CHURCH IMPROVEMENTS.

Many Are Being Made to the Church of Our Lady of the Sacred Heart.

Workmen are now busy in the Church of Our Lady of the Sacred Heart making some permanent improvements that will be of material benefit and will add to its convenience and the comfort of the parishoners generally.

Dunohue & Shoenbottom, an electrical firm of Detroit, have the contract for rewiring the church and changing the system of electric lighting. The arc lights at present in use are to be taken out and a system of incandescent lights will be put in. Six chandeliers of ten lights each will form the main lighting system. In addition to this the three altars, the sanctuary and the large arch between the sanctuary and the body of the church are to be illuminated by electric bulbs of 4, 8 and 16 candle power, the whole so arranged that any number of lights, or all of them, can be used at one time, the whole system being operated from a switch-board in the sanctuary.

The altars are also to be regilded and revarnished and an electric motor is to be put in to furnish power for pumping the organ.

To facilitate the means of exit from the church two new doors are to be placed in the vestibule, one on each side of the present large doors. This will prevent the unavoidable crowding that oftentimes occurs when the large congregations that attend the church are leaving it.

All these improvements are meritorious and will reflect great credit on the pastor Rev. W. P. Considine and his faithful congregation.

The work is all to be completed in time for the mission, which will commence Sunday, Oct. 29.

Mrs. Charity E. Loree.

Mrs. Charity E. Loree died at her home in Sylvan, Saturday, Sept. 9, aged 70 years, 5 months and 28 days, after a lingering illness. Her maiden name was Youngs and she was born in Sylvan in 1835. In 1850 she was married to James M. Drake, who died in 1875. Four children were born to them, two of whom died in infancy. Her daughter Mrs. Vina Ludlow died in 1894 and her only surviving child is William A. Drake, of Kalamazoo. In 1897 she was again married to C. M. Loree, who survives her.

The funeral services were held at the Sylvan M. E. church Monday, Rev. H. Lentz officiating, and the remains were interred in the Sylvan cemetery.

O. E. S. Election of Officers.

The annual election of officers of Olive Chapter, No. 108, O. E. S., took place last evening and the old corps of officers, with two exceptions, were re-elected as follows:

W. M.—Mrs. Mary Boyd.

A. M.—Mrs. Minnie Walworth.

W. P.—R. B. Waltrous.

Treasurer—Miss Florence Ward.

Secretary—Mrs. Carrie Maroney.

Conductress—Mrs. Lila Campbell.

Associate Conductress—Miss Lizzie Hammond.

Alternate delegates to the grand chapter were chosen as follows: For the worthy matron, Mrs. Ada Waltrous; for the associate matron, Mrs. Carrie Palmer; for the worthy patron, John A. Palmer.

A Sad Bereavement.

Virginia, the little 4½ years old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Cowlshaw, died at their home in Grand Rapids, Friday, Sept. 8, of pneumonia, after an illness of five weeks' duration. The remains were brought here to the home of her grandmother Mrs. Ed. Winters on Monday morning. The funeral services were held at the Church of Our Lady of the Sacred Heart Tuesday morning, Rev. W. P. Considine officiating, and the remains were interred in Mt. Olivet cemetery. Mr. and Mrs. Cowlshaw have many friends in Chelsea whose sympathies go out to them in their sad bereavement.

MORE LITIGATION.

Looks as if Lawyers' Fees Would Eat Up the Cement Works.

Blair Kincaid, the owner of $25,000 of stock of the White Portland Cement Company, has filed by Lodge, Trevor & Brown, his attorneys, a petition to intervene in the suit of Wm. J. White vs. the White Portland Cement Company, and Judge Kinne has granted an order to show cause. Kincaid claims there is a very bitter feeling between the Whites, father and son, who are in control of the company, and Homer C. Millen and May Millen, his wife, the other stockholders. That the property of the company is of great value, and that he fears the Whites, as officers of the company, will allow default to be taken against the company, thereby jeopardizing the interests of the petitioner. The hearing on the proposed order has been set for Monday, Oct. 2, and all proceedings in the case have been stayed until that time.

Homer C. and May Millen have filed a motion to dissolve the injunction granted by Judge Kinne to the Whites, preventing the Millens from cutting stovepipe holes in the hardwood floors and other parts of the house at Four Mile Lake.

They claim it is a case of "freeze out" in more ways than one. They say they have a child only 15 months old and the only way of heating the house is from the cement plant as there is only one chimney and that is in the kitchen. Now that the heat from the central plant has been shut off they want to put up stoves.

In the affidavit they say that there is no reason why the plant should not be in operation as the J. E. Bartlett Company, of Jackson, offers all working capital necessary and that $75 or $100 a day can be made, or that the Bartlett people will pay a net profit of 10 cents per barrel on the full capacity of the plant.

Millen swears that the entire plan of White in shutting down the plant is to stop all income so as to make it impossible for the company to meet the interest on its bonds and thus enable White to foreclose on the bonds and swallow up the whole business.

DISTRICT SCHOOL TEACHERS

Are Asked to Co-Operate with the County School Commissioner.

County School Commissioner Foster is sending circular letters to the teachers of the district schools of Washtenaw county asking them to comply at once with the following requests:

To send immediately to the Commissioner both their teaching and home addresses and the number of the district in which teaching.

To send in reports on time and correct.

Ask for report cards and see that each parent signs them and knows just what progress his child is making.

Get acquainted with the parents and conditions of homes of pupils.

Make provision for taking at least one good school paper.

Compare at once the enrollment with the school census received from the director and send the names and addresses of all pupils between 7 and 15, not on the register, with the names of the parents or guardians.

The teacher is also requested to see that every child is where he or she belongs, that they do their work thoroughly, that reading is given careful attention and that a study program is combined with the recitation program.

The County Commissioner, upon request, will furnish the following: Smith's Combination Register, promotion cards, report cards to parents, blank term reports, blank year reports, school laws, course of study.

Any teacher in the county not receiving a copy of this circular letter is requested to send address at once to the Commissioner and the letter will be forwarded immediately.

And Have It Done Right.

The Fool's Paradise

There was a fool who thought himself a king.
He proudly strutted and his head was high;
Men laughed who heard the poor fool muttering:
"How wonderful am I?"

There was a king whose navy ruled the seas,
But ever as he passed in regal state,
He murmured to himself: "The least of these
In my place could be great."

And would you be a king in purple clad
Yet saddened by your common little-ness?
Lord, let me be the scuffed-at fool and glad
Who cannot know nor guess.

—S. E. Kleier

THE RIVAL'S LEGACY

BY CHARLES SIOGAN REID

(Copyright, 1935, by Daily Story Pub. Co.)

The river was licking the piles of the old wharf in a caressing sort of way, the sky was black overhead, and occasionally a few big drops of rain fell out of the heavenward murkiness and spattered the planking of the wharf in the glow of a few dim lights that were scattered along its edge. Dent was standing in the glow of one of these lights looking upon the river. He was thinking of a home in the country, of a time five years ago, and of a girl with whom he had had a little misunderstanding. During the estrangement, the girl had married another man and gone away; and Dent had felt a deep loneliness ever since. And to-night, as the roar of the river filled his ears, he was thinking of what might have been.

"Ye look like the man as the woman wants to see, Mister."

Dent felt a tug at the corner of his coat, and looked down. A barefoot child was looking up at his face.

"Do you think so?" asked Dent.

"Yes, I reckon ye are," she said, "there was to a long scar across the man's cheek."

Involuntarily Dent touched the scar with his finger. He had got that from a knife wound while protecting the girl from a ruffian half a dozen years ago.

"An' the woman said your name would be John Dent; an' I reckon now that's it; ain't it, Mister?"

"Where's the woman?" Dent had thrust his hands into his pockets and turned about.

"I was to tell you to follow me, if ye're the man."

"I guess I'm the man, little chap. Lead on."

The child hurried away, and Dent followed closely. Half a dozen blocks up the street, they turned into an alleyway and soon entered a building. At the top of a third flight of stairs the child opened a door.

"Ye're to come in here, Mister; an' she as sent me fer ye is a lyin' on the bed over there."

Dent put his hand upon the child's head gently, then pushed past her toward the bed. But as he approached the woman half raised herself on the bed and fell cringing and moaning to the farther side.

"She's got off again," said the child. "She was talkin' sense all right when she sent me after ye."

John Dent had stopped and was gazing at the woman on the bed.

"Great Heaven!" he exclaimed under his breath, "an' ye've come to this!"

"I reckon ye know her, then, Mister?" the child said, having caught his words and looking up into his face.

"Yes—that is, I used to. Where do you live, little chap?"

"Across the hall here."

"Well you can run along now—I'll stay here." He placed a coin in the child's hand, and she moved away toward the door.

"I'm glad ye're going to stay," she said, "cause it's lots of bother to wait on sick folks."

When the child was gone, Dent went to the bedside. The woman, still cringing against the wall at the back of the bed, stared into his face, but there was no light of recognition in her eyes.

"Kittie," he began, tenderly, "don't ye know me?"

But there was no reply, and only a vacant stare met his eager inquiry.

Dent stood a moment by the bedside, then turned and went out of the room and down stairs, having closed

"Said I could marry ye, if I'd have ye."

humming a dismal strain. For while he had watched the young but wan face on the pillow grow pale and pink by turns. Then he had made a survey of the room with his eyes.

