MORE ROOM NEEDED

For Accommodation of Scholars of the Third and Sixth Grades.

Attendance at the public schools of Chelsea is considerably increased this year, particularly in the third and sixth grades, which are so overcrowded that it has become necessary to secure extra accommodations for them.

To do this the large frame building in the school yard which has been used as a storehouse is to be converted into a schoolroom. The building will be sheeted on the inside and lined with building paper and then ceiled up, so as to make it warm and comfortable. A new floor will be laid and windows will be fitted into the building so as to furnish plenty of light. When completed it will furnish a schoolroom 18 x 36 in size which will be occupied by the third grade.

The partition between the present third and sixth grade rooms is to be removed and the whole space thrown into one room which will then afford plenty of accommodation for the sixth grade.

REPORT OF JAIL INSPECTORS

Shows the County Bastille to Be in Good Condition.

E. E. Leland, judge of probate, R. J. Fletcher, H. B. Masten and Jas. Taylor, superintendents of the poor, and W. J. Childs, county agent for juvenile offenders, who comprise the board of jail inspectors, have filed their semi-annual report with the county clerk.

The report shows that during the past six months 544 prisoners have been confined in the county jail. They were charged with the following offenses: Drunk, 306; drunk and tippler, 1; disorderly, 130; vagrancy, 52; assault and battery, 4; attempt to break jail, 1; burglary, 1; desertion, 1; carrying concealed weapons, 1; disturbing the peace, 1; forgery, 1; insane, 5; embezzlement, 2; indecent language, 4; juvenile disorderly, 5; larceny, 11; petty larceny, 2; lewd and lascivious co-habitation, 2; prostitutes, 4; non-support, 3; resisting officer, 1; rape, 2; violation of school law, 1.

There are now ten males and one female confined in jail of which six are waiting trial and five serving sentence.

The inspectors report the bedding "good enough," the cells "good," halls "good" and closets "clean." They recommend a new floor in the kitchen of the dwelling part of the jail; that the cell floor be repaired; that the back part of the jail be painted same as front of jail.

W. W. U. FARMERS' CLUB

Had a Pleasant and Enthusiastic Meeting Friday.

The September meeting of the Western Washtenaw Farmers' Club held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Herman Fletcher Friday, Sept. 22, was well attended and was a most enthusiastic meeting. The usual excellent dinner was served at noon and the two long tables had to be set twice to accommodate the party. After a season of visiting the meeting was called to order by Rev. E. E. Caster, who was requested to preside in the absence of the president.

After the reading of the minutes and transaction of routine business, prayer was offered by Rev. G. W. Gordon. Then followed a selection on the graphophone in charge of Charles Morse, which also dispensed music at different period during the afternoon.

"Current Events" was opened by Rev. P. M. McKay, who spoke of the need of reformation in political conditions and the life insurance question.

T. E. Wood spoke of the system of graft that prevails in all the walks of life.

Rev. E. E. Caster spoke of the old saying that every man has his price and illustrated it with a good story. He said it was dangerous ground to travel on.

Rev. G. W. Gordon spoke of the public school system and the fact that teachers who have merit frequently find it hard to obtain the recognition due them unless they have the "pull," which teachers who are not as well equipped as they are, possess. "But," he said, "the people are beginning to be heard and will not endure such a condition of affairs forever." He also spoke briefly on the benefits of life insurance.

Truman Baldwin was not a believer in life insurance and T. E. Wood took an opposite stand to Mr. Baldwin.

Miss Helene Steinbach played a piano solo in fine style and Mrs. Roland B. Waltrous gave a good recitation.

The question, "Is so-called house cleaning carried to excess?" was presented in a short but excellent paper by Mrs. Herman Fletcher. Silence gave consent to the correctness of her ideas as there was no discussion.

Mrs. Fred Gentner gave a select reading which was well received and Rev. E. E. Caster briefly alluded to the pleasant times he and Mrs. Caster had had at the meetings of the club and although the prospects were that he would be leaving Chelsea he hoped they would meet with the club on some future occasions.

The meeting closed by singing "America."

Lord Minto's Fine Home

(Special Correspondence.)

The origin of the Elliotts, the name-stock of the Earls of Minto, is hidden in the mists of antiquity. Their fame stands secure as Border reivers, whose warlike song, "Wha daur meddle wi' me?" yet stirs the imagination as in the years of long ago it roused the clansmen to the gathering of "Little Jock Elliot." The first Elliot came over to Britain with William the Conqueror. He spelled his name Elliot, and the orthography of his descendants was as weak; we read of Aelwold, Dalliot, Elliot, Elewald, Elyoth, Elnwand, and, mayhap, fifty other different settings are we come to Elliot.

The present Minto House was built during the lifetime of the fourth Sir Gilbert Elliot, who for his service as governor general of Bengal, was created first Earl of Minto. It was finished during his seven years' absence in India. He never lived to see it.

An Interesting Dwelling.
Minto is situated on the north side of Teviotdale, in the midst of a district steeped with historical glamor; Branksome Tower and Goldielands lie up the water, Aneurim Moor and Jeddart farther down, six miles to the westward is Hawick, and Denholm village, the birthplace of John Leyden, lies at the foot of the dark-browed Rubieslaw, two miles from its door. Surrounded by undulating parks and woodlands, the house lies at the back of Minto Hills; eastward it is belted by the wooded crags of Minto; southward the braes ripple into Teviotdale, and then rise to "Cheviot mountains blue."

It is cool in the wainscoted hall where dark beams cross and re-cross the white plaster ceiling. The Minto arms are carved on the high mantelshelf. An Elliot's portrait looks down from above a heavily carved Flemish cabinet. The flagstaffs and colors of the Border regiments that were raised to oppose Napoleon's threatened invasion in 1813 flank each side of the doorway into the inner hall; Jeddart staves and lances hang crossed behind targets and shields on the wall. From the front hall we turn to the left, through the north ante-room, where "gran'mother" chairs and Chippendale settees are covered with old gold brocade, and a golden eagle keeps watch above the latticed bookshelves.

The roof of the dining room is white Gesso work with molded garlands of wheat and pomegranates. There are wheat ears and ivy carved on the granite jambs of the fireplace, and above them hangs Grant's life-size painting of the second Earl of Minto.

Lord Minto's Library.
Underneath is the Terrace library, low-roofed and paneled, lined with books, with low-silled windows opening to the green grass outside. From the south ante-room where hangs a portrait of Scott, by Raeburn, we pass into the drawing room. Among the pictures hang two cases of the Minto miniatures. These miniatures—many of them are set in pearls and precious stones—number over 100. Among them is a portrait of Marie Antoinette, which was given by Mirabeau to the first Lord Minto; another is of Napoleon; a third is of Queen Caroline, who gave it to Hugh Elliot when he acted as ambassador at Naples.

The Earl of Minto.
The paneling of Lord Minto's study is part of the paneling of the old Law Courts, Westminster. The oak pillars at the fireplace are wreathed with carved boughs of fruit. Low carved bookcases are on each side of this fireplace. Above the left-hand bookcase is a painting of Lord Nelson, taken from life at Dundee for Hugh Elliot. Before it lies a cutlass from the Battle of Copenhagen, and the captain's sword of one of the battle-ships boarded and taken by Nelson at Cape St. Vincent, 1797. Nelson gave his sword to a Lord Minto after the battle.

The quaint ceiling of dark-grained wood is outlined with bamboo. In one cabinet is a collection of carved ivory figures, another cabinet is inlaid, willow pattern, with mother-of-pearl. Tables are covered with curious weapons and ornaments. In the passage by the door is a rack filled with swords; some from Egyptian battlefields, some from Afghanistan, some from Turkey; the rust-like stains of blood show still on an Afghan blade. Along the passage walls hang bows and arrows, moccasins, boomerangs, long snow-shoes, ice axes; an Indian chief's grand feathered "pow-wow" hangs near two coats of embroidered chamois skin—one Lord Roberts wore in the Afghan campaign, the other was Lord Minto's in the Louis Riel rebellion.

A Noted Spot.
Half an hour's walk over the rising parkland and through a wood of great larch trees brings one to the foot of Minto Crags, to "where Barnhill hew'd his bed of flint." Barnhill was a noted thief in his day, and these picturesque crags came in handy as his citadel. Worthier men than Barnhill have occupied Fatlings Castle, and as brave eyes as his have gazed out from this rocky perch above the Teviot as the warlike of the lighting of the beacon or the dawning of the day. This peel-tower was destroyed by Hertford in his raid of 1545. It was a ruin until 1851, when the present Earl of Minto's father rebuilt it in a manner as near the old style as possible. Within are four rooms, one above another. The first has been left with its original earthen floor, but the others are lined and roofed with wood; the third room is a museum, the highest an observatory.

