neels of promise. be mighty interesting reading."

As was said some weeks ago the company is about to begin the manufacture of gasoline stoves and steel ranges.

For this purpose a large three story modern factory building will be erected fronting on Main and Railroad streets, and covering not only the site of the present warehouse but extending over the property occupied by the old Harrington house to the power plant tracks. This building will have dimensions of about 150x200 feet and with the three floors will give over 60,000 square feet of floor space. The building will be provided with automatic fire sprinklers, electric elevators, modern machinery and every up-to-date appliance. Such a building will afford up to a figure that would make for most Before In Its History.

EXPANDING BUSINESS.

The doings of the Glazier Stove Co. have afforded The Standard so much good news of late that we have kept close on the same warm trail, and one day recently asked Mr. H. I. Stimson, secretary of the company, to tell us something for publication as to the extent of the company's business and its future prospects.

He informed us that it gained nearly fifty per cent this last year and that a big increase is looked for next season. At present nearly six hundred heaters are being put out daily, crowding close up to fifteen thousand for a month, and during the summer just past fifty thousand blue flame cook stoves were made and marketed. And as to lamp stoves they have been sown broadcast in such numbers that seemingly every man, woman and child in the country would have one. The way in which these lamp stoves go is a great commentary on the absortive power of the American market.

This expanding business largely results from the constant effort that is being made to make new business connections. For years the company has enjoyed the trade and confidence of the very largest hardware and stove jobbing trade in the country, but quite recently two connections have been made in the east that will unquestionably result in a greatly expanding business In Greater New York, with its four million and more people, the company has recently become very strongly fortified.

And so it goes. It would appear that the Glazier Stove Co. is now only beginning its real business. The years be-Glazier taxes, showing that they are Superintendent of Public Instruction fore have only been studious and painstaking preparatory work.

Fungus Attacks on Telegraph Poles.

The length of service of a telegraph or telephone pole is determined in a section of the pole not more than a standing pole this section extends tors gave me originates with those who have below the top of the ground. This is the universal point of attack upon the life of the pole, and is called its breaking point. Decay is the archenemy of these poles. It sets in at the some one ingledient which, if taken down the pole, but only so far as the conditions exist which promote the growth of wood-destroying fungi. A whole is not poisonous at all. Opium, few inches below the ground there is lack of the necessary oxygen and heat, while at about the same distance above ground the requisite moisture fails. The exact time at which decay ly labeled "poison" would be merely a mate, the character of the soil and cunning device to alarm the public similar conditions. In a hot, moist climate it ordinarily sets in with great rapidity. But at best, in a very directly to compel people to procure few years after the pole is set the struggle has commenced. The decay soon girdles the pole and gradually sician and getting his prescription. In eats into it deeper and deeper until it is so weakened that it breaks under the weight of its equipment.

... The strain upon the pole from wind pressure and the weight of its crossarms and wires is calculated for the ground line. When the diameter of this ground line is constantly decreased, the strength of the pole is proportionately reduced, and it becomes only a question of time when the pole must fall. Chestnut and white cedar have been found, among available woods, most successfully to resist decay; but the life of the former is only from twelve to fifteen years, and of the latter ten to twelve years. The co-operative study of the bureau is for the purpose of extending, if possible,

The experiments already made by the United States Forestry Bureau show conclusively that poles can be subjected to a preservative treatment which insures materially lengthened service. This treatment consists in impregnating the wood with antiseptics which prevent the growth of the fungi that cause decay. The treatment of telegraph and telephone poles, when attempted at all in this country, generally has been applied to the whole pole, requiring the use of air-tight cylinders 100 feet long or more. In these the poles are subjected to live steam for some time, when a vacuum is created. Creosote is then run in and pressure applied to force it into the wood. Manifestly this is a laborious mune from fungus. If this foot at the fatal ground line can be preserved from decay, the rest of the pole will take care of itself. Experiments will now be made in treating the butts of the poles for a distance of about eight feet, thus carrying the antiseptics just beyond the zone of decay attack. The creosote method will be used and dead oil of coal tar forced through the butt of the pole.

