly-wheel; this continued product divided by 33,000 will give the horse power.

FOR THE PLAIN GIRL.

Possible to Cultivate Beauty of the Finest Sort.

A good many girls are considered pretty, and plain girls cast a somewhat envious glance at them, and each murmurs inwardly, "Oh, dear, how I wish I were pretty!"

Cheer up, poor little plain girls, for you can be victorious over your prettier sisters. Remember that the face should be the true index of the heart and soul.

By cultivating amiable emotions and noble desires the countenance which does not possess outward loveliness will in time have a beauty of a finer and more appealing nature than was ever attained by perfect features and a rose-leaf complexion.

When one meets a plain girl who is a heartfelt Christian, trying to walk in the straight road, unselfish, loving and pure-minded, her plain face becomes a sort of revelation of the heavenly soul hidden through the surface of plainness, just as the most priceless jewels are discovered in the most unlovely localities.

Remember, plain girls, what the great poet Spencer wrote, "For of the soul the body form doth take."—Boston Globe.

Lesson for Women.

Jersey Shore, Pa., Aug. 28th (Special)—"Dodd's Kidney Pills have done worlds of good for me." That's what Mrs. C. B. Earnest of this place has to say of the Great American Kidney Remedy.

"I was laid up sick," Mrs. Earnest continues, "and had not been out of bed for five weeks. Then I began to use Dodd's Kidney Pills and now I am so I can work and go to town without suffering any. I would not be without Dodd's Kidney Pills. I have good reason to praise them everywhere."

Women who suffer should learn a lesson from this, and that lesson is "cure the kidneys with Dodd's Kidney Pills and your suffering will cease." Woman's health depends almost entirely on her kidneys. Dodd's Kidney Pills have never yet failed to make healthy kidneys.

How Wine is Colored.

Most people think white grapes make white wine and dark grapes make red wine; it is a popular error. Red wine is made by fermenting grape juice and grape skins together, and white wine is made by fermenting grape juice alone. The juice of white and dark grapes does not differ in hue. In each sort of grape the juice is almost as colorless as weak lemonade. Champagne is made of a grape so dark as to be nearly black, but the juice of that nearly black grape is quite as pale as that of the ordinary white grape.—London Tatler.

STOP, WOMAN!

AND CONSIDER THE ALL-IMPORTANT FACT

That in addressing Mrs. Pinkham you are confiding your private ills to a woman—a woman whose experience with women's diseases covers a great many years. You can talk freely to a woman when it is revolting to relate your private troubles to a man—besides a man does not understand—simply because he is a man.

Many women suffer in silence and drift along from bad to worse, knowing full well that they ought to have immediate assistance, but a natural modesty impels them to shrink from exposing themselves to the questions and probably examinations of even their family physician. It is unnecessary. Without money or price you can consult a woman whose knowledge from actual experience is great.

Mrs. Pinkham's Standing Invitation. Women suffering from any form of female weakness are invited to promptly communicate with Mrs. Pinkham, at Lynn, Mass. All letters are received, opened, read and answered by women only. A woman can freely talk of her private illness to a woman; thus has been established the eternal confidence between Mrs. Pinkham and the women of America which has never been broken. Out of the vast volume of experience which she has drawn from, it is more than possible that she has gained the very knowledge that will help your case. She asks nothing in return except your good-will, and her advice has relieved thousands. Surely any woman, rich or poor, is very foolish if she does not take advantage of this generous offer of assistance.

If you are ill, don't hesitate to get a bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound at once, and write Mrs. Pinkham, Lynn, Mass., for special advice. When a medicine has been successful in restoring to health so many women, you cannot well say, without trying, "I do not believe it will help me."

Vinson Walsh, son of Thomas F. Walsh, of Washington, was killed, and four other prominent young members of the Newport summer colony were injured in an automobile accident at Newport, R. I., Aug. 19. The injured include Mrs. James L. Kernochan, of Hempstead, L. I.; Harry Oelrichs, son of Charles M. Oelrichs, of Newport and New York; Herbert Pell, jr., son of Herbert Pell, of New York, and Miss Evelyn Walsh, sister of the man who was killed. It is believed that all the injured will recover.