At the west end of the corbel-stepped gables on the green sward close to the wall are three cannons. All have been captured by Elliotts. One was recovered in deep water off Pittcairn island by Capt. Russell Elliott; it had belonged to the mutineers of the Bounty. Admiral Elliott won the next in 1760 in a naval action off the Isle of Man; the other was captured by Col. Sir Gilbert Elliot on the parapet of the Redan at Sebastopol. Cannon and rocks and old gray walls! What thrilling tales lie hidden within their keeping.

Bosworth Not Ideal to the Bears.
Attorney Charles W. Bosworth, this city is telling a good story on himself, says the Boston Herald. Mr. Bosworth was the Fourth of July orator at the exercises held at Forest Park this year. Owing perhaps to the fact that the day was very warm, and his audience drowsy, Mr. Bosworth was keenly aware that most of his hearers were not paying much attention to his remarks.

Down in front, however, he noticed two youngsters looking intently at him, and evidently drinking in his every word. In his joy at the interest of these two patriots, he livened up perceptibly, and, speaking directly to the boys, delivered some splendid oratorical phrases in their decoration. Just in the middle of a pause made for the purpose of impressing his youthful hearers with the weight of the sentiments he had just pronounced, he heard one little fellow say to the other: "Oh, h—l, let's go down and see the bears."

Miss Ada Rehan's Many Roles.
Between the years 1874 and 1898 Ada Rehan was seen in more than one hundred and sixty-five roles. These parts differed in their nature as widely as Camille and Nisbe in "A Night Off"; Aoudia in "Around the World in Eighty Days"; and Cordelia in "King Lear." Small wonder that to-day Miss Rehan is the most finished and artistic actress in a country where few "stars" can boast of having appeared in a score of plays during the whole course of their lives. There has not been one season in Miss Rehan's career in which she has confined herself to a single part, and that though failures were far between at Daly's.

Vacant Lots for Playgrounds.
Mayor Rose of Kansas City, Kas., has requested owners of vacant lots in that city to allow children to use them as playgrounds.

A Wholesome Lesson

"Here's a nice place, Mabel," said the elder of two ladies who had just entered the train. "And we'll try to keep it undisturbed, too," she added, proceeding to deposit her shawls, satchels, etc., upon the end of each seat, while the two ladies seated themselves facing each other.

They were evidently mother and daughter, the mother large, portly and fine looking, the daughter a slender, bright-faced little thing, and just as evidently people of "position," marked by all the belongings of wealthy travelers.

Elegantly braided linen ulsters, over suits of black silk, stylish hats, dainty kid gauntlets, Russian leather satchels and shawl straps were their distinguishing marks, besides that indescribable air which stamps its possessor as one used to good society.

"So very warm! Do reach my fan, Mabel!" said Mrs. Glenner. "We have a terrible hot day for our ride!"

"But there is such a nice breeze. I think it will be lovely," retorted bright-eyed Mabel.

"Oh, you're always contented with everything. Dear me, I hope the carriages won't be crowded!"

"They are almost that now, mamma. We have the only vacant seats, I believe."

"And I mean to keep them, too," announced Mrs. Glenner.

At that moment spoke a voice at her elbow.

"Is this seat engaged, madam?"

Mrs. Glenner and Mabel both looked up to see a young lady dressed in a plain, untrimmed linen suit, with a brown veil covering her hat entirely, and shading a plain, homely face.

Her speech was that of a well-bred person, but her exceedingly plain attire stamped her in Mrs. Glenner's eyes as "common folks," not worth an effort to be polite.

She turned to the window and settled herself in her place without seeming to hear, but good-natured Mabel spoke at once:

"Mine isn't. You are welcome to share it."

And notwithstanding the decided frown on her lady-mother's face, she tossed her "traps" over on the pile already beside Mrs. Glenner, and smiled a reply to the young stranger's quiet "Thank you," as she sat down, holding the small satchel she carried in her lap.

"It will tire you. There is plenty of room over here with ours," said Mabel, reaching out her hand toward the satchel.

The young lady placed it upon the seat herself, saying:

"I was afraid it might trouble you."

"Not at all," returned Mabel.

But Mrs. Glenner, with a little accent of spite, addressed her daughter:

"Mabel, don't make yourself over-officious. I wonder how far it is to Hamilton?"

"Don't the table tell you, mamma?"

"No. Only the larger stations are down. Well," with a sigh and a glance at the intruder, "at least we shall be able to select our own society there."

"Mamma, don't!" pleaded Mabel in a low tone, flushing at her mother's rudeness.

"I detect these trains, where every rude person who chooses may intrude upon you," went on Mrs. Glenner, coolly.

Mabel knew there was no telling where her mother would stop once she was on the track, and she noted the flush which overspread the young stranger's face. She quietly changed the subject.

"Do you know Mr. Hamilton's family, mamma?"

"Not the children. Not since they were grown, that is. I saw them when they were little."

"If they are like their noble old father I'm sure I shall like them. I think he is splendid," answered Mabel.

The stranger young lady smiled quietly.

Mrs. Glenner answered:

"I dare say they are. Birth and breeding always show, Mabel. I, for one, could never mistake a person of wealth and culture for a common one."

"Is there only one daughter?" asked Mabel.

"Only one at home, the youngest one, Henrietta. And one son, Richard. I consider it very fortunate that Hamilton invited us to make this visit. Mabel, Richard Hamilton will be very wealthy, and if you play your cards well you know what you may do in the way of a settlement."

"Now, mamma, if you begin to talk that way I do solemnly declare I will take the next train that passes up back home and not go at all!"

Mrs. Glenner knew the girl was quite capable of keeping her word if she was pushed too far, so she said no more, but betook herself to the prospect in view from her window.

train stopped at Hamilton, and several passengers descended, among them Mrs. Glenner and Mabel.

There was a forlorn-looking station, with a dusty little refreshment bar in one corner of a dingy room labelled "Ladies' Room." There were two or three village idlers, with hands in their pockets, promenading up and down the platform, and that was all.

"Why, what does this mean?" fretted Mrs. Glenner. "Mr. Hamilton wrote he would be certain to have the carriage to meet us."

"Perhaps it will be here yet, mamma," said Mabel. "Suppose you ask one of these men if it has been seen."

"I believe I will," and Mrs. Glenner marched majestically up to one of the men aforesaid and inquired:

"Can you tell me whether Mr. Hamilton's carriage has been at the station to-day?"

"Yes'm—no'm—I don't know—there it is a-comin' now," was the slightly incoherent answer.

Turning in the direction of his extended finger she saw a handsome carriage rolling rapidly up.

They waited upon the dreary platform until it drove up and the driver dismounted.

Then he came up the steps and addressed Mrs. Glenner, touching his hat respectfully.

"Ladies for Mr. Hamilton's, madam?"

"Yes. Come, Mabel."

"The carriage is ready, ladies. The spring cart is here already to take your baggage over. Will I take your tickets?"

Mrs. Glenner gave him the tickets for their trunks, and the ready coachman soon had them piled in the light cart which had followed the carriage.

"Now we are ready," declared Mrs. Glenner. But the coachman appeared to be looking for some one else.

"Our young Miss Henrietta went up to town yesterday. We expected her back by this train."

"Here I am, Sam!" called a familiar voice from the door of the ladies' room; and the homely young lady in plain linen, who had shared Mabel's seat, came out of her retreat inside, and approached them.

"My goodness!" was Mrs. Glenner's dismayed ejaculation, as she flushed up to the roots of her hair.

But Mabel sprang forward with extended hand.

"What! are you Henrietta Hamilton? I am so glad!"

"And you are Miss Glenner! I am glad, too!" said the young lady, offering her hand most cordially. "I would have made myself known in the train, but I am always so shy with strangers, and I was not sure who you were till now. Mrs. Glenner, I am very glad to welcome you to Hamilton. I love your daughter already, and I am sure we shall have a delightful visit. Let us go now, Sam is waiting."

This prompt courtesy, so delicately ignoring her own rude behavior in the train, was a greater rebuke to Mrs. Glenner than any show of anger could have been.

For once her ready tongue was at a loss, and she only followed her young hostess to the carriage, silently and with flushed face.

But Henrietta's kindly spirit soon put her at her ease, except when she remembered her mortifying blunder.

