S. A. MAPES.

Astronomers say that Mars will be nearer the earth this summer than for fifteen years. The opportunities for exploration there are a little remote even yet, since if the journey were undertaken when the planet is nearest and if a speed of one thousand miles a day were attained, the round trip would consume 72,000 days, not allowing for stop overs.

Nation's Vast Wealth. According to one authority the wealth of the United States, if converted into $1 bills, would reach from the earth to the moon and back again 30 times.

SEWERAGE FOR CHELSEA

THREE MAIN LINES

Mr. Pierson Has Completed a Survey, After Making a Personal Study of Local Conditions---His Plans.

The Chelsea common council has been making an earnest effort during the past few weeks to reach a permanent solution of the matter of sewage disposal for the village. Conditions in the town have not been particularly objectionable until the last two years, but the population of the town is now increasing so rapidly that the present method of disposal in certain sections of the town is becoming decidedly objectionable and unsanitary. It is quite probable, in fact, that the matter will be emphatically brought to our attention by the state board of health in the near future, if something is not done.

Mr. Pierson, of Kalamazoo, has been called in consultation by the council with reference to the matter. The gentleman in question has a national reputation as a sanitary engineer. His work last year extended over ten states; he now has under way a sewage system for Little Rock, Arkansas, and a similar system for Jackson, Michigan, has just been completed under his direction. It is doubtful whether a man better qualified to look after our interests could be found within reasonable distance.

An engineer from Mr. Pierson's office has completed a survey of the village streets, and Mr. Pierson has personally made a thorough study of our local conditions. He has recently submitted a general plan for a sewer system which was very favorably received by the council when presented to them. It has two advantages; it will serve thoroughly and permanently all sections of the town except the extreme outlying portions, and it also could be constructed at a reasonable cost. The plan as outlined provides for three main lines of sewers running north toward the creek; the central one on Main street beginning at the southern end of the present business section; the eastern one on East street starting at the school house; and the western one leading from the south end of Grant street. With these main lines smaller branch lines would be connected in such a way as to provide sewage disposal in the immediate future for the area bounded by the above named streets as well as sections extending from two to three blocks east, south and west thereof.

A very important feature of the plan is a sewage disposal plant for rendering the sewage odorless and unobjectionable. Such a disposal plant is of course unnecessary for a town located on a stream where a large volume of water can be depended on the year round. The very opposite is the case in Chelsea and without a disposal plant it would be necessary to carry sewage a considerable distance down the creek before it could be discharged from the sewer. The cost of carrying it this distance would more than equal the cost of a satisfactory disposal plant, and there would still be some prospect of damage from property owners below the creek at the end of the sewer. In connection with this disposal plant the three trunk lines of sewers would be brought together on the south shore of the creek at a convenient location. This system of disposal includes a storage tank where sewage remains for a certain length of time and in which it is thoroughly decomposed and purified. It then passes automatically through a gravel filter bed after which the water is discharged into the creek. The entire process takes place in a building all under roof and is so satisfactory in every way that there is not the slightest reason to fear that the section of town where it is located will be in any way rendered undesirable for residence. These disposal plants have become particularly common in Massachusetts and it is not at all unusual there to locate them in a thickly settled, fine residence district with dwelling houses on each side and across the street from them. The grounds around them are usually made attractive with lawns and shrubbery.

Mr. Pierson is preparing a complete set of plans and specifications for the construction of the sewer system outlined above, and it is the intention of the council to arrange a special election regarding the matter in the near future in order to give the voters an opportunity to express themselves regarding the desirability of such a plant.

MRS. MCKINLEY DEAD.

President Roosevelt, Vice President Fairbanks and Many Notables Attended Funeral in Canton Wednesday

Mrs. William McKinley, of Canton, Ohio, widow of the president who was assassinated at the Pan-American exposition in September, 1901, passed away at 1:05 Sunday afternoon. Death came quietly. With her when she died were Sec. Cortelyou, her sister, Mrs. M. S. Barber, the latter's husband, Mrs. Sarah Duncan, Justice and Mrs. Day and Mrs. Rixey and Partmann.

Mrs. McKinley's last words were a few stray sentences at various times in the few hours preceding death, and showed that her mind was on her departed husband, "Why should I linger," she said. "Please, God, if it is Thy will, why defer it? He is gone and life is dark to me now."

The funeral was held at 2 p. m. Wednesday. Dr. Rixey started for Washington Sunday night. He is to meet President Roosevelt and return west with him to Indianapolis and Lansing. They arrived in Canton Wednesday morning, attended the funeral and proceeded to Indianapolis later. Vice President Fairbanks also attended and accompanied the presidential party to Indianapolis.

Dr. Buxton, Mrs. McKinley's pastor, conducted the religious services, and the body was placed with that of the dead president in the vault in West Lawn cemetery, pending the completion of the McKinley mausoleum, in which both bodies will finally be laid.

Pathmaster Must Go.

Governor Warner Thursday signed a bill that ends the system under which farmers from one end of the state to the other have built and repaired their roads since the days of the territorial government. The bill was introduced by Senator Ely, himself a farmer. In the earlier days all farmers paid their road taxes by working a given number of days on the roads with their teams. Then, as the counties were settled and farmers became prosperous, many of them accepted the option of paying their taxes with money. But the system was always far from being satisfactory, because there were often scores of pathmasters in a single township, and they built and worked roads independently of each other; sometimes intelligently, sometimes otherwise.

The new law abolishes the office of pathmaster, and requires that in every organized township all road taxes must be paid in money. Each township is made a single road district. Two funds are created, a road repair fund and a permanent improvement fund. All road work shall be done under the supervision of one township road inspector, who shall have one assistant. The town meeting annually shall designate the amount to be raised for the roads, but it shall not exceed fifty cents on each hundred dollars valuation.

THE ROAD TO BE SOLD.

Signs Contract to Purchase the Old Boland Franchises, Tracks and Roadbed, Last Saturday.

President Henry R. Carse and Treasurer N. S. Potter, of the Jackson, Ann Arbor & Detroit Electric Railway Co., last Saturday entered into a contract with the Detroit United Railway, by the terms of which the latter agrees to purchase the former company's holdings.

The deal covers the franchises, tracks, roadbed and everything connected with the company's works. The line is the old Boland route, started several years ago. It has the line between Plymouth and Northville, and the run from Grass Lake east beyond Chelsea.

Recently work was started in the vicinity of Dearborn and plans were pushed to connect Wyandotte and Dearborn with Detroit.

For the past twenty-five years the paint that has given the best satisfaction, fully meeting every requirement, is the celebrated Bradley & Vrooman Paint. F. E. Storms & Co., exclusive agents.

THE MEMORIAL SUNDAY

THE SERVICES FINE

R. P. Carpenter Post, No. 41, G. A. R., and Relief Corps Presented an American Flag to the Baptist Society.

Memorial Sunday dawned with a more congenial atmosphere and brighter skies than have prevailed of late, bringing to the veteran soldiers, members of the relief corps and citizens of Chelsea who desired to mingle with them in the commemorative services announced to be held in the Baptist church at the usual morning hour, all that could be desired in weather conditions.

Promptly at the hour announced the members of the G. A. R. and W. R. C. left their hall, marched to the church and occupied the portion that had been reserved for them, the remainder of the edifice being filled with citizens of Chelsea. The pastor of the church, Rev. T. D. Denman, delivered a fine sermon, which was very appropriate for the occasion. A special musical program was rendered by Mesdames Keenan and Deppew and Miss Jessie Everett.

The roll was called by Theo. E. Wood, the historian of R. P. Carpenter Post.

Another very patriotic event took place at the church, which was the presentation to the society by the post and relief corps of a silk American flag, mounted on a standard, that is to remain at all times in some conspicuous place near the pulpit of the church. This is the third flag that has been presented to Chelsea churches by the post and corps, and another will be presented next year to the society where the services will be held. A. N. Morton was delegated to make the presentation of the flag to the church.

MONEY IN RIVER.

The Ypsilanti Police Dumped a Cash-Loaded Slot Machine into the River by Order of City Officials.

Under instructions of the police commissioners, Chief Gage and a patrolman went to the Congress hotel in Ypsilanti, last Saturday, and found a nickel-in-the-slot machine, loaded it on a dory, drove to the center of the bridge over Huron river and heaved it into 20 feet of water. It lies there yet, unmolested.

This strange procedure was the result of the hotel proprietor's neglect to comply with the police commissioner's order three months ago that the city must be rid of slot machines.

"How do you do, Mack?" remarked Chief Gage, pleasantly, to the landlord. "How do you do, Milo?" replied the landlord, equally as cordial.

These were the only words spoken during the drama, while the crowd looked on in astonishment. The machine was heavy with nickels, but not a nickel was touched.

"If anyone wants that money in the machine," said Garry Denmore, one of the police commissioners, "he can fish it out and is welcome to it. The police won't interfere."

The Dandelion Pest.

Each year the crop of dandelions in Chelsea seems to be larger, and so prevalent has the pest become that many lawns are being ruined. Nothing but the united effort on the part of every citizen will help to accomplish the extermination of the pest.

If the property owners in Chelsea will make an effort to get out every dandelion on their premises, the pest can be got rid of. If the tops are cut out an inch below the ground, the roots will soon die. The dandelions will be in seed within a short time, and if they are not destroyed before that time, the pest will be worse than ever next year, and many of the fine lawns in Chelsea will be completely ruined.

School Affairs.

The G. A. R. and W. R. C. turned out to visit the high school, fifteen strong, last Friday morning. They gave the pupils and teachers some good history lessons in their stories. We hope they, as well as other citizens, will come and see us often.

The Chelsea High School Athletic Association has just completed arrangements with Director Fred Daley, of the Ypsilanti Comedy Club, to present the college play, "Up to Freddie," at the opera house, Wednesday evening, June 5. The company that will present the play is composed of the best amateur talent in Ypsilanti and the play will, no doubt, draw a full house. It is distinctly a college play, the scene being laid in a fraternity house at Cornell. The caste is composed of six young ladies and three young men. Wirt S. McLaren, one of our graduates two years ago, plays the role of Grandville Lodge, a student of Cornell. Fred Daley, who will take one of the leading roles, has appeared in Chelsea several times before and always made a hit with his ability as an actor and his excellent voice.

SERIAL STORY

THE HOUSE OF A THOUSAND CANDLES

By MEREDITH NICHOLSON

Author of "THE MAIN CHANCE," "ZELDA DAMERON," Etc.

Copyright 1905 by Bobbs-Merrill Co.

"Well," he exclaimed, "this has been very pleasant, but I must run. I have just been over to see Morgan, the caretaker, at the resort village. The poor fellow accidentally shot himself yesterday cleaning his gun or something of that sort, and he has an ugly hole in his arm that will shut him up for a month or worse. He gave me an errand to do for him. He's a conscientious fellow and wished me to wire for him to Mr. Pickering that he'd been hurt, but was attending to his duties. Pickering owns a house at the farther end of the colony and Morgan has charge of it. You know Pickering, of course?"

I looked my clerical neighbor straight in the eye, a trifle coldly, perhaps. I was wondering why Morgan, with whom I had enjoyed a duel in my own cellar only a few hours before, should be reporting his injury to Arthur Pickering.

"I think I have seen Morgan about here," I said.

"Oh, yes! He's a woodsman and a hunter—our Nimrod of the lake."

"A good sort, very likely!"

"I dare say. He has sometimes brought me ducks during the season."

"To be sure! They shoot ducks at night—those Hoosier hunters—so I hear!"

He laughed as he shook himself into his greatcoat.

"That's possible, though unsportsmanlike. But we don't have to look a gift mallard in the eye."

We laughed together. It was easy to laugh with him.

"By the way, I forgot to get Pickering's address from Morgan. If you happen to have it—"

"With pleasure," said "Alexis Building, Broadway, New York."

"Good! That's easy to remember," he said, smiling and turning up his coat collar. "Don't forget me; I'm quartered in a hermit's cell back of the chapel, and I believe we can find many matters of interest to talk about."

"I'm confident of it," I said, glad of the sympathy and cheer that seemed to emanate from his stalwart figure. I threw on my overcoat and walked to the gate with him and saw him hurry toward the village with long strides.

CHAPTER XII.

I Explore a Passage.

