Communication.

MR. EDITOR:—The Edward Winters case was appealed because an attempt was made by some of the ulcerated warts of society having no business of its own to provoke discord and contention by repeating the dishonest statement that the testator was unduly influenced. Mr. Cavanaugh, attorney for contestants, made the following statement in court:

"The circuit court for Washtenaw county—March 18, 1907.

"In re probate of the last will and testament of Edward Winters, deceased.

"Mr. Cavanaugh: I desire to state that the Honorable James S. Gorman used no influence whatever, directly or indirectly, upon Edward Winters to procure the making of his will.

"I also desire to state that Father Cavanaugh had nothing to do with the making of the will, and knew nothing about the making of it until after the decedent died."

The above to be part of the record in both courts. The contestants to pay $100 for masses, $76.60 petitioners' costs.

JAMES S. GORMAN.

Resolutions.

Whereas, It has pleased Almighty God in His wise providence to take out of this life our beloved sister, Mrs. Caroline Notton, be it Resolved, That we, the members of the Ladies' Aid Society of the German M. E. Church at Francisco, experience the loss of our sister deeply and humbly submit to the divine will.

That we recognize the many services which she has rendered to the society, bearing its president for a time and also a charter member of it. We rejoice in the Christian character she displayed in her life.

That we express our heartfelt sympathy for those who mourn the loss of "mother," and pray that divine comfort may be theirs in this sad bereavement.

That a copy of these resolutions be sent to each member of the bereaved family, and also be placed upon record in the minutes of the society, and furthermore that they be published in The Chelsea Standard-Herald.

MISS RICKA KALMBACH,
President.

MRS. P. H. RIEMENSCHNEIDER, Secretary.

REPUBLICAN NOMINEES

CAUCUS HELD SATURDAY.

A Good Ticket Placed in Nomination—Supervisor Jacob Hummel Renominated—Good Attendance.

The Republicans of Sylvan held their caucus in the main room of the town hall last Saturday afternoon. There was a good crowd of electors from all parts of the township present, and considerable interest was manifested in the proceedings.

The caucus was called to order by A. W. Wilkinson, chairman of the township committee; Jacob F. Fahrner was chosen as the permanent chairman, A. W. Wilkinson secretary, and W. F. Riemen-schneider and O. T. Hoover as tellers. The oath of office was administered by John Kalmbach.

The following were named as the candidates of the party for the various township offices:

Supervisor—Jacob Hummel.
Clerk—John D. Watson.
Treasurer—Ralph Freeman.
Highway Commissioner—Joseph Liebeck.

Justice of the Peace—Theodore Riemen-schneider.
School Inspector—Jacob F. Fahrner.
Member Board of Review—Fred. Kalmbach.

Constables—Frank A. Leach, George A. Young, Fred C. Mensing, Fred G. Fuller.

Township Committee for the ensuing year—A. W. Wilkinson, W. J. Knapp and Henry I. Stimson.

SENT TO JACKSON.

Willis W. Soules of Chelsea Thought Wife Was Dead and Marries Again Without Finding Out.

Willis Wayne Soules, of Chelsea, pleaded guilty to the charge of bigamy before Judge Kinne Friday and was sentenced to a minimum of six months in Jackson prison and a maximum of five years.

He was married to Miss Kate Bates in Calhoun county, October 16, 1901, and was again married June 1, 1905, to Miss Nellie Berry in Chelsea.

The complaint was made by his first wife, who is at present a resident of Grass Lake.

Soules claimed that he was innocent of intention to commit bigamy, that he saw a notice of his first wife's death in a paper, that he had not heard from her for two years and a half and thought she was dead.

Entertainment.

The Ladies' Aid Society of the North Lake M. E. Church will give a musical entertainment at the church on Friday evening, March 29. Admission: Adults, 25 cents; children, 10 cents. The following is the program:

Music—Mandolin Club.

A Large Class.

Palm Sunday morning a class of thirteen was confirmed in St. Paul's Church. The services were very impressive and interesting. The church was filled with relatives and friends of the members of the class, who have been thoroughly instructed in German and their duties as members of the church by their pastor, Rev. A. A. Schoen. The following are the names of the class:

Oscar Wedmayer, Herman Hasbly, Clarence Bahnmiller, Carl Donner, Leo Paul, Louis Hauser, Richard Kanowski, Clara Frey, Margaretha Eppler, Edna Wackenhut, Nada Hoffman, Lenora Paul, Freda Wagner.

The class held a reunion with former classes in the church Sunday evening, and Monday they had a class photograph taken.

SERIAL STORY

THE HOUSE OF A THOUSAND CANDLES

By MEREDITH NICHOLSON

Author of "THE MAIN CHANCE," "ZELDA DANERUN," ETC.

CHAPTER IV.—Continued.

I was soon stumbling through rough underbrush similar to that through which we had approached the house. Bates swung along confidently enough ahead of me, pausing occasionally to hold back the branches. I began to feel as my rage abated, that I had set out on a foolish undertaking. I was utterly at sea as to the character of the grounds; I was following a man whom I had not seen until two hours before, and whom I began to suspect of all manner of designs upon me. It was wholly unlikely that the person who had fired into the windows would look about, and moreover, the light of the lantern, the crackle of the leaves and the breaking of the boughs advertised our approach loudly.

A bush slapped me sharply and I stopped to rub the sting from my face. "Are you hurt, sir?" asked Bates so politely, turning with the lantern. "Of course not," I snapped. "I'm having the time of my life. Are there no paths in this jungle?"

"Not just here, sir. It was Mr. Glenarm's idea not to disturb the wood at all. He was very fond of walking through the timber."

"Not at night, I hope! Where are we now?"

"Quite near the lake, sir."

"Then go on."

I was out of patience with Bates, with the pathless woodland, and I must confess, with the spirit of John Marshall Glenarm, my grandfather.

We came out presently upon a gravelly beach, and Bates stamped suddenly on flanking.

"This is the Glenarm dock, sir; and that's the boat house."

He waved his lantern toward a low structure that rose dark beside us. As we stood silent, peering out into the starlight, I heard distinctly the dip of a paddle and the soft gliding motion of a canoe.

"It's a boat, sir," whispered Bates, hiding the lantern under his coat.

I brushed past him and crept to the end of the dock. The paddle dipped on silently and evenly in the still water but the sound grew fainter. A canoe is the most careful, the most sensitive, the most inexplicable contrivance of man. With its paddle you may dip up stars along quiet shores or steal into the very harbor of dreams. I knew that furtive splash instantly, and knew that a trained hand wielded the paddle. My boyhood summers in the Maine woods were not, I find, wholly wasted.

The owner of the canoe had evidently stolen close to the Glenarm dock, but had made off when alarmed by the noise of our approach through the wood.

"Have you a boat near here, Bates?" I asked.

"The boat house is locked, and I haven't the key with me, sir," he replied, without excitement.

"Of course you haven't it," I rejoined, full of anger at his tone of free, uncalculating respect and at my own helplessness. I had not even seen the place by daylight, and the woodland behind me and the lake at my feet were things of shadow and mystery in my face. I stamped my foot.

"Lead the way back," I roared.

"I had turned toward the woodland when suddenly there stole across the water a canoe—a woman's canoe, deep, modest and deliberate."

"Really, I shouldn't be so angry if I were you," it said, with a lingering smile on the wind anger.

"Who are you? What are you doing here?" I asked.

"Just enjoying a little tranquility," was the drawing, moaning reply.

"Far out upon the water I heard the dip and glide of the canoe, and saw faintly its outline for a moment, then it was gone. The lake, the surrounding wood were an unknown world, the canoe, a boat of dreams. Then again came the voice."

"Good night, merry gentlemen!"

"It was a lady, sir," remarked Bates, after we had waited silently for a full minute.

"How clever you are!" I sneered. "I suppose ladies prow about here at night, shooting ducks or into people's houses."

"It would seem quite likely, sir."

"I should have liked to cast him into the lake, but he was already moving away, the lantern swinging at his side. I followed him, back through the woodland to the house."

My spirits quickly responded to the cheering influence of the great library. I stirred the fire on the hearth into life and sat down before it, tired from my tramp. I was mystified and perplexed by the incident that had already marked my coming. It was possible, to be sure, that the bullet which narrowly missed my head in the little dining room had been a wild shot that carried no evil intent. I dismissed at once the idea that it might have been fired from the lake; it had crashed through the glass with too much force to have come so far; and, moreover, I could hardly imagine even a rifle ball missing an unimpeded right of way through so dense a strip of wood. I found it difficult to get rid of the idea that some one had taken a pot shot at me.

The woman's mocking voice from the lake added to my perplexity. It was not, I reflected, such a voice as one might expect to hear from a country girl; nor could I imagine any errand that would justify a woman's presence abroad on an October night whose cool air inspired first confidences with fire and lamp. There was something haunting in that last cry across the water; it kept repeating itself over and over in my ears. It was a voice of quality, of breeding and charm.

"Good night, merry gentlemen!"

In Indiana, I reflected, rustics, young or old, men or women, were probably not greatly given to salutations of just this temper.

Bates now appeared.

"Beg pardon, sir; but your room's ready whenever you wish to retire."

I looked about in search of a clock.

"There are no timepieces in the house, Mr. Glenarm. Your grandfather was quite opposed to them. He had a theory, sir, that they were conducive, as he said, to idleness. He considered that a man should work by his conscience, sir, and not by the clock,—the one being more exacting than the other."

I smiled as I drew out my watch,—as much at Bates' solemn tone and grim, lean visage as at his quotation from my grandfather. But the fellow puzzled and annoyed me. His smooth, black clothes, his smoothly brushed hair, his shaven face, awakened an antagonism in me.

"Bates, if you didn't fire that shot through the window, who did—will you answer me that?"

"Yes, sir; if I didn't do it, it's quite

"I don't believe they do any shooting, Mr. Glenarm. It's a pretty strict school, I judge, sir, from all accounts."

"And the teachers—they are all women?"

"They're the Sisters of St. Agatha. I believe they call them. I sometimes see them walking abroad. They're very quiet neighbors, and they go away in the summer usually, except Sister Theresa. The school's her regular home, sir. And there's the little chapel just beyond the wall; the young minister lives there; and the gardeners the only other man on the grounds."

"Show me my cell," I said, rising, "and I'll go to bed."