The telegraph companies have made little use of preservative treatment. They employ millions of poles on their various lines, and it would be a trepole. But there will be another large saving both to them and to the forest poles are now much larger than demanded by the strain upon them. It is expected that decay will quickly eat away a furrow around the pole at the ground line, and the diameter of the pole at that point is gauged to allow for this weakening process. When it is known that decay, in a certain number of years, cuts the diameter from perhaps 12 to 8 inches, and that below 8 inches the weakened pole falls, the course to be pursued is obvious. Antiseptics prevent, for the time of their effectiveness, the starting of decay, and thus permit at the outset the selection of an 8-inch diameter rather than a 12-inch. The 4 inches saved represent a tremendous difference in the size and age of trees used for poles. Both the companies and the owners of forests will be great gainers of the length of time necessary to

Corn Seed Not Everything.

It is a pleasure when traveling through the country at this time of fertile land. Not many years since corn shocks were most found in the eastern districts and in those districts where dairying is made a specialty. Now one sees corn shocks everywhere, even towards the far west, where cattlemen begin to understand that there is much more nutriment in cut corn fodder than in the weathered corn stalks of the standing husked-out crop. There was a time when straw piles were burned to get rid of them, when manure piles suffered in the same way, when corn stalks were little thought of. These things are less common now, and year by year appreciation of corn forage is increas-

Thirty-foot corn stalks, with ears ten feet from the ground are no improvement. Tall, spindly plants. with small, ribbonlike leaves and one large ear too far from the ground are not an improvement. The best corn ground line and reaches both up and plant must be a dual purpose one, combining fine ears of the best seeds on small cobs and withal a great abundance of large, wide leaves which will insure a bountiful fodder crop. Let us not lose sight of these things in seeking to improve corn seed. Coal Ashes as Mulch.

I have believed for many years that coal ashes make a good mulch, and I still hold to the opinion, but with some modifications. It is true that the ashes will for a time prevent the growing of weeds, especially during the early part of the season. But in the ashes weed seeds will ultimately grow up and develop enormously. I might say that if ashes are put on a piece of ground in the summer the weeds will probably not appear during that year, for the reason that the seeds of weeds will not the next year, look out.

Last winter 1 put ashes between my ween my rows of strawberries. The ashes were spread on fully six inches deep, so deep that I thought it impossible for any weed to push through. During the first part of this summer the weeds did not appear, but after midsummer showed a sudden vigor. The ashes then seemed to help instead of hinder them. I was away from nome for some time in the middle of the summer, and when I came back hose weeds were five or six feet and had to pull up the stalks to make the presence of the weeds in my currant patch less obvious to the neighbors.

In my strawberry patch the result was the same. The weeds grew up and in addition every strawberry runner that got onto the ashes sent down plants right amid the ashes. I am go- well as to think. ing to follow the matter further and see how deep I will have to pile the coal ashes to prevent the growth of weeds. I am sure, however, that coal process. Fattening Fowls.

It is time to begin thinking of fat tening fowls for the fall market and for the Thanksgiving table. When we are getting them ready for market we give them a thorough cleaning, to get rid of all vermin, and then confine where they will have plenty of fresh air, but very little exercise. We pay special attention to see that they are kept free from vermin now, for they have not mendous economy to add even a few a fair chance to look out for themyears of service to the life of each selves when confined. Pure air in great abundance is very essential, but exercise will work off the flesh you through preservative treatment. To are trying to lay on them. Corn is provide a good margin against decay, one of our best fattening foods, with some oats and buckwheat. A variety in the food tempts their appetite and gives better results. During the last ten days we feed nothing but soft foods and these we feed in great quantities. In confining the fowls for fattening, we separate the cocks and hens, and in case any individual fowl is inclined to be "scrappy" and persists in bothering his neighbors and worrying himself about them, we put him in a coop by himself. Anything which tends to worry the fowls or to work off flesh must be watched for and avoided .- Cora H. Porter, Grant Co., Ind., in Farmers' Review.

Small Flies in Milk.

I ship my milk to the city, usually sending about four by this economy, with its shortening cans. One day, a few weeks ago, I received all the cans back because in one there were a number of tiny flies, hardly visible unless they were in great numbers. I felt badly to have every can returned when only one was at fault, for I had taken great care with my milk and rather prided myself the year to see the tall corn shocks on my cleanliness. Just how the flies thickly covering the wide areas of got in the milk I do not know, for it was all carefully strained and then put in the tank to cool, and fresh water pumped in. Whether the flies were in the can, or whether they came while the milk was in the water cooling, I do not know, and I have wondered if other farmers have been troubled in this same way. At any rate, I made up my mind that there would be no more flies in my milk, so now I use two sets of cans, and after I take the milk from the cooler, I strain it again into clean cans. I have had no further trouble with the little pests, although it means some more work and a double number of cans to be used .- S. E. Langworthy in Farmers' Review.

