SEVERAL HURT, NONE SERIOUSLY.

An Electric Special Car Strikes a Cow and is Derailed—Accident Occurred West of Ann Arbor.

Monday evening a west-bound special passenger car on the D. Y. A. A. & J. electric line was derailed near the residence of Wagner Bros., about two miles west of the city of Ann Arbor. The car was well filled with passengers, and a number of them were hurt, but none of them seriously.

The car was going at the rate of some fifty miles an hour, and struck a cow owned by Thomas Richardson. The fenders in front of the car were bent back under the forward truck, which caused the car to leave the track. After leaving the track it brought up against a trolley pole, which was broken down, the car was turned over on one side, and the passengers were more or less shaken up.

Lee Foster, of Chelsea, was a passenger on the car and escaped without any injury. Mr. Poole, one of the parties who is about to open a bakery here, was less fortunate, his right shoulder being quite badly injured. Mrs. Laraway, of Northfield, aged 62 years, was taken to Ann Arbor for treatment, but she was not seriously hurt. Two of the injured passengers were brought to Chelsea and taken to Dr. Palmer's office for treatment. Some of the other passengers were taken through to Jackson. Traffic on the line was tied up for a few hours.

ANNUAL MEETING

Held at the Home of Dennis Spaulding Last Friday—Officers Elected for the Coming Year.

The annual meeting of the Western Washtenaw Union Farmers' Club was held at the pleasant home of Mr. and Mrs. Dennis Spaulding last Friday. The event was celebrated by an oyster dinner and a picture gallery. The photographs of 32 of the members, (30 of whom were present) were placed on the walls of the home, and the members were called upon to name them. It proved to be an interesting event. Mrs. Ed. Spaulding and R. B. Waltrous and wife were the only ones who were able to identify the entire list.

Preceding the election, after the dinner hour, several lively discussions on various subjects of interest to members of the club were held.

Mrs. W. E. Stocking, of Lima, delegate to the state association held in Lansing recently, made a very interesting report of the session of the state meeting.

The following officers for the coming year were selected:

President—O. C. Burkhardt.
Vice President—Wm. Davidson.
Treasurer—Mrs. O. C. Burkhardt.
Treasurer—J. F. Waltrous.

The executive committee of the club will be named at the next meeting, which will be held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Fish, of Chelsea, Friday, January 18.

A PIONEER-RESIDENT.

Mrs. Susan A. Everett Passed Away Tuesday Morning, January 1, 1907—Funeral This Morning.

Mrs. Susan A. Everett died at her home, Tuesday morning, January 1, 1907. She was born November 11, 1828, in the State of New York. Mrs. Everett's parents settled in Washtenaw county in 1832. She was united in marriage with Jay Everett in 1850. The deceased was the mother of eight children, seven of whom are living. Mrs. Everett was a member of the First Baptist Church, and for many years the family has resided in Chelsea. The funeral was held from the family residence on East Summit street at 10 o'clock Thursday forenoon, Rev. T. D. Denman officiating. The bereaved husband and surviving children have the sympathy of a large circle of friends. Interment in Vermont cemetery.

Change in County Offices.

When the newly elected county officials took charge of their respective offices Tuesday there were only two changes, except in the Sheriff's office and his staff of deputies.

Mrs. John Lawson will succeed Mr. Dansingburg as deputy register of deeds, and William A. Seery will become transient officer instead of Glen Seymour. Though Register of Probate Newkirk goes to the legislature to represent this district, he will retain his county office.

The Lecture Course.

Next Tuesday evening the third number of the lecture course will be given by the famous Winchell Jubilee Singers. This company of colored artists are among the best that come from the land of Dixie, and are among the most cultured people on the Chautauqua platform today. They consist of six artists, two ladies and four gentlemen. The latter comprise the celebrated nightingale quartette. A special feature will be their singing of old plantation melodies. Each program presents the finest work of the full company.

The Evanston Index, of Northwest University, Chicago, says: "The Winchell Jubilee Singers gave the most delightful concert of the season at the university hall last evening, and their singing of old-time plantation songs was the best thing of the season."

There are still six numbers on the lecture course. Tickets to the whole six, 75 cents; single admission, 35 cents.

Protest Against Road.

The Jackson, Ann Arbor & Detroit Railway Co. has filed with the state railroad department a map showing the company's line from Detroit to the Washtenaw county line, and a hearing will be given on the approval of the map January 9. The company, which is organized under the general railroad law, proposes to build its line almost parallel with the Michigan Central railroad through Wayne county, and a protest against the approval of the map has been filed by citizens along the proposed route. Mr. Charles W. Osborne, of New York, is president of the new company.

STARTS ANOTHER SUIT

IN WAYNE CIRCUIT COURT

H. C. Millen and Wife Hold Separate Grievances—Alleges Malicious Prosecution and Demand $20,000 Each.

The Detroit Free Press of Tuesday contained the following which will be of interest to those who have become interested in the law suits that have appeared from time to time in connection with the troubles of the White Portland Cement Co., of Four Mile Lake. "William J. White, the millionaire gum manufacturer, who is defendant in a $100,000 damage suit in progress in United States court, in which Homer C. Millen is the plaintiff, now is sued in circuit court in two different actions, which, however, are supplementary to the one in the United States court.

"Homer C. Millen is the plaintiff in one case and his wife, Mrs. May Millen, in the other. Malicious prosecution is a charge which does not figure in the United States court case owing to the fact that the prosecution had not ended when the federal court suit was started.

"Following the alleged assault and battery case, aired in the United States court, in which Mrs. Millen is said to have threatened to shoot White with a revolver, Mr. and Mrs. Millen were charged by White with assault with intent to do great bodily harm less than murder. They were arrested and released on bail, but the cases later were nolle prossed."

THE PURE FOOD LAW

Will Bring Changes, But the Grocers and Druggists Will Have Time to Dispose of Goods On Hand.

The new pure food law took effect Tuesday, January 1. Some of the articles now on the shelves of the druggists and grocers have been specifically condemned, but according to the statements of traveling salesmen who call on the local trade, not as many as is generally supposed.

It is understood in the trade that all goods which are questioned by the new law which remain on the retailers' shelves on January 1 may be sold. It is not the intention of the department to bring hardship upon innocent purchasers. But the manufacture of condemned food products and medicines must be absolutely stopped.

In the grocery line, the new law will affect but a few articles. French peas are challenged as owing their beautiful color to deleterious coloring matter, and they must go; so also must marshmallow cherries, and a few other similar dainties. The tricks and the manners of the manufacturers of molasses are most severely questioned, and the new law will bring about a radical revision of methods of manufacture. The cheaper grades of molasses are artificially clarified, it is charged, and this must stop.

Most of the patent medicine manufacturers have complied with the requirements of the law, by printing their formulas on the labels and eliminating all ideas that the remedies are "cures" in all claims made for them, whether in the names or in the directions. The new law will have less effect upon the retailers, it is said, than was at first anticipated. But the manufacture of quite a list of drugs and food products will have to stop short.

Mrs. Helen A. Martin.

Helen Acanith Williams was born in White Oak township, Ingham county, September 16, 1853, and died December 21, 1906, at the home of her daughter, Mrs. A. E. Johnson, of Chelsea, making her 53 years, 3 months and 8 days of age.

She was married in 1880 to John Martin. She united with the Congregational church of Chelsea in 1901, of which she has been a faithful member. She leaves to mourn her loss two daughters, Mrs. A. E. Johnson, of Chelsea, and Mrs. M. E. Siegfried, of White Oak, one brother, S. A. Williams, of Dansville, and two sisters, Mrs. J. O. Gifford, of Washington state and Mrs. Elmer Beach, of Chelsea.

Cured of Lung Trouble.

"It is now eleven years since I had a narrow escape from consumption," writes C. O. Floyd, a leading business man of Kershaw, S. C. "I had run down in weight to 135 pounds, and coughing was constant, both by day and by night. Finally I began taking Dr. King's New Discovery, and continued this for about six months, when my cough and lung trouble were entirely gone and I was restored to my normal weight, 170 pounds. HUGE TUBER WAREHOUSE.

NEW MAINE BUILDING WILL HOLD 240,000 BARRELS OF POTATOES.

