THE SUIT TRIED MONDAY

THE INJUNCTION CASE.

Judge Kinne Has Not Rendered His Decision in the Matter of the Bond Issue for New School House.

Harmon S. Holmes, Bill Bacon, et al., comprising a small coterie of Chelsea, who look as if they had each taken a bite out of a quince every time a proposition for the advancement of the village is brought up, were in Ann Arbor Monday with their hammers ready to form the first row on the anvil chorus on the new school proposition.

That Chelsea is growing in population is unquestioned. That it is necessary to provide more school room is admitted, and yet the enjoiners and the obstructionists set up a holler like infants who can't reach the jam jar when a plan was presented that would locate the building in what will eventually be the center of the village.

Over two-thirds of the tax-payers of Chelsea want the new location. Of course, some who are near the present school building naturally voted against the proposition which aims to establish a new site. But it was the chronic knoekers who stirred up litigation and got out an injunction to restrain the issue of bonds on the grounds that the other side did not strictly adhere to all the legal formalities. They even went so far as to claim that the proposition was not carried by a two-thirds vote on the basis that there were 35 men whom they alleged were not entitled to vote.

Mr. Cavanaugh showed this up conclusively that it was carried. There were nine votes thrown out by defective markings on the ballots, and admitting for the sake of argument that the 35 were illegal, it still left a two-thirds vote in favor as the following will show: Total votes cast.....522 Necessary to carry proposition.....384 Favor of bond issue.....355 Against bond issue.....158

Now comes the compilation: Total votes.....522 35 alleged illegals.....35 9 defective ballots.....9-44 Net.....478 Two-thirds of this.....319 Thus giving a majority of ONE VOTE over the necessary two-thirds after the 35 votes have been deducted from the 355 in favor of the proposition.

These thirty-five men were not challenged and their votes are accepted. It was the duty of the complainants and whiners to challenge them at the time of the election.

The position of the school board is as follows:

1. There was a sufficient six days' notice of the election, as the question of a site was not voted upon.

2. There is no evidence that the 35 men in question voted in favor of the proposition.

3. And even if they did so vote, the proposition carried.

Messrs. Cavanaugh, Wedemeyer and Goran conducted the case for the school board. Attorney Brown argued that a ten days' notice of the election was required. The notice was sent out June 3 for an election on June 11. He also claimed that the notice was not sufficient in that it did not specify how long the poles were to be kept open, although Mr. Cavanaugh showed by the law that poles must be kept open for at least two hours and this was done. He also claimed that the petition on which the election was called was presented in March on the $50,000 proposition, and that the Board could not call another election in June for a $80,000 school-house on this same petition.

Mr. Cavanaugh contended that the school board now has the right to issue the bonds.

Judge Kinne—"Then this ought to be a simple matter. Why cannot you and Mr. Brown agree that the injunction be dismissed if the electors hereafter determine a new site or rebuild or add to the present building?"

Attorney Brown agreed to this, providing the money will not be spent until a vote of the people is taken.

Carried.

Moved by Stimson, seconded by Schenk:

The council of the village of Chelsea, Michigan, does hereby declare that, for the purpose of making certain public improvements, it deems it necessary to take certain private land in the village of Chelsea, Michigan, so the said village may have dug thereon a well, or reservoir, for the purpose of increasing the village water supply, and that such improvement is for the use and benefit of the public, such land being described as follows: Commencing at the southeast corner of a certain lot owned by C. Maroney, lying east of Main and north of North streets; running thence north along the east line of said Maroney lot eight (8) rods; thence northeasterly, parallel with the north line of North street, eight (8) rods; thence south eight rods to the north line of North street; thence southwesterly to the place of beginning, said land being now owned and occupied by William Remnant and wife, of Chelsea, Michigan.

The village council, by resolution, hereby directs the village attorney to commence the necessary proceedings in behalf of the village before James P. Wood, a justice of the peace, to take said private property.

Carried.

On motion, board adjourned.

W. H. HEISELSCHWERT, Clerk.

CHANGE IN OFFICE.

Evan Essery, the New County School Commissioner, Entered Upon His Duties Monday, July 1st.

The term of office of the county school commissioner began on Monday, July 1st, and Evan Essery, of Manchester, succeeded Chas. E. Foster, of Chelsea, who has so faithfully performed the duties of the office for the past six years.

The new commissioner has been superintendent of the Manchester public schools for a number of years, and is well qualified to fill the important position to which he was elected at the election last spring. Mr. Essery has purchased a residence in Ann Arbor and will make that city his home. Ex-Commissioner Foster will continue to reside in this community and will devote his time to his farms in Sylvan.

Asks for a Receiver.

A petition has been filed by Theo. E. Mast, asking for an accounting from Geo. H. Purchase and Elmer C. Glenn, of Detroit, of their acts and expenditures in the matter of a company which the defendants were promoting for the purpose of buying an oil lease and boring for oil in Kent county, Ontario. The claim is made that the subscribers to the stock of the proposed company contributed in all $15,000, $10,500 of which was to be used in purchasing the lease and $2,000 for boring the well; that the well was bored and oil pumped, but still the company is in financial difficulties, and the charge is made that Purchase and Glenn are responsible. A receiver is asked for and John R. Rood has been appointed. The majority of the stockholders are Ann Arbor people.

Our National Holiday.

From all indications, today in Chelsea will be rather quiet. The small boys will have a quantity of firecrackers, and some of the residents of the town will have a display of fireworks in the evening. Many will, however, spend the day away from their homes and, in most instances, at some of the near-by lakes. Hon. Frank P. Glazier will have a display of fireworks this evening at summer home, Cavanaugh Lake. Cavanaugh Lake club have also made arrangements for a display of fireworks. At North Lake a number of camp will celebrate and, as usual, have a play of fireworks in the evening.

Hen vs. Incubator.

Talk about your incubators! Boyce succeeded in hatching just chicks from 480 eggs in one of his machines. He says he expects to have some high priced stock for sale this fall. While Robert Edwards, the maker, at Boyce Corner, set a blocky 24 eggs hatching 24 chicks all well. He is now anxiously waiting for a hen setting on three eggs expecting her to make the mark of any hen yet on record. port later.

ADVOCATE TRADE

PROSPEROUS MAKE MARKETS

The American Society of Equity is Opposed to the Catalogue House at Cities.

The American Society of Equity is unqualifiedly to its members patronizing the houses of the large cities. So merchants and dealers are to be made for the farmers. The home towns are mighty in the value of real estate of farm. A home market for farm products is the aim of every farmer in the vicinity of every large city, and must be as a market place for farm products. Realizing this, the American Society of Equity upon its members duty to support home merchants and dealers only they can secure a home market for their products. Thus towns make a ready market and hence increase the value of real estate.

President, in his address at the Agricultural College at Lansing, gave the Society of Equity his unqualified support and advised the farmers to form a solid organization, to be able to meet combinations with a price for their products that buy the producer, and thus put the robber rule of the bulls and the boards of trade in the hands of this nation.

SERIAL STORY

THE HOUSE OF A THOUSAND CANDLES

By MEREDITH NICHOLSON

Author of "THE MAIN CHANCE," "ZELDA DAMERON," Etc.

"Pray do not trouble about it, Sister Theresa. There are a good many things about my grandfather's affairs that I don't understand, but I'm not going to see an old friend of his swindled. There's more in all this than appears. My grandfather seems to have mislaid or lost most of his assets before he died. And yet he had the reputation of being a pretty cautious business man."

"The impression is abroad, as you must know, that your grandfather concealed his fortune before his death. The people hereabouts believe so; and Mr. Pickering, the executor, has been unable to trace it."

"Yes, I believe Mr. Pickering has not been able to solve the problem," I said and laughed.

"But, of course, you and he will cooperate in an effort to find the lost property."

"She bent forward slightly; her eyes, as they met mine, examined me with a keen interest."

"Why shouldn't I be frank with you, Sister Theresa? I have every reason for believing Arthur Pickering a scoundrel. He does not care to cooperate with me in searching for this money. The fact is that he is very much wiser to eliminate me as a factor in the settlement of the estate. I speak carefully; I know exactly what I am saying."

She bowed her head slightly and was silent for a moment. The silence was the more marked from the fact that the hood of her habit concealed her face.

"What you say is very serious."

"Yes, and his offense is equally serious. It may seem odd for me to be saying this to you when I am a stranger—when you may be pardoned for having no very high opinion of me."

She turned her face to me—it was singularly gentle and refined—not a face to associate with an idea of self-seeking or duplicity.

"I sent for you, Mr. Glenarm, because I had a very good opinion of you; because, for one reason, you are the grandson of your grandfather"—and the friendly light in her gray eyes drove away any lingering doubt I may have had as to her sincerity. "I wished to warn you to have a care for your own safety. I don't warn you against Arthur Pickering alone, but against the countryside. The idea of a hidden fortune is alluring; a mysterious house and a lost treasure make a very enticing combination. I fancy Mr. Glenarm did not realize that he was creating dangers for the people he wished to help."

She was silent again, her eyes bent meditatively upon me. Then she spoke abruptly.

"Mr. Pickering wishes to marry my niece."

"Ah, I have been waiting to hear that. I am exceedingly glad to know that he has so noble an ambition. But Miss Devereux isn't encouraging him, as near as I can make out. She refused to go to California with his party—I happen to know that."

"That whole California episode would have been amusing if it had not been ridiculous. Marian never had the slightest idea of going with him; but she is sometimes a little—shall I say perverse?"