"D—n!" he muttered. "There's never any telling about how things will come out."

He glanced at the candle, which was now almost exhausted. Then he drew a new one from his ample coat pocket, lighted it and set it beside the expiring one.

"Tallow candles," he grunted, "an' gas goin' to waste in this town."

Another hour passed in silence, except for the rumble of the rain on the roof not ten feet overhead. Then the woman opened her eyes and looked up.

"Is it you, John?" she asked quietly, searching his face with her eyes.

"Yes, Kittie," the child came for me. Did you send?"

"Yes, I remember that I sent. There is a note for you. I was to give it to you sometime. But I got so ill, I knew I should have to get it to you pretty soon."

"Where's Joe?" asked Dent.

Kittie put her hands to her face and shuddered.

"He is dead," she said, "killed in a riot in Daggers' saloon. It was Joe who left the note for you."

"The dev—"

"Yes. They brought him here; and he made me leave the room, while Daggers wrote the note for him. It's sealed."

Kittie's thin hand wandered under the pillow and presently came out again with an envelope in it. John took it and broke it open.

"Dear John," he read by the dim candle light, "it's all on account of a lie I told Kittie about you. And now that I've got a big hole in my side, and they say I've got to die, I don't mind telling you straight, so you can come on and marry Kittie if you want to, and make her somehow comfortable—for God knows she has had a rough and tumble time of it since she married me. I've been a devil and treated Kittie like a dog sometimes. But I'm sorry for it now, and it won't do you any good to stamp around on my grave and kick over the head board, if there is any; so I don't mind telling you this, too. Hope you'll take pity on the poor little soul I'm leaving behind. I am yours,

Joe Leman."

"What is it, John?" asked Kittie, when he had finished.

John hesitated a moment. "Said it was all on account of a lie he told ye about me, little one," he answered; "an'—an' said I could marry ye, if ye'd have me. What about it, Kittie, are ye willin' to go back with me five years an' begin where we left off when Joe happened along?" He had caught both of Kittie's hands and was lifting her slowly toward him.

"If I get well, John."

A beautiful wan smile for a moment played about her lips, then she allowed her tired head to drop over upon John's ample breast.

THE EAR OF THE COURT.

Counsel at Last Had Got What He Desired.

Many years ago, when Hugh L. Bond was judge of the United States Circuit Court, and was holding a term of the court in Raleigh, N. C., the late Henry A. Gilliam, afterward judge of the Superior Court of this state, appeared as counsel in some of the cases that were being tried before the Baltimore judge. During these trials the rulings of the court were uniformly against the clients of Judge Gilliam, and frequently Judge Bond would say to Judge Gilliam that there was no merit in his contentions and instruct him to proceed to something else.

After the session of the court had been concluded, Col. John W. Hinsdale, one of the leading lawyers of the court, gave a dinner to Judge Bond, and invited all the Raleigh lawyers who had attended the court.

In the meantime Col. Hinsdale had asked Judge Bond what was his favorite dinner dish and had been told "hog's head and turnip salad."

Judge Bond occupied the head of the table, and noticing the dish of hog's head and turnip salad immediately before him had the waiter present the same to Judge Gilliam with his compliments. The waiter did so, and Judge Gilliam seized the knife and commenced to saw on the hog's ear, remarking at the time "that this was the first time during the week that he had had the ear of the court."—New York Times.

Thought Aunt About Due.

Sir Edward Monson, the veteran English diplomat, who is now visiting America, served under Lord Lyons on Washington under Lincoln's administration, and has many interesting stories of Lincoln to relate.

"A distinguished old woman," he said the other day, "once called on Lincoln and railed and stormed over some fancied wrong that she had suffered at the government's hands."

"Mr. Lincoln listened to her politely, he talked to her in the kindly way he talked to everyone, and then, after she was gone, he turned to me and said:

"Little Edith heard the other day that a neighbor had shot his dog because it had grown old and cross. She studied the matter out awhile and then she looked up in her mother's face and said:

"Mamma, when do you think papa will shoot Aunt Martha?"

Goldwin Smith's Good Work.

A unique figure is that of Goldwin Smith of Toronto, who was 82 years old the other day. He has lived and done public service in the United States, Canada and England, and enjoys a large share of esteem and affection in each country. Many years ago he took front rank as a scholar and thinker. A Toronto paper says of him: "In the country in which for much more than a generation Goldwin Smith has made his home he has borne his full part in the fray of human affairs, sometimes on the winning, sometimes on the losing side, exhibiting always a rare degree of personal force and courage of conviction, but never failing also to manifest the patience, courtesy and dignity that are alone consistent with real eminence of intellect and integrity of heart."

Gorse.

Flaming up the mountain side,
Gleaning in the valley,
Love blooms gold by palace walls,
Lights the dark town alley.
For this truth is plain and clear,
To deny were treason.
When the gorse is out of bloom,
Kissing's out of season.

Every day they claim its prize,
Light heart led and maiden,
Every day climb hand in hand
With the bright spig laden.
"Hey!" they sing, and "Ho!" they shout
(This is rhyme and reason)
When the gorse is out of bloom,
Kissing's out of season.

Sharp thorns lurk beneath the flames
Pain may come to-morrow,
Pluck the burning, love-lit boughs,
'Twill be worth the sorrow.
Love must last throughout the year,
To deny were treason.
When the gorse is out of bloom,
Kissing's out of season.

—The Lady.

Too Well Trained.

They were showing the baby off to a group of Admiring Friends. The poor kid was made to go through his paces like a trained dog.

"How does the chicken go?" prompted mamma.

"Chirp, chirp," said baby, obediently.

"Ah, the little dear," exclaimed the Admiring Group.

"How does doggy go?"

"Bow, wow, wow," placidly replied the Prodigy.

"Oh, you little wizzikin," fussed the Admirers, with true politeness.

"And how does papa go?"

And here a funny look came into baby's eyes, as he straightened up and said, soberly:

"Shut up oor noise!"

The Truth of It.

"Yes," said the first shade in the Elysian fields, "I am Sir Walter Raleigh."

"Really?" exclaimed the new arrival. "Say, tell me, what was the real cause of your trouble with Queen Elizabeth?"

"Well, I'll tell you," said Raleigh; "she wanted me to call her 'Liz' and smoke cigarettes with her, and I wouldn't do it, because you know, cigarettes weren't invented then."

LATE NEWS

TERRIBLE EARTHQUAKE BRINGS AWFUL LOSS OF LIFE.

A "HOLY WAR" WITH AWFUL HORRORS IS RAGING IN THE CAUCASUS.

TARTARS MASSACRE INDISCRIMINATELY, MEN, WOMEN AND CHILDREN.

A violent earthquake Friday morning caused heavy loss of life and widespread destruction in Calabria, Italy. The towns of Pizzo, Monteleone di Calabria and Martirano were almost entirely destroyed. At Monteleone di Calabria seven persons were killed outright and many were injured by the collapse of the prison there. The Pizzo district is said to be almost entirely destroyed.

Locally the shocks lasted 18 seconds. The walls of the hospital here collapsed and some of the patients were injured. The inhabitants of this city fled panic-stricken from their houses.

All the houses at Staccato have been wrecked by the earthquake. It is feared that a hundred people are buried in the ruins.

The village of Piscopio and Tripardi have been destroyed. At Pizzo, Monteleone di Calabria and Martirano, there are numerous victims. The district of Nicastro has also been seriously affected.

At Martirano all the buildings collapsed, including the barracks of the gendarmes. Six wounded men have thus far been taken from the ruins. There are other victims.

Troops have arrived at the scene of disaster to help the work of salvage.

The latest details obtainable concerning the damage caused in this district by the earthquake show that at Staccato houses have been entirely destroyed and it is estimated that a hundred persons were killed.

At Piscopio all the houses were destroyed and 50 persons lost their lives. At Monteleone many houses were destroyed and seven persons were killed.

At San Gregorio according to the estimates 65 persons lost their lives. The village of Zammara is destroyed entirely.

At Mileto 11 are dead and 200 are injured.

At Cassanisi almost all the houses are destroyed. The number of dead and wounded is not known.

The villages of Bratice, Sanfeio, Santostantino and Condoni are completely destroyed. The number of victims in these places exceeds 50.

At Spilanga one person was killed. At Santa Nobria there are numerous victims.

About all the houses in these places which have not already collapsed threaten to fall in ruins.

The effects of the earthquake were more disastrous than at first reported. Dispatches from the south give ever-increasing lists of dead and injured, the numbers now running into the thousands.

Martirano alone shows 2,200 casualties, while at Parghella the number of dead is estimated at 300 and at Lappolo, 200.

Official figures of victims of the earthquake in the province of Catanzaro show that 450 dead have already been found, that about 1,000 were injured, and that there are an enormous number of persons without shelter.

It Is Horrible.

A "holy war" has been proclaimed in the Caucasian districts of Zangezur and Jerrall where Tartars are massacring the Armenians without distinction of sex or age. The country is swarming with bands of Tartars under the leadership of their chiefs.

Many thousands of Tartar horsemen have crossed the Perso-Russian frontier and joined the insurgents in destroying Armenian villages.