"Bates!"—I found him busy replenishing the candlesticks in the library. It seemed to me that he was always poking about with an armful of candles—"there are a good many queer things in this world, but I guess you're one of the queerest. I don't mind telling you that there are times when I think you a thoroughly bad lot, and then again I question my judgment and don't give you credit for being much more than a doddering fool."

He was standing under a ladder beneath the great crystal chandelier and looked down upon me with that patient inquiry that is so appealing in a dog—in, say, the eyes of an Irish setter, when you accidentally step on his tail.

"Yes, Mr. Glenarm," he replied humbly.

"Now, I want you to grasp this idea that I'm going to dig into this old shell top and bottom; I'm going to blow it up with dynamite, if I please; and if I catch you spying on me or reporting my doings to my enemies, or engaging in any questionable performances whatever, I'll hang you between the posts out there in the school wall—do you understand?—so that the sweet Sisters of St. Agatha and the dear little school girls and the chaplain and all the rest will shudder through all their lives at the very thought of you."

"Certainly, Mr. Glenarm,"—and his tone was the same he would have used if I had asked him to pass me the matches, and under my breath I consigned him to the hardest tortures of the fiery pit.

"Now, as to Morgan—"

"Yes, sir."

"What possible business do you suppose he has with Mr. Pickering?" I demanded.

"Why, sir, that's clear enough. Mr. Pickering owns a house up the lake—he got it through your grandfather. Morgan has the care of it, sir."

"Very plausible, indeed!"—and I sent him off to his work.

After luncheon I went to the end of the corridor, and began to sound the walls. They were as solid as rock, and responded dully to the strokes of the hammer. I sounded them on both sides, retracing my steps to the stairway, becoming more and more impatient at my ill-luck or stupidity. There was every reason why I should know my own house, and yet a stranger and an outlaw ran through it with amazing daring.

After an hour's idle search I returned to the end of the corridor, repeated all my previous soundings, and I fear, indulged in language unbecoming a gentleman. Then, in my blind anger, I found what patient search had not disclosed.

I threw the hammer from me in a fit of temper and it struck one of the square blocks in the cement floor which gave forth a hollow sound. I was on my knees in an instant, my fingers searching the cracks, and drawing down close I could feel a current of air, slight but unmistakable, against my face.

The cement square, though exactly like the others in the cellar floor, was evidently only an imitation, with an opening beneath.

The block was fitted into its place with a nicety that testified to the skill of the hand that had adjusted it. I broke a blade of my pocket-knife trying to pry it up, but, in a moment, I succeeded, and found it to be in reality a trap door, hinged to the substantial part of the floor.

A current of cool, fresh air, the same that had surprised me in the night, struck my face as I lay flat and peered into the opening. The lower passage was as black as pitch, and I lighted a lantern I had brought with me, found that wooden steps gave safe conduct below and went down.

I stood erect in the passage and had several inches to spare. It extended both ways, running back under the foundations of the house, and cut squarely under the park before the house and toward the school wall. The air grew steadily fresher, until, after I had gone about two hundred yards, I reached a point where the wind seemed to beat down on me from above. I put up my hands and found two openings about three yards apart, through which the air sucked steadily. I moved out of the current with a chuckle in my throat and a grin on my face. I had passed under the gate in the school wall, and I knew now why the piers other; now it was an august hymn now a theme from Wagner, and finally Mendelssohn's spring song won the cold, dark chapel to light and warmth with its exultant notes.

She ceased suddenly with a little sigh and struck her hands together for the place was cold. As she reached up to put out the lights I stepped forward to the chancel steps.

"Please allow me to do that for you!"

She turned toward me, gathering a cape about her.

"Oh, it's you, is it?" she asked, looking about quickly. "I don't remember that you were invited."

"I didn't know I was coming myself," I remarked truthfully, lifting my hand to the lamp.

"That is my opinion of you,—that you're a rather unexpected person. But thank you, very much."

She showed no disposition to prolong the interview, but hurried toward the door, and reached the vestibule before I came up with her.

"You can't go any farther, Mr. Glenarm," she said, and waited as though to make sure I understood. Straight before us through the wood and beyond the school buildings the sunbeams faded suddenly. Night was following fast upon the gray twilight and already the bolder planets were aflame in the sky. The path led straight ahead beneath the black boughs.

"I might perhaps walk to the dormitory, or whatever you call it," I said.

"Thank you, no! I'm late and haven't time to bother with you. It's against the rules, you know, for us to receive visitors."

She stepped out upon the path.

"But I'm not a caller; I'm just a neighbor! And I owe you several calls anyhow."

She laughed but did not pause and I followed a pace behind her.

"Oh Yes, I'm Terribly Wicked, Squire Glenarm."

that held it had been built so high,—they were hollow and were the means of sending fresh air into the tunnel.

When I had traveled about twenty yards more I felt a slight vibration accompanied by a muffled roar, and almost immediately came to a rough wooden stair that marked the end of the passage. I had no means of judging directions, but I assumed that I was well within the school park.

I climbed the steps and in a moment stood blinking, my lantern in hand, in a small, floored room. Overhead the tumult and thunder of an organ explained the tremor and roar I had heard below. I was in the crypt of St. Agatha's chapel. The inside of the door by which I had entered was a part of the wainscoting of the room, and the opening was wholly covered with a map of the Holy Land.

It was all very strange and interesting. I looked at my watch and found that it was five o'clock, but I resolved to go into the chapel before going home.

The way up was clear enough, and I was soon in the vestibule. I opened the door, expecting to find a service in progress; but the little church was empty save where, at the right of the chancel, an organist was filling the church with the notes of an exultant march. Cap in hand I stole forward, and sank down in one of the pews.

A lamp over the organ keyboard gave the only light in the chapel, and made an aureole about her head,—about the uncovered head of Olivia Gladys Armstrong! I smiled as I recognized her and smiled, too, as I remembered her name. But the joy she brought to the music, the happiness in her face as she raised it in the minor harmonies, her isolation, marked by the little Isle of light against the dark background of the choir,—these things touched and moved me, and I bent forward, my arms upon the pew in front of me, watching and listening with a kind of awed wonder.

There was no pause in the outpouring of the melody. She changed tones and manuals with swift fingers and passed from one composition to another,

"I hope you don't think for a moment that I chased a rabbit on your side of the fence in the hope of meeting you, do you, Mr. Glenarm?"

"Be it far from me! I'm glad I came, though, for I liked your music immensely. I'm in earnest; I think it quite wonderful, Miss Armstrong."

She said no heed to me.

"And I hope I may promise myself the pleasure of hearing you often."

"You are very kind about my poor music, Mr. Glenarm; but as I'm going away—"

I felt my heart sink a trifle. She was the only amusing person I had met at Glenarm, and the thought of losing her gave a darker note to the bleak landscape.

"That's really too bad! And just when we were getting acquainted! And I was coming to church Sunday to hear you play and to pray for snow, so you'd come over often to chase rabbits!"

This, I thought, softened her heart. At any rate her tone changed.

"I don't play for services; they're afraid to let me for fear I'll run comic opera tunes into the Te Deum!"

"How shocking!"

"Do you know, Mr. Glenarm,"—her tone became confidential and her pace slackened,—"we call you the squire, at St. Agatha's, and the lord of the manor, and names like that! All the girls are perfectly crazy about you. They'd be wild if they thought I talked with you, clandestinely,—is that the way you pronounce it?"

"Anything you say and any way you say it satisfies me," I replied.

"That's ever so nice of you," she said, mockingly again.

I felt foolish and guilty. She would probably get roundly scolded if the grave sisters learned of her talks with me, and very likely I should win their hearty contempt. But I did not turn back.

"I hope the reason you're leaving isn't," I hesitated.

"Ill conduct? Oh, yes; I'm terribly wicked, Squire Glenarm! They're sending me off."

WOMAN AND HOME

Wall Photograph Frame

DESIGN IN THE SHAPE OF TENNIS RACKET.

Can be Made Any Size Desired and Certainly Has the Merit of Novelty—Materials and Directions.

This is a novel photo frame for hanging on the wall. It consists of a piece of stout card-board cut the shape of a tennis racket, which has an opening in the center for the photo. The racket may be made any size desired, either for a midget, carte-de-visite, or cabinet. Cover the card first with a thin layer of wadding, then with any pretty piece of broche or embroidered silk that may be at hand. If plain silk is used it may be painted with flowers or some conventional design after it is strained over the card. Snip the edges and turn over the edges of the card, fixing them at the back with colorless glue.

A pretty piece of gold gimp should be sewn round the edge of opening, then glass a little larger than the opening must be fixed at the back by glue. Cover a piece of thinner card with sateen and seam to the edge of front, leaving an opening large enough to pass the photo through. Sew cord or gimp all round the edge, and put a loop at the back of the handle by which to hang the frame on the wall.

DIME SOCIAL MADE MERRY PARTY

Entertainment Recently Given by a Young People's Society.

This entertainment was given by a young people's society. The admission was a dime, and the various refreshments were arranged at a scale of prices and nothing less than a dime was taken for an order. For the amusement part each person was provided with a paper with "To be found on a dime" written at the top and the following questions:

1. Fruit of a tropical tree.—(Date.)
2. What the Siamese twins were.—(United.)
3. What a lazy man seldom gets.—(Ahead.)
4. The division of a country.—(States.)
5. The cradle of liberty.—(America.)
6. Something a school boy makes.—(Figures.)
7. A part of the human body.—(Ear.)
8. A figure.—(One.)
9. What makes the forest green.—(Foliage.)
10. Something a bootblack gives.—(Shine.)

The prize offered was a dime.

A Bridal Luncheon.

This is the season when engagement announcements follow thick and fast the natural result of the time that always seems the most appropriate for love-making—the glad spring time. This is the way one bride-elect gave her attendants their wedding favors. She asked them all to an informal luncheon, and the centerpiece was a low, round arrangement of sweet peas with ribbons to each place.

At the finish when each girl pulled her ribbon the sweetpeas separated into individual bouquets; to each was attached a jeweler's box containing a specialty made bar pin set with three square bits of malachite, the name and date engraved on the back.

The same day as the luncheon the groom-to-be entertained the men of the bridal party at his club and presented them with hand-made scarf pins set with malachite.

MADAME MERRI.

SIMPLE BLOUSE FOR YOUNG GIRL

Many Materials From Which Garment May Be Made.

Almost any blouse material of a firm substance might be used for this simple blouse. It fastens down the center front under a wide box-pleat, ornamented with short stitched points by a pointed yoke, the fulness of the lower part being gathered.

The full sleeves reach to just below the elbow, where they are gathered into deep-fitting bands.

Organdies in Flower Designs.

Organdies are not abundant in bordered motifs, but are very fetching, says Vogue. White with graduated blue dots in wavy scrolls on the edge is one of the prettiest. A delicate flowered manipulation, a pastel mingling of pink, blue and green in garlands, is also appealing.

Figured thin materials are more than ever bewitching to the eye as the new season comes upon us, the tint of bud, flower and leaf are presented in greater perfection until there seems no marvel of nature that the manufacturer's art cannot reproduce. This year the majority of patterns are bold and large, though there are still plenty of small designs for the woman whose taste or figure speaks for the less conspicuous treatment.

Trimmed Armhole Liked.

The trimmed armhole, with shoulder line falling well over the sleeve top, is particularly liked for models of the gump class, and this class is a very large one, especially as it relates to lingerie frocks. The jumper and kindred modes are far too convenient and pretty to be put aside after but one season of popularity, and the enthusiasm with which they have been taken up again this year speaks well for ability to hold the well-dressed woman's affections.

FOR THE RARE HOURS OF REST

Simple Frocks and Negligees Are Very Handsome.

Comparatively simple negligees of crepe or silk, hanging loose from the shoulder and cut with kimono sleeves or left sleeveless are made effective by a guimpe or tucked and loose sleeves of lace, and by a band of trimming which borders the round low-cut neck, runs down one side of the front to the hem and finishes the armholes or the kimono sleeves. This model is made, too, in fine cashmere and in chiffon broadcloth, the latter proving a most desirable material for the purpose if one cares for a little warmth in such a robe.

Genuine kimono models, with sashes and designs calculated to attract any woman. Crepe is usually the material, and some beautifully embroidered kimonos are all in one tone; but more often lining and embroidery contrast in subtle harmony with the color of the robe.

CAPTAIN KNEW HIS BUSINESS.

Story of the Bark That Broke Record Around the Horn.

