HELD ANNUAL MEETING

DIVIDEND OF $18,000.

Glazier Stove Company Maintains Record as the Leading Manufacturers of Oil Stoves—New Power House.

The annual meeting of the stockholders and directors of the Glazier Stove Company was held Monday at the offices of the company in Chelsea.

The following officers were elected: President and General Manager—Frank P. Glazier.

First Vice-President—W. W. Wedemeyer.

Second Vice-President—Harold P. Glazier.

Secretary—H. I. Stinson.

Treasurer—Fred Wedemeyer.

Auditor—V. G. Glazier.

President Glazier reported a most successful year's business. A semi-annual dividend of $18,000 was paid to the stockholders on July 1st. The company's trade in oil stoves has been exceptionally large, easily maintaining its record of manufacturing more oil stoves than any other concern in the world.

Since January 1st the output in this line has averaged about four hundred stoves a day. In addition to this thousands of ovens and lamp stoves have been turned out during this period.

The contract has been let, too, for the new power house, the foundation of which is now being built. The consulting engineers have arranged for the installation of power equipment of the highest class, so that the new plant will be thoroughly modern in every respect.

A Few Accidents.

Adam Faist met with a very painful accident Monday. In moving a large box in his wagon-shop, he accidentally ran into a blacksmith's anvil, which was knocked off the block. The horn struck his left foot, nearly severing one toe and badly bruising another.

Monday evening the horse of Chas. D. Allyn became frightened and ran away. Mr. Allyn was returning to his home on Railroad street, from his farm north of Chelsea and as he was driving along Dewey avenue the horse apparently became frightened at the sight of a large water tank and ran away. Mr. Allyn was thrown from his buggy and his right shoulder was badly injured, the buggy was also considerably broken up.

John Fay, an employee of the Glazier Stove Co., while about his work Monday fell through a trap door in one of the company's buildings and was considerably shaken up but not seriously injured.

Carl Bohnet, of Sharon, was loading hay last Saturday and fell off the load breaking his left arm.

Last Saturday while driving a span of horses hitched to a hay tedder on the farm of John Bohnet, of Sharon, the animals became frightened and ran away. The driver, Henry Wolfe, was thrown under the tedder and dragged about 10 rods, he received several bad gashes on his head and was otherwise badly bruised up. The horse jumped a fence and the hay tedder will have to be replaced with a new one.

Primary School Money.

County Commissioner of Schools Foster has received from Patrick H. Kelley, state superintendent of public instruction, a communication concerning the apportionment of the primary school interest fund. Owing to final victory of the state over railroads and other corporations, whereby they are now forced to pay into the state treasury a large sum of back taxes and interest, the amount ready for apportionment and distribution is quite a large sum, in fact the sum which will be apportioned to the different school districts of this county outside of the cities will be sufficient in a large per cent of the districts to overcome expenses of teachers' wages without levying school tax, as has usually been done. This means a saving to the taxpayers in this county alone of over $25,000 per year. It is estimated that the apportionment made on the 10th of November will reach $10 per child of school age. This money can only be used for teachers' salaries.

Semi-Annual Report.

Every six months the prosecuting attorney must make a report to the attorney general of the state. Mr. Sawyer has just completed one of these six months reports, and it shows 710 prosecutions, against 991 for a year ago. This shows a gain of nearly 200 for the better.

Of the 710 prosecutions, 660 were convicted, 2 were acquitted, 4 were dismissed on payment of the costs and 4 were nolle prossed, and one was dismissed on examination.

Classified, the crimes were as follows: 230 were just plain drunks and 237 were vagrants, 43 were larceny $25, and 34 were assault and battery. Some times when a drunk gets real bad he is charged with the second offense and then he is sent to the house of correction. There were 23 of these second offenders, while 18 were charged with being drunkards and tiplers, which is also a house of correction offence. Two vagrants were also charged with the second offence. The other offences were as follows: 13 violations of the game and fish law; 8 violations of the liquor law; 8, non-supports; 6, using indecent language; 5 carrying concealed weapons; malicious destruction of buildings; 3, assault with intent to kill; 3, burglary; 3, violations of the school law; 3, common prostitutes; 2, assault; 2, embezzlement; 2, obtaining money under false pretenses; and there was one under each of the following cruelty to animals, truancy larceny in a dwelling house, entering a store, obtaining money under false pretenses, malicious destruction of a danger signal, attempting to break into a dwelling house, and entering a railroad car after dark.

Serials Accident.

A serious accident befell John McLaren, Tuesday afternoon of last week, while he was at work in his elevator at Salem. A piece of heavy gas-pipe had been left standing upon a shelf the day before, which the jar of the engine caused to roll and fall off. It struck the fly-wheel of the engine and was hurled away with terrific force, striking Mr. McLaren on the left leg just above the ankle. Medical attendance was summoned from Plymouth, when it was found that the bones were badly shattered and the ligaments torn. It was thought advisable to take him to a hospital at Detroit, and, accompanied by several members of his family, he was placed aboard the evening train, and so taken. The following morning the injured parts were closely examined, the doctors believing that it may be possible for the bones to again knit together. A week will be allowed to determine this fact, and, in case the healing process does not begin, the foot will have to be amputated. This is the first accident Mr. McLaren has had in many years of active business life, and, as much depended upon his personal supervision, his total absence from his various interests will be felt by his associates. Mr. McLaren's many friends in village and elsewhere hope he may fully recover the use of his limb.—Plymouth Mail.

Mr. McLaren is a son of James McLaren, sr., of Lima, and a brother of D. C., of Chelsea.

Telephones and the Farmer.

According to a government report, there were in 1902 in the United States 3,400,000 telephones and some six billions of messages were sent. There are three classes of systems—the commercial, the mutual and the "independent farmer," or "rural," the last having a mileage of 49,965 miles. The general use and advantage of the phone in cities are well known, but few city people are aware of the extent of its use in rural districts or of the many ways in which it has modified the conditions of country life. Like the locomotive, the phone "annihilates distance." It economizes time and locomotion by facilitating the exchange of ideas, dispensing thus with many obstacles to business and social intercourse. One of the advantages of great moments is the effect of the telephone in improving the condition of farm life, making the country attractive to the persons who could not endure the isolation and dullness of rural existence as it was formerly. Rural crime is more easily kept under, now that the country is "webbed with telephone wires. The report notes, for example, the assistance given by the phone to the constables and sheriff in suppressing the tramp nuisance.—Ex.

A Tragic Finish.

A watchman's neglect permitted a leak in the great North Sea dyke, which a child's finger could have stopped, to become a ruinous break, devastating an entire province of Holland. In like manner Kenneth Melver, of Vancoboro, Me., permitted a little cold to go unnoticed until a tragic finish was only averted by Dr. King's New Discovery. He writes: "Three doctors gave me up to die of lung inflammation, caused by a neglected cold; but Dr. King's New Discovery saved my life." Next in order was the election of two trustees. W. P. Schenk and Hon. J. S. Gorman were elected to succeed themselves.

During the past school year the board had to provide more room for the school attendants, and they fitted up a building formerly used for a wood and coal shed into a very comfortable school room at a cost of about $800. The entire property of the district has been placed in first-class condition during the past year, thus giving to the district as pleasant surroundings as are to be found in the state.