It was a wholesome lesson, however. And the next time Mrs. Glenner meets a lady in the train, whether she is robbed like a queen or in plain linen, she will treat her as such, and never judge by appearances.—Woman's Farm Journal.

The Uses of Denim

No inexpensive material better lends itself to dainty, refined and artistic draperies, cushion and table coverings than denim. It is plain and substantial, washes well and takes needle ornamentation admirably. By working simple odd figures or series of lines upon it, with rope-linen of mercerized cotton, the arts and crafts people and their followers have produced some wonderful effects with this material. Any one can use their designs with like results. The work "goes quick" and is a delight to the eye.

The city housewife uses this material extensively, especially for bed-rooms, and it is often used throughout fine summer cottages as a highly effective substitute for upholstery. The country housewife may not be able to obtain as many varieties and qualities of it as her city sister, but all general merchandise stores keep "overhalls" or the red-brown and old blue cloth, out of which are made her husband's jeans and jumpers and the small boy's "brownies." This is an excellent substitute for denim and may be used throughout a sitting or dining room for draperies, cushions and couch covers. It is an excellent accompaniment of white muslin curtains.

Denim torn up into strips and woven exactly as our grandmothers wove their rag carpets, is much used nowadays in the very finest houses for rugs and even table covers.

The country housewife was one of the first to appreciate the superiority of gingham and calicoes for cushions and simple curtains, and she is finding in denim another one of those "common-sense" materials that gives the maximum of satisfaction in wear, comfort and beauty.

Fruit Nectar.
A pleasant fruit nectar is made by adding to a pint of lemonade half a cup of fresh strawberry, red raspberry, currant or cranberry. This gives a pretty color and a pleasing flavor.

OUT OF THE ORDINARY

Milady's Purse.
She was an heiress and the purse she carried in her dainty hand might well be the fortune teller of any spendthrift in the land. At least, most men imagined so. Yet they for years might rack their brains.

And after all would never know the total wealth that purse contains. So here in full we give the list. From which no item has been mislaid:

A bit of string, a button hook, A clipping from a cooking book, A little Turkish cigarette, A bit of gum (unused as yet), Samples of gingham, organdie, Chiffon, crepon and dimity, Besides a shroud of muscadine De sole, a worn-out safety pin, A collar button made of bone, A lock of hair (perhaps her own), A fashionable medallion's card, A strip of blue and white foulard, A picture postal card from Rome And half a dime to take her home.

Dueling on Bicycles.
Dueling on bicycles is reported to be a new diversion in Spain. Two members of the Bicycle club of Granada recently met in a knife duel, which is probably the first encounter of the kind ever fought upon wheels.

Accompanied by their seconds, they wheeled out some distance on the road to Malaga, to a secluded spot. There, posted 700 feet apart, at a sign they wheeled toward each other, each directing the machine with the left hand, and brandishing in the right that terrible knife of Spain—the navaja. At the first clash Perez pierced the left arm of Marcus, but at the third encounter Marcus thrust his knife into Perez's right breast. In a few minutes the latter died of internal hemorrhage.

Makes Money on a Tiny Farm.
The most successful farmer in the United States resides at Hyde Park, Pa. His farm contains three and one-half acres of land, only two and one-half of which are cultivated, but they yield him annually $1,200 to $1,500. From the profits of his intensive farming he has paid $3,800 for his property, which consists of a modern two-story brick house, with barn, chicken yard, orchard and three and one-third acres of land, and he has besides raised and educated a family of three children. He has no other occupation.

The name of this unusual man is Oliver R. Shearer. He is a Pennsylvania German, whose ancestors were Pennsylvanians for 100 years.

Colored Wood.
A considerable industry has recently been developed in Sweden on the basis of an invention made by Joseph Phister, an Austrian, whereby coloring matter is forced into fresh-cut wood. It takes the place of the sap, and gives to the wood a brilliant color, which does not fade after the wood has become seasoned. Birch, beech, alder, maple, elm and basswood are the varieties most successfully treated. The dye can be forced through lengths of wood as great as 13 feet. When seasoned and polished the colored wood presents a beautiful appearance, and is largely used for making furniture, and also for the fittings of ships and street cars.

Nature's Curiosities.
Corea has two springs of water, situated at some distance from each other, which are very peculiar. Although they have the entire breadth of the peninsula between them, when one is full the other is always empty. They are, of course, connected by a long underground passage, yet the water in one is bitter and the water in the other is pure and sweet.

There is a cavern named Cold Wind cave. From it a wintry wind blows perpetually. So fierce and strong is the icy current of air, travelers say, that an athletic man is unable to stand up at the mouth of the cave.

American Irony.
The American habit of irony crops out in the desert as in more favored sections. In Death valley there is a stopping place called Saratoga Springs. Here a spring of clear sparkling water bubbles from the sand. It looks inviting, but is tepid in temperature and so laden with sulphur and other minerals that when taken into the stomach acts as an emetic instantly. This sign stands above the spring: "Saratoga Springs, Christmas day, 1900. Twenty miles from wood. Twenty miles from water. Forty feet from hell. Keep off the grass. Don't waste the water."

Strange Imposed Sentences.
Court records at Exeter, N. H., show that in 1793 Aaron Whitehouse was sentenced on two indictments for theft amounting in all to $195. On the first he was to receive 20 stripes and pay aggrieved party double damages. On the second he got off with double damages and costs, with the alternative of being marked with India ink across his forehead and from the middle of that line to the end of his nose.

A Census Oddity.
Among the census oddities is the Hingham report, where the same figures are shown that the town showed 10 years ago. Pittsfield registers an even 25,000. In the national census of 1900 the nearest approach to even thousands among places of considerable size was South Omaha, Neb., which had 26,001.

Built Nest in Skeleton.
Twelve months ago a crow was shot by a keeper in Down Ampney Park, near Swindon, Eng., and hung in the copple. A wren's nest has now been discovered inside the skeleton.

Rats Causing Damage.

Meier readers of the Kalamazoo Gas & Light Co., who make monthly trips to the basement of all the business blocks of the city, say that rats are undermining many of the older buildings of the city. Thousands of the rodents are in the buildings, and have been at work for years. The inspectors declare that there is danger of some of the buildings giving away unless the rats are exterminated. They cite ten buildings in which they say the foundations are half torn away. In three buildings in the last year cement foundations have been put in to hold the buildings up. Not a building among the old ones of the city is free from hundreds of holes made by the rodents.

Five Men Were Killed.

Five men were killed and eight others seriously injured in a collision between a pay train and a combination passenger and milk train on the Philadelphia, Harrisburg & Pittsburg branch of the Philadelphia & Reading railroad, at Roush's curve, at Mount Holly Springs. None of the passengers were injured.

Lead poisoning caused by using condensed milk, is said to be responsible for the death of the six-months-old twins of Archie Boubais of Muskegon, the contractor on the Petoskey breakwater. The little girls died within a few hours of each other.

Every Heart-Ache

Every pain in the breast, difficult breathing, palpitation, fluttering or dizzy spell means that your heart is straining itself in its effort to keep in motion. This is dangerous.

Some sudden strain from over-exertion or excitement will completely exhaust the nerves, or rupture the walls or arteries of the heart, and it will stop.

Relieve this terrible strain at once with Dr. Miles' Heart Cure. It invigorates and strengthens the heart nerves and muscles, stimulates the heart action, and relieves the pain and misery.

Take no chances; make your heart strong and vigorous with Dr. Miles' Heart Cure.

"I suffered terribly with heart disease. I have been treated by different physicians for my trouble without results. I went to a physician in Memphis, who claimed that I had dropsy of the heart. He put the X-ray on me, and in connection with his medicine he came near making a finish of me. Some time before this a Mr. Young, of St. Louis, was in our town. He saw my condition, and recommended Dr. Miles' Heart Cure to me. I gave it little attention until my return from Memphis, when I concluded to try it, and am pleased to say three bottles cured me."

CHARLES GOODRICH, Caruthersville, Mo.
Dr. Miles' Heart Cure is sold by your druggist, who will guarantee that the first bottle will benefit. If it fails he will refund your money.

THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 28, 1905.

The wholesale depredations made last week in the Roman Catholic cemeteries in northern Michigan in which monuments, tombstones and crosses have been destroyed, and in some cases graves have even been opened, is deserving of the strongest censure and punishment. Such ghoul-like actions can only be the work of perverted men, no man who is a real Christian would be guilty of such actions, which are a disgrace to civilization.