"A story of heroism of the sea, rivaling that of Gilliat in 'The Tollers of the Sea,' has just been enacted in the Pacific ocean," said John P. Barnes, a San Francisco merchant to a Washington Post writer. "It is the story of an intrepid sea captain who resurged a sunken ship that had been given up for lost and put her in such good condition that she has broken all records for sailing craft around the horn."

"The sea captain lived at San Diego until a year or two ago, having retired on a modest income. His name is Thayer. One day he read in the papers of an auction sale of the hulk of a ship in the South seas. He went to San Francisco, where he found that the ship had been valued at $250,000 and had been grounded in a storm, deserted by the crew and supposedly pounded into a shapeless mass upon the rocks. But he thought he would take a chance, and so bid her in for $1,100, getting a lawyer in Oakland to take a half interest.

"Getting together a wrecking crew, he traveled 7,000 miles to the island of Manga Riva, where, through heroic efforts and after many months, he got the ship to the level and towed her back across smooth summer seas to San Francisco. There the vessel was rebuilt into a three-masted bark. Captain Thayer came on to Washington and got the government to register the British ship Pyrenees, for that was its original name, as the bark Manga Riva. Then, after the refitting had been completed, he sent her to Swansea, Wales. The bark made the fastest time ever attained by any sailing vessel between the Pacific and Atlantic oceans. Captain Thayer is now enjoying the income from his daring, and his name is being paraded up and down the Pacific coast among marine folk as the modern Gilliat."

What a Frown Can Do.

A single bitter word may disquiet an entire family for a whole day. One surly glance casts gloom over the household, while a smile, like a gleam of sunshine, may light up the darkest and weariest hours.

Like unexpected flowers which spring up along the path, full of freshness and fragrance and beauty, do kind words and gentle acts and sweet dispositions make glad the home where peace and blessing dwell.

No matter how humble the abode, if it be sweetened with kindness and smiles, the heart will turn lovingly toward it from all the tumult of the world, and it will be the dearest spot beneath the sun, says an exchange.

And the influences of home perpetrate themselves. The gentle grace of the mother lives in the daughter, and the father's kindness finds echo in the nobility and courtesy of sons; while, on the other hand, from an unhappy, misgoverned, and disordered home go forth persons who will make other homes miserable, and perpetuate the sourness and sadness, the contentions and strifes and railings which have made their own lives so wretched and distorted.

Toward the cheerful home the children gather as clouds and as doves to their windows, while from the home which is the abode of discontent and strife and trouble they fly forth.

Song Birds' Ocean Trips Cost Money.

Mme Sembrich, who sailed for Europe the other day, occupied a suite on board the steamer for which the sum of $1,100 was paid. Caruso's quarters came a little lower—$900 being the sum expended in getting him back to his dear Italy for the summer. There may be those who sympathize with the impresarios who agree when they engage artists to pay their expenses both ways. This sympathy with Herr Conried and Director Hammerstein we consider misplaced, however. After all, they calculate in advance the cost of a singer, and it matters little whether they pay the money over direct or hold out a part of it for the steamship lines.

The expense really falls upon the public—the people who pay anywhere from $5 to $100 each for the privilege of hearing the Sembrichs and the Carusos sing.

And so long as the public is satisfied no kind of criticism is likely to change present conditions.

Salaries in England.

New York is generous to her judges, and $17,500 is a splendid salary. If a man will not remain on the bench for that sum he is not likely to remain for $25,000. In England the lord high chancellor gets $50,000 a year; the attorney general $35,000 and fees, which amount to about $30,000 more, making $65,000 in all; the solicitor general $30,000 and fees, or $50,000 all told; justices of the court of appeals, $25,000; justices of the high court of justice, $25,000; lord chief justice of England, $4,000; judge of the city court of London ("common sergeant") $10,050; judge of the Bow street police court, $9,000; judge of the probate and divorce court, $25,000, etc.

Good Ballast for Balloons.

It is now possible for a balloon to throw out more ballast than it carried up from the surface of the earth. In a balloon ascent made from Berlin by Capt. Von Krog, the pilot of the Parsival balloon, there was carried a quantity of chemicals which have the property of absorbing moisture and thus increasing their weight in a damp atmosphere. The experiment was successful.

BACKACHE IS KIDNEYACHE.

Cure the Kidneys and the Pain Will Never Return.

Only one way to cure an aching back. Cure the cause, the kidneys. Thousands tell of cures made by Doan's Kidney Pills. John C. Coleman, prominent merchant of Swansboro, Ga., says: "For several years my kidneys were affected, and my back ached day and night. I was languid, nervous and lame in the morning. Doan's Kidney Pills helped me right away, and the great relief that followed has been permanent." Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y. Sold by all dealers. 50 cents a box.

SAHARA GROWING DRYER.

French Observer Says the Oases Are Shrinking and Will Disappear.

C. F. Gautier, a French explorer, is authority for the statement that the Sahara is continuously becoming drier to such an extent that the oases are perceptibly drying up and will disappear altogether in a relatively short time. He quotes historic records and physical signs to show that springs were at one time more plentiful than now, and that the extent of the patches where vegetation flourishes were much greater even 50 to 100 years ago.

As the climate of the region has undergone no change in perhaps thousands of years, he believes that the disappearance of the water must be due to purely mechanical causes. He considers that it is due to the continual advance of the great masses to the north, thus forming an impenetrable barrier against the waters of the Atlas mountains.—N. Y. Sun.

Seven Billion Gallons of Milk.

The 7,500,000,000 gallons of commercial milk annually consumed represents an enormous white river pouring across the U. S. in every direction and yet few people realize that it is fast becoming a veritable river Styx, for it is so disease laden that millions of people are day-by-day drinking disease in various forms from this greatest of disease-spreading agents. Chief among these diseases is Consumption. Health office reports show that 25% of the Dairy Cows have Bovine Tuberculosis and through the milk and meat are dealing out Consumption to the people at an alarming rate. An effective remedy is recently claimed in the simple feeding Rasawa in small doses to the cattle. The remedy is cheap and a few cents worth procured at any Drug Store will render a cow entirely immune is the claim made in a free booklet issued by The Mutual Mercantile Co., Cleveland, O. Ask your Drug gist for a booklet.

National Parks.

The Civil War of 1861 to 1865 will never be forgotten.
Although 42 years have elapsed since the last gun was fired and the bitterness of the strife no longer lingers in the breasts of those who participated,
yet the people have determined that the deeds of valor performed on both sides shall become lessons for future generations.

To that end there have been set aside as public parks five of the most important battlefields. True, time has wiped out every vestige of evidence that deserted conflicts were waged through the patches of woods and open fields, and even the topography of the battlefields have somewhat changed, but on the sites where were performed deeds of valor there stand markers that, in silence, tell the story.

The battlefields selected for parks are those of Gettysburg, Vicksburg, Shiloh, Antietam, Chickamauga and Chattanooga.
Upon these fields, each of which embraces more than 1,000 acres; there has been done an enormous work, not only by the government, but by the states and the various organizations that took part in the battles.

The work of the government has been largely that of building avenues through the fields, erecting itinerary markers, showing the routes taken by the troops and from the field, tablets marking the formation of the various brigades and corps, their movements, etc.

The work of the states and veteran organizations has been the erecting of memorials of bronze and stone, and on the five battlefields several million dollars have been spent for this purpose.
The money has been well spent, too, for as one visits one of the fields and sees what has been accomplished, there is a feeling that it is well worth what it cost in time, effort and money.

Free to Rheumatism Sufferers
A Full-sized 75c Bottle of Uric-O, the Only Absolute Cure for Rheumatism
Ever Discovered
Write For It Today
We want every man or woman who suffers from rheumatism and has lost all faith in remedies to write us today for an absolutely free trial of the famous Smith
Prescription, Uric-O, for rheumatism.
Uric-O will cure it and cure it to stay cured. No faith is required while taking this superb remedy. You take it according to directions, and you will be cured in spite of yourself and any doubts you may have as to its efficacy. We don't ask you to buy Uric-O on faith. We'll buy a large 75c bottle for you and make you a present of it, if you will agree to take it according to directions.
We could not afford to do this if we didn't have all the confidence in the world in Uric-O, and know that after you are cured you would have no hesitancy about recommending the remedy to all your friends and acquaintances who are suffering from rheumatism. This is the method that has made Uric-O famous wherever introduced. The cure of several so-called rheumatic incurables in a community means a steady sale of Uric-O in that vicinity. Uric-O is good for rheumatism and rheumatism only. It acts upon the blood by driving the uric and poisonous rheumatic acid from the system. This is the only way rheumatism can ever be cured and it is the Uric-O way. Most druggists sell Uric-O, but if you want to test it, cut out this notice and mail it today with your name and address and the name of your druggist to The Smith Drug Co., Syracuse, N. Y., and they will send you a full-sized 75c bottle free.

The Old-Fashioned Scrap-Book.

And then there is the scrap-book. Do you remember your aunt's or your mother's old scrap-book? What a fascinating volume it was in your childhood eyes. There was no order to it; just a thing that had pleased its maker—a sketch, a joke, a bit of pathos, a funny picture, an elevating sentiment, a short story of unusual interest, something about some one whom you all knew. Every leaf had been approved by the judgment of a reader whose taste was very similar to your own; and you read it greedily, and yet with the feeling of the child who does not want to finish his piece of cake too soon. I wonder how many people of comparative leisure are keeping scrap-books in this steam engine age, remarks a writer in National Herald. The "comic supplement" is no substitute for them to place in the hands of children. It is probably the very plethora of good things which we see now that paralyzes our ambition, and makes us think that keeping an adequate scrap-book would be too great a task. Yet we have nothing which so sets forth the personal touch. It was almost as intimate as a diary—more intimate by far than a book with comments on the margin.

There have been hints of uneasiness among the Hindoos, and these find confirmation to a certain extent in the riotous outbreak at Rawalpindi, in the Punjab section of India. But there does not appear to be any likelihood of a serious outbreak or one which the British authorities, with the loyal native forces at their disposal cannot suppress. India is an enormous country, with a dense population, with many conflicting racial and religious elements. While the Hindoos form numerically probably the larger part of the native population the Mohammedans and others are many millions in number, and anything like cohesion in an attempt to drive out the foreigners and to overcome British sovereignty is wildly improbable, says the Froy Times. The more intelligent and progressive of the natives no doubt realize that the protection afforded by British rule is in reality their political and material salvation.

Some Fast English Trains.

For a really magnificent exhibit of regularly maintained high-speed service—one which provides a decided public benefit—England leads us a few points; for her populous cities afford a dense passenger traffic to support such a service which has no counterparts in America, except in a few places, remarks B. B. Adams in Scribner's Magazine. To take only one or two from dozens of examples, the number of daily trains between London and Birmingham (113 miles) over the London & Northwestern, making over 56 miles an hour, is seven; between London and Exeter, over the Great Western (194 miles), the number running at a rate over 55 miles is four. One of these latter trains makes the 113 miles between London and Bristol in 120 minutes, in each direction, every day, and does this with remarkable regularity and punctuality.

President Roosevelt may find support for his theory that under certain conditions war may be more honorable than peace and better for mankind in the utterances of Dr. Emil Reich, the Hungarian historian and philosopher, now lecturing in London. In a letter to a New York paper Dr. Reich says he does not believe in peace congresses, and adds: "I believe, after 35 years of study of the past and observation of the present, that conflict made us, conflict keeps us going, and without conflict the great question of nations can never be solved. Shakespeare are made by the destruction of armadas, and not by universities, lecture rooms and public libraries. The father of Sophocles was Salamis. General disarmament means stagnation and degeneration." When Mr. Carnegie hears this he will be greatly displeased.

Three of the younger generation of the Vanderbilt family are serving the New York Central. Alfred G. Vanderbilt has his desk in the financial department, Cornelius finds his greatest interest in the shop and construction department, and is said to know a railroad from the roadbed up. His cousin, William K. Vanderbilt, Jr., has combined both the financial and practical training.

J. P. Morgan thinks more of his collection of miniatures than all of his other art treasures. He seems never to tire of talking about them to his friends, and now he is having them copied so that they can be reproduced in a book.

A returned traveler swears that at least 10,000 camels have been named for Roosevelt in Egypt, where he is very popular. With the bears and the rabbits Teddy is becoming the whole menagerie.