He brought from somewhere a great brass candelabrum that held a dozen lights, and explained:

"This was Mr. Glenarm's habit. He always used this one to go to bed with. I'm sure he'd wish you to have it, sir."

He led the way, holding the cluster of lights high for my guidance up the broad stairway.

The hall above shared the generous lines of the whole house, but the walls were white and hard to the eye. Rough planks had been laid down for a floor, and beyond the light of the candles lay a dark region that gave out ghostly echoes as the loose boards rattled under our feet.

"I hope you'll not be too much disappointed, sir," said Bates, pausing a moment before opening a door. "It's all quite unfinished, but comfortable. I should say, quite comfortable."

"Open the door!"

He was not my host and I did not relish his apology. I walked past him into a small sitting-room that was, in a way, a miniature of the great library below. Open shelves filled with books lined the apartment to the ceiling on every hand, save where a small fire-

Diet Always a Matter of Most Serious Consideration

"Each woman is a law unto herself in the matter of diet," said a woman who makes a study of psychology and many other things.

"When Nan Patterson was under nervous strain she asked for a lamb chop and French fried potatoes and a cup of coffee. She ate them to the very dish, then washed her hands and face, brushed her hair, smoothed her gown and announced that she was ready for the courtroom."

"All the newspapers commented upon her remarkably fresh appearance. Her complexion was like the rose. She had been in a dull, dark room for months, but she came out looking as bright and as well groomed as though she had been out in the sunlight every day. When she walked through the snow she kicked it from very delight, and when she got into the air she fairly skipped. A man would have drooped and dragged his feet along."

"I believe that it is all due to the diet that women have. Women stand nervous strain better than men and in hours of trial they eat more. A sort of seventh sense tells them that it is time to keep up their strength. This same sense also prompts them that they will need the influence of their beauty. Beauty in time of trial is of great help to a woman. She can scarcely get along without it. It brings her the very sympathy which she craves."

"When a man is in trouble, when his nerves are unstrung, he eats nothing at all. The drug store supplies him with something for his nerves and he stops in elsewhere to get a brace. But when it comes to a slice of good roast beef and a potato he is missing. He eats next to nothing at all."

"I remember going to the courtroom to see a society woman who had been called as a witness in a most trying case," writes Mme. Julie D'Arcy. "Her very honor was at stake. She went through the ordeal in a wilted condition. At recess I approached her. She knew me and she smiled and extended her hand."

"I must eat something," said she.

"What shall it be?" I asked tenderly.

"A plate of corned beef and cabbage," said she.

"I succeeded in getting a platter of it and she ate greedily. That afternoon she surprised the lawyers and the spectators by her brilliancy. And this goes to prove that you can never tell what will come next where a woman is concerned, though her success in nearly every case can be directly traced to her very epicurean diet."

"What shall it be?" I asked tenderly.

"A plate of corned beef and cabbage," said she.

"I succeeded in getting a platter of it and she ate greedily. That afternoon she surprised the lawyers and the spectators by her brilliancy. And this goes to prove that you can never tell what will come next where a woman is concerned, though her success in nearly every case can be directly traced to her very epicurean diet."

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and restoring nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for full particulars.

Sheep Raising in Australia.

The greatest industry of Australia is sheep raising, mainly for the sake of the wool, but also in part, of course, for the meat. Australia now ranks second among the great sheep-raising countries, Argentina being first with 92,000,000 sheep, Australia second with 72,000,000, and Russia third with 70,000,000. Only a few years ago Australia was first, possessing no less than 106,500,000 head of sheep. That was in 1891. Prolonged droughts were the cause of the destruction of many millions of Australian sheep, but since 1902 there has been an annual gain. Yet these sheep were not indigenous to Australia. They were first introduced in 1797, being of the Spanish merino species.

OVER $1,000 A YEAR AND "LIVING."

That is the Story of a Michigan Farmer Who Lives in Western Canada.

Olds, Alberta, Dec. 10, 1906.
Mr. M. V. Melanes, Detroit, Michigan:
Dear Sir and Friend—It will be four years next May since I came to Olds, and have lived here ever since.

Since I came here wheat has run from 25 to 45 bu. per acre, oats from 15 to 25, that I know of. I raised the finest oats I ever saw, and oats that I sowed 31st day of May this year went 72½ to the acre and weighed 41 lbs. to the bushel. My barley averaged 40 bu. last year and 50 this year, and was not sown until the latter part of May. I had 3 acres of potatoes this year and sold 700 bushels and put 275 lbs. in the cellar, and no bugs to pick. We have a fine Government Creamery at Olds. Our cows made 41 gal. per day and I didn't feed any grain; only prairie hay, so you see we are doing well. We have the patent for our homestead now and am very thankful that we came to Alberta.

We have made a little over $1,000 each year besides making our living. I would not go back to Michigan to live for anything. If I had my choice of a ticket to Olds or a 40-acre farm in Michigan I would take the ticket to Olds in two years I could buy any of them 40-acre farms. This is the country for a poor man, as well as a man with money.

I will close, thanking you for our property, I remain yours truly,
(Signed) OTTO YETTING,
Olds, Alberta, Canada. Box 159.

TWO YEARS IN BED

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills Cured Stubborn Rheumatism When Other Treatment Gave No Relief.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have been curing the most stubborn cases of rheumatism for nearly a generation and thousands of grateful patients have given testimony that cannot be ignored.

Mr. Robert Odert, a machinist, living at 201 Cameron Street, Detroit, Mich., had a very distressing experience with rheumatism for about two years. It makes the following statement: "About the year 1887 I felt the effects of rheumatism which gradually grew worse until I was compelled to give up work for a time. The years of '97 and '98 I was confined to my bed most of the time. I was under doctors' treatment but found no relief. My legs were swollen from the hips down, and red blotches appeared all over them. Frequently they pained me so that I had to bind them tightly with strips of linen. This sometimes relieved the pain but at other times failed to do so. At times I had to crawl to my work, using two crutches. During these spells I suffered greatly from pain around my heart which I attributed to the rheumatism.

"At last my mother wrote me and asked me to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. I did and in a short time I found myself getting better and have had no trouble since. I may here add that I consider myself perfectly cured. I have not had the least sign of the disease since and feel better now than I ever did. For these reasons I recommend Dr. Williams' Pink Pills to any one affected the same as I was."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are sold by all druggists, or sent by mail, postpaid, per box of price, 50 cents per box, six boxes for $2.50, by the Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Schenectady, N. Y.

A DEEP SEA CONSPIRACY

By J. C. Plummer

(Copyright, by Daily Story Pub. Co.)

A sailor lugging a coil of wire rope along the deck of the steamer Patricia struck himself smartly on the leg with the loose end. Then he swore: "Carraambo, sacre, damn!"

Lawler, leaning moodily on the rail, turned and looked at this man who swore in three languages.

The man's countenance could have been found anywhere in the Mediterranean—form lithe, complexion swarthy, eyes black and snapping, lips full beneath a jauntily twisted mustache.

He looked roguishly at Lawler. "Pardon, M'sieu," he said in English. "Who the devil are you?" asked Lawler.

"Francis Majole of Marseilles, M'sieu, mais I speak all language, Inglish, Espanol, Americano."

Lawler gazed steadily into the man's dare devil face.

"Majole," he asked, "if I give you a hundred pesetas, what would you do?"

"Mon Dieu, M'sieu would live long, for I would drink his head 100 times. You stand watch to-night, Majole?"

"From midnight to four, M'sieu."

"I could then say a few words to you in private?"

"Mals certainment, if M'sieu should be on deck at such a time."

When the steamer Patricia sailed from Montevideo for Barcelona she carried three cabin passengers, which was unusual. Travelers from the La Plata to Spain generally went by the mail boats from Buenos Ayres, and again, the Patricia was a cargo boat, and even Capt. Ybarra never styled her cabin as luxurious in its accommodations. The three passengers were Donna Juanita Vallos, Senora Espinosa and Thomas Lawler.

Had Senora Espinosa known that Lawler intended sailing on the Patricia she would have put to sea on a raft. Had Donna Juanita not been on the boat Lawler would have been looking after his herds on the Pampas.

Lawler was an American of erratic disposition and had finally settled down to raising cattle in Argentina. Hard by his grazing grounds was the hacienda of Donna Juanita, and one fateful day Lawler's blue eyes looked into the liquid depths of Juanita's black ones. He fell madly in love with her on the spot, and set about winning her in a way that made that austere lady, Senora Espinosa, become convinced that the world was deteriorating in its manners and customs. When Juanita's father died she had been left to the care of her brother Leon, and he, being a ship master, had in his turn committed her to the tutelage of the Senora.

The Senora was, as we have said, austere. She had never loved a man, and, to her best information, no man had ever loved her. She deeply deplored that she had not become a nun, and secretly prayed that Juanita would forswear the world and its temptations. In the midst of the holy calm that pervaded the hacienda Vallos came Thomas Lawler with his ardent wooing. He cast Castilian etiquette to the four winds, and sought the love of the Donna much as he would have gone about love making in his native Texas.

It would be a fine commentary on her vigilance as a duenna if Leon returned an found his sister engaged to a foreigner and a heretic and more than all a man of the American race, a people which had inflicted loss and disgrace on the name of Spain. It must not be, it should not be, and the Senora laid plans. She would take her charge to her native Spain and place her in care of a friend, an abbess. Behind the grim walls of the convent Juanita would be safe from predatory Lawler until Leon should arrive in Barcelona, to which port his vessel expected to sail from the East Indies, and then he could manage affairs himself. Accordingly, she departed without loss of time for Buenos Ayres, intending to take the mail steamer for Cadiz. To her dismay, she discovered that Lawler had gotten wind of her plan and had also started for Buenos Ayres. The wily duenna then made a flank movement, and finding that a steamer would sail from Montevideo for Barcelona, hid herself and charge together, and embarked on the Patricia. But she had not given Mr. Lawler due credit for pertinacity, and when she beheld him on the Patricia she admitted that he was a difficult man to dodge.

To keep apart two people inclined for each other's company in the circumscribed area of a ship is a problem of complexity in the evolution of which the Senora failed dismally. Despite of her frowns and of Juanita's feeble efforts to obey her admonitions, Lawler found time and place for love making. As a result, Juanita, with cheeks ablush and eyes downcast, admitted her love to him, but on one point she was immovable. She would not permit any engagement until Leon had given his consent.