At the village of Minkend 300 Armenians were slaughtered.

Dispatches say that mutilated children were thrown to the dogs and that the few survivors were forced to embrace Islamism in order to save their lives.

Naphtha firms are cut off from the delivery of oil fuel to the shipping companies, which are now confronted with the necessity of suspending their services and discharging their employees, which will result in leaving thousands with no means of subsistence.

The salt works at Baskunchak have been obliged to close, owing to the scarcity of fuel, and this will paralyze the fishing industry.

At Batoum, Caucasia, there is growing agitation among the local Mussulmans against the Christians. The authorities have seized documents inciting an outbreak.

Emperor Francis Joseph has refused the request of the Hungarian ministers for universal suffrage, thereby defeating all hopes of peace between the diet and crown.

A body taken from Lake Michigan at Chicago has been identified by Fred Houseman of Canton, O., as that of his uncle, George Houseman, a base ball player of Canton. The man is supposed to have fallen from a steamer while on his way to Chicago from Holland, Mich.

Hugh H. Hanna, of Indianapolis, is being urged as the successor of Secretary of the Treasury Shaw. Mr. Hanna was the leading spirit in the gold standard movement in the country from 1896 to 1900. He was a warm friend of President McKinley, and was a member of the international monetary commission that visited Europe.

Chattanooga, Tenn., suffered a $500,000 fire Sunday, when the Cincinnati, New Orleans & Texas Pacific depot burned, together with many cars and much freight. Thieves looting cars kept the police as busy as the firemen.

REAL STONES WITHIN FALSE.

Customs Commissioner Tells of One Shrewd Smuggling Trick.

One of the best stories of diamond smuggling is told by Commissioner Foote.

"Never have I heard a better story than this, which came to me on the authority of a veracious young woman," said the commissioner. "It is that certain large importers of precious stones in this country have in their pay certain manufacturers of imitation jewels in Europe; that they get the manufacturers to put a diamond or other gem of great value in each of the paste diamonds intended for export to this country and then that the fabulously valuable stones come in duty free, as no one but the importer has any right or authority to break up the fake gems of paste in the quest for the real gems upon which great sums could be collected in custom house duties. Of course the climax of this fine story is that the importers simply take their hammers when the consignments arrive, and by breaking up the paste gems get at the real ones, which roll out from their prisons in the paste and are sold by the importers at a profit that soon makes them immensely rich."

TRANSLATOR OF OMAR KHAYYAM

Edward Fitzgerald's Appearance as Described by Biographer.

A recent biographer of Edward Fitzgerald, of Omar Khayyam fame, describes him as follows: "He appeared a tall, dreamy-looking man, blue-eyed, with large, sensitive lips and a melancholy expression; his face tanned with exposure to the sun; moving his head as he walked with a remote, almost a haughty, air, as though he guarded his own secret; strong and active from much exercise, yet irresolute in all his movements; with straggling gray hair, and slovenly in dress, wearing an ancient, battered, black-banded, shiny-edged felt hat, round which he would in windy weather tie a handkerchief to keep it in its place; his clothes of baggy blue cloth, as though he were a seafarer, his trousers short and his shoes low, exhibiting a length of white or gray stockings. With an unstarched shirt-front, high, crumpled stand-up collar, a big, black silk tie in a careless bow; in cold weather trailing a green and black plaid shawl; in hot weather even walking barefoot, with his boots slung to a stick. He never carried an umbrella, except in the heaviest rain."

The "Towers of Silence."

Sir George Birdwood says this fine phrase, which gives their only halo of spiritual suggestion and serenity to the lugubrious "towers" on which Parsee bodies are cremated, was coined by Mr. Robert Xavier Murphy. He had originally come out to Bombay as a master, under the auspices of the Native Education society; but became temporarily editor of the Bombay Gazette. "Towers of Silence" was first used by him. Touching the hearts of his readers, it at once "caught on," and not only Englishmen, but Frenchmen, Germans and Italians, and all Europeans, indeed, now always denominate the dakhma of the Parsis, "Towers of Silence."

Would Astonish Our Ancestors.

Modern invention has driven to the attic many household utensils once in common and wearisome use, and custom has wrought such changes that if our ancestors, who have been lying in their graves these 100 years could come back to earth they would be almost helpless on a farm or in a kitchen of to-day, while a great, noisy, odoriferous, touring car of an automobile would, no doubt, cause some of them to feel that some of our modern methods of locomotion are open to criticism and some of our inventions are not unmixt blessings.—Exchange.

An Open Question.

Our friend, the famous wit and raconteur, has been sitting in studious silence for upward of a quarter of an hour. Fearing that he may at any moment break forth with the story he has told us over fifty times already, we ask:

"What's up, old man? What makes you so solemn?"

"Nothing much," he answers. "I was just trying to decide which is the most annoying, to be interrupted in the middle of a story or to be permitted to finish it and then not get a laugh."

Taming the Songsters.

In the bird department of the New York Zoological park especial attention is paid to taming the birds, this having been proved to be an important factor in keeping them in good health. If a bird has no fear of its keeper the danger of broken wings and legs caught in wires is all but eliminated, and if such a bird should require medical treatment, it can be caught and handled without fear of adding to its hurt or illness.

Derivation of "London."

What is the derivation of the word "London?" The usually accepted one is the Celtic "Llyn-Din," or lake city, referring to the historical fact that the city was built on a river that overflowed at full tide and half surrounded it. Other philologists have derived it from "lawn" (full) and "dyn" (man). Others again from "lon" (a plain) and "don" (a hill). But the derivation Lun-Den or "grove city" seems more probable than most of these. The name occurs in wooded parts of Scandinavia to this day.

FRUITFUL FURNACES

INTENSE HEAT PRODUCES PRECIOUS STONES.

Scientists Have Succeeded in Plucking Real Diamonds and Rubies from the Crucible of the Furnace.

Recent advices from France state that Prof. Moissan, the eminent scientist and inventor, has actually succeeded in making genuine diamonds and rubies. He employs for this purpose the electric furnace, which has been so improved that a degree of heat can be produced, approaching the extreme temperatures, which were undoubtedly a factor in the formation of minerals and gems in the interior of the earth.

The rubies obtained are of large size, weighing 10 or 15 carats, and in quality and color equal and even surpass those found in the earth. The natural forces attending the formation of diamonds seem to have been more complicated, and so far the diamonds resulting from the efforts of the scientists have been very small, but still they are positively identified as the carbon crystal—the diamond. They are remarkably clear and bright, and on a small scale as fine specimens as nature's own product.

The electric furnace has enriched chemistry with a whole series of new compounds. Probably the one of most value to mankind at large is Calcium Carbide. The simple application of water to Calcium Carbide generates the gas Acetylene, which is now being commonly used for lighting.

The peculiar merits of Acetylene light are its brilliance and high candle power, ease of installation, economy and its adaptability for lighting buildings of every description, regardless of their location.

CROCODILES HARD TO KILL

Many Bullets Necessary to Put End to One's Existence.

Shooting crocodiles in India is a little like shooting mud turtles. A hunter describes the sport: "We suddenly came on our first crocodile about a mile from camp, asleep on the bank, with its mouth open, not more than twenty yards from us. It started to get away, but I fired two shots as quickly as I could get them off, the first into its open mouth and the second into its neck as it turned its head. That stopped it effectually and it never got into the water. The next day we found another crocodile and my friend got it just above the shoulder. That was not enough to stop it, but we both fired as it was getting into the water and one bullet hit it in front of the quarters. They sometimes come up again when wounded, so we waited about twenty minutes, and then looking about I saw it lying on its back at the bottom of the stream. It looked dead enough, so we got hold of the end of the tail and pulled it ashore. We gave it two more shots, one in the neck and the other in the middle of the back, and it then still had vitality enough to bite a paddle in two, though the legs were paralyzed and it could not move."

Pigeons Mate for Life.

Monogamists always, pigeons have given centuries of proof of their absolute fidelity to their marriage vows. The task of the breeder and trainer has been facilitated by the fact that pigeon matings were for life. It has been found that pigeons in captivity, even in the artificial atmosphere of one loft occupied by gay newcomers of all varieties, when once they have been married can be relied upon to stay together unless forcibly separated, and then return if ever set at liberty. Silver birds have even cooed their silver wedding song, as there are substantiated cases of pigeons who have lived together for twenty-five years.

His Biting Sarcasm.

"My nephew, Horace, who recently graduated from the village academy, comin' out with a whole lot more halt and considerable less horse sense than he took in with him," said the old codger, with even more than his usual acridity, "announces that he will marry the girl of his choice despite all opposition. If the audience will kindly remain seated we will now have the pleasure of hearing from the young lady."—Puck.

When Leading Camels.

When a number of camels travel they are usually led by a strong bull, who keeps the rest in order. If the leader should fall ill, or be absent from any other cause, the herd almost invariably mutinies. In Asia Minor the duty of leading camel caravans is frequently deputed to donkeys. This may sound curious, but it must be remembered that in the east the donkey is an important animal.

Plan to Study Birds.

For the purpose of studying the habits of birds of passage a "vogel-warte" has been established at Rositten, in eastern Prussia, where birds are to be caught and liberated again after small rings have been attached to their feet. The directors request that the feet of such ringed birds killed anywhere be sent to them.