Government Profited.
We have not heard anything, however, about the profit made by the government in the San Francisco fire. Yet the only profit made out of it, says the Call of that city, was by the government, and it far exceeds the emergency appropriation. In beer, liquor and tobacco licenses the government has made an enormous sum. The liquor beer, and tobacco stamps sold to dealers unused and destroyed by the fire, reach an enormous sum. If the property they were to cover is still intact, its owners must spend an enormous sum to replace the burned stamps before they are allowed to put it into market. The dealers whose licenses were burned must buy new permits before they can resume business and begin the repair of their shattered fortunes. Then a very large sum in greenbacks was destroyed, thus relieving the government of responsibility for their gold redemption. Another enormous sum in silver dollars was melted into bullion, again relieving the government of the redemption of the coin, and leaving to the owner only the bullion value of the metal, provided he can find it in the ruins. In these various ways it is closely estimated that the government made a profit of $4,000,000 in the San Francisco fire. It has made small profits in other thrifty ways. The mail contractors were fined for not carrying the mails through blazing streets and over impassable ruins during and immediately after the fire. The subordinates of the internal revenue collector were kept on duty guarding the government bonded warehouses, and many of them working day and night without food or even sufficient water to drink, and the government thrifly makes a profit by ordering all their pay stopped from the 18th of April until the 1st of May!

State Boundary Decisions.
Two important decisions have recently been handed down by the United States supreme court, establishing the boundaries between states. Louisiana and Mississippi went to law over the marshy and once valueless islands extending eastward from St. Bernard parish, near the Chandeleur islands. Pearl river is the boundary between the states. When it was found that the islands were among the finest oyster reefs in the world, each state claimed them and set about organizing oyster police to control them. Mississippi held that its state line ran directly out to sea from the mouth of Pearl river, and gave it all the islands. Louisiana contended that the line turned eastward in the ship channel toward Cat island. The supreme court has decided that all west of Cat island belongs to Louisiana. As there are many canneries in Mississippi and the Louisiana law will prevent their obtaining oysters in that state, Mississippi will probably fill in extensive artificial reefs for oyster culture along its own shore. The other decision was in a suit between Iowa and Illinois, growing out of the right to take railway bridges across the Mississippi river. The boundary was the "middle of the river." Iowa maintained that this meant half way between the banks; Illinois contended for the middle of the steamboat channel. The supreme court upheld the contention of Illinois, and recommended that the boundary be officially marked wherever possible to avoid confusion from shifting and fickle channels.

New Kind of "Graph."
"A blue trip slip for a three-cent fare, a pink trip slip for a five-cent fare." The tessera-graph has been invented by Roberto Taegri Placilli, of Florence, Italy, to do away with the present practice whereby thousands of tickets for all stations are printed in advance and kept in stock, and also to register automatically the amounts cashed. The machine prints each separate ticket in one operation from a strip of thick paper, the ticket bearing the name of the issuing station, the destination, date of issue, ticket number, class, kind, price, the company's monogram, etc.; and on the obverse any service indication or commercial advertisement as may be most suitable to each company. An exact duplicate is issued simultaneously for checking purposes. The machine can print 400 different kinds of tickets. No tickets can be issued until the inspector in charge on opening the ticket office in the morning has freed the machine and, as the case may be, has brought back all the totals to zero.

Four thousand different varieties of potatoes have been planted on the farms of Luther Burbank, the Santa Rosa, Cal., horticulturist, constituting part of 12,000 species of the tuber family with which Burbank will experiment this year in his plans to give the world another new potato.

Of course it isn't just exactly socially pleasant to be the ice man in these days of boosting prices, but—he gets the money. And, really, you know, that's all he started after.

MICHIGAN EVENTS NOTED

YOUNG LADY, SICK, WEARY AND DESPONDENT, COMMITS SUICIDE.

DIED AT FRIEND'S HOME

Life Was Unhappy and Death Sought as a Welcome Relief by Flora Bycraft.

Took Strychnine.
Weary, sick and despondent, ordered from home by her father, Flora Bycraft, a handsome girl of 20 years of age, ended her life by taking strychnine and died at the home of a neighbor in Jackson. After taking the deadly drug the girl called up her friend, Miss Mabel Hueston, and talked to her over the telephone, although she was even then in the shadow of death. She had scarcely hung up the receiver when she was seized with terrible convulsions, gasped out the fact that she had taken strychnine, and was soon dead.

The girl had been working as a waitress in the restaurant conducted by her father. Her father and mother are separated, the latter living with her two sons at Ypsilanti. It is said that Miss Bycraft did not get along well with Mrs. Hattie Brown, the cook at the restaurant. The father admits that he told the girl that she would have to leave the restaurant and go to her mother.

The girl told Mrs. A. R. Matteson that she was being turned out of her home and had no place to go.

"When I do leave, you will hear about it," she added significantly.

The girl purchased the strychnine during the afternoon. After taking the poison, she evidently wanted to die among friends and she went to the residence of Miss Hueston, who had been kind to her. Mabel was calling at the home of another sister, and Miss Bycraft said she would call Mabel up. They talked upon the most ordinary topics and Mabel noticed that Miss Bycraft's voice was very faint and indistinct asked her what the matter was.

"I can't tell you over the phone, Mabel," replied the girl even then in the agonies of approaching death.

She then said that she must ring off as she was going to her brother's.

"Call up my house in a little while and see if I get there all right, will you?" she added. She then said good-bye and started to go from the house. Reaching the front gate, she turned and staggered back to the house.

"Call up my brother, will you?" she said to Miss Lizzie Hueston, as she sank into a chair and went into convulsions.

"I took strychnine," she confessed, and those were her last words. A physician was summoned, but by the time he had arrived, she was dead.

Died on Holidays.

The death of 7-year-old Josephine Kratz at Negaunee marks the fourth remarkable fatality in the family of Mr. and Mrs. Mathen Kratz. A child died last Thanksgiving of typhoid fever, a second died last Christmas from the same disease, and a third succumbed on New Year's day, while the fourth child died from accidental burns on the Fourth of July, thus marking each of the principal holidays of the year with a tombstone for the Kratz family.

Free Ice for the Cream.

A strange occurrence is reported by William Russell, of Battle Creek, as having occurred during his recent visit to Aurelius, where he went to a family picnic. Just before dinner it was discovered that the ice with which to freeze the cream had been forgotten. As the picknickers bewailed their misfortune, it commenced to rain, and then to hail, and such large stones fell that the men gathered enough in the canvas flap of a tent to freeze the cream.

Heartless Mother.

Turning heartlessly from her two children, one a girl of 6 years and the other boy a year older, Mrs. Weaver, wife of Michael Weaver, of Kawkawlin, attempted to desert them in the office of the prosecuting attorney. Threat of arrest by Assistant Prosecutor Waddle deterred her from carrying out her purpose. Mrs. Weaver left her husband, who is a carpenter, taking the two children to the home of her brother. Later, she brought them to the prosecutor's office, and said she would leave them there until Weaver came for them.

Died at Banquet.

With her family gathered around her, celebrating her 87th birthday yesterday, Mrs. Ira Beckley, living near Battle Creek, swooned at the banquet table and died from heart failure when taken to an easy chair. Acute indigestion caused by eating ice cream and delicacies provided for the birthday feast is said to have hastened her death. One of these delicacies was a birthday cake made by Mrs. Beckley herself. Deceased leaves five grown children, all well known locally.

While washing dishes in a South Haven restaurant William Pitt was shot through the neck and is in a critical condition. The bullet was fired through the window. No cause can be given for the act and no trace of the shooter has been found.