Then Lawler did some thinking. Procuring from Juanita the date on which Leon's steamer, the Trinidad, was expected to sail from Madras, he had a talk with Capt. Ybarra and did some poring over charts. Barring accidents, the Patricia must reach Barcelona two weeks ahead of the Trinidad, and during these two weeks

Juanita would be immured in the convent subject to the hostile influence of the abbess and her duenna. What might result from this influence? Your ardent lover easily becomes a pessimist.

If only the arrival of the two ships was coincident, and he could go hand in hand with Juanita to Leon and plead their case.

If the Patricia could only be delayed, Lawler swore at the calm sea, at the soft trade winds blowing towards Spain. He damned the machinery working with the precision of a watch and damned Capt. Ybarra for boasting of his ship's progress.

There are several happenings which delay a steamer—dense fogs, storms, breaking of shafts or machinery, but the Patricia seemed immune from all such incidents.

At breakfast Capt. Ybarra announced with complacency that they were passing Gibraltar, and that he expected the following morning to be very near his home port. Senora Espinosa sent upward a prayer of thanksgiving, and Juanita looked sad. Mr. Lawler's face exhibited no emotion.

It was when, the straits being passed, the prow of the Patricia had been directed to the northward that there was a sense of something wrong among the passengers on the boat.

Then it was whispered that a man was sick forward; that his face had a yellowish tinge; that the officers were worried, then, like a thunderclap, the news, a man was sick with yellow fever. "Pip of a Majole," stormed Capt. Ybarra, "to fall sick just before I enter port!"

But poor Majole was not to bear all the censure, for just as the captain was debating how long he must lay in quarantine the news reached him that Mr. Lawler was sick. Capt. Ybarra spoke deeply and Senora Espinosa made Juanita remain in her stateroom and wore many scapulars.

In the office of Barcelona the ship lay to and awaited the physician. He came in his boat and at once went into the cabin. His diagnosis of the case of Lawler was long, then he visited Majole. His report was that the cabin passenger had indigestion, and the sailor what looked like vomito. The yellow flag went up, and the Patricia was in quarantine indefinitely. Never had the bewildered Capt. Ybarra heard of such a case of vomito, for, while the doctor came daily, he seemed averse to pronouncing the disease vomito. It was ever awaiting developments.

On the thirteenth day a long black merchant steamer came into port. When Lawler hailing a passing boatman asked who she was, he learned that the Trinidad from Madras had arrived. Coincidentally the doctor discovered the same day that Majole had jaundice, and was rapidly mending. The Patricia went up to her dock.

A couple were spending their honeymoon in Biarritz. The man was evidently an American; the woman a Spaniard. She had bidden her lord dress himself for a walk and he obeyed. The action of dressing caused a piece of gold to fall from a pocket of his trousers and drop on the floor. Thomas Lawler picked it up and apostrophized it.

What a wonderful thing is gold. It can make a sailor rub his face with chrome and play sick; it can induce a doctor to pronounce the man sick with threatened vomito and can make a full powered steamer lay idle in the harbor for 13 days. Incidentally, it procured a man the most charming wife in the world.

CARE OF ESQUIMAU BABY.

How the Little One is Carried by the Mother—Primitive Ways in Alaska.

The arrival in the world of the youthful Esquimau is not greeted by the orthodox cradle and swaddling clothes, says the American Missionary. Practically till he can shift for himself he lives absolutely naked inside his mother's sealskin blouse, skin to skin keeping him warm.

This arrangement allows the mother to go about her work almost immediately, and she can also travel and hunt without a perambulator and without having to leave anyone at home to "mind" the baby. The mother's dress is almost exactly like the father's, except that it has a long sort of tail reaching nearly to the ground, embryo, no doubt, of the modern "train."

Spared the miseries of soap and water, and early weaned to the readily swallowed diet of blubber and raw seal meat, the infant rapidly develops that invaluable layer of subcutaneous fat, which, while it enhances the "jolly" appearance of the lads and the shapeliness of the maidens, assists materially in economy in clothing.

Thus in their frigid clime, once in their skin tent, the whole family will divest themselves of every stitch of clothing, unembarrassed by the fact that so many families share the tent with them. Sociability is early developed when one's next door neighbor on each side is only separated by an imaginary line between the deer skin you sleep on and the one he uses.

The winter deer skin serves as bed and bedding at night and as parlor furniture during the day.

STAYS CURED.

Nervy Reggie.

"Look here, young man," thundered the old gentleman as he came down the stairway three steps at a leap. "Didn't I tell you if ever I caught you around here again I would play football with you?"

"Yes, sir, I think you did," replied the calm youth.

"And yet you have the cheek to call again?"

"Oh, yes, sir. You see football is now out of season."

DURING THIS MONTH.

Excellent Advice Which Our Readers Will Benefit By.

Now is the time to get the rheumatic poisons and foul acids from the blood and system, states an eminent authority, who says that Rheumatism and Kidney trouble are caused by the blood, which often becomes sour from excessive acids, and also tells what to do to make it pure and healthy.

Get from any good prescription pharmacy one-half ounce Fluid Extract Dandelion, one ounce Compound Kargon, three ounces Compound Syrup Sarsaparilla. Mix by shaking in a bottle and take a teaspoonful after meals and at bedtime.

Just try this simple blood cleaner and tonic at the first sign of Rheumatism, or if your back aches or you feel that the kidneys are not acting right. Any one can easily prepare this mixture at home.

CLAIMS TO CURE ALL ILLS.

Scotch Minister Announces Discovery of Remarkable Germicide.

A claim of an astounding nature is put forward by a minister whose field of work lies within the bounds of the city of Glasgow, Scotland. He has discovered a germicide by the application of which he can cure every kind of infectious, loathsome, and incurable disease, even when considered, humanly speaking, hopeless. He has demonstrated to his own satisfaction that hospitals for infectious diseases are quite unnecessary, and that surgical operations except on the battlefield or in railway or other accidents, are totally uncalled for. No operation is needed, according to him, for appendicitis, for example, as it can be perfectly well cured by the germicide. The discovery of the germicide has published a list of the names of 50 patients, with their addresses, whom he says he has cured, or is in process of curing, even in some cases, after they had received their "death warrant" from medical practitioners.

Dog's Claim to Honor.

When Capt. Ronald Amundsen left San Francisco for the east he made special and particular arrangements for the transportation of his dog, of which he said: "This faithful dog, which is attached to me almost as much as I am to him, is the only one of his kind to have made the north-west passage."

GOOD NATURED AGAIN.

Good Humor Returns with Change to Proper Food.

"For many years I was a constant sufferer from indigestion and nervousness amounting almost to prostration," writes a Montana man.

"My blood was impoverished, the vision was blurred and weak, with moving spots before my eyes. This was a steady daily condition. I grew ill-tempered, and eventually got so nervous I could not keep my books posted, nor handle accounts satisfactorily. I can't describe my sufferings.

"Nothing I ate agreed with me, till one day I happened to notice Grape-Nuts in a grocery store and bought a package, out of curiosity to know what it was.

"I liked the food from the very first, eating it with cream, and now I buy it by the case and use it daily. I soon found that Grape-Nuts food was supplying brain and nerve force as nothing in the drug line ever had done or could do.

"It wasn't long before I was restored to health, comfort and happiness. Through the use of Grape-Nuts food my digestion had been restored, my nerves are steady once more, my eyesight is good again, my mental faculties are clear and acute, and I have become so good-natured that my friends are truly astonished at the change. I feel younger and better than I have for 20 years. No amount of money would induce me to surrender what I have gained through the use of Grape-Nuts food." MAN OF DELICATE NERVES.

Rosenthal, the Pianist, Made Much Trouble in Hotel.

Rosenthal, the pianist, is one of those entitled to have his crankiness termed "the eccentricities of genius," says the San Francisco Chronicle. When he inspected his rooms at the Majestic upon his arrival very late the other night, he went softly to the adjoining doors, and placing his ears close to the cracks, exclaimed in broken English, "Zgodd, no sounds pass these." After nodding his approval of the grand piano and the window shades, "Must be green." He was assured that a change would be made especially for him the new day.

At five o'clock in the morning Rosenthal, clad only in his pajamas, came scurrying excitedly down stairs and into the office, where the drowsy night clerk was nodding at the desk.

"Ze street cars! Noise! Must stopped! Nervous me! I cannot sleep!"

The clerk hurriedly sent for Manager Gustav Mann, and Mann spent two hours telling Rosenthal funny stories in German trying to divert his mind while the clerk was upstairs squaring the management for waking a guest on the Gough street side and ordering him to move at once to the Sutter street side as a gas pipe had burst under the floor and had to be repaired!

FIFTEEN YEARS OF ECZEMA.

Terrible Itching Prevented Sleep—Hands, Arms and Legs Affected—Cuticura Cured in 6 Days.

"I had eczema nearly fifteen years. The affected parts were my hands, arms and legs. They were the worst in the winter time, and were always itchy, and I could not keep from scratching them. I had to keep both hands bandaged all the time, and at night I would have to scratch though the bandages as the itching was so severe, and at times I would have to tear everything off my hands to scratch the skin. I could not rest or sleep. I had several physicians treat me but they could not give me a permanent cure nor even could they stop the itching. After using the Cuticura Soap, one box of Cuticura Ointment and two bottles of Cuticura Resolvent for about six days the itching had ceased, and now the sores have disappeared, and I never felt better in my life than I do now. Edward Worell, Band 30th U. S. Infantry, Fort Crook, Nebraska."

PE-RU-NA A MEDICAL COMPOUND

In any medical compound as much depends upon the manner in which it is compounded as upon the ingredients used.

First, there must be a due proportion of the ingredients. Each drug in the pharmacopeia has its special action. To combine any drug with other drugs that have slightly different action, the combination must be made with strict reference to the use for which the compound is intended. The drugs may be well selected as to their efficacy, but the compound ENTIRELY SPOILED BY THE PROPORTION in which they are combined.

It takes years and years of experience to discover this proportion. There is no law of chemistry, of pharmacy, by which the exact balance of proportion can be determined. EXPERIENCE IS THE ONLY GUIDE.

In compounding a catarrh remedy Dr. Hartman has had many years' experience. In the use of the various ingredients which compose the catarrh remedy, Peruna, he has learned, little by little, how to harmonize the action of each ingredient, how to combine them into a stable compound, how to arrange them into such nice proportions as to blend the taste, the operation and the chemical peculiarities of each several ingredient in order to produce a pharmaceutical product beyond the criticism of doctors, pharmacists or chemists.