The declaration is made that one person in ten of the inhabitants of England and Wales is just hovering above the starving line. Englishmen are now being called upon to pay an annual bill of $31,000,000 for the support of their pauper fellow citizens, and the amount is increasing at the rate of $1,000,000 per year. It is hardly to be wondered at that an aggressive effort is being made by some of England's foremost statesmen to change the policy which at best has not given to England prosperity, and to adopt in part at least the home protection policy which has been accompanied elsewhere by better conditions than England has ever known.

Justice C. B. Grant's scathing denunciation of the method of treating the prisoners at the Jackson state prison delivered before the business men's class of the Martha Holmes Memorial church, Detroit, last Sunday, was well timed and well put. The constant increase of crime in Michigan is largely due to the fact that criminals at our principal state prison are treated more like summer boarders out for a recreation than criminals who come there to be punished for their foul crimes. Justice Grant's demand that prisons be made places that criminals will fear should be backed up by the whole people and press of the state until it is an accomplished fact. The idea that a villainous criminal shall be better housed, better clothed, better fed, and have more amusements and pleasures than the poor but honest workmen, many of whom have been unfortunate, but none of them criminals, is disgusting to the average human mind.

The Colonel's Waterloo.

Col. John M. Fuller, of Honey Grove, Tex., nearly met his Waterloo from liver and kidney trouble. In a recent letter he says, "I was nearly dead of these complaints, and although I tried the family doctor, he did me no good, so I got a 50c bottle of your great Electric Bitters, which cured me. I consider them the greatest medicine on earth, and thank God who gave you knowledge to make them." Sold under guarantee to cure dyspepsia, biliousness and kidney disease at Bank Drug Store; price 50c a bottle.

Hard coal is $7.25 a ton in Chelsea.

Bert Snyder has entered the engineering department of the U. of M.

The average peach crop in Michigan has been 3,255,396 bushels. This season there will be over 6,000,000 bushels. Western Michigan growers will net over $1,000,000 from the crop. With a total of 308,584 acres of fruit Michigan's crop will represent $6,750,000 to the owners.

The Washtenaw county teachers' examination will be held at the court house, Ann Arbor, Thursday and Friday, Oct. 19 and 20. Teachers having certificates from the Normal who have not had them recorded at the county school commissioner's office are requested to give the matter immediate attention.

A sidetrack has been built by the Ypsi-Ann at Sheldons and a new brick building is being erected, part of which will be used as a general store and the rest leased for a waiting room and freight house. The Ypsi-Ann has a lease on the land near the station and a grist mill and milk house will be put up by the Detroit Creamery Co.

MORE LOCAL.

There were 41 deaths in Washtenaw county during the month of May.

The rate of assessment in the German Farmers' Mutual Insurance Co. will be $1 per $1,000.

The state tax levy for 1905 is $3,869,724. Washtenaw's share of this amount is $90,729.24.

The Milan Leader has been enlarged by its new proprietor to 56 columns instead of 48 columns.

A. F. Freeman and W. L. Watkins, ex-probate judge, have formed a law partnership and will open offices in Ann Arbor.

Lafayette Grange will meet at the home of Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Keyes next Wednesday, Oct. 4, at 10 o'clock a. m.

Typhoid fever is prevalent in many large cities of the state. There are 26 cases in Jackson and the physicians are as yet unable to trace the source of the disease.

Arthur M. Hunter will enter the employ of J. G. Adrien next Monday as meat cutter in his market. It will seem natural to many to see Arthur back in the old business again.

The heaviest day's travel of any in the history of the D. Y. A. A. & J. was that of Sunday when nearly 12,000 people were carried over the line. It was found necessary to run double headers during the heaviest part of the day.

At the close of the services at the Congregational church last Sunday morning, a meeting of the church and society was held and it was resolved to extend a call to Rev. M. Lee Grant, of Dowagiac, to become the pastor of the church.

Mrs. R. A. Snyder, who has been suffering from a badly affected hand for the past five months is now much improved, being able to use the member as well as before the swelling commenced. She has been under treatment at the Jackson Sanitarium and is loud in her praise of that institution.

The postal authorities at Washington have ordered postmasters to have all rural mail boxes numbered by Sept. 30. The numbers assigned to boxes on each route will commence with No. 1 and continue in that order until the numbering is completed, in the order of 2, 3, 4 and so on. Carriers must keep a record of the numbers on their routes and report all mail boxes that are not in good condition.

County School Commissioner C. E. Foster attended the state convention of commissioners of schools at Lansing Thursday and Friday of last week, at which W. W. Wedemeyer, of Ann Arbor, delivered one of the principal addresses, speaking on the growth of school work and the increase in the commissioner's duties. It is gratifying to learn that Washtenaw county was "given the banner" for the number of visits paid this year by its commissioner and the number of truant cases investigated by the truant officer. All of which goes to show that we have a good commissioner who is on to his job.

We have received "With the compliments of the University School of Music" a handy desk letter blotter and University calendar which is quite unique in its get up and is a credit to its author, Charles A. Sink, the energetic secretary of the school. The calendar contains photogravures of the school of music faculty, a May Festival matinee and Wm. A. Howland's vocal studio, together with information regarding the school, the Choral Union series of concerts and the May Festival series. Between the letterpress leaves are placed blotters on which appears a full year's calendar. The booklet is both useful and ornamental.

Strikes Hidden Rocks.

When your ship of health strikes the hidden rocks of consumption, pneumonia, etc., you are lost if you don't get help from Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption. J. W. McKinnon, of Talladega Springs, Ala., writes, "I had been very ill with pneumonia, under the care of two doctors, but was getting no better when I began taking Dr. King's New Discovery. The first dose gave relief and one bottle cured me." Sure cure for sore throat, bronchitis, coughs and colds. Price 50c and $1.00; guaranteed at Bank Drug Store. Trial bottle free.

JEWELS OF VAST ANTIQUITY.

Discoveries Made at the Capital of Ancient Persia.

Remarkable discoveries have been made in the ruins of the temples at Susa, the ancient capital of Persia, where marvels of jewelry have been brought to light, the earliest examples ever known of that country.

The jewels of gold and silver are the first of those countries and those ages which have come down to the present day. In this they present a great interest. Unfortunately, it is not possible to assign a precise date to each of them. As the cylinders and seals which form a part of the finds belong to all periods from the fortieth or fiftieth century B. C. down to date of foundation, so it is with the jewels. There are some of every age. The rings of filigree work and the scepter with the lion's head seem to be more recent than the statuettes of gold and silver, which have a frankly archaic appearance, but on can not be sure of this appreciation. Have the discoverers not been surprised by finding rings which, if their origin had not been certain, would be attributed by the most acute connoisseurs to the Greek or Etruscan epochs?

Before the discoveries at Dasher nothing was known of the Egyptian jewelry. The opening of the tombs of the princes of the twelfth dynasty was a revelation. It is the same now as regards Elam.

WOLF TRACK VS. DOG TRACK.

There is Little Whereby to Distinguish the Difference.

It is well at this time to compare the track of the dog with that of the wolf, especially since the reintroduction of wolf hunting as a popular sport in the north of England. I have made dozens of drawings, casts, prints, photographs and studies of wolf and dog tracks, and have not found a single reliable feature that will distinguish them, writes Ernest Thompson Seton in Country Life in America. One hunter says the wolf has the relatively small outer toes. Yes, sometimes, but not when compared with the collie. Another says that the wolf foot is longer, but not when compared with that of a grayhound, staghound or lurcher. Another declares that the wolf's foot is larger, yet it will not rank in size with that of a St. Bernard or a Great Dane. The wolf lifts his feet neatly without dragging his toes, but so do many dogs, especially country dogs. Thus all these diagnostics fail.

On the whole, a wolf is a better walker than a dog, his tracks do usually register, but not always, and in some wolves rarely.

Thronged to Vidocq's Lectures.

A curious entertainment was that given by Vidocq, the celebrated French thief and colner, who afterwards turned detective, at the now defunct Cosmorama, in London, England. The thief turned thief-taker, and gave a lecture on his experiences both as a breaker and an officer of the law. He began his entertainment by appearing as a convict in chains, and then illustrated the various disguises he used in tracking criminals. Although the lecture was in French, great crowds were attracted, perhaps more to gaze upon the celebrated detective than to endeavor to understand what he was saying.

Canada has four divorces to every 10,000 marriages, the United Kingdom 11, Norway 16, Austria 43, Greece 50, Belgium 81, Sweden 87, Cape Colony 98, the Netherlands 103, Germany 165, France 170, Roumania 204, Switzerland 432 and the United States 612.