A Provisional Government Is Set Up in Moscow-Troops Ordered Not to Fire on Assembling People Now.

Russia is in the throes of a revolution and late advices from Moscow, the great center of true Russian feeling, say a provisional government has already been set up there by the revolutionists and striking workmen who have enrolled themselves under the revolutionary banner. Biderman, of the Pinkerton detective agency, went to the Cunliffe home in Pittsburg, and in the lining of a baby carriage found a package containing $5,000. On the night Cunliffe was brought here from Bridgeport, Conn., where he was captured, he made a written confession to the authorities that he had given his wife

Following the above statement comes this one from Mrs. Cunliffe: "I emphatically deny that as a result of any confession made by me $5,000 of the money stolen by my husband was found in a baby carriage in our home at Pittsburg. Pinkerton is absolutely false."

Every day that dies.

Vith flush and fragrance born of June,
I know shall more resplendent rise
Where summer needs, nor sun nor moon,
And every bud of love's low tree, And every bud on love's low tree,
Whose gleaming crimson flames and falls,
In fullest flower I yet shall see
High-blooming by the jasper walls.
Nay, every sin that dims my days
And wild regrets that veil the sun
Shall fade before those dazzling rays,
And my long glory be begun!
Let years come to bless or bruise:
Thy Heaven, O Lord, I shall not lose!

HALLOWE'EN.

The ghost boys were out in force Tuesday night, and it is a wonder our want column is not full of advertise ments of gates, wagon wheels and the like, lost and found. Several worthy townsmen were busy Wedne-day going to and fro, and up and down in our streets seeking their property. However they were all as good natured as could be expected. No serious damage has been reported, and anyway these Hallowe'en marauders are beyond the reach of the power of the press.

TO OUR ADVERTISERS.

Our advertisers have certainly been getting good value these last two weeks. Over two thousand extra papers have been sent out and you can figure how far the amount you have paid for your advertising would go in printing and distributing four thousand hand bills. The hand bill would be attached to nothing valuable, while your advertisement in The Standard is. What you have had to say has gone right into the light of the evening reading lamp. It is profitable to be with us.

PICTURESQUE

This view, presented herewith, is a characteristic bit of Michigan scenery. It appeals to us as being something really fine. The view was photographed by Ernest E. Shaver, the local photographer, from the top of what is known as the Henry Stofer hill. To otherwise locate it we might say it is near the farm of Hon. James S. Gorman. To permit of reproduction here the original photograph had to be greatly reduced, but in the original twelve lakes are visible. The land appears much flatter than it really is. Verily this is a fine country.

TREASURES FOR AMERICA.

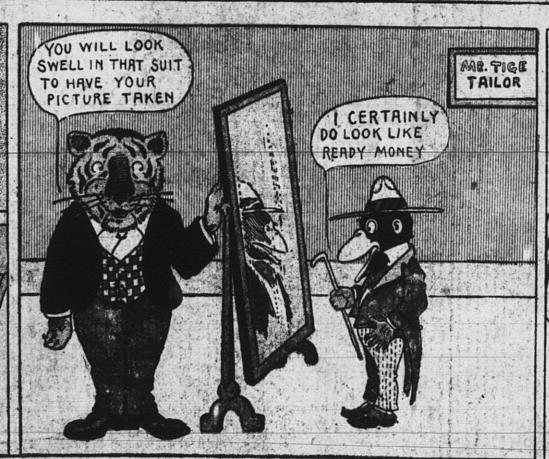

There has recently been transferred from Scotland to United States one of the finest sets in private hands of the four Shakspere folios. The sum paid, £10,000, is quite unparalleled, either in the auction rooms or by private treaty. The folios were in the library of Mr. B. B. Macgeorge, well known by repute to all bibliophiles. The late Marquis of Dufferin, not long before his death, found the keenest pleasure in going over the book treasures belonging to Mr. Macgeorge, including for instance, an uncut copy of "The Vicar of Wakefield," for which the owner has more than once been offered £1,000 against a cost of less than £100, if we remember aright.

Mr. Macgeorge possesses, too, the finest collection in existence of etchings, supplemented in many note.