The automobile, which was driven by young Walsh, struck the railing of a bridge spanning a creek near Eastern Point and plunged into the water. Whether Walsh lost control of it, or the machine became disabled has not been ascertained.

Never before in the history of American automobiling has a wrecked car carried so many persons known to society as the machine that plunged over the railing of the bridge at Newport. Aboard of it were the most noted horsewoman of society, the son and daughter of one of America's wealthiest mining kings and two youthful scions of foremost families in fashionable life.

The young Walshes, Vinson, who was killed, and his sister Evelyn have become within the past year or so somewhat important personalities in the younger Newport set. The children of a multi-millionaire, who has been interesting figures in the newly developing social world. They have resided with their father in Washington.

EVELYN WALSH

BRAINS TO WIN VICTORIES.

International Industrial Competition Now Keen.

If the sense of modern civilization forbids interecno war between occidental nations, international competition still remains. In this industrial warfare brain power and intelligence will be—may, must be—the dominating feature. It is recorded of that stalwart and genial soldier, Buecher, that his first impression of the London of his day was an overpowering sense of its tremendous wealth. "What a city to sack!" the descendant of the wild Teutonic tribes, who had extorted tribute from imperial Rome, is said to have exclaimed. To-day the extent of British commerce gives rise to a similar feeling in the mind of manufacturers descended from Buecher's soldiers. The great contests will range around the neutral markets. To secure or increase a hold on these demands smooth working among many conflicting factors in each competing country. Some of these may be suggested, such as abundance of local supplies of raw material, or capital to exploit distant sources, together with a fiscal system admitting semi-raw or semi-manufactured material free of taxation. Of importance also is it that the artisan class should be sober, industrious and intelligent. The manufacturer, who is the general of a division in the army of industry, needs to be equipped not only with scientific knowledge but with shrewd business instincts of organization. In all countries certain of these properties are possessed to a high degree; indeed, in America and Germany intelligence departments are at work to aid the manufacturer, but in several their reports are ignored.—Pollard Dieby in the Engineering Magazine.

DIAZ IS NOT RICH.

President of Mexico Only Comparatively Well Off.

Contrary to the general opinion in Mexico and abroad, President Diaz is not a very wealthy man. Intimate friends of the Mexican executive, who have knowledge of his affairs, declare that his fortune does not exceed $1,000,000. He owns a plantation in the state of Oaxaca, some property in the City of Mexico and a house in Paris. This latter was purchased during his first term as president of Mexico, when he feared that he might be compelled to leave the country hurriedly and seek refuge in a foreign land. The salary of President Diaz is now $50,000 a year. For many years it was only $30,000, and, in the early days of his administration, when Mexico was weak financially, he drew out only enough for his necessary expenses, leaving the remainder in the treasury. He is now serving his twenty-fifth year as president of Mexico.

Age and Brain Work.

The belief of Sir James Crichton-Browne that brainworkers achieve their best work in later middle age is easily confirmed by glancing at the career of a few of the grand old men who are still with us, many of whom are as busy as in their younger days. Lord Roberts at 73 is still worth $5,000 a year to the nation as one of our imperial defenders. Lord Kelvin at 81 may startle us with further generalizations on the mysteries of science. Sir William Huggins at the same age still explores interstellar spaces, while the activity of the octogenarian duke of Rutland and Lord Wemyss is as effective as ever in preserving the privileges of our old nobility.—London Graphic.

LAPSES OF GREAT WRITERS.

Best Authors Do Not Use Most Perfect Language.