Old Inns in England.

The Ostrich inn at Colchester, Md., has existed since the far-away days of King John. It was doing a thriving business before magna charta was signed and had qualified as a veteran before Crecy was fought. The Seven Stars in Manchester was a licensed house in the year of Poitiers, 1356, two-thirds of a century before the cathedral was founded, and it boasts to-day a staircase clock which began to tick ever so long before Dr. Johnson was born—nearly two centuries ago.

Uncle Henry on the Grumblers. There is one thing that I've noticed, and I'll tell it to you plain: These here folks that do the grumblin' in the sunshine and the rain Are the people that get weary merely thinkin' of their work And who never can move lively till somebody gives a jerk.

When you hear a man complainin' you don't need to see his face. For to tell just what he looks like or to learn about his case. You can rest assured he's seedy, and it's always safe to guess That no matter what he's gettin' he is really earnin' less. —S. E. Kiser.

THE MISSING MAN

CHAPTER XVII.

A Deep, Dark Mystery.

On the return of Mr. Carter and Mr. Hamilton, as I shall continue to call him, having phonetic objections to Mrs. Fry's expressive appellation of "other one," Constance met them with a face so full of fear, dread, consternation, or whatever the feeling was that had blanched her face to the color of the white robe she wore, that they both started back with fright.

"Bless my soul, child, what is it?" "Constance are you ill?"

"No, no; but I must tell you both I have sent the children away. Now, listen." And with a certain majestic sternness which robbed her words of all save the terrible significance of the manifestly truthful account, she related what had taken place at the house of Mrs. Fry.

"Bless my soul, the man's stark, raving crazy! He'll have to be carried to Concord. Did you know he was crazy to begin with?"

"I don't know it now, Uncle Carter." "Bless my soul! She don't know it now, Vane, she says."

"I think she is right. It is something worse than insanity; it is scoundrelism of the deepest, darkest dye," said Mr. Hamilton, between his set teeth.

They all sat silent after that, as if words were futile at such a crisis, at such an astounding event. Mr. Hamilton was the first to recover himself, and, to their surprise, he spoke much in his usual tones.

"There is no sense in allowing such a man to move us from our usual ways. It is worse for him than for us. An attempt at blackmail so barefaced is not to be considered a moment. The fact of my having lost my sense of personality while away, no doubt, struck him as a reason why he could put in the same plea of forgetfulness. But in this he has overreached himself. No one will give

er. "Take two weeks of every year in May, the month of his loss to me, and seek for him. You will then have fifty weeks left for yourself," she said; "will you promise?" I promised. Then she took a ring from her finger and gave it to me, in trust, for him should I ever find him. I found the words engraved inside the ring, and I always carried it with me when I went on my search.

"You will see, Constance, why I hesitated to take you into my confidence. You would have considered it foolish for me to leave my business each year and go seeking about the country for a brother who it was believed had died in his infancy. For four years I could learn nothing about the matter; the fifth I fancied that I had found a trace, but, if so, Constance, my brother was not a good man, for it was among desperate men that he was classed—men who had violated the law many times. The next year I saw a description of this man in a newspaper. He went usually by the name of Ashley. It was stated, and he had a wife, a beautiful, green-haired woman; her name was Lenora. I learned what I could about them, and decided that at last I was on the track of my long-lost twin brother. Last May I was much excited. I could scarcely wait for the time to come. I meant fully to find my brother, give him my mother's ring and message, and appeal to him in the name of her love and our relationship to become a different man. You opposed my going, you recollect, but I persevered, for I reasoned that very soon the quest would be ended.

"As I walked down the street a lady came out of the Essex House and spoke to me as if she knew me. In a moment I became convinced that she was Lenora, from the strange color of her hair, and that she mistook me for my brother. I could not talk with her there, and I asked her if I could not speak with her in some place that she would name. I was going on the train that morning, I told her. She asked me which way, and I replied to Portland. She said she could see me on the train, then. I saw her on the train, and that is as far as my recollection goes.

"My mind became eclipsed soon after I left Grovedale. I think, for I remember nothing that she said to me or that I said to her. But how, or why, I came here, I know no more than you do. Doubtless, it was through some dumb instinct that took the place of active intelligence. You say I seemed attracted toward you and the children, and I think that is no wonder.

"I know nothing about my existence as Primus Edes. But, Constance, I recollect Mrs. Fry saying yesterday that she knew of a similar case, and you, too, I think, spoke of it."

"Yes," and Constance bowed her fair head in agitation for a moment. But she raised it proudly a moment later. "I have heard of a case which seems to be much like yours."

"Tell me about it. Who is it, and how does the case compare with mine?"

"You saw the person the other day—yesterday?"

"Mr. Hammerly! Constance, that man looks exactly as I used to look."

"Yes; but his name is not Hammerly. Mrs. Fry told you so to quiet you. He says his name is Hamilton."

"Then, as sure as you live, he is my twin brother. A minister, and I thought him a thief!"

If stimulated, his tone of intense relief was well done.

"But he is not a minister. He claims to be Vane Hamilton, my husband."

"Your husband? What do you mean?"

"I mean that he came to Grovedale last February, stated that he had been suffering from loss of identity, and that was the reason he was absent so long. He has taken his place at the mill where you worked, and all Grovedale seems to be sure that he is the real Vane Hamilton—all but me."

"You did not receive him, then; you knew he was not the true Vane Hamilton," he cried.

"I did not feel sure that he was; but he lives in the same house with us, and the children are greatly attached to him, particularly Clara."

"What does it all mean? The villain!" and he raised himself in bed and glared wildly about him; then sank down exhausted, but his hands worked convulsively, and he continued to gaze at Constance with a look of mingled horror and reproach.

"I don't know. I don't know," said Constance, stretching out her clasped hands in deep misery. What can I do?"

"But don't you know I am your husband? Have you any doubt?"

"You do not look as much like my husband as he does."

"I grant it; but there are other means of judging."

"There is none, none, except this vague impression that he is not, and—"

"And that I am. Bless you, my dearest, for those words. With them I can be brave. I will get back my home, all he has stolen from me, and you shall help me."

"Oh, I can do nothing."

"At least you shall not stay under the roof with him another day. You shall not, Constance."

"I will do as you say in that respect. I will leave the house, with my children, until the matter is settled."

"And it shall be settled soon, just as soon as I can leave this bed, and I am getting strong very fast now. I could almost rise now, walk to the mill and confront that man."

"Heyday! you are getting well fast, Mr. Edes," said Dr. Peck, walking in and bowing courteously to Mrs. Hamilton. "Whom would you confront at the mill?"

"That scoundrel who has taken my name and place."

"Well, you must get a little stronger first," and the worthy doctor looked at Mrs. Hamilton with a sagacious nod, as if there was nothing to be alarmed at in such ravings.

"Dr. Peck," said his patient, irritably, "I am as sane as you are. I know you perfectly well, too, long ago. Have you forgotten giving me the wrong medicine, and pumping it out of my stomach afterwards?"

The doctor looked bewildered.

"I recollect giving the wrong medicine to this lady's husband."

"Exactly, and I am her husband."

A burnish blush stole over the face of Constance, and she arose to go without so much as a glance at either man.

Dr. Peck stood staring until she was gone, and for some time afterward. Then he said, sternly: "You have driven her from the room with your ravings. Mrs. Hamilton is a most estimable lady."

"I ought to know as much about my wife as anybody, Dr. Peck. There is a most foul conspiracy afoot to rob me of my wife, family and fortune such as it is. But now I am myself I shall go on no longer. I am Vane Hamilton, and I shall so declare myself and appeal to the courts to restore me my rights."

"My man, you forget we all knew Mr. Hamilton, and that he was a different-looking man. His hair was light, and yours is dark."

"I care not for that. My hair was light once. I did not know it was dark until yesterday," and then he explained each circumstance as he had done to Mrs. Hamilton, who listened with grave, distrustful amazement. At the close he said:

"A madder scheme I never knew of heard of. Let me advise you. Say no more about it, for no will believe you and it will lead to nothing but trouble for you. Vane Hamilton returned long ago, is re-established among us firmly in the confidence of all. There is no doubt, none whatever, that he is the true Vane Hamilton. You are well known as Primus Edes, a man of good character, and a good workman. Let me advise you again not to jeopardize your interests by a mad affair founded on your admiration for a married woman."

FIGHT WITH CHINESE PIRATES

Bloodthirsty Sea Rovers to Be Fought in Eastern Waters.