"Please do! I like the word—and the quality!"

"—And Mr. Pickering's rather elaborate methods of wooing—"

"He's as heavy as lead!" I declared.

"Amuse Marian up to a certain point; then they annoy her. He has implied pretty strongly that the claim against me could be easily adjusted if Marian marries him. But she will never marry him, whether she benefits by your grandfather's will or however that may be."

"I should say not," I declared with a warmth that caused Sister Theresa to sweep me with those wonderful gray eyes. "But first he expects to find this fortune and endow Miss Devereux with it. That is a part of the scheme. And my own interest in the estate must be eliminated before he can bring that condition about. But, Sister Theresa, I am not so easily got rid of as Arthur Pickering imagines. My staying qualities, which were always weak in the eyes of my family, have been braced up a trifle."

"Yes."

I thought pleasure and hope were expressed in the monosyllable, and my heart warmed to her.

"Sister Theresa, you and I are understanding each other much better than I imagined we should—and we both laughed, feeling a real sympathy growing between us."

"Yes, I believe we are"—and the smile lighted her face again.

"So I can tell you two things. The first is that Arthur Pickering will never find my grandfather's lost fortune, assuming that any exists. The second is that in no event will he marry my niece."

"You speak with a good deal of confidence," she said and laughed a low, murmuring laugh. I thought there was relief in it. "But I didn't suppose Marian's affairs interested you."

"They don't, Sister Theresa. Her affairs are not of the slightest importance—but she is!"

There was frank inquiry in her eyes now.

"But you don't know her—you have missed your opportunity."

"To be sure, I don't know her; but I know Olivia Gladys Armstrong. She's a particular friend of mine—we have chased rabbits together, and she told me a great deal. I have formed a very good opinion of Miss Devereux in that way. Oh, that note you wrote about Olivia's intrusions beyond the wall! I ought to thank you for it—but I really didn't mind."

"A note? I never wrote you a note until to-day!"

"Well, some one did!" I said, then she smiled.

"Oh, that must have been Marian! She was always Olivia's loyal friend and apologist."

"I should say so."

"But you shouldn't have known Olivia—it is unpardonable! If she played tricks upon you, you should not have taken advantage of them to make her acquaintance. That wasn't fair to me!"

"I suppose not! But I protest against this deportation. The landscape hereabouts is only so much sky, snow and lumber without Olivia."

"We miss her, too," replied Sister Theresa. "We have less to do!"

I went home and studied the timetable.

CHAPTER XVII.

Golden Butterflies.

If you are one of those captious people who must verify by the calendar bought a seat in the Washington sleeper and after supper in the dining car made myself comfortable and dozed and dreamed as the train plunged through the dark. The through-passengers about me went to bed, and I was left sprawling out in my open section, lurking on the shadowy frontier between the known world and dreamland.

"We're running into Cincinnati ten minutes late," said the porter's voice, and in a moment I was in the vestibule and out, hurrying to a hotel. At the St. Botsoph I ordered a carriage and broke all records changing my clothes. The time-table informed me that the Chicago express left at half-past one. There was no reason why I should not be safe at Glenarm House by my usual breakfast hour in the morning if all went well. To avoid loss of time in returning to the station I paid the hotel charge and carried my bag away with me.

"Doctor Armstrong's residence? Yes, sir; I've already taken two loads there."

The carriage was seen climbing what seemed to be a mountain to the heights above Cincinnati. To this day I associate Ohio's most interesting city with a lonely carriage ride that was as strange to me as a trackless jungle in the wilds of Africa. And my heart began to perform strange tattoos on my ribs. I was going to the house of a gentleman who did not know of my existence, to see a girl who was his guest, to whom I had never, as the conventions go, been presented. It did not seem half so easy, now that I was well launched upon the adventure.

I stopped the cabman just as he was about to enter an iron gateway whose posts bore two great lamps.

It was scheduled to reach Cincinnati at 11 o'clock sharp. This, I trust, is sufficiently explicit.

To the student of morals and motives I will say a further word. I had resolved to practice deception in running away from Glenarm House to keep my promise to Marian Devereux. By leaving I should forfeit my right to any part of my grandfather's estate; but of more immediate importance was my absence from Glenarm House at this juncture, when the attacks of Morgan and the strange ways of Bates made it clearly my duty to remain. Pickering and I were engaged in a sharp contest, and I was beginning to enjoy it to the full, but I did not falter in my determination to visit Cincinnati, hoping to return without my absence being discovered; so the next afternoon I began preparing for my journey.

"Bates, I fear that I'm taking a severe cold and I'm going to dose myself with whisky and quinine and go to bed. I shan't want any dinner—nothing until you see me again."

I yawned and stretched myself with a groan.

"I'm very sorry, sir. Shant I call a doctor?"

"Not a bit of it. I'll sleep it off and be as lively as a cricket in the morning."

At four o'clock I told him to carry some hot water and lemons to my room; bade him an emphatic good-night and locked the door as he left. Then I packed my evening clothes in a suitcase. I threw the bag and heavy ulster from a window, swung myself out upon the limb of a big maple and let it bend me to its sharpest and then dropped lightly to the ground.

I passed the gate and struck off toward the village with a joyful sense of freedom. I reached the station without incident and waited in the freight shed to keep out of sight of the station loafers until my train drew up, then quietly jumped aboard. I

I stopped the cabman just as he was about to enter an iron gateway whose posts bore two great lamps.

I swung myself out upon the limb of a big maple.

every new moon you read of in a book, and if you are pained to discover the historian lifting anchor and spreading sail contrary to the reckonings of the nautical almanac, I beg to call your attention to these items from the timetable of the Mid-Western and Southern Railway for December, 1901: The southbound express passed Annandale at exactly 53 minutes after four p. m. It was scheduled to reach Cincinnati at 11 o'clock sharp. This, I trust, is sufficiently explicit.

To the student of morals and motives I will say a further word. I had resolved to practice deception in running away from Glenarm House to keep my promise to Marian Devereux. By leaving I should forfeit my right to any part of my grandfather's estate; but of more immediate importance was my absence from Glenarm House at this juncture, when the attacks of Morgan and the strange ways of Bates made it clearly my duty to remain. Pickering and I were engaged in a sharp contest, and I was beginning to enjoy it to the full, but I did not falter in my determination to visit Cincinnati, hoping to return without my absence being discovered; so the next afternoon I began preparing for my journey.

"Bates, I fear that I'm taking a severe cold and I'm going to dose myself with whisky and quinine and go to bed. I shan't want any dinner—nothing until you see me again."

I yawned and stretched myself with a groan.

"I'm very sorry, sir. Shant I call a doctor?"

"Not a bit of it. I'll sleep it off and be as lively as a cricket in the morning."

At four o'clock I told him to carry some hot water and lemons to my room; bade him an emphatic good-night and locked the door as he left. Then I packed my evening clothes in a suitcase. I threw the bag and heavy ulster from a window, swung myself out upon the limb of a big maple and let it bend me to its sharpest and then dropped lightly to the ground.

I passed the gate and struck off toward the village with a joyful sense of freedom. I reached the station without incident and waited in the freight shed to keep out of sight of the station loafers until my train drew up, then quietly jumped aboard. I bought a seat in the Washington sleeper and after supper in the dining car made myself comfortable and dozed and dreamed as the train plunged through the dark. The through-passengers about me went to bed, and I was left sprawling out in my open section, lurking on the shadowy frontier between the known world and dreamland.

"We're running into Cincinnati ten minutes late," said the porter's voice, and in a moment I was in the vestibule and out, hurrying to a hotel. At the St. Botsoph I ordered a carriage and broke all records changing my clothes. The time-table informed me that the Chicago express left at half-past one. There was no reason why I should not be safe at Glenarm House by my usual breakfast hour in the morning if all went well. To avoid loss of time in returning to the station I paid the hotel charge and carried my bag away with me.

"Doctor Armstrong's residence? Yes, sir; I've already taken two loads there."

The carriage was seen climbing what seemed to be a mountain to the heights above Cincinnati. To this day I associate Ohio's most interesting city with a lonely carriage ride that was as strange to me as a trackless jungle in the wilds of Africa. And my heart began to perform strange tattoos on my ribs. I was going to the house of a gentleman who did not know of my existence, to see a girl who was his guest, to whom I had never, as the conventions go, been presented. It did not seem half so easy, now that I was well launched upon the adventure.

I stopped the cabman just as he was about to enter an iron gateway whose posts bore two great lamps.

CHILDREN AT TABLE

NEVER TOO YOUNG TO BE TAUGHT MANNERS.

With the First Meal Taken with the Elders Attention Should Be Paid to the Little Graces of Good Breeding.

As soon as a baby is old enough to take its first meal at the table with grown people attention should be paid to its manners. Precisely why instinctively we seem always to do the wrong thing until taught better I do not know, unless it is on the basis of the perverseness of human nature.

The fact remains, however, that unless a baby is taught differently it will shovel up food in a most distressing manner, and fill its little mouth too full at every bite. Infants seem also to have a positive talent for holding fork or spoon in the wrong way, and all these things, apparently trivial, must be corrected by mothers.

To think that a baby is too young to be shown the proper amount of food that a fork should hold is the greatest mistake, because the little one will continue in the way it begins.

Each one of us has been appalled or disgusted at the bad table manners of the children of some of our friends, but it is not too much to say that such are entirely the result of indifference or ignorance on the part of parents and reflects upon them accordingly.