WE REPEAT, THAT AS MUCH DEPENDS ON THE WAY IN WHICH THE DRUGS ARE COMBINED AS DEPENDS UPON THE DRUGS THEMSELVES.

The compound must present a stability which is not affected by changes of temperature, not affected by exposure to the air, not affected by age. It must be so combined that it will remain just the same whether used in the logging or mining camps of the northwest or the coffee plantations of the tropics.

A complete list of the ingredients of Peruna would not enable any druggist or physician to reproduce Peruna. It is the skill and sagacity by which these ingredients are brought together that give Peruna much of its peculiar claims as an efficacious catarrh remedy.

However much virtue each ingredient of Peruna may possess, the value of the compound depends largely upon the manner and proportion in which they are combined. The right ingredients, put together rightly, is the only way a medical compound can be made of real value.

Respect YOUR Stomach

GIVE it food that will not irritate or retard the performance of its natural functions, and it will reciprocate in a way agreeable and comforting.

No single ingredient contributes so largely toward wholesome, nourishing, agreeable food as Royal Baking Powder.

Royal Baking Powder's active ingredient, Grape Cream of Tartar, is the most healthful of the fruit products.

This is why Royal Baking Powder makes the food finer, lighter, more appetizing and anti-dyspeptic, a friend to the stomach and good health.

Imitation Baking Powders Contain Alum

"The use of alum and salts of alumina in food should be PROHIBITED. The constant use of alum compounds exerts a deleterious effect upon the digestive organs and an irritation of the internal organs after absorption.

of the barber shop on Monroe St. says:
"For eighteen months I had pain through my loins and kidneys. It was such a heavy dull aching that I could not rest comfortably and felt about as tired in the morning as at night. My back became so lame when at work that it was torture for me to lift anything heavy. The kidney secretions were irregular, highly colored, and I was feeling miserable all the time. I saw Doan's Kidney Pills recommended so emphatically by prominent people that I concluded to test them, so I procured a box.
I could feel the good effect at once. I was amazed at the quickness with which all aches and pains left me and how soon the kidney secretions became natural. I consider Doan's Kidney Pills worth their weight in gold."

"The Tyranny of the Roof."

We think of the savage tribe as living outdoors, and free from the restraints which come from civilization—the garment, the house and the cook. But there is a barbarism which spends its winters in huts and holes from which every breath of fresh air is shut out, and where the stifling atmosphere is heavy with "old shapes of foul disease." Akin to the life of the hut and the slum is the life of the home of whatever grade where cold is dreaded more than bad air. The farmhouse, the millionaire's palace and the village grocery alike shelter miserable sinners against nature's laws. The crusade against the ravages of consumption has awakened thousands to the fact that the need for pure air is more imperative even than the need for good food, although it speaks with a less insistent voice. But, remarks Youth's Companion, hundreds of thousands of housewives yet need to learn the danger of the comfortable double window and the air-tight stove, and the healing power of pure, cold air, steeped in God's own sunshine. A woman who was known as the queen of the Gypsies died recently in England. She was of great age and amazing vigor, and a real "character" in her reserve and her hatred of modern conditions. She seldom talked, but it was known that she considered education as rubbish, houses as no better than prisons, and the persons who died in them as the victims of their own effeminacy. In a phrase both telling and memorable, she boasted herself "free from the tyranny of the roof." That is truly noble freedom and one which every wise woman may covet for herself and her children. Perhaps another hundred years may see the stuffy bedroom everywhere supplanted by the airy porch, and find civilized man again sleeping under the sky.

I find I am called an old man by other people; but I get along myself without thinking of this or talking about it, unless some correspondent asks me to, writes Edward Everett Hale in the Circle. Thus, I am lame; but I do not say I am lame because I am 84. I do say I am lame because I had a fall, precisely as I should have said it if I were 32 years and 3 months old at three minutes after three in the third month of the year. Or, in brief, if you can get along without thinking of yourself, much, it will probably be a comfort to yourself, and it will certainly be a comfort to your friends.

Because of a poor olive crop in Spain the demand for peanuts is brisk, and the peanut growers in the province of Valencia are holding their crop for a high price. Peanut oil is largely used by the Spaniards instead of olive oil, and the peanut competes with the olive at the oil crushers. The consular report from which this information is taken does not say whether or not the Spanish dealers sell the peanut oil as olive oil. They may be more scrupulous in their trade designations than some dealers in cottonseed oil have been.

The simplest way to ascertain the purity of olive oil is to freeze it. Pure olive oil has the exclusive property of freezing at three or four degrees above zero, whereas other oils need a temperature of ten degrees below. But how about the zero weather?

EVENTS NOTED

A STREET CAR WRECK CAUSES FATAL AND SERIOUS INJURIES.

WAS SMASHED BY TRAIN

Car Was Filled and Wounded Is All Were Not Killed—Many Wounded.

Who Is Responsible?

Michigan Central passenger train No. 202, bound in from Bay City, plowed through a south bound Fourteenth street car at the Fourteenth street crossing, Detroit, Friday morning, fatally injuring Joe G. Smith and hurting many others more or less seriously. There were 22 passengers on the car, some of whom escaped by jumping. The gates were open and Conductor J. W. Kissane crossed the tracks to throw the derail switch, when the motorman, L. R. Brooks, started the car at the signal from the conductor. A second later Leonard Zapf, the gateman, yelled to the motorman to stop the car. The motorman, seeing the passenger train approaching, applied the air brakes, and it is said, reversed the current, and as the trolley jumped the wire, jumped to safety. The momentum of the car carried it upon the main track, where it was stalled, without a motorman and without motive power.

The engine struck the forward end with a crash that was heard for blocks. Splinters and debris flew in every direction. The cowcatcher of the engine seemed to toss the car into the air and passengers on a north bound car which stood on the other side of the track say the car seemed to stand on end. The train was going probably 15 miles an hour. It carried the car along on the front of the engine for an instant, when it fell to the side of the track. The train was stopped and crew and passengers hastened back to the aid of the injured. Robert Smith was engineer of the train and William Roth conductor. The train was of the Bay City division of the Michigan Central and was due at the downtown station at 7:50 a. m. An official investigation will be made and arrests may follow.

DESERTED.

The worst case of destitution ever found in Flint was discovered by the police Wednesday when they investigated reports that four small children were starving to death.

What the authorities found corroborated the report. In a house reeking with filth, the only furniture a broken chair, a caved-in stove, one cot and a few rags, were the four children of Albert H. Keiser, who disappeared last Saturday and has not been seen since. The mother left some time prior to that and took an infant with her.

For five days and nights these children, the oldest but 11 and the youngest aged 4 years, have existed alone. Without food or warmth, they huddled together, wrapped in their few rags, and waited. Waited for the return of an unnatural father and mother who had forsaken them. The only food in the house was a few crumbs of crackers handed them by some neighbor. Three had slept on the dilapidated cot, and the other on the floor.

Their faces were pinched with hunger, and they shivered with the cold as they were taken to the county farm pending an investigation of their case.

His Age Is 104.

Ephraim Vannorman, of Eaton Rapids, is 104 years of age. Although now confined to his bed for the past few weeks he seems to have remarkable vitality and looks to be not a day over 70.

Mr. Vannorman was born in Genesee county, New York, in 1802, and came to Michigan in 1849, locating first on a farm in Calhoun county, then moving to Parma, Jackson county, he engaged in his trade as a stone mason, but returned to farming later. In order that he might give his only child a start in life Mr. Vannorman sold his 40 acres and launched his business in the city of Eaton Rapids and then worked at his trade as long as his strength would permit, and for the past 14 years has lived with the family of Anson Hoag, of that vicinity and is tenderly cared for by Mrs. Hoag.

Killed With His Fist.

Lewis Skinner and Arthur Morris, farmers in Wayland township, near Gun Lake, became involved in a brawl Skinner's home. Skinner attacked Morris with an ax, chasing him about the place. Morris grabbed up a neckyoke to defend himself, and losing that he struck Skinner a terrific blow between the eyes with his fist, killing him almost instantly.

A number of people saw the fight and the death blow, but were unable to interfere. Skinner leaves a widow and several children.

She refuses to make a complaint of bigamy, although wife No. 1 is living in Grand Rapids, without a divorce.

From the State Capital

Information and Gossip Furnished by Special Correspondent at Lansing.

Lansing.—The 1906 report of the commissioner of banking for the state of Michigan is full of interest and encouragement. The report shows that 23 state banks and one trust company were organized during the year, as follows:

Name-Location.	Capital.
Security Trust Co., Detroit.	$500,000
Maynard-Allyn State bank, Portland.	50,000
German-American Savings bank, Ann Arbor.	50,000
Calumet State bank, Red Jacket.	50,000
Old State bank, Fremont.	35,000
Old Cornum State bank, Cornum.	30,000
River Rouge Savings bank, River Rouge.	25,000
State Savings bank, Marquette.	25,000
Farmers' State bank, Vicksburg.	25,000
Onaway State Banking Co., Onaway.	25,000
Fruit Growers' State bank, Saugatuck.	25,000

The other 13 new banks have a capital of $20,000 each, and are located at Wolverine, Rockford, Memphis, Deerfield, Bancroft, Grant, Turner, Elsie, Central Lake, Marion, Belaire, Pigeon and Dryden. The starting of these 24 institutions added $1,100,000 to Michigan's banking capital.

In addition, ten other state banks added $431,000 to their aggregate capital, towards which the Peninsular Savings bank of Detroit contributed $100,000 and the Union bank of Jackson $100,000. The Home Savings bank of Kalamazoo, the Jackson City bank of Jackson, the Calumet State bank of Red Jacket, and the Commercial bank of Iron Mountain each added $50,000 to their capital. The four other banks added amounts varying from $15,000 to $40,000. Detroit's total addition during the year to its state banking capital, new and increase, was $700,000. From 80 banks with total resources of $38,900,770 on January 7, 1909, to 301 banks, one society for savings and six trust companies, with $236,764,589 aggregate capital, November 12, 1906, 27 years and ten months, is the record of Michigan's progress in state banking.

In a single year, November, 1905, to November, 1906, the state's total bank resources increased more than $27,000,000, while in the 27 years and ten months the increase was $198,000,000.

Warner Will Not Support Bill.

