Lamps.

Long evenings are before us now and night will find many around the home reading and study table. Our lamp department on the second floor contains many good things. No real good kerosene lamp should be without a "smell." Carelessness or ignorance, usually, are responsible for the odor. We sell only good lamps and will tell you how to care for them so that you will never detect an odor. Simplest thing in the world; but some dealers don't know and others care less. A lamp is one of the things you should be careful not to buy in the wrong place. Special offerings for this sale only include lamps in the goods ranging from 75c to $3.50.

MUST HAVE NUMBERS.

TO FACILITATE RURAL DELIVERY.

Such Instructions Have Been Received by Postmaster Hoover--Every Mail Box on Routes to be Numbered.

Postmaster Hoover has received the following instructions from the fourth assistant postmaster general's office on the division of rural free delivery relative to the rural mail boxes on the routes out of Chelsea:

"For public convenience and to facilitate a more accurate handling of mail by rural free delivery carriers it has been decided that each rural mail box in use on a rural route which, under the regulations of the department, is entitled to service, shall be designated by number in the manner and by the method hereinafter set forth, and the delivery by rural carriers of ordinary mail matter of all classes addressed to such boxes by number alone is authorized so long as improper and unlawful business is not conducted thereby.

"The numbers assigned to boxes on each route will commence with 'No. 1,' which will pertain to the first regulation box reached by the carrier after leaving the starting point of his route, traveling in accordance with the official description; box after box thereafter to be counted and given the proper number in regular sequence in order of service from 'No. 1' to and including all those boxes entitled to service located on the route.

"New boxes erected subsequent to the original numbering, between those already in position on a route and consecutively numbered, will be designated by applying thereto in the regular order, the next consecutive number shown, by the record of numbered boxes on the route, to be unused."

It has been decided to have the boxes numbered uniformly, and as soon as they can be inspected they will be numbered from the local office so that they will be alike throughout the several routes.

MORE LAW SUITS.

The following was taken from the Ypsilanti Evening Press of Monday:

Another law suit has been added to the Millen-White embroglio at Four Mile Lake. This time Homer C. Millen, the ex-superintendent of the White Portland Cement Company, sues John Kalmbach, one of the attorneys of Mr. White and the Cement company, for slander, and wants $25,000 damages. He charges Kalmbach with saying: "He did not deal honestly with White. He has got thousands of dollars of White's money. He and May Millen have made White the object of a systematic scheme to cheat and defraud, and have conspired together in a series of fraudulent transactions, by which said White has been cheated out of a large sum of money. He gave Jacob Bahnmiller a fraudulent check for $250 when Bahnmiller only had $25 coming, and cheated White out of $225. He showed White many false receipts and got a lot of money from White and put the same into his own pocket. He used White's money to buy furniture and put it in his house. He deposited White's money in the bank in his own name, and then arranged to have his wife check it out, and she drew out a large sum of money which he used. He made false claims for work done when persons who were supposed to have done the work were only visitors and relatives, and then divided the money with visitors." Millen also claims that Kalmbach, by reason of his statements alleged to be the cause of his losing the position of superintendent of the White Portland Cement Company.

The motions to dissolve the injunctions granted May Millen, the complainant, and the White Portland Cement Company et al, defendants were argued before Judge Kinne this morning by the large number of attorneys in the case. Judge Kinne refused to dissolve the injunction restraining the White Portland Cement Company from ejecting the Millens from the residence occupied by them at Four Mile Lake before the final termination of the cause. The judge dissolved the injunction restraining the Millens from cutting the floors and walls in this residence so as to allow them to heat the house by stoves.

Thomas McNamara, was born near Limerick, County, Clare, Ireland and died at Pontiac, Wednesday evening, September 14, 1905, aged 69 years.

Mr. McNamara settled in Lyndon when a young man between the age of 18 and 19 years, and his parents followed some three years later from Ireland, although they had some years before his birth been residents of Albany, N. Y. for a number of years, returning to Ireland thinking that the father might be benefited by treatment for his failing eye sight.

The deceased was united in marriage at Dexter, September 12, 1880 with Miss Mary Mason, to whom was born two sons, E. J. McNamara, of Niagara Falls, N. Y. and Dr. Frank McNamara, of St. Paul, Minn., and one daughter, Mrs. Wm. Remnant of this place. He is survived by the widow, the three children and three brothers. MICHIGAN AT THE HEAD

AS BEAN RAISING STATE.

Foreign Crop and That of New York is Small, but Michigan Crop Looks Fine—Allmendinger's Address.

"Michigan leads the world in beans," said G. F. Allmendinger, of Ann Arbor, retiring president of the Michigan Bean Jobbers' association, which Wednesday of last week held its annual convention at the Normandie hotel in Detroit. "This is something the bean jobbers want to impress on the people."

This year's bean prospects were exhaustively discussed at the meeting. That the foreign crop of beans is small; that the New York state crop is about 50 to 60 per cent of a crop in acreage; that Michigan has a 75 to 80 per cent crop; that the Wisconsin and California crops are large, were some of the points brought out. Beyond the acreage the crop could not be determined and it is only guess work at the present time what the full crop will be.

In reviewing the work of the association, Mr. Allmendinger said that the attempt to have a bill passed providing for a state bean inspector failed. Legislation had been brought about, however, providing for the use of the elevator receipts for private warehouses just as the board of trade gets for public elevators. He said the association is stronger now than ever before and has a larger membership.

"Last year the crop was large, but poor in quality," said Mr. Allmendinger, "and there was great difficulty in handling it. If the crop is good this year there will be no difficulty in handling it in thirty days, if the farmers choose to sell."

"The association broke up the practice of a certain railroad in this state of charging up overweight of carloads. It was a practice to mark up a car as 42,000 pounds, when it had only 40,000 pounds. The association had fixed the minimum car load at 500 bushels, or about 33,000 pounds, but owing to railroad regulations we had to change this to 40,000 pounds."

DEXTER SAVINGS BANK CHANGE.

Last Saturday, by a transfer of a sufficient amount of capital stock, on the part of Mr. Thomas Birkett, president of the Dexter Savings bank, Hon. Frank P. Glazier, of Chelsea, state treasurer, acquired a controlling interest in that institution.

Owing to his increasing years, and his many other business interests, Mr. Birkett has for some months been quietly looking for someone with whom he could make such a deal, and at the same time protect the interests of the bank by transferring it to someone of ample means and experience. In Mr. Glazier he has certainly found the right man. If Mr. Birkett had to turn the interests of the bank over to someone else, we feel certain that no one could be more satisfactory to the depositors and patrons of the bank than Mr. Glazier.

He is abundantly able financially, has had years of experience in the business, and is a most pleasant man to do business with. With him will be associated as one of the directors of the bank, Mr. W. T. Bradford, of Detroit, for six years deputy banking commissioner of the state. Mr. Bradford will remain president of the bank, Mr. Glazier will be vice-president, and besides these two as directors, Mr. Bradford, Mr. Francisco, Mr. W. Blodgett and H. Wirt Newkirk will also serve in that capacity.

This combination will give to the Dexter Savings bank one of the strongest organizations in any town of this size in the state, and it is Mr. Glazier's intention to push the business of the bank up to where it should be and not only thereby materially advance the interests of the bank, but also the interests of our village, by having within its corporate limits an institution with the financial backing this will have.

Mr. Birkett has made the bank a paying venture during the twelve years of his presidency, and there is no reason why its prosperity should not continue under the new management. We wish it all possible success.—Dexter Leader.

FREDERICK G. WIDMEYER.

Frederick George Widmeyer was born in Lima July 24, 1866, and passed away at his home in that township Monday morning, September 18, 1905, aged 39 years, 1 month and 24 days.

The deceased was united in marriage with Fredericka Schable, of Manchester, January 5, 1888, to whom were born seven children. He is survived by the widow, six children, his aged father, John Widmeyer, of Ann Arbor, and one brother, Albert, of Sharon.

The funeral was held from his late home Wednesday afternoon, at one o'clock and a large number of relatives and friends were present. Rev. A. A. Schoen, pastor of St. Paul's church, Chelsea officiating. Interment at Jerusalem cemetery.

Rushes for Matting.

In all the marshes surrounding the great lakes there is to be found a rush, the Juncus Littoralis, variety of Balanus, which may yet be found to have a value sufficient to make it an important item in the resources of the lake region.

It is believed this rush, which has a straight, round, fibrous stem, with small bunches of brown seeds at the top, can be utilized in the weaving of matting sold so extensively in this country. The rush attains, under favorable conditions, a height of 45 to 60 inches, and its exceedingly tough fiber, together with the fact that even the tallest growths are exceedingly slender, give it its value.

The department of agriculture at Washington is planning to make extensive experiments in the use of this rush for weaving into matting, and has sent out requests for quantities of the plant, the stalks to be not less than 43 inches long, and a representative of the department is gathering some samples along the marshes of Saginaw bay, where it grows in great profusion.

Change in Tawas Bay.

"Tawas bay will, before many years, have become an inland lake." This is the opinion of men who have been engaged in making a canal survey for the state, and conditions would seem to back up their opinion.

In 1896 the Tawas bay lighthouse stood almost at the outer end of the point. Today the point extends over half a mile out beyond the lighthouse, and for some time past the government has been obliged to maintain a fog signal three-quarters of a mile from the light to warn mariners off the shoals forming there. The point extends almost directly across the mouth of the bay, which in a short time, as time is reckoned in such matters, will have become a lake.

A Terrible Struggle.

For fifteen minutes Mrs. Cornelius Hages, a farmer's wife, living eight miles east of Bay City, fought for her life with an enraged heifer. All that time she clung to the animal's horns and was borne around and around an enclosure in which the animal was confined and which the woman had entered to look for eggs. The prong of one horn entered Mrs. Hages' thigh near its juncture with the body and she was cut and bruised in numerous places. Her clothing was practically all torn from her body.

Watching her opportunity the woman dropped as the animal was poised the opening in the enclosure and escaped into the house.

Used Public Funds.