Only such quantity as may be comfortably put into the mouth should be taken on the fork at a time, and two bites from the same forkful is the height of bad manners, small boys and girls should learn. Attention should be given to the way this implement is held, for the instinctive method seems to be to grasp it at the head of the tines. A child should be taught at once that the clasp must be well toward the end of the handle, and thus eating will be a simpler process for little children, especially if the fork is not large.

There is no excuse for a little boy or girl taking soup from a spoon so full as to be dripping while raised. I know some grown persons have this habit that one cannot help calling disgusting, because it is pigish, but a spoon should never be more than moderately full and the liquid should be taken from the side, not from the tip.

Comparatively few children are taught how to drink in a well-mannered way. Instead of the cup being allowed to go into the mouth to the corners the little one should learn to take small mouthfuls of the liquid, and the lips will be less covered with it when the cup is taken down. "Milk mustaches" should be as reprehensible for children as for grown persons.

Being just a healthy little animal by nature, a child regards a napkin in the light of foolishness, and will use it only when the arts of civilization are being inculcated. This, however, is one it should learn early, for remnants of food left on the mouth render the sweetest child unattractive.

The child is always more or less of a mimic, and in nothing will this show more positively than in its table manners. If those at the table with it eat in slovenly fashion so will he or she, but unfortunately the reverse does not work without aid. A good example alone in the matter of eating is not enough for little children.

Prompting also is necessary, but it will more quickly acquire attractive ways and be less of a young animal at its food if the teaching is reinforced by example.—Baltimore American.

CASE FOR THE SPECTACLES.

Makes Pretty Present for Elderly Member of the Family.

Here is a suggestion for a very useful present to give an elderly lady. It may be made of kid, suede or silk, and is embroidered with silk in long satin and cording stitches. The case may be made the size shown, or a little smaller to fit the glasses they are intended to hold. Cut two pieces of card, one for the back and one for front; cut one piece of silk for front, allowing turnings all round, and one for the back, which must have the turn-over tab cut on for the top; a piece of silk for lining each must also be cut; work the pieces for the front and the tab with the embroidery design as shown; place a thin layer of wadding over the card for front, then stretch the embroidery over it, line with silk and stitch neatly together at edge; put the silk and lining over the card for back in same way, but put an interlining of linen in the tab to make it firm; make a strap of silk one-third inch wide and stretch across the front, then sew the back and front together neatly at the edges. Finish all round either with the finest silk cord or very coarse embroidery silk.

Worthiness in Humble Guise.

TWO GOOD BLOUSES.

The waist on the left is the much-liked Peter Pan, which sprung into favor last summer. The design is ideal for outing or athletic blouses and just the thing for heavy linen.

The other came later and is sure to be immensely popular this summer for wash silks and lawns. The little plaits down each side of front and around collar and cuffs add greatly to the chicness.

is the Sailors' Friend.

Sixty thousand sailors look to H. A. Hanbury for advice and for protection. Mr. Hanbury is the United States shipping commissioner for the port of New York. He is the sailors' judge and jury. The men who sign on foreign craft now must appear before him for their papers instead of going to the consuls of the various countries. He decides all disputed questions between the men and their sailing masters. Many of the abuses of these men that formerly were common, such as compelling them to buy their outfits from the ship owners or captains, have been done away with under Mr. Hanbury's rule. His office is on the Battery park, New York, where he easily can reach all the ships leaving that port.

INSURANCE INVESTMENTS.

How One Company's Assets Are Distributed in the South and West.

In connection with its withdrawal from Texas, along with many other companies, rather than to submit to the new law which requires that 75% of the reserves on Texas policies shall be invested in securities of that state, which securities shall be deposited in the state and subjected to heavy taxation, in addition to the large tax now imposed on life insurance premiums, the Equitable Life Assurance Society has made public the distribution of its assets, at the end of the second year of the new management. The Equitable now has $10,958,000 invested in Texas, which is twice as much as the new law requires, but the management decided that to submit to the additional taxation would be an injustice to its policyholders in other states, which impose no such penalty on the thrift of their citizens.

The Equitable's report shows that more than 37% of its total reserves are now invested in the southern and western states, while only 35% of its total insurance is carried in these states. Its investments are distributed as follows: Ala., $3,099,000; Ariz., $974,000; Ark., $4,038,000; Cal., $5,142,000; Col., $5,222,000; Fla., $4,924,000; Ga., $4,048,000; Idaho, $5,197,000; Ill., $12,617,000; Ind. Ter., $443,000; Ind., $6,836,000; Iowa, $3,690,000; Kansas, $11,637,000; Ky., $2,631,000; La., $3,054,000; Md., $2,207,000; Mich., $6,009,000; Minn., $2,065,000; Miss., $767,000; Mo., $8,197,000; Mont., $1,890,000; Neb., $7,526,000; Nev., $640,000; New Mex., $1,376,000; N. ## HAPPENED AT BAD TIME.

Minister's Fall Significant in View of Previous Words.

In a small church in one of the mining towns of Pennsylvania was a pulpit both antique and unique. It was about the size and shape of a flour barrel, was elevated from the floor about four feet and was fastened to the wall. The ascent was by narrow winding steps.

A minister from a neighboring town, a man of great vigor and vehemence, preached there one Sunday. While preaching he bent forward and shouted out with great force the words of his text:

"The righteous shall stand, but the wicked shall fall."

Just as these words escaped from his lips, the pulpit broke from its fastenings, and he fell out and rolled over on the floor before his congregation. In an instant he was on his feet again and said:

"Brethren, I am not hurt, and I don't mind the fall much, but I do hate the connection."

COFFEE COMPLEXION.

Many Ladies Have Poor Complexions from Coffee.

"Coffee caused dark colored blotches on my face and body. I had been drinking it for a long while and these blotches gradually appeared, until finally they became permanent and were about as dark as coffee itself."

"I formerly had as fine a complexion as one could ask for."

"When I became convinced that coffee was the cause of my trouble, I changed and took to using Postum Food Coffee, and as I made it well, according to directions, I liked it very much, and have since that time used it in place of coffee."

"I am thankful to say I am not nervous any more, as I was when I was drinking coffee, and my complexion is now as fair and good as it was years ago. It is very plain that coffee caused the trouble."

Most bad complexions are caused by some disturbance of the stomach and coffee is the greatest disturber of digestion known. Almost any woman can have a fair complexion if she will leave off coffee and use Postum Food Coffee and nutritious, healthy food in proper quantity. Postum furnishes certain elements from the natural grains from the field that Nature uses to rebuild the nervous system and when that is in good condition, one can depend upon a good complexion as well as a good healthy body.

Complaints of Noise.

"It is a distressing thing to have our most efficient laboring forces are peace disturbers, destroying because of the racket they create. The hammer, sawing machine, and most of the things we have are capable of much greater noise than they have."

POLICE WERE ON THE J.

London Visitor Convinced of the Clench of the New York Police.

Down in the old Ninth west of Broadway and south lower fringe of the artificial park—there still exists an old-fashioned chophouse where bad music, good cooking and intelligent in addition to the front entrance place has a door in the rear, out on a side alley. On this exit hinges the story of how a head of the New York police came confirmed in the opinion he had the very finest police in the world.

When the superintendent, chief of police was then called to dine at this little chophouse there was consternation among policemen of that and neighboring posts, for many of them were habit of dropping in there for a moment at times when they should be on duty.

Their discomfort was long, however. Some were all the instincts of a good detective familiar with the door on the devised a plan whereby he and companions were enabled to enjoy evening chop and ale without detection by their chief.

His scheme, like all good ones, was simple. When a man or woman was always left outside the chophouse, he would spy the superintendent around the corner he would be chafing by the chophouse, the wink to Johnny, the cash sat at the desk by the door. In turn would tip the dining giving them ample time to go the back way and through the while the unsuspecting superintendent sauntered in by the entrance.

One evening, just after some men had slipped out in response to a customary warning, the superintendent entered with a guest. It was a London inspector who had sent to this country to study methods.

"Well, you may say what the Englishman said as he was clearing away the dishes, he was willing to wager you ten American dollars that if we step around the corner right call for help there wouldn't be within half."

The waiter began to pounce ears.

"You're on with that bet," the superintendent. "As soon as I had our coffee we'll just step the corner here and try to you don't find that inside of."

The waiter did not stop more. He snapped his lips though he had suddenly recognized something and hurried to kitchen.

"Say," he blurted out to "tell George to serve the coffee and to take his blamed tip, too! I can't wait."

Before the astonished time to ask an explanation was darning up the alley in the man on post. Luckily where to find him.

"Listen," he gasped, and lessly related what he had in the chop house.

"Gee!" exclaimed the cop. "Whereabouts? Hold 'em as can, will yer?"

With that he was off in the men on neighboring street in turn hunted up still. Back in the chop house the tenant was apologizing to specter.

"I'm sorry the service had been to-night. I've not it to be like this before. Now for our bet," he said, at last succeeded in getting made out.

They strolled around the a quiet place in the middle block.

"Here," said the superintendent, "here's a good place. Now, by the shoulders and you help. Good and loud, mind as a man naturally would."

The Englishman drew breath and started in: "Help! Help! Murder!"

But he got no further. Scrambling up out of doors cops, cops—it seemed every nook and corner in the neighborhood were raining fat. "Biff! Bang! Biff!" The superintendent's hat.

Then, as each one approached who it was, he drew off his superintendent! Sorry, started in to beat up the cop's English friend.