Gov. Warner will not support the railroad commission bill in its present shape and the railroad committee will allow it to rest until the two-cent fare bill is disposed of. There is a joker in the commission bill, the evident purpose of which is to take the rate question out of the hands of the legislature. The very last clause in the bill which amends section 634 of the compiled laws of 1897, gives the proposed committee power "to regulate the time and manner in which passengers and property shall be transported and the tolls and compensation to be paid therefor." It is doubtful whether under the constitution the legislature can delegate the power to fix rates, and if this were done it would give the railroad opportunity to test that question in the courts and tie up the fare proposition for several years. "It strikes me," said the governor, "that the commission can regulate rates from a two-cent standpoint as well as from three cents. I shall oppose any such tactics and believe that it is the duty of the legislature to pass the two-cent fare bill without any unnecessary delay."

Attorney Hal Smith has redrafted the proposed railroad commission bill, leaving it to be fought out in the legislature, as it was found impossible to get the steam and electric railway officials to agree on all the points. It is not likely that the measure will be discussed until the two-cent fare proposition is disposed of, and this will take several weeks. Great doubt is expressed that the bill will be passed, but in the event that it does Smith will be urged as a candidate for a place on the commission. Railroad Commissioner Glasgow will go over the bill and make such changes as he desires before it is introduced. The matter of interchanging freight between steam and electric lines is provided for in the bill.

Lid for Sweat Boxes.

Representative Miller introduced a bill which will likely make the police of the state sit up and take notice. It provides that persons arrested on felony charge cannot be questioned except in the presence of counsel and a stenographer and that no statement be admissible as evidence unless this course is followed.

He Claims Record.

August Miller, a St. Johns auctioneer, claims the state record for rapidity in selling. At the A. W. Simmons auction sale near Fowler he made 430 sales in 420 minutes. The total amount realized was $2,680 or over six dollars a minute.

Still Hot After Neal.

Senator Cropper's bill limiting the salaries of members of the state board of arbitration and mediation to five dollars a day for actual services made its appearance, having been reported out by the committee on state affairs. The bill should have gone to the committee on labor and when an objection was raised it was allowed to go there. The rapid course the bill took shows how some of the senators feel toward Frank Neal, secretary of the board, and the state administration.

Took His Own Life.

Ernest Weber, a wealthy farmer west of Three Rivers, hanged himself with a wire from the limb of a tree, a few rods from his home. He had been in a great agony from stomach trouble and an injured foot, and declared that he would kill himself to get relief from the pain. He was well-to-do, having recently sold his farm for $7,000. He leaves five daughters and a widow. Weber had an auction sale of personal property recently. His brother hung himself in the county jail many years ago.

Almost Like Other Courts.

The senate passed Representative Weiss' bill to give the Wayne circuit court commissioners authority to charge juries but amended it in several important particulars. They are limited to charging on the law and cannot grant new trial. It is also provided that the jurors must be drawn by the jury commissioners instead of by constables.

For Teachers' Reading.

The State Teachers' Reading Circle board has selected the following three books to be read by teachers during the ensuing year: Heman's History of Michigan, Salisbury's Theory of Teaching and Redway's Commercial Geography.

Must Show the Goods.

When asked for his opinion relative to the prospects for the proposed Albion-Charlotte electric line Mayor McAniff of Albion said: "Albion has granted no franchise to George Mindeman or any of his associates in the proposed Albion-Charlotte line. A committee was appointed to confer with the gentlemen, but up to this time they have never talked with the committee although they have discussed the matter with me once or twice. I told them that Albion was anxious for the line, but that the city would grant them no franchise to sell and in order to get into the city of Albion they must first satisfy the council that they have the necessary right of way, which I understand has been pretty well cleared up at least options have been taken. I next told them that they must negotiate with the Michigan Central and the Jackson & Battle Creek Traction company relative to using their right of way into the city, but I understand that nothing has been done in this direction. They must show us that they can deliver the goods and when they do we will grant them a franchise in a hurry."

Proofs Are Taken.

The taking of proofs on claims against the Eaton County Cooperative society of Eaton Rapids before circuit court commissioner J. C. Nichols brought to light several queer transactions. The company was placed in the hands of a receiver several months ago and the stock was sold at auction for 50 cents on the dollar. The stockholders are making strenuous efforts to show that additional money put into the business was merely loaned and if it did represent stock the transaction was misrepresented to them by the manager of the concern, E. K. Goodrich. Walter M. Newton, a Brookfield merchant, seems to be in the worst plight. He told the commissioner that the Eaton Rapids people made him a proposition to open a branch store in Brookfield and that any time he cared to he could draw out his money with interest at five per cent. The stock was invoiced and the company's record show that he received 69 shares representing $690, the amount of the invoice.

Ask Help for Russians.

Gov. Warner is in receipt of a communication from Samuel J. Barrows, secretary of the Russian famine relief committee, of New York city. The committee requests the governor to call attention to this calamity and to state that arrangements have been made to send the money collected by this committee as directly and promptly as possible to the sufferers. Contributions sent to Secretary Samuel J. Barrows, 135 East Fifteenth street, New York city, will be acknowledged and deposited with the Morton Trust company.

Tinker on Fairview Bill.

Representative Duest had the Fairview annexation bill recalled from the senate in order that the referendum clause may be stricken out. "I believe in a referendum clause," said Representative Duest, "but in this instance the health board tells us that the health of the people is at stake. Under such circumstances it is necessary to get the bill through." This change was made and the bill sent back to the senate again.

For Firemen's Associations.

Representative Weiss introduced a bill authorizing the incorporation of mutual provident associations of volunteer, part paid and full paid firemen. It is intended to organize a state institution to be conducted on lines similar to those of the Detroit Firemen's Fund association which has proved so successful among the firemen of Detroit.

THAW TRIAL

IS STOPPED

JEROME SAYS DEFENDANT IS A MANIAC AND A FIGHT IS ON.

A LUNACY COMMISSION

"If He Was Insane When He Shot White He Is Insane Now," Says District Attorney.

A Day of Sensations.

The Thaw trial abruptly broke off Wednesday morning. Justice Fitzgerald is considering a commission in lunacy to examine Thaw and will hear arguments pro and con.

The jury that has been listening to the evidence for nine weeks may never have Thaw's fate placed in its hands.

Sensations were plentiful in court Wednesday. Attorney Delmas opened by calling to the stand Dr. Allan McL. Hamilton, the alienist who lost his job with the defense because he believes Thaw is still a maniac. He wanted to show by him that Thaw was crazy when he shot White.

District Attorney Jerome objected. A bitter quarrel between counsel followed. "You do not want the truth," charged Delmas, "I do, I want it all. You only want part of it," retorted Jerome.

Dr. Hamilton's evidence was ruled out and the jury excused pending arguments.

Jerome then made a passionate plea to the court. He declared that Justice Fitzgerald, if he knew all the truth, would be horrified to think that he had for weeks been trying a maniac for his life.

He insisted that Thaw is crazy now and that he can prove it. But he did not formally ask for a lunacy commission.

Delmas declared the defense would fight a lunacy commission to the last ditch, but Jerome's plea had deeply moved Justice Fitzgerald. He excused the jury until Friday and declared he would hold up further proceedings until he could determine on a lunacy commission himself.

District Attorney Jerome's action in throwing up his hands in the Thaw case is universally recognized in New York as an admission of defeat, but at the same time he is given credit for humanitarianism. When Jerome made his plea to Judge Fitzgerald he said: "It would be butchery to send this man to the electric chair. If he was insane when he shot White he is insane now."

Thaw, who appeared pale and tired all the morning, turned crimson during the exciting scenes which attended the motion for a lunacy commission. He bit his nails, fidgeted about in his chair for awhile and finally assumed an attitude of despondency. His counsel table was deserted, all the attorneys being inside the rail at the judge's desk arguing and consulting among themselves.

THE GRAFTERS.

San Francisco Started by Official Confessions.

San Francisco's thunderstruck by the revelations of graft made during the grand jury investigation—particularly by the reported confessions of several officials.

It is reported that negotiations have been opened by the accused men with D. M. Delmas, the attorney who is defending Harry Thaw in New York, and that Mayor Schmitz has been or will be confronted with the written confession of the supervisors and has been promised immunity, if he will admit his confession to theirs.

This, it is said, will be done by the prosecution in order to reach the bribe-givers.

The grand jury will, according to District Attorney Langdon said also take action to force the surrender of such franchises as had been obtained by public service corporations through bribery.

Some of the supervisors reported to have confessed are now making deals. On the other hand it is said that Morris Levy, head of the so-called light trust in that city, called upon Assistant District Attorney Heney and made a full confession of the various sums of money alleged to have been paid the supervisors by Levy for light permits.

At the Mother House of the Sisters of St. Joseph, at Nazareth, Kalamazoo county, on the occasion of its patronal feast, Sister Anastasia made her vows. Miss Eva Twomey was clothed with the religious habit and will hereafter be known as Sister M. Rita.

With but 18 cents in the contingency fund to meet a bonded indebtedness of $57,000, a $100,000 damage suit to settle a 300-foot bridge to build and the citizens clamoring for a $50,000 court house, Midland is still feeling cheerful.

First Sergt. Silas M. Campbell has been elected second lieutenant of Co. H, Third Infantry, M. N. G., of Owosso.

Gerald Dolson, of Charlotte, who was injured in an automobile accident three weeks ago, has recovered from his internal injuries, but is still confined to the hospital with a broken leg.

A unknown man was found in Farwell bleeding and unconscious from wounds about his head, where he had been beaten by thugs, who robbed him of his watch, horse and buggy. His name is Foster and he is a resident of Houghton county. He was driving to Mt. Pleasant when set upon.

It is claimed in Munising that Prosecuting Attorney Peed and Sheriff Loucks have succeeded in securing a confession from John Rutledge, one of the prisoners in the county jail for complicity in the mysterious McMillan fires. Rutledge admits firing four buildings and implicates Wm. Michaels, also in jail. Michaels, however, denies the whole thing.

CONTROL TRUSTS.

"The Sugar Trust Stands for Murder. Nothing Else," Says Burrows.

"The sugar trust stands for murder, nothing else," said Senator Burrows, of Michigan. "That combination is unsatisfied with fair business competition; it is for the starvation and stifling of its competitors, and that is what makes the attitude of the president relative to the scope of control commerce so interesting."