Alleging that David E. Sherrick, auditor of state, is guilty of "a plain and inexcusable violation of the law and a gross betrayal of public trust" in that he invested funds belonging to the state in private affairs, to the extent of about $145,000. Gov. Hanly, of Indiana, issued an executive order, in which he took cognizance of a vacancy in the office and appointed Warren Bigler, of Wabash, as his successor.

Later Sherrick sent his resignation to Gov. Hanly, who accepted it and entered an order appointing Warren Bigler, of Wabash, to the office of state auditor. Bigler accepted by telegraph.

KOMURA IS SICK

BARON KOMURA BELIEVED TO BE DYING IN NEW YORK.

OPPONENTS OF PEACE AT TOKIO PLEADED WITH RESIGNATION OF YOSHIKOWA.

INDICATIONS THAT NORWAY AND SWEDEN MAY YET REACH AN AGREEMENT.

By Slow Poison.

There has been a good deal of quiet talk in Japanese circles and among physicians over the peculiar features of the illness of Baron Komura and the suggestion made by the party of Japanese in Sioux City, Iowa, that the chief Japanese envoy was, as a matter of fact, deliberately killing himself by slow poison in deference to the public condemnation of the Portsmouth treaty, finds no little credence among the Japanese. One of the leading members of the Japanese colony of New York said:

"It would be perfectly in accord with the code of 'Bushido,' which governs the lives of men of Baron Komura's clan to commit suicide in the situation in which he finds himself. This code recognizes the propriety of any servant of the mikado who fails to accept any task set him, explaining the fault by a self-inflicted death. He is not only justified, but in fact it is his duty. That the fault may have been due to conditions absolutely beyond his control does not affect the situation one way or the other."

Peace is Possible.

The first official announcement at Karlstad indicating that the delegates of Norway and Sweden were approaching an understanding in their effort to establish a modus vivendi for the countries as separate governments, was given out at the close of the joint session of the delegates. This announcement reads:

"The probabilities are that in the near future the negotiations can be brought to a definite result."

This somewhat cryptic announcement is accepted as indicating that the negotiations have finally reached a stage where an agreement is in sight, and that a resort to arms, which might have involved other powers, may safely be considered to be out of the question.

Clears Up the Situation.

The anti-peace party of Tokio is rejoicing over the resignation of Minister of the Interior Viscount Yoshikawa, whose suppression of projected mass meetings was said to be the direct cause of the recent riots and "anti-foreign demonstrations." Baron Kiyoura, minister of agriculture, will succeed to the vacant portfolio.

The resignation of Minister Yoshikawa will obviate the necessity of the proposed interpellation of the government by members of the opposition in the diet, and postpone the expected clash probably until the treaty has been ratified.

Anarchy, Pillage and Plunder.

The latest news received in St. Petersburg from Baku reports that the situation there is growing worse. Other unconfirmed dispatches assert that the rioters are stubbornly continuing their attacks and that the Tatars and Kurds are plundering in the "black town" district. The dispatches say that on Sunday the soldiers fired into a crowd of Russian workmen, killing 17.

A dispatch to the Caucasus Oil Co. from Baku says that the fires in the oil fields are practically exhausted and that the military authorities are stationing guards in the district. During the night, the dispatch says, incendiaries tried to land at Bibibat from small boats, but were driven off by volleys from the Cossacks. They then attacked steamers in which the employees of two oil companies had taken refuge during the uprising but the attack was repulsed.

The incendiaries succeeded in setting fire to three machine shops in the Uolskin district, killing the proprietor of one.

The Oldest Man.

Isaac G. Leonard, said to be the oldest man in Chicago, died at the home of his son, Prof. J. G. Leonard, Wednesday night, at the age of 102 years. Paralysis was the immediate cause of death. Mr. Leonard had measured and made suits for the grandfather of the present czar of Russia. He was born in Germany, Oct. 14, 1803. At the age of 52 he began work in Chicago as a tailor. He was the father of 11 children.

Seven hundred returned Armenian immigrants have been shipped into prison in Turkey to be deported to the United States, according to advices received in Boston. When they reach this side it is expected they will be promptly shipped back again.

FAKE STORY.

THE YARN FROM MINOT, N. D., WAS SIMPLY A LIE.

There is little doubt that the alleged confession of Charles Herzog, at Minot, N. D., is a fake. The man who is alleged to have died and really did die is Arthur Young, a wanderer. He left a note on his body when he committed suicide saying his name was Young and that he formerly lived at Oregon City, Ore. This was printed in the Minot (North Dakota) Optic the same day the story was sent out from that city. A copy of the paper was received in Youngstown, O., containing the story of the suicide, but making no mention of the alleged confession.

The fact that the story was sent out from Minot and that Charles Grow was in that city is fairly good evidence of the source of the story which the newspaper men made use of. Grow is considerable of a joker and probably told the newspaper men of the murder. He sent the paper to a friend in this city.

Worst in History.

The worst accident in the history of New York elevated railroads occurred on Monday. The death list from the accident, which was on the Ninth avenue elevated railroad, when a car crowded with early morning workers on their way down town pitched headlong into the street, stands at twelve. Three men are in hospitals with fractured skulls. One of these, who as yet remains unidentified at Roosevelt hospital, is unconscious and not expected to live. More than two score of persons were injured, many of them seriously.

The cause of the accident and the immediate responsibility remain to be settled. The motorman of the wrecked train is a fugitive, while a switchman, conductor and four guards are under arrest. The switchman is charged with manslaughter and the trainmen are held as witnesses.

NEWS OF THE WORLD

THE ARMISTICE IS NOW A VALID AND SIGNED DOCUMENT.

THE LONG CONFERENCE IN THE FIELD ENDS ALL HOSTILITIES.

THE NEUTRAL ZONE DEFINED AND THE ARMIES WILL REST.

Owing to the variance between Russian and Japanese time and also the fact that the exact spot for the meeting of the Russian and Japanese representatives had not been defined, Major Gen. Ovanovsky, representing Gen. Linevitch, was the last to arrive Wednesday morning at the place for the armistice conference, Gen. Fukushima, representing Field Marshal Oyama, with Col. Tanaka and Capt. Tanaka, two professors of international law, Ariga and Soyzi, and a guard of 50 men had already arrived under a flag of truce.

Ovanovsky and Fukushima dismounted, and in the plain near Shahmout, after an exchange of greetings, the two generals at 10 a. m. began the discussion of the conditions of the armistice, frequently retiring for the purpose of consultation. All the houses on the spot having been destroyed the conference was held in the open, the officers sitting on the grass.

After nine consecutive hours of negotiations the armistice was signed at 7 a. m. It takes effect Sept. 16, agrees to the abolition of all hostile or inimical acts, establishes a neutral zone of four kilometers wide between the two armies, of which Shahmout, on the railroad, is the center. Maps showing the zone are to be exchanged. Only civilians will be allowed within the territory and communication between the armies is to be only by the Shahmout road.

Special naval envoys are to meet near Vladivostok with one ship for each nation to confer and establish an armistice and a neutral zone at sea.

An armistice on the borders of Korea is to be arranged by separate negotiations between the local commanders and on terms similar to those agreed upon in Manchuria.

To Kill Reuters.

According to telegrams received from Belgrade, a plot has been discovered there and at Sofia to foment a general outbreak in the Balkans, with a view of compelling the interference of the powers in the hope that Macedonian autonomy would be proclaimed.

The alleged plot included an intention to assassinate King Peter of Serbia and Prince Ferdinand of Bulgaria. Those engaged in the plot at Sofia have been imprisoned. It is added that the recent attempt to assassinate the sultan of Turkey, in the courtyard of the mosque at Constantinople, is supposed to have been the work of the same organization.

Fierce Threats Made.

Advices from Tokio say that incendiary post-cards have been received at the Tokio foreign office threatening that Baron Komura will be assassinated on his return from America. The Tokio Yomiuri publishes the text of one, which says:

"Baron Komura, our plenipotentiary in America, hearing Russian bluff, has made concession on concession, so the victory of the war is to be vanquished. If this is true we shall take off the heads of Count Katsura and Baron Komura and take suitable steps against their coadjutors."

It is Horrible.

A "holy war" has been proclaimed in the Caucasian districts of Zangezur and Jebraul where Tartars are massacring the Armenians without distinction of sex or age. The country is swarming with bands of Tartars under the leadership of their chiefs. Many thousands of Tartar horsemen have crossed the Perso-Russian frontier and joined the insurgents in destroying Armenian villages.

At the village of Minkend 300 Armenians were slaughtered. Dispatches say that mutilated children were thrown to the dogs and that the few survivors were forced to embrace Islamism in order to save their lives.

BREAKING AN ENGAGEMENT

BY FRANK H. NELSON

Edna came down the path eyeing me rather nervously.

"So we're not engaged?" I demanded.

"My note told you," she said.

"Very gracious of you to grant me this interview," I conceded, with mock ceremoniousness. "But will you do me the particular favor to tell me why we're not engaged?"

There was no answer.

"Isn't your word, and isn't my word worth something?" I demanded, working myself into a very proper passion.

"Maybe they are and maybe they aren't," was the noncommittal reply.

"But when I say we're not engaged, that means we're not," Edna declared, her head in that pretty way tossed her head in that pretty way.

"Oh, it does, does it?" I retorted.

"Well, after all, I never did care so much about the engagement." This wasn't exactly the truth, but I said it as it was.

"It's chiefly the presents of which I was thinking," I added.

"Were there any?" she inquired, with a cutting, yet innocent air.

"There was the—yes, indeed, there was the—" I hesitated. I may say right here that I am naturally uncommunicative.

"Yes, indeed, there was the—" "Go on," she insisted.

"Edna," I entreated desperately, "I hate to throw these things up at you, as it were."

"Don't spare me," she retorted, rather cruelly, I thought.

"Well, then," and I braced myself squarely. "There is the engagement ring." I felt that I had scored a point. "It is a diamond one, too," I added.

"Really?" asked Edna, somewhat incredulously, it seemed to me. "And I suppose you're worrying about the payment of the next installment?"

"Did I ever tell you about its being overdue?" I inquired, and then somehow felt as if I had committed myself.

Edna reached down into an obscure pocket somewhere and fished out the ring. I held it up to the light and examined it closely. "The same," I muttered unganally, heaving an audible sigh of relief. I saw Edna's face flush. This hit had told, and I decided to change the subject before the tables could be reversed.