Great Wooden Structure at Stockton Fast Nearing Completion—Has Electric Conveyor System and Other Modern Appliances.

Boston.—The largest potato warehouse in the world is rapidly approaching completion at Stockton, Me., the new tidewater terminal of the Bangor & Aroostook and Northern Maine Seaport railroads, the channel through which flows the products of the vast farming regions of northern Maine, and particularly the great potato fields of Aroostook.

Before the completion of the connecting link the Northern Maine Seaport railroad, making the "Aroostook to the sea" line a reality, all of the Aroostook crops were shipped all rail, as there was no other way. Now water shipments will be made mostly from this great repository, which is situated at the shore end of the immense Cape Jellison docks.

Into this house the potatoes will be unloaded as they come in the cars in bulk. They will be stored in the 200 separate bins or rooms, and when ready for shipment will be bagged and loaded on steamers or sailing vessels.

This warehouse when completed will be 900 feet long and 125 feet wide. The great pressure of the crops waiting to be moved has caused the builders to stop work at 600 feet this fall, but next year the building will be extended the full 900 feet.

In its present capacity it will hold 240,000 barrels of potatoes, or 1,200 barrels in each bin, which is in reality a separate frost-proof room.

The warehouse is a great wooden structure built as tightly as a dwelling house and designed to keep the potatoes from freezing without the use of artificial heat, although Cape Jellison is one of the coldest places in New England in the winter. Much insulating material of hair and asbestos has been used in the construction and it is believed that the temperature will not drop to the freezing point.

The building is equipped with an electric conveyor system, which is portable and available in every part. The potatoes will be shoveled from the cars into the conveyor and taken to any of the 200 compartments. When ready to ship a conveyor automatically feeds itself from any particular bin, carries the tubers to a scale, which automatically fills the bags with the exact weight and when the bags are sewed takes them out on the wharf and into the hold of the steamer. All this is done with far greater speed and less bruising than by any other method.

Hundreds of different combinations may be arranged with the conveying system and the carriers made to run in any direction and in any place.

The building is lighted by electricity and has every modern improvement known, making it not only the largest potato warehouse but the most completely equipped in the world.

TROLLEY ON THE HIGHWAYS.

Electric Roads Without Rails a Success in Germany and France.

Washington.—In districts where the construction of permanent tramways would be out of the question owing to prohibitive initial cost there are in use in Germany and France electric transport systems running on the ordinary roads. These draw their supply of electricity from overhead wires similar to those in use in tramway working.

Provision is made for passenger traffic by means of omnibuses running singly or with a trailer, while freight traffic is handled by motor vehicles drawing two or three trailers. The first of such lines was opened in 1901 and since that time quite a number of services have been inaugurated in different districts. The routes are for the most part comparatively short. One of the longest lines is that of the Charbonnières-les-Bains, near Lyons, which is worked with six motor cars of a seating capacity of 38 passengers each.

A line is also working between the towns of Neuenahr, Walportheim and Ahrweiler. A line is working regularly in connection with an industrial center in the neighborhood of Wurzen, Germany, over which 30 wagons are taken either way daily.

Freud: Turtle Not an Animal.
Bridgeport, Conn.—When Capt. Charles E. Ducross, of Darien, an old sea captain, was arrested because he punctured the flippers of a sea turtle and made it fast to his boat on Long Island sound, he declared that he believed the justice of the peace who fined him seven dollars and costs for cruelty to animals was wrong, and appealed the case. He maintained that the turtle was not an animal, and that punching a hole through his flippers and tying him up was no more an act of cruelty than nailing a shoe to the hoof of a horse. The charge was nolle and Capt. Ducross left the courtroom elated.

Pardon for an Old Crime.

PARDON FOR AN OLD CRIME.

Man Who Shot at Czar Thirty-nine Years Ago Ordered Released.

Paris.—France has just pardoned a criminal who enjoyed a moment of notoriety 39 years ago, but who has since been practically forgotten. He is Berzowsky, who in 1867 fired a pistol at the czar, Alexander II, as he was reviewing the French troops in the Bois de Boulogne.

The shot missed the emperor. It struck a woman among the spectators, but she was only slightly wounded. The would-be assassin was a Polish workman. He was sentenced to deportation and life imprisonment and was shipped to New Caledonia in short order. He was really insane. The fact was recognized by the jailers. He has grown worse as the years passed. His delusions took the form of inventions, one of which was a perpetual motion machine, and he used to try to bargain with the governor of the penal colony for freedom in exchange for the secret.

For some years he has enjoyed relative freedom on the island. On reaching his seventieth year he was allowed to live in a little cottage outside the prison and to dispose of his own time. The government still provided for his support and he amused himself cultivating mechanical projects. Lately his case was taken up by the Humanitarian league and his complete pardon was the result. The Parisian papers speak of it as a doubtful mercy. It is hard to see what shelter he can find in France now except in an insane asylum.

DOGS CAN HAVE APPENDICITIS.

Veterinary Surgeon of Monroe, Mich., Finds Three Cases.

Monroe, Mich.—Dr. A. L. Tiffany, a young veterinary surgeon of this place, has decided that dogs are subject to the diseases of the vermiform appendix, the same as human beings, and that death will result from the inflammation of that organ in dogs as well as human beings.

Dr. Tiffany was called some days ago to treat a pet fox hound and discovered that cathartics had no effect, and the dog died last night. The doctor decided to find the cause of death. He found the organs in general good order, but the regions of the kidneys and intestines was highly inflamed and the appendix doubled back of itself and was the center of the inflammation.

This is the third instance which the doctor has found where the death of a dog might be ascribed to appendicitis, and to his knowledge the subject never has been treated in any work upon the diseases of domestic animals.

HAS ODD FOUNDATION

TOWN OF CRISFIELD, MD., BUILT ON OYSTER SHELLS.

Houses, Wharves and Business Places Erected on Great Stratum in Chesapeake Bay—Residents Live by Catching Crabs.

Philadelphia.—Crisfield, Md., presents a problem for the thoughtful man. This is it: If the first man to eat an oyster was a hero what kind of a man or community of men is it who will build a town on oyster shells? The secondary foundation of Crisfield is the bottom of the Chesapeake bay and between the bottom of Crisfield and the bottom of the bay are oyster shells to the number of millions—probably hundreds of millions.

On this great stratum of oyster shells stand houses, wharves and business places; a railroad runs along on it; bridges cross its dividing places; men walk and talk and do business; steamboats and sailboats—yes, hundreds of sailboats—have their landings alongside it; merry boating parties put off from the shore by moonlight and fish and crab and return in the early morn—all to this great bank of oyster shells sunk in the blue water.

Crisfield lives by oysters and crabs—not by eating them, for Crisfielders rarely ever eat either, but by catching them, boiling them, packing them, shipping them, selling them. He who would know the crab can best learn it by visiting this wholly and solely crab town on the Chesapeake. Men in boats quickly fill barrels with crabs and bring them ashore to the "factories."

Here they are counted, sorted, steamed, packed in barrels and shipped until one wonders who can possibly eat all those mountains and myriads of crabs. There are many people in this country. A crab, a piece for them all once a year in the season "would mean some crabs." At least one of the crab dealers put it.

Crisfield has, however, still another aspect in which oysters and crabs play less part.

Further up on the mainland is a town built like other towns and filled with houses and stores and the usual things that prevail in small cities. The Odd Fellows' hall is a large and imposing structure on the main street. Homes and business places are as neat and commodious as elsewhere on the eastern shore, though the fact that the railroad runs through the spine of the town somewhat affects the district immediately adjoining it.

At the further end of the town is the large wharf at which the steamers plying to and from Baltimore have their landing, and here is the evidence of another business which helps make Crisfield prosperous—the fruit trade, represented in the season by tremendous shipments of berries, peaches, pears, plums watermelons and all the products of a fruit country of unexcelled fertility.

BANK PLANNED FOR CHINESE

Branches to Be Established in All Large Cities on Continent.

New York.—Plans for the establishment of a Chinese bank, with branches in every large city of the United States, Canada and Mexico, are being perfected by leading Chinese merchants of this city and San Francisco.

The scheme, which was originated by Joseph E. Singleton, president of the Chinese Reform association, has received the cooperation and indorsement of Chinese merchants throughout the country. The bank will act as fiscal agent in this country of the Chinese government.