Mrs. Lulu Raff, of Ann Arbor, whose husband, "Shorty" Raff, was sent to Jackson a few years ago for bigamy, has written a petition to Judge Kinne for a pardon for her husband. Raff married a Miss Annie Hartz, of Detroit, while still bound to his first wife. Miss Hartz had him arrested.

The sheriff of Benzie county, acting under authority of the circuit court, has opened the outlet of Crystal lake, permitting the water to flow into Betsey river. The lowering of the lake will restore the beautiful beach on which are built many summer cottages.

Drove to Death.
Though warned of his danger by the shouts of bystanders, William Meyers, a dairyman living two miles north of Moore's park, in Schoolcraft, drove to his death before a fast Grand Trunk passenger train. The horses attempted to turn aside, but Meyers, apparently oblivious of his danger, drove them directly on the track. Hurled by the force of the train to a great distance, horses and man fell to their death together.

RAILROAD AND EX-OFFICIALS FOUND GUILTY OF REBATING

VERDICT ADVERSE TO C. & A. R. TURNED BEFORE JUDGE LANDIS AT CHICAGO—IMPOR-TANT VICTORY FOR GOVERNMENT.

Chicago.—The Chicago & Alton Railroad company and two former officials of the road were found guilty Friday of granting rebates.

Punishment for the offenses charged is a fine of not less than $6,000 nor more than $120,000, according to the district attorney.

The punishment has not yet been fixed. The road is declared guilty on each of eight counts. Secret concessions granted by the company to Schwarzschild & Sulzberger formed the basis of the indictments.

This is considered one of the most important victories of its kind won by the government. It means the beginning of many prosecutions.

The attorneys of the railroad gave notice of an appeal. They may, however, in view of the evidence, decide to waive further effort to prove the innocence of the road of conspiracy.

Judge K. M. Landis overruled a motion made in behalf of John M. Faithorn and Frederick A. Wann, former executives of the Chicago & Alton railway, charged with giving rebates to Schwarzschild & Sulzberger that the cases be taken from the jury and a court order entered in favor of the defendants.

The basis of the motion made by the attorneys for the railroad men was that the rebates, assuming that they had been made, did not constitute rebates as contemplated by the law.

The judge says that it appears from the evidence that prior to 1901 the Chicago & Alton Railway company charged the belt road four dollars a car for hauls from the packing company's platforms, over the packers' private tracks and the belt line tracks to the Chicago & Alton tracks, and that the belt line paid one dollar to the packing company for the part of the haul that was over the tracks of the company.

This practice is said to have been known to the Alton company and continued until January 1, 1901, when, for some reason which does not appear, but at the alleged request of Schwarzschild & Sulzberger, the arrangements were changed so that the Alton company made the payments direct to the packing company, instead of through the medium of the belt company.

Coincident with this change the belt line filed new schedules showing its rates for moving the packing company's traffic to be three dollars a car, which amount the Alton absorbed in its tariff collected from Schwarzschild & Sulzberger and paid over to the belt road.

CHOLERA SITUATION BETTER

Decrease in Number of Cases Reported at Manila—Number of Deaths from Scourge.

Manila.—The cholera situation has improved. The report at six o'clock Thursday night showed 15 new cases since midnight of July 4 and ten deaths. The report for July 4 shows 28 cases and 19 deaths. For the week ending July 4 there were 116 cases and 99 deaths.

Two Americans—Robert Imobertz and —Hart—are dead, but to date only five Americans have been seized with the disorder. Thus far cholera has not appeared in the American section of the city. The Americans who have been stricken live in the native sections of Manila.

The bureau of health has refused to permit the sale of foodstuffs that may have been liable to infection. The efforts of the doctors engaged in combating the disease show results in the decrease of the number of new cases. While the disease started in stronger than the great epidemic of 1902, the authorities believe that they have the situation now under control.

ELEVEN MEN KILLED BY CARS

Loosened Brakes Permits Coal Carrier to Speed Down Inclined Track and Spread Death.

Altoona, Pa.—A runaway mine car, flying like the wind down a mine branch track that runs from Puritan to Portage, just before midnight Tuesday, reaped a frightful harvest of eleven men killed and several injured.

The car had been left standing near Puritan when the mines closed, and some malicious person loosened the brakes and permitted the car to speed down the sharp incline.

The disaster happened on what is known as Martin's branch, a stretch of track four miles long that acts as a feeder for several mines that are located between Portage and Puritan. The car was stopped one mile west of Portage, but in the short space of three miles eleven men were instantly killed.

FIVE DIE IN SQUALL

DINGEY OF CHICAGO NAVAL RESERVES CAPSIZES.

MEN ARE UNABLE TO SWIM

Coxswain Makes Desperate But Unsuccessful Effort to Save Lives of Comrades—The Victims.

Chicago.—Five members of the Chicago contingent of the Illinois naval reserves were drowned after a desperate struggle in the water just outside the harbor breakwater Thursday night, when a sudden squall overturned the dingy in which they were sailing. There were seven men in the boat, all but one of them, the coxswain, being inexperienced. When the wind struck the craft the men were so frightened that they became entangled in the cordage in their efforts to right the boat, and their misdirected efforts helped to capsize the dingy.

Thomas Coffey, the coxswain, endeavored to save the men who were drowned, none of whom could swim. After the boat overturned, all floundered about in the water for a few seconds. Coffey swam toward Heeg and Pimes, but they clutched him around the neck and he was almost drawn down in the struggle that followed. He was compelled to fight the men he would have saved, if he could, and when he finally released himself from their hold he was so exhausted that he could not dive for them as they sunk out of sight.

The dead are: Anthony J. Capodice, 20 years old, son of August Capodice, confectioner, 6510 Cottage Grove avenue; Ralph Heeg, 21 years old, 188 West Jackson boulevard; E. M. O'Carroll, 18 years old, 2927 Parrell avenue, clerk at 259 Clinton street; Joseph Pimes, 30 years old, 1659 Barry avenue, body recovered by life-saving crew; Robert E. Schram, 18 years old, 306 Haddon avenue, had enlisted this week, and was not yet formally enrolled.

The survivors: Thomas Coffey, 23 years old, 256 Fortieth street, coxswain; Frank Randall, 18 years old, residence 3031 Canal street.

The dingy, which was left behind when the Dorothea went for a cruise in Harbor Springs, Mich., started out on its trip of instruction shortly before nine p. m. Thursday. Six men in it were recruits and Coxswain Coffey was teaching them the use of the sail. The squall struck them about an hour after they left the bathhouse, and Coffey and Randall clung to the bottom of the overturned boat for half an hour before a boat from the life-saving station reached them.

GOVERNMENT RUN CHEAPLY

TAWNEY TELLS WHAT MONEY IS USED FOR.

Statement Regarding Congressional Appropriations Is Made Public.

Washington.—Representative Tawney, chairman of the house committee on appropriations, has prepared a detailed statement concerning the appropriations for the fiscal year beginning July 1, 1906, made by congress during the session just closed, in which he claims that the per capita cost of the government of the United States, including federal and state, is less than in any European state.

Mr. Tawney enters upon an analysis to show the various channels into which the total appropriation of $880,183,301 will be diverted. He begins by deducting $129,456,415 provided for the sinking fund, the Panama canal, etc., showing that the real appropriation for the conduct of the government for the fiscal year is $740,726,886. To meet this demand he estimates that the total revenues (customs, internal and postal) will be $781,573,364.