SIDE LIGHTS ON MICHIGAN

PORTLAND MAN WAS MURDERED IN COLD BLOOD ON WAY HOME.

ROBBERY NOT OBJECT.

There is No Clue to or Known Motive for the Crime—The Victim Not Quarrelsome.

Shrouded in Mystery.

The body of Edward Manning, aged 65, was found in a lonely ravine Wednesday morning, the side of his head having been blown off by a charge of shot from a gun, evidently fired at close range from the rear. It is clearly a case of cold-blooded murder, but the motive is somewhat a mystery, as a roll of bills and his gold watch were not taken. A bag in which he was known to carry considerable silver was believed to be missing until Deputy Sheriff Sanborn broke into the restaurant and found the silver had been left in the money drawer. This seems to dispose of the robbery theory.

Manning was the proprietor of a restaurant and lunch counter, and was in the habit of going home about 10 o'clock at night. He lived in the east part of the village, and it was necessary for him to pass along the bank of the bayou formed by Looking Glass river, a path leading along the river and across the ravine where the murder was committed. Apparently Manning had just passed this spot when the shot was fired and he fell dead, as there is no sign of a struggle on his part, and he still had one hand in his pocket. The shot struck him just back of the left ear and tore an ugly wound in the skull.

There is absolutely no clue to the murderer, but the coroner impaneled a jury and the sheriff's force is working on the case. No one is under suspicion as far as can be learned.

People residing in the vicinity of the scene of the shooting say they heard a shot between 10:15 and 10:30, but did not investigate.

Mr. Manning had resided in Portland for 20 years and had been in the restaurant business a long time. He was not known to have any enemies, as he was not a quarrelsome man and is not known to have had any trouble of a personal nature. He leaves a widow and two grown daughters.

Roosevelt's Lansing Visit.

The arrangements for the safety of President Roosevelt when he comes to Lansing, May 31, are being made by George Sutton, special agent of the government detective bureau.

Members of the military companies coming from Detroit, South Haven, Saginaw, Grand Rapids, Bay City and Owosso will be on hand early in the morning in order to march behind the president's carriage. The president will arrive at 9:50 o'clock over the Lake Shore railroad from Hillsdale and go directly to the capitol, where he will deliver an address in the house of representatives.

After the speech at the capitol the president will be driven to the Agricultural college in an automobile, accompanied by all the automobiles in Lansing. The president's address at the college will be delivered in a tent and admission will be by ticket.

For the University.

The senate wrestled and struggled for a time over the U. of M. appropriation bill and then passed the bill, increasing the university tax from one-fourth to three-eighths of a mill on every dollar of assessed valuation. This means that the university tax shall be increased from $433,000, as last year, to at least $650,000.

Sensors Allen, Fyfe and others who opposed the bill declared that they were not opposing the granting of a large building fund, as the increase was asked principally for building purposes. They said they did not see why, because the university needed more buildings in 1907-8, there should be an addition to the permanent tax rolls of the state for so large an amount every year. However, on the final passage only Senators Yeomans and Fuller voted against the bill.

Politicians Worrying.

Politicians dependent upon senatorial preference for their salary berths are closely watching every sign that appears in the political skies to ascertain whether Senator Burrows and Senator Smith have reached an agreement as to the apportionment of patronage. The federal building in Grand Rapids is filled with appointees of Senator Burrows, and it is believed that among them are several whom Senator Smith would like to displace with men who were active in bringing about his election as senator. Were the senators to lock horns on the matter of patronage, it is advanced that probably under such circumstances the senate would decline to confirm Michigan appointments and that as a result the present officeholders might continue indefinitely in office.

Mrs. Adeline Covell, aged 71 years, wife of G. G. Covell, one of the oldest residents in Dundee, is dead. Her father, it is said, was the oldest soldier to enlist in the civil war. He was then 65 years old. Her brother Hiram, who died, aged 84 years, was famed as the oldest son of a civil war veteran in the United States.

STATE NEWS BRIEFS.

Smallpox is epidemic in Hume, Dwight and Meads townships, Huron county.

Dundee council has called a special election for June 10 to vote on bonding for $25,000 for paving.

Elzie Moore, of St. Joseph, convicted of shooting his wife, was sentenced to seven years in Jackson prison.

While conversing with her husband, Mrs. David Mills, of Laporte, dropped dead. She was supposed to be in perfect health.

As a street car was rounding a curve in Grand Rapids William Pycock, aged 65, of Welland, was thrown from the rear platform and killed.

L. N. Kinney, department commander for Michigan Spanish War Veterans, has issued an order for the annual encampment to be held in Jackson August 28 and 29.

James Davidson, retiring city treasurer of Midland, has settled with his successor for $20,302.95 instead of 82 cents, which sum was reported on hand at the close of the year's business.

Ann Arbor saloonists can keep open one hour extra on Saturday nights after this. The common council has granted them that privilege. It's close at 10 o'clock week days and 11 o'clock Saturday, now.

Word has been received that Ellisha Mitchell, formerly of Saginaw, accidentally shot and killed himself while hunting rabbits near Grand Island, Neb. He is survived by a widow and several children.

A railroad ten miles long, running from Blaine to Westmoreland, in Kansas, was sold for $75,000 to A. J. White, of this city. The road has two engines, two passenger cars and eight freight cars.

The 14-year-old son of J. D. Pence, a farmer of Norvell township, has confessed to cutting up his father's harness, in order to get out of plowing. The boy claimed at first that two masked men did it.

Mrs. Frederick Schumacher, of Ann Arbor, whose husband shot at and narrowly missed killing her, has sworn out a warrant for his arrest, charging assault with intent to do great bodily harm.

Because he did not have $500 with which to secure a saloon license, John Beck, of Scottville, committed suicide by shooting himself in the head. An hour later his wife returned from negotiating a loan for the $500.

A bulletin from the labor bureau says 175,000,000 pounds of beet sugar was manufactured in Michigan in 1906, in 16 factories. Seven out of ten farmers report sugar beet growing more profitable than any other crop.

The offices of the Western Michigan conference of the Adventist church will be moved to Plainwell from Otsego. Plans are being made to locate an Adventist manufacturing concern, church and school in Plainwell.

Arthur Armour, aged 21 years, a young farmer, son of Hyman Armour, three miles east of Macon, killed himself Tuesday on his brother's farm by shooting. He tied a string to a double-barreled shotgun and blew the top of his head off.

Because a street in the rear of their establishment in Charlotte has been denied them, Beech Bros., manufacturers of culverts, threaten to remove their factory. If given the desired street the company says it will build a bridge plant.

Boys, playmates of Katherine Christiansen, aged 8 years, of Iron Mountain, pushed her in a bonfire and burnt for the appearance of several men, attracted by the child's screams, she might have perished. The physicians say her recovery is doubtful.

John Hill, the harvester from East Leroy, who came to Battle Creek two months ago, sold his horse, left the carriage in the street, and bought a ticket to Chicago, has been located on a farm in Dakota through correspondence with his wife, to whom his disappearance was as much of a mystery as to the police.

Two mysteries face the Battle Creek police. Al G. Peacock, of Cleveland, suspected of having drowned himself in the Kalamazoo river, has not been found. Edward Elwell, found unconscious in a ditch, says that he was struck by a street car. The nearest tracks are those of a steam road, a mile from where he was found.

The Plainwell high school sustains its reputation for graduating more young people than any other similar institution of its size in the state this year with a class of 19, 12 of whom are young women. This makes a total of 372 graduates, the last year in classes averaging 20 members each. The commencement will take place Thursday evening, June 7.

The antics of a sheep which he was shearing will doubtless cause George Goodwin, a farmer of Linden township, to lose the sight of his left eye. The sheep resisted having its wool clipped and kicked the shears, which flew up penetrating Goodwin's eye. He was hurried to Ann Arbor for treatment, but the physicians have little hope of saving the sight.

The body not being seen in time in the rapidly descending twilight, a train of logs on the Manistowic railway passed entirely over the lifeless form of Samuel Mischelle, a woodsman, before the engineer could bring the cars to a stop. Trainmen found him lying lengthwise between the rails, and the passage of the train had not as much as removed the hat from his head. This is considered remarkable. It is thought that the direct cause of his death was acute alcoholism. He was known to be a heavy drinker. No trace of his relatives has been found.

It doesn't pay to break jail in Canada, according to the fate of Frederick Forbes, who escaped from the Woodstock, Ont., jail and was picked up in Pontiac, Forbes had but nine months to serve when he got out, but will have to put in two years more in Kingston penitentiary.

"Take me to jail," pleaded an idle-aged man to a Grand Rapids policeman. The man was John McLaughlin, and he said he was not drunk, but had taken strychnine and was beginning to get rid. The wagon took him to Butterworth hospital where physicians say he will recover. He said he had had trouble with his wife.

NEWS FROM HOME AND ABROAD

FRICK REPORTED TO HAVE LOST THIRTY MILLIONS IN STOCKS.

BLEEDING THE GAMBLERS

Schwab Said to Be Hard Pressed—Corey Selling Stock for Revenge on U. S. Steel Co.

Millionaires Lose.

Henry C. Frick lost $30,000,000 in the Wall street slump, according to a report current in New York banking circles. The head of a great bank asserted Mr. Frick was loaded with high-priced stocks when the turn of the market came, and was forced to dump large holdings at whatever they would bring. Mr. Frick is said to have been carrying hundreds of thousands of shares, and when he was compelled to unload this burden there was a devastating deluge on the New York Stock Exchange that carried everything down with it. It is said Mr. Frick was the greatest stock plunger the world has ever known, and that the story of his operations, if it ever becomes known, will be one of the most amazing financial deals on record.

Mr. Frick is something of a man of mystery, and he never lets the public into his confidence. It has been known, however, that he was piling up millions with great rapidity, and it was supposed he was shrewd enough to escape with his gains. Now it appears that his fabulous winnings were "on paper."

Rumor has it that Charles M. Schwab has recently disposed of large holdings of the United States Steel corporation common stock, and to this is attributed partly the recent heaviness in that stock. The liquidation is said to have been necessary with certain banking interests who have befriended him financially to lift or provide for certain underlying bonds of the Bethlehem Steel Co., which were generally supposed to have been provided for some time ago.

It is also thought possible that the report that Mr. Schwab has mortgaged his palatial residence on Riverside drive, New York, for something like $1,000,000, may also be connected with this situation.

Within the past few days a number of brokers have been selling large blocks of stocks and bonds of the United States Steel corporation. Thursday it was declared that practically all the securities unloaded were holdings of William Ellis Corey. This action is said to be in accordance with a deal made with the corporation at the time he was re-elected president.

A Pittsburgh report says Corey is dumping his stock into the market for the purpose of depressing values.

It is understood that the officials demanded his resignation, and Corey is attempting to retaliate by selling his stock.

Manufacturers on Record.

The National Association of Manufacturers went on record in New York in favor of a revision of the tariff at the earliest opportunity and the negotiation of more reciprocity treaties. A lively debate preceded the vote which was upon the acceptance of the report of the committee on tariff and reciprocity.

A great number of resolutions were passed, including endorsement of the open shop, industrial education, improvement of the consular service, commendation of the river and harbor congress, and a request that the president withhold his approval of the new German agreement until the probable effects on domestic labor and industry can be learned.

Opposition was voted to all illegal combinations of either capital or labor and it was decided to raise $1,500,000 in the next three years to carry on a campaign of education concerning dictatorial combinations.

A Woman Diplomat.

Michigan will be the most creditably represented at the peace conference at The Hague in Miss Margaret A. Hanna, who has been appointed secretary to the assistant secretary of state, A. A. Ade, and one of the secretaries to the delegation.

Miss Hanna is the elder of the two daughters of Edwin P. Hanna, solicitor of the navy department. She was born in Ann Arbor during the latter part of her father's course as a student in the university. She has been for several years in the state department, and has won by her devotion and cleverness the distinction of being known as the "woman diplomat." She will sail for The Hague on June 5.

Would They Run?

In an interview in New York Gen. Kuroki praised the United States, and declared that he never expects trouble between Japan and the United States. In reply to a question as to a possible war over the Philippines, Kuroki is quoted as having laughingly replied:

"When you make love to us we will run away from you. Wherever I have been I have found a genuine welcoming of friendliness among Americans for Japan, and I can assure that in Japan there is the same genuine feeling of respect and admiration for America. We know what a great country America is and her friendship is something we prize very much."