At the annual meeting of the Chinese Reform association recently, Mr. Singleton, who for years was the Chinese interpreter at the customhouse, was reelected president for the third term. He received 4,000 votes, his opponent, Yung Tong, of San Francisco, receiving only 3,000.

It was unanimously agreed to open the principal office of the bank in Mexico City, where a large building will be erected. A branch office will be opened within a few weeks in New York. The capital of the corporation will be $1,500,000. More than $400,000 of this amount has been subscribed by merchants in this city.

RETURNS AFTER 25 YEARS.

Long Lost Wisconsin Man Appears and Contests His Sister's Will.

Kenosha, Wis.—One of the most remarkable cases ever known in Kenosha county came to light the other morning when Charles J. Glover, of Chicago, supposed to have been dead for at least 25 years, filed a contest against the probate of the will of his sister, the late Nancy Glover, who left an estate valued at $30,000.

Forty years ago, when the Glover family lived at Manitowoc, Charles Joseph Glover ran away from home. For 25 years no word had been heard from him and the members of the Glover family had never told any one in Kenosha of the existence of the wandering boy. In his objections to the probate of the will Glover declares that his sister was of unsound mind at the time the will was made and that she did not know that he was alive.

Glover admits that he had not communicated with his sister in a quarter of a century and that he first learned of her death through the newspapers. Glover claims he is the sole surviving brother of James P. Glover, the late wealthy Kenosha lumberman, and it is thought that he will also institute a contest against the will of the brother.

IMPROVEMENT IN EARLY VARIETIES OF TOMATOES

Contrast of the Original Type With That Obtained Through Selection.

Mr. G. A. Robertson, of St. Catharines, Ont., an experienced fruit grower, is very enthusiastic about the value of selection of seeds as well as in live stock. He believes that much of the farmer's success in future will be based on his ability to select and follow up that selection to its logical conclusion. He thinks we are just touching the fringe of discovery in the application of this principle to the development of farm crops, fruits and vegetables.

He bases his conclusions on his experience in growing tomatoes for a number of years. For commercial purposes he divides tomatoes into the two classes of early and late. The late varieties have been well developed to be good yielders, as well as being good in type, color and flavor. In these essential points the late varieties excel the early kinds. The ideal Mr. Robertson was aiming to achieve was to secure these virtues in an early variety, knowing that if this could be done it would prove a money maker.

It is well known that late tomatoes usually bring from 25 to 30 cents years had been trying such early varieties as the Ruby, Dominion Day, Chalk's Early, Jewel and Earliana. Of these he has come to favor the two latter varieties. The Jewel embodies most of the desirable features he was aiming at, but it was a little late in ripening.

For the last three years he has been working with the Earliana and through careful selection he has secured a strain which has become quite fixed in character and has most of the desirable features of the Jewel but is much earlier.

The illustration speaks for itself. The original type of Earliana is shown by those on the right. They have the deep creases, and, what is not reproduced in cut, the unevenness in ripening. Those to the left are the Improved Earliana, the result of careful selection to secure those desirable qualities of smoothness, prolificness, even ripening, firm flesh, and early maturity. Such tomatoes will sell even in competition with the test late varieties.

Mr. Robertson says "that often he has eight and nine good sized tomaper bushel, while the early fruits of the earlier varieties often sell as high as three dollars per bushel. These are usually from the early or first ripening clusters; while the later clusters ripen with the early clusters of the later varieties, and on account of their lack of shape and quality are sometimes unmarketable in competition with the late varieties, which are usually of better quality and more perfect in shape.

Mr. Robertson for a number of toes growing in a cluster and that his whole crop this year was much better than in any previous year in that his percentage of rough, flat, unmarketable tomatoes was greatly lessened, many vines having full crops without any ill-shaped fruits.

Mr. Robertson is so convinced that this work pays that he is applying similar methods of selection for the improvement of his other crops, and he is sure to win. Experience counts, doesn't it?

Another Type of Milking Machine

A milking machine has recently been invented which aims to reproduce accurately, by mechanical means, the action of the hands when milking. Not only does the machine facilitate the operation of milking, but it insures a clean supply of milk, as the hands need not touch the teats. The device is portable, being adjustably mounted upon a light downward rolling pressure, which causes the milk to flow into the pail. The rollers and plates are covered with rubber, and the plates are backed with safety springs, which prevent injuries to the teats. The space between the rollers and the plates can be quickly adjusted for large or small teats. The machine contains no pipes, but all parts are accessible, and can be readily cleaned, so that there is no danger of tainting or con-standard, which can be moved to any desired spot. The accompanying engraving reproduced from the Scientific American, clearly illustrates the form of the machine. It comprises a receptacle or pail, above which is the mechanism for drawing the milk. The operation of this mechanism will be best understood by referring to the diagram. The teats are engaged by a series of rollers, which press them against a pair of "compression plates." When adjusting the mechanism to a cow, the device is moved up until these plates bear against the udder at the center with the teats outside of them. There are two sets of rollers, one for each of the plates. The rollers of each set are journaled between a pair of disks keyed to a taminating the milk. The working parts are made of aluminum, and consequently, the machine is very light.

A Chilled Hen.—A chilled hen is not likely to lay many eggs.

Netting and How You Can Make It

Netting is an art easily acquired, and is a pleasant pastime for both sexes, the greatest difficulty being to tear oneself away from the fascination of the work once the stitch has been learned. There is just enough movement to prevent your feeling wholly idle, leaving the thoughts to wander over the coming summer season when your hammock or tennis net will be put out. Besides, it lends an additional charm to those sought-after objects, to know that they are the weaving of your own hand, says the Montreal Herald. It may be too early to start making summer articles, but there are still things such as fishing nets, chair seats, and the like, which may be made for immediate use.

To those who are desirous of starting, the first thing to be done is to obtain the netting instruments. These latter consist of a needle (Fig. 1) and a mesh stick. The needle should be from seven to ten inches long and one inch wide, while the size of the mesh stick must be regulated by the fact that the mesh stick will make a mesh twice its own size, thus a stick half an inch square will make a one-inch mesh and so on in proportion. Any youth at all handy will be able to make these instruments for himself, and then the material having been procured, work may be begun at once. To wind the cord on your needle put it over the point in the eye on one side, then down under the cord, and up around the point on the other side again. Fill it just enough to keep from slipping off. Tie the end of the cord to a hook screwed in the wall or to anything convenient, make a loop two or three inches from the end, and you are ready to begin the stitch (Fig. 2).

The stitch consists of two movements, the first to throw the cord around the mesh stick, and putting the needle through the loop you tied, the second to throw the cord to the left, so forming a loop, after running the needle under the mesh in the same direction. (Fig. 3) When you have made it as wide as you wish, put a string through all the holes and fasten it to a hook. In the other row you can keep the loops on the stick all the way across. For fastening, tie a knot like one shown in figure four.

A COLLEGE PRODIGY.

Freshman at Tufts Who Is Only Eleven Years Old.

There entered Tufts college recently as a freshman a lad who holds the record as the youngest collegian in the country. He is Norbert Wiener, 11 years old, of No. 11 Bellevue street, Medford Hills, and the son of Prof. Leo Wiener, of Harvard, and he will be graduated, if all goes well, three years before the average youngster begins to think of entering college, or, in fact, is through high school. He knew his alphabet when he was 18 months old, and began to read when three years old. When he was eight he was reading Darwin, Huxley, Ribot and Haeckel, along with the works of other scientists and philosophers. His father is assistant professor of Slavonic languages at Harvard, and young Norbert is himself well versed in the languages taught by his sire at that institution.

Although far advanced in his mental development, says the New York Tribune, young Wiener is in every other way a normal, healthy boy, fond of outdoor sports, especially swimming and baseball.

The lad was born on November 26, 1894, at Columbia, Mo., where his father was then connected with the Missouri State university, but most of his life has been spent in Cambridge. He had only three years and a half of schooling—half a year in the kindergarten, one year in the elementary grades and two years in the high school. He passed all his entrance examinations at Tufts last June, including those in trigonometry, botany and physiology. In college he will make philosophy his major study, and during his freshman year he will also take up history and differential and integral calculus.