The appropriations as made in the various supply bills are as follows:

Agriculture, $9,932,940; army, $71,817,165; diplomatic and consular, $13,091,094; District of Columbia, $10,138,692; fortifications, $5,053,993; Indian, $9,280,400; legislative, etc., $29,741,019; military academy, $1,664,708; navy, $102,071,650; pension, $140,245,500; post office, $191,695,999; sundry civil, $98,274,574. Total, $672,987,734.

Isthmian canal deficiency bill, $11,000,000; urgent deficiency, 1906 and prior years, $16,270,332; urgent deficiency, additional, 1906 and prior years, $274,925; deficiency 1906 and prior years, $11,573,989.

Total regular annual appropriations, $140,076,320. Grand total regular and permanent annual appropriations, $880,183,301.

The aggregate appropriation is $60,000,000 in excess of that for last year.

Of the various increases, that of $2,050,250 is made on account of meat inspection; $1,420,533 on account of the army; $968,046, to carry the new consular law into effect; $1,734,970 on account of the navy; $1,995,400 on account of pensions; $10,673,905 on account of the post office department, of which $3,030,000 was for rural free delivery. Of the appropriations made, about $31,000,000 was unestimated for. Included in this list were the following: $10,250,000 carried in the statehood act; $1,000,000 for arming and equipping the militia, $2,500,000 on account of the earthquake and fire at San Francisco, $500,000 on account of the new quarantine law, $10,231,600 on account of public buildings.

CLEAN BILL FOR PACKERS.

Committee of Experts Declare Meat Is Wholesome—Recent Reforms at Yards Admitted.

Chicago.—The committee of experts engaged by the Illinois Manufacturers' association and the Chicago Commercial association to investigate conditions at the stockyards has submitted its report, and gives the Chicago packing-houses a clean bill of health. The investigators announce that the dressed meat prepared at the yards is wholesome, that the canned meats are healthful and nutritious, and that the system of inspection at the plants is, on the whole, efficient.

While the standard of cleanliness seemed to be favorably impressed, but it pointed out that some of the reforms were apparently recent. The committee recommended that great improved facilities be provided in the United States for the training of men in the important specialty of meat inspection, and suggested that Chicago packing plants be made available as preparatory school.

The accident happened at the foot of the Ward hill just east of the Luick waiting room. The motorman claims that he did not see the animals until he was too close upon them to stop the car. Usually the car runs extremely fast in coming down the Ward hill. Two of the animals were caught under the fender of the coach and the front trucks were derailed. Fortunately none of the passengers or employees of the company were injured.

F. L. Davidson has been giving a cement mixing machine a thorough trial the past week. The machine is operated by a small gasoline engine. The gravel is placed in a hopper on one side of the machine and the cement in a like receptacle on the other side and the two ingredients are drawn into the mixer by a series of revolving brushes which are so adjusted that the proper amount of gravel and cement is taken into the mixer for the class of work that is being done. After the materials have been thoroughly mixed a stream of water is applied and the spiral arrangement which takes it from the machine to the wheelbarrows delivers the material ready for the men to use.

OPERATION AVOIDED

EXPERIENCE OF MISS MERKLEY

She Was Told That an Operation Was Inevitable. How She Escaped It.

When a physician tells a woman suffering with serious feminine trouble that an operation is necessary, the very thought of the knife and the operating table strikes terror to her heart, and our hospitals are full of women coming for just such operations.

There are cases where an operation is the only resource, but when one considers the great number of cases of meningeal female troubles cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound after physicians have advised operations, no woman should submit to one without first trying the Vegetable Compound and writing Mrs. Pinkham, Lynn, Mass., for advice, which is free.

Miss Margaret Merkley, of 275 Third Street, Milwaukee, Wis., writes:

Dear Mrs. Pinkham: Loss of strength, extreme nervousness, shooting pains through the pelvic organs, bearing down pains and cramps compelled me to seek medical advice. The doctor, after making an examination, said I had a female trouble and ulceration and advised an operation. To this I strongly objected and decided to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. The ulceration quickly healed, all the bad symptoms disappeared and I am once more strong, vigorous and well.

Female troubles are steadily on the increase among women. If the monthly periods are very painful, or too frequent and excessive—if you have pain or swelling low down in the left side, bearing-down pains, don't neglect yourself: try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

THE FIRST COMPASS.

Was Known to Sailors Before the Twelfth Century—Indispensable Adjunct to Navigation.

Some Asian people, perhaps the Chinese, discovered, many centuries ago, that a kind of iron ore possessed a very peculiar quality. We call this ore magnetic ore, in more common language, lodestone, and it is very widely distributed, especially in the older crystalline rocks. It was found that if a bit of lodestone were placed in water upon a piece of cork or straw braid it would turn till the axis of the stone assumed a north and south position. A phenomenon of magnetism had been discovered by means of an ore that is peculiarly susceptible to magnetic influence.

It is an open question whether the Chinese utilized the directive power of the lodestone, but it is certain that the first rude compass was not used on European vessels before the twelfth century of our era. By that time the true magnetic compass had been evolved through the discovery that if an iron or steel needle were stroked on a lodestone it would receive the attractive and directive power of this ore. With this wonderful appliance placed at the service of navigation, the vessels that had hugged the coasts soon dared to venture even out of sight of land. A new impetus was gradually given to cartography, for now the true directions of the coast lines might be charted with some approach to accuracy. It was the happy fortune of Italian sailors to make the surprisingly excellent surveys of the directions and lengths of the Black sea and Mediterranean coasts and along the Atlantic to British waters that have come down to us in the so-called Ptolemy maps. Cyrus C. Adams, in Harper's.

German Patent Office Faults. The German patent office comes in for much censure. One would suppose such an institution to exact no more of inventors than is needed to pay current expenses, but in reality the charges are so high that the state pockets half the income as profit. It is pointed out that for poor inventors matters are almost as bad as they were when Gutenberg, after inventing the art of printing, lived in poverty and finally had to pawn his apparatus.

The Romans had small regard for human life in their amusements. "Yes," answered the man of violent prejudices. "It's a matter of great surprise to me that they failed to discover football."—Washington Star.

60 Bus. Winter Wheat Per Acre
The field of wheat at Orem, Utah, showing the result of the use of Dr. Williams' Kidney Pills. The crop was unusually large and fine, and the wheat was sold at a high price. The farmer who used the pills was Mr. J. H. Smith, of Orem, Utah. He writes: "I have used Dr. Williams' Kidney Pills for many years, and they have done me much good. I am now a healthy man, and my crops are always large and fine."—Orem, Utah.

The INVISIBLES

A NOVEL
BY EDGAR EARL

The hours passed, and the streets were deserted; the lights burned low, and from the old town hall the great bell boomed out the stroke of midnight. The wings of the old "Bald Eagle" at the portals of the tavern were damp with dew, a horse pawed the ground restlessly, and whinnied for his drunken master, an answering neigh from another tired and faithful beast came from the distance. From the thick woods came the hoot of an owl, but the revelers of the tavern still clinked their glasses, still threw the dice and shuffled the cards. Midnight was but dawn to them. The "Bald Eagle" was an all-night hostelry, and its lights never grew dim. It was the beacon for gamblers and murderers who plied the river, as well as for the landsharks who were ever ready to meet their natural enemies—the boatmen.