The only child of James H. Thomson, member of the state tax commission, is dead from pneumonia.

Edward Johnson, known in Ann Arbor as Edward Thorne, a cobbler, was found dead in his shoe shop Sunday morning by Frank Wilkinson. Not until after his death was it known that he had been going under an alias.

Plainwell young people of the Baptist church have a campaign of money-making with which to secure "a mile of pennies" to remodel the church. Merry-go-rounds, side shows and carnival features are being used in the campaign.

ROTTEN.

The Gould Divorce Brings Out a Poetic Scandal.

Mrs. Catherine Clemmons Gould spurned a $1,000,000 bribe, dangled before her by her husband, Howard Gould, to induce her to get an absolute divorce from him, according to a story told by W. C. Woodward, alias "Big" Hawley, who is suing the millionaire for $250,000.

"I know positively that Howard Gould, or his family, if he should back down, will give Mrs. Gould $1,000,000 to get a divorce from her husband," said Hawley.

Mrs. Gould has sent word to Police Commissioner Bingham that she is ready to appear at police headquarters on his appointment and tell all she knows of the alleged use of the detective department in her divorce case. On the authority of a high official in the police department it is stated that an unexpected turn has been given the police end of the Gould case. While investigating the manner in which Howard Gould secured the aid of the police department, Commissioner Bingham struck the trail of widespread graft among the detectives. He has learned, it is alleged, that for years the detective department has been made use of by rich men to further their wishes and the detectives who served these rich men were largely rewarded in some instances it is said that speculative accounts were carried which have made certain officials of the department rich men in return for services rendered privately. A police investigation even more far reaching than the Lexow affair may result, and many very prominent men will be involved.

To Die in the Chair.

"Revenge renews our happy love in heaven," chiseled by him on the tombstone of his wife, caused the conviction of John Bell for the murder of Dr. Charles Wilmot Townsend, a Staten Island physician. Bell's motive for a new trial was denied and Judge Abbott sentenced him to be electrocuted July 1.

Bell, who, during his trial, had discharged one attorney for allowing his half brother to testify that Bell had confessed killing Dr. Townsend for revenge, hired another attorney, but delivered the closing address to the jury himself. His speech was an impassioned one. He closed with:

"I am not Harry K. Thaw—but plain John Bell. I have no wealth—but if I had I could produce witnesses whose testimony would acquit me."

Two Hundred Killed.

A dispatch from Sydney, N. S. W., says a report has reached there that a hurricane and tidal wave swept over the Caroline islands on April 30. Immense damage was done to property and 200 persons are reported killed. The Caroline archipelago is a German possession composed of about 525 islands, with a total area of about 550 square miles and an estimated population of about 36,000, including about 1,000 Europeans. They are mostly very fertile and produce all kinds of tropical fruits and produce. The natives are well developed and intelligent, and very extensive commerce is carried on, mostly in the hands of the German Jullit Co. which has stations on all the more important islands. The group is on the equator, directly north of the easterly coast of Australia and a little south of the route from Hawaii to the Philippines.

Reunion Was Prevented.

The burning of the stamer Naomi Tuesday morning interfered materially with the plans for the wedding of Miss Mary Burger, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Burger, to Louis F. Hake, of Grand Rapids, Mich., in Milwaukee Tuesday.

Four of the bridegroom's brothers were on the boat, having intended to go to the wedding. The party included Dr. and Mrs. Wm. Hake, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Hake, Albert and Paul Hake and Mrs. John Platte and her small son.

They lost all their clothing, including dress suits, some handsome gowns and valuable jewelry. The wedding was to have been the occasion for a reunion of six of the brothers.

Lars Imprisoned.

A Hindu revolutionist, who aroused the fanatics of the Punjab into a state of great excitement by circulating the fantastic statement that the alleged epidemic of plague did not exist and that it was really caused by the poisoning of drinking wells by government emissaries, was sentenced to two years' rigorous imprisonment. An accomplice who dropped harmless bombs into the wells, alleging that he did so by order of the government, was condemned to 18 months' imprisonment.

Why Wolves Are Numerous.

If Michigan authorities are to rid the upper peninsula of wolves it will only be with the aid of Wisconsin, says E. H. Nelson. He explains that there are counties in Wisconsin that pay no bounty for wolf scalps and that the 20 bounty offered by the state is no inducement for men to hunt wolves. Even if Michigan should offer a bounty as high as $75 or $100 that would not deplete the upper peninsula of wolves when they are bred in hundreds across the Wisconsin line.

"Good Hunting."

Undertaker J. A. Ott and John Walther, while returning from Traverse City to Sutton's Bay, were attacked by a pack of seven wild dogs that have inhabited the swamp a mile and a half south of town for more than a year. These dogs are jet black in color of a spaniel species and have returned completely to the savage state. They did not attack the horses, but in trying to reach the occupants of the buggy they grabbed the spokes and were thrown into the air by the wheels.

MICHIGAN EVENTS NOTED

THE STEAMER NAOMI BURNS IN MIDLAKE AND FIVE PERISH.

FLAMES ATTRACTED HELP

Steamers Came in Time to Save All But Five—Captain Traill Severely Burned.

Burned to Water's Edge.

Four coal heavers, trapped like rats in the hold of the vessel, were burned to death. James M. Rhodes, of Detroit, was burned so badly that he died a few hours later, dozens of passengers escaped in scant attire, their bodies covered with blisters from the heat when the steamer Naomi, of the Cross by line, Capt. Thomas Traill, bound from Grand Haven to Milwaukee, was destroyed by fire in midlake between 1:30 and 3 o'clock.

The glare of the flames that leaped far into the glare of the inky sky attracted vessels to the rescue from miles around. The steamer Kansas, twin of the Naomi, was steaming across the lake in the opposite direction, bound from Milwaukee to Grand Haven. The Kansas' lookout saw the red glare in the sky miles away, and at his alarm the Kansas hastened with all speed to the side of the burning vessel.

The Kerr, a lumber barge plying between Chicago and Duluth, and the steamer Saxonia also sighted the burning Naomi, and vied with each other in reaching her side. As the two boats plowed under full steam down upon the Naomi, passengers and sailors were seen standing on the decks waving their hands and screaming.

As the Kerr ran past the stern of the Naomi a dozen passengers leaped wildly onto her and were carried away some distance before the Kerr could be righted and returned to the rescue. The Saxonia also got her first consignments of passengers from the ill-fated boat as in her misjudged speed she slid past the flaming vessel.

The Kansas reached her sister ship while the Kerr, a steel freighter, stuck her nose into the Naomi's side. The passengers and hands were transferred in comparative order and with extraordinary discipline on their part, under all the circumstances.

Capt. Traill was the last to leave his vessel. As he climbed to the Kerr the flames were at his back. His clothes were burning and huge swelling blisters stood out on his face and hands. As he walked along the deck of the Kerr mourning the destruction of his craft, his clothes fell from his body. He refused medical attention, even though in agony, until after being transferred to the Kansas along with the other survivors and the Kansas had got out of sight of his smoldering craft on the trip to Grand Haven.

Clergyman Locked Up.

Rev. George Donaldson was locked up in the Kalamazoo jail Thursday on complaint of his wife, who charges that he committed a brutal assault on their daughter, Edith, 25 years old.

Rev. Donaldson, who is a retired Methodist minister, 60 years old, and wears a white beard, looked like a venerable patriarch as the jail doors closed on him. His faithful Scotch colle had followed him from his home into the jail and is still with him.

Mr. Donaldson has had various charges in this conference, some of them in Kalamazoo county, one place being Fulton. He retired some time ago and purchased a fine farm located just outside the city limits on the Gull road.

The Real Victims.

In a lonely tumble-down shanty in Henrietta township are living Mrs. John Bouts, widow of the contractor who was killed by Geo. Tubbs in Eaton county. The family is quarantined with measles, is in destitute circumstances, and requiring relief from the poor commissioners of Jackson county. They have only been there a few weeks, coming from Eaton county, and the officials of the county have been notified that they must pay the expense of caring for the family.

Ward Convalescent.

So rapid has been the improvement of Representative Ward that the physicians hope he will be able to return to his home by the end of the week. Ward is still at the City hospital in Lansing. The physicians have removed the stitches from the wound made when he was operated on for appendicitis one week ago. Ward is appearing as cheerful and hopeful of taking his seat in the legislature before final adjournment.

Butter Color Poison.

Butter color caused the death of the 3-year-old son of Frank Frand, a farmer living near Eaton Rapids. Mrs. Frand was churning and while her attention was diverted the child reached the jar containing the butter color and drank the contents.

That the coloring matter contained poisoning matter was demonstrated by the terrible sufferings of the child before death relieved it. All efforts on the part of physicians summoned from town were futile.

The capacity of Crystal Falls' municipal power plant at Paint river rapids is to be more than doubled.

Charles Morphet, aged 37, of Muskegon, went to bed in the afternoon after turning on the gas and stuffing the cracks of the door with paper. He awoke in the morning with rheumatism in his right arm.

After rolling down a steep 20-foot embankment into a pool of water, the sheriff and George and William Medd, brothers, of Bay City, were pulled out by section men, still lying desperately. The brothers related

JOHN PATTON.

Ex-Senator Dies of Heart Disease in Grand Rapids.

Hon. John Patton, former U. S. senator, died Friday in his residence, Grand Rapids, from organic heart disease, with which he had long suffered. Patton left the city about a month ago for Acorn, N. C., where he went to be improving, and as the season advanced it was thought safe for him to return home. On the return trip, however, he took a severe cold, which settled at the seat of the disease, and was the immediate cause of his death. Mr. Patton was born in Curvesville, Pa., October 30, 1850. He was graduated from Yale in 1875 and from the Columbia law college in 1877. He first engaged in the law practice in Grand Rapids, where he had since upon a continuous residence. In 1890, upon the death of Senator Stockbridge, he was appointed United States senator by Gov. Rice.

Mr. Patton was a man of learning, and although he filled with distinction some of the highest political positions within the gift of the state, his friends, in recounting his career, refer with greatest pride to his scholarly attainments.

Students Drink Some.

The Sociology club of the university has gathered statistics to show that from 50 to 75 per cent of the university students indulge in intoxicating liquors to some extent. Investigations of the Ann Arbor saloon situation have shown that on several weeks, in charge of L. C. Brown, '07 law, it has been found that the saloons in that city are not typical of the dram shops with all its evils. They are social centers. Saloons are held to be better than soda fountains, for they are more urous, having leather cushions and all the comforts of home. The saloons which cater to the "campus trade" do so exclusively, permit no excesses, are well furnished and generally sanitary.

As to the legal regulation of the saloon in the city the Sociology committee think that if present laws are enforced by the local authorities proper bounds would be maintained. It is pointed out, rather ironically, in the committee report that "this city now has a police force large enough to enforce all the city ordinances."

TO Study Mars.

The Lowell astronomical expedition has arrived at Lima, Peru, from Chile. The expedition is headed by Prof. David P. Todd, the astronomer of Amherst university. It proposes to make a series of observations and photographs of the planet Mars, and to this end it will climb to a summit of the Andes range, where the air is exceptionally pure and the sky clear. The expedition left New York city May 11.

THORNS IN THE ROSE OF PLENTY

NOT ALL FUN TO BE WEALTHY

Men of Millions Condemned to Isolation in Life, Pursued by Selfish Greed, While After Death There Are Spurious Widows, Will Contests, and Half a Hundred Other Kindred Ills.

New York.—The embarrassment of riches is, of course, proverbial. To the burden of wealth is probably greater for the possessors of great fortunes than ever before. A multi-millionaire is a marked man. He is debarred from the most intimate family relations, and he is constantly assailed by armies of beggars and must be guarded like any kink. At his death, hordes of claimants fight over his property, his memory is bitterly attacked and his character perhaps blasted by unscrupulous heirs through long years of litigation.

A short time ago Mr. James Henry Smith, universally known as "Silent Smith," a man of great wealth and the dispenser of wide private benefactions, suddenly died. He had lived a life of singular seclusion. A man of very simple tastes and habits, he had always shunned notoriety in every form. Any ordinary man of his character might have enjoyed a secluded life, but for Mr. Smith it was a constant effort to live his own life in his own way. On his death it was announced that he had left a fortune of more than $50,000,000. The embarrassment of riches has literally followed him into his grave. Instantly a crowd of relatives and claimants, many of whom he had never known, appeared on the scene.