"There is no doubt that if all the territory in the state of Michigan suitable and adapted to the cultivation of the sugar beet were to be put to that use we could produce sugar to feed the world. Secretary Wilson has told us so. Yet if rates can be continued, under the guise of state control of purely state commerce, it must regulate the situation in Michigan as long as the railroads are in harmony with it. And for that matter in all other sugar states."

"I am not clear that the president's so-called position is tenable. That is, I am not absolutely certain that the federal government can control all commerce, whether interstate or intrastate, but I must confess that many of the decisions of the United States supreme court look strongly in that direction. The first speech I made in the house, 33 years ago, was on this subject, the first time the trust and the sugar states were in harmony with it. And for that matter in all other sugar states."

Corporation Cure.

Federal license as a means of controlling railroads and trusts, it is said, will be the corporation cure advocated by President Roosevelt. He will give his views on the subject at the opening of the Jamestown exposition in May.

To squeeze the water out of corporations he will advocate a general appraisal of real values. He plans to make investors sure that their money will not be squandered.

Isaac N. Seligman, the banker, had a talk with the president Wednesday. He said afterwards: "The president will do any thing he can to allay war of confidence. He does not see, however, what he can do. He is not responsible for the action of the state legislatures. He is willing to meet the railroads half way."

Spring.

The Time hath laid his mantle by
Of wind and rain and icy chill.
And dons a rich embroidery
Of sunlight poured on lake and hill
No beast or bird in earth or sky,
Whose voice doth not with gladness thrill.
For Time hath laid his mantle by
Of wind and rain and icy chill.

Over and fountain, brook and rill,
Bespangled o'er with livery gay
Of silver droplets, wind their way.
All in their new apparel vie,
For Time hath laid his mantle by.

HOME OF THE EASTER LILY

Flower Was Introduced Into the Islands of Bermuda by an American.

There is only one monument in the whole British colony of the Bermudas—and it is erected to the memory of an American. This fact may seem a bit strange until one has heard the story, which is really a story of the Bermuda lily, and of the man who made it possible.

Many years ago—during President Hayes' administration, in fact—Gen. Russell Hastings, who had made for himself a brilliant record during the Civil War, was stationed in the White House at Washington. He and his wife went to Bermuda on their wedding trip, and were so charmed with the beauty of the place that they returned there and there to remain, and, if possible, to make it their permanent abode. The climate, too, appealed to them. (The general had been seriously wounded in the war, and was far from well.)

A little later the two came again. As tourists this time, but as home-seekers. In those days the now-existing law that none but English citizens can own land in English colonies was not in force. So General Hastings had no difficulty in acquiring a large estate. He chose a picturesque site in the little city of Hamilton, surrounding a landlocked bay. Here he built his home, "Soudi," which stands to-day among tropical trees and luxuriant flowers.

Not only did General Hastings at once become deeply interested in the place, and in the possibilities for its development, but he was genuinely distressed at the poverty of the islanders. He was a writer in the Detroit Free Press. Setting about to improve matters, he studied the climatic conditions, experimented again and again, and at length his efforts were crowned with success. It was found that our present-day Easter lily, originally a native of Japan, would attain in Bermuda to a perfection of loveliness hitherto unknown. The islanders were soon pressed into service, and since about 1875 the culture of lilies has been not only their chief pride, but their chief means of livelihood as well. Imagine a tiny group of islands, far out in the Atlantic—the largest of them about 15 miles long and not wider, at most, than a mile and a half—set beneath the bluest of blue skies, and seeming to rest on water whose transparency and brilliancy of color are unequalled anywhere. This is Bermuda, the home of the Easter lily.

As the incoming boat skirts the shore, the lily fields look from a distance like white summer clouds dropped down from the sky upon the green islands. Lily fragrance fills the air and is blown by the wind far out over the water. Coming nearer you see the fields more clearly—rows upon rows of blossoms, tall, stately and snowy white. It is very beautiful.

It was not until the early '80's that the Bermuda lily became well known in the United States. It is said that a Philadelphia woman, returning from the islands, brought home a plant to bloom. This came to the attention of W. K. Harris, an enterprising florist of the Quaker city, who purchased a lot of the bulbs, from which he succeeded in raising hundreds of plants, introducing them under the name Lillium Harrisii. Thus the Easter lily industry spread to America, and to other countries as well. But nowhere do the flowers grow so perfect and beautiful as under the quickening warmth of the tropical sun of Bermuda.

Ordinarily only bulbs are exported, but at the rush season whole boat loads of cut buds and of thickly-budded plants are packed and shipped away, carrying the sweet message of the Easter tide into countless homes and churches.

General Hastings is dead. In spite of his long residence in Bermuda, he remained a devotedly loyal American citizen and from time to time concerned himself with public affairs, holding various positions of responsibility and honor. The islanders remember him as their friend and benefactor, and that they and those that come after them may not be ungrateful for the debt of gratitude they owe, a beautiful monument has been recently erected in Hamilton in his memory.

AN EASTER SONG

A song of sunshine through the rain,
Of spring aches the snow,
A balm to heal the hurts of pain,
A peace surpassing woe.
Lift up your heads, ye sorrowing ones,
And be ye glad of heart,
For Calvary and Easter Day,
Earth's saddest day and gladdest day,
Were just one day apart!

With shudder of despair and loss
The world's deep heart was wrung
As, lifted high upon His cross,
The Lord of Glory hung—
When rocks were rent, and ghosts
Stole forth in street and mart;
But Calvary and Easter Day,
Earth's blackest day and whitest day,
Were just one day apart.

Symbol of Glad Easter

All Nations and All Peoples Have Connected the Egg with the Creation or Renewal of Life.

FOR days the shop windows have spoken eloquently though mutely of the advent of the great spring festival which in some form or other the classes and masses of the people are observing. Easter lilies and tulips, violets and hyacinths all have spoken of the birth of a new year, of the springing forth of buds and blossoms, of the thrilling of bird songs, of the breaking of ice-bound waters, of the passing of winter, and of the return of the sun, of the new hopes and desires, symbolized in the celebration of Easter.

And everywhere the egg, symbolic of the universe and of life, of the springing forth from the germ of new forces and powers, has been in evidence.

The Egyptians, the Jews, the Persians and Hindus, the Syrians, the Burmese, the Chinese, the Australians, the Hawaiians—all have connected the egg with the creation or renewal of life.

The fire worshippers of Persia, worshipping Zoroaster as a prophet, believed in a great spirit from whom came two brothers, Ormuzd and Ahriman. Ahriman, showing jealousy of his brother, Ormuzd, was condemned to darkness for thousands of years. Angered, he longed for revenge, and when Ormuzd made an egg containing good geni Ahriman made another full of evil spirits, and broke the two together, so that from the beginning good and evil were mixed. In memory of this legend of creation, the Persians at the festival of the solar new year, held in March, exchanged colored eggs as gifts.

The Chinese have a story that the first man, Poo Koo Wong, came from an egg, and that having been born he used the upper part of the shell to make the heavens, while the lower part became the earth.

The Burmese tell that the first man and woman, their Adam and Eve, were hatched from a single egg.

The Syrians say that their gods from whom they were descended were hatched from eggs.

The Australians believe the earth was darkened space until one of their race threw up an egg, which exploded and became the sun.

Hawaii, the islanders declare, was a great egg which some mammoth bird dropped as it passed over the seas.

The Egyptians regarded the egg as a sacred emblem of the renovation of mankind after the flood, and the Jews used it as a type of their departure from the land of the Egyptians, and with the Paschal lamb it was a part of the Passover feast.

The early Christians were, of course, Jewish, and when they began to observe Easter as a Christian feast gave to the egg as a part of the ceremonial of the season a new significance, that of the resurrection from the dead. Eggs were forbidden during Lent, and so naturally accumulated, as the hens did not stop laying. Eating them on Easter day signified that fasting time was over and feasting begun, so they were connected with the joy just as were the bells which, hushed during the period preceding Easter day, broke into joyous pealing at its dawn.

The name for Easter in the romance languages—paques in French, pasqua in Italian, and pascua in Spanish—comes through the Latin pascha, from the Chaldean form of the Hebrew name for the Passover festival. Hence the eggs are pascas, paschas, or pasque eggs, as well as Easter eggs.

When the early Christians began to observe Easter as a Christian festival a controversy as to the time of its observance, known as the Paschal controversy, and extending from the second to the fourth centuries, arose. The Eastern churches kept it at the same time as the Jewish Passover, upward and before the concave heavens; the lower half reversed, making the convex earth, and the white al-bumen became the seas.

GATEWAY OF ANCIENT CHINA.

Old Mud Fort With Heaps of Small Stones for Use of Defenders.

Chia-yu-Kuan has for centuries been the spot where merchants, as well as embassies from the West, have been forced to await the permission of the mighty emperors of Cathay before entering China. As such, and from its remote situation—remote, that is, so far as Europeans are concerned—this frontier post has long enjoyed a halo of romance in Chinese eyes. In reality it is a mud brick fort, far inferior to such places as are to be seen at Lahore and other Indian cantonments long ago given up, except as mere quarters.

The walls at Chia-yu-Kuan enclose an area some 120 to 150 yards square. On the north and south sides these are double the outer, being 20 feet high and four to six feet thick. East and west there are double gates of solid aspect, and the inner wall is 35 to 40 feet high all around. From outside the fort has, to the Oriental eye, an imposing appearance, which the inside does its best to atone for. Here is to be seen a collection of dirty mud hovels, with one official residence of the poorest kind. Along the wall runs a narrow parapet, some four feet from the summit, but, owing to its height, unapproachable from below, except in two or three places.

From the point of view of modern defense the whole position is pitiable. Guns there are none, the garrison consists of a half score withered old men of the usual Chinese type and these are the proud possessors of wooden jingalls. Having said so much it might seem that the worst has been told, but this is not so. With no intention to hurt the feelings of the trusty garrison to whose charge is committed the most advanced outpost of the mighty empire possesses it must be added that piles of small stones are heaped at intervals along the parapet wall. With these it may be presumed that the defenders will be called upon some day to meet a foe advancing from the northwest.

The G. P.'s.

A physician's wife was complaining of the annoyances she suffers in the interests of her young husband's practice.