"And now, miss, would you mind telling me just why you break off the engagement?" I demanded hotly.

"Because," she replied very coldly and clearly, "you are getting $9 a week selling ribbons at Ketchum & Holdum's, and I don't see any prospect of your securing a rise unless you become an aeronaut."

"It's a serious matter and not one to be joked about," I retorted, looking hurt.

"That's where I agree with you," Edna answered flippantly.

"What you say may be true," I put in viciously, "but mighty little you thought of it when you kept leading me on and on to declare myself."

"We must all have our little amusements," replied Edna coolly, "and

"When I say we're not engaged, that means we're not."

that I've been foolish in the past is no reason why I should continue to be so. From now on I've decided to look at things wholly in a sensible light. Don't you remember what I told you Mrs. Blickendorf said?"

"Hang Mrs. Blickendorf!" I exclaimed heatedly.

"Let me remind you," Edna continued unperturbed. "It was that working girl should be mistress of her own destinies as much as the proudest lady in all the land, and that she should marry, when she did marry, to the best possible advantage, and

NEW CURE FOR TIGHT DOORS

Furniture Man Tells How to Open Dresser Drawers that Stick.

"Patrons come to me every day and say that the drawers of dressers and other furniture stick fast and cannot be opened or shut without great difficulty," said the "complaint man" in a down town furniture store. "This is the trouble with much furniture, especially that which is new, and is especially common in the spring."

"What do we do in such cases? We simply tell the customers to wet the surface of a bar of common laundry soap and rub it firmly over the parts of the wood that stick. This makes the surface smooth and slippery, and in nearly all cases the drawer will slide easily, especially after it has been opened and shut a few times."

"This also is valuable with doors which, in new flats, are likely to settle or are apt to scrape at the top as the building settles. Just use soap on them and save the trouble of calling in a carpenter, who will plane the varnish off."

"China cabinet doors, with curved glass, cause a lot of trouble, but most of the tightness can be remedied by the use of soap and a few applications of sand paper."

The furniture man gave another "helpful hint."

"If mission furniture, with the dull finish, loses its smooth surface and characteristic waxy appearance," he said, "do not despair and send it to the renovator. Take a pound cake of common floor wax and rub it over the surface until the finish is restored. If you have no floor wax use beeswax, and if you prefer something made especially for the purpose, you can buy liquid preparations, one of which will remove the old finish, leaving the table top or other object ready for the application of the other substance, which will duplicate the original finish."

Vegetable Millinery.

At the recent unveiling in Ocean Grove of the bronze statue of the late Dr. E. H. Stokes, a Methodist minister said:

"I knew Mr. Stokes well, and one of the things I most admired in him was his simplicity, his modesty, his plainness. He hated affectation and vanity, even in women; and in a good-humored way he would often poke fun at the freakish fashions that come up from time to time in women's dress."

"I remember one summer when the ladies' hats were very large and a great many cherries and beans and grapes and so on covered them. Dr. Stokes went about Ocean Grove telling a hat story."

"He said there came a knock at a man's door one morning, and the man answered it, and then called upstairs to his wife:

"Ann, here is the girl with the vegetables."

"But the wife, coming downstairs hastily, called as she descended:

"Don't be silly. It's my new hat."

The Business Lie.

Our age is great in some ways; it is an age of invention, but, says the Rev. F. R. Keighley of Windsor, it is also an age of invention for the lie of covetousness and self-interest. How numerous in our time have been the charges for fraudulent advertisement? How many thousands more of those falsehoods have gone undetected? Our law courts tell us that this kind of lie stops at nothing; it poisons food, it adulterates army stores, it robs without compunction the very poorest. Many men, who would be ashamed to lie personally, excuse this kind of lie; they say, "It is only a business lie!" only "a trick of the trade." But what is a "business lie" when you come to analyze it? It is just a lie told to make money, and of all lies the liar for money is the most contemptible. I say that there is no lie so dishonorable and dishonoring as the "business lie," and there is no chance of the betterment of our social and commercial life until the lie of self-interest gives way to Christian honesty and honor.

Learning to Wait.

Oh, sweet, baby face at the window, Oh, dear little girl at the gate, You are learning life's hardest lesson, The lesson of learning to wait. And minutes seem hours in passing, While the hours are eons of time. The clock's hands stand still while we wait, The bells have forgotten to chime.

In the Rush of 1950.

The owner of the great dairy was showing a visitor around the plant:

"All these thousands of cows," he said, "are milked by machinery. The milk is conveyed into an immense reservoir, from which it is carried in a minute to all points within fifty miles of here. The system works perfectly, and yet there is one great drawback."

"What is that?" asked the visitor.

"Well, of course, there's no cream to separate. It is impracticable for us to do so. Here, and in this age of the world nobody has time to wait for it to rise."

Protein Proved Profitable

That ready but radical writer "Feed Box" recently blurted out in the columns of the Breeder's Gazette that "nutritive ratio" science and "balanced ration" doctrine was practically humbug and that sensible feeders would do best in the long run to forget all about such "myths" and feed plenty of food and see to it that their hogs have lots of water. The ratio would then take care of itself and "protein" would be no longer a bugaboo to the practical man, who would succeed better than the theorist. But all of this is heresy and dangerous doctrine, although we have no mind to advise the employment of ultra scientific ideas in every-day feeding operations. We contend however that the great principles of animal nutrition taught by scientists, who are likewise practical men, are true; that they must be carried into practice; and that when absolutely ignored or evidently sinned against there will be a corresponding loss of profit in feeding.

No paper has more persistently advocated intelligent use of mixed rations for growing and breeding hogs than the Farmers' Review, and for many years we have claimed that corn is an unsuitable food as an exclusive diet for such animals. Many have criticized what we have said, and hundreds have persisted in continuing the silly and damaging practice of corn stuffing their animals, but now and then appears an article or the record of an experiment which strengthens the hands of those who have preached the gospel of mixed feeding, complete nutrition, protein and ash constituents for young growing, working and breeding animals and have opposed the weakening, sterility-breeding practice of using corn as a well nigh exclusive ration for swine at all stages and ages of life.

Now comes Prof. Skinner, of Purdue University Agricultural Experiment Station, and tells the story of a conclusive experiment in the feeding of several lots of young growing swine upon corn meal with and without added protein. He has fed the corn meal alone which gives a nutritive ratio of 1:13.3; corn meal and middlings, equal quantities of each, giving a nutritive ratio of 1:8; two-thirds corn meal to one-third soy beans, (ground) showing a nutritive ratio of 1:5.1, and five-sixths corn meal to one-sixth digester tankage, showing a nutritive ratio of 1:5.2. Now what say our "all corn" and "no nutritive" ratio advocates as to the probable results from such feeding? They will doubtless be certain that corn meal alone will make a fine showing. If so they will be disappointed, for the report, given in bulletin number 108 of the station mentioned tells us that: Corn meal alone was shown to be a very inefficient producer of pork. Corn meal alone impaired the digestive capacity of the pigs. The longer the pigs were fed on corn alone the more inefficient it became. Corn meal alone produced poor appetites, light bone, deficient development in valuable portions of the carcass and a general state of unthrift as shown by the hair, skin and hungry look of the animals.

The gains on pigs fed under the conditions of the test cost $5.01 per 100 where corn meal alone was used, $2.44 with one-half corn meal and one-half middlings, $3.59 in the lot receiving two-thirds corn meal and one-third soy bean meal, and $3.71 where five-sixths corn meal and one-sixth digester tankage was fed. The pigs fed a ration of one part soy beans to two parts corn produced two and one-half times as much gain in the same time as did those receiving corn only. It required 310.6 pounds of feed per 100 pounds of gain where one-third of the ration was soy beans, while it took 557.1 pounds per 100 pounds gain where corn alone was fed. Corn meal alone produced 183 pounds gain against 402 pounds gain for the soy bean combination, 365 pounds gain for equal parts middlings and corn meal, and 348.5 pounds gain for digester tankage and corn meal mixture. And the great differences were simply due to the fact that the corn meal was balanced by digestible protein. And protein can be grown in the shape of soy beans, clover, alfalfa, oats, barley, rye and wheat, or bought cheaply for some of the money saved by feeding less corn.—A. S. Alexander, in Farmer's Review.

Plant Breeding

One of the most promising developments of modern agriculture consists in plant breeding. It is only recently that we have recognized the fact that in every variety of plants there is a mixture of qualities, some good and some bad, any of which may be made to predominate if we select them with that object in view. Hitherto it has generally been supposed that the things that were in a plant were there to stay for all time, and that there could no change of importance take place. This seemed to be in accordance with the old theory that each plant was distinct in itself and had originated as a distinct genus, and that its qualities were fixed for all time. We have been but slow in shaking off this old fallacy and in acting on the new knowledge that the plant world is continually undergoing a change and that to some extent these changes can be directed and controlled by man. It has been supposed that if a plant was too tender to stand the frost that the only way to use it was to keep it away from the frost; that if a plant was susceptible to rust, the only possible way to save it was to keep it out of the way of rust; that if a plant was subject to mildew, we must fight the mildew. Now we have learned that we can make tender plants hardy, that we can make some resist the rust, and that we can produce others that have such compact textures that the spores that produce the mildew cannot find an entrance. This is not an untried theory, for the theory was established after successful demonstrations. Already wheat are being bred that resist rust, gooseberries that the mildew cannot touch, and even some of the citrus fruits are being grown in regions subject to annual freezes. The breeding of plants opens a new field whose boundaries are unknown to man. Families of plants that it was supposed could not be crossed have actually been crossed within recent years and have produced new and strange kinds of fruits. Combinations that can be made from the varieties now in existence are without number. Many of our best scientists have taken hold of the work of plant breeding, and are obtaining wonderful results. In some of the states it is the wheat plant that is receiving the most attention, in others the corn plant and in others the alfalfa plant, to say nothing of the long list of fruit varieties that are being manipulated in a like manner. Within the next twenty-five years we will see a large number of new varieties of plants brought into agricultural prominence, and some of these may prove of much commercial value. We are now able to wage two separate campaigns against insects and plant diseases, one by the way of repressive measures, and the other by incorporating into the plants the qualities that will make them resistant to the attacks of both disease and insects.