His widow is obliged to retain the best counsel and instantly prepare for a long and presumably bitter conflict in order that his dying wishes as expressed in his will may be carried out. In this undignified scramble for his millions every detail of his life will be gone into, and this by expert lawyers and in no friendly spirit. Mr. Smith's private benefactions were many and varied and his character will stand the test, but it is a situation which would have given him great pain in anticipa-ago it was common for the grounds of great estates to be opened at certain hours at least to the public, but to-day such privileges are rarely granted. In almost every case such places are completely walled in and the various entrances are closely guarded. No matter how far from the mansion may be the lodge, no one is permitted to enter until he has been announced by telephone and permission has been granted. Mr. John D. Rockefeller, for instance, is as closely guarded in his estate at Tarrytown or in Cleveland as is royalty. Even a person stopping before one of these entrances is closely watched. The estate of Mr. George Gould, at Lakewood, is guarded in the same way, while others might be cited.

A famous murder recently has directed attention to the very general use which is made of private detectives by people of great wealth. The fact comes as a surprise to many. So quiet a figure and so much beloved a character as Miss Helen Gould, for instance, frequently employs private detectives as a safeguard against robbery. Many well-known millionaires go about accompanied by a gentlemanly-looking detective who acts as a bodyguard. In many cases these men are not employed so much to guard against robbery as to protect them in case they should be threatened with actual bodily harm. Should the mail of some wealthy man contain some threatening letter it is not uncommon for a detective to be called in and engaged for a few days, perhaps for a long period, either to run down the writer of the letter or to personally accompany the wealthy man to and from his office.

Volume of Mail Varies.
The volume of Mr. Carnegie's mail varies curiously from season to season, but it is always enormous. At a time when his name is frequently before the public the number of requests for charity rises quickly to its maximum, while should his name not appear in the newspapers for some time the volume of such letters decreases, but rarely below the 400 a day mark. The frequent appearance of Mr. Carnegie's name in connection with the recent peace conference, served to raise the number of letters to its maximum, or about 800 a day. The amount of actual hard work which a correspondence entails is of course very great.

The number of personal applications which a man of great wealth is favored with is also a surprise. Like the letters, they represent all classes of society, of want and destitution. The proportion of regular beggars is comparatively small. This class of applicants is likely to be awed by the general appearance and atmosphere of great wealth to employ detectives sometimes several of them being on hand. Some years ago Mrs. A. T. Stewart appeared on the piazzas of summer hotels with a detective hovering within a few feet of her to safeguard the fortune in diamonds she wore. To-day things are differently managed, but the necessity for protection is none the less real. Fashionable weddings, where a fortune in wedding gifts are known to be collected, are almost always policed. It is common for a private detective agency to be called upon and the entire arrangement looking toward its protection placed in their hands. The detective in charge goes over the ground and places his men long before the ceremony. Some of the detectives will masquerade as guests in frock coats. Still others may be disguised as servants. One or more men will, of course, be on constant guard in the rooms where the presents are displayed.

Even the pleasure of distributing charities becomes a very complex and irksome affair when the sum to be distributed reaches enormous proportions. During one's lifetime, at least, it would seem that it would be an easy matter to dispose of money. As a matter of fact, many men and women of great wealth are obliged to place their benefactions upon a regular business basis in order not to be robbed. Several men of great wealth, notably Mr. Rockefeller, are compelled to employ men at large salaries, who are in turn assisted by staffs of clerks, to examine into the demands made upon them and after investigation decide just how the money shall be distributed. It is certainly no fun to enjoy the pleasure of giving at the expense of all this complicated and irksome business detail.

Charity Misunderstood.
A man in the ordinary walks of life, again, who contributes to a church or endows a hospital or a college may be generally praised for doing so, but for a man of great wealth it is difficult to make any gift without being misunderstood, perhaps severely and bitterly criticized. The white light which beats upon a throne is turned on his slightest act. The very possession of such great wealth serves to antagonize a considerable proportion of the community, and his most praiseworthy act is attributed to ulterior motives, perhaps to very selfish and unworthy ones. One of the most familiar instances of this is the case of a man who ranks among the most liberal distributors of public benefactions in the world to-day, whose name is on every one's tongue, and yet he is the subject of bitter attack, and his benefactions are attributed to his desire to place certain securities in conservative hands throughout the country. It is, of course, impossible to please every one, and the dissatisfied element are certain to feel a bitterness in direct ratio to the size of the fortunes involved.

The diseases of the rich are still another disturbing factor in this balance. It is no exaggeration to place a number of distressing physical ills in this category. The nervous and mental strain of handling a great fortune is exceedingly trying upon the strongest organization. It was Jay Gould who remarked, during the excitement of a great financial panic, that a man controlling a fortune of $50,000,000 had no time either to eat or sleep. A man in active control of a great fortune is obviously under a tremendous strain. As a result cases of physical breakdown in Wall street are common, and men young in years are often old in health.

Kidnaping Plots.
It is only a short time since a plot was revealed to kidnap John D. Rockefeller and hold him for the payment of an immense ransom. Here is another danger which a man less conspicuous for his wealth avoids. The case was,

From the State Capital

Information and Gossip Furnished by Special Correspondent at Lansing.

Lansing.—One of the matters to be taken up by the senate at once is the reapportioning of the senatorial districts. Wayne county must be given a fifth senator and some of the other counties joined together. St. Clair would like to continue alone, but it is probable that Sanilac will be added to it. Senator Bland has introduced a bill along these lines, while Senator Peck introduced one which re-enacts the present law. Senator Fuller will introduce one which differs a good deal from the Bland bill and the committee will have to effect some sort of a compromise.

Say Law Retards Railroads.
Prominent electric railway men say that construction of electric lines in Michigan is retarded by the Michigan securities act which provides that unless electric railway companies have paid at least four per cent. dividends on capital stock for a period of five years their bonds may not be taken by state banks. A bill introduced by Senator Tuttle amending the present law so as to authorize the approval by the securities commission of the bonds of companies having certain net earnings has passed the senate, but is pigeon-holed by a house committee. A majority of the members of the securities commission, consisting of the state banking commissioner, attorney general and state treasurer, are said to be opposed to the amendment. The Tuttle bill is regarded as most important, but up to this time it seemed to have escaped public observation. Officers of the Michigan United railways assert that under the law at present the bonds of no electric railway company except possibly the Detroit United can be held by Michigan banks. This is declared to be a handicap to electric railway construction in the state as eastern capitalists hesitate to purchase bonds that have no market in the banks of the state where they are issued.

Mourn Death of Maj. Conger.
The news of the death of Maj. Edwin H. Conger, former United States minister to China, was received with much sorrow in this state, where he was well known. Maj. Conger leaves three brothers and two sisters. The brothers are Rev. E. L. Conger, of Pasadena; Frank D. Conger, of Benton Harbor, and John W. Conger, of Mexico; Mrs. A. C. Baldwin and Mrs. Edwards, wife of Maj. Edwards, U. S. A., were sisters. Maj. Conger often visited his brother at Benton Harbor and was known and loved by a large number of the people of the county. Ambrose H. Rowe, a former mayor of Benton Harbor, served in the One Hundred and Second Illinois regiment in company K, while Mr. Conger was captain of company I of the same regiment and the two men became well acquainted and their friendship has ever been quite intimate. Maj. Conger's last visit to the city was on September 8, 1905.

Pay Fares to High School.
The Tuttle bill to allow school districts which have no high school to vote eligible pupils transportation to the nearest high school aroused oratory and applause in the house. Representative Campbell urged that American success has not been won by easy education, but by the uphill path. Representative Griesel said it was the duty of the state to do all she could. Representative Newkirk urged that Representative Campbell's argument would prevent state aid to the Grand Rapids fair, which could thereby do better if it had to struggle uphill. Representative J. J. McCarthy, of Arenac, pleaded vigorously and with emotion—with interruptions of much applause—for the boys who have to struggle for an education. A few members voted with Campbell, but the bill had a triumphant passage.

Stop Ticket Speculation.
The house committee of the whole passed the Newkirk bill prohibiting speculation in tickets to public amusements. Athletic Director Baird, of the U. of M., promoted the bill. Under penalty of a fine of $25 to $100 any person is forbidden to sell tickets to a theater, circus or athletic ground in excess of the advertised or printed rate. Tickets to these amusements must have printed on them the number of the seat and the price. The bill, Judge Newkirk says, is aimed at speculators in baseball, football and field day tickets at Ann Arbor. It is a copy of the Illinois law.

May Get New Wing for Capitol.
At least a partial victory seems certain for Representative Stanley Montgomery on the bill providing for a new west wing on the state capitol.

Vital Statistics of State.
Michigan's population increased 4,262 and decreased 3,212 by death in April, according to figures given out from the office of the secretary of state. Pneumonia led as a cause of death, there being 308 from that disease. Pulmonary tuberculosis caused 232 deaths, other forms of tuberculosis 38. There was one death from smallpox and one by lightning. Infant mortality was: Under one year, 521, from one to four years 200. The number of deaths of persons over 55 years old was 1,024.

Held Up Standart Bill.
The house passed the Simpson juvenile court bill, the general measure supported by the county agents of the state board of corrections and charities. The Standart bill for Detroit, which is opposed by County Agent Sam Lawrence, of Northville, has been held up since Representative Cass Benton, of Northville, objected to an amendment exempting Detroit from the provisions of the county agents' bill. The Standart bill will be taken up again this week.

Conferees Appointed.
Lieut. Gov. Kelly appointed Senators Wetmore, Allen and Bland as senate conferees on the constitutional convention bill, but Speaker Whelan has not appointed the house conferees.

Debate on Fishing Bill.
The house held a session composed largely of flying waste baskets over Representative Campbell's bill to prevent commercial fishing in the inland lakes of the state. Representative Waters, of Washtenaw, started the whole house to debating the bill, in all manners from the jocular to the tragic. Representative Campbell finally moved to exempt the county of Kent. This was lost and the bill went to third reading for vote on final passage.

New Medical Board Bill Ready.
The new medical board bill, which has been reported by the house committee on public health for printing, may be reached by the house committee of the whole this week. As reported, it does not extend the powers of the state board of registration in medicine. It contains clauses more punitive for immoral advertisements. The bill in its new form will still be opposed by the homeopaths.

New Insurance Bills.
The house passed two insurance bills introduced by Representative Standart, of Detroit. One of them requires the deposit of the record of securities with the secretary of state to be made within a year from the application. The second forbids a new company to incorporate under a name similar to that of a company already incorporated.

Lieut. Gov. Kelly appointed Senators Wetmore, Allen and Bland as senate conferees on the constitutional convention bill, but Speaker Whelan has not appointed the house conferees.

SOUFFLE OF PRUNE

SAVORY DISH NOT SUFFICIENTLY WELL KNOWN.

Excellent Substitute for Fruit When the Latter is Out of Season—Other Recipes Well Worth Trying.

Prune soufflé with the proper zest may take the place of fruit in a season when it is scarce. For prune soufflé beat the yolks of four eggs and three tablespoonsful of powdered sugar to a cream. Add one small teaspoonful of vanilla and mix them with half a pound of prunes. Wash well and stew until skins can be pierced with a toothpick, then drain, remove stones, and cut each prune into four pieces. Mix in lightly the whites of four eggs, which have been whipped to a stiff froth, a dash of salt having been added to the whites before whipping them. Turn into a pudding dish and bake in a moderate oven for 20 minutes. Serve as soon as taken from the oven. A few nuts added to the prunes before the whites are folded in are an improvement.

Varying baked beans may be accomplished by trying a recipe liked by the Spaniards. One quart of white beans par-boiled, one quart of strained tomatoes, one onion chopped fine, one tablespoonful of sugar, one-quarter of a teaspoonful of mustard, a sprinkle of red pepper, two or three small slices of salt pork. Salt to taste. Add one level teaspoonful of baking soda to water in which the beans are being par-boiled. More or less red pepper may be used as desired, and in place of salt pork a tablespoonful of butter may be substituted. If salt pork is used, parboil and cut into small squares, mix all in baking pan, and bake in oven two hours, or until beans are tender.