"Well," admitted the London inspector when explained been made and it was all certainly got a very effectuation."

"Finest in the world," the superintendent, winding started to expand with time on the care of bees and other subjects of general interest. Bee keepers are invited to meet under the south end of the grand stand on the afternoon of Bee Keepers' Day, where a general discussion of matters of mutual interest will be held.

Ladies interested in needle and

FAIR CLOSED SUNDAY

But Will Be Opened Every Evening
NEW PREMIUM LIST OUT

The Beautiful Michigan Building at the St. Louis World's Fair Now Stands in the Foreground of the Michigan State Fair.

Despite the adverse comment of people who were not in possession of the true facts, the State Fair of 1907
will be conducted on the same orderly and broad basis that has characterized the exhibitions held by the Michigan Agricultural society in the past.
Every attraction on the grounds will have to come up to the high standard set by the executive committee or the permit under which it will be given access to the grounds will be revoked.
It is the aim of the society to make the great Michigan fair an event to be looked forward to by those enjoying keen and exciting contests of speed,
the opportunity to study the products and natural resources of the Wolverine
state, and high-class entertainments.

In 1906 the fair was open on Sunday. It was the desire of the management to give those who could not get out to the grounds on week days an opportunity of viewing the exhibits that had been gathered from all parts of this great state. The Sunday program was in keeping with the day.
There were sacred concerts, both in the afternoon and evening, while no shows of any kind were operated and all boisterousness was sternly repressed.

The fair of 1907 will be closed upon Sunday. This action was taken, not because the previous openings of the fair on this day had not borne out every contention made by the executive committee as to the advantages that would accrue to those who could not visit the fair at any other time,
but simply to silence the criticism that came from many quarters, and to weld into a compact unit those who were giving the society's officers their support.

MICHIGAN BUILDING AT STATE FAIR.

Standing conspicuously in the foreground as one approaches the main entrance to the State Fair grounds, Detroit, is the magnificent structure that entertained thousands of visitors to the Louisiana Purchase exposition under the name of the Michigan Building. As one views the grounds from the Woodward avenue approach, the tail columns, airy verandas, and ornate architecture show the care that was expended by the St. Louis commissioners who selected the plans before its erection in St. Louis.

After the long journey from St.
Louis to Detroit, and reconstructed it is even more beautiful and graceful than when erected in the Missouri city. It is now a permanent structure, while when first built the walls were of staff and intended to stand only for a few short months. While at St. Louis the building stood upon a temporary foundation consisting of a few piles, today it is on a solid foundation and there is not the slightest danger of the structure sagging, for no expense was spared when it became a companion structure to the glass and brick buildings nearby.

Early in 1905 the St. Louis fair commissioners offered the building to the officers of the Michigan Agricultural society for the sum of $1250.
The original contract price had been $16,000 and in addition to this the contractors stood a loss of $4,000 due to the high wages that were paid during the fair. The offer was eagerly accepted, but before the building was finally erected in Detroit the society paid out an additional $17,000.

This year the entire upper floor
will be devoted to the art collection which will be under the direction of Prof. A. H. Griffith, director of the Detroit Museum of Art. Part of the lower floor will be devoted to the mineral exhibit, of which Rep. W. J. Galbraith, of Calumet, will be the superintendent.
This exhibit promises to be the finest collection of mining products ever shown in the history of the world.

In the Michigan building friends can meet friends, and seek rest on its cool verandas. The views in all directions are worth patiently sitting in a steamer chair and studying as the kaleidoscope of life and activity passes before one's view.

NEW PREMIUM LIST OUT.

Replete with information the 1907 list of premiums that will be given by the Michigan Agricultural society at the State Fair in Detroit, August 29 to September 6, will be mailed to live stock dealers, farmers and manufacturers early in June. The premium list will be in the form of a 124-page book and will be as attractive as the printer's art can make it.

The book will show a marked increase in the number of prizes that will be given to exhibitors this year, and will contain useful and varied information that will be essential to every person visiting the fair.

Among the illustrations in the book will be likenesses of President Postal, Secretary Butterfield, General Manager Charles Floyd, and General Superintendent A. J. Doherty, of the new grounds, the Michigan building, and the immense exposition hall and horcultural building.

In the book will be the announcement of the details that have been worked out in order to take care of the greatly increased attendance that is expected this fall. Provisions that have been made for the comfort of visitors will be outlined, while a number of pages will be devoted to information particularly valuable to the exhibitor. This book will be sent to any one on application.

NIGHT ENTERTAINMENT AT STATE FAIR.

In connection with the night attractions to be offered at the State Fair at Detroit this year, the inspiring and brilliant pyrotechnic spectacle, "The Eruption of Vesuvius" will be the feature.
Nothing so elaborate has ever heretofore been attempted by Henry J.
Paine. The magnitude of the production can best be appreciated when it down because of the after effects of malaria.

is known that the entire field in front of the grandstand and bleachers will be required to stage the paraphernalia and apparatus used to portray one of the greatest catastrophes in the history of the world. Nearly 300 employees are required to enact the parts of the ancient Romans, their slaves and attendants, while many thousands of dollars worth of fireworks are used in this Paine masterpiece.

In the designing of the "Eruption of Vesuvius," the most skilled pyrotech-nic inventors and the most skilled scenic artists have expended their best efforts. No cost has been spared to portray the scene with a realism
and grandeur never before equalled.
The beautiful Bay of Naples is shown with the awe-inspiring Mt. Vesuvius in the center and the city of Naples on the left. On the mountain side are the towns where the peaceful Italian peasants had their homes.

There will be a wealth of color in the costumes of the Neapolitans who will take part in a real Italian carnival which forms the opening scene of the spectacle. Actors will represent the king and queen of Italy, the crown prince and the crown princess, the director of the famous government operatory and his honorable assistant, Cardinal Frisco of Naples. Generals of the Italian army, officers, soldiers, natives and foreigners will mingle with the throng. While the native band is playing, the people in gala attire are reveling in the streets. The royal family, the church dignitaries and the military officers occupy a conspicuous position in the parade through the streets. The picturesque "battle of flowers" then follows, and in the midst of the merry-making a courier dashes on the scene with a warning message.

As a divertissement the author here
introduces brilliant specialties, including the "feast of flowers," "water pantomime," Italian dances and chorus. Vesuvius begins to give warning of the terrible eruption that buried two cities for hundreds of years. Jets of smoke issue from the crater, tiny flakes of lava and ashes settle upon the nearby villages, the earth opens up with terrible rumblings. The inhabitants of the villages on the mountain side swarm into the city and add to the terror of the frightened populace. The hurried departure of the king and queen for towns on the sea coast is the signal for a general panic.
Priests vainly endeavor to quiet the people and pray for relief. The rum-blings and groanings from subterranean sources increase and furnish further alarm. Courier after courier dashes upon the scene with reeking horses. Vesuvius becomes more and more active and terror strikes every heart.

With a mighty roar rivers of living
fire come plunging down the mountain side. The pressure clears the obstruction in the volcanic crater with a tremendous explosion and a vast cloud of vapor arises. The lava escapes while at the same time immense numbers of red-hot bombs and incandescent rockets are shot into the air. The destruction of the palaces and temples is dramatically portrayed. Walls fall upon priests while endeavoring to calm the terror-stricken multitude kneeling at the altars.

The "Eruption of Vesuvius" is but part of the program. Following is one of the most elaborate displays of fireworks ever seen in Michigan. Bombs, rockets and shooting-stars burst hundreds of feet up in the air, while ingeniously arranged set pieces burst into flame.

EXHIBITS HOUSED IN BUILDINGS.
Enormous sums of money have been spent during the past year by the officers of the Michigan State Agricultural Society in order to make sure that at the 1907 State Fair at Detroit none of the exhibitors would have to be housed in tents. Since the fair of 1905 many of those bringing fruits, vegetables and live stock to Michigan's great industrial exposition have had to be given temporary canvas quarters, but this year it was determined to build additional buildings until ample room would be provided for all.

Every structure on the new grounds is substantial, and it is hoped that within a short time the larger departments will each have a building of its own. The magnitude of the State Fair can be best appreciated when it is known that at the beginning of the fair of 1906 the society owned 140
acres of land on the principal thoroughfare of Detroit, a mile race track 90 feet wide, a steel constructed grand stand seating 6,000 people, a fine horse barn containing accommodations for 300 horses, five cattle barns for 600 cattle, two sheep barns for 600
sheep, two swine barns for 450 swine,
for fine speed horse barns, 120 stalls,
a poultry house 40x150 feet, a main building 100x220 feet, well lighted, a horticultural building, 70x160 feet, administration building 70x160 feet,
the Michigan building, removed from St. Louis, the finest band stand in Michigan, toilet rooms in abundant, a score of drinking hydrants that furnish pure water, a fine rest grove, tents for women and children,
and in fact every modern convenience.

Talk about your breakfast foods,
A thousand you can see;
I would not have them as a gift,
But would have Rocky Mountain Tea.