Deneau sat in his room above the reeking bar; but the sounds below had no particular interest for him. He had spent his nights in a thousand taverns. He had lived, breathed and moved among criminals from his earliest childhood. A murder, to him, was simply a scene in a play, without which the scene was incomplete. A bar like the "Bald Eagle" would be robbed of one of its particular charms; it needed a climax, or the drama would lose its interest. He believed that crime was a lodestone for certain natures, and that the sight of blood was as wine to the palates of certain men. He had studied the scarlet nature of man, and he believed that criminal was fascinated by crime as a surgeon by surgery, that once a man has become a criminal the original elements of the lower animal again possess him and he loses the human elements of his domesticity, as it were, and, returning to his native state, becomes a savage.

He had before him letters from Paris, with recent postmarks, large packages from St. Petersburg, as well as clippings, old and new, from daily papers. At his right a small notebook in which he kept a diary, at his left a pitcher of ale, from which he drank frequent draughts. "Ah," he muttered, "at last I see the light, at last I have traced the panther to his lair, step by step, and now when I am ready for the last stroke, a strange, an unforeseen, an unheard of problem presents itself. Jean Valdemere, alias Langdon, alias the devil, is not a hermit, and only hermits live alone—and in caverns." He mused in silence, then he drank from the pitcher, after which he made a note in his diary.

"Ah," he muttered, "old Uga has been a most valuable acquaintance—he gazed at the ring on his finger and smiled grimly upon the strange symbol cut in black stone, 'spirits don't wear rings—rings will only cling to matter.'"

Deneau had heard the Indian's story, had by chance visited his cabin—a lucky chance.

The superstitious old savage had told him in terror of his encounter with the Spirit of Dead Man's Cave—how the spirit had divided the great stone walls—how he had smote him to the earth, and the thousands of sounds which had echoed his speech, which had led him to believe the voices were those of the other world.

Word by word had this human form drawn from the old Indian the story of his encounter with the Spirit of Dead Man's Cave. He had visited the Indian many times and from the hut he had watched for the spirit—a spirit which he had materialized easily enough into Jean Valdemere—to emerge from the mouth of the cavern. He had visited this cave, and had found the ring with its strange symbol upon the ground where old Uga had fallen in his fright, but, as yet, he had never seen Valdemere leave the cave. He had divided his time between the old house and the cave, but no man had been seen either to enter or to leave, and still he watched and waited.

"Ah," he said, "if only La Prade were here—why does he not come?—the old dog—I only want La Prade and the thing is done. I will know what is beyond those stone walls—what devilish device is employed to shut out the world from this cavern, compared to which Dead Man's Cave seems but a grotto."

His eyes blazed, and again he drank from the pitcher. There was a knock on the door. He raised his eyes to listen. The knock was repeated.

"Come in," he said in a calm voice. The door opened, and a servant entered with a message. Deneau tore the seal—then his evil black eyes danced in their sockets; the news was so pleasing to him that he even tossed a coin to the servant—a thing which caused that worthy to stare, for the detective had not been known to distribute his money very generously, and was held in contempt by the servants of the tavern.

"Any answer, Mr. Duvalle?" (he was known as Duvalle)—said the man, as he fingered the coin to see if it were genuine.

"That is all," said the detective, who in his joy had forgotten the presence of the man.

The door closed. "Ah, at last—at last, La Prade comes, and now my worthy Mr. Langdon of Paris—my mysterious Mr. Valdemere of the Mines, gentleman, convict, magician, I have you now, and I will yet give your head to the czar and your body to the dogs. Your trail comes to an end. We will soon see into your den—we will soon know the secrets of that damned hole, and mayhap we will find a treasure worth our zeal."

Then he again read the cablegram—he laughed sepulchral—he grinned into the cracked mirror, and shook his bony fist at his bony face reflected there—the image of a triumphant devil. He again read the message.

"Will reach New York the 20th."

These were significant words to Deneau, they would enable him to plan and act with decision.

He left the tavern at nightfall, and within an hour he was before the door of the Indian.

As he approached the dark, silent hut, he was beset by a brace of savage dogs who rent the air with their furious howls. Deneau kicked the angry brutes from his path, and knocked loudly upon the door of the hut.

A voice came from within, and the old Indian was heard moving about in the darkness.

"Who comes?" he demanded.

"A friend," said Deneau, "open quickly."

"It is early for a friend, what do you want?"

"Open quickly, damn you," cried Deneau, "or I will break in the door."

The door opened slowly, and in the moonlight which fell upon the threshold the large powerful frame of the old Indian stood, his long coarse hair falling to his shoulders, and his black eyes fixed upon the detective with that watchful interest which marked his race.

Deneau pushed him aside and entered the hut—as barren and as barbaric as the wigwags of his progenitors, but less luxurious—a board table—a rude stool, an inverted tub, together with a coarse blanket, completed his assets, unless the kettle which hung by a chain from the chimney could be called an asset.

Deneau took the stool and motioned Uga to the inverted tub.

"Master is early to-night," said the Indian, indifferently, "and the air is chill."

"I can't warm the air," said Deneau, "but I have something to warm the man," and he pulled a flask of liquor from his pocket—he knew how to please his host.

The eyes of the old Indian snapped fire—he was transformed as by magic from a sullen evil-tempered savage to an obliging, sympathetic host.

"Ah, I see," he said, casting an affectionate glance toward the bottle, "you have brought warmth to my lonely hut—you are welcome, master."

Uga, a semi-civilized Cherokee, who lived but little among his own people, had acquired a fair knowledge of English. He had been cared for by a wealthy planter, who had found him a useful servant during the early settlement of the country, for he still retained the cunning and the daring of his race. He knew the country as a tiger knows the jungle. His master, whom he had survived, was accredited with certain deeds which caused even his memory to be held in abhorrence, and as the Indian had filled the place of a body-guard to the fierce old planter, he also, was avoided by the timid—watched by the bold.

"What can I do for my master?" said he, for he always spoke to the whites as his masters, from the habit of long service.

"How are the spirits over in the cave?" and Deneau smiled as he noted the wild look of the Indian, in whose nature superstition was the predominant sentiment.

"Ugh, I know what I told you, I know no more, and when my time comes I will go there."

"The devil you will," said Deneau, laughing; "it seems these spirits are not to your liking?"

Uga shivered. "When I am dead I will be like them," he said.

"I have brought some spirits that will interest you I think," continued Deneau, holding the flask before the sputtering candle. "Here is a quart bottle of spirits that wears no rings, but they can make a man believe he wears diamonds."

The Indian again sat upright, and reached his long red hand for the bottle. When he had drunk considerable of the contents, his face flushed, his eyes sparkled—the effect was instantaneous—he could even talk of Dead Man's Cave.

"Have you seen any one enter that cave?" said Deneau.

The Indian shook his head. "Have you watched, as you promised?"

"I have watched day and night from my hut—I have seen every boat that passed—every canoe and every man that walked on either bank, but no man has been to the cave."

"Have any strange men passed your hut since I was here?"

"Some."

"Some? What do you mean, you dog, how many, what kind, and when? Answer me, you drunken devil."

"Give me the bottle," cried Uga, rising from the tub and reaching for the flask. His eyes were now fishy and his step uncertain, but Deneau suffered him to have his way.

"You are lying, you besotted savage," cried Deneau, "on what bank?"