To stir the appetite of an invalid it is necessary to introduce a novelty in diet. Add a few grains of salt and pepper to three beaten egg yolks, half a pint of beef tea, flavored with parsley; strain into a double boiler and cook, stirring slowly until thickened; pour into cups and serve either hot or cold.

Onion sauce lends tone to meats. To make one that has met with favor among the best cooks, boil three or four white onions till tender, then mince fine; boil one-half pint of milk; add a large tablespoonful butter and salt and pepper to taste; stir in the minced onion and one tablespoonful flour moistened with cold milk. Boil till smooth. Serve with roast fowl.

Children enjoy cream puffs and cream cakes above all other things. Cream till smooth one pound of butter, and add the yolks of eight eggs beaten well with one-half pound of powdered sugar and one teaspoon of sweet cream. Stir in flour to make it stiff enough to roll out thin. Sprinkle over this powdered sugar, cinnamon and nutmeg. Cut in the shape of leaves and bake in a quick oven.

Rhubarb tarts may be made English fashion with a thin top crust over the stewed rhubarb. Buy rhubarb, juicy, tender rhubarb, measure sufficient sugar, and put with the cut pieces on to stew. Pour into a deep pie tin and put on pie crust, baking in oven until done.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS.

To prevent white fabrics, such as tulle or silk evening gowns, lace or crepe shawls, becoming yellow when packed away, sprinkle bits of white wax freely among the folds. Macaroni or rice, if placed in a colander after cooking and rinsed with cold water, will not stick together in a solid mass, as it is otherwise inclined to do. The rice can be put into the oven for a moment afterward to reheat.

Wallpaper which is not stained in any way, but simply soiled by dust or smoke, can be cleaned by the simple means of oil meal. This should be applied with a piece of flannel, the whole surface of the wall being gone over by degrees.

In case of a tiled floor, a little linseed oil rubbed in, and the tiles subsequently polished, brings up the colors wonderfully.

To clean a kettle, fill with potato parings and boil fast until quite clean.

Succulent Orange Cake.

Orange cake ranks among the good things of a luncheon climax. Sift one and one-fourth cups of pastry flour with a pinch of salt and two teaspoons of baking powder, four times. Beat one cup of sugar, three egg yolks and one white until creamy and light yellow in color. Add one-fourth cup of cold water and the juice and grated rind of half an orange, and beat again. Lastly add the sifted flour and beat thoroughly. The latter should be thinner than for an ordinary cake. Bake 25 or 30 minutes in a moderate oven. Use a pan eight by ten inches in size. For the frosting, beat the white of an egg until stiff, add gradually one-half cup of powdered sugar, sometimes a bit more is required, and the juice and grated rind of half an orange. Beat until stiff and spread evenly on the cake.

Fish Croquettes.

Two tablespoons melted butter, two tablespoons sifted flour, stirred together until smooth. Pour in slowly one-half cup milk and cook until thick. Remove from stove and have ready some shredded codfish and mashed potatoes. Mix with the paste until thick enough to roll into shape about the size of a finger. Roll into cracker crumbs, then into one beaten egg, again into cracker crumbs, and fry in kettle of hot fat.

THE MAN OF MILLIONS NEVER VENTURES ON THE STREET WITHOUT A BODYGUARD

MENDICANTS ANNOY HIM AT EVERY TURN

THE SITUATION IS PECULIARLY A BURDEN OF THE RICH.
It is no exaggeration to say that scores of millionaires in New York, in order to gain privacy in their homes, are guarded quite as closely as any king. It is literally true that the president of the United States is much more easily approached by any ordinary citizen than many owners of great fortunes. It is not generally known for instance, that whereas anyone might call up the president by telephone or at least the White House, it is impossible to do the same with many New York millionaires. The names of the possessors of great fortunes do not appear in the telephone directories. These men are not without telephone communication with the outside world, but they choose to have private wires laid to their houses, in order to avoid the annoyance of being continually rung up. In other words, these houses are far more isolated than the average private residence, and the inconvenience they must endure is of course obvious.

Busy Citizen.

When the youth in the city wrote the old man that he had been "playin' of the devil an' a-doin' of nuthin'," the old man replied: "Ef you've been a playin' of the devil you shoudly must a been a-doin' of somethin', kaze the devil is no loafer. He keeps busy six days in the week and don't go to sleep in church on a Sunday!"

Costly Edition de Luxe.

A work which costs $1,000 net! This is the price of a fine-art work, "Les Femmes de Versailles," which a Paris firm is issuing. It is in five parts, each of which contains ten plates, in the exact colors of the original pictures.

For Thin People.

Thin people require plenty of sleep, and should be careful not to over-work and above all should avoid worry. Eat cereals, the sweet and starchy vegetables and fruits; drink milk and cream and abstain from tea and coffee.

Japanese Women Divers.

The women divers of Shugashima have developed an ability to withstand the cold of the water, and are now the support of their families in their strange vocation. They dive to depths as great as 60 feet, getting pearls and the halibut or abalone, a shell-fish that is in great demand for food.

Dead Heads.

"Conductor," said the gasping passenger, vainly trying to raise a window. There are at least a billion microbes in this car. "You ought to be able to stand that if the company can," growled the street car conductor. "We don't get a blamed cent for carrying 'em."

Mrs. John Bencher, who was called to Columbus, Ohio, on account of the serious illness of her father and who remained for a couple of weeks to care for him has returned home. She is now suffering from a severe attack of whooping cough.

Talk about your hen intelligence Mrs. Ed. Kuhl has a hen, who makes her daily visits to the egg basket which stands in the pantry and there deposits her egg, then leaves without causing any disturbance to the household. Should she come to the door and find it closed she bravely sits outside and waits to be allowed to enter.

Last Wednesday, May 22, a few immediate relatives gathered at the home of George Frey, in Sharon, to witness the marriage of their eldest daughter, Rosa Catherine, to George I. Hawley. At high noon the bridal party took their places and Rev. Grauber performed the ceremony which made them man and wife. They were attended by the groom's sister, Bertha, and the bride's brother, George, and each wore a bouquet of roses. After the ceremony the guests partook of a bounteous dinner. The young couple have the best wishes of their many friends for a prosperous and happy life.

All Egoists Now.

Egoism is a positive disease of the day. People talk incessantly of themselves, their motors, their health, their chauffeurs, their achievements at bridge, their prowess at golf, their gardens—a great hobby of the day—their speculations in the city, and so far as the world hedges them around about, so far, and no farther, are they interested in it.—Lady's Pictorial.

Self-Conquering.

You are never conquered until you think you are. The moment you believe yourself to be conquered you are conquered, even though success is within your grasp: all of which means that no person and no power can conquer a man; that he is only conquered when he conquers himself.—Freemont.

Barmaids' French Champion.

One must have lived through a dull winter's night on the shores of the Thames; one must have looked in the laughing eyes of some waitress for a reflection of the absent blue sky, in order to understand all the horror of the proposal to replace charming barmaids by men.—Matin, Paris.

The Eiderdown Industry.

Ten thousand pounds of eiderdown is collected each year in Iceland. Of this amount about 7,000 pounds is exported to other countries. A number of years ago the natives used to sell it at five dollars a pound, but lately the price has fallen off over half.—Sunday Magazine.

Paper of Real Value.

Some genius has invented a new kind of paper that will crumble and go to pieces a short time after it has been written on. It is especially recommended to people with the love-letter habit who dread breach of promise suits.

The Passing of Love.

Love is not so irresistible a factor as it was, and there is a tendency for the members of either sex to retire to opposite camps and snarl at each other. Circumstances are removing the center of happiness from the heart to the pocket.—London Graphic.

New York as Art Center.

At the present rate of progress New York city will be the art center of the world before this century is half finished, for the treasures of the world's galleries and museums are being brought to Manhattan Island.

Defect of the Typewriter.

A judge, in delivering the prizes the other day, in Queen's hall, London, to successful students in one of the large typewriting schools, expressed his regret and sympathy in noting the fact that there is no "kiss sign" on the keyboard of typewriting machines.

Men Don't Say This.

A small girl learned, for Sunday school, the verse, "Blessed are the peacemakers, for they shall be called the children of God." But when she recited it in public she surprised her mother by saying, "Blessed are the dressmakers."

M. E. CHURCH.

Rev. Joseph Ryerson, Pastor

Last Sunday the pastor exchanged pulpits with Rev. Eugene Allen. The people enjoyed very much hearing Dr. Allen and hope he will come again.

The junior Methodists are going to show their love of the church and the older people by giving the members of the official board a reception at the quarterly conference, Thursday night. The members of the board and wives or husbands are invited to come at 7:30. The young people will give a short program and serve refreshments, after which the business of the board will be transacted.

The subject Sunday morning will be "The First Christian Triumvirate"; in the evening, "The Snare of the Fowler."

To Become a Billiard Player.

I recommend all players to train their touch and gauge of strength by practicing with only one ball, sending it up the table from baulk until it can be made to stop with some certainty at the same place always. Then that place should be moved so as to present a different test of touch and strength, and so on with constant variations.—C. B. Fry's Magazine.

England's Big Canal.

A direct route from Manchester, England, to the Atlantic ocean was obtained by the digging of the Manchester canal. From Manchester ships now go through the artificial waterway to the Mersey river and from there to the open sea. This canal is fitted with hydraulic locks.

To Pot Plants.

When transplanting or repotting plants remember that a plant loosely potted rarely thrives. Firm potting must be insisted upon—not hard pounding of the earth, but sufficient firmness about the roots to allow them to obtain a good hold in the soil.

Doing It Up.

"This bill is too high," said the customer. "Too high?" ejaculated the laundryman. "That's what I said; too high." But, man, do you know how long it takes to do up a shirt? "Why, about four washings."

A Narrow Escape.

C. W. Cloyd, a merchant, of Plunk, Mo., had a narrow escape four years ago, when he ran a limon but into his thumb. He says: "The doctor wanted to amputate it but I would not consent. I bought a box of Bucklen's Arnica Salve and that cured the dangerous wound." 25c at the Bank Drug Store.

A Cough Medicine

Ayer's Cherry Pectoral is a regular cough medicine, a strong medicine, a doctor's medicine. Good for easy coughs, hard coughs, desperate coughs. If your doctor endorses it for your case, take it. If not, don't take it. Never go contrary to his advice.

We publish our formulas. We have no secrets. We want you to know your doctor.

The dose of Ayer's Pills is small, only one at bedtime. As a rule, laxative doses are better than cathartic doses. For constipation, biliousness, dyspepsia, sick-headaches, they cannot be excelled. Ask your doctor about this.

What Women Should Know

DAINTY LINGERIE CAN BE MADE AT HOME

SMART LINGERIE

Can Make Them at Home and Get Excellent Results From Your Own Ideas.

The lingerie is half so nice as that especially for one. With a sewing woman—she need be no more than that—to carry out your own ideas, one can have the loveliest of things made out of the finest of materials or Persian lawn, and trimmed with the prettiest of laces, at a far less expenditure than the same elegant-looking affairs from the stores.

The latest model of chemises is very much from the waist down, or else it is a combination garment of short petticoat or drawers, with a full, but fitting, skirt over the hips. One rarely sees simply a corset cover now.

Some of the newest ones are made with the cross-piece from the front around to the back, with longish ties that you pull forward, and the skirt you pull the more it reduces the waist. Then the waist piece is a yoke, and a yoke intervenes between the skirt and the lower part which ever it is.

The drawings show some of the latest of the bits of lingerie. Monograms are still used, small ones, and there can be no such thing as too much ornamentation, for even have as much as one's laundry will stand and still be "good." The chemises show their newness in their excessively short skirts, barely to the knees in the accepted style, and then the hems are usually cut up at the sides and trimmed with ruffles. And everywhere small bows.

Generally speaking, no one understands modeling undergarments, negligees and corsets better than the smart woman. She knows how to make these articles so that their natural features may be retained; she also knows how to establish the lines of these articles of wearing apparel, by the fairy-like daintiness of trimming and construction that make each one in a perfectly irrefragable appeal.

For American women know how to wear their petticoats properly, for they wear them much too long, keeping the ground in many instances, while many women wear skirts so that the dainty ruffles and laces hit the backs of the shoes, which means destruction to the skirts that cannot be laundered. Here the majority of women wear skirts with draw strings. The smart woman would stand aghast at such a proposition. She has a yoke, and with all the variations in style this smooth yoke to the skirt holds good for all times.