There is not a single great author in our literature in whose works numerous errors have not been pointed out, or thought to be pointed out. They are charged with violating rules involving the purity if not the permanence of the language. A somewhat depressing inference follows from the situation thus revealed. The ability to write English correctly does not belong to the great masters of our speech. It is limited to the obscure men who have devoted themselves to the task of showing how far these vaunted writers have fallen short of the ideas of linguistic propriety entertained by their unrecognized betters. As a result of these critical crusades there is no escape from the dismal conclusion that the correct use of the language is not to be found in the authors whom every one reads with pleasure, but is an accomplishment reserved exclusively for those whom nobody can succeed in reading at all.—Harper's Magazine.

Where We Get Our Salt.

Salt is so common an article that one is astonished when he realizes the amount of it produced in the United States during the year 1904. The number of barrels was 22,039,002, valued at $6,021,222. In spite of this enormous output coming mostly from New York and Michigan, the United States imported salt to the value of over half a million dollars and exported 25,598,577 pounds, valued at $99,066. The deposits of salt in the United States are not numerous, those in New York, Michigan, Ohio, Kansas and Louisiana being the only ones which are worked commercially.

Miss Clementina Gonzales, Hotel Provenca, Guatemala, C. A., in a recent letter from 247 Cleveland Ave., Chicago, Ill., writes:

"I took Peruna for a worn-out condition. I was so run down that I could not sleep at night, had no appetite and felt tired in the morning."

"I tried many tonics, but Peruna was the only thing which helped me in the least. After I had taken but a half bottle I felt much better. I continued its use for three weeks and I was completely restored to health, and was able to take up my studies which I had better than Peruna to build up the system."—Clementina Gonzales.

African Elephant Doomed.

Unless public opinion is kept informed as to what is going on, there is very little hope that the African elephant can be preserved. In the first place, owing to its far larger growth of tusks, this species is the main object of the ivory hunter. The African ivory is the whiter, the harder and the dearer of the two. Also the tusks are very much larger than those of the Asiatic elephant, so that the hunter gets more money for less trouble—or rather, did get it, for hunting the elephant for its ivory can now only be carried on in Asia in parts of the forests of Burma, or "by permission" in certain districts of India.—County Gentleman and Land and Water.

London's Busy Streets.

A patient observer on one of the main roads near London counted the vehicles passing to and from the metropolis between 9 o'clock in the morning and 9 at night. The results were: Bicycles, 4,577; motor cars, 557; electric street cars, 407; horse vehicles, 209; total, 5,750. According to these figures the horse is rapidly being outnumbered.

Between Man and Wife.

In married life sacrifices must be forever going on if one would be happy. Strife and unrest are the chief foes to ideal happiness, and, after all, there are few things, not matters of conscience, which are worth disputing between man and wife.

Have You a Father or Mother

Whose advanced years have caused a general weakened condition of their bodily functions, causing indigestion, constipation, sluggish or torpid liver or impoverished blood? There is no remedy in the wide world that will tone up the worn-out system like Marvin's Cascara Chocolate Tablets. By their tonic effect upon the tiny cells that constitute the muscular coat of the bowels the loss of tone is repaired, the normal secretions are stimulated, the circulation of good, healthy blood in the intestinal walls is re-established, and instead of a sluggish, unhealthy state of the whole digestive apparatus, the patient is restored to his old-time vigor.

These tablets are purely vegetable and can be taken without any nauseating effect into the most delicate stomach.

We want every afflicted person to try these tablets at our expense. Send us your name and address and we will gladly mail you a free sample.

THE MISSING MAN

By MARY R. P. HATCH Author of "The Bank Tragedy"

CHAPTER XIII.

No Indictment.

The above oath, taken verbatim, which is administered to the grand juror, is a bar to any questioning or real knowledge of the proceedings incident to the case of Vane Hamilton, which was presented before them. The result only was known; and as it would have awakened great excitement to have known that an indictment had been found against Vane Hamilton, it occasioned equal stir to learn that none had been brought.

"I am glad—very glad," said Mr. Hamilton to the bank president. "The matter was beginning to wear upon me."

"Yes, you do look thinner than when you returned. You must not work too hard."