"The other bank—the one across—and his hair was the color of fire—he was bigger than any pale face—bigger than any Cherokee—the biggest man in the world," Uga had become serious, though the powerful stimulant was telling on him.

"I think he went down stream—if not he went up."

"You cursed fool, did you not watch him?"

"I watched him, but I saw not where he went."

"Did he go toward the cavern?"

"Never—Never!"

"I don't think so. I did not see him when he was out of sight," his head was now falling forward upon his breast.

"Did not see him when he was out of your sight? What hellish jargon is this, you mud-colored imp of hell?" cried Deneau, and he shook Uga fiercely to arouse him.

"Listen to me," he continued, looking into the eyes of the old savage. "I am going into that cave to-night, and I want you to go with me."

"Go with you?" cried Uga. "Go in there?—me go among the spirits of that cave—never!—I would drink owl's blood first—never!" and he fell back upon the floor, still crying "never!—never!—owl's blood—owl's blood," then his lips blubbered some foolish jargon, his eyes closed and he knew no more.

Deneau looked upon the unconscious form, a smile, sinister and significant upon his face.

The moonlight filtered through the chinks of the old hut and fell upon the face of the unconscious savage. Deneau closed the door behind him and left the place, again kicking the bounds from his way as he followed the narrow path to the woods beyond.

"Ah," he muttered, "a large man, a very large man, man with hair like fire—the drunken devil, what does he mean by that? Oh, I see—red hair—can it be true that such a man came from that cave—or was he preparing to enter? Ah, had I been near," and thus Deneau, unmindful of those he passed, at last reached the "Bald Eagle."

No Deal.

"She's worth her weight in gold!" the proud American mother asserted.

Assuming pure gold worth approximately $20 per ounce, and knowing her weight to be 110 pounds, the count by a rapid mental calculation arrived at the figure $15,400.

Altered in Repairing.

A man in Chicago, says a writer in Judge, found himself in the chair of a strange barber, to whom his features, although unfamiliar, seemed to carry some reminiscent suggestion.

"Have you been here before?" asked the haircutter.

"Once," said the man.

"Strange I do not recognize your face."

"Not at all," said the man. "It changed a good deal as it healed."

Bobbie Wanted to Know.

"Say, papa, you was tellin' Mr. Crummage 'bout shootin' an eagle on th' wing. Which wing was it?"

"You don't understand, Bobby. It was a soaring eagle I shot."

"Did it make him sore when you shot him, papa?"

"No, no, Bobby. The eagle was up—up in the air—enjoying a long fly."

"Do eagles eat long flies, papa?"

"Jane, why don't you put the child to bed?"—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Tale of a Stray Dog

Miners Claim He Brings Them Luck

Out of the bounds of the widespread bunch of tents that make up the new mining camp of Manhattan, Nev., comes the story of a little yellow dog. It is an absorbing story in its every detail and withal a true one.

"Bob, the stray dog," they call him, and it needs a Jack London in his happiest moments of description to truly depict the human interest side of this little animal's history. So many tales have been woven around him and so many incidents have been given out with his actions as the center of the story, that it is at times hard to separate the truth from the fiction.

But the fact remains that on nine-tenths of the rich discoveries that have been made in the Manhattan district, the "Stray Dog" has appeared at some time during the day previous and taken up his abode with the fortunate miners. Nothing can prevail upon him to remain with any one miner or group of miners for more than three days, and when once he has left the camp where he has been an ephemeral sojourner, he never again greets his host in a friendly spirit.

So strong has the belief in the great luck that follows a visit of his to any district become implanted in the minds of the miners that they will go to any length to obtain this small dog's favor.

"Bob" was with Davis when the great discovery on the April Fool was made. He was with Harry Dudson when that erratic miner struck rich ore on the "Stray Dog" claim. When the first shaft on the Annie Laurie pierced what seemed to be a barren rock and found specimen ore that resembled the show cases of a jewelry store, the Stray Dog had already been a visitor for a day. When the great streak of white quartz on the Broncho was first brought to light, with its beautiful seams of yellow metal, the Stray Dog was barking with delight in and out among the excited miners. He was on the Nellie Gray claim, of the Gold Wedge property, when the continuation of the famous Briggs lease was found, completely hidden, as it was, by masses of country rock. He was on the Iron King and Iron Queen when the first rocker of placer dirt shook down its coarse granules of gold. So many times has he been present, to remain but a few hours and then to disappear, that no new discovery is made but that the question is asked at once by some one, "Was the dog around?"

Thirty miles from Manhattan a discovery was made in Miller county, and when the excited prospectors became somewhat settled down again they discovered that the Stray Dog had been before them just one week. When Mershon located the Yellow Horse, "Bob" was there; when the rich leases on Litigation Hill were found "Bob" was distributing his favors equally among the miners.

At the time the Homestake claim—that rich discovery that startled old-time miners—first showed its true value, it was learned that the Stray Dog had chased a chipmunk under the tree where the richest gold was brought to light.

The strife for the Stray Dog's favor amongst the rough men of the hills becomes at times almost a pitched battle. They cut the heart out of the tenderloins for the purpose of tempting him. They feed him boxed candy, and prepare beds of cotton batting for him. He stays three or four days with one miner and all of a sudden he disappears. He is a fine watch dog. When he is around no strangers or intruders are allowed near the tents. The miners have taken his appearances so much to heart that they have become firm believers in him as a sure forerunner of good luck.

When any man strikes it rich, the dog has invariably been upon the ground. One man, who had lost a fortune in eastern investments and was roughing it in the foothills around Manhattan, thinking to recuperate, spent a week in feeding "Bob" dainties and endeavoring to coax the dog to go out prospecting with him. But there was nothing doing.

"Bob," the stray dog, is close to medium size, his ears are sharp pointed and continually moving. He is a mixture of collie and cur. The story is told of him that he belonged to an Indian who was laid apart from his tribe to die. Bob stayed with his master until his fate finally overcame him, both man and dog silent, both seeming to understand the necessary end. When the Indian was finally found by a party of white and buried out of sight the stray dog took up his eccentric life.

For three weeks Bob has disappeared from Manhattan, and in that three weeks of his very remarkable discoveries of rich ore have been made. But it is reported that he was seen 40 miles away gradually working his way back to the camp of his friends.

Sinful Doings in Boston.

There must be some wicked people in Boston who "are given to revel and ungodly glee." Recently a lot of alleged citizens conceived the sinful idea of having beer with their supper after the theater—what else could be expected in the frequenters of playhouses?—and so tried to get a bill through the great and general court allowing drinks to be sold after 11 o'clock on week days. Being baffled in that, they took to buying flowers on the Sabbath, but the local authorities soon put a stop to such wickedness, and now everybody is wondering in what direction the disorderly element will break out next time.

DYSPEPTIC PHILOSOPHY.

Most of us have trouble to lend. Love will find a way, even a way out.

Fortune doesn't always smile on the funny man.

Success is doing a thing before some one else does it.

Marriage is the gateway from romance to reality.

Fortune never knocks at some doors because it can't get by the janitor.

It doesn't pay to go entirely on the theory that things go by contraries.

The woman who dresses better than her friends will never be popular with them.

Those who have greatness thrust upon them seldom know what to do with it.

The fool and his money are what keep the rest of us from starving to death.

Riches have wings, but they are not the kind of wings that are fashionable in heaven.

Lots of wives never understand why their husbands should need any spending money.