MONOGRAMS ON LINEN.

The custom of marking linen with initials in ink, practiced not many years ago by fashionables, has completely passed. Down to glass and silver, household linen must have an embroidered monogram, said a linen expert.

Tablecloths at present are marked with two monograms, and at either end of the cloth, or diagonally at the corners. Sheets and pillowcases have a large embroidered monogram placed back of the hemstitching, drawn work, embroidery or lace pattern, which decorates the edge. From examples shown it was found that preference is given just to monograms of English openwork embroidery and of French embroidery, as the design is called, although the raised English embroidery differing degrees of heaviness and variety of pattern are almost as much.

There are customers, it is said, who never change the style of their monogram, although they may have changed the size of it, the up-to-date examples being larger than formerly. The style of embroidery is not matter at all, but it is of consequence that the monogram should be anywhere from three to five inches in diameter.

Mr. Frank Woodward of St. Louis, Mich., earns a considerable amount of money each season shooting and selling. Last winter Mrs. Woodward ordered from the state $2,970 for 198 wolves, which were killed by herself and her husband.

MADE OF CR. TONNE.

There has only to visit the fancy departments in any of the large stores to realize the popularity of cr. Tonne, for it is being used in many ways and its decorative possibilities are unlimited.

The latest sets for the dressing table covers and pillow covers, made of figured cr. Tonne, are very smart. Bands of the plain material are stitched on cr. Tonne in a pretty design in, of course, cr. Tonne.

Sometimes these sets form a deep border, leaving a band of the figured stuff, some of which are put on in a somewhat irregular way. The scheme may be reversed, and the cr. Tonne used as a border on the plain.

Cleaning Woodwork.

When the woodwork in a room is being painted it is a good plan to have about three inches of the floor painted with the same color paint, then if ever it is necessary to put a carpet upon the floor which does not exactly fit, the little space left will not be so unsightly.

Paint Marks.

Paint marks on glass may be removed by rubbing with a paste of whiting and ammonia, thinned with water to the consistency of cream. Leave the paste on, and when it is dry wash off with soap and warm water.

Worth Knowing.

Nothing is better than a glass fruit jar for keeping cooking raisins moist. Baking tins are easily kept smooth if rubbed with a piece of pumice stone, and then washed after they have been used. A good dessert for luncheon is warm ginger soaked with whipped cream. Cut the ginger bread in generous pieces and ered with cr. Tonne that are used for gloves, collars, handkerchiefs or fans, and it is a pretty idea to have them match the cr. Tonne cover and the trimmings of the dressing table. These boxes are not difficult to make if care is taken to cut the card-

Velvet Collars.

Velvet collars are apt to become soiled just inside the neck while the other part is perfectly good. To remedy this take a little benzoline or spirits of turpentine on a piece of flannel and with it rub the soiled part.

Cleaning Paint.

Use only hot water with a little ammonia added for cleaning paint. Ordinary kitchen soap wash off the paint and do not clean it so quickly and thoroughly as ammonia. Use a good sand and lay on obstinate places.

Keeping Cheese.

If a cloth is wetted in vinegar and wrung out as dry as possible with the hands and wrapped around cheese, and then the whole put in a large paper bag and kept in a cool place, the cheese will retain the moisture and freshness of a new-cut cheese and will not mold.

cardboard should be covered. The cr. Tonne may either be pasted on or sewed, whipping it neatly around the edges. At each corner fasten ribbons in matching the design in color and tie the pieces together to form the box.

THE NECESSITY FOR PRACTICE

ALMOST every young woman nowadays takes up some special course whether she intends to turn such knowledge to practical advantage or not. If she is sensible in these days of uncertain fortune she decides upon a course which in some future emergency may help her to earn a living. The very wealthiest girls are taught some useful knowledge, and it is a well-appreciated fact that nearly every royal woman in Europe has a profession by which she could support herself should occasion arise. As a matter of fact, many of these turn their talents in helping their subjects, and so not only do a great deal of good to others, but ground themselves in their profession by practice. Take, for instance, the Queen of Portugal, who is a graduate physician, and in her interest in medicine has done much to improve the hospitals and assist the sick poor.

she should not drop all study as soon as she leaves school. Let her take up something she is interested in and shows talent in, and after she has learned as much as her time or her money permits, let her not so lightly forget it. That is the great trouble when studying without immediately putting the knowledge acquired into use. Just as one forgets school French or geography, less so in art, piano or the business branches soon fade away without practice, and the knowledge gained soon becomes worthless.

To Learn Application.

Even though it is not necessary for a young woman to work for her own support it is advisable for her to try to put her profession to practical use for a few months every now and then in order that she may not forget it. All the study in the world will not be of much assistance if one does not know how to apply it. If she has studied stenog-some sermon she wishes to remember, or she may assist some of her relations in getting their account books up at the office.

In languages or the arts there is no surer way of testing one's own knowledge and memory than by teaching some one else.

Last year a young musician of much promise was obliged to give up her practice owing to other business, and at the end of a few months she found that not only were her fingers failing in technique, but her sight-reading and knowledge of musical terms was also beginning to show the lack of continual use. She was still unable to practice regularly, and was apt to omit even desultory playing because she seemed to lack a motive.

At length, seeing that one of her little sisters was gazing longingly at the piano one day, she decided to teach the child, not regularly, but as she found opportunity and inclination. The child was interested, and her sister found it necessary to

FROM FASHIONDOM

Nobby Styles and Fashion Hints For The Well Dressed Woman.

The predominance of brown as a fashionable spring and summer color gives added prestige to ecru, biscuit and the twine tints, which are found in linens as well as satins. In fact, nothing is smarter than the semi-tailored dress of string-colored linen with broad bands of ecru lace, small buttons and strappings of its own material. Linen hats, cleverly shaped and still more cleverly trimmed, are made to match such gowns and look especially smart. To complete the ensemble one should also carry a parasol of a similar shade and champagne colored pumps with silk hosiery to match.

In a man's haberdashery shop are some smart accessories for women's sporting attire. There are lovely tan-colored belts of soft leather, the leather laid in narrow box plaits and dotted with leather-covered buttons. They are fastened by a large gold harness buckle. To be worn attached to the belt or not, as one pleases, are little bags of the same soft tan leather with gold trimmings.

Shoulder straps are still much liked. A gown of gray mousseline had a deep gulle, and the upper and lower part of the sleeves were of lace; from the middle of the upper arm to the elbow the sleeves were of taffeta cut out and applied on the lace in a rounded outline. There are double shoulder straps of taffeta and embroidered braid respectively and a band of wider braid encircling the bust.

All-white costumes are always smart, but this year the striped ones are the most fashionable. White with a hair line of black or dark blue, made with facings of black on collar and cuffs, is a favorite pattern and there is an endless variety in the width of the stripe. In dark colors the hair line of a darker or lighter shade is far smarter than the shadow check or plaid of last year and the colors are most charming.

Stiff little tailored hats in odd shades of blue, heliotrope or green straw, with many looped bows of self-colored ribbon at the back and a wreath of roses or field flowers around the crown, will be worn with coat suits.

Lovely gowns are made of white lace over silver or gold tissue. Such a toilet was accompanied by a gold-colored cross-over taffeta scarf and a hat of the same tone that was a fluffy mass of crinoline, tulle, straw and feathers.

The fad for mandarin and other oriental coats still lasts. Some very wonderful kimono effects are shown in shimmering satins, silks and crepes. One of these oriental coats is in gold-colored satin, almost covered with embroidery in brown, gray and gold. It is fastened with ornaments in dull silver-set with topaz and has a touch of chinchilla on the sleeves and down the front.

DON'T THROW AWAY EMPTY CANS

There is a use for everything, and even empty tins have many uses apart from the generally accepted ones of receptacles for buttons, nails and odds and ends.

An empty coffee tin is excellent to replace a sponge bag when traveling. A pound tin will hold a nail brush, flannel and sponge, and you will find it cheap and waterproof. If you add a coat of enamel, the sponge tin becomes quite decorative, but remember to leave a plain piece of tin at the top of the tin, as otherwise the coat of paint will make the lid fit too tightly.

Syrup tins make capital little flower pots when artistically enameled, and fill up dark corners admirably. Flat-sided mustard tins are invaluable for decoration. They must be painted dark oak inside and out, care having been taken to ascertain if they are water tight. Being flat, they can be nailed into otherwise impossible corners and hardly discernible from the actual woodwork. Flowers and moss last wonderfully in these tins.

A WOMANLY WOMAN

She cultivates reserve. She thinks, then acts. She speaks all of no one. She is loyal to her friends. She lives her mother's faith. She cares for her body as God's temple. She writes nothing that she may regret. She knows that nothing is more undignified than anger. She knows that to love and be loved is her birthright—if she be but worthy of love.

PINKIE PRIM

"Vinegar!"—"Mustard!"—"Pepper!"—"Salt!"
Since bad weather's turned to good,
Is what you hear the children cry
In Pinkie Prim's neighborhood.

"Salt"—That is "slow"—for the little ones.
While "Vinegar" "faster" is.
"Mustard" means "hot". And "Pepper"—O!
Well, that's when you jump "gee-whiz!"

Out in the street folks have to step,
And often they must "skidoo!"
They don't get mad. They bear in mind
That they were once children, too.

Pinkie Prim jump? Well, I should say
She's the "bestest" of them all;
Can even beat Rose Remington,
Who is almost grown up tall.

Exercise may be very good
To make kids healthy and strong.
But, when you jump the rope too much,
Most certainly that is wrong!

Other day only 'twas—a girl
(She was jumping "Double-Dutch"),
Fainted, trying "a thousand times,"
And that's what you call "too much."

The production of "The Brookdale Farm," given in the opera house last Monday evening by local talent for the benefit of St. Mary's school, was well rendered and presented to a large audience. Over 700 were present and all were extremely well pleased.

The 34th annual meeting of the Washtenaw County Pioneer and Historical Society will be held in Ypsilanti, Wednesday, June 12, at 10 o'clock a. m. The literary part of the program for the day will be held in the Baptist church and the dinner will be served in the Presbyterian church.

During the months of June, July and August the offices in the court house at Ann Arbor will be closed Saturdays at 12 o'clock. This will include the offices of county clerk, register of deeds, county treasurer and judge of probate. The offices will be open on other days of the week during the same hours as heretofore.

Mr. and Mrs. Louis Burg have issued invitations, announcing the marriage of their daughter, Harriet M., and Mr. John T. Lyons, at 8 o'clock Tuesday morning, June 11, 1907, in the Church of Our Lady of the Sacred Heart. The ceremony will be performed by Rev. Fr. Considine. The young couple will be at home in Chelsea after July 1st.

LaFayette Grange will hold Children's Day at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Herman Fletcher, Saturday, June 8. Parents are requested to come and bring their children. Dinner will be served at noon with ice cream, followed by a program composed of exercises by the children and a short address by R. M. Hoppe, master of Cavanaugh Lake Grange.

Married, at 2 o'clock, Wednesday afternoon, May 29, 1907, at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Koch, Miss Sarah Koch and Emanuel Bahnmiller, both of Chelsea. The ceremony was performed by Rev. A. A. Schoen and was witnessed by a number of the near relatives of the young people. The newly wedded couple will reside in the home owned by the groom on east Middle street.

The School Board having been petitioned to improve the condition in our school building and to make more room, which has become necessary, owing to the constant growth of our town and school population, the Board has decided to submit the proposition to the qualified electors of the district, the erection of a new high school building, to be voted on at a special meeting to be held in the town hall, Tuesday evening, June 11, from 6:30 to 8:30.

It is reported that the M. C. is about to have flagmen placed on the two crossings east of the passenger station. Another crossing in the west end of Chelsea on Hayes street should be placed in charge of a flagman. There is a large amount of traffic on the street which leads to the creamery, and frequently complaint is made that the train crews, who are on the sidetracks, fail to cut the crossing, which causes considerable inconvenience to the public.

Rev. Joseph Ryerson goes the first of the week to Ewing College, Illinois, for commencement. Mr. Ryerson has been taking post-graduate work with Ewing for the last three years, and, while lecturing there last winter, he was invited to deliver the commencement address for the Logansport society this year. President Leavitt, of this college, is one of the leading educators of the state of Illinois, being a member of the Cecil Rhodes board of scholarship and also the Carnegie board to handle the ten million dollars for college teachers.