"No, I shall try to keep from that. I handle no money nor notes, though," he said, smiling gravely; "I would not risk it. It is a terrible thing, Mr. Hartwell, to feel hanging over you always the sword of impending insanity, or something as bad."

"It is, it is, Mr. Hamilton," said the president, seriously; "but for that some of the bank directors—and he paused in an embarrassed manner."

"I know, Mr. Hartwell. I was told of it, and it did me good to learn that they would have liked me in my olden capacity, some of them. But the others were wiser. I could not have accepted had the wish been unanimous, as it was not. Still, do you

"Mrs. Hamilton is more prudent since her husband's return. She does not go to the Frys now, so Mrs. Taylor says."

"I am glad of that. Perhaps that is the reason Edes looks so doleful, if he does."

"Oh, he does. There is no question about that. Mrs. Taylor's hired girl's sister, Mrs. Green, who lives next door to Mrs. Fry, says she told Mrs. Fry herself about Mr. Hamilton's return when Edes was combing his hair by the little glass in the kitchen. They were so excited at first that they did not notice until he started to go up to his room. His face was as white as a sheet, Mrs. Green said, and he looked more like a corpse than a living man. He never came down that night, she found out by asking Mrs. Fry, and the next morning when he went to his work he looked glummer and stiller than ever. Mrs. Fry worships Mrs. Hamilton, and she laid it to a bilious attack—said he was subject to them."

Serious, indeed, was the state of affairs to Constance. The relations with her husband were of the most constrained order and her interest in Edes unabated—augmented, indeed; for she knew he was miserable on her account, and pity was so ingrained in her nature that she could feel for his woes as though they were her own.

One day she chanced to meet him face to face as she was going down the street and he was returning from the mill. When he saw her he put out his hand with an eloquent gesture to stop her.

"Constance—Mrs. Hamilton, has he come back?"

"Yes, I suppose so."

He did not notice the strangeness of her reply, but turned away his head with a groan, seemingly wrung from his very heart.

"I thought—it seemed as if you belonged to me."

"Belonged to you?"

"Yes; my heart claimed you from the first, and now—O God!" His form

"Yes, my heart claimed you from the first, and now—O God!"

know, Mr. Hartwell, I doubt that I ever presented that note to Low, for the reasons stated at the examination."

"You think it was some other man?"

"I do, and so must have thought the grand jury."

"Could it have been Ashley, do you think?"

"The man is dead and nothing can ever be proved, but I wonder that Low and Hull are retained without an examination."

"Why, you don't suspect Low?"

"No, but I do not think he is careful enough for a bank officer. Still I would not make the statement in public. No; I think Low is honest, but how he could have been deceived so easily is a wonder."

"Why, he says you appeared natural, and so does Tony, you know."

"Tony could not judge in a moment of time even if it were myself, which I do not believe. Well, it is a dark matter; I only hope time will explain it."

"Detective Swan at one time, I fancy, thought Primus Edes might be Ashley."

"Primus Edes! Doesn't he work in our mill?"

"Yes. Oh, he gave up the idea long ago; no grounds at all for thinking so. Edes isn't a fool, but he isn't up to the average."

"An excellent machinist, though, they tell me."

"Haven't you noticed him?"

"Only at a distance."

"Well, he is a strange man," said the bank president, walking away and wondering whether Hamilton would ever hear what had been said about Edes' devotion to his wife. That he had not yet, was evident by his total lack of interest in him. Edes himself looked very despondent since the cashier's return, or so it was said. Mr. Hartwell was superior to gossip when passing through the ordinary channels, but told to him by his sweet-voiced wife it was a different matter. Her information was usually gained through Mrs. Taylor. Mrs. Taylor's from her hired girl, whose sister lived near the Frys. But no doubt it was correct enough.

shook with emotion and his face was convulsed.

"Hush! you must not say such words. It is wicked; you forget where you are. We have talked too long already. Good-day," and she walked hastily away, hoping no one had seen them.

Edes walked slowly homeward, but the effect of this interview did not end it. It was destined to grow and expand and fructify.