The father says he would rather have a boy who is not so brilliant, as it would be easier to plan for him, but he adds: "What can I do? He knows enough to enter college. He is well and strong. He doesn't study too much; he is even lazy at times. What can I do but just let him go?" His father has been at Harvard for 11 years, and is a native of Russia, educated at Warsaw, Minsk and Berlin. He has lived in this country for 25 years. His mother is an American from the west.

Short Stature Hurts Kaiser.

Kaiser Wilhelm doubtless gave sincere welcome to the king and queen of Denmark when they visited him a few days ago, but there is equally little doubt that he felt some annoyance over the fact that he had to look up when speaking to her Danish majesty, for the queen overtops him by several inches. She is the tallest queen in Europe, standing fully six feet. The German emperor is shorter than his own wife, but that doesn't matter, for he always has her sit down or stand behind him a trifle when they are in public together.

Example Makes for Neatness.

In advocating the painting of machine tools with a light color, the Iron Age says it is a well recognized fact that the lighter and neater a workman's quality of dress counts but little under manufacturing conditions, but a man who does neat, good work, is apt to be a man of neat personal habits, and, reversing the view-point, conditions which tend to make a man personally neater may be reflected in his work.

WHENCE CAME THE BIRDS?

An Indian Legend That Is Still Believed by Many Tribes.

An Indian story that has been handed down, and is still believed by many Indian tribes, is one about the transformation of leaves into birds. Long years ago, when the world was young, the Great Spirit went about the earth making it beautiful. Wherever his feet touched the ground lovely trees and flowers sprang up. All summer the trees wore their short green dresses. The leaves were very happy, and they sang their sweet songs to the breeze as it passed them. One day the wind told them the time would soon come when they would have to fall from the trees and die. This made the leaves feel very sad, but they tried to be bright and do the best they could so as not to make the mother trees unhappy. But at last the time came, and they let go of the twigs and branches and fluttered to the ground. They lay perfectly quiet, not able to move except as the wind would lift them.

The Great Spirit saw them and thought they were so lovely that he did not want to see them die, but live and be beautiful forever, so he gave to each bright leaf a pair of wings and power to fly. Then he called them his "birds." From the red and brown leaves of the oak came the robins, and yellow birds from the yellow willow leaves, and from bright maple leaves, he made the red birds. This is why the birds love the trees and always go to them to build their nests, and look for food and shade.

SHE'S SO RUDE.

"You naughty child, what did you do to the cat like that?"

"Mummy, I saw her spit on her band and then rub it on her face!"

Neither Shakespeare Nor Bacon.
A new Daniel has come to judgment on the Shakespeare-Bacon controversy and avily declares that neither one nor the other wrote the Shakespeare plays. Dr. Karl Bleibtreu, a noted German authority on literature and history, is the one who puts forward this view, coupling it with the claim that the man who did write the plays was Roger, earl of Rutland, who was born October 6, 1576, and who was a son-in-law of Sir Philip Sydney. Dr. Bleibtreu has devoted much research to English history, but he hardly lives up to his name, which is translatable "remain true," for he has previously written a book controverting the Baconian claims and declaring Shakespeare the real author—a view which he now repudiates.

The annual meeting of the Northwestern Washtenaw Farmers' Mutual Fire Insurance Co. will be held in the town hall, Chelsea, Wednesday, January 16. The company for the past two years has been very fortunate, and have not made an assessment of any kind, but the Secretary of the company informs The Standard-Herald that a small one will be made this year.

A. G. Faist and wife attended the funeral services of the late Chas. Albert, of Bridgewater, held in Bethel Church last Sunday. The deceased was a cousin of Mr. Faist. Some 200 near relatives of the deceased attended the services which were conducted by the Rev. Paul Frison, pastor of the church. It is reported that fully one thousand people were present, and that the church building would not hold one-half of the people who were in attendance.

All Chelsea K. of P.'s who desire to attend the district meeting to be held in Ypsilanti Monday evening, January 7, will notify R. D. Walker or Wm. Bacon.

Last Thursday Mrs. P. J. Young, of Sylvan, slipped on the outside steps of her home and in trying to avoid a fall she hit her right arm against the door and broke a bone.

Next Sunday morning the Rev. Dr. Reid will assist the pastor at the Methodist church and preach the sermon. The subject in the evening will be "Lose Him and Let Him Go."

"The Value of Good Resolutions," will be the morning subject at the Congregational church next Sunday. "The Annual Inventory; or Taking Account of Stock," will be the evening theme.

Cone Lighthall met with rather a serious accident, Tuesday forenoon, that will confine him to his home for some time. He was fishing through the ice on Johnson lake, slipped and fell, badly injuring his left shoulder. Drs. Palmer & Gulde have charge of the case.

Rev. Joseph Ryerson will hold a series of meetings commencing about January 12 assisted by Rev. Frank Arthur. Mr. Arthur was for a number of years cashier of one of the Pontiac banks and left that work to enter the work of the Young Men's Christian Association in which he has been very successful.

W. J. Knapp the past week mailed to his many customers a very handsome calendar, entitled "Chrysanthemums," from the original painting by Phillip Boileau. The "Chrysanthemum" is poetic interpretation of autumn—the portrait of a young American girl, whose dress, no less than the flower she wears and for which she is named, indicates that season.

W. S. McLaren, who has had charge of the circulation department of the Ann Arbor Daily News ever since the paper was started over one year ago, resigned his position last Saturday evening. For the next few months he will attend the Business College in Ypsilanti and, when through with his studies, he will return to Chelsea and go into the hay business with his father.

E. K. White last Friday placed an order for new roller feed grinding machinery that he expects to receive in about ten days. Mr. White will for the present place a temporary covering over the engine room of the old mill that was burned and do feed grinding. The new machinery is of the latest patterns and will be placed in the mill when it is built.

Sister Mary De Pazzi, O. S. D., the local superior of the new St. Mary's school, accompanied by Sister Mary Concepts and Sister Mary John, arrived in Chelsea, Wednesday morning, and took up their residence in the Turnbull home. Sister Carlita will come later, accompanied by Sister Mary Camilla, the superior of St. Joseph's Academy, Adrian. The Sisters are delighted with their new home and the handsome parochial school.

Mrs. Mary VanTyne died at her home in Chelsea Monday, December 31, 1906. The deceased was born in Massachusetts, September 27, 1811, and has been a resident of Chelsea since 1860. The deceased was the wife of Dr. VanTyne, who passed away some years ago. She was the mother of four children, one son and three daughters, who survive her. The funeral was held from the family residence Wednesday afternoon, Rev. M. L. Grant officiating.

Next Sunday, January 6, the great feast of the Epiphany will be observed by order of Bishop Foley as a day of prayer in all the Catholic churches of the diocese of Detroit for the persecuted clergy and people of France. In the Church of Our Lady of the Sacred Heart the exposition of the blessed sacrament will take place from 6 a. m. to 7:30 p. m. After the high mass the litany of All Saints will be recited, and in the evening the rosary and benediction will be given.

A two-days Farmers' Institute will be held in Chelsea, February 21 and 22. All those who are interested in seeing a good program prepared will please meet at the office of The Standard-Herald next Saturday, January 5, at 2 p. m. to help choose the topics for the program. There will be a women's section held separate from the regular institute and the ladies are requested to be present and assist in preparing the program. If you have any special topics you desire on the program this will be your opportunity to have it in the list of subjects that are to be discussed.

About four o'clock Monday afternoon a section of the second floor of the Welfare Building of the Glazier Stove Co., about twenty by thirty feet in area, collapsed, carrying down the main floor under it to the basement. The section of the floor which failed had just been covered and was accordingly unusually heavy, owing to the large amount of water in the concrete. Investigation and the testimony of eye-witnesses show that the wooden supports intended to carry it were not heavy enough; when they gave way and the whole mass struck the main floor, the tremendous blow broke this down also. A. Rickman, one of the contractors, was standing on the section that went down, was buried in the debris in the basement and dug out in an unconscious condition. He was taken to his home in Kalamazoo, Tuesday evening, and it is thought that he received internal injuries, but just how serious we are unable to state.

a tremor of suppressed anger as she picked up the paper and began to read. Her eyes focussed on a paragraph on one of the pages, and Miss Pritchett's countenance returned to its usual placid expression.