A Quaint Saying.

One day an elderly teacher was questioning Dorothy as to her knowledge. As Dorothy was only 4, the questions asked were rather deep. The teacher was satisfied, however, when on asking Dorothy what a dream was, the child replied, "Dreams are pictures the angels show us when we are asleep."

In the glow of one of these lights, and locked the door behind him. In a few minutes he returned and found the woman still in the cringing position in which he left her. Taking a

Sick Headache

When your head aches, there is a storm in the nervous system, centering in the brain.

This irritation produces pain in the head, and the turbulent nerve current sent to the stomach causes nausea, vomiting.

This is sick headache, and is dangerous, as frequent and prolonged attacks weaken the brain, resulting in loss of memory, inflammation, epilepsy, fits, dizziness, etc.

Allay this stormy, irritated, aching condition by taking Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills.

They stop the pain by soothing, strengthening and relieving the tension upon the nerves—not by paralyzing them, as do most headache remedies.

Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills do not contain opium, morphine, chloral, cocaine or similar drugs.

"Sick headache is hereditary in my family. My father suffered a great deal, and for many years I have had spells that were so severe that I was unable to attend to my business affairs for a day or so at a time. During a very severe attack of headache, I took Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills and they relieved me almost immediately. Since then I take them when I feel the spell coming on and it stops it at once."

THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 14, 1905.

The Plain Duty.

The following article taken from the Ann Arbor Times hits the nail square on the head and is worthy the best consideration of all classes:

"When in this city several weeks since for the purpose of consulting the authorities in the law library at the University, Congressman Charles E. Townsend spent a half hour or so in our office and during that time the matter of primary reform was alluded to. Mr. Townsend at once said that he was in favor, as he had been, of giving the new system a fair trial and to prove his sincerity he should later favor giving the people of this district an opportunity to name their congressional candidate through the operations of the new law. True to his word he has since openly advocated the adoption of the primary ballot in the contest of next year and what is more has, through the congressional committee, already set the machinery in motion for securing the necessary petition from the required number of people in the several counties composing the district. It may be relied upon, therefore, that the second congressional district will have a nominee of the people's choice if the voters do their duty and use the privilege afforded them. It will seem strange not to wrangle over the nomination, for this has been a hot battle ground for many years and manipulation rather than the quiet judgment of the people has decided the candidate. Fortunately good selections have uniformly been made, but the strife of individual partisans has prevented any of the gentlemen who have represented the district from attaining the power or influence continuous service would have exerted. Who questions that had Capt. Allen been kept in congress all these years the district would not have been better cared for and the country better served than has been possible under the two-year system which the politicians have been and are still trying to fasten upon the district as a policy? The Captain was able, fearless and honest, and commanded in congress the respect he deserved and had continuous service been extended to him he would now be in the national house in a position to lead as are Cannon, Grosvenor, Payne, Hitt, McCall, Tawney, and a score of others of his old colleagues who are still holding seats and exerting a powerful influence in shaping legislation. The same may be true of O'Donnell, Spaulding and Smith, but it is a condition which confronts the district now. What might have been is not worth considering only as it points a lesson. It has been given out that every county in the district will present a candidate this year in harmony with the rotation rule which the politicians yet desire to have adhered to. But the question is, what do the people want? Mr. Townsend is a new man in congress, but by virtue of his ability, his integrity and his avowed purpose to stay near the people he has made an enviable record and the people of his district desire him to continue in the position which he has honored. This would, therefore, seem about the right time for the people to take matters into their own hands. They have a man in congress who is honest, courageous, eloquent and able, who in a single session has established a national reputation and gained the confidence and friendship of the people's president. Can the district afford to do other than indicate its approval of Mr. Townsend's well doing by renominating and re-electing him to congress? Not if other counties agree with Washtenaw."

Neighborhood Notes.

The postoffice at York will be discontinued Oct. 15. Rural delivery is the cause.

Grass Lake's electric lighting bonds are being largely bought by residents of the village.

It will be necessary to raise $53,000 in taxes to run the schools of Ann Arbor the coming year.

Rev. H. W. Hicks, who has been pastor of the Grass Lake Methodist church for the past two years, will not go back there next year.

In a fit of despondency Monday Miss Cora Brokaw, of Pinckney, who has been an invalid for several years, swallowed a quantity of wood alcohol and died 20 minutes later. She was 48 years old.

Dexter Leader: A record-breaking crop of beans was raised this year by John Farrell, of Webster. The beans were planted June 3, cut Aug. 23, all in the barn Aug. 28, and a sample brought to Dexter Aug. 30, the total number of days from the time planted until in the barn being 87 days.

When Ald. O. L. Robinson, of Ann Arbor, died he willed his estate of $16,000 to his bride of a month. Now his three sisters have filed an objection to the probating of the will, claiming he was mentally incompetent when he made it. Another sister and his brothers have refused to join in the suit.

John Meister, son of Rev. J. B. Meister, of Dexter, was riding a bicycle the other evening when, under the thick shadows of the trees near the park in that village he collided with a horse and buggy and was thrown to the ground. He was rendered unconscious, but beyond severely bruising his head he was not injured.

The Colonel's Waterloo.

Col. John M. Fuller, of Honey Grove, Tex., nearly met his Waterloo from liver and kidney trouble. In a recent letter he says, "I was nearly dead of these complaints, and although I tried the family doctor, he did me no good, so I got a 50c bottle of your great Electric Bitters, which cured me. I consider them the greatest medicine on earth, and thank God who gave you knowledge to make them." Sold under guarantee to cure dyspepsia, biliousness and kidney disease at Bank Drug Store; price 50c a bottle.

W. M. F. I. Co. Statistics.

Circulars have been received during the past week by the patrons of the Washtenaw Mutual Fire Insurance Co., showing the number of losses during the year, the amount of each loss and other information.

The total number of losses during the year was 66; the total amount of the losses was $12,594.85; the rate of assessment is $2.60 per $1,000.

There were two months in the year—October and May—during which there were no losses. The largest number of losses was in November, 13—7 by fire and 6 by lightning. The second largest number was in July, 10, all caused by lightning.

The circulars call attention to the fact that in the past 19 years no building insured in this company have been burned which was provided with a lightning rod—a fact that argues well in favor of lightning rods.

The number of lightning losses in this, as well as other agricultural insurance companies, is on the increase.

The annual meeting of the company will be held the second Wednesday in January next.

Strikes Hidden Rocks.

When your ship of health strikes the hidden rocks of consumption, pneumonia, etc., you are lost if you don't get help from Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption. J. W. McKinnon, of Talladega Springs, Ala., writes, "I had been very ill with pneumonia, under the care of two doctors, but was getting no better when I began taking Dr. King's New Discovery. The first dose gave relief and one bottle cured me." Sure cure for sore throat, bronchitis, coughs and colds. Price 50c and $1.00; guaranteed at Bank Drug Store. Trial bottle free.

Deafness Cannot Be Cured

by local applications as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a running sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

Charles Hepburn has moved his family to Chelsea from Merrill, Wis., and occupies the Townsend house, corner of Harrison and Madison streets. He will work for R. A. Snyder.

In the case of John Kelly vs. the Michigan Central Railroad Company, a plea and notice of former adjudication of case has been filed by John F. Lawrence, attorney for the railroad company.

Tommy McNamara is now driving a fine cream trotter which he purchased of parties east of Whitmore Lake last Friday. The horse is as attractive a piece of equine property as has been seen in Chelsea in some time.

Hubert Beissel, who has been quite ill the past two weeks with typhoid fever, is improving nicely. As the young man resides directly across the road from the stove works, the whistle has not been blown lately on account of its disturbing him.

Last Saturday, while doing some repairing on the elevated track which connects two of the buildings at the stove works, Andrew Turner had the misfortune to fall about 15 feet to the ground, receiving injuries which, while not serious, will lay him up for several days.

The annual mission services of the Bethel church, Freedom, were held Sunday. Three services were held, all of which were well attended. The collections amounted to $228. M. L. Burkhardt and wife, and William Rheinfrank and wife, of Chelsea, were among those present.

E. E. Serviss was called to Dayton, Ohio, Wednesday of last week by the death on that day of his father, Wm. Serviss, at the age of 76 years. The funeral was held Friday. Mr. Serviss, sr., lived here with his son for some months a couple of years ago. His widow and two sons survive him.

A railway automobile on the M. C. R. R. passed through this place Monday. It is built similar to the "Waterloo," which for a time ran between Chelsea and Manchester. The wheels, of course, are flanged. The car carries nine people beside the driver and is capable of making about 45 miles an hour. It is for the use of officials of the road.

The marriage of Mr. John Burns, of Sylvan, and Miss Anna Clark, of Lyndon, was solemnized at the Church of Our Lady of the Sacred Heart Tuesday morning, Rev. W. P. Considine officiating. The bridal couple were attended by Mr. Alfred Clark, brother of the bride, and Miss Mary Keelan, a niece of the groom. After the ceremony a wedding breakfast was served at the home of the bride's mother Mrs. Richard Clark, in Lyndon. Mr. and Mrs. Burns have gone to housekeeping on his farm in Sylvan.

John Doll, of Dexter township, is on the sick list.