Buying Pigs by Mail

L. E. Frost, in a talk to Missouri swine breeders, said: One great trouble with many buyers of pedigreed live stock on mail order is their hesitancy to pay the price. A buyer writes to Mr. Breeder and asks him to describe and price, we will say three or four different male pigs. He sends a description of one at $25, one at $40, one at $50, and one at $100. The $25 pig is doubtless a good pig, but there is something about the $40 one that makes him worth more, although the general description of the two are about the same. This is true of the $50 and the $100 ones, and the buyer concludes that as they are all about equally well bred, and are all owned by the same breeder, that he will buy the one for $25. If he could have seen them all when he was making the purchase, he might have taken the $40 one, or the $50 one, or even the $100 one, and perhaps is not satisfied on receipt of his animal. I believe that the better plan would have been to have stated exactly what he wanted and asked the breeder at what price he would sell such an animal. If the breeder stated $40, and he thought he could buy one equally as good from some other breeder for $25 he would have the privilege of buying from the latter breeder, but the chances are that the $25 pig would have been worth $25 and the $40 pig $40. I have found it necessary to pay the price if I get the quality. Too many people expect something extra fine for little money, and cannot understand why one breeder will ask $40 to $100 for one small pig, when he can buy the best that his neighbor has for $15 to $20. Buying pedigreed live stock is like every other mercantile business, you must have confidence in the party you deal with, and must frequently allow the seller to influence you in making selection.

Making Cottage Cheese.

Cottage cheese must be properly made to be salable. There are few people that know just how to make cottage cheese that is appetizing. The main fault is that the milk is heated up too much and the curd is hardened. We have seen sour milk heated till it was almost boiling and certainly the temperature was not less than 200 degrees. Curd so made requires a good deal of chewing to be digestible, and then it is not as digestible as properly-made cheese. The temperature reached by the sour milk should be only 90 degrees, and the milk whey should be strained out as soon as the curd shows signs of separating from it. This straining out can be done by putting the whole mass into a cotton cloth and tying up the ends, hanging up to bag so made to drain. The whey itself has some feeding value and may be given to the pigs. Generally 8 to 10 pounds of cottage cheese can be made from 100 pounds of milk. The selling price is ten to fifteen cents a quart. Two pounds equals about one quart of curd.

Grapes and Chestnuts.

Grapes are sometimes served with boiled chestnuts and apples. Arrange the grapes in a fruit dish ornamented with leaves. Put on the shelled chestnuts in warm, not hot, water slightly salted. Bring to a boil and cook fifteen minutes; drain in a colander, stir a spoonful of butter into the chestnuts, tossing in the colander until dry. Pare and slice the apple and serve with the grapes and nuts.

Every Kind of Amusement the Hunter Can Desire.

No visitor to Morocco has ever asked himself what he was to do for entertainment declares William G. Fitz-Gerald in Four-Track News. There is sport of every kind, from wild-boar hunting down to quail-shooting; and further south one may even shoot panthers and hyenas. The lion does not begin until the Atlas mountains are reached. Horses may be hired in Tangier for about a dollar and a half a day, including an American saddle; and for the ladies there are always comfortable mules provided, with any number of Arab and slave servants. The slave market, by the way, is no longer one of the "sights" of Tangier, since Christian influence long ago abolished it. This does not mean, however, that the slave trade is not carried on. Indeed the traveler "in the know" may frequently see an old Arab merchant leading round a negro boy and girl by the ears from door to door, and he will learn that these are all that remain of an enormous slave caravan, obtained by Arab raiders as far south as the Niger and mysterious Timbuctoo, in central Africa.

MARRIAGE A HARD PROBLEM.

How Long Should Man Wait for Psychological Moment?

Marriage is a never-ceasing problem; it is impossible to tell just when the moment of extreme regret will come and the limit of human endurance will be reached. Down in Missouri there is a man who has filed an application for divorce because his wife "called him names" back in 1868. Undoubtedly he has good reason for his delaying taking determined measures. Possibly he felt that the psychological moment had not arrived. Perhaps the enormity of the offense and the knowledge that the law gives him recourse did not immediately present themselves. And it may be that the other woman did not come along until 1905. The average husband is so considerate and tender-hearted that he shrinks from complaining of his domestic lot until the other woman heaves in sight, and it does not take her long to convince him how absurd it is to continue to live with a wife who called him names thirty-seven years ago.—Exchange.

Cause of Ocean Tides.

Tides are caused by the gravitational attraction or pull of the sun and moon upon the water, and upon the earth itself. The moon being so much nearer than the sun, is, of course, the principal cause. When the moon is directly over a given place it pulls the water under it, and thus tends to keep up a tidal wave just under the moon. At the same time it is pulling the earth itself; but it pulls the water more than the earth underneath, simply because the moon is nearer to the water on the surface than it is to the solid earth behind it.

Genius or Fool?

Many curious and slender causes for divorce have been recorded. Here is one of the latest and most curious. During the honeymoon they were walking along the street in Paris, when in front of them they saw a long-haired fellow whose trousers were patched with a piece of newspaper. The husband suggested that the man must be a genius. The wife rather remarked that she thought rather he must be a fool, or he would have used cloth instead of paper. Whereupon they quarreled, and now they are divorced.

Marie Antoinette Fond of Cards.

Marie Antoinette was a slave to cards. On one occasion she played for thirty-six hours at a sitting, with but an intermission of a couple of hours. "The play at the queen's table at Fontainebleau," wrote the Emperor Joseph II, "was like that in a common gambling-house; people of all kinds were there, and mingled without decorum; great scandal was caused by the fact that several of the ladies cheated."

The Pity of It.

A certain lady of wealth, living in the north of Ireland, was recovering from a serious illness and one morning called for an egg, which she ate with much enjoyment. As she passed back the cup and plate to her nurse, she said: "An egg is a delicious thing." Then with much melancholy, "What a pity," she added, "it is so common among the poor."—London Globe.

Information for Jerome Jones.

A carriage driver was taking Mr. and Mrs. Jerome Jones through Central park, New York city, pointing out the features, and finally drove up to the Art Museum, when Mr. Jones, to test his descriptive powers, asked him to explain about the Egyptian obelisk, when the garrulous Hibernian said, "That, sor, is Cleopatra's Needle."—Exchange.

Similarity of Day and Lifetime.

Life for a day is but an epitome of a lifetime. We wake in the morning with no knowledge of where our souls have been wandering while the senses slept; with fresh vigor and interest we enter upon the occupations of our daily work and fulfill our duties with an energy that begins to fail as the evening shadows lengthen; as darkness deepens weariness comes upon us and at last we are glad to lay aside our work and cares and to surrender ourselves to the sleep that spirits our souls back again into the unknown.

THE CAUSE OF PEAR BLIGHT.

For ten years I have grown pears for market and have watched and studied the trees almost daily during that time, and I cannot agree with expert station men and others as to the cause of pear blight. I cannot believe that pear blight is caused by bacteria or that a microbe has anything to do with it. An expert station professor writing in "Country Life in America" recently went so far as to say that the pear blight microbe is in the nectar of the pear blossoms and is carried by bees from flower to flower. I think it is hardly possible for the nectar to be anything but pure when the blossoms open. I think pear blight is caused by conditions of soil and climate. On certain soils and elevations even in Illinois, pear trees are free from blight.

Frank Alkin.

Illinois.

The cause of pear blight is now very well known. There is no question at all of its being a germ disease. The microscope has revealed its character and it has been isolated and examined. The spore of the fungus that causes pear blight is both heavy and sticky and cannot be blown by the wind from one place to another. It used to be supposed that it could be blown from one tree to another and that this would account for the sudden appearance of pear blight after a windy and wet period. The germ of pear blight lives over winter in the live wood adjoining dead wood that has been killed by blight. Insects, especially bees, sip the sap from wounds in infected trees and later visit the tips of trees where small leaves are being formed or blossoms are opening. The spores of the pear blight stick to the limbs of the insects just as pollen sticks to them. When the insects suck the nectar in the flowers, the spores are rubbed off and fall into the flower. From those spores, minute plants of a thread-like character develop. These plants grow through the sap wood and through the leaves and use up the life fluid that should go to feed the leaves. The leaves then wilt and turn color, and we say the tree has been blighted. There is much yet to be learned about pear blight, but the foundation has been well worked out.—Farmers' Review.

Fruit Exhibit at Fairs.

Societies having the control of the fruit exhibit at fairs should see to it that, so far as possible, every variety of fruit grown in the state shall be represented at each exhibition. Managers of agricultural societies should remember that these exhibitions are for the purpose of instruction and for the stimulation of fruit growing. They are not mere gambling devices by which a few men can make as much money as possible out of the premiums. Many of our exhibits are deficient in the number of varieties displayed. Certain orchardists are invited in, and these generally make a display of the fruit they grow themselves. Some of the varieties that are thriving best in the state are not shown at all. The managers of the exhibit could, by a very little work, bring in all the different varieties of fruit being grown in the locality represented by the fair. This should be done even if the management has to buy a few plates of good fruit, of varieties that would not otherwise be represented. The matter of instruction should be made much of, and every variety should be fully designated by lettered or printed labels that are large enough to be read by all. Very frequently the labels on the fruits are very badly written on slips of paper and are placed where they are weighed down by the fruit. This may be satisfactory to the judges, but would hardly do much in instructing the public.

Orchard Cover Crop.

At this season of the year a cover crop may be put into the orchard that has been cultivated, especially if this orchard is in the north. Experiments made with cover crops show that they very materially reduce the distance that the frost enters the ground. In some cases the common vetch has been planted in the orchard in midsummer, and has made a good growth during the fall, covering the orchard with a carpet of green. This plant freezes during the winter, but the carpet it makes reduces the power of the frost to penetrate the ground. In one test in Wisconsin, where the frost went twenty inches without this cover, it went only twelve inches with it. It is too late now to plant alfalfa or clover, but cow peas may yet be sown, as may also winter rye. These will both make a good cover crop by the time frost comes, and will serve the purpose intended. Where orchards have been in sod all the spring and summer, they should not be disturbed in the fall, but the sod should be left as a cover for the roots of the trees during the winter.