We had been in the fog but two or three hours when a large junk suddenly loomed up on our port bow. Our captain, who was an old East India and China trader, took one look at her and said: "My God! Here's an infernal Chinese pirate junk! Make all sail, quick!"

We did not need that order. Almost as soon as I can tell it we had the sails up and drawing, but not quick enough to escape the junk, which bore down under full head, her decks crowded with men, her grappling irons on a long pole, ready to hook into our chains. The Oneco, being built for the China trade, was armed. We carried four guns in each broadside and two swivels on the taffrail, with an ample supply of boarding pikes, muskets, pistols and cutlasses.

If the pirate succeeded in boarding us it would mean a hand-to-hand fight, and what with making sail and getting ready for battle, we had not fired a gun before grappling irons were in our chains. But at this moment we let go a broadside of our four port guns, which must have disabled the men in charge of the grappling line, for they did not succeed in making it fast around their bits until they had drifted about 200 feet astern. We attempted to cut this line, but the hook was attached first by a long chain which we could not sever and the angle was such that we could not hit it with a shot.

LIGHTING LORE.

ACETYLENE EXCELS AS AN ILLUMINANT.

Gas for Lighting Formerly Confined to Cities and Large Towns, now in General Use in the Country.

The satisfactory lighting of suburban and country homes requires that the means used shall be convenient, safe, economical and furnish a brilliant, penetrating, effulgent light.

Everybody admits that these are not the characteristics of the candle or kerosene lamp, which, formerly, were the only feasible means of producing light for domestic use in the rural districts.

For generations there was a crying need, a yearning for something better, which was not satisfied. A few years ago deliverance came in the shape of the chemical compound, Calcium Carbide, from which, by the simple application of water, the gas Acetylene is derived. Acetylene meets all the requirements fully and admirably and is being generally used.

Common lime and carbon in the form of coke or coal are the raw materials which, fused in an intensely heated furnace, make Calcium Carbide, and there is no difficulty in obtaining it in any part of the country.

The machine into which the Calcium Carbide is fed and from which the Acetylene is distributed through the building to be lighted, is but little larger than a thirty-gallon milk can, and of the same general form. It is easily and cheaply installed, either in the cellar or in an out-building.

The light from burning Acetylene is exquisite, and lighting experts agree that it surpasses all other known illuminants. It does not taint the air nor strain the eyes and is not objectionable in any respect. Every up-to-date rural residence should be equipped with Acetylene light.

ROMANCE IN LIFE OF HUXLEY

Great Biologist Possessed of Unknown Wealth of Tenderness.

Huxley, after steadfast waiting and earnest upward striving toward his life's purpose for eight years, came at last to the time when he felt he could provide a home for Miss Heathorn. With the thousands of leagues between them, she in Sydney and he in England, each had proved the other's fidelity and devotion. When Miss Heathorn arrived in England, Huxley was to learn from a famous physician that she had only six months to live. But he married her, and took her to Tenby, the beautiful watering place in Carmarthen bay. "Six months or not," Huxley had said, "she is going to be my wife." The devotion of the great biologist brought her back to health, and when, after long years of happiness, the Hand beckoned and the Voice called for him, he directed her to inscribe on his tombstone the touching verse:

"Be not afraid, ye waiting hearts that wait for still He giveth His beloved sleep. And if an endless sleep He wills, so best."

Gen. Jackson Vine.

The wild grape vine on the shores of Mobile bay, about one mile north of Daphne, Ala., is commonly known as the "Gen. Jackson vine," from the fact that Gen. Andrew Jackson twice pitched his tent under it during his campaign against the Seminole Indians. This vine, in June, 1897, was reported to have a circumference of six feet one inch at its base. Its age was estimated at that time to exceed 100 years.—Scientific American.

It has many stories. Men fall and men win here. It requires good common sense and an interest in the subject to win. One man told me that he got to his place early and thought of nothing but his business during the day.—Earl M. Pratt.

GET POWER.

The Supply Comes From Food.

If we get power from food, why not strive to get all the power we can. That is only possible by use of skillfully selected food that exactly fits the requirements of the body.

Poor fuel makes a poor fire and a poor fire is not a good steam producer.

"From not knowing how to select the right food to fit my needs, I suffered grievously for a long time from stomach troubles," writes a lady from a little town in Missouri.

"It seemed as if I would never be able to find out the sort of food that was best for me. Hardly anything that I could eat would stay on my stomach. Every attempt gave me heart-burn and filled my stomach with gas. I got thinner and thinner until I literally became a living skeleton and in time was compelled to keep to my bed."

"A few months ago I was persuaded to try Grape-Nuts food, and it had such good effect from the very beginning that I have kept up its use ever since. I was surprised at the ease with which I digested it. It proved to be just what I needed. All my unpleasant symptoms, the heart-burn, the inflated feeling which gave me so much pain disappeared. My weight gradually increased from 98 to 116 lbs., my figure rounded out, my strength came back, and I am now able to do my housework and enjoy it. The Grape-Nuts food did it." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

A ten days' trial will show anyone some facts about food.

"There's a reason."

THOUSANDS OF LIVES SAVED

By "Mother's Medicine Chest" and Patent Prescriptions.

Commenting on attacks made by certain eastern publications on some of the best known and most valuable of the world's proprietary medicines, the Committee on Legislation of the Proprietary Association says:

"All through the country districts, in every state of the union, you will find in the farm houses the old family remedies, sometimes called 'patent medicines,' many of which have been in use in the same household for generations. Among such people the old-fashioned proprietary medicine, always at hand with full printed instructions for use, is one of the necessities of life.

"To families in the country many miles from a doctor such remedies are invaluable. 'Mother's medicine chest' has saved many a life and met many a threatening sickness at the threshold and turned it out of doors. So far from constituting self-prescription, as is often pretended, acquaintance with a 'patent medicine' often obviates the necessity of such a step; for here is a prescription already made up, the effect of which is well known. One of the greatest advantages of such medicine is that its constant formula gives it the character of a single drug, so far as uniformity of result is concerned, and the people who use it know from experience just what they can count on—which is more than can be said of many physicians' prescriptions frequently obtained at a far greater cost and trouble."

Another Poetic Idol Gone.

One by one our old poetic idols are being shattered by the utilitarian and practical of the fin-de-siècle woman doctor. The latest iconoclast is responsible for the asseveration that what is so poetical in poetry and the novels about the whiteness of the skin means something not so poetical. It is due, she says, to the languor of the muscular tissues throughout the body, and the glossiness and languor that was so often characterized as a charming feminine attribute is associated with indigestion and is therefore thoroughly unromantic. It is one of the ironies of life that women as they stand in literature and romance are not true to life.—Chicago News.

Apples Long a Food.

The apple has been eaten by man longer than any other fruit. The lake dwellers of Switzerland used to preserve apples by cutting them lengthways, and drying them in the sun. The remains of these dried apples, so large as to be evidently a cultivated variety, have been found among the pile-props of the island dwellings of this ancient race.

Six Doctors Failed.

South Bend, Ind., Sept. 25th (Special)—After suffering from Kidney Disease for three years; after taking treatment from six different doctors without getting relief, Mr. J. O. Laudeman of this place found not only relief but a speedy and complete cure in Dodd's Kidney Pills. Speaking of his cure Mr. Laudeman says:

"Yes, I suffered from Kidney Trouble for three years and tried six doctors to no good. Then I took just two boxes of Dodd's Kidney Pills and they not only cured my kidneys, but gave me better health in general. Of course I recommended Dodd's Kidney Pills to others and I know a number now who are using them with good results."

Mr. Laudeman's case is not an exception. Thousands give similar experiences. For there never yet was a case of Kidney Trouble from Backache to Bright's Disease that Dodd's Kidney Pills could not cure. They are the only remedy that ever cured Bright's Disease.

Ginger Ale with a Stick in It.

It happened in an uptown Broadway restaurant. He and she used to dine together every night in a quiet, domestic way, for they had only lately been married. She was a strict teetotaler, while he—well, he wasn't exactly. They drank ginger ale with their meal, but hubby, by a d of a tip, inveigled the waiter into putting a good horn of whisky into his soft drink every night. All went well until one evening the wife was more than ordinarily thirsty. Finishing her glass of ginger ale, she reached over for her husband's glass, and before he could stop her she had taken a good average sip from it. She coughed and sputtered, gave the waiter a glance that froze what was left of the liquid, and—the subsequent proceedings interested only the husband.—New York Sun.

Mothers Are Helped

THEIR HEALTH RESTORED

Happiness of Thousands of Homes Due to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and Mrs. Pinkham's Advice.