A Nation of Cripples-- Rheumatism Beyond Control

The Only Hope to Rheumatism
Sufferers is Urice-O Treatment

If rheumatism continues to spread as it has in the past few years, it would soon seem as though we would before long become a nation of cripples. The terrible destructiveness of this disease is apparent on every side of us. Almost nine out of ten of the cripples one meets had their affliction brought on by rheumatism.
How many thousands more there are
that are hopelessly bed ridden and whom we never see. Rheumatism, from the very nature of the disease, can never grow worse rather than better. If you ever have any twinges of rheumatism, go to your druggist and get a bottle of Urice-O, the wonderful new rheumatic specific. It will cure you, and it is the only treatment in the world that will cure
you permanently and thoroughly. Urice-O cures by its direct action on the muscles, blood and kidneys. It seeks out the poisonous uric and rheumatic acid and drives it from the system, and it is only a treatment of such a nature that will ever cure rheumatism. Liniments and plasters only serve to drive it from one spot to another. They never cure rheumatism, because it is primarily a blood disease, and until the blood is cleared
from the poison, a cure cannot take place.
There never was a case of rheumatism that Urice-O could not cure and you should not put off taking it. You can test Urice-O free of charge, if you wish.
Just cut out this advertisement and send it to the Smith Drug Co., Syracuse, N. Y., together with your name and the name of your druggist, and state that you have never used Urice-O and would like to try it. They will give you free through your druggist, a 75-cent bottle, which you can test and try to your own satisfaction.

Richard Croker, the Fighter

Living Like a Prince in His Beautiful Irish Home.

Former Tammany Chief Has Certainly Chosen a Charming Spot in Which to Rest After His Strenuous Career in America.

Dublin.—Richard Croker displayed a distinct appreciation of the beautiful when he pitched his Tudor castle on the slope of the hills that encircle Dublin Bay.

Shown in by a neat-looking maid, your correspondent found himself in the presence of a formidable looking man, standing in the grand hall of the building, directing the operations of two local workmen, who were engaged in what seemed to be the rather difficult task of making the flue of the hall chimney work. It was a study in concentration. You might have imagined that nothing else existed at the moment, but the problem of that refractory flue.

Mr. Croker gave a friendly nod, and then resumed his attitude of absorbed contemplation of the work, until the crisis in the operations had passed, when he turned round to his caller with an inquiring gaze. On hearing that the Sunday World desired to have an intimate description of his home, and permission to photograph the interior, he replied: "There need be no trouble about the photographs," and going into his study brought back a roll of film.

"These," said he, "are all I've got. You are welcome to them."

Mr. Croker had just come in from a walk in the grounds, and wore a loose frieze overcoat, knickerbockers, brown stockings and heavy shooting boots. He looked in perfect health.

Your correspondent remarked that they believed in New York that he was about to return and take a hand in politics again.

"They're wrong," said the former boss of Tammany Hall. "I shall never return to American politics again—ever! I think I've said that before more than once, and I'm not in the habit of going back on what I say. I'm out of American politics for good, but I hope to pay my personal friends there an occasional visit. When I go the papers will say that I am back on some political business, but they'll be wrong again."

Croker Has a Tiger.

There was no mistaking the quiet but perfectly polite determination expressed in his tone, and at the same time, by way of more effectually changing the conversation, or rather the entire center of interest, he led the way into the Japanese room.

Mr. Croker is a man who wants to get things done promptly, and always goes right ahead. I wanted to linger over some of the beautiful things he

There are few buildings in Ireland like Glencairne. Most of the great residential houses in this country were erected in the eighteenth century, when domestic architecture was conceived in somewhat commonplace vein. Glencairne is not unique, but is certainly exceptional in Ireland. It is a noble pile, crowned with an Irish tower in the center and a beautifully chaste Italian portico running from the hall door on the west, round the building to the south, and so to the gardens. The house is built of cut granite, and part of the wall of the original building, once the residence of a well known Irish judge, is incorporated in it.

In the Japanese Room.

But to return to the Japanese room. It is indeed a gem. There are no corners in it as in an ordinary room. The "corners" are all circular, and they are covered with charming and quaint Japanese tapestry. The ceiling is Japanese, with a perfect aviary of Japanese birds painted with excellent taste, full of life and movement. At the other side of the hall is Mr. Croker's own study. Here on the wall is an address from the Democratic club of New York, of which the ex-leader is absolutely proud. Here, too, are some box kys, many of them relating to American affairs, one by his friend, W. J. Bryan.

And here, above all, are large photographs of Mr. Croker's two dead sons. He shows the pictures to you without any apparent emotion, because he is a man who has mastered emotion. Presently, as you go through the house, you will see, off the large and handsome corridor upstairs, a very beautiful little oratory, the stained glass windows of which he has erected to the memory of these two boys.

Hall is Beautiful.

The grand hall, however, to which we retired from the study, is the principal feature of the house. It is a large apartment in dark mahogany, with an elaborately carved and massive old Irish mantle-piece. Around are tables and writing material, chairs, etc., as in a sitting room, and on the walls are portraits in oils of Mr. Croker's favorite horses and photographs of some of their famous relatives. All the chief rooms of the house radiate off this central hall, including the two I have already named, and the dining-room and drawing-room. In fact, standing in the grand hall you feel that you are in touch oak panelled, and decorated with oil paintings in chocolate tints, of many of the chief streets and buildings of New York, including Wall street, Tammany Hall, the post office, the city hall, Central park, Fifty-ninth street, Fifth avenue and the Democratic club.

The bedrooms are in the Adam style. The bathrooms, etc., are sumptuously fitted, and have beautiful tiled walls and floors, and all the bedrooms have their own supply of hot and cold water.

The drawing room and dining room were the two last apartments to which Mr. Croker conducted me. The most striking adornment of the drawing room is a gigantic tiger rug with the head raised, the jaws open and the terrifying teeth fully displayed.

Glad to Show People Around.

"Mind the tiger," said Mr. Croker—a timely injunction, as one might easily trip over its head.

"A wonderful skin!" I answered admiringly.

"Yes," replied Mr. Croker. "I get the finest I admire the tiger." The panelling is in bird's-eye maple, and here again the elaborate decorating of the ceiling is in the refined and delicate Adam style.

The dining-room is the most spacious room at Glencairne. The walls, like those of the hall, are mahogany-paneled, the panelling being filled in with tapestry. The ceiling is also in mahogany, elaborately carved and molded. There is a beautiful sideboard in the same material, designed by the architect to harmonize with its surroundings. The thing in this room, however, which Mr. Croker shows you with most interest is a quaint and oriental-looking bowl, which he tells you with much satisfaction once belonged, like the old bed upstairs, to Daniel O'Connell. It is a punch jug, which would hold about a gallon of that inspiring concoction, which, according to a Cork poet, was accidentally discovered by St. Patrick; and Mr. Croker informs you, as he looks at it affectionately, that it was presented to the great Irishman by some of his admirers while in Richmond prison.

The Suburb Stables.

And as to the stables, which, as I have already hinted, are the great source of interest at Glencairne to Mr. Croker himself.

He tells you as you look around the stables that he has 20 racers, but his chief interest at present is in Orby, a beautiful chestnut three-year-old colt with an eye that indicates character, and a form that connotes stamina and speed. He comes of the very best pedigree stock on this side, bred by Mr. Croker himself, by Orme, out of his famous mare Rhoda B. He has a half-sister here also, Rhodora, not by any means as handsome an animal.

Walking back through the grounds, with beds of wall-flowers, daffodils, narcissi, polyanthus, tulips, pansies and the like on either side, one notes in the distance, a few miles to the south, a gorge in the Wicklow hills known as the scalp, and further off, had brought to his beautiful house, but as we passed through the rooms he was always most unconsciously marching on. Indeed, proud as he is of his fine mansion, and of all the valuable things that are in its many rooms, Mr. Croker is far prouder of his stud. That was what he wanted me to see all the time.

But before we came to the stables I was able to get a good general impression of Glencairne itself. The entrance gate, in solid cut granite, seems rather strange to an Irish eye, and looks like the gable of a house in an old Belgian town like Broeges. The lawns and flower beds are laid out with great taste, and to-day are a perfect riot of green and colors.

It appears, belonged to Daniel O'Connell.

Old and Quaint Engraving.

After this substantial piece of domestic comfort, the thing that seemed to excite Mr. Croker's interest most was an old and quaint engraving of a meeting of the pugilists, Heenan and Sayers, hanging among other things of the kind, in a passage leading to the billiard room.

I mentioned the billiard room. Like the large strong room, with the Croker archives, it is off Mr. Croker's study, and is a noble apartment, containing two tables especially made for Mr. Croker in the United States. This room can be entered not only from Mr. Croker's own room, but also from the hall and again from the grounds; and, finally, there is communication with the kitchen, to facilitate the attendance of servants. The walls are rising majestically behind it, one of the Irish named "Golden Spears," by which has been vulgarized by English into "The Sugarloaf."

"After all, Mr. Croker," I ventured to say, "after a strenuous political and public life, this is a pleasant place than New York in which to spend the evening of one's days."

He replied very quietly and without the least trace of a smile: "It is quieter."

All this time, whether inside the house or outside it, Mr. Croker puffed away at his big pipe, as contented a man as one could desire to see.

"It will be the crown of your racing career," I said, "if you carry off the blue ribbon of the turf?"

"Some people," he answered quietly, "seem to think it's a great thing." And one could not make out whether this imperturbable man was or was not of that opinion himself.—N. Y. World.

Will Give Pet Proper Burial.

Members of the Rescue fire company are soliciting funds which will be devoted to buying a burial ground for "Old Mack," a fire horse which has been in the service of the Rescue for 27 years, relates the York, Pa., correspondent of the Philadelphia Press.