The so-called pedigreering of plants is a misnomer, when such plants are not produced from seed. Selection is one thing, but it is not pedigreering. A plant cannot be its own parent.

There should be a label on every package of fruit that is sold in the market showing where and by whom it was grown. This will tend to do away with dishonest pecking.

JOAN OF THE SWORD HAND

By S. R. CROCKETT, Author of "The Raiders"

(Copyright, 1898, 1900, by S. R. Crockett.)

"They have brought him down from the cart. The Cossacks are close about him. They have put all the Courtland men far back."

"The Muscovites are binding the lad to a wooden frame. They have stripped him to the waist."

"Blessed Virgin, they are casting loose the horses! A Cossack with a cruel whip stands by each to lash them to fury! They are slipping the platform from under him. God in heaven! what is that?"

Hitherto the eyes of the great multitude, which on three sides surrounded the place of execution, had been turned inward. But now with one accord they were gazing, not on the terrible preparations which were so near, but on the green tree-studded Alla meads toward a group of horsemen who were approaching at a swift hand-gallop.

Peter the lank giant, was in greater request than ever.

"What do they look at, good Peter—tell us quickly?"

"There is a woman among those who ride—no, two! They are getting near the skirts of the crowd. Men are shouting and throwing up their hands in the air. I cannot tell what for. The soldiers have their hats on the top of their pikes. They are shouting!"

By this time it needed no Peter Alt-maar. The ring was rapidly closing now all about save upon the meadow side, where a lane was kept open. Through this living alley came a knight and a lady—the latter in riding habit and broad velvet cap, the knight with his vizor up, but armed from head to foot, a dozen squires and men-at-arms following a compact little cloud, and as they came they were greeted with the enthusiastic acclaim of all that mighty concourse.

"Prince Conrad—our own Prince Conrad, he has come back, our true prince! We knew he was no priest! Courtland forever! Down with Louis the craven! Down with the Muscovites! The young man shall not die! The princess shall have her sweet heart!"

And as soon as the cavalcade had come within the square the living broke black over all. Then the cries began again. Swords and bare fists were shaken at the grand stand, where white as death Prince Louis still kept his place.

About the center platform whereon the living cross was extended, the crush first grew oppressive and then dangerous.

"Back there—you are killing him! Back, I say!"

Then strong men took staves and halberds, and by force of brawny arms and sharp pricking steel pressed the people back breast high. The smiths who had riveted the wristlets and ankle rings were already busy with their files. The lashings were cast loose from the frames. A hundred hands chafed the white, swollen limbs. At last all was done, and dazed and blinded, but unshaken in his soul, Maurice von Lynar stood tottering upon his feet.

"Lift him up! Lift him up! Let us see him! If he is dead we will slay Prince Louis and crucify the Muscovite in his place!"

"Bah!" another would cry, "Louis is no longer ruler! Conrad is the true prince!"

"Down with the Russ, the Cossack! Where are they? Pursue them! Kill them!"

So ran the fierce shouts and as the rescuers raised the Sparhawk high on their platted hands that all men might see, on the far skirts of the crowd Ivan of Muscovy, with a bitter smile cross-road through all the land of Courtland! And that which I would have done shall not be named beside that which I shall do!"

And he turned and rode after his men, in the midst of whom was Prince Louis, his head twisted in fear and apprehension over his shoulder, and his slack hands scarce able to hold the reins.

After this manner was the Sparhawk rescued from the jaws of death, and thus came Joan of the Sword Hand the second time to Courtland.

But the end was not yet.

CHAPTER XXV.

The Loves of Priest and Wife.

It remains to tell how these great things had come to pass. We must return to the Isle Rugen and to the lonely grange on the spit of sand which separates the Baltic from the waters of the Freshwater Haff.

Many things have happened there since Conrad of Courtland, Cardinal and Archbishop, had awaked to find by his bedside the sleeping girl who was his brother's wife. Storms had overpassed and battles had been won ere these two came riding into Courtland, in time to prevent the dread consummation of the Ukraine Cross and to baulk for the time the vengeance of Prince Wasp.

On Isle Rugen, where the pines grew dense and green, gripping and settling the thin, sandy soil with their prehensile roots, Joan and Conrad found themselves much alone. "Happy Isle Rugen!" said Joan, drawing a breath like a sigh. "Why were we born to princedom, Conrad, you and I?"

"I at least was not," answered her companion. "Dumb Max's jerkin of blue fits me better than any robe royal."

"Conrad," said Joan, suddenly standing erect and looking at the young man, "if I were to tell you that I have resolved never to return to Kernsburg, but to remain here on Isle Rugen, what would you say?"

"I should ask to be your companion—or, if not, your bailiff!" said the prince-bishop promptly.

"That would be to forget your holy office!"

A certain gentle sadness passed over the features of the young man.

"I leave many things undone for the sake of mine office," he said, "but the canons of the church do not forbid poverty, nor yet manual labor."

He paused as if he had more to say.

"Well?" said Joan and waited for him to continue.

"There is something else," he said. "It is—it is—that I cannot bear to leave you! God knows I cannot leave you if I would!"

A wave of pity passed over Joan. A month before she would have withdrawn herself in hot anger. But Isle Rugen had gentled all her ways. But now Joan was coming to her own again. For to pity of Theresa von Lynar she was adding pity for Conrad of Courtland and Joan of Hohenstein.

"Speak," she said, very gently. "Do not be afraid, tell me all that is in your heart!"

Then Conrad spoke in a low voice, very distinct and even in its modulation.

"Listen, my lady Joan! I love you—there is no use in hiding it. Doubtless you have already seen it. I love you so greatly that vows, promises, priesthoods, cardinalates are no more to me than the crying of the seabirds yonder. Let a worthier man than I receive and hold them. They are not for a weak and sinful man. My bishopric let another take. I would rather be your groom, your servant, your lackey, than reign on the seven hills and sit in Holy Peter's chair!"

"You do me too much honor," said Joan quietly. "I am weak and sinful. Or else would I, your brother's wife, listen to such words from any man—least of all from you?"

"Nay," said Conrad, "you only listen out of your great pityfulness. But I am no worthy priest. I will not take upon me the yet greater things for which I am unfitted. I will not sully the holy garments with my earthliness. Conrad of Courtland, bishop and cardinal, died out there among the breakers."

"He will never go to Rome, never kneel at the tombs of the Apostles. He will from this day forth be a servant, a servant of servants in the train of the Duchess Joan."

He paused, almost smiling. The picture of his renunciation had grown real to him even as he spoke. But Joan did not smile. She waited a space to see if he had aught further to say. But he was silent, waiting for her answer.

"Conrad," she said very gently, "that I have listened to you and that I have not been angry may be deadly sin for us both. Yet I cannot be angry. God forgive me! I have tried, and I cannot be angry."

"Yet because you have dispensed holy bread, and I have knelt before the altar as a bride, we must keep faith, you and I. We are bound by our nobility. If we sin, let it be the greater and rarer sin—the sin of the spirit only. Conrad, I love you. Nay, stand still where you are and listen to me, Joan, your brother's wife. For I, too, will clear my soul. I loved you long ere your eyes fell on me. I came as Desmauer's secretary in the city of Courtland. I determined to see the man I was to wed. I saw the prince—"

my prince as I thought, storm through the lists on his white horse. I saw him bare his head and receive the crown of victory. I stood before him, ashamed yet glad, hosed and doublet like a boy in the summer pavilion. I heard his gracious words. I loved my prince, who so soon was to be wholly mine. The months slipped past and I was ever the gladder the faster they went. The woman stirred within the stripling girl. In half a year, in twenty weeks—in five—in one—in a day—an hour, I would put my hand, my life, into his keeping! Then came the glad tumult of the rejoicing folk, the hush of the crowded cathedral. I said, 'Oh, not yet—I will not lift my eyes to my prince, until—' We stopped. I lifted my eyes—and the prince was not my prince!"

There was a long and solemn pause between these two on the old watch-tower. Never was declaration of love returned so given and so taken. She went on.

"Now you know all, Conrad," she said. "Isle Rugen can never more be the Isle of Peace. You and I have shivered the cup of our happiness. We must part. We can never be friends. I must abide because I am a prisoner. You will keep your counsel, promising me to be silent, and together we will contrive a way of escape."

When Conrad answered her his voice was hoarse and broken, almost like one rheumy with sleeping out on a winter's night. His words whirled in his windpipe, flying from treble to bass and back again.

"I would rather be your lackey than reign on the seven hills!"

"Joan, Joan!" he said, and the third time "Joan!" And for the moment he could say no more.

"True love," she said, and her voice was caressing, "you and I are barred from each other. Yet we belong—to you to me—I to you! I will not touch your hand, nor you mine. Not even as we have hitherto done. Let ours be the higher—perhaps deadlier sin—the sin of soul and soul. Do you go back to your office, your electorate, while I stay here to do my duty."

She smiled upon him with a peculiar trustful sweetness and continued: "And once a year, in the autumn, you will come from your high office. You will lay aside the princely scarlet, and don the curt hose and blue jerkin, even as now you stand. You will gather blackberries and help me to preserve them. You will split wood and carry water. Then, when the day is well spent, you and I will walk hither in the high afternoon and tell each other where we stand and all the things that have filled our hearts in the interspace. Thus will we keep trust, you and I—not priest and wife, but man and woman speaking the truth eye to eye without fear and without stain. Do you promise?"

For all answer the prince-cardinal knelt down and taking the hem of her dress he kissed it humbly and reverently.

(To be continued.)

FIRST OF EARTH'S ARCHITECTS.

Principles Laid Down by Greece Not Improved Upon.

Our architecture came in the first place from Greece. Egypt, Assyria, Persia, India and the far east have had but slight influence upon it, compared with that wielded by the small, arid, mountainous country, where nearly 3,000 years ago, men made in the domains of art and thought in vestigations and experiments which are of immediate and direct value to us even to-day, says the Philadelphia Record. One cannot reflect upon this without a feeling of astonishment. It shows us the closeness of our connection with the people of distant ages the community that exists, in spite of seeming differences among the human species on our planet.