MARCHAND LEAVES COMMISSION.

J. T. Marchand, who has resigned as special attorney for the interstate commerce commission, has figured in important transactions of that body. He is at present in the West investigating the production and transportation of coal and coke, during which gross land frauds have been disclosed. Mr. Marchand has aided in exposing private car abuses, in the investigation that resulted in the Northern Securities litigation, in the case leading to the government suit to dissolve the Standard Oil company, and in the Brown-Walker affair, evoking the Supreme Court's ruling that the commission can compel the attendance of witnesses. It is reported that Mr. Marchand will become an employee of a big railway system in the West.

HER "BOY" A TREASURE.

His Acquaintance Proves of Value to American Women.

An American woman who had gone to live in Shanghai was compelled, soon after her arrival, to entertain some important business associates of her husband's. Her finest china, glass, and so forth had not yet arrived from the States. Nevertheless, she determined to give a dinner and called in her "Number one boy."

"Now, boy," she said impressively, "I entertain three gentlemen at dinner to-morrow, very fine gentlemen. Must be nice, everything."

Howling and scraping, he went off to inform the other seven servants. The next evening as she ushered her friends into the dining hall she gasped in astonishment. Before her was a table spread with the most exquisite linen, cut glass, silver and delicate china. Over it all hung a gorgeous cut glass chandelier. Course after course was served as if by magic.

The instant she could leave her guests she sought her "Number one boy."

"Boy, boy!" she exclaimed. "Where you get such beautiful things?" The boy beamed with satisfaction.

HEAT IN REVIVAL MEETING.

Reverend Gentleman's Words Capable of Two Constructions.

Some years ago, in Lanesville, Mass., a revival meeting was taking place in the vestry of the Congregational church. The church had recently been shingled, and on this cold winter's evening the old shingles were being burned in the stove to heat the vestry.

Four young men who were passing decided that they would go into the meeting. They were all smiles as they entered. Seeing the smiling faces of these young non-churchgoers, the pastor, the Rev. Mr. Andrews, stopped his exhortation and said in a stern voice:

"Young men, you are mistaken if you think you are coming in here to disturb this meeting, for it is hot here!"

At that moment the shingles were sending out their fiercest heat, and, thinking he might be misunderstood, the reverend gentleman added, "I mean hot with the Holy Ghost!"

LATEST AND WEIRDEST IN FLYING MACHINES.

It seems difficult to realize that the shedlike building in the photograph is intended to fly, but such is the intention of its inventors. The machine is being built by some Frenchmen in North London. It will have eight aluminum wings, each eighteen yards long, to lift it, and four to propel it. It is pointed like a ship's bow, and is designed to carry one hundred passengers.

"Everything very nice, best possible! My very good friend Russian ambassador's 'Number one boy'; Russian ambassador go out to dinner. Me borrow. Very nice, very nice!" The Sunday Magazine.

President Jordan's Grandfathers. President David Starr Jordan of Leland Stanford University, who delivered an address before the educational congress recently, rather surprised his audience by his reference to the possible status in the other world of one of his great-grandfathers.

He was speaking of an address written by the old gentleman, which he had recently read, and was telling of the queer ideas it contained bearing upon future prosperity. "I often wonder what grandfather would think," he said, "if he could look through a crack in the pearly gates, or, as some have suggested, from his cosy corner by the fire."

Two Kinds of Stenographers. "My experience with stenographers has been that they waste more time than half their time in trying to look pretty and in talking about the boys."

"That hasn't been my experience. My stenographer, for instance, never spends a minute in front of a mirror with a powder rag; never keeps a box of candy on the typewriter table; never stops to look at a picture; never nibbles fudge; never calls up a girl friend to talk about the boys; never is bothered by beaux phoning to the office."

"Don't lose her. She's in a class all by herself."

"She? Who said she? My stenographer's a man."

said R. G. Graham, an American who has lived in Paris as a business man for several years past. "This is not because they cannot vote, but because they do not care to. Everybody in the city is interested in politics, but when the time to vote comes few care to go to the polls."

"The man who wins is most often the man who promises everything. For instance, in my district last time a man was elected who promised to put a new shed on the market. I know of another deputy who was kept in office 15 years because he promised to add an extra sardine to the daily rations of the soldiers. There are so many soldiers that that made a big difference. They did not get the sardine, but he continued to promise and kept office."

Artist in Humble Line. Oscar S. Straus, the secretary of commerce and labor, is a connoisseur of pottery and porcelains.

In conversation with a reporter in New York Mr. Straus once day praised the useful art—woodcarving, tapestry weaving, cabinet making and the like.

"Machinery," he said, "has robbed us of our useful arts to a great extent. In machine-made things there can be no artistic quality, no individual expression. In hand-made things, even the humblest, there is always an opportunity for art to show itself."

"Two street sweepers were quarreling one day about their talent in street sweeping."

"Well, Bill," said one, "I admit that you can clean up the middle of a street all right, but you ain't capable of doing an ornamental piece of work, like sweeping around a trolley pole."

HEARTH & BOUDOIR

Necessary to Retain Beauty

HEALTHY SLEEP AN ALL-IMPORTANT FACTOR.

Complete Rest is a Requisite if One Would Have Bright Eyes, Clear Skin, and a Cheerful Mind—How to Procure It.

A woman who leads an active life, yet gets very little sleep, cannot hope to retain her beauty or health for any length of time. A complete rest for from seven to eight hours nightly must be cultivated until it becomes a fixed habit. Have a regular hour for rising and retiring and do not deviate from it unless forced to.

Bright eyes, clear skin, cheerful mind, muscular tone and nervous energy are among the good conditions promoted by sleep of the right kind, while broken and insufficient sleep will tend to produce the very opposite states. If a woman would have the rosy beauty of the dairymaid it is quite necessary to obtain the same health conditions enjoyed by the dairymaid. So, if the sleep is broken or insufficient, a certain amount of muscular work should be gone through with each night before retiring. Tax endurance, says a well-known nerve specialist, but do not tax strength.

The very latest cure for sleeplessness was thought out by a celebrated French doctor, who came to the conclusion that most insomnia was due to over-fatigue or over-excitement of the nerves. To counteract this the doctor believes in a series of muscular exercises warranted to relax the tension of the nerves and bring about that delightfully drowsy sensation—the forerunner of refreshing sleep.

Annie Payson Call says there are five things to remember if you want to rest an over-tired brain. "1. A healthy indifference to wakefulness. 2. Concentration of mind on simple things. 3. Relaxation of the body. 4. Gentle rhythmic breathing of fresh air. 5. Regular nourishment."

That really covers it all. When Belinda comes home feeling "too tired to sleep" there is no use her trying to go to bed at once. Let her take a warm bath, letting the cold water run in until the water becomes cool, then let her slowly go through the many different points of the toilet, manicuring and hair brushing, for instance, so often done in a rush. These help relax and quiet the nerves and can take up an hour's time. Last of all a cup of warm milk with a pinch of salt. Many people, this applies particularly to men, suffer from sleeplessness because they are not properly nourished. Exhausted or irritated and excited nerves need nourishing. A bite of light and easily digested food will not keep one awake—on the contrary, it is often just what is needed to induce sleep.

Sleep will not come to the brain that is worrying or even to the brain that is busy with the thoughts of "How shall I make myself fall asleep?" Here is where our French doctor comes to the rescue for his muscular exercises. Take the mind off the desired outcome and center it on directing the bodily movements which the doctor advises, inducing bodily fatigue by tiring the muscles. It sounds as if it would take forever, but it doesn't. Just try it. Stretch the limbs in different directions. Lie on your back and pull the knees up. Inhale deeply while doing this. While the breath is retained stiffen and stretch the muscles, making the body as tense as possible. Now relax slowly and thoroughly, beginning with the muscles of the neck, arm, and back; exhale at the same time. It is usually the neck that is so tense and rigid that very nervous people as if they were holding their heads up by main force. These stretching exercises will speedily teach one how to relax one's hold on one's own tense muscles, which is the very first thing to learn for those who suffer from insomnia.

White Jewelry to Be Popular

That is the Prophecy Made by European Authorities.