That evening Constance chanced to be standing at dusk by her sitting-room window, looking out into the dim street, up which Mr. Hamilton was walking toward the house. Behind him, not far distant, she saw another man, stealthily, it appeared to her, following him. What was his object? Was it Edes? Why should he follow her husband on a public thoroughfare, even though deserted as it was now?

Edes did not follow him inside the gate. Her husband did not see him at all. But as he came slowly up the walk to the house Constance saw the man stop an instant and shake his fist threateningly in the air. That threatening, uncouth gesture frightened her, it was so instinct with unreasoning fury. With a dull, heavy dread at her heart she turned to meet her husband, whose face seemed paler than usual, and his manner somewhat shaken.

"What, Constance! alone and with no light?"

He spoke tenderly, though his words were matter of fact enough; but her purpose seemed to be to ignore everything like tenderness.

"It is not late, and the children are finishing their tennis game in the yard behind the house."

He said nothing, but sank down in a chair as if in deep thought.

"Constance," he said at length, "how long must this go on?"

"Go on? I do not understand you."

"This wearing anxiety on my part, this seeming indifference on yours."

"Seeming?" she repeated, haughtily.

"Yes, seeming. No woman could be really indifferent to the fact of her husband's presence, as you seem to be. Why are you so changed to me? What have I done?"

"You know best."

"You distrust me?"

"Have I ever told you so?"

"No; but I feel it. No one else distrusts me, Constance. All treat me kindly but you. What is the reason? Has any one come between us?"

"Who could come between us?"

"I don't know, Constance," he said, rapidly, coming to her side and clasping her cold hand in his. "I think I understand you. I went away and did not return when you expected me. You thought something had happened to me—that I was dead, perhaps. You mourned for me truly. Then I came back. It was like one coming from the dead to claim you. You thought you could not resurrect your dead love and cause it to blossom afresh. Do not try, Constance—do not try any more."

She looked at him wonderingly. "Let us begin afresh. Let us be married again, put the past behind us and be happy."

"Why put the past behind us?"

"Because it will be best. You can never love me again if you try to recall your old affection. Let us begin anew, be married again, secretly, if you will, but throw off the old bond and begin a new life with all the shadow of past distrust and suffering left behind us. Will you, Constance, will you?"

His voice was low and pleading, his hand still clasping hers. But she drew it away.

"You talk absurdly," she said. "As if old married people could not do better than cover themselves with ridicule by a second wedding! Say no more. I distrust you. I feel that there is something false about you. I have from the first."

"Do you doubt my love for you?"

"Not that, perhaps," she said, faltering, for she could not doubt it, looking into his face so full of love's emotion; "but I do not feel at ease in your presence. What of Lenora?" she asked, suddenly, wheeling about and facing him again.

"Lenora," he feebly repeated.

"Yes, Lenora."

"There is no Lenora."

"Is she dead?"

"She may be, for aught I know. Constance, as heaven is my witness, she is nothing to me. Your husband has been true to you always, in word, thought and deed. Look at yourself, pointing to the mirror set between two panels, and reaching from floor to ceiling; do you think I could ever forget you for any other woman? Is there any other half so beautiful or good in the wide world? If there is, I never saw her."

If this passionate assertion moved Constance in the least she did not evince any emotion. She put up her hand, merely, as if to stay further words, and said calmly, "I hear the children. They have finished their game, and it is time for Uncle Carter, too."

Clare and Perley entered, flushed and rosy from their game.

"Such fun!" said Perley, as an echo to the late game, unwilling to let the sport drop.

"Oh, yes; why didn't you come out, papa?"

"I was talking with mamma, my little Clare," said Mr. Hamilton, fondly stroking her curls.

She clasped his hand and held it. "I love you, papa, almost better than I used to."

"You are the only one who does, my darling. Is it really, truly, for myself?" he asked her, as if yearning for some acknowledgment.

"Of course, it is. But," she continued, thoughtfully, "you never hear me say my prayers now."