A well-conducted experiment performed at one spot on the earth and in one hour of time can be of use to the whole world and through all ages. The Greeks of the fifth and sixth centuries B. C. made such an experiment as this when they thought of a certain form of temple with columns and laid down certain rules for its construction. And we of the twentieth century turn to the subtle-minded Greeks of 2,400 years ago, when we have to deal with a problem in architecture and want to know how to solve it with elegance and precision.

Up All Night.

"The boss asked me what made me look so tired," said Galley, the clerk, "and I told him I was up early this morning."

"Huh!" snorted the bookkeeper, "you never got up early in your life."

"I didn't say I got up," I said. "I was up."

Shade and Shade Trees in the Cow Pasture

Fortunately for the American cow, most American pastures have shade trees. The natural inclination of the farmer is to protect his live stock against the fierce rays of the summer sun. Here and there, however, are to be seen pastures that are entirely destitute of trees. This more often occurs where the pastures form a part of some crop rotation. In such cases the pasture is, for a few years, to be plowed up and put into a plowed field. Trees are obstructions in the way of the plow or any other farm implements used in the cultivation of the ground. It is not surprising, then, that we find in these pastures no evidences of shade or shade trees. We cannot even advise that such pastures be given shade trees. We do, however, believe that all cattle should have tree shade, and if a farmer has a pasture that is in the rotation, he should have auxiliary to the pasture an additional lot where shade trees are possible. We recognize the fact that some scientific farmers are opposed to shade trees in pastures, on what they consider general principles. One Illinois dairy man said some years ago that he had no shade trees in his pasture and did not believe in them. He declared that when there was no shade in pastures the cows would feed more continuously than when given shade. This was because they could find no place where they could escape the hot rays of the sun, and seemed to feel that they might as well be feeding as standing still. He also asserted that the flies were less troublesome in the pasture without shade than in a pasture with shade, as they did not like the sun and the wind. We are happy to say that the other members of the dairymen's convention at which this statement was made, did not agree with him. They said that whether their cows did better or worse, they preferred to see them comfortably reclining in the cool shade on a hot day, rather than sweltering, unprotected, in the full glare of the sun. We believe that there should be shade and shade trees in the pasture. The shelter of the barn is not sufficient, as it does not permit the free passage of air. The tree is the ideal shade maker, as it allows free passage of the breeze and is continually throwing off through its leaves large quantities of moisture. The vicinity of a grove is cooler than is the unprotected plain.—John Stinson, Bureau Co., Ill., in Farmers' Review.

Queer Habits of Penguins

Members of the recent Scottish expedition to the antarctic gathered some interesting information regarding penguins. In the far south beyond the pack ice they came upon the rookeries. It was found that the birds had been hatched in August during the period of the greatest cold and complete darkness. As soon as they are hatched the young literally live on the feet of the old birds and are thus protected from the cold. When they are a little older the chicks are herded in great colonies, their life illustrating in a very ruthless way the principle of the survival of the fittest. The colonies are left to be shepherded by two or three old birds, while the rest of the parents go to seek crustaceans in the cracks of the ice. Each parent as it returns is usually unable to find its own young, since it is mobbed at sight by the more vigorous birds, and, finally, obliged to disgorge the food to the more persistent. All the feeble chicks thus die of starvation and are eaten by the gulls.

Some of the penguins weigh as much as eighty pounds and are about four feet high, with a splendid orange patch on the neck. The young take three years to develop fully, and even then the plumage is distinctly less brilliant than in the older birds. Both the movements and migration of the penguins are remarkable. When first followed the bird prefers to walk, but when in danger of being caught it drops on to its abdomen, and, with the help of the wings, glissades at a pace too great to be overtaken by a man walking. They seem aware of the movements of the great ice field and use them to help their migration to the pack ice in the north. They take trouble to collect stones—which they delight to steal from one another's piles—for nests.

Many of the ways of the penguins are suggestive of preserved instincts. Their attitude when sleeping is modeled on that of birds with fully developed wings. But the penguin has to be content with reaching the shelter of its wing with no more than the tip of its beak.

Attractive Country Schools

Make the school room attractive for the child. Beauty awakens ideals, and ideals arouse ambitions. An ambitious boy or girl will study harder and work faster than the boy or girl without ambition, because they are working toward a goal and expect to reach it. A pretty, attractive school room is an inspiration in itself, and helps to create a hopeful, cheerful spirit in teacher as well as pupil.

Many country districts are careless about the condition of their schools. The people are so busy looking after the varied interests of the farm that they forget to think of the interests of the school. Educators judge the progress of a community in city or town by the advancement of their schools, and this is true of the country districts also.

Make your schools of the best. There is no reason why the country schools should not be as good in every way as the city schools. Some of them are, but too many are not. The best citizen is the educated citizen, just as the best farmer is that one who is most progressive and up-to-date in his farming. Surroundings count. A run down farm usually means a poor farmer, and you do not expect to find a good school in a dilapidated old school house.

Have a good building and well-kept grounds. See that pictures are on the walls, and flowers growing in the windows. Pay a good teacher a good salary, and reap the reward of an added interest and pride in the school by the whole community, not forgetting that the most important work you will ever do in the world is this—to see that your children have the advantages of as good an education as it is possible for you to give them.—Mrs. Gertrude Thurston.

Autumn Jellies

The most popular autumn jellies are quince, grape and wild plum. The method of making jellies is practically the same for all fruits. Measure the juice and boil it moderately for twenty minutes, then add one pint of heated granulated sugar for each pint of juice. After the sugar has dissolved and the jelly just starts to boil, pour it into tumblers, placing a silver spoon in each to prevent cracking. Better results are secured by making jelly in small quantities at one boiling. Do not try to make more than one quart at a time. It is useless to keep skimming throughout the entire boiling. But one skimming is necessary and do that just before the jelly is poured into the glasses.

To make quince jelly use an equal quantity of tart apples. Without them it is likely you will have trouble in getting your fruit to jelly. They also give the quince a more delicate flavor and the jelly a prettier color. Cover the quinces with water, boil until soft, mash and strain. The apples will require less cooking and may be cooked separately and the juice added after it is strained.

For grape jelly use fruit under-ripe. Cover it with water and boil until soft. Mash with a potato masher, taking care that each grape is crushed. Turn into a jelly bag and let it drain for several hours or over night. Then finish with sugar as given above. To obtain the juice from plums, cover them with cold water, bring slowly to a boil, cook to a soft mass, and strain.

Apple jelly is not so much of a favorite as it often proves tasteless, but if flavored with lemon it is very palatable. Pare the fruit, cut into small pieces and cover with cold water. Add the peel of one lemon and boil down to one-half. Strain, allow one pound of sugar and the juice of one lemon to each pint of juice, boil, skim and mold it.—Mrs. Esty.

The Care of Metal Beds.

Metal beds are coming more and more into favor, chiefly because of their cleanliness. It is in the wooden beds that bedbugs make their breeding places, for wood is their favorite home. So it is quite an easy matter to keep the metal bed free from all suspicion of vermin. There is another difficulty which the metal bed presents, however, and that is to keep it brightly polished. In the selection it should be chosen with an eye to keeping bright. Real brass should not be in the first place, but the metal trimmings on the enameled beds are the first to tarnish and show wear. Take notice that the trimmings are carefully finished when you are purchasing the bed. Even though the well-finished is more expensive it will be a better investment in the satisfaction and longer wear which it will give. Enameled beds can be painted at home with very little trouble and expense, so there is no reason why they should remain shabby. Very often, however, the bed needs a washing more than it does a coat of paint. Soap and warm water with plenty of clean, soft rags, is all that is necessary for the work.—S. O. Osgood.

Interesting Pets.

Few household pets are so interesting and give so little trouble as those which Miss Baden-Powell, sister of the general of South African fame, keeps in her London drawing-room. These are none other than a swarm of bees living in a hive which Miss Baden-Powell has designed for their special use. In it the observer can watch the laying of the eggs by the queen bee, the rearing of the young and all the other wonderful activities of the insect commonwealth. Through a little aperture in the wall the bees find their way to the outer world, where they seem to have no difficulty in finding food for honey. Miss Baden-Powell also keeps a family of canaries in a fit tree on a stairway. The birds have the range of the whole house, but will immediately fly out of the room when told that they are not wanted.

GOOD WORK OF SCIENTISTS.

Immense Sums Saved Through Bureau of Entomology.

Great sums are saved for the agriculturists of this country by the efforts of the government bureau of entomology toward the extermination of insect pests. The cotton worm before it was studied and the method of controlling it by the use of arsenicals was made common knowledge, levied in bad years a tax of $30,000,000 on the cotton crop. The prevention of less from the Hessian fly, due to the knowledge of proper seasons for planting wheat, and other direct and cultural methods, results in the saving of wheat to the farm value of from $100,000,000 to $200,000,000 annually. Careful statistics show that the damage from the codling moth to the apple is limited two-thirds by the adoption of control, representing a saving of from $15,000,000 to $20,000,000 in the value. The rotation of corn with oats or other crops saves the corn crop from the attacks of the root worm to the extent of perhaps $100,000,000 annually in the chief corn-producing regions of the Mississippi valley. The cultural system of controlling the boll weevil saves the farmers of Texas many millions of dollars.

Sense of Traffic.

Every town dweller, says the Lancet, should cultivate his "sense of traffic." At first this means that he will take every step in a crowded thoroughfare with a reasoned consciousness. He will never think of his business or his pleasure while he is in the street, but only of the way in which he is going, of what is before him, of what is on either side of him, and of what he is leaving behind him. At every crossing he will settle his course, so to speak, and look out for dangers from every point of the compass. After every few weeks of this careful self-regulation he will develop the "sense of traffic." Without knowing it, he will see and hear and realize all that moves about him. Street accidents occur to those who have no "sense of traffic."

Dawes Could Think Them Out.

The Hon. H. L. Dawes in his young manhood was an indifferent speaker. Participating in a law case, soon after his admission to the bar, before a North Adams justice of the peace, Dawes was opposed by an older attorney whose eloquence attracted a large crowd that packed the courtroom.