A white year in jewelry is prophesied by European authorities on fashions. Pearls are to hold the first place, followed by moonstones, white coral and white sapphires. All the glittering stones—diamonds, rubies, emeralds—are regarded as too unrefined, too obtrusive for the cold harmonies that are to prevail in the coming winter costumes. Much attention is to be devoted to the artistic forms of jeweled ornaments. These will take the form to a large extent to flowers on stems. Blossoms of pearls, for instance, with leaves of green enamel, will be popular as hair ornaments.

In spite of the superstition regarding them, opals are to be much worn, and ball costumes will be adorned with turquoise and coral. Silver will be much used as a setting for pearls. Another style of headdress will consist of gold or silver lacework set with pearls.

In New Shapes and Designs

Some Pin Cushions Are Peculiarly Attractive—Pretty Laundry Bag.

Pin cushions of all shapes and designs always make acceptable presents, and those patterned like apples, peaches, plums, carrots and various other garden vegetables in natural colors are particularly attractive, for they are so different from the stereotyped forms of hearts, squares, ovals and even dolls clad in befrilled frocks that have been previously used.

These fruit pin cushions in rich red silk or cut carmine velvet have stems of twisted silk, a wood color, or a composition stem with copies of natural green leaves, that at a distance look Pompadour Ribbon continues to be used for girdles on the handsomest gowns.

Among the most fashionable plumage is that of the owl in natural colors.

Instead of an all-white gown many of the lace and chiffon dresses are made with little boleros of bright colored silk or satin.

Both high collar and cravat make the neck finish that best suits high vest openings.

TORTURED WITH GRAVEL.

Since Using Doan's Kidney Pills Not a Single Stone Has Formed.

Capt. S. L. Crute, Adj. Wm. Watts Camp, U. C. V., Roanoke, Va., says:

"I suffered a long, long time with my back, and felt draggy and listless and tired all the time. I lost from my usual weight, 225, to 170. Urinary passages were too frequent and I have had to get up often at night. I had headaches and dizzy spells also, but my worst suffering was from renal colic. After I began using Doan's Kidney Pills I passed a gravel stone as big as a bean. Since then I have never had an attack of gravel, and have picked up to my former health and weight. I am a well man, and give Doan's Kidney Pills credit for it."

Peru Claims Kuroki.

Gen. Kuroki, the famous Japanese soldier, has been variously described as of Polish, Russian and German extraction. Another interesting chapter has been added to this genealogical symposium by an official publication in the Official Gazette, of Lima, Peru, which makes the claim, and submits a plausible statement of facts to prove it, that Kuroki's father was a Peruvian patriot whose name was Trahisto Charroqui. It is also declared that the general's father was a descendant of the Incas, who themselves are believed to have been descendants of an Asiatic race, so Kuroki is an atavism and has come into his own in the land of his fathers.

Keep Your Blood Pure.

No one can be happy, light-hearted and healthy with a body full of blood that cannot do its duty to every part because of its impurity; therefore, the first and most important work in hand is to purify the blood so that every organ will get the full benefit of a healthy circulation. There is no remedy so good as that old family remedy, Bradreth's Pills. Each pill contains one grain of the solid extract of sarsaparilla blended with two grains of a combination of pure and mild vegetable products, making it a blood purifier unexcelled in character. One or two taken every night for awhile will produce surprising results. Bradreth's Pills have been in use for over a century, and are for sale everywhere, plain or sugar-coated.

Rothschilds Never Prosecute.

While the Bank of England makes it a point never under any circumstances to relinquish the prosecution of those who have defrauded it in the slightest degree, being willing, if need be, to spend thousands of pounds to capture and prosecute people who have robbed it of even a few shillings, the Rothschilds make it a rule never to appeal to the courts or to the police in such matters. Of course, they are, like every other banker, occasionally the victims of dishonesty, but neither the police nor the public ever hear about the matter. This has always been a principle of the heads of the house, who take the ground that it is better to bear the loss in silence than to disturb popular confidence in the safety of the concern by allowing it to be seen that its treasures are not adequately safeguarded.

Horses Still in Demand.

Happily the horse has a faculty for upsetting the gloomy predictions that he is fated to be put out of business by the automobile. The horse business has kept right on developing in spite of the fact that the automobile industry has been engaged in similar undertaking. The demand for horses is still great. The supply of some classes of them is inadequate. The prices are high. The automobile may scare the horse into the ditch, but it isn't likely to crowd him to the wall. There will always be a field for the horse, as there will always be a field for the automobile.—Hartford Times.

CRIED EASILY.

Nervous Woman Stopped Coffee and Quit Other Things.

No better practical proof that coffee is a drug can be required than to note how the nerves become unstrung in women who habitually drink it. The stomach, too, rebels at being continually drugged with coffee and tea—they both contain the drug—caffeine. Ask your doctor.

An la. woman tells the old story thus: "I had used coffee for six years and was troubled with headaches, nervousness and dizziness. In the morning upon rising I used to belch up a sour fluid regularly."

"Often I got so nervous and miserable I would cry without the least reason, and I noticed my eyesight was getting poor."

"After using Postum a while, I observed the headaches left me and soon the belching of sour fluid stopped (water-brash from dyspepsia). I feel decidedly different now, and I am convinced that it is because I stopped coffee and began to use Postum. I can see better now, my eyes are stronger."

"A friend of mine did not like Postum but when I told her to make it like it said on the package, she liked it all right." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich. Always buy Postum well and it will surprise you. Read the little book, "The Road to Wellville" in pkgs. "There's a reason."

SERIAL STORY

DUKE OF DEVIL-MAY-CARE

By HARRIS DICKSON

Author of "The Black Wolf's Breed," Etc.

(Copyright, 1906, by D. Appleton & Co.)

As he stumbled Vance turned half round; his back was toward the other. Agile as a panther, Duke sprang upon him and caught the wrist that held the weapon. They grappled, wavered, struggled against the wall, among the tables and chairs, but Duke held that surly weapon and kept it pointing toward the ceiling. His own pistol dropped from his pocket. A table crashed beneath their double weight.

"Santa Maria!" shouted Pedro, running in from the back room, and dodging back again even more quickly. From his position of safety behind the door he screamed his frantic suggestions to Miguel and Tanny, who were trying to get behind each other—and succeeding alternately.

In his turnings and twistings Duke caught sight of the waiters.

"Here, Miguel!" he called, breathing very hard, "take this pistol."

The waiters closed in at once, and between the three they made quick work of Vance.

Miguel wrenched the pistol out of Vance's hand and bore it back into their labyrinth of a kitchen where no human sagacity could have found it.

Pedro, the valiant reserve, rushed in, fat and garrulous, and exceeding wrath. The three Spaniards forced Vance backward into a chair and left Duke standing free in the center of the room—free to breathe, free to think.

During the melee when his own pistol had fallen to the floor, Duke struggled all the more desperately to retain control of Vance's. Now he stooped and picked up his horn-handled Colt's whose very touch reassured him, like the grasp of a trusted friend. It fitted his hand so easily, with such a calm reliance, that he smiled. As master of the situation he could do what he chose.

With the hot blood of combat tingling in his face, with the flesh-born madness of the fighting male surging through his brain, taunting his muscles with the world-old desire to slay—Noel Duke controlled himself.

It could only have been a second or two that Vance watched him—that undecided man fingering a heavy Colt's. Then Vance saw him smile, quietly pick up his hat, step out of the back door and disappear.

All of this happened before Baker could run from the corner, or Hipolyte could hobble across the street.

"Hi say," said Baker, looking cautiously in at the door, "had the deuce of a row?"

"You infernal fools!" Vance scarcely knew whether to laugh or swear. "What in the thunder did you hold me for, and let that fellow get away?"

"Get away! Get away!" echoed the fat Pedro with delicate irony. "He walk out like a gentleman. Why you come and make fight in my rear-trail?"

"I wanted to arrest him."

"Arrest him? For what you arrest him? Are you alcalde? Are you pay-trol? Are you ze po-jees? Look at zat table; who pay me for zat?"

Vance looked up at the excited Spaniard.

"I wanted to arrest him for—"

Then for the life of him Vance could not think why he should have wanted to arrest this unknown man.

"You catch a catamount, eh, senior? You arrest a tarantula, eh, senior? You fight wid a bronco, eh, senior? Why for you drive my customer away, make fight in my house?"