J. P. Wood & Co.'s bean house will resume operations next Monday.

A large number of people from Chelsea and vicinity took the early trains on the Michigan Central yesterday morning to attend the state fair, 43 tickets being sold.

The 2d Michigan Infantry, the boys who tramped Virginia from Bull Run to Appomattox, will hold their annual reunion in Ann Arbor next Wednesday, Sept. 20.

The 20th Michigan Infantry Association held their annual reunion at Jackson yesterday. Among those who attended it were A. N. Morton and G. J. Crowell and their wives, of Chelsea. John Strable, of Lima, and Fred Lehman, of Sharon.

A business meeting of the Chelsea Ladies' Research Club is to be held Monday evening, Sept. 18, at 7:30 o'clock, at the home of Mrs. Anna Hong, on Orchard street. All those who wish to resume their membership must be present at the meeting.

They had a red hot school trustee election in Ann Arbor Monday. At the eleventh hour a strong effort was made to defeat Martin J. Cavanaugh, but it was of no avail. M. J. is an old campaigner and defeated his opponent Dr. Wm. Blair by 191 majority. The total vote cast was 1,102.

Mrs. Janette A. Watts died at the home of her daughter Mrs. George E. Marshall, in Unadilla, Saturday, Sept. 9, aged 66 years, 7 months and 24 days. The funeral services were held at the house Tuesday morning and were conducted by Rev. George Stowe. Burial was made in Unadilla cemetery.

Several of the fine maple trees on East Middle and East streets, in front of the property of L. P. Vogel, Miss Clara Hammond and Doris Rogers, are dead and will be cut down and converted into firewood. It is too bad to see such fine large trees die off as they represent about half a century of growth.

H. S. Holmes and son Howard, D. C. McLaren and Dr. Andros Gulde were a party of baseball enthusiasts who went to Tecumseh Tuesday and witnessed the game between the Tecumseh and Mt. Clemens teams. It was one of the series of seven games being played by these teams for a purse of $1,000. The game was won by Mt. Clemens 4 to 2.

Thomas Birkett, president of the Dexter Savings Bank, has sold a controlling interest in the bank to Frank P. Glazier, who will have associated with him W. T. Bradford, of Detroit, formerly of the staff of the commissioner of banking. Mr. Birkett will remain as president and adviser. The new board of directors will be composed as follows: Thos. Birkett, F. P. Glazier, W. T. Bradford, Wurster Blodgett and H. Wirt Newkirk.

Incredible Brutality.

It would have been incredible brutality if Chas. F. Lemberger, of Syracuse, N. Y., had not done the best he could for his suffering son. "My son," he says, "cut a fearful gash over his eye, so I applied Bucklen's Arnica Salve, which quickly healed it and saved his eye." Good for burns and ulcers, too. 25c at Bank Drug Store.

PAINFUL PERIODS

AMERICAN WOMEN FIND RELIEF

The Case of Miss Irene Crosby Is One of Thousands of Cures Made by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

How many women realize that menstruation is the balance wheel of a woman's life, and while no woman is entirely free from periodical suffering, it is not the plan of nature that women should suffer so severely.

Miss Irene Crosby

Thousands of American women, however, have found relief from all monthly suffering by taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, as it is the most thorough female regulator known to medical science. It cures the condition which causes so much discomfort and robs menstruation of its terrors.

Miss Irene Crosby, of 313 Charlton Street East Savannah, Ga., writes: "Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is a true friend to woman. It has been of great benefit to me, curing me of irregular and painful menstruation when everything else had failed, and I gladly recommend it to other suffering women."

Women who are troubled with painful or irregular menstruation, backache, bloating (or flatulence), leucorrhoea, falling, inflammation or ulceration of the uterus, ovarian troubles, that "bearing-down" feeling, dizziness, faintness, indigestion, nervous prostration or the blues, should take immediate action to ward off the serious consequences, and be restored to perfect health and strength by taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and then write to Mrs. Pinkham, Lynn, Mass., for further free advice. Thousands have been cured by so doing.

No married woman is ever so happy as she thinks her husband thinks she is. A pretty girl is one who is handsome and doesn't know it.

Positive, Comparative, Superlative.

"I have used one of your Fish Brand Slickers for five years, and now want a new one, also one for a friend. I would not be without one for twice the cost. They are just as far ahead of a common coat as a common one is ahead of nothing."

Sailors Have Sport Racing Turtles

Start Big Snappers Across Deck and Bet on Their Finish—Gambler Thinks Track Should Be Built for Them.

"I have heard of horse races, bicycle races, foot races, dog races, and a dozen different kinds of races, but never before in my long life have I heard of a turtle race," mused Lem Fugle, the sage, philosopher and guide of the battery, yesterday afternoon, as he hung his feet over the stern of the tugboat E. S. Booth, and puffed nonchalantly at the pipe of peace.

"Yes," he continued, "that is the story brought in by the steamship Queen Eleanor from Samarang and Aden. A friend of mine, who is a stoker on the Queen, told me they had a regular Saratoga during the trip over. The sailors bet their money and when that was lost staked their dunnage on races between a score of big snapping turtles, which were brought over by the men simply to have a little sport with."

"On the second day out the sailors dug out a half dozen of the monster snappers and pasted numbers on their backs. Strong ropes were tied around the necks of the turtles, the bets were placed, and the snappers sailed away from the 'post' in a manner much similar to the way the horses leave the scratch line at a race track.

"The after deck of the steamer was made a race track. There was a real bookmaker, and several dollars of real money changed hands. The heavy losers walked and declared No. 3 or No. 6 was a dead one, and could not get around the track unless it was carried."

Lem Fugle refilled his pipe and looked wistfully at the entries in tomorrow's races, carefully picking out the winners, and assuring the reporter what a "cinch" Mad Mullah would be "for show."

"I have gambled on every kind of race that has ever been run, with the exception of the turtle race," spoke the sage in a sorrowful tone, "and I think it is up to the sports of New York to build a track for racing the crust covered creatures. You can put me down on the list as a charter member of the Metropolitan Turtle Racing association," said Mr. Fugle, and the tugboat E. S. Booth left her mooring at Pier No. 4, East river, and started down the bay for a tow.—New York American.

Charles Wesley's Seven Thousand Hymns

Founder of Church Indefatigable in His Sacred Writings—Commenced at the Age of Twenty-nine.

Wonder is always expressed and doubts arise when the statement is made that the Rev. Charles Wesley, a clergyman of the Church of England, actually wrote seven thousand hymns during his lifetime. This statement is verified by the publication over his own signature of thirty-nine books of poetry, sacred and secular. It is doubtful if there exists a hymn book adopted by any religious denomination which does not contain several of his sacred songs.

Thomas Moore wrote very few sacred songs, but of these few one stands out pre-eminent and will be sung till time be no more by the people of this whole earth. "This song, that always reaches the heart, is 'Come, Ye Disconsolate,' found in almost every hymn book and never accredited to the author.

The Rev. Charles Wesley must have been writing hymns all his life, and it is recorded of him that he wrote on horseback while traveling from place to place upon his duties in the church. In those days graphite pencils and flowing pens were unknown, and he wrote with a piece of soft lead he always carried with him on any old scrap of paper. He lived to be 80 years of age, and was born in 1708.

The hymns of Dr. Watts come next in number to those of Charles Wesley, namely, 697, but they mostly appealed to children, although never forgotten in later years.

The fact is that Wesley commenced writing his sacred hymns at the age of 29.

The Methodist hymn book in this country, as well as the Wesleyan hymn book in England, being so replete with the hymns of Charles Wesley is accounted for by the fact that both Charles and his brother John were clergymen of the Church of England, but John, taking exception to some part of the ritual of that church, went out to preach to the multitudes, and after he had organized what his followers called the Wesleyan church his brother Charles joined him and wrote the hymns, to which were added the favorite hymns of other sacred writers.

Was Down on Circumstantial Evidence

Man Arrested for Complicity in Bank Robbery Had Reasons for His Belief—Unfortunate in Love Affairs.

"As to circumstantial evidences, it's a queer thing," said the man in the brown suit. "Five or six years ago I was in a certain town for a night when a bank was robbed. Next morning I was arrested as an accomplice, it being contended that I was seen idling in front of the bank and evidently acting as sentinel to those within. Three different persons identified me as the man, and a fourth claimed to have seen me enter the hotel at a late hour by way of a shed and a window. I was locked up for examination, and with a chance of things going hard with me, when evidence began to come forward on my side.

"The landlord asserted and swore that I was sitting in the office at 10 o'clock p. m. Two servants swore they saw me going to my room half an hour later. A man having rooms opposite the hotel swore that he saw me smoking at my window at midnight. A guest of the hotel who had a room next to mine swore that my snores disturbed him from midnight till 2 o'clock and that he heard me turn over in bed at 3, and so I was honorably discharged from custody."

"But about it being queer?" was asked.

"Why, all the people on both sides were mistaken. I was not outside the bank at the times named and neither was I in the hotel."