"When I married the doctor," she said, "his abbreviation of g. p. amused me, but in two cases at least I soon found that it meant more than a grateful patient. One woman whom he asked me to be nice to because she was a g. p. has borrowed my clothes more or less for four years; the other has a little girl born just a day later than our Marjorie, and she uses the coincidence as a reason for borrowing all poor Marjorie's things. I've been asked to lend the child's clothes, her playthings, her perambulator, and even the services of the nurse. Now both these women are popular in different little cliques and have brought the doctor a patient or two. So if I were to speak my mind out it would mean perhaps a loss. They know they have me at their mercy, so until our practice is very much larger I must grin and bear it. My only consolation is in saying that g. p. means, in their case, graft patient."

Spitzbergen.

For the first time I learned, from an eyewitness, something about Spitzbergen, that desert Arctic island, 500 miles north of the North Cape of Norway and within 700 miles of the north pole; a frost-desolated land, where the grass grows longer than the trees, and huge glaciers in the ice-begirded valleys amid the jagged mountains move majestically down into the sea, until mighty icebergs, a monstrous birth, break off and rise to the surface amid thunderous reports—once the only sound that broke the profound silence of those awful solitudes.

Spitzbergen is the only spot of earth that is positively known as No Man's Land; it is the possession of no country, and has nothing even resembling a specified government. The island seems likely to remain No Man's Land, though it is said that an effort has been made by Norway to establish some sort of protectorate over it—National Magazine.

An Urban Cinderella.

The teacher had been reading a story of Cinderella to her class of youngsters and was now going over the story again with them to fix it in their minds. Among other questions which she asked them was why it was necessary for Cinderella to leave every night early enough to be home by 12 o'clock.

From various members of the class she elicited most of the reasons which are implicit in the story until finally all remained silent.

"Isn't there any other reason?" she asked. "Can't any of you think of another?"

Up shot Larry's soiled chubby paw, in frantic eagerness to indicate his knowledge.

"That's good, Larry. What is the reason?"

"She had to catch the last car," piped Larry.—Montreal Herald.

Go Slow Young Men.

Nicholas Murray Butler, president of Columbia, advises students against deciding upon a vocation too soon. According to Dr. Butler, a man should not go to college with any settled convictions as to what he is to do. Dr. Butler holds that college is the place to make such a decision. The opportunities there are so many and varied that, according to the president, every man ought to find something to suit him. He implies that by the end of his senior year a man ought to have acquired enough knowledge to enable him to determine his right vocation.

SEE WHAT YOU BUY

DO NOT TAKE THE CATALOGUE STATEMENT FOR IT.

CASE OF A MAIL-ORDER BUGGY

The Purchaser Was Ashamed to Use It and Sold It to His Hired Man—It Pays to Buy at Home.

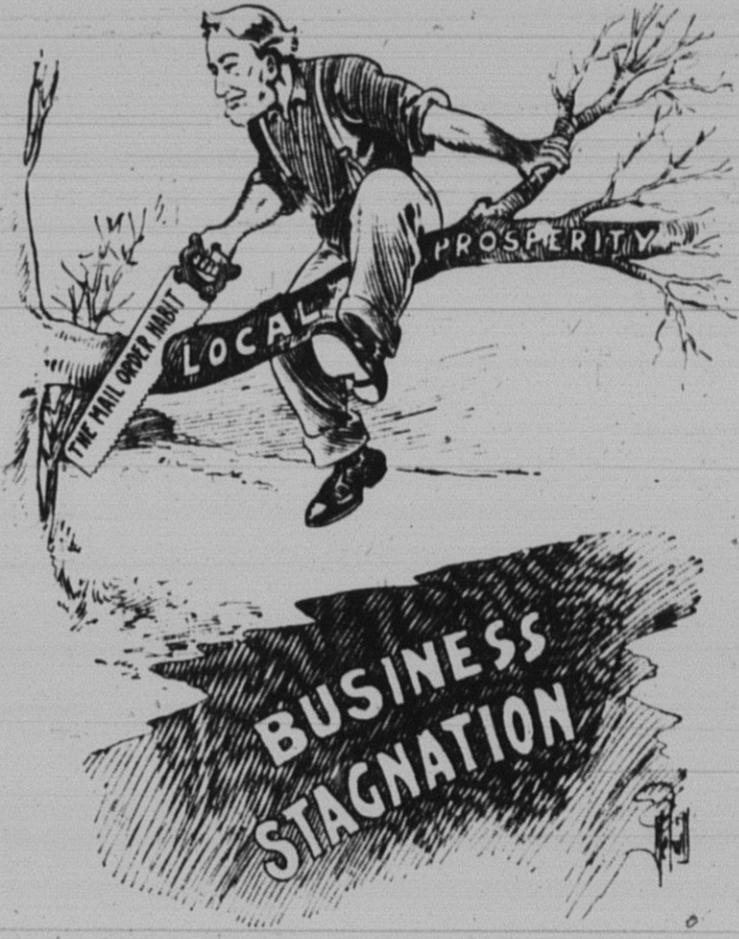

(Copyright, by Alfred C. Clark.)

The East End of London is an example of what the city does for humanity in creating poverty, misery, disease, drunkenness and crime. Jefferson was right when he said: "Great cities are great sores upon the body politic." Is it any wonder that lovers of their kind are horror-stricken at the grinding of these gigantic mills whose grist is the bodies and souls of men?

But there is another movement connected with this current setting city-ward which, like it, is full of grave menace to the welfare of humanity. This is the dry rot now invading thousands of villages and towns. It is not lack of capital or business energy in the towns, or discrimination in freights or exhaustion of the soil in the surrounding country that is bringing about this change, but a new and dangerous form of competition, and the caprices of those who buy. Go into these towns and you will find them at a standstill or going backward. Inquire of their business men or commercial travelers and you will learn that business is not as good as formerly and that the prospect is for a continued shrinkage in trade. An observant commercial traveler said to the writer: "I believe the day of the village and town is over. The big fish are everywhere eating up the little fish. A few small lines of business that cannot be done by mail, such as know that he could have bought as cheaply and selected much more satisfactorily at home. On a rural route with which I am familiar and over which most of the incoming letters are from mail order houses and the outgoing ones carry back money orders, lives a friend of mine who bought a watch from the catalogue at what he considered a rare bargain. The watch came, to be sure, but it did not go, that is at the right speed, and, although money enough was spent on it to bring the price up to a good figure, it was no better as a timekeeper than that famous watch of Capt. Cuttle's. Another friend bought a buggy at $34 and was elated over his purchase until it came and he saw that the top was a very ordinary article of oil cloth, instead of leather, and he was so ashamed of it that he sold it at a loss to his hired man and bought a better one in a neighboring town. A lady and her two daughters bought shoes from the catalogue and when asked why they had trouble with their feet said it was because of ill-fitting shoes. But such instances of the bad effects of buying "sight unseen" are daily occurring all over the country. It is only natural and inevitable that such things should happen.

Let us see what will be the effect of this formidable diversion of trade, if carried to its logical conclusion. Nearly all the business houses of the smaller towns will become bankrupt, the value of town property will decline, churches and schools will receive a feeble support and the towns, instead of being centers of business and social activity, will almost cease to exist. The country in general will become like many portions of the south where the large plantations, by getting their supplies in the cities, have kept the neighboring towns down to the cross-roads type—dreary, unpainted little places of a half dozen ramshackle houses. The evil effects of this loss of trade and destruction of the value of town property will re-

The mail-order habit will cut the limb of local prosperity from the tree of national life and drop you and your community into the bottomless pit of business stagnation. Are you wielding the saw that means certain disaster to you and your community?

barbering, blacksmithing or the serving of soft drinks and ice cream may survive, but such lines of trade cannot sustain a decent town. The cause of this widespread loss of business is the aggressive and destructive competition of the catalogue houses in the big cities. It has been possible for 40 years or more to buy of some houses in the cities, if one felt that the merchants of his town were exacting too much profit, but this effort of the mail order houses to cut the retailer altogether is a new thing, the growth of the past few years. Starting with a few lines of trade, this form of competition has come to cover almost everything that can be sold in a country town and it is even asserted that a savings bank department is to be added by one of the catalogue houses.

The claim that the mail order houses of Chicago are doing an annual business of over $200,000,000 may seem large, but one house alone has sold goods to the amount of $29,000,000 in the past six months and is now incubating a new plan to increase its enormous business by selling shares of stock to thousands of people in the hope of making them regular customers.

The skillfully worded advertisement and the big catalogue, with its pictures of articles in a hundred lines of trade, are very alluring to buyers, most of whom are not familiar with prices and qualities. Some of the articles below the usual prices are of an inferior quality, while the average price is usually fully up to what would be paid to the home dealer. As was shown last winter in a speech in congress, articles for the mail order trade are often misbranded at the request of the mail order people with deliberate intent to deceive. One of the instances given by this congressman was of some thousands of finger rings stamped "fourteen carats" when they were in reality only ten.

The buyer who orders from his catalogue, or from an advertisement, does not see the articles till they come and is often disappointed in the quality of the most of them, but there is no redress as there would be if he bought at home. He does not like to own that he is disappointed, so he makes the best of it and tries to persuade himself that he has saved money. In many instances he is not well enough informed in values to

Didn't Suit Him.

People who patronize the cars running out to Forest Hills are familiar with Conductor Crowley, the man who wears six service stripes on his sleeve, says a writer in Boston Herald.

On the afternoon of election day in November one of his passengers was an old man who had been imbibing enough to make him go to sleep in the corner of the car.

Just before it reached Dudley street the conductor announced with his usual rich roll of the r. "Clir-cuit and Guild."

"Ver a liar! It's John B. Moran!" shouted the sleepy one, waking up suddenly.

An Easter Lay.
Behold! What light in yonder sky?
The angels echo in reply:
It is the Easter Dawn.
Let carols sweet ring through the air,
And flowers distill their perfume rare,
This Restoration morn'.

For Christ has risen, as He said,
Blest Saviour of the quick and dead.
Chant loud the glad refrain,
For angels rolled the stone away,
And Christ arose ere broke the day,
And evermore shall break again.

Chinese Idea of Creation.
By the Chinese it is believed that the world was formed of two parts of a great egg. From the yolk, man came forth; then he waved his hand and the upper half of the shell went upward and became the concave heavens; the lower half reversed, making the convex earth, and the white al-bumen became the seas.

CHURCH CIRCLES

CONGREGATIONAL.

Rev. M. L. Grant, Pastor

Easter will be appropriately observed at the Congregational Church. The choir will present a special musical program at the morning service, and the subject of the minister's sermon will be "An Easter Message." The church will be decorated with lilies. The Sunday school will have charge of the evening service and a musical program will be rendered. A special feature will be a dialogue by ten girls, entitled "Her Easter Choice."