Some men are so fond of sympathy that they actually glory in being the under dog.

If a man would only pay his debts as promptly as his grudges his credit would be better.

When a girl begins to ask a fellow about his life insurance, the rest ought to be easy.

As a rule women are not inclined to lay up anything for a rainy day—probably because they dislike the idea of shopping in the rain.

BLOATED WITH DROPSY.

The Heart Was Badly Affected When the Patient Began Using Doan's.

Mrs. Elizabeth Maxwell, of 415 West Fourth St., Olympia, Wash., says: "For over three years I suffered with a dropsical condition without being aware that it was due to kidney trouble. The early stages were principally backache and bearing down pain, but I went along without worrying much until dropsy set in. My feet and ankles swelled up, my hands puffed, and became so tense I could hardly close them. I had great difficulty in breathing, and my heart would flutter with the least exertion. I could not walk far without stopping again and again to rest. Since using four boxes of Doan's Kidney Pills the bloating has gone down and the feelings of distress have disappeared."

DOCTOR'S SHIFT.

Now Gets Along Without It.

A physician says: "Until last fall I used to eat meat for my breakfast and suffered with indigestion until the meat had passed from the stomach."

"Last fall I began the use of Grape-Nuts for breakfast and very soon found I could do without meat, for my body got all the nourishment necessary from the Grape-Nuts, and since then I have not had any indigestion and am feeling better and have increased in weight."

"Since finding the benefit I derived from Grape-Nuts I have prescribed the food for all of my patients suffering from indigestion or over-feeding and also for those recovering from disease where I want a food easy to take and certain to digest and which will not overtax the stomach."

"I always find the results I look for when I prescribe Grape-Nuts. For ethical reasons please omit my name." Name given by mail by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

The reason for the wonderful amount of nutriment, and the easy digestion of Grape-Nuts is not hard to find.

In the first place, the starchy part of the wheat and barley goes through various processes of cooking, to perfectly change the starch into Dextrose or Post Sugar, in which state it is ready to be easily absorbed by the blood. The parts in the wheat and barley which Nature can make use of for rebuilding brain and nerve centers are retained in this remarkable food, and thus the human body is supplied with the powerful strength producers so easily noticed after one has eaten Grape-Nuts each day for a week or 10 days. "There's a reason."

PURELY FEMININE

How to Secure a Beautiful Neck.

Lemon a Good Whitener—Massage Will Reduce Double Chin and Superfluous Flesh.

The skin of the throat and the general condition of the neck registers accurately just how much or how little care a woman is giving herself.

A FIRM, WHITE NECK.

It also points the first finger to the flight of time. Even a small double chin gives the impression of maturity to a young face, while a very thin neck with prominent cords makes an otherwise healthy person look delicate and haggard.

Our throats are much abused. Probably for this reason so few pretty ones are seen at the opera or at the theater, where the English fashion of wearing slightly décolleté gowns is steadily gaining in favor.

Not only are the throats of nine out of ten women not well proportioned and anything but "Columbas" as the artist describes a beautiful neck. But most of them are not even white. The skin has fairly been tanned by high collars which keep in the perspiration and often the dyed material of the dress collar leaves an almost eradicable stain. Dyed furs are another cause of unsightly throats. These furs unless very carefully prepared now and then cause a slight skin eruption, particularly if they are allowed too near the skin, and this is not properly cared for afterward. In this case the pores of the neck become coarse, the skin looks red and pimples appear. Peroxide of hydrogen applied on a piece of absorbent cotton will serve both as an antiseptic and a bleach and help to bring the skin back to its former whiteness. For every-day purposes lemon juice will do. Rub a piece of lemon over the skin, wipe off with a bit of lemon and repeat until the cloth is no longer discolored. Pure alcohol can be used to good advantage daily as a cleanser for the neck, but it has not the bleaching qualities of the lemon. Before using any one of these three methods, however, plain hot water and soap must not be forgotten.

So much for the skin; now for the contour of the throat. When the neck is too short it inclines to fat at a very early age. The double chin appears and the roll of flesh all around the edge of the collar. Massage will reduce the flesh.

YOUNG GIRLS NEED A CALENDAR

BY MARGARET E. SANGSTER.

I wonder if you ever think, dear girl, what story the calendar is telling for you. Perhaps you have a tiny pocket calendar tucked into your purse that you may consult it if you happen, as careless people sometimes do, to forget the date; not that I fancy you belong to that set or that you do not keep tally of the days of the month.

A good plan for us all is to remember just where we are, so that we never have to pause and ask somebody to tell us whether it is the 8th or the 9th, the 10th or the 12th day of the month. You may keep a calendar on your dressing bureau, tearing off a leaf every day, or it may hang suspended from a nail by a ribbon or a chain, or be fastened on the wall. Whatever sort of calendar you have it is simply a device to remind you that Time is flying and that it is well to make the most of him and of his opportunities before he is gone out of sight. Just one day at a time is yours and mine, and according as we use or abuse the single day, we shall get the good that is waiting for us and earn the reward that comes to faithful workers.

I am very fond of all sorts and conditions of girls, but there is one variety with which I have no patience; the girl who dawdles, who sits around talking about what she means to do and never accomplishing anything, is not the girl who commends herself to me. She is not only idle herself, but she sets a bad example to every one else and commits the mistake of throwing away the most valuable asset she will ever have. A day when one is young and strong and light-hearted as girls are or should be, is worth ten times as much as a day will be when the same girls are older and know more about care and trouble. Is your story of the calendar a story of work well-done and of play undertaken with all your heart? Whatever you do, never dawdle.

There is something else to think about in the story of the calendar.

It isn't the thing you do, dear. It's the thing you leave undone. That gives you a bit of a heartache At the setting of the sun. The tender word forgotten: The letter you did not write: The flower you did not send, dear. Are your haunting ghosts at night.

The stone you might have lifted Out of a brother's way: The bit of heartsome counsel You were hurried too much to say: The loving touch of the hand, dear. And the gentle, winning tone, That you had no time or thought for With troubles enough of your own.

Those little acts of kindness So easily out of mind. Those chances to be angels Which we poor mortals find. They come in night and silence. Each sad, reproachful wraith. When hope is faint and flagging. And a chill has fallen on faith.

For life is all too short, dear. And sorrow is all too great To suffer our slow compassion. That tarries until too late. And it isn't the things you do, dear. It's the things you leave undone That gives you a bit of a heartache At the setting of the sun.

I do not want the girls I care for to go about with the weight of the world on their shoulders, or would I

TO SAVE HARD LABOR.

Bare Table at Breakfast and Lunch Saves Tablecloths—How to Keep Table Nice.

A bare table at breakfast and luncheon lessens the weekly wash, which is always an interesting and often a burdensome item in the one servant establishment.

Square linen plate doilies are at each cover, two larger ones, also square, lie diamondwise through the center of the table. Between their points is a smaller round or square doily upon which stands the centerpiece of ferns or other growing plants.

The hemstitched doilies are convenient for both the plates and centerpieces, since they are much easier laundered than the figured varieties. One set of the latter is an addition for special occasions.

By this arrangement one tablecloth lasts about five days, which allows only three in two weeks to be laundered. The small doilies are more easily laundered than a tablecloth, and more satisfactorily turned out at the hands of the inexperienced laundress.

To protect the table there may be cut from sheets of asbestos, pieces round, square or oblong, as the case may be, to fit under the various doilies.