"But you were somewhere?" "Oh, of course. Fact is, I got mashed on the landlord's daughter and we sat up all night in a balcony and talked love and looked at the moonlight. Yes, sir, sat there all night like a couple of idiots, and though I declared I would die for her and she said she only wanted me and a humble cottage, she was married to a red-haired butcher within a year and I was being sued by a snub-nosed widow for breach of promise. I was simply observing, you know, that circumstantial evidence is a queer thing and I wish to add that a juryman shouldn't be influenced too much by it."—Tid-Bits.

Bereaved Husband Needed the Tiger

His Wife Had Recently Died and He Was Seeking Congenial Society—English Newspaper Responsible for Story.

At a sale of animals from a hippodrome a tiger was being offered. The highest bid was made by a man who was a stranger, and to him it was knocked down. The owner of the animal, who had been eyeing the stranger uneasily during the bidding, then went up to him and said:

"Pardon me for asking the question, but will you tell me where you are from?"

"From the country," responded the man.

"Are you connected with any show?"

"No."

"And are you buying this animal for yourself?"

"Yes."

The showman shifted about for a few moments, looking alternately at the man and the tiger, evidently trying his best to reconcile the two.

"Now, young man," he finally said, "you need not take this animal unless you want to, for there are those here who will take it off your hands."

"I don't want to sell," was the quiet reply.

"What on earth are you going to do with such an ugly beast if you have no show of your own and are not buying for someone who is a showman?"

"Well, I'll tell you," said the purchaser. "My wife died about three weeks ago. We had lived together for ten years, and— I miss her."

He paused to wipe his eyes and steady his voice, and then added:

"So I've bought the tiger."

"I understand you," said the great showman in a husky voice, as he turned to hide his emotion.—London Tid-Bits.

Life's Sorrows That Quickly Pass

"You with Your Chains That Are Rusted Fast, Remember Tomorrow This Day Will Be Part of the Past."

By to-morrow this day will be part of the past.

As long as winds blow and white rivulets run

As long as the world may be warmed by the sun

By to-morrow the ache that is deep in your heart

May be gladly forgot, or recalled as the

Of a wound that was trifling, and, looking ahead,

You may gaze on fair prospects all fairly glow

With the loveliest flowers that ever may blow,

Though to-day the gray future seems barren and dead.

The past, lying there with its joys and its

With its wine bottle drained and its

With its pledges all broken, its hopes that

Its moments of gladness, its aches of

The past has not terrors, it cannot return,

Be glad—oh, be glad—for, though

By to-morrow this day will be part of the past.

GOOD WORK OF SCIENTISTS.

Immense Sums Saved Through Bureau of Entomology.

Great sums are saved for the agriculturists of this country by the efforts of the government bureau of entomology toward the extermination of insect pests. The cotton worm before it was studied and the method of controlling it by the use of arsenicals was made common knowledge, levied in bad years a tax of $30,000,000 on the cotton crop. The prevention of less from the Hessian fly, due to the knowledge of proper seasons for planting wheat, and other direct and cultural methods, results in the saving of wheat to the farm value of from $100,000,000 to $200,000,000 annually. Careful statistics show that the damage from the codling moth to the apple is limited two-thirds by the adoption of control, representing a saving of from $15,000,000 to $20,000,000 in the value. The rotation of corn with oats or other crops saves the corn crop from the attacks of the root worm to the extent of perhaps $100,000,000 annually in the chief corn-producing regions of the Mississippi valley. The cultural system of controlling the boll weevil saves the farmers of Texas many millions of dollars.

Cure to Stay Cured.

Wapello, Iowa, Sept. 11th (Special).—One of the most remarkable cures ever recorded in Louisa County is that of Mrs. Minnie Hart of this place. Mrs. Hart was in bed for eight months and when she was able to sit up she was all drawn up on one side and could not walk across the room. Dodd's Kidney Pills cured her. Speaking of her cure, Mrs. Hart says:

"Yes, Dodd's Kidney Pills cured me after I was in bed for eight months and I know the cure was complete for that was three years ago and I have not been down since. In four weeks from the time I started taking them I was able to make my garden. Nobody can know how thankful I am to be cured or how much I feel I owe to Dodd's Kidney Pills."

This case again points out how much the general health depends on the kidneys. Cure the kidneys with Dodd's Kidney Pills and nine-tenths of the suffering the human family is heir to, will disappear.

England's "Military Canal."

It is not generally known that England has a "military canal," started just a century ago as part of the scheme of defense propounded by Mr. Pitt, in view of a possible invasion by the French under Napoleon. The canal was to have been thirty-six miles in length, running from Rye to Hythe, the idea being that it would serve as the means of conveying stores and also act as an obstacle to the enemy's advance, once he landed. Now, 100 years after its inception, money is proposed to be voted for putting it in a state of repair.

Costly Illegibility

Sir Walter Scott's writing was at times—not often—decidedly obscure. Taking advantage of this a cunning rascal by some means obtained possession of a note of unquestionable illegibility written by the great novelist, and presented it to Sir Walter's tailor as an order for a couple of suits of clothes. The tradesman, recognizing his patron's signature, took the commission, only to find, on asking for payment, that the note was an answer to an invitation to dinner.

Jonah's Boots Found in a Whale.

It is said that the late Clerk Joseph Willard once told Edward D. Sohler, the eminent lawyer, that he had read in a paper that a dead whale was driven ashore at Nantucket, and that on opening him a pair of boots were found marked "J."

Mr. Sohler instantly replied: "They probably belonged to Jonah, and he must have left them when he stepped out."—Tid-Bits.

False Call on Bugle.

A barracks in a garrison town in the south of England was all torn up suddenly by the sounding of the "fire alarm" on a bugle. The excitement disappeared when it was ascertained that the bugler had sounded the call in mistake for "Fall in."

STRONGER THAN MEAT.

A Judge's Opinion of Grape-Nuts.

A gentleman who has acquired a judicial turn of mind from experience on the bench in the Sunflower State, writes a carefully considered opinion as to the value of Grape-Nuts as food. He says:

"For the past 5 years Grape-Nuts has been a prominent feature in our bill of fare.

"The crisp food with the delicious, nutty flavor has become an indispensable necessity in my family's everyday life.

"It has proved to be most healthful and beneficial, and has enabled us to practically abolish pastry and pies from our table, for the children prefer Grape-Nuts and do not crave rich and unwholesome food.

"Grape-Nuts keeps us all in perfect physical condition—as a preventive of disease it is beyond value. I have been particularly impressed by the beneficial effects of Grape-Nuts when used by ladies who are troubled with face blemishes, skin eruptions, etc. It clears up the complexion wonderfully.

"As to its nutritive qualities, my experience is that one small dish of Grape-Nuts is superior to a pound of meat for breakfast, which is an important consideration for anyone. It satisfies the appetite and strengthens the power of resisting fatigue, while its use involves none of the disagreeable consequences that sometimes follow a meat breakfast." CRAFTY MAN WINS OUT.

Neat Way in Which He Dupes the "Angel of His Life."

Mr. Smauth reaches home for dinner and finds his wife in an unusually taciturn mood.

They go through the meal almost quietly; the only speech being from him.

The evening progresses in the same fashion.

At last he asks:

"Aren't you feeling well to-night?"

"Oh, yes," she tells him, coldly.

"Then what is wrong with you?"

"You ought to know."

"How should I know? Have I said or done anything to offend you?"

"No; you haven't said anything or done anything."

"Then what on earth makes you act this way?"

"I suppose you have forgotten what this is?"

"No. This is the 25th day of August, 1905."

"And it is my birthday, and you forgot that it was, and you never forgot it before, and you—"

"One moment, my dear. I did not forget that it was your birthday."

She smiles through her tears, thinking of diamond sunbursts and things like that.

"Oh, you dear thing!" she exclaims.

"You did not forget it, then?"

"No. What birthday is it?"

"Why, my thirtieth, of course."

"Well, angel of my life, do you not think it is more gracious of me to seem to overlook your birthday than to remind you of how old you are growing?"

Next day she tells the neighbor that dear John is the thoughtfulness man that ever lived.

Young Fool and the Old.

There's no fool like a young fool

When fireworks are concerned—

Behold them all, the victims small.

With hands and faces burned,

Behold the lamed and killed and maimed,

Their needless sufferings.

There's no fool like the Old Fool

Who gives a child such things.

There's no fool like a young fool

In glorious July,

To fire a bomb and lose a thumb

And tear away an eye.

To touch a light to dynamite

And scatter death and noise:

There's no fool like the Old Fool

Who gives a child such toys.

There's no fool like a young fool

To make the Fourth a crime.

When every nurse and every hearse

Is working overtime,

When East and West and North and South,

The lists appalling grow:

There's no fool like the Old Fool

Who thinks a child should know.

There's no fool like the young fool

Who smells of the powder smoke;

But the awful play that mars the Day

Has ceased to be a joke.

Yet Satan tempts the Old Fool

To chuckle "death's his breath"

And put among the heaviest young

The instruments of death.

—Life.

Forcing the Youthful Mind.

There is very general cry that children are becoming every day less childlike, that they are being pressed far beyond their strength. Of course, the fanatics tell us that it is not so, that all this outcry is the outcome of misplaced sentiment and of ignorance of the true inwardness of educational methods. But this we know, that forced minds are very like forced plants—curiosities, perhaps, but not such as the experienced cultivator keeps as "stock." Nature is very jealous for her nurslings. You may fool considerably with adult specimens, even to the degree of making them hideous; you may experiment almost indefinitely with this, and the other kind of pruning, grafting, but let a cold wave or a hot wave but once blow upon your tender nurslings and they are gone without hope of resurrection.—Philadelphia Ledger.