Mack is not yet dead and is still able to perform service. On account of his great age, however, the Rescue boys, all of whom have a kindly feeling for the faithful animal, realize that the horse cannot live many more years. They propose to purchase a lot and erect thereon a fitting monument to York's oldest fire horse.

"Mack" is considered to be one of the most intelligent horses in the city and is present at all banquets of the Rescue company.

At present he is not in active service, but is being kept at the engine house as a pet for the Rescue fire laddies.

Properties of Gasoline.

A gasoline tank rarely explodes. It cannot unless it contains gasoline vapor and air in explosive proportions, which latter condition is almost never present. It does not explode because it contains too little air or too much gasoline. Even if a tank of gasoline were to burst from heat applied to its exterior, the confined heavy gas would not explode if in contact with flame or fire, but would burn instead. A tank of gasoline with no vent would do considerable damage were it to burst and throw burning oil and flaming gas about, but 1,000 gallons of gasoline in a vessel from explosion as a hundredth of that amount. The larger quantity would burn rapidly, while the smaller would be sufficient, if mixed with the proper amount of air, to demolish utterly almost any boat.

Figuratively Speaking.

Statesmen in Washington, over their black coffee and cigars, are telling a little story about Chief Justice Fuller, of the United States supreme court. The chief justice, so the story runs, met an old-time friend, and after a hearty hand-clasp Mr. Fuller remarked:

"You are looking exceedingly well. Aren't you filling out a little?"

"No, indeed," replied the friend. "You probably think so because I'm looking Fuller in the face."—Judge.

What Success Means.

The man who accumulates riches at the expense of others has not made a success in his life. He has failed. He has starved his heart, warped his intellect, mutilated his better impulses until the better self that might have been a power for good lies at his feet, misshapen and lifeless.

The woman who overrides friends, family and conscience to better her social or financial position, is not a success to herself or to any one else.—Exchange.

The work of the legislature, or rather the sessions recently ended, occupied 108 days and a total of 1,500 bills were introduced. The flood of bills to amend charters was a feature of the thing done and the list of them is interesting.

Detroit and Grand Rapids between them had 25 charter amendment bills passed. This is not one-half the number the members for the two cities introduced. The 87 other municipalities that had charters or charter amendment bills passed are:

Jackson, Marquette, Flint, Alma, Mt. Pleasant, Pontiac, Bay City, Croswell, Rochester, Tower, Allegan, Gaylord, Mason, Chelsea, Dowagiac, Kalamazoo, Cheboygan, Ypsilanti, Saline, Albion, Fordland, Perry, Petoskey, Negaunee, Caro, Nashville, Big Rapids, Grand Lodge, Caledonia, Niles, St. Joseph, Paw Paw, Ford City, Holly, Ironwood, Lake Odessa, Coldwater, Battle Creek, North Branch, Menominee, Eau Claire, Wyandotte, Alpena, Port Huron, Hudson, Ionia, Harrietta, Cadillac, Jerome, Stanton, Crystal Falls, Howell, Olivet, Edmore, Saginaw, Muskegon, Belding, Mayville, Sault Ste. Marie, Three Rivers, Benton Harbor, Holland, Beaver-ton, Zeeland, Ann Arbor, Hastings, Cass City, Charlevoix, Scottville, Melvin, Bedford, East Lansing, Brown City, Bar A, Whittemore, Buckley, McBain, Posen, Freepport, Stanwood, Grosse Pointe Park, Mikado, Lincoln, Pellston and Barryton.

Just about 9 per cent. of all of the bills passed were to allow municipalities and townships to issue bonds. Practically all of such bills had a referendum clause. They amount in substance to a permit for the taxpayers of a given locality to say whether or not they want themselves taxed by bonding for a given purpose. Another class of bills consuming the time of the legislature that suggests an argument for home rule. Here are the bonding bills that passed:

Permitting Cooper township, Kalamazoo county, to bond for a bridge; Bay City for a park; Midland for a bridge; St. Clair for a school house; Springwells for paving; Seneca township, Lenawee county, for a school; Crosswells for paving; Houghton to meet outstanding warrants and for a new school; Plainfield, Kent county, for a bridge; Ionia county for county poor farm buildings; Lexington township, Sanilac county, for a bridge; Jackson for sewers; Sturgis for a lighting plant; Grand Rapids, $500,000 for flood protection dykes, and $300,000 for sewers; Onaway for a city hall; Washtaw for water works; Ford City for sewers and paving; Wheatland, Muskegon county, for a park; Gladstone for a school; Benton Harbor to meet outstanding debts; St. Joe for a bridge; South Haven for docks and harbor improvements, and to pay outstanding debts; Stannard township, Iron county, for a town house and to pay old debts; L'Anse for a lighting plant; Grand Haven for sewers; Cheboygan to pay old debts; Reese for a town hall; Bessemer for a school house; Farmington for sewers; Evart for public improvements; Petoskey for a park; Paw Paw to pay old debts; Essex township, Clinton county, to enlarge cemetery; Eaton Rapids to pave street intersections; Big Rapids for a park; Norway township, Dickinson county, to improve a cemetery; Climax, Kalamazoo county, to enlarge a cemetery; Buel township, Sanilac county, for roads; McKinley township, Emmet county, for a school; Hudson for paving; West Branch for water works; Jerome, Hillsdale county, for a school; Weldon, Benzie county, for public improvements; Muskegon for a bridge; Morenci for waterworks; Crystal Lake, Benzie county, for a school; White Cloud for a village hall; Marion township, Osceola county, for a school; No. 10 fractional school district, Grosse Pointe and Gratiot, for a school; Ecorse for a school, for sewers, and to improve the river road; Highland Park for the extension of the waterworks, for a school, and for public improvements; Wyandotte to pave street intersections, for a school and for a filtration plant and lighting plant extension.

In addition to these, Alger county had to have a bill passed to legalize a $100,000 good roads bond issue; Briley, Montmorency county, one to legalize a $2,000 bond issue; Three Rivers to legalize a 30-years' gas franchise; Charlevoix to legalize certain proceedings, and Reed City to legalize some bonds.

Michigan has a pretty comprehensive code of fishing laws, yet some 50 bills were passed this session. With a few exceptions they are intended to relax or tighten the state laws. A fair portion of them apply to lakes wholly in one or two townships, or to sections of a river in one or so townships.

Daniel C. Smith, aged 81, and Miss Henrietta Hill, aged 36, a school teacher, were married in Prescott by Justice Maurer, in K. O. T. M. hall in the presence of 180 guests, mostly the groom's descendants. This is his fourth matrimonial venture.

Because of the serious injuries sustained by Florence Ben Olief, in Ann Arbor, who was run down by Judge Kinne's auto, driven by Mrs. Kinne, the invitations were withdrawn from the wedding of her sister, Miss Daisy, and L. Charles Johnson, a young business man, sold a suit of clothes he had on to Thomas Ewing for $20. The question before Johnson was how to get home. There were no barrels in sight. Suddenly Chet Nye, weighing 300 pounds, hove in sight. He wore a rain coat, Johnson, a 165-pounder, borrowed the mackintosh and rushed home in safety. Later he gave a supper to his friends to celebrate the event.

While Conway James and Carl Daley, of Detroit, were enjoying a launch ride on Mace Day lake, their gasoline tank caught fire, and the craft was soon enveloped in flames. They jumped overboard and swam to shore.

It is said the dog ran all the way there from Grand Rapids, 30 miles distant. A half dozen men pursued and shot the animal.

LEGISLATION REVIEWED

Features of the 1907 Session Briefly Outlined.

Fifteen Hundred Bills Were Passed in One Hundred and Five Days.

Few Important Measures.

The work of the legislature, or rather the sessions recently ended, occupied 108 days and a total of 1,500 bills were introduced. The flood of bills to amend charters was a feature of the thing done and the list of them is interesting.

Detroit and Grand Rapids between them had 25 charter amendment bills passed. This is not one-half the number the members for the two cities introduced. The 87 other municipalities that had charters or charter amendment bills passed are:

Jackson, Marquette, Flint, Alma, Mt. When the crows came home without a driver, Mrs. George Wilcox and her daughter, of Rochester county, investigated and found Mr. Wilson dead in the pasture. He was 70 years old.

Suddenly Chet Nye, weighing 300 pounds, hove in sight. He wore a rain coat, Johnson, a 165-pounder, borrowed the mackintosh and rushed home in safety. Later he gave a supper to his friends to celebrate the event.

While Conway James and Carl Daley, of Detroit, were enjoying a launch ride on Mace Day lake, their gasoline tank caught fire, and the craft was soon enveloped in flames. They jumped overboard and swam to shore.

Clara Gosh, daughter of a prominent Freepport farmer, was badly bitten by a mad dog and will be sent to Ann Arbor for the Pasteur treatment. She was picking flowers when the brute rushed upon her. It is said the dog ran all the way there from Grand Rapids, 30 miles distant. A half dozen men pursued and shot the animal.

Salary raises voted to officials whose duties are wholly within Wayne county are about three times as much as the raises voted in all the rest of the state. And the Detroit aldermen and the Wayne county coroners came in on the last days clamoring also for a salary raise. Some of the Wayne delegation tried hard to get it for them.

The new offices created by the legislature were:

Assistant prosecuting attorneys for Oakland, Lenawee, Houghton and Calhoun counties; boards of county auditors for St. Clair, Bay and Cheboygan counties; superintendent of drains for Muskegon; Lenawee county into a judicial circuit; probate registers for Chippewa, Keweenaw and Shiawassee counties; a state bacteriologist; drain assessors for Van Buren county townships; township drain commissioners for Flushing, Genesee, Clayton and Gaines townships, Genesee county; two aldermen-at-large for Wyandotte.