A devoted mother seems to listen to every call of duty excepting the supreme one that tells her to guard her health, and before she realizes it some derangement of the female organs has manifested itself, and nervousness and irritability take the place of happiness and amiability.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is the unfailing cure for this condition. It strengthens the female organs and permanently cures all displacements and irregularities.

Such testimony as the following should convince women of its value:

Dear Mrs. Pinkham:

"I want to tell you how much good Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done me. I suffered for eight years with ovarian troubles. I was nervous, tired and irritable, and it did not seem as though I could stand it any longer, as I had five children to care for. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound was recommended and it has entirely cured me. I cannot thank you enough for your letter of advice and for what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done for me.—Mrs. Ph. Hoffman, 100 Hinrod Street, Brooklyn, N. Y."

Novel Reader's Plaint.

If some one will write a high society novel that will not read as if the author were determined to show how much he knows about servants this world would be more like a place worth living in for those who try to keep pace with literature.—Exchange.

His Threat.

There was a very naughty boy and his mother did not know what to do with him. So she said, "I will put you in a hencoop if you will not behave." Then he said, "Well, before you put me in, I want to tell you that I will not lay any eggs."—New York World.

CHRONIC ERYSIPELAS

Cured by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, Although Whole Body was Affected.

Erysipelas or St. Anthony's fire is a most uncomfortable disease on account of the burning, the pain and the disfigurement; it is also a very grave disorder, attended always by the danger of involving vital organs in its spread.

The case which follows will be read with great interest by all sufferers as it affected the whole body, and refused to yield to the remedies prescribed by the physician employed. Mrs. Ida A. Colbath, who was the victim of the attack, residing at No. 19 Winter street, Newburyport, Mass., says:

"In June of 1903 I was taken ill with what at first appeared to be a fever. I sent for a physician who pronounced my disease chronic erysipelas and said it would be a long time before I got well."

"Inflammation began on my face and spread all over my body. My eyes were swollen and seemed bulging out of their sockets. I was in a terrible plight and suffered the most intense pain throughout my body. The doctor said my case was a very severe one. Under his treatment, however, the inflammation did not diminish and the pains which shot through my body increased in severity. After being two months under his care, without any improvement, I dismissed him."

"Shortly after this, on the advice of a friend, I began to take Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People, two at a dose three times a day. After the second box had been used I was surprised to notice that the inflammation was going down and that the pains which used to cause me so much agony had disappeared. After using six boxes of the pills I was up and around the house attending to my household duties, as well as ever."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are sold by all dealers in medicine or may be obtained direct from Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Schenectady, N. Y.

IN THE BEST OF HEALTH SINCE TAKING PE-RU-NA.

IN POOR HEALTH.
PAINS IN BACK,
SICK HEADACHES,
PE-RU-NA CURED.

Mrs. Lena Smith, N. Cherry street, cor. Line, Nashville, Tenn., writes: "I have had poor health for the past four years, pains in the back and groins, and dull, sick headache, with boring down pains. "A friend, who was very enthusiastic about Peruna insisted that I try it. "I took it for ten days and was surprised to find that I had so little pain. "I therefore continued to use it and at the end of two months my pains had totally disappeared. "I have been in the best of health since and feel ten years younger. I am very grateful to you." Catarrh of the internal organs gradually saps away the strength, undermines the vitality and causes nervousness. Peruna is the remedy.

NATION OF TEA DRUNKARDS

English Suffer From Complaints of Which They Know Not the Cause.
The public analyst of one of the London boroughs has recently been investigating tea inebriety. He states that, judging from the annual tea bill, each individual in England consumes six pounds of tea every twelve months. This means that the average person swallows 3.6 grains of caffeine and 9.7 grains of tannin per diem.

This is about half as much of the former and nearly as much of tannin as the pharmacopoeia allows as an occasional dose. When to these amounts are added the caffeine and tannin consumed in coffee and other beverages, it is obvious that the present generation of Englishmen is saturating itself with these two poisons.

The symptoms of this form of self-poisoning are seen frequently enough by physicians, but their cause is often overlooked. Many of the patients who suffer from palpitation of the heart, chronic dyspepsia, sleeplessness, emaciation and anaemia are simply tea or coffee drunkards.

Do Plants Throw Off Heat?

It appears that many do. A remarkable instance is offered by the alpine soldanella. Its flowers actually bore, or rather melt, their way through the hard snow. Sometimes, indeed, the flower opens before it reaches the surface, so that it actually blooms in a little hole in the snow. Usually, however, it reaches the surface and hangs out its pretty violet bells above the snow, looking as if stuck into it. Growing through the snow is due to the heat developed by the vegetative process.

Black Sea Once Inland Lake.

The Black Sea, according to chronicles mentioned by Strabo and others, was once an inland lake, connected with the Caspian, till some catastrophe forced its outlet into the basin of the Mediterranean, cutting off communication with its eastern sister lake, which, indeed, has gradually shrunk, ever since, but, for awhile, may have flooded its shore lands far and near.

I had eye trouble, backache, catches when lying abed or when bending over, was languid and often dizzy and had sick headaches and bearing-down pains. It was in 1903 that Doan's Kidney Pills helped me so quickly and cured me of these troubles and I've been well ever since."

Scalp Humor Cured by Cuticura Soap and Ointment—After All Else Had Failed.

"I was troubled with a severe scalp humor and loss of hair that gave me a great deal of annoyance and inconvenience. After unsuccessful efforts with many remedies and so-called hair tonics, a friend induced me to try Cuticura Soap and Ointment. The Sturdy Spirit of the Northwest

Adaptable, Energetic and Optimistic, It Has Created Great Wealth Out of the Unbounded Opportunities of Nature.

The horseback era followed the navigation of the streams, and then the railroad came to hang the great spaces of the west with cities like long circuits of electric lights waving along a boulevard.

With the railroad the westerner passed away, leaving the American citizen proud of his section. With the railroad came the period of town building and town booming wherein the men from the west, traveling westward in a Pullman, endeavored to make fortunes overnight in real estate gambling. It took the collapse of the boom and the awful years that made Kansas bleed to teach them that they had found a new empire.

In these men are now blended the traits of the cowboy and of the real estate man, of the vigilante and the student of law, but added to all these is the conservatism of the capitalist and the responsibilities of success. They "plunge" less now, since they have more to protect. But they are the same adaptable, energetic, optimistic spirits who pushed the pioneer ahead and created for themselves great wealth where only opportunity awaited their coming. They are still pushing.

There are the men who have made that three-fifths of the nation which lies west of Chicago so safe that the cliff dwellers of Manhattan have grown richer by selling them their wares—from steel bridges to magazines, from life insurance to Massachusetts state bonds. Their one care is a constant watch for opportunity and their rule of honor is respect for every other man's right to try.

They laugh when they win because success in a successful country need not be taken too seriously. They laugh also when they fail, because failure amid so many opportunities is ludicrous. They are crude and they must meet their social problems in their wives' names. Their optimism is the optimism of plenty; their conceit grows out of their achievements.

The New Yorker scornfully says: "Why should I go west? I have everything that is worth seeing right here in New York."

To this the American replies: "Yes, everything except the United States of America."

"You think you are the whole nation," says the New Yorker.

"No," says the American. "I'm only a part owner. But I know my country and my partners. You don't."—World's Work.

"Devil Clock" in Old Mexican Town

Local Watch Repairer Made Time-piece All Right, but Could Not Regulate the Striking Part of His Handiwork.

In my travels in Mexico I visited a city which has a town clock in a high tower, and this clock does not run, says a writer in the Kansas City Star. I learned its history from the inhabitants. It appeared that one of the leading citizens of the town had visited the United States, and when he returned to his native city he insisted that the town ought to have a public clock. He called a meeting of citizens, laid the plan before them, and they subscribed $400 for a town clock. They engaged a local watch repairer to build the clock and gave him orders that it must strike the hours. He had never seen a town clock, but he sent to a coast town and secured a small marine striking clock, and with it as a model he constructed, by mathematical expansion, a large clock and placed it in the tower. It was advertised to begin running at 8 o'clock, and as it was a great event in the town's history most of the population gathered in the plaza to see the clock start and hear it strike. When the hour came the clock struck correctly and continued to strike correctly until 1 o'clock, when it struck up to sixty-one. When 2 o'clock came the clock struck 113 times. The whole town rushed out to see what was the matter. It happened that the builder of the clock lived at one end of the town, and when he heard it striking up to 113 he leaped out of bed, seized a wrench and ran down the middle of the street to the plaza, climbed the tower and stopped it. Thereafter he was to be seen every hour running down the street with a wrench, while he climbed the tower to prevent the striking apparatus from running away. The poor man put up with this only a few months, and then he ran away and never returned. Since his disappearance the clock has never run. It is called the devil clock.