"Would you like to have me? I thought it was to God you prayed."

"Yes; but I want you to pray, too, in your heart, as you used to."

HOODOO FAILS TO CONQUER.

Business Pluck and Persistence Win After a Long Struggle.

Superstitious folk and unsuperstitious ones, too, are interested just now in the dingy London building, 13 Friday street. Friday street is one of the narrow, crooked thoroughfares of London's ancient "city."

It would seem, of course, that there could be no address more fatal than this to business success, and up to a comparatively short time ago 13 Friday street realized all its possibilities as a "hoodoo." Several business enterprises in succession failed there, and then the building stood vacant for a number of years. Finally it was reopened by a firm of bedding manufacturers, but they soon came to grief and everybody in the neighborhood was finally convinced that no undertaking could possibly resist the combined influence of No. 13 and Friday. Everybody, that is, except two young men who had been assistants in the ill-fated bedding business. Their names were Haines and Stroud; they didn't believe in omens and they made up their minds to take over the ruined concern.

They had little or no capital and at first the luck set in dead against them. The struggle was a long one. Finally, however, despite the fact that they refused to employ even the ordinary safeguard of keeping a black cat, and depended only on hard work to change the luck, the partners won out and they are now one of the most flourishing firms in the locality.

Pluck and persistence had conquered the "hoodoo."

Heard Maine Had Blown Up. A few days after the battleship Maine was blown up in Havana harbor, and while the whole world was excited over the event, a Frenchman came out of a lumber camp in New Hampshire and made his appearance in Gorham depot. Stepping up to the station agent in a state of great excitement, he asked if Maine had blown up. The agent replied that it had. Tears came into the poor fellow's eyes as he said: "I got a sister; she live down to Rumford Fall; I suppose she blow up with him."

A BATTLE CREEK WOMAN

And a Little Girl, of Jackson, Were in a Dangerous Predicament, but a Jackson Physician Settled Their Difficulty and Gave Them Their Freedom—They Tell How It Was Done.

Battle Creek, Mich., Aug. 8, 1905. I had asthma for seven or eight years, and the last three years I was very bad. The past two years I could do no work, neither could I get any relief. I had to do all my sleeping sitting in a chair, and I suffered every hour. I heard that Dr. Wilkinson, 25 Dwight Building, Jackson, Mich., was curing very bad cases of asthma and I commenced treating with him about one month ago, and I was entirely free of all symptoms of the disease after the first four days' treatment. I went to bed and slept well the first night, a thing I had not done before in two years. I have gained in strength and weight, and I feel much better in every way. I do my own washings now, which I had not done before in two years. I hope that everyone who suffers with asthma will go to Dr. Wilkinson and get relief.

Mrs. E. L. Gray,
193 W. Main.

Jackson, Mich., July 31, 1905. My 3-year-old daughter had asthma nearly all the time for one year. We took her to Dr. Wilkinson and under his care she began to improve at once and in one month was practically free of the disease, and has been ever since, except a few times she would have slight indications of it, brought on by our failure to carry out the doctor's directions—a thing that is difficult to do owing to her youth. I appreciate very much what Dr. Wilkinson has done for her.

Several More Drains.

Daniel W. Barry, county commissioner of drains, is about to receive bids for five more county drains, making six county drains for which contracts will have been let during the three months from July to October. On Sept. 12, the contract will be let for a drain 6½ miles long, running through Freedom, Sharon, Sylvan, Lima and emptying near Jerusalem. This drain, together with the Luick drain, for which a contract was let a few weeks ago, will be the two longest in the county when they are finished, being nearly of equal length. On Sept. 13 Mr. Barry will receive bids for another county drain in Sharon township. It will be two miles long and is all included within that township.

MORE COMPLICATIONS

In the White-Millen Troubles at Four Mile Lake.

The J. E. Bartlett Co., of Jackson, was made a co-defendant with the White Portland Cement Co. in a garnishment suit recently commenced by Wm. J. White to preserve his title to a first lien on the assets of the plant. Mr. White claimed the company was indebted to the cement company to the amount of several thousands of dollars.