The only office abolished was receiver of taxes, Detroit.

Nine counties had bills passed so that they may pay their county officers salaries instead of fees. They are: St. Clair, Ingham, Calhoun, Washtenaw, Van Buren, Kalamazoo, Clinton, St. Joe and Bay.

Six townships, Frederic, Crawford county; Forest, Cheboygan county; St. Charles, Saginaw county; Bedford, Calhoun county; Boone, Wexford county; and Newton, Mackinaw county, had bills passed giving them two voting precincts instead of one; Raisinville, Monroe county, asked and had one of her two polling places abolished.

Grosse Pointe, Hamtramck, Springwells, Royal Oak and Bay City, will by bills that passed be permitted to keep the polls open election days to 8 p. m.

The only primary bills that went through were to require the democrats in St. Clair, Bay and Midland counties to nominate at primaries. Also amending Kent county's primary law.

There were many bills applicable to places and things that went to swell the number passed. Examples of these are: Senator Bert Cady, for empowering the authorities of Port Huron township to stop the pasturing of cows, goats and geese on the highways. Senator Archie Peck, for strengthening the Sunday observance law. Senator Tuttle, for improving the tornado insurance corporation law, and for requiring protectors on corn-bushers that nip off fingers; Senator Keyes' bill, making it a misdemeanor to raid another man's huckleberry patch; Senator Crosey, to give more power to embalmers; Senator Wetmore's, to permit the squires of Hancock, Wexford, Springville and Antrim townships, all in a bunch, to invade Sherman town and hold court.

Rep. Henry's, to give the Calhoun county clerk another set of supreme court reports; Rep. Charles Ward to permit the Shiawassee supervisors to vote money to the Dorcas home for destitute children. Rep. Towler, increasing the penalty on sheep-killing dogs. Rep. Willets, to reincorporate a female seminary at Albion; Rep. Nank, to put out of business wood-campers at Mt. Clemens; Rep. Woodruff, for a longer season for spring duck shooting; Rep. Scidmore, to compel roadside hedges to be trimmed artistically; Senator Martindale, reincorporating the Detroit Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, and Rep. Simpson, to prohibit the shooting of squirrels in Paw Paw park.

The bills of state wide importance passed during the session are:

The two-cent rate bill and the bill creating a railroad commission.

Repealing the Bailiffs law which restricted the amount of personal injury damages that could be collected to actual pecuniary loss. Repealing the change of venue law.

Reorganizing the National Guard, raising the per capita tax from five to six cents, and providing that $40,000 be spent annually to build armories.

For country schools of agriculture on the Wisconsin plan. Menominee is the first county to move for such schools.

Making the scalping of theater, concert, circus, lecture, athletic games or other public entertainment tickets a misdemeanor.

Making the free distribution of medicine samples a misdemeanor.

Making it a misdemeanor to take an automobile without the owner's permission.

Increasing the penalty and broadening the law for wife desertion, and providing that the prison earnings of wife deserters shall go to the family.

Authorizing boards of supervisors to buy voting machines out of a general fund.

Amending the game and fish laws so that the state warden shall also be the fire warden. Game and fish supervision made more of a state and less of a county function.

A gun tax of $10 to be collected from non-residents. The trout fishing season to open 15 days earlier. Prohibiting the killing of deer for five years in Arenac, Emmet, Bay, Cheboygan, Benzie and Leelanau counties.

For a binder twice paid in Jackson prison; appropriation for it, $175,000.

Requiring that gasoline must be sold only in red cans or cans with red labels.

Juvenile court law, which made the probate court the court for the trial of juvenile disorders.

University of Michigan to get a 3 mill tax instead of a 4 mill.

Good roads legislation. Cash road tax substituted for the "working out" plan. Wide tire wagon law repealed. Highway department in the state given $270,000 for two years, of which $250,000 is for rewards. Smaller road districts than county districts authorized. Road districts may raise money by bonding. Township may build bridges and culverts costing not over $500 without inviting bids. Defects in county good roads law corrected.

Boarding house and restaurant keepers given the same protection against deadbeats as hotel-keepers have.

The laws relating to the examination, licensing and registration of doctors and dentists amended so as to raise the standard of practitioners. Doctors forbidden to employ anyone to get patients for them.

Labor legislation: Better sanitary conditions required in foundries. Ten hours a day made the limit for women in factories. Better protection for the health and morals of girls under 21 and boys under 18 in factories. No persons under 21 to be employed where liquor is sold. Compulsory fire escape law extended. Two more free employment bureaus authorized. Labor bureau given greater power in the collection of statistics.

Ten insurance bills embodying recommendations of the national convention of insurance commissioners and attorney generals at Chicago in February, 1906. They forbid political contributions by insurance companies, make insurance agents the agents of the company, not of the insurers; require that all agreements must be written in the policy; requires uniform policies and permits the organization of surety bond companies.

Forbids the carrying on of a business under a name that does not show the names of the actual owners of the business.

Creating a veterinary department at the State Agricultural College.

Allowing mining companies to buy and hold land without limit to the amount.

Giving electric railways, electric light companies, gas companies and water power companies wider latitude to consolidate.

Authorizing boards of supervisors to send to gold cures at public expense indigent drink victims who want to brace up. Also permitting magistrates to impose a temperance pledge on drink victims instead of fine or imprisonment.

Withdrawing Michigan agricultural lands in Isoco and Alcona from the market and holding them for forest reserves.

Commission of nine authorized to investigate and report to the next legislature a general plan for reforestation.

Forestry commission authorized to trade lands so as to get tracts all in one piece.

Senatorial redistricting bill passed which reconstructs some of the 22 districts and gives Wayne county five instead of four districts.

Constitutional amendment resolution to give the state tax commission power to tax joint stock corporations.

Constitutional convention authorized with 96 members. Primaries Aug. 3; election of members, Sept. 17; convention assemblies.

School laws—Dead and dumb children between 7 and 18 must be sent either to the state school for instruction or to some private school. Teachers' salaries placed under school boards. School transfers may give surety bonds. Children between 12 and 14 permitted to leave school for religious instruction for confirmation.

The common councils in the following cities and villages authorized to restrict the number of saloons, impose a license tax in addition to the state tax, and to accept surety bonds from barroom keepers: Portland, Morley, Perry, Caro, Nashville, St. Johns, Cass City, Lake Odessa, Marquette, Caledonia, North Harbor, St. Joseph, Edmore, North Branch, Standish, Stanton, Ford City, Chelsea, Rochester, Tower, Allegan, Gaylord, Dowagiac, Ionia, Harrietta, Cadillac, Luther, Stanton and Olivet.

LINK WITH THE DEAD PAST.

Woman Has Handkerchief Stained with Blood of Charles I.

An interesting Derbyshire "link with the past" is recalled by Mr. J. H. Sharpley of Hatfield college, Doncaster, in a letter to the Sheffield Telegraph. He says: "In 1872, when a boy, staying at Hulland ward, Derbyshire, I called on an old woman, Elizabeth Durose, then 97, widow of a farmer, who told me that her grandmother, when a girl, had known a man—a distant relative—who had witnessed the execution of Charles I. The old woman then took out of a corner cupboard an old prayer-book, bound in black leather, which was, I fancy, of the time of Queen Anne, for I remember it had a frontispiece picturing a person in gown and bands, and wearing a long wig, saying prayers in a 'three-decker.' Opening it at the form of service for January 30, she showed me a piece of coarse linen, of the color of a dead leaf, which she said was a portion of a handkerchief which had been dipped in the king's blood, and was given to her grandmother by the above eye-witness. When it first passed into her possession it was nearly entire, but her children had played with it, and this was all she had managed to preserve."—Derby (England) Telegraph.

But We Haven't Wood to Burn.

Contrary to a widespread belief that hard woods give more heat in burning than soft varieties, the scientists at Washington are contending that the greatest heating power is possessed by the wood of the linden tree, which is very soft. Fir stands next to linden, and almost equal to it. Then comes pine, hardly inferior to fir and linden, while hard oak possesses eight per cent less heating capacity than linden, and red beech ten per cent less.

Tom Reed's Birthplace.

The birthplace of the late Speaker Reed, which is about to be torn down, is in the heart of Portland's Italian quarter and is now a tenement, swarming with sons and daughters of sunny Italy. How much they are impressed with the greatness of their surroundings was shown when a visitor, desiring to get a look at the celebrated statesman's birthplace, asked a boy if he would show him the "Tom Reed house." "Tomma Reed! Tomma Reed! You mean Tomma Reed, da milkman?"

Precautions Against Electric Fires.

If your dwelling is electrically lighted never place wood, clothes or other inflammable material against the wires, meters or switches; never use an electric wire as a clothesline, and see to it that your dwelling is kept free from rats, as these pests often gnaw the insulation from the wires. The amount of loss from "electric fires" in the United States in one year, according to the Saturday Evening Post, is $15,000,000.

A Wonderful Happening.

Port Byron, N. Y., has witnessed one of the most remarkable cases of healing ever recorded. Amos F. King, of that place says: "Bucklen's Arnica Salve cured a sore on my leg with which I had suffered over 80 years. I am now eighty-five." Guaranteed to cure all sores, by Freeman & Cummings Co., druggists 25 cents.

PLACATED MR. DAN SAMSON.