Mr. Macgeorge possesses, 700, the finest collection in existence of etchings, supplemented in many noteworthy cases—that of the masterly "Abside de Notre Dame," for instance—by original drawings. He had no desire to dispose of his Shakspere folios, but some time ago a London dealer, acting on behalf of a transatlantic Shakspere enthusiast, approached him. He offered £5,000. "I have no wish to sell, but mayhap I might not feel justified in refusing double that sum," was the purport of the owner's answer. "Secure at £10,000," came the emphatic cable from America. And so the folios went from Glasgow. Probably the buyer is he who secured "The Tragedie of Richard III," fourth edition, which a few weeks ago broke all Shakspere records at £1,750, and the Countess of Pembroke's "Tragedie of Antonie," 1595, valued in June at £560, exactly 5,000 times the sum for which it was picked up in the North of England some years ago.

BLOOM IN PORTLAND

This Flower a Feature of the Lewis and Clark Exposition - Thousands Given Away-The Boutonniere Club.

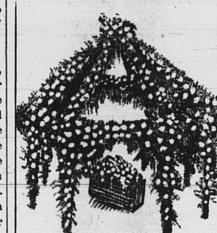

By W. E. Brindley,

Portland proved her title to fame as the Rose City of the world by holding during the early days of the Lewis and Clark exposition the most successful rose show ever held in America. The show, which took place in the Auditorium at the exposition, demonstated to the many easterners who were present that the stories of Portland roses were not myths, for half a million blossoms, some of them as large as the biggest sunflowers, bore fragrant testimony that half had not been told.

There have been rose shows in many cities, but the Portland rose show was different from others in that the roses on exhibition were grown out of doors, in front yards, rather than in hot houses under the watchful care of experienced florists. In Portland everybody has roses. There are rose hedges in the yards, and rows of roses line the boulevards, while climbing roses lift their flower heads to second and thirdstory windows. The roses displayed water several years ago, but at the exposition were the kind which year, as the records will show, there gas, water, trams and other civic mochildren, two daughters are found everywhere in Portland, and in Jackson, and which may be had for the asking. Herbert and Portland folks picked fragrant clusters of roses from their own front yards. In Portland, every day is a rose day, and every one may wear a rose every morning, and have a bouquet of roses on his dinner table every night.

At the rose show of the Lewis and Clark exposition there probably were more roses than ever before were gathered under one roof. De Caprio's administration band, which was enthroned on the stage, was almost completely hidden by a bank of fragrant blossoms. The frame of an Italian pergola, which towered 30 feet toward the

The official flag of the exposition, made in colors by the ingenious use of bluets, irises, carnations and roses, composed the centerpiece of the whole. Perhaps the most attractive feature of the rose show was a bower in the center of the building, built after the manner of a grape arbor, and covered, like the pergola, with a profusion of choice blooms. Aside from the pergola and rious tests and received their comthe bower, there was no attempt at missions. elaborate display, but the whole effect was far more delightful than would have been the case had the show been made more artificial.

No More Constipation

Constipation doesn't get cured by itself. If let alone it gets worse instead of better. IRON-OX Tablets cure constipaton and all the ills that result from it. They tone and strengthen the liver, kidneys, bowels and stomach, and build up weak, fagged-out systems.

Iron-Ox Tablets not only relieve, but entirely cure constipation. There are no "ifs" or "ands" about it—to doubt is only to delay your cure.

Iron-Ox Tablets are different from any other medicine you have ever tried. They are quick, but gentle. They do not purge the bowels in a violent manner, but contain powerful tonic properties that go direct to the root of the trouble Instead of still further weakening the delicate nerves and linings of the bowels, they strengthen and heal. The result is a cure, a permanent and lasting state of health.

Thousands of people have used Iron-Ox Tablets and regained their health through their powerful healing agency-not only in cases of constipation, but for the many ills that result from a disordered condition of the stomach and bowels.

Read the testimony of those who are in a position to say what Iron-Ox Tablets have done in their own

Mr. J. T. Bailey, 16 Camden St., Boston, Mass., says: "It affords me a great deal of pleasure in recommending your tablets to all my friends. I have found them to be the best thing I have ever used for Constipation. I have gained six pounds."

Wonderful Results in Mr. Goss' Case

"I have been troubled for years with constipation, and had reached that stage where Seidlitz powders and all common remedies had no effect on me, so I decided to try your Iron-Ox Tablets. When the druggist gave them to me, I felt much disappointed on account of the small size of the boxes, and thought one dose to the box; but the second day showed I was mistaken, as they worked mild but sure. Am much pleased with them. They prove the adage that "valuable things are done up in small packages." Orren W. Goss, 9 Columbia St., Watertown, Mass.

Don't suffer from constipation or any of its kindred diseases any longer. Iron-Ox Tablets will bring quick relief.