A bill of disclosure has now been filed in answer which contains the representation of Mr. Bartlett that on May 19, 1905, his company was served with a notice by the White Portland Cement Co. of a $3,000 assignment to Mrs. Homer C. Millen, in which she was given full power and authority to "Ask, demand, collect, receive, compound and give acquittance of all claims and debts, either in her own name or in the name of the White Portland Cement Co."

The Whites disclaim all knowledge of any such assignment and maintain that Millen made the assignment upon his own authority without bringing it before the board of directors. It appears that this $3,000 is the same claim upon which Mrs. Millen bases her suit against the cement company, which was commenced last week.

The J. E. Bartlett Co. sets up that it has a five-year contract with the White Portland Cement Co. and that but a few months of that contract have expired; that it would be subject to a great loss in case the contract was annulled; and in case it is annulled, as the indications are that it may be, the defendant will have a claim of recoupment. Finally that unless the product is backed by the standing guarantee of the factory, the defendant may be obliged to stand damages brought by concerns proving the cement to be of poor quality. On these counts the defendant alleges that White has no claim against it whatsoever.

Fraud Exposed.

A few counterfeiters have lately been making and trying to sell imitations of Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, Coughs and Colds, and other medicines, thereby defrauding the public. This is to warn you to beware of such people, who seek to profit through stealing the reputation of remedies which have been successfully curing diseases for over 35 years. A sure protection, to you, is our name on the wrapper. Look for it on all Dr. King's or Bucklen's remedies, as all others are mere imitations. H. E. BUCKLEN & Co., Chicago, Ill. and Windsor, Canada. The Coming State Fair.

We are in receipt of information from the State Agricultural Society that the new grounds and buildings in Detroit will be ready for the State Fair, Sept. 11-16. It may be recalled that the Michigan building from the St. Louis World's Fair was moved to Detroit. This is already rebuilt. The race track is a new mile course. There will be, in addition to comprehensive and exhaustive exhibits of every state product, entertainment in the way of races, the fall of Port Arthur by Paine's fireworks, each evening; ascensions by Knabenshue's airship, etc. The Woodward avenue electric cars run to the grounds. We are assured that this year's State Fair will far exceed past efforts, and everyone knows how advisable it is to spend some time in such a city as Detroit.

Are you looking for some kind of power that you can use in your barn today, down in the woods tomorrow, over in your neighbors' woods next day? Something that costs nothing until started and all expense stops the instant the power stops? An engine that always goes no matter what the weather conditions may be? If so, let us tell you more about Ideal engines, which are guaranteed for one year, and sent out to responsible farmers on a 10 days' trial. We make a specialty of a 5 H. P. engine that is adapted to farm use. It costs but little more for gasoline to pump water with this engine than it does with a smaller one, which is of no practical use except for pumping. This engine will grind feed, buzz wood and do any work requiring power on the farm. Ideal engines will be on exhibition at the Fairs this fall.

VARICOCELE CURED

NO NAMES USED WITHOUT WRITTEN CONSENT.
Confined to His Home for Weeks.

"Heavy work, severe straining and evil habits in youth brought on a double varicocele. When I worked hard the aching would become severe and I was often laid up for a week at a time. My family physician told me an operation was my only hope, but I dreaded it. I tried several specialists, but soon found out all they wanted was my money. I commenced to look upon all doctors as little better than rogues. One day my boss asked me why I was off work so much and I told him my condition. He advised me to consult Drs. Kennedy and Kergan, as he had taken treatment from them himself and knew they were square and skillful. He wrote them and got the New Method Treatment for me. My progress was somewhat slow and during the first month's treatment I was somewhat discouraged. However, I continued treatment for three months longer and was rewarded with a complete cure. I could only earn $12 a week in a machine shop before treatment, now I am earning $21 and never lose a day. I wish all sufferers knew of your valuable treatment."