Vance brushed the sand from his knees, pressed the dents out of his hat, then he looked at the wrathful Pedro and burst into a laugh.

Vance laughed and laughed again; he was happy. He had at least done something; that "something" might have been very useless and very foolish, but he had done it all the same, and that was enough to relieve his mind.

Pedro, Miguel, Hipolyte, Baker, Tanny—all crowded around, pointing to him, gesticulating, and telling each other how it had happened.

For awhile Vance listened to their babel, then raised his hand, and they hushed.

"The drinks are on me—your very best. Come, sit down, everybody!" He included proprietor, waiters, strangers from the street, in one genial invitation.

"Well, I don't know who he was, or what I wanted with him, but I'd 'a' got him if you fellows had let me alone."

While the drinks were being brought Vance very seriously regarded a pile of splinters and kindling wood which had once been the proudest table in Pedro's Place.

"Senior Pedro," he inquired bland-ly, "I need just such a table in my room; will you be so good as to sell me this one?"

However humorously Vance might have been disposed to treat his fiasco in the cafe, the others at the station-house seemed to regard it differently. Jimmy Fitz summed up the situation with his usual acumen.

"That fellow has been hanging around Pedro's Place since midnight on Thursday—the very night this thing happened. He had never been seen there before. He spent most of the day Friday sitting in that window watching the hotel. Arthemise says he slipped into the hotel twice on Friday and was standing in the upper hall when she saw him and ran him out. What was he doing there? We don't know. The first time a gentleman asks him a polite question about it, he fights like a tiger, drops a big pistol to the floor, and skins out. You just bet your sweet life we'll know mighty soon. Can he get out of this town? Well, I reckon not. We want to propound a few tender inquiries to the gentleman concerning his recent conduct before we bid him an affectionate adios, senior."

It meant a great deal for Jimmy Fitz to say this much all at one time, and to slam his fist down on the table when he was done.

Joe said nothing; Vance and Chaudron agreed with Fitz.

After the gentlemen had come out upon the street the police sergeant said: "Say, Jimmy, is you talkin' straight to them blokes? Do you think we'd better take a chance, an' pinch the sucker?"

"Sure! 'Twon't do no harm."

"All right; whatever you say goes."

CHAPTER XV.
IN THE PARISH PRISON.

The Sunday before Mr. H. Gras imposes no restraint upon the gayeties of New Orleans. By special proclamation Rex, king of the Carnival, absolves his loyal subjects from every bond of allegiance save only to him.

A TABLE CRASHED.

self. And the reign of Rex is the rule of joy, the empire of mask and merriment and music.

About ten o'clock on Sunday morning Joe Balfour came down stairs at the Chaudrons.

"Where's Felix, and Mr. Vance?" he asked of Anita, who waited in the hall.

"They're gone; they told me not to wake you. Come and get your breakfast; Mrs. Chaudron won't be down; she's with Alice."

The dim cool dining-room was not more subdued and quiet than those two that entered it. Anita poured his coffee, leaned her elbow on the table and watched Joe's face.

"Thank you, Ben," she said to the old negro butler; "we won't need you; you may go."

Presently she asked: "You have not really found out anything definite, have you?"

"Not a thing; we have searched everywhere; I can't think of another place to look. The police and detectives seem perfectly helpless."

"I heard about Mr. Vance, and—that man; you wouldn't tell me that. Do they suspect him of having anything to do with this?"

"I can't tell," Joe kept his eyes fastened on his plate, and refused to look up.

"Are they going to arrest him?" Anita leaned forward, and watched his face anxiously.

"They are looking for him," Joe answered.

For a long time she said nothing more, then her brave eyes turned to him again.

"Tell me the truth; do you think my aunt was murdered?" She looked at him squarely, and did not flinch.

"No," Joe shook his head doubtfully; "I cannot quite believe that yet. There would have been some trace. And, besides, why should anybody want to kill her? She had no money or jewelry. But she couldn't have strayed away and got lost—there was that room—I can't understand it. How is Alice?" he finished abruptly.

"About the same; she sleeps when they give her opiates."

"And you? You have not been to sleep?"

"Not very much. I am doing quite well." She smiled faintly; it did not matter.

They were both silent for a long long while, glancing at each other, saying nothing. Several times it trembled on the very tip of Joe's tongue to inquire if she had seen anything of Noel Duke. But her violet eyes were so full of trouble that he looked away again, and could not ask her.

After some little time Anita reached out and touched his hand; Joe knew exactly what was coming, and feared to meet it.

"Did you give him my letter?" she asked.

"Yes."

"I wanted to be sure, because, because—maybe I imagined it, but just before my aunt disappeared I thought I saw a man watching me through the window of that little cafe across the street. He was watching me again when we came away with Mrs. Chaudron. I might not have thought it was Noel, but—but—" Anita's lips trembled, and she stopped a moment.

"Yes, I know you are his friend; whatever may happen, I will tell you."

Anita glanced around to be sure that there was no one in hearing, then went on: "When Alice and I came downstairs that morning at the hotel she ran back to the room for something, and I stood there at the head of the steps. That was before we knew my aunt was gone. I heard two men talking in that little room at the left of the entry. They seemed to be quarreling, but were talking very low. One of them was Monsieur Victor, and I thought, I was not sure, that the other voice was Mr. Duke's. Monsieur Victor refused to do something. But she couldn't have strayed away and got lost—there was that room—I can't understand it. How is Alice?" he finished abruptly.

WHEN NO. 270 RAN AWAY

"The 270 was sure the village outcrop of those class B engines," said the fat engineer. "That was back in the days of the jimmy coal cars 'n' handbrakes. 'I was runnin' extra at the time, not havin' been assigned to a regular engine yet. Hen Morris, an easy goin' fellow, was the regular man on the 270, 'n' I always contended that he was too easy with her. Engines are just like hosses, you've got to let 'em know who's master."

"One night Hen Morris was taken sick 'n' I was called to take his run out. 'n' we were hardly started through the freight yards before she started up her tactics with me. I just talked to her like a Dutch uncle.

"Now, look here, you old scally-wag, I says, 'you're dealin' with no spring chicken this trip. You just get down to business or I'll pound the life out of you."

"An', suttin' the action to the word, I dropped her down in the corner 'n' put it to her for all I was worth. However, she didn't do any extra work 'n' lagged 'n' hung back all the way."

"Well, I says to myself, 'when we get goin' down Pine Hill I'll just keep the throttle open awhile 'n' make her go. The weight of this train behind us will make her perk up a bit."

"Accordingly, when we went over the pitch at the top of Pine Hill I just left her wide open 'n' kep' the steam on full head till we were flyin' down by Copper's Crossin'. Then I thought I'd better shut off, as the 270 would get a pretty lively clip down the hill now 'n' I had no han'arin' for goin' down the bank owin' to exceedin' the speed limit on the grade."

"So I shoved the throttle in to shut off the steam. Imagine how I felt when the 270 kep' right on exhaustin' just as if the speed was all to her likin'."

"Somethin' had gone wrong in her steampipe somewhere inside 'n' the valve didn't shut her off. So the 270 had taken the bit in her teeth 'n' was goin' to see how I liked ridin' fast."

"Here was a pretty predicament. My engine goin' down Pine Hill under a full head of steam with a heavy freight train behind her. It wouldn't have been so bad if I had not known that Ras Cole was only about five minutes ahead of me with a train of coal jimmies."

"I attempted to put the reverse lever in the back motion, but the steam was on such a full head that I couldn't budge the thing. Then I gave the high sign on my whistle several times to let Ras Cole know I was comin' down the hill out of control 'n' it would be wise for him to shake a leg or he'd get spifflicated."

"In an almost incredible time we swung around by the Gate station 'n' what I saw ahead made me wilt like a fat man's collar on a hot day. Not more than a quarter of a mile ahead of us was Ras Cole's train. Maybe that little caboose of his didn't look as big as a summer boardin' house."

"Ras had heard my warnin' whistle 'n' was doin' his best. He was gainin' headway, but he wasn't in our class. I could figure out that we would just about meet up with his caboose around the ten degree curve below the Gate."