The justice was freely perspiring, and, drawing off his coat in the midst of the lawyer's eloquent address, he said:

"Mr. Attorney, supposing you sit down and let Dawes begin to speak. I want to think out this crowd."—Boston Herald.

Giant Had Healthy Appetite.

A Ghirgese giant who had been on exhibition in Hamburg was found on the streets of that city in a starving condition. Some people took him to a restaurant, where he ate three plates of beef soup, four pounds of beefsteak, three portions of ham and eggs, two heaped up plates of potatoes and cabbage and fourteen apple tarts, the whole washed down with six pints of beer.

By means of glass-bottomed boats it has been discovered that the bottom of Monterey bay, Cal., is a beautiful submarine forest of sea oranges, green ribbons, horse tail, sea pommies, etc. Some of the plants are thirty feet in height.

HONEST PHYSICIAN.

Works with Himself First. It is a mistake to assume that physicians are always skeptical as to the curative properties of anything else than drugs.

Indeed, the best doctors are those who seek to heal with as little use of drugs as possible and by the use of correct food and drink. A physician writes from Calif. to tell how he made a well man of himself with Nature's remedy:

"Before I came from Europe, where I was born," he says, "it was my custom to take coffee with milk (cane milk) with my morning meal, a small cup (cane milk) after my dinner and two or three additional small cups at my club during the evening."

"In time nervous symptoms developed, with pains in the cardiac region, and accompanied by great depression of spirits, dependency—in brief, 'the blues!' I at first tried medicines, but got no relief and at last realized that all my troubles were caused by coffee. I thereupon quit its use forthwith, substituting English Breakfast Tea."

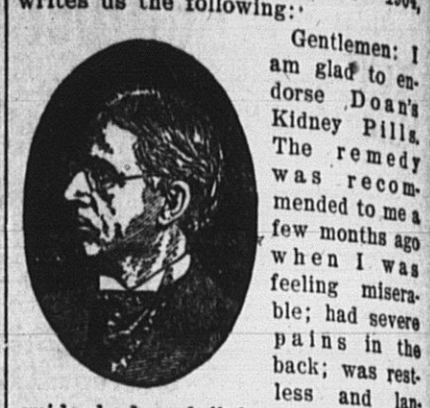

"The tea seemed to help me at first, but in time the old distressing symptoms returned, and I quit it also, and tried to use milk for my table beverage. This I was compelled however to abandon speedily, for while it relieved the nervousness somewhat, it brought on constipation. Then by a happy inspiration I was led to try the Postum Food Coffee. This was some months ago and I still use it. I am no longer nervous, nor do I suffer from the pains about the heart, while my 'blues' have left me and life is bright to me once more. I know that leaving off coffee and using Postum healed me, and I make it a rule to advise my patients to use it." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

Lost Pigmies.

A problem which perplexed the last generation was the long extinct pigmy race which centuries ago undoubtedly inhabited the Tennessee mountains. Legends among the Indians told of such a tribe of dwarfs, who were supposed to be of more intelligence than the red men. But these legends were very hazy. A burning ground, however, actually was discovered in the early part of the last century in which all the skeletons were carried away to college museums. But as far as known no scientific inquiry has ever been directed to this question.

GOOD BLOOD FOR BAD

Rheumatism and Other Blood Diseases are Cured by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills.

"In the lead mines I was at work on my knees with my elbows pressed against rock walls, in dampness and extremes of cold," said Mr. J. C. Meukel, of 2973 Jacobus street, Dubuque, Iowa, in describing his experience to a reporter, "and it is not surprising that I contracted rheumatism. For three years I had attacks affecting the joints of my ankles, knees and elbows. My ankles and knees became so swollen I could scarcely walk on uneven ground and a little pressure from a stone under my feet would cause me so much pain that I would nearly sink down. I was often obliged to lie in bed for several days at a time. My friends who were similarly troubled, were getting no relief from doctors and I did not feel encouraged to throw money away for nothing. By chance I read the story of Robert Yates, of the Klauer Manufacturing Co., of Dubuque, who had a very bad case of rheumatism. I decided to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People, the remedy he had used. In three or four weeks after beginning to use the pills, I was much better and in three months I was well. The swelling of the joints and the tenderness disappeared, I could walk steadily and for eight years I have had no return of the trouble. My whole family believe in Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. Both my sons use them. We consider them a household remedy that we are sure about."

What Dr. Williams' Pink Pills did for Mr. Meukel they are doing for hundreds of others. Every dose sends galloning through the veins, pure, strong, rich, red blood that strikes straight at the cause of all ill health. The new blood restores regularity, and braces all the organs for their special tasks. HOW TO LIVE LONG.

Some Simple Rules Laid Down by New York Physician.

A famous New York physician, now hale and handsome at 75, sums up his half a century of medical practice and observation in these simple rules of health: Be temperate in all things, in matters of amusement or study as well as in regard to foods and drinks. To be temperate in all things, how- ever, does not imply that one must be a prohibitionist about anything. Don't be afraid to go to sleep, for sleep is the best restorer of wasted energies. Sleep a certain number of hours every night and then remember that a short nap during the day is a safe rejuvenator than a cocktail. Don't worry either about the past or the future. To waste a single hour in the regret- ful past is as senseless as to send good money after that which is ir- revocably lost.—Pittsburg Dispatch.

Smoking a Bad Habit.

In Kalamazoo United States Senator Julius Caesar Burrows is regarded with an awe commensurate with the length of his name, titles, and Wash- ington experience.

Julius Caesar, so the story goes, drops into a cigar stand in one of the hotels and buys a bunch of cigars with great regularity. He is an inveterate smoker. As he stood by the cigar lighter and proceeded to pay the dealer, light his cigar, and stuff the bunch of all day smokers into his pocket at the same time, he chanced to see two old men wearing G. A. R. buttons, who were sitting near by. He nodded his recognition at them.

"John—" Puff! puff! "How are you to-day?" Puff! puff! "Do you smoke?"

Yes, John smoked.

"Jim—" to the other veteran, "do you—" Puff! puff! "Do you smoke?"

Yes, Jim smoked, too. The two vets wet their lips with their tongues ex- pectantly.

Puff! puff!

The senator turned to the clerk with a sad look on his face.

"Smoking is a very bad habit," he observed sagely. Then he grabbed his change, and, puffing vigorously, made for the street.—Detroit Tribune.

A Fair-to-Middling World.

And it's fitted to work and to play in. Se-well-sail right along.

I take this world as it comes. Don't you? Its thorns, here and there, and its flow- ers.

And whether we've sunshine or showers, We can work, we can dream.

For we know that the scheme Is ordained of benevolent powers.

Secretary Hay detested all unne- cessary and wanton falsehood. For the sort of diplomacy that rests essen- tially upon tergiversation he had a most hearty contempt. One of his sayings is famous in the diplomatic world.

It was used of a certain titled Eu- ropean, not now a member of the corps at Washington. "When the count comes to talk to me," said Mr. Hay, "I do not use my wits trying to ascertain whether or not the man is lying. I know he is lying. What I try to find out is why he is telling that particular lie."

CHERUBS GOT MIXED

TOO MANY CHILDREN IN THE "BUNCH."

After Liberal Application of Soft Soap and Warm Water Magnolia Proved She Was Right—But It Didn't Make Much Difference.

"Sorter funny thing happened at my place day before yesterday," said a certain prominent resident of the "Possum Trot, Ark., neighborhood.

"Wife 'lowed she did, that it 'peared to her that the children were makin' considerable more noise than common out in the yard; they were playin' hoss-thief or lynchin', or some 'innocent game that a-way—four or five of 'em figger on bein' deputy sheriffs or something of that sort when they grow up. I said I reckoned the fracas was just about normal; but wife 'lowed—and you know how set women are when they get hold of a notion—she 'lowed, also, that there 'peared somehow to be more of 'em than was customary around there."

"Aw, I reckon not," reckon not," says I, sorter soothingly. "I reckon not."

"But nothin' would do her but we must go out and investigate. The yard did seem to be pretty thickly populated, for a fact, and when they heard us comin' several more children crawled out of the ash-hopper and from under the house and such places; and when we had tallied 'em all up, burghanded if there wasn't nine- teen of 'em, when wife 'lowed—and reckon she knowed—that there ought not to have been more than about fourteen. It shorely looked as if there was a bug under the chip as the sayin' goes, and nothin' would satisfy wife but to find out what was wrong. She added 'em up, and she ciphered 'em out, and there shore was nineteen of 'em, and no mistake about it! I says prob'ly that was right, after all, but wife wouldn't hear to it. She stuck and hung—and, as I said before, you know how women are that a-way—that there was too much liberality, as it were, in the census roll."

"She was a good deal aggravated about it, too, and the upshot of the matter was that she took soft soap and warm water and washed the faces of every last one of them children. And, behold you, when the operation was over, dinged if it didn't prove that wife had been right all the time, as she 'most generally is. In the pack was two children of Lab Juckett's and one of Tut Springer's, or two of Tut's and one of Lab's—I fergit which, now—and two more that wouldn't tell where they belonged. Two of the extra layout had ben livin' at our place for three days or so, another did not 'pear to know when he'd come there, and them two contrary children that wouldn't tell where they came from got their backs up and refused to say how long they had been with us. And in the case of all of 'em, none of their folks had made any signs of havin' missed 'em."—Tom Watson's magazine.

Flea Is Agile.

Although the flea holds the record for agility of movement among the in- sects and is capable of a speed of nearly ten miles an hour, could it con- tinue jumping without cessation and without tiring, it has little the better of the jumping mouse found in the African deserts, which clears ten feet at a jump at the rate of eight hundred feet a second.

A Quaint Saying.

One day an elderly teacher was questioning Dorothy as to her knowl- edge. As Dorothy was only 4, the questions asked were rather deep. The teacher was satisfied, however, when on asking Dorothy what a dream was, the child replied, "Dreams are pic- tures the angels show us when we are asleep."

Brushed Scales from Face Like Powder—Doctor Said Lady Would Be Disfigured for Life—Cuticura Works Wonders.