A little rubbing of the table with a flannel cloth twice a week keeps it in perfect condition.—Chicago Tribune.

NOTES ON THE FASHIONS.

Black Silk Gloves for Day and Those Matching the Gown the Proper Cap for Evening.

The fashionable woman now wears black glace kid gloves with all her gowns in the day time, but for evening she wears gloves that exactly match her dress. The only exception to this is the white glove or flesh color, both of which are worn a great deal in the evening.

Glove trimmings are very important this season, for they are so pretty and so unusual. A great many of the gloves are hand embroidered, and these hand embroidered gloves, in silk or lisle, are very much the mode. And, of course, with all gloves there are bracelets worn. The bracelet is a thing that is taken for granted.

The wearing of bracelets of different design is one of the summer ideas, and as it is not an expensive fashion, the woman who is trying to dress prettily can take it up. For a moderate sum she can get a beautiful bracelet of antique design which will be in good taste and suitable for wear with any gown.

The wearing of antique jewels is one of the summer fashions, and antique bracelets, dinner rings and gartlets are worn.

The whole idea is that the costume must match throughout, and that any amount of ingenuity must be employed to secure this result. This is the fashion, not only in this country, but in London.

The new materials of summer show a tendency toward the tiny figure, and there are very many that are sprigged and flowered and daintily designed in floral pattern.—Brooklyn Eagle.

Berry Pudding.

When blackberries appear make this berry pudding, which is a favorite one at the Boston cooking school: Beat one-third of a cup of butter to a cream. Add gradually half a cup of sugar and the beaten yolks of two eggs. Sift together two cups of previously sifted flour, four level teaspoonfuls of baking powder and half a teaspoonful of salt. Add this to the creamed butter, sugar and eggs. Put in half of the flour mixture, mix and then put in half a cupful of cold water. Mix in the rest of the flour, etc. Beat thoroughly, and last of all add in the well-beaten whites of two eggs. Sprinkle a cupful of blackberries with a little flour, and add them to the batter as it is dropped, a spoonful at a time, into the mold, which should be rubbed with unsalted butter. Steam an hour and a half, or bake 25 minutes, and serve with a blackberry hard sauce. The sauce is made in the usual way, with half a cup of butter and a cup of sugar. Add to this half a cupful of crushed berries.

Fruit Rolls.

Sift two cupfuls of pastry flour, one teaspoonful of salt and four teaspoonfuls of baking powder together; rub into this with the tips of the fingers one tablespoonful of butter, mix to a soft dough with three-fourths of a cupful of thin cream, toss on a lightly-floured board, pat and roll one-fourth inch thick, cut with biscuit cutter, place a large seeded raisin or the half of a stoned date on one-half the circle, brush the edges with cream, fold over, press the edges firmly together, brush the top with milk or butter, and bake on a buttered sheet in a hot oven for 15 minutes. Fruit may be placed on top of the rolls also if desired.

Pongee in Demand.

Just at present the material most in demand is pongee, in all its different qualities and colorings. House dresses handsome reception gowns, coat and skirt costumes, traveling dresses—it does not seem to matter for what purpose, so varied are the spring and summer models in pongee and rajah cloth.

Raspberry Sherbert.

Mash a quart of raspberries, cover with a pound of sugar, and add the juice of a large lemon. Stand for two hours, then squeeze hard through coarse muslin. Turn into a freezer and freeze.

THE LAXATIVE OF KNOWN QUALITY

There are two classes of remedies: those of known quality and which are permanently beneficial in effect, acting gently, in harmony with nature, when nature needs assistance; and another class, composed of preparations of unknown, uncertain and inferior character, acting temporarily, but injuriously, as a result of forcing the natural functions unnecessarily. One of the most exceptional of the remedies of known quality and excellence is the ever pleasant Syrup of Figs, manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co., which represents the active principles of plants, known to act most beneficially, in a pleasant syrup, in which the wholesome Californian blue figs are used to contribute their rich, yet delicate, fruity flavor. It is the remedy of all remedies to sweeten and refresh and cleanse the system gently and naturally, and to assist one in overcoming constipation and the many ills resulting therefrom. Its active principles and quality are known to physicians generally, and the remedy has therefore met with their approval, as well as with the favor of many millions of well informed persons who know of their own personal knowledge and from actual experience that it is a most excellent laxative remedy. We do not claim that it will cure all manner of ills, but recommend it for what it really represents, a laxative remedy of known quality and excellence, containing nothing of an objectionable or injurious character.

There are two classes of purchasers; those who are informed as to the quality of what they buy and the reasons for the excellence of articles of exceptional merit, and who do not lack courage to go elsewhere when a dealer offers an imitation of any well known article; but, unfortunately, there are some people who do not know, and who allow themselves to be imposed upon. They cannot expect its beneficial effects if they do not get the genuine remedy.

To the credit of the druggists of the United States be it said that nearly all of them value their reputation for professional integrity and the good will of their customers too highly to offer imitations of the manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co., and in order to buy the genuine article and to get its beneficial effects, one has only to note, when purchasing, the full name of the Company—California Fig Syrup Co.—plainly printed on the front of every package. Price, 50c. per bottle. One size only.

Glass That Keeps Out Heat.

An Austrian inventor, Richard Szgmondy, is reported to have made a new kind of window glass whose chief peculiarity is that it prevents the passage of nine-tenths of the heat of the sun's rays.

It is well known that ordinary window glass allows nearly all of the heat derived from the sun to pass through, but, on the other hand, intercepts all heat coming from non-luminous sources, such as a stove or the heated ground. This is the reason why heat accumulates under the glass roof of a hothouse.

If covered with Szgmondy's glass a hothouse would, it is claimed, become a cold house, since the heat could not get into it. One advantage set forth in favor of the new glass is that a house whose windows were furnished with it would remain delightfully cool in summer. But in winter, perhaps, the situation would not be so agreeable.

The amount of work a boy puts into baseball would raise a lot of potatoes for him to eat.—N. Y. Press.

John Pidd, of Dexter, met with quite a serious accident Tuesday. While working with the carpenters on a barn on the farm of Edward Dancer in Lima one of the rafters, which were being put up, fell and struck Mr. Pidd on the shoulder, knocking him off a scaffold. He fell to the floor below, about 15 feet striking on his head and shoulders, and the rafter fell on top of him. He was unconscious for several hours. He was removed to his home and is now recovering nicely.—Dexter Leader.

News of the death of George P. Wauty, judge of the United States district court for the western district of Michigan, in London, England, was received Monday noon at Grand Rapids by ex-Senator John Patton. Death followed an operation for bowel trouble. He had been in frail health since an attack of pneumonia last winter. George P. Wauty was born in Ann Arbor, March 12, 1856. He was appointed judge in 1900. He was one of the recognized authorities on federal law in the United States. His most notable decision was that upholding the constitutionality of the Michigan railroad ad valorem tax law, which was recently sustained by the United States supreme court.

It has caused more laughs and dried more tears, wiped away disease, driven away more fears than any other medicine in the world. Hollister's Rocky Mountain Tea. 35 cents, tea or tablets. The Bank Drug Store.

Do Not Burn Off Old Paint

You will have to do so if you use hard, inflexible paint; but there is a better way. Use old-fashioned White Lead and Linseed Oil paint. It wears down uniformly, without that scaling off which figures so many modern houses, and is ready for repainting without burning or scraping. We recommend