"Ras' train was now goin' at a terrific speed; too, 'n' it was a question whether either train would keep the rails goin' 'round the sharp curve. I could almost reach the tail lights on that caboose ahead. In a second I thought we would be into them 'n' I would be rollin' down the embankment amidst the wreckage of twisted iron, coal 'n' miscellaneous freight."

"Then came an awful crash 'n' I thought I could feel my engine goin' down the bank. But my engine kep' goin' 'n' I could tell by the lurchin' that she was takin' the curve all right 'n' true."

"I opened my eyes. The red lights of the caboose had disappeared. In the ravine below me I could hear a crashin', rollin' sound 'n' see dark shapes tumblin' down."

"I realized what had happened. The excessive speed at which the train ahead had taken the curve caused the last 15 or 20 coal jimmies to jump the track clean, takin' the caboose with them, just like a string of boys playin' snap and whipl. Thus when we straightened out on the curve Ras' train, by losin' those 15 cars, had left that much space between me 'n' death."

"The train ahead was movin' at equal speed with me now 'n' would probably keep the 15 cars distance between us. Under her full head of steam my engine was leavin' 'n' boundin' over the rails, 'n' when she settled back from an extra severe jolt she stopped exhaustin'."

"The terrific jar had shaken the valve back on its seat again 'n' shut off the flow of steam. My heart resumed its normal beatin', as we were 'most down the hill now, 'n' I soon had her under control."

"They pulled 270 in the shops after that run, 'n' she never came out again—leastwise unless they changed her number."

"The 270 was sure the village outcrop of those class B engines," said the fat engineer. "That was back in the days of the jimmy coal cars 'n' handbrakes. Lived and Died Together.

Martha R. Howe and Mary J. Howe, twins of Glastonbury, Conn., were together almost every minute of their 74 years of life. The former died recently and the shock of parting ended the life of Mary exactly 12 hours later. They were buried in the same grave.

Father's Good Advice.

A young man from Pittsburg went to New York to "make good" in his chosen profession, says a New York letter. The other night he stood in the lobby of a hotel and a friend asked him what he thought of New York. "I have only been here two days," he replied, "so I have not seen the city very thoroughly. My father's parting words to me when I left home were: 'My son, you are going to a great city. There is much good and much evil to be found in New York. Keep to the straight and narrow path as closely as possible, avoid Wall street and, above all, beware of the monkey house.'"

ELEVEN YEARS OF ECZEMA.

Hands Cracked and Bleeding—Nail Came Off of Finger—Cuticura Remedies Brought Prompt Relief.

"I had eczema on my hands for about eleven years. The hands cracked open in many places and bled. One of my fingers was so bad that the nail came off. I had often heard of cures by the Cuticura Remedies, but had no confidence in them as I had tried so many remedies, and they all had failed to cure me. I had seen three doctors, but got no relief. Finally my husband said that we would try the Cuticura Remedies, so we got a cake of Cuticura Soap, a box of Cuticura Ointment, and two bottles of Cuticura Resolvent Pills. Of course I kept Cuticura Soap all the time for my hands, but the one cake of Soap and half a box of Cuticura Ointment cured them. It is surely a blessing for me to have my hands well, and I am very proud of having tried Cuticura Remedies, and recommend them to all suffering with eczema. Mrs. Eliza A. Wiley, R. F. D. Prominent on Lecture Platform.

Senator Tillman probably earns more money every year on the lecture platform than any other American who talks to the public for pay. From an authoritative source the statement comes that the South Carolinian's net proceeds thus far this year from his lecture tour are $25,000. Senator Tillman is paid from $250 to $500 a lecture and he is constantly in demand. His season is not confined to the summer Chautauque course and he is nearly as many dates in the winter as at any other time of the year. In the last four years it is said that he has laid aside over $60,000 from his lecture receipts. Henry Watterson perhaps comes next in the matter of earnings on the platform. Champ Clark, of Missouri, ranks high as a popular favorite and makes about twice as much as a lecturer as his congressional salary.

Monarchs as Linguists.

Monarchs must know more than one language. King Edward, who traveled so much, speaks French better than some Frenchmen, and also German. The czar of Russia speaks French as well as his native tongue and knows the numerous dialects. Emperor William of Germany speaks French and English correctly, and is also well versed in Latin. The king of Spain, the youngest of all, speaks German with ease and also French and English. Because of his marriage he now practices the latter. The king of Portugal speaks French, English, German and Spanish. The king of Italy is a master of French and German and is also well versed in the various Italian dialects.

THE PROGRESS OF THE CANADIAN WEST.

Nearly 200,000 of an increase in Canada's immigration in 1906.

The progress of a new country cannot be better ascertained than by noting the increase of railroad mileage in its transportation system, and, judged by this standard, the Canadian West leads all the countries in the world during the current year. Thirty years ago there was not one hundred miles of railroad west of the Great Lakes, and very little prospect of a transcontinental route for many years to come, but by the end of 1885 the Canadian Pacific Railway was within measurable distance of completion, and last year—twenty years later—over 6,000 miles of railroad traversed the provinces of Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta.

In the past year the work of railroad construction has been vigorously prosecuted, and by the end of 1906, some 5,000 miles of completed railroad has been added, making a total of

The Right Name.

Mr. August Sherpe, the popular overseer of the poor, at Fort Madison, Ia., says: "Dr. King's New Life Pills, are rightly named; they act more agreeably, do more good and make one feel better than any other laxative." Guaranteed to cure biliousness and constipation. 25c at The Bank Drug Store.

Stops itching instantly. Cures piles, eczema, salt rheum, tetter, itch, hives, herpes, scabies—Doan's Ointment. At any drug store.

DANGER IN DELAY.

Kidney Diseases are too Dangerous For People to Neglect.

The great danger of kidney trouble is that they get a firm hold before the sufferer recognizes them. Health is gradually undermined. Backache, headache, nervousness, lameness, soreness, lumbago, urinary troubles, dropsy, diabetes and Bright's disease follow in merciless succession. Don't neglect your kidneys. Cure the kidneys with the certain and safe remedy, Doan's Kidney Pills.

H. W. Garrison, of 1121 Shawansee street, Owosso, Mich., retired farmer, says: "For many years I suffered severely with my kidneys, the pains at times being frequently so severe I could scarcely get up or down from a chair. The kidney secretions were irregular, distressing and annoying. I had also spells of dizziness and had to hold on to something to keep from falling. I saw Doan's Kidney Pills advertised and procuring a box I used it. I felt benefited after a few doses. My wife was relieved of similar trouble by their use and we cannot speak in too high praise of this valuable preparation."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.

The new Y. M. C. A. building in Jackson was opened for public inspection January 1st. The building cost $75,000 and is said to be one of the finest of the kind in the state. The annual state convention of the Y. M. C. A. will be held in the new building Wednesday, February 20, and at that time the public will have an opportunity to give the building a thorough inspection.

COUNTY EVENTS.

THE CANADIAN WEST

The eyes of the world are on the Canadian West. The progress of this vast Great West is remarkable and well deserves the attention which it is receiving. Fred L. Harris Land Co. hope to be instrumental in bringing many of the farmers and investors of the Western and Middle States into close touch with the Canadian West and to give them the opportunity to purchase valuable farm lands at a price much below their actual value. There will necessarily be little opportunity for our friends to visit the West until the early Spring, and we will make further announcements later regarding our Farm Lands. In the meantime we have an offer to make to the readers of this paper. Each one who accepts will reap large profits and hence become a friend to us. This will result in our doing even a larger farm land business than ever before.

It is therefore from this not altogether unselfish motive that we give to the readers of this paper the following opportunity of making money and then sharing in the prosperity of Canada.

Winnipeg the Chicago of Canada.

We have succeeded in obtaining control of a very valuable tract of 200 Winnipeg lots. These lots are part of a subdivision known as Noble Park and are in the future industrial centre. They will increase greatly in value. Think of it, we are able to offer these lots to you at $150 each. Do you want to make money? This is your chance, and with the investment of only a small amount. Take a radical and buy. Remember, we risk and gladly risk our future business relations with you, on the probability of this investment. As we wish as many of our friends as possible to share in this great opportunity, we will not allow anyone to purchase more than five lots. Applications will be filled in order received. Act quickly and do not be one of the many who will be disappointed and unable to obtain any of these lots.

Terms per Lot: $5.00 with application; $45.00