A Mere Matter of Size.

She was corpulent and on her way to Chicago from New York, and was traveling with her two children, aged respectively 3 and 4 years. As far as Buffalo she had not been asked to pay for the children, but at that point the train crew changed and the new conductor, a gruff, surly-looking individual, looked askance at the children and asked for their tickets.

"Why, I have none," said the mother.

"How old are they?" snapped the man in blue.

"The girl is 3 and the boy 4, sir."

"They look pretty big for that," was the gruff rejoinder.

"Well," said she of the avoirdupois, "if you're collecting fares according to size, you'd better get another ticket for me."

Needless to say, she did not pay for the children.

Eating "Humble Pie"

There is a queer twist of language in the phrase "to eat humble pie." The word "humble" is a corrupted form of the original "numble," which is an indecent part of the carcass of a deer and would make very poor pie. The words "humble pie" have the same original meaning as "to eat crow," a phrase common in political life. There is an enforced humility in this process and the change from "numble" to "humble" introduced a thought which harmonized with the idea sought to be expressed. The last form of the phrase has entirely supplanted the original.

CHAPTER XV.

Who Fired the Shot?

The next morning at an early hour a pistol shot rang out sharp and quick on the still air surrounding the upper portion of Grovedale. It was heard by many and commented upon. One or two heard the shot with some dismay, and made their way at once in the direction of the sound.

It appeared to be, as I have said, at the upper end of the village, and two or three men turned into the street approaching Mr. Hamilton's house and walked toward it together. These were the men who had followed the sound.

When they reached the grounds of the house they saw a group of people standing about a figure lying on the grass. The group consisted of Mr. and Mrs. Hamilton and Mr. Carter, who stood back at their approach and plainly revealed to their gaze the form of Primus Edes lying, face upward, on the ground.

"Who did it?" asked one of the men, Mr. Green, excitedly.

"That's more than we can tell," said Mr. Carter. "I heard a shot and jumped into my clothes and came down. Vane had got here, somehow, before I did, and my niece followed me. That's all we knew about the matter."

"Shot himself, most likely," said Mr. Dawes, a grocer on Main street. "Edes has looked downhearted for a long time. I wonder where the pistol is? It can't be a great way off, if he did it himself."

"That's so," said the other man, looking about.

But the grass as short, there was no place where a pistol could be hidden from direct gaze except behind a row of rosebushes a few feet away. Green moved toward them to look, and, to his surprise, saw a small pistol plainly in sight in front of, not behind, the rose bushes.

his own hand fired the shot, unless it was done by some person who stood near him at the time.

On the other hand, the river was near, and there were indications of a boat having been lately drawn up among the alders that fringed the bank, and later one was found a little below the village, where it had come to a natural moorage under an overhanging limb of an immense tree. The river was much shaded; it was not impossible for a person to have escaped that way while attention was being paid to the wounded man; and in that case he had most likely taken to the woods after leaving the boat.

These surmises and the search kept the persons engaged in them from observing the great agitation of Mrs. Hamilton and her husband. They soon entered the house together, where Mrs. Hamilton suddenly faced him and asked, excitedly:

"Do you know how he was shot?"

"Assuredly I do not, Constance. I heard the shot and jumped out of bed at once. Being quicker than Mr. Carter I reached the spot a moment earlier, but I saw no one, and I was sure from the first that he shot himself."

"But the pistol! It was not in his hand,"

"Doubtless he threw it before he fell to the ground."

"But you were angry to have him come here."

"I was angry, and I told the man only yesterday to keep away. But he came this morning, it seems. Served him right."

"But he is different from other people, and he meant no harm, I am convinced."

Primus Edes did not die. Indeed, he began to mend rapidly, though his mind wandered, the direct result of the injury to his brain. Constance, though she felt much anxiety, never went near him, nor to the house, but Mr. Hamilton called each morning,

"Are you my ghost?"

"It is a wonder we didn't see it the first thing," said he.

"It is a wonder," said Mr. Hamilton, taking the pistol and looking it over. "There is no mark on it."

"No; but I don't mistake that pistol belongs to Dan Fry," said Mr. Green. "I sold him one like it not long ago."

"You don't think Dan shot him?"

said Mr. Carter, aghast.

"No, I don't; I think he shot himself."

"Well, I am sorry to have had it occur here," said Mr. Hamilton, glancing at his wife's terror-stricken face.

Hitherto she had not spoken, but now her tongue was unloosed.

"Why don't some of you see if he is really dead?" she cried. "Because a man is shot it is no reason for thinking that he is dead."

Mr. Hamilton quietly knelt and laid his hand on his breast.

"It beats feebly. He may rally. It is not cold here. We will not risk disturbing him until the doctor comes. Help me with the harness, Green."

Working together, one of his horses was quickly harnessed, and the quarter of a mile distance to Dr. Peck's quickly covered.

The doctor was at home and returned in the buggy, and in a few minutes was kneeling beside the recumbent figure.

"The wound is a bad one, but not necessarily fatal," he said, after he had examined with great care the hole made by the bullet in the temple. "He will have to be taken somewhere."

"He boards at Mrs. Fry's," said Mr. Carter.

"Very well. He must be removed there at once," said the doctor, "and then I will probe for the bullet."

A door was taken from its hinges and four men carried the insensible form to his boarding-place, where he was tenderly cared for by Mrs. Fry. The bullet was extracted by Dr. Peck, and the wound thoroughly attended to. Then the physician left the house, saying he would look in at his patient in an hour or so.

Meanwhile an excited group of men were searching the grounds and woods about the Hamilton place for traces of a would-be murderer, supposing the affair not to be an attempt at suicide. Many declared it most certainly was that, the inclination of the wound being upward proved that and questioned Mrs. Fry regarding his progress in recovery.

"He seems better to-day," said Mrs. Fry, nearly three weeks after the shooting. "He looks brighter and takes notice of things. But, somehow, he acts a little mite queer."

"How? Doesn't he know you?"

"Yes, he called me Mrs. Fry, but he asked me why he was at my house, and I told him because he was fetched here, and then he wanted to know why he wasn't taken home instid."

"It is but natural that his mind should wander," said Mr. Hamilton. "I wish you would just step in and look at him."

Mr. Hamilton hesitated for a moment and then followed Mrs. Fry to the comfortable apartment where lay Primus Edes on his bed, pallid and emaciated, his dark hair cropped short and his eyes shrunken.

"Mr. Hamilton has called in to see you," said Mrs. Fry, approaching and straightening the bedclothes.

"Mr.—who?" asked the sick man, staring at his visitor, and at her, with a wild look in his eyes.

"Mr. Hamilton," she repeated.

"Are you my ghost?" asked Edes, snatching at the bedclothes. "Am I dead, then, and you my other self come to haunt me?"

"No, no," said Mrs. Fry, soothingly. "nobody sha'n't ha'n't you, not if I know it. He just come to see how you was, that's all."

"His name is Hamilton, you say."

"Lor, now, did I? It's Hammerly, I meant, our minister," said Mrs. Fry, alarmed at the growing excitement of her patient and lying with a glibness surprising to herself.

Mr. Hamilton, meanwhile, had left the room and stood waiting for Mrs. Fry at the outer door.

"Odd what ideas folk take!" she said. "He ain't as well as I thought he was."

"No, I am afraid his brain has been permanently injured," said Mr. Hamilton, who seemed to be not a little disturbed. "I will not go in again, my presence seems to agitate him."

Mrs. Fry kept out of her boarder's room for an hour, and when she entered she saw that he was asleep. He slept a long time, and appeared drowsy for awhile upon waking, but afterwards he looked about the room, clear-eyed, though silent, and Mrs. Fry softly went out, fearing that he would question her. But he did not try to talk with her at all until the next morning, when he said to her, quietly:

"I want to talk with you, Mrs. Fry. Why am I sick here instead of at home?"

"Oh, 'twas more convenient."

"I should hardly think so. Such a short distance. Who was that man who called to see me yesterday?"

"Mr. Hammerly, our minister. He's a dreadful nice man."

"I mistook the name at first, or you did. Any way he looks enough like me to be my twin brother. Where is Constance—and the children?"

"Constance!" said Mrs. Fry, staring at him with all her might.

"Yes; is there anything strange about my questions?"

"No; oh, no, not a mite. Constance is over home, an' the children, too, most like."

"You say Constance is over home. Why does she not come to see me?"

"She's dreadful busy."

He started up in a moment and asked, keenly, "Are you deceiving me? Is she dead or very sick? Has anything happened to her, or the children?"

"No, they are all right, all of them. There ain't nothin' the matter with none of them."

"Then she must come to see me, for I am not able to go to her."

He spoke with a decision new and strange. Mrs. Fry began to grow alarmed.

"But don't you see, Mr. Edes, it wouldn't look well, she bein' a married woman so, an' you a single man."

"Are you crazy, my good woman? My name is not Edes and I am not a single man, though I know very well that she is a married woman."

"I'm sure you told me that your name was Edes, and that you were never married."

"I never told you so. Edes! I never heard the name until now in all my life."