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE.

The Christian Science Society will meet in the G. A. R. hall at the usual hour next Sunday, March 31. Subject: "Unreality." Golden Text: "I applied mine heart to know, and to search, and to seek out wisdom, and the reason of things, and to know the wickedness of folly, even of foolishness and madness. . . . Lo, this only have I found, that God hath made man upright; but they have sought out many inventions."—Ecclesiastes, 7: 25, 29. Responsive reading:—Isaiah, 17: 1-4, 7-14.

ST. PAUL'S CHURCH.

Rev. A. A. Schoen, Pastor

Services will be held at the usual hour in the morning on Good Friday. The Sunday school will be held at 9:30 o'clock next Sunday morning.

The regular Easter services of the church will be held at 10 o'clock next Sunday morning. Communion after the regular service.

The evening services will be held at 7 o'clock, and an appropriate Easter program will be rendered. The pastor will also deliver a short address.

M. E. CHURCH.

Rev. Joseph Ryerson, Pastor

Last Sunday evening the choir loft was occupied by the men's choir, consisting of nine voices and Fred Fuller, cornetist. It was a splendid addition to the evening service. They will lead the singing every Sunday evening.

At next Sunday morning's service the subject will be "The Ancient Land Marks." In the evening, instead of a sermon by the pastor, the Sunday school will take part in the program. There will be a reception of a class of Junior Leaguers at the close of the service.

BAPTIST CHURCH.

Rev. T. D. Denman, Pastor

Easter exercises by the pupils of the Sunday school at the Sunday school hour. All cordially invited.

Subject for Sunday morning sermon at the Baptist church: "From the Gloom of Calvary to the Joy of Easter." Evening subject: "Pitching One's Tent Towards Sodom."

The annual meeting of the Baptist church will be held Saturday, April 6. Sermon in the morning at 10:30 o'clock, and roll call and business meeting at 1 o'clock. Dinner will be served at the church.

OUR LADY OF THE SACRED HEART.

Rev. Fr. Considine, Pastor

Easter Sunday, in the Church of Our Lady of the Sacred Heart, the pastor, Rev. Fr. Considine, will conduct the usual services for the day and the church will be appropriately decorated with Easter lilies. The choir of the church has prepared for the day a fine musical program.

Low mass at 8 o'clock, during which St. Cecilia's choir will render new and appropriate hymns.

High mass at 10:30 o'clock. Chorus by Senior choir.

"Praise ye the Father," by Gounod. Millard's mass in G will be rendered for the first time in Chelsea.

Offertory.
Regina Coeli.
Duet and chorus.
Vespers and benediction at 7:30 p. m.
Gregorian chant.
"Magnificat," by C. S. Peters.
O Salutaris—Duet—Soprano and alto.

 The new hosiery will not be wonder right away, but those who plan to follow the fad are not waiting until spring to lay in a supply, because the choicer—or the more bizarre—patterns will be gone by that time, and there is a certain satisfaction in wearing the most startling patterns, if one proposes to go into the thing at all.
 It will not be uncommon this summer to see a vividly colored bunch of cherries nestling over the instep of many a haughty dame. And if, in crossing the street, the skirts are lifted a little higher than the in-step, it will also be ascertained that the cherries do not stop with a single bunch, but that they riot in bright red profusion all the way up to the very top of the stockings.

In that dress it will look very elegant, and the velveteen

PINKIE PRIM

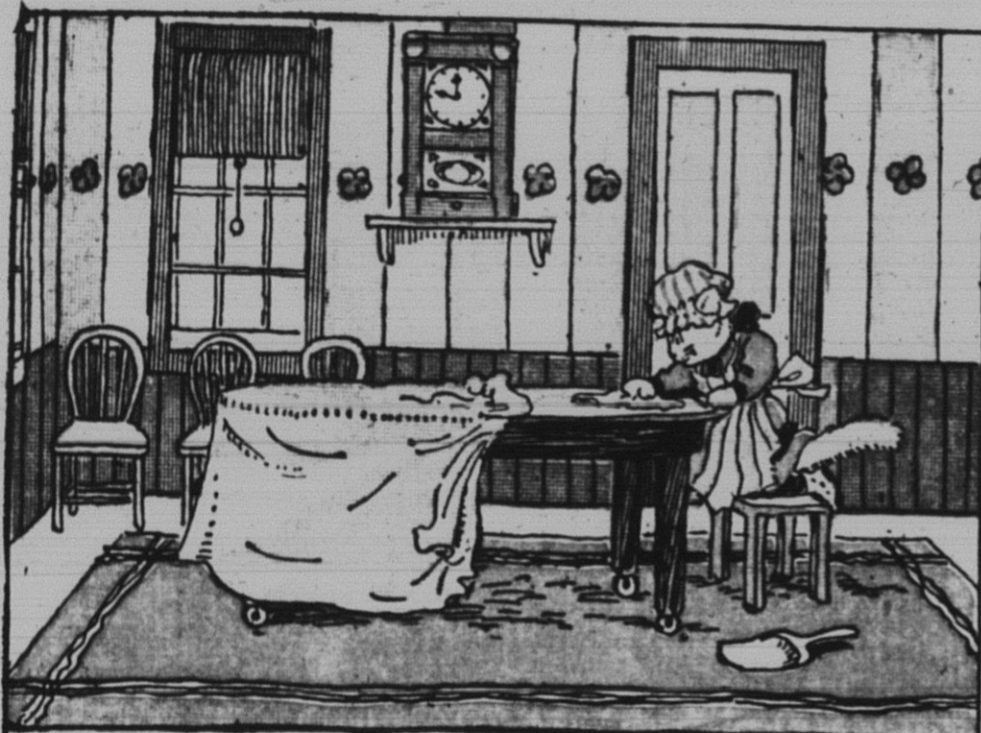

Pinkie took her little broom
And started in to sweep
Grandpa's parlor,—where, alas!
The dust was "rather deep?"

Next the room where Grandpa kept
His many precious books;
Visited by Pinkie was;
And much improved in looks.

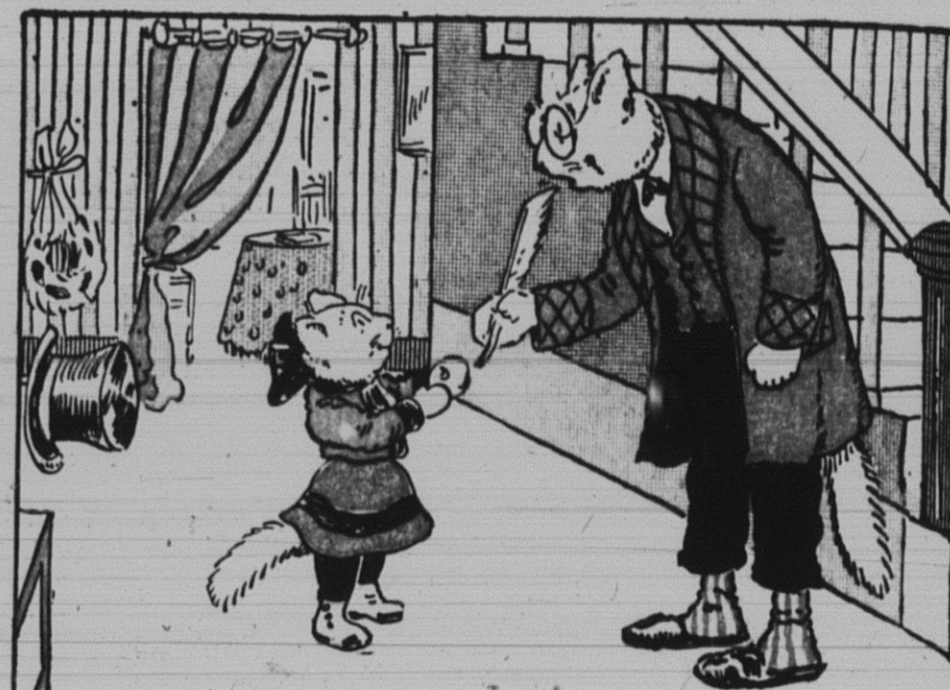

Sitting room then got its dose
Of dustpan, broom and rag.
So important was the job,
She did not tire or fag.

Still another to be done,—
Her Grandpa's dining room.
To a "queen's taste" she employed
Her dustpan, rag and broom.

Then the kitchen floor was scrubbed,
And all the pans made bright.
Grandpa Prim astonished was
At everything in sight.

"Pinkie," said he, "In reward,
I wish you take this quill.
'Old Abe' Lincoln with it wrote
Your Great-grandfather's will!"

As soon as he arrived, he told Rafferty he would walk around a few minutes and come back, but left immediately for Detroit, where he was arrested Friday and brought back here by Frank Leach Saturday morning.

The Convention.

The convention of the Ann Arbor district held in the M. E. church was fairly well attended, about 25 out of 40 answering the roll call of the presiding officer, Dr. Dawe.

The program was well carried out, all of the papers being of a high order. The speakers from abroad Dr. Loyd and Dr. Elliott were on hand and in a very able manner presented the great questions of the future of this country and pagan land. That the ministers were delighted with the large hearted way they were entertained in the homes of our people and by the Ladies' Aid is seen in the following resolutions they passed.

Resolved, That we tender our grateful acknowledgment and hearty appreciation of the kindness of Bro. Ryerson and his loyal people and co-workers in their splendid entertainment of this conference. Again have they sustained their excellent reputation as hosts of our district gathering.

Resolved, That we, the ministers of this great district, express our cordial endorsement of the recent anti-saloon and slot machine movement which has resulted so splendidly in Chelsea.

Resolved, That we express our appreciation of the high labor ideals in vogue in the Glazier stove factory, and the great interest manifested in the management in erecting the magnificent building, the "Welfare Building."

Resolved, That we note with pleasure the splendid progress that is being made in the erection of the Old People's Home and congratulate the trustees on the fine work being accomplished by Bro. and Sister Reed.

Resolved, That we express our appreciation of our presiding officer, Dr. Dawe, and promise to do all in our power to help to build up the district. The convention accepted an invitation to meet next year at Petersburg. At the supper table Rev. Dr. Ward made a speech and spoke of the splendid hospitality of the ladies and the ministers cheered his speech.

The convention will be held at Petersburg next year.