"I suffered with eczema all over my body. My face was covered; my eye- brows came out. I had tried three doctors, but did not get any better. I then went to another doctor. He thought my face would be marked for life, but my brother-in-law told me to get Cuticura. I washed with Cuticura Soap, applied Cuticura Ointment, and took Cuticura Resolvent as directed. THOUSANDS OF LIVES SAVED

By "Mother's Medicine Chest" and Patent Prescriptions.

Commenting on attacks made by certain eastern publications on some of the best known and most valuable of the world's proprietary medicines, the Committee on Legislation of the Proprietary Association says:

"All through the country districts, in every state of the union, you will find in the farm houses the old family remedies, sometimes called 'patent medicines,' many of which have been in use in the same household for generations. Among such people the old-fashioned proprietary medicine, al- ways at hand with full printed in- structions for use, is one of the neces- sities of life."

"To families in the country many miles from a doctor such remedies are invaluable. 'Mother's medicine chest' has saved many a life and met many a threatening sickness at the thresh- old and turned it out of doors. So far from constituting self-prescription, as is often pretended, acquaintance with the necessity of such a step; for here is a prescription already made up, the effect of which is well known. One of the greatest advantages of such medicine is that its constant for- mula gives it the character of a single drug, so far as uniformity of result is concerned, and the people who use it know from experience just what they can count on—which is more than can be said of many physicians' prescrip- tions frequently obtained at a far greater cost and trouble."

HOW DESDEMONA DIED.

The Curiously Contrived Ending of Shakespeare's Heroine.

The tragic death of Desdemona, ac- cording to the Paris Menestrel, which has recently completed some inter- esting researches among the archives of the Querini family, of which Shak- speare's Othello was a member, really occurred in Crete in the year 1523.

Desdemona, whose name signifies "damsel of the house of demons," met her death, according to this new ver- sion in a singular manner.

Othello had charged his valet with the carrying out of his revenge. The valet accordingly took up a position close to Desdemona's apartment, where he started groaning and shuf- fling with his feet.

Othello thereupon requested his wife to rise and discover the cause of the noise.

As she crossed the threshold a sackful of grass was flung at her head. She fell to the ground, and was then assailed with a succession of similar grass-filled sacks, being finally smothered under the falling ceiling and masonry of the walls, which had been specially loosened at Othello's orders.

MONEY PLENTIFUL.

The recent increase in the amount of the country's circulating medium has certainly been most remarkable. Not only is the bank note circulation now at the highest point ever reached—double what it was six years ago—but in all kinds of currency, except silver in its various shapes, there has been a great gain. The increase in July alone was more than $8,000,000; and since the 1st of July, 1899, the aggregate circulation has grown from $1,500,000,000 to $2,605,000,000. So great an increase more than meets the earlier popular demand for a currency that keeps pace with the population, the per capita circulation now being $31.20, compared with $21.10 nine years ago; it even raises the question whether there is not now too much money. We must take into consideration, however, that as measured by the bank clearings and the production of staple commodities the supply of money has increased no more rapidly, at least, than has the volume of business.

Deafness Cannot Be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces. We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free. F. J. CHENEY & CO., Toledo, O. Sold by Druggists, 75c. Take Hall's Family Pills for constipation.

Snapper Lived Without Head.

A headless snapper, caught near Ferndale, Pa., has raised a question among the people of that section as to how long a turtle can live without a head in its native element, and the question is being debated at every meeting of the fishermen. According to a resident and a fisherman of the locality, the turtle had been seen in the dam at least three years after it had lost its head. The neck showed that the wound had long been healed.

Infantry boys located at Fort Wayne, have been here since Saturday making a map of all the highways leading out of Saline, showing all bridges, narrow places, streams, patches of timber, etc. The drawing is to be a war map to aid cavalry should it ever be found necessary to send such into this section.—Saline Observer.

The fair will open with a banquet and Gov. Warner with other prominent men of the state are to be present and deliver addresses.

NEW LANDLORD.

The hotel at Grass Lake has been leased by the Haeble Brewing Co., and the new landlord will be William Fuchs, who is well known in Jackson as just the man for such a position. He formerly had a saloon on E. Main street, and when Wilenski had to move to make way for the new State Savings bank he sold his place to him, and since that time has been in a grocery store.—Jackson Citizen.

AFTER TOOLS.

Two expert oil well drillers are at work at the well owned by the Banner Oil & Gas Co. of Ypsilanti in an effort to recover the tools lost in the well a year ago. They have been at work about a week, but have not made much progress yet, although Tuesday the top set of tools was broken loose and started but the rope broke and the tools dropped again. The tools in the well are valued at $500 and if the effort to recover them is successful it is probable the company will start drilling again on the well.

WAGES FIXED.
The board of arbitration in the matter of the wage differences between the D. Y. A. A. & J. road and their employees rendered its decision Wednesday, fixing the wage scale at 23 1/2 cents per hour. This is not a victory for either side as the men contended for an advance to 25 cents, while the company wished to retain the old scale which was a sliding one, the men receiving from 18 to 23 1/2 cents per hour according to length of time they had been employed.

FIRST OF RECORD.

The estate of Geo. W. Noyes was the first of record in the probate office of this county and was entered in April, 1898, and this morning the estate of Edward Lavender of Northfield was entered and numbered 10,000, indicating that in the 77 years a vast amount of work has gone through the office. A conservative estimate places the average of estates at $4,000 showing that something like forty millions of dollars have been involved in the settlements. As indicating that the practice in handling cases has undergone changes the final account shows that the funeral expenses were $9.00, the appraisers were paid $3.00 and 62 1/2 cents were frequently charged for posting books and doing other similar work.—Times.

Like Finding Money.

Finding health is like finding money—so think those who are sick. When you have a cough, cold, sore throat, or chest irritation, better act promptly like W. C. Barber, of Sandy Level, Va. He says: "I had a terrible chest trouble, caused by smoke and coal dust on my lungs; but, after finding no relief in other remedies, I was cured by Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, Coughs and Colds." Greatest sale of any cough or lung medicine in the world. At Bank Drug Store; 50c and $1.00; guaranteed. Trial bottle free.

For forty years Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry has been curing summer complaint, dysentery, diarrhoea, bloody flux, pain in the stomach, and it has never yet failed to do everything claimed for it.

DANGER IN DELAY.

Kidney diseases are too dangerous for people to neglect.

The great danger of kidney troubles is that they get a firm hold before the sufferer recognizes them. Health is gradually undermined, headache, nervousness, lameness, soreness, lumbago, urinary troubles, dropsy, diabetes and Bright's disease follow in merciless succession. Don't neglect your kidneys. Cure the kidneys with the certain and safe remedy, Doan's Kidney Pills.

H. W. Garrison, of 1121 Shiawassee street, Owosso, Mich., retired farmer, says: "For many years I suffered severely with my kidneys, the pains at times being frequently so severe I could scarcely get up or down from a chair. The kidney secretions were irregular, distressing and annoying. I had also spells of dizziness and had to hold on to something to keep from falling. I saw Doan's Kidney Pills advertised and procuring a box I used it. I felt benefited after a few doses. My wife was relieved of similar trouble by their use and we cannot speak in too high praise of this valuable preparation."

Iron-Ox Tablets
The Awful Curse of Constipation
How Mr. Samuel Evans cured himself and his family

Some acquire the awful curse of constipation through neglect and some get this dread disease from constitutional weakness, wrong feeding, and lack of exercise. In either case, this distressing condition can be broken up and the bowels educated to healthy action by the use of Iron-Ox Tablets.

Mr. Samuel Evans struggled for years with Constipation and has at last found a way to break it up once and for all. He tells his story gladly, so that the whole world may know how to rid themselves of this disease which causes so much suffering and death.

"I find the Tablets a splendid help for Constipation. My three children aged 14, 9 and 3 1/2 years get a Tablet every morning after their first meal of the day, and I myself use them twice a day. As long as I am around Iron-Ox Tablets will be part and parcel of our daily requisites." Mr. Samuel Evans, 373 W. 126th Street, New York, N. Y.

Do not forget for a moment that Constipation is a DISEASE, and a disease that grows on one, at first slowly, then rapidly, when allowed to go unchecked. The bowels must be cleaned out once a day, or the poisons that accumulate will surely drag the body down to lingering sickness and death.

If you are occasionally constipated, act promptly. Iron-Ox Tablets will move the bowels easily and fully, without inconvenience or pain.

If you suffer from habitual or chronic Constipation, it will take a little more time and patience to affect a complete cure, but the cure will be none the less sure.

Act promptly if you are constipated; buy a box of Iron-Ox Tablets to-day.

50 Iron-Ox Tablets in a handy aluminum pocket case 25c at your druggist's, or sent postpaid on receipt of price by The Iron-Ox Remedy Co., Detroit, Mich.

Neuralgia And Other Pain.

Iron-Ox Tablets
The Awful Curse of Constipation
How Mr. Samuel Evans cured himself and his family

Some acquire the awful curse of constipation through neglect and some get this dread disease from constitutional weakness, wrong feeding, and lack of exercise. In either case, this distressing condition can be broken up and the bowels educated to healthy action by the use of Iron-Ox Tablets.

Mr. Samuel Evans struggled for years with Constipation and has at last found a way to break it up once and for all. He tells his story gladly, so that the whole world may know how to rid themselves of this disease which causes so much suffering and death.

"I find the Tablets a splendid help for Constipation. My three children aged 14, 9 and 3 1/2 years get a Tablet every morning after their first meal of the day, and I myself use them twice a day. As long as I am around Iron-Ox Tablets will be part and parcel of our daily requisites." Mr. Samuel Evans, 373 W. 126th Street, New York, N. Y.

Do not forget for a moment that Constipation is a DISEASE, and a disease that grows on one, at first slowly, then rapidly, when allowed to go unchecked. The bowels must be cleaned out once a day, or the poisons that accumulate will surely drag the body down to lingering sickness and death.

If you are occasionally constipated, act promptly. Iron-Ox Tablets will move the bowels easily and fully, without inconvenience or pain.

If you suffer from habitual or chronic Constipation, it will take a little more time and patience to affect a complete cure, but the cure will be none the less sure.

Act promptly if you are constipated; buy a box of Iron-Ox Tablets to-day.