Worship of Stones an Ancient Custom

Relics of Its Practice Found All Over the World—Some of the Most Prominent of Known Instances.

When the Japanese captured Mukden they found the black stone of the Manchu dynasty, regarded by the Manchus as marking the center of the universe. Even without possession of the sacred rock it looks as if the Japanese were putting themselves pretty much in the middle of things, and making the rest of the world spin about their island kingdom.

The worship of stones was an ancient and universal custom, and relics of its practice are found all over the world. Up to the end of the nineteenth century the peasants of the Norwegian mountains cherished round stones, which they kept in a comfortable bed of fresh straw. Once a week these stones were carefully washed, smeared with butter or steeped in ale, and they were treated with great respect in order that they might bring good luck to the house.

Kaaba, the holy stone of Mecca, is worn and polished by the kisses of the crowding pilgrims; while the Doring of Lhasa, Tibet, marks another center of the universe.

There are other stones of legendary or historical interest which have played a practical part in national or civil life. The Stone of Scone was originally supposed to be the ancestral god of the Irish Scots. It was kept in the gray old castle of Dunstaffnage until it was carried to Scone, and the Scottish kings were crowned upon it. Edward I. carried it to Westminster abbey, and it forms the seat of the coronation chair used by all the British sovereigns.

The London Stone marked the meeting-place of the Roman roads which ran through the kingdom, and from it all distances were reckoned. It was supposed to have been brought from Troy, and is mentioned in very early records. To-day a fragment of it is embedded in the wall of St. Swithin's church, London, and protected by a strong iron grille.

Words of Kindness That Mean Much

"It's the Kind Word and the Thought for the Deed Done and the Deed, Out of Which the Good Is Wrought."

Cultivate kindness of heart; think well of your fellow men; look with charity upon the shortcomings in their lives; do a good turn for them as opportunity offers; and, finally, don't forget the kind word at the right time.

How much a word of kindness, encouragement or appreciation means to others, sometimes, and how little it costs us to give it.

We do not need to wait for some special occasion, says the Philadelphia Inquirer. When calamity overtakes a friend, words of sympathy and encouragement are offered sincerely enough, yet in certain respects, as a matter of course. Such an occasion calls for expression on our part, and we naturally respond. But why wait for an occasion? Why not speak the kind word when there is no special occasion to make it obvious?

In the course of our lives there must be many times when thoughtless words are spoken by us which wound the hearts of others. And there are also many little occasions when the word of cheer is needed from us, and we are silent.

There are lives of wearisome monotony which a word of kindness can relieve. There is suffering which words of sympathy can make more endurable. And often, even in the midst of wealth and luxury, there are those who listen and long in vain for some expression of disinterested kindness.

Speak to those while they can hear and be helped by you, for the day may come when all our expressions of love and appreciation may be unheard. Imagine yourself standing beside their last resting place. Think of the things you could have said of them, and to them, while they were yet living. Then go and tell them now.

Byron's Lament on Downfall of Greece

"For What Is Left the Poet Here?—For Greeks a Blush—for Greece a Tear."

The Isles of Greece, the Isles of Greece! Where burning Sappho loved and sung, Where grew the arts of war and peace, Where Delos rose, and Phœbus sprung! Eternal summer glides them yet, But all, except their sun, is set.

The Selan and the Telen muse, The hero's heart, the lover's lute, Have left the fame your shores refuse: Their place of birth alone is mute, 'Till some voice echo further West, 'Till your sire's "Islands of the Blest."

The mountains look on Marathon— And Marathon looks on the sea; And musing there an hour alone, I dream'd that Greece might still be free;

For standing on the Persian's grave, I could not deem myself a slave.

A king sate on the rocky brow Which looks o'er sea-born Salamis; And ships, by thousands, lay below, And men in nations—all were his! He counted them at break of day— And when the sun set where were they?

And where are they? and where art thou, My country? On thy voiceless shore The heroic dead no more are told— The heroic bosom beats no more! And must thy lyre, so long divine, Degenerate into hands like mine?

"Is something, in the dearth of fame, Though linked among a fetter'd race To feel at least a patriot's shame, Even as I sing, suffuse my face? For what is left the poet here? For Greeks a blush—for Greece a tear."—Lord Byron.

Jackson Patriot: John Simpson, of Grass Lake village, brought a bean to this office Saturday which measured four feet and ten inches in length and weighs upward of twenty pounds. The bean was grown from seed sent to Mr. Simpson from the Philippines. They grew on the ground, the vines and foliage resembling those of the pumpkin, and from the four vines which developed there is a crop of 15 or 20 of these mammoth beans. They are said to be edible, but Mr. Simpson can find no recipe for their preparation in his cook book, and has sent to the Philippines for instructions as to the way to proceed. It is manifestly inexpedient to string a half a peck of this bean on a string and cook it in milk, so the decision as to the food value of the strange plant is held in abeyance.

Neighborhood Notes.

C. R. Parsons, of Saline, bought 1,800 sheep in Montana recently and put them on his farm.

Out of 124 cases on the Ingham county circuit court docket for this term 48 are divorce cases.

A cow belonging to Hiram Logan, of Manchester, gave birth to a three legged calf the other day.

A new Presbyterian church is to be erected at Stockbridge. It will be built of cement blocks.

An Ann Arbor photographer killed a blue racer 44 feet long near Manchester the other day and presented it to the U. of M. museum.

Jacob Payne grew on his farm in Milan a mammoth gourd 43 inches long which weighed 21½ pounds.
Just half a pound to the inch.

The steeple of the Grass Lake Congregational church was struck by lightning during the electric storm Saturday evening, Sept. 16, and a great rent was made in its side.

A daughter was born recently to
Dr. and Mrs. C. H. Starr at Oxford.
The father is 68 years old and the mother 65. They are the parents of two other daughters, one 45 years old and the other 43. They are also great grandparents.

The $6,000 debt on the Baptist Guild at Ann Arbor has been wiped out by the generous contribution of a check for that amount from A. Q.
Tucker, of London, Eng., a former resident of Ann Arbor. Mr. Tucker was one of the foremost advocates for the purchase of the guild property and had previously given $1,500 toward it. The property is valued at $30,000.

Albert Burton, a U. of M. student, was so mad because he went to sleep on a Michigan Central train early Friday morning and was carried by Ann Arbor to Dexter, that he abused the conductor and threw a stone and a bottle at the train when he was put off. The Dexter marshal gathered him in and a Michigan Central detective entered a complaint against him before Justice Doty, of Ann Arbor. "Ten dollars and costs," said the justice, and the fresh young fellow was glad it was no more.

An aged couple, each about 60 years of age, secured a marriage license at the county clerk's office last Thursday, and asked the deputy if they could be married in the court house. The deputy offered to get either a minister or a justice for them. Then ensued a discussion of the financial end of the affair. They were informed that a justice would charge them $2 for the job and a minister whatever they chose to give him from $1 up. This they thought was expensive and wanted to know if anyone who could read well and pray could not perform the ceremony. When informed that an ordained minister was required they decided to wait until their return home, where they were quite sure they could find a minister who would be willing to perform the ceremony for but a nominal price.

WORK WEAKENS THE KIDNEYS.

Doan's Kidney Pills Have Done Great Service for People Who Work.

Most people work every day in some strained, unnatural position—bending constantly over a desk, riding on jolting cars or wagons—doing laborious housework, lifting, reaching or pulling, or trying the back in a hundred and one other ways.
All these strains tend to wear, weaken and injure the kidneys until they fall behind in their work of filtering the poisons from the blood. Doan's Kidney Pills cure sick kidneys, put new strength in bad backs.

G. B. Porter, of South Sprague street,
Coldwater, Mich., says: "For three years
I was annoyed by the action of the kidney secretions and suffered from severe pain in the small of my back. After a hard day's work or a long drive, which I often had to do, the pain in my back was very severe. At night it was painful to turn or move and the secretions were dark and unnatural in color. When I learned of Doan's Kidney Pills I got a box and was pleased with their beneficial effect.
That was some time ago and I have not had a pain or ache in my back during the interval and the kidney secretions are normal. I have recommended Doan's Kidney Pills to others, who in turn have been greatly benefited by them."