"Well, then, what is your name?" she asked, endeavoring to quiet him by a return to her acquiescent manner.

"Vane Hamilton, as you very well know."

"All right, and now will you have your drops? The clock is just striking the time."

"Yes, if you will go over and ask my wife to come to see me."

"I'll ask her."

"Thank you. It is only a little way, and she won't mind the walk. One ought to see the house from that window."

"You can see it plain," and Mrs. Fry gave him the drops, and then went and stood irresolutely in the middle of her kitchen for several minutes.

"I promised, an' it won't do no great hurt," she said to herself at last. "It dooz beat all what's got into the man, claimin' to be Vane Hamilton, an' he with a most black hair. He's crazy as a loon."

Taking the sunbonnet from its nail on the wall she closed the door carefully, and then called to her next-door neighbor's to ask her to "keep house" a little while for her.

"Don't disturb Mr. Edes unless he wants somethin'," she said, and then she hurried to the house of Mrs. Hamilton, and was admitted by that lady herself, who had seen her coming.

(To be continued.)

SLEDS IN SUMMER CLIMES.

Strange Kind of Vehicle Used in the Island of Madeira.

At Funchal, in the island of Madeira the traveler finds one of the strangest kinds of vehicles that the world affords. He sees waiting quietly near the wharf a number of sleds, with sleek, dun-colored oxen yoked to each.

It is always high summer time in Madeira and to see a conveyance which he has ever associated with snow and ice and zero weather is at first disconcerting. The stranger rubs his eyes and asks what those things are for, but he soon finds that they are the public hacks and that unless he cares to walk he must step inside, enconce himself on the cushioned seat and wait for the driver to prod his slow steeds with the goad that he always carries. Very soon the vehicle begins to slip, very slowly to be sure, but surely, over the smooth little cobblestones with which the streets are paved. At any particular difficult turn of the road or when coming to a rise of ground the driver places a little bag of grease under the front of the runners which makes it comparatively easy for the sturdy steers to pull the sled.

Even up a long steep hill these oxen will slowly make their way. In coming down again no such tedious process is used, but, getting into a wide, finely upholstered sled with wicker sides, the passenger trusts himself to the tender mercies of two more or less villainous looking guides as steersmen. Each one of them holds a rope tied to the back of the sled, and when the toboggan, as it is often called, gets to jumping and bounding too hilariously the guides jump off and pull with all their might at the ropes.

Then He Stopped.

A certain preacher in a small town had a reputation for his long and "dry" sermons. One Sunday he was living well up to his standard and one by one his congregation left the church. Undismayed, the preacher continued, until finally all had left but the faithful sexton. At last the old sexton came forward and, putting the keys on the pulpit, said:

"Say, doctor, when you're through lock up, will ye?"

ABOUNDING LIFE

The Healthful Life; the Battle Creek Idea

A NEW BOOKLET

ABSOLUTELY FREE

BY THE TIME this Publication reaches its readers the first sheets of a new booklet on Healthful Living will be off the press. This booklet cost thousands of dollars to prepare. The facts it sets forth are the result of thirty years of experiment, analysis, research. The ideas of the leading dietitians of the world are summarized in it. It would be hard to compute its value in dollars and cents, but it will be mailed without charge to any reader who asks for it.

We hope to send a copy into every home in America. It ought to be read by every man who desires to have physical strength, to do his full share in the world's work. Every woman who wishes to perform her whole duty to herself and family, should not only read it, but carefully, thoughtfully study it.

There is nothing pedantic in the booklet—no exploitation of fads or fancies—just plain straightforward talk and practical truths. It tells of a rational life you can live in your own home, whereby you can secure abounding, abiding health. It tells the cause of sickness and weakness. It shows the part that diet plays in making or marring careers.

Every word you can understand. And back of every word is authority. For this booklet is a condensed summary of the wonderful achievements in restoring and preserving health during thirty years of dietetic study at Battle Creek.

And, remember, this booklet is not to exploit the Battle Creek Sanitarium. The message is a message for the home—for everyday life. You can follow its teachings without interference with business or home duties.

There is absolutely no charge—no obligations on your part if you ask for the booklet—now, or in the future. So write today—now. Only those who act will know the value of this opportunity. If we could convey a clear conception of its purpose you would need no urging. Let the booklet speak for itself. Mention this publication and send your request either by letter or postal card addressed to the

Constipation

Endangers Life

Deal With the Honest Druggist

When you ask your druggist for Mull's Grape Tonic, a cure for Constipation, Stomach and Bowel Trouble, and he tries to sell you something else which he claims is just as good, that is substitution or dishonesty. It is an insult to your intelligence. He does it for profit, and not because he cares about your health. No honest druggist will do it.

Stop a moment and reflect before you permit him to mislead you. He is willing to endanger your life and health for the sake of a few pennies. Is he a safe man to trade with? Deal with the Honest druggist who will promptly supply you with what you know you want, and that which you call for.

Until Mull's Grape Tonic was put on the American market there was no cure for Constipation and Stomach trouble. Your Doctor will tell you as much. He knows that a physic won't cure Constipation. Some remedies may act as laxatives and physics, but you and I know from experience that physics are dangerous, that they weaken, that they not only fail to cure but make us worse until finally they lose effect entirely, which means paralysis of the bowels and death by Typhoid Fever, Appendicitis, Stomach, Heart, and Lung Trouble, Rheumatism, Dropsy, Kidney and Bright's Disease, etc.

There are honorable druggists in most every locality, men who will promptly supply you with Mull's Grape Tonic and not try to sell you something else; but should there be no such druggist there, we will send you the Tonic direct from this factory without additional expense to you.

If you have Constipation and want to try Mull's Grape Tonic and have never used it, we will send you, or any of your friends who suffer with this affliction, a free bottle. Send us name and address at once, while we are giving the first bottle free; we want to prove to you, at our expense, the truth of the claims we make for this valuable remedy. Use the coupon below at once while we are giving the remedy away. Free to all who have never used it.

FREE GRAPE TONIC COUPON 113

Wonderful Cure of Hay Fever and Asthma in 2 Days

A Jackson Lady Tells How It Was Done.

Jackson, Mich., Aug. 30, 1905.
I have been a great sufferer from hay fever for 23 years and hay asthma for eight years. I got so bad that I could scarcely get any relief from the use of any of the remedies on the market. I had asthma only during the hay fever season. All the rest of the season my health was good. It came on this year Aug. 12, and until I commenced treatment with Dr. Wilkinson, 25 Dwight building, Jackson, Mich., I was unable to leave the house, and the last four nights I sat up the whole time. I did not believe that Dr. Wilkinson could give me any relief, but my friends persuaded me to try him, and on Aug. 26 I sent for his medicine, for I could not go to his office and he could not come to see me. The second night after taking his medicine I could lie down and sleep, and in two days I was apparently well of my asthma, and have been entirely free of it ever since. My eyes and nose are not entirely well yet, but they are better. Dr. Wilkinson's treatment has been a great relief to me.

Thirteen printers in the Richmond-Bachus plant at Ann Arbor walked out Monday night because the firm declined to grant them an eight-hour-day with nine hours pay, to take effect Jan. 1, 1906. The strike was ordered by the International Typographical Union and it is in line with the policy of that body, which aims to make the eight-hour-day operative wherever the union exists.

Deputy Sheriff Glenn Seymour, of Ypsilanti, has been appointed transient officer for the county. He will have his office with the prosecuting attorney and will work under the direction of the county commissioner of schools. He is evidently in for a busy time of it as School Commissioner Foster informed the Herald the other day that he already had 50 transient boys for him to look after. It is the intention to have the transiency law strictly enforced.

BLOOD DISEASES CURED

Drs. K. & K. Established 25 Years.

He was surprised at how the sores healed—I took your New Method Treatment for a serious blood disease with which I had been afflicted for twelve years. I had consulted a score of physicians, taken all kinds of blood medicine, visited Hot Springs and other mineral water resorts, but only got temporary relief. They would help me for a time, but after discontinuing the medicines the symptoms would break out again—running sores, blotches, rheumatic pains, looseness of the hair, swellings of the glands, palms of the hands scaling, itchingness of the skin, dyspeptic stomach, etc. I had given up in despair when a friend advised me to consult you, as you had cured him of a similar disease 8 years ago. I had no hope, but took his advice. In three weeks' time the sores commenced to heal up and I became encouraged. I continued the New Method Treatment for four months and at the end of that time every symptom had disappeared. I was cured 7 years ago and no signs of any disease since. My boy, three years old, is sound and healthy. I certainly can recommend your treatment with all my heart. You can refer any person to me privately, but you can use this testimonial as you wish.

W. H. S.

We treat Nervous Debility, Varicose, Stricture, Vital Weakness, Blood and Skin diseases, Urinary, Bladder and Kidney complaints of men and women.

Are you a victim? Have you lost hope? Are you intending to marry? Has your blood been diseased? Have you any weakness? Our New Method Treatment will cure you. What it has done for others it will do for you. CONSULTATION FREE. No matter who has treated you, write for an honest opinion Free of Charge. Charges reasonable. BOOKS FREE—"The Golden Monitor" (Illustrated), on Diseases of Men. Sealed Book on "Diseases of Women".