Colored Minister's "Retraction" a Triumph of Ingenuity.

In Mississippi there was a colored preacher noted in those parts for the extreme frankness and candor of his exhortations to his wicked brethren to reform. On one occasion, relates Representative John Sharp Williams, the divine was holding forth on the sin of theft. Among other things he said: "I see befo' me ten chicken thieves, includin' Dan Samson." This bald statement of fact rather aroused the resentment of the aforesaid Samson, and he threatened the minister with personal violence. The latter's friends persuaded the divine to withdraw the accusation if Samson would promise not to offer the minister any hurt. The question seemed about to be adjusted, it being settled that the clergyman should, on the following Sunday, publicly retract his statement as to the honesty of Mr. Samson. Therefore, rising in the pulpit on the day appointed, the minister said: "It 'pears dat a remark of mine, in de sermon of last Sunday, has been de cause of offense, an' I derefore amends it. What I should have said was dis: 'I see befo' me ten chicken thieves, not includin' Dan Samson.'"—Harper's Weekly.

JOKE THAT TWO COULD PLAY.

Farmer Evened 'Up Accounts with Young Would-Be Wit.

Young Stevenson was on his way north to spend the week end with his parents, and felt in a particularly jovial mood. The train in which he was traveling had stopped at a small village. As a farmer who was sauntering up and down the platform came opposite Stevens's compartment he was asked by the youth if he knew that the Duke of Devonshire was on the train. Immediately the man showed great interest, and said: "No! Is he?" "I think he is not," answered Stevens. "I only asked you if you knew that he was." The farmer said nothing, but continued his walk on the platform. As he came opposite the window again he remarked that this town has been experiencing some excitement. "What is the matter?" asked Stevens. "The authorities wouldn't let some folks bury a woman," replied the farmer. "What was the reason for refusing?" "She wasn't dead," was the laconic reply. And then he strolled away, leaving young Stevens biting his lip.—Judge's Library.

LAST DAYS OF GREAT POETS.

Bliss Perry Writes of the Passing of Thomas Bailey Aldrich.

On the day when he last entered the Atlantic office, in January, Mr. Aldrich seemed, for the first time, to have grown old. One of his friends spoke of it as he went out. Up till that morning, the weight of 70 years had scarcely seemed to touch the erect, jaunty figure. The lines that time had written around his clear blue eyes and firm mouth conveyed no hint of senility. His hair was scarcely gray. His voice, slightly husky in its graver, sweeter tones, retained a delicious youthful crispness as it curled and broke, wave-like, into flashing rallery. He had just completed his poem for the Longfellow centenary, his first verse after some years of silence, and when it was praised to his face—for who could help praising it?—he blushed with pleasure like a boy. Yet he had passed three-score and ten, and the shadow, invisible as yet and quite unheralded, was drawing very near.—Bliss Perry, in Atlantic.

Women Who Should Shave.

"One thing I am proud of about New York women," said the man who just got home, "is that they are clean shaven. I never saw anything like the side-whiskers and beards on the women in France, Italy and Switzerland. In Paris once I walked into a shoe store and stood there petrified, forgetting what I went in for, the big brunette cashier at the desk had such a furious mustache."

Advice as to Alaska.

There will be an element of surprise in the advice of Dr. Henry Gannett, of the United States geological survey: "If you are old, go to Alaska by all means; but if you are young, wait." Mr. Gannett gives this reason for his advice: "The scenery of Alaska is much grander than anything else of the kind in the world, and it is not well to dull one's capacity for enjoyment by seeing the finest sights first."

Primitive.

The kindling of fire by the friction of dry sticks is a common practice among the savages to-day. The Fiji Islanders do this; so also do the South Sea Islanders, the North American Indians and the Peruvians.

The Charming Woman

Is not necessarily one of perfect form and features. Many a plain woman who could never serve as an artist's model, possesses those rare qualities that all the world admires: neatness, clear eyes, clean smooth skin and that brightness of step and action that accompany good health. A physically weak woman is never attractive, not even to herself. Electric Bitters restores weak women, gives strong nerves, bright eyes, smooth velvety skin, beautiful complexion. Guaranteed at Freeman & Cummings Co., druggists 50c.

YEARNING FOR OLD FRIENDS.

Gray-Headed Man Wants to Read Boyhood Favorites.

"If I were in the publishing business," said the gray-headed man, "I'd get out a school reader and put into it some of the old poems and stories that were favorites forty years ago. It would do the youngsters good to get acquainted with that ancient and honorable literature, while as for their parents, who sometimes look through a school book seeking in vain for a familiar echo of their own childhood days, why, they would get a whiff of the inspiration of youth that would lap at least 15 years off their age. I'd put in that poem about 'Make Me a Child Again Just for To-night,' and that other one where the little girl wants to know if 'God isn't on the ocean just the same as on the land?' Then there are 'The Gambler's Wife,' 'Lewellyn and His Dog,' 'We Are Seven,' and 'Lazy Ned.' I'd print all these old gems and sandwich them in between the speeches of Patrick Henry and Daniel Webster, and that old classic about the contented boy who had no kick against life, as he found it, even though he hadn't even a turnip to eat. Maybe my book, when I had finished compiling it, wouldn't find favor with a modern school board, but I'll warrant you it would strike a sympathetic chord in the breast of many a reader, old and young."

His High Estimation of Steam.

Carlyle once startled the English-speaking people into recognition of the value of their great dramatist by suddenly asking the British public which it would rather lose, Shakespeare or India? I thought of that the other day, musing the editor of the Ruder, when I was reading an article on the world rather lose than steam? What? Why, almost everything; our literature, our art, our religions. Nothing we have is so valuable as steam. It is the greatest civilizer the world has ever possessed.

Truly Hygienic.

In consequence of medical strictures a new form of stocking suspender for children is about to be placed on the market. After being fastened to the stockings it passes twice around the waist, once over the shoulders, once around each arm, twice around the neck, and once over the head, and the strain is thus fairly distributed.

Columbus just landed; meeting a big Indian chief with a package under his arm, he asked what it was. "Great medicine, Hollister's Rocky Mountain Tea," said the Indian. 35 cents, Tea or Tablets. Freeman & Cummings Co.

Hard to Answer.

One day Robert Herrick, the novelist, was impressing upon his class in English literature, in the University of Chicago, the importance of reading what had been written with a purpose and had character and power. He contrasted forcefully such literature with the light, rapid, frivolous sort that seemed to appeal to such a large percentage of readers. He then asked each student to tell him frankly which kind he was reading. After nearly all had confessed to something light, he came to a tall westerner, who showed a tendency to evade the question. "It can't be possible, I hope," said Herrick, "that you are not reading anything?" "No, it is not that," replied the westerner. "The fact is, I am reading your latest novel, and I can't decide to which class it belongs."—Lippincott's Magazine.

Aldrich and Whitman. T. B. Aldrich knew Walt Whitman and liked him personally, although he would never admit that Whitman was a poet except in here and there a single phrase. Many a time has the present writer endeavored to convert Mr. Aldrich from this state of heathen blindness as to Whitman's genius, but the debates used to end illogically with Mr. Aldrich's delightful story of a certain $9 which Whitman once borrowed from him—magnificently, but, alas, irrevocably—in Pfaff's restaurant in Broadway.—Atlantic Monthly.

Cure Your Dandruff

Why? Because it is annoying, untidy. And mostly, because it almost invariably leads to baldness. Cure it, and save your hair. Get more, too, at the same time. All easily done with Ayer's Hair Vigor, new improved formula. Stop this formation of dandruff!

Does not change the color of the hair.

Formula with each bottle. Show it to your doctor. Ask him about it, then do as he says.

Ayer's

The new Ayer's Hair Vigor will certainly do this work, because, first of all, it destroys the germs which are the original cause of dandruff. Having given this aid, nature completes the cure. The scalp is restored to a perfectly healthy condition.

FROM FASHIONDOM

Very Latest Styles and Creations in Accessories, Etc.

The latest turndown collars are worn as high and as closely as possible and the thin material of which the turnover or turn-down part is made prevents them from appearing clumsy.

Delicate yellow occupies no mean place among spring colors. It was recently in a striking gown, in which black makes a startling contrast. It was a chiffon princess with a deep hem of black satin.

A favorite design on dresses of the season takes the form of trailing vines of grapevines, the leaves in narrow linen soutache set on the arms and the grapes built of big knots done in heavy thread.

The newest ties for linen collars are made of finely striped china blue, green, mauve, gray, brown and blue are to be seen in this connection. Plaited into butterfly bows, or made into bowties, No end chic this neck dressing with the fashionable turnovers.

The old-time foulard, which is in vogue, takes very kindly to the Japanese styles of the season. One of the trickiest afternoon frocks are of this dotted or colored silk, made with low necks and big sleeveless armholes or with long sleeves to be worn over lace gloves.

The newest fad in jewelry is the wearing of a black satin ribbon upon which are slipped a number of diamond slides in miniature, but set with real stones and all the workmanship. The ribbon is arranged double, so that there are narrow ribbons running through the slide.

CASE FOR CALLING CARDS.

May be easily made at home after one has obtained a sample of the calling card costume which is to be made up, or is already purchased ready made.

Velvet or brocade silk are suitable materials for the outside of the case, and plain lighter shade for the lining. Suppose dark-blue velvet selected, with light-pink silk for the lining. Cut one piece of each 10 inches by 7, and two pieces of cardboard 4 1/2 inches by 2.

Across one side of the velvet, with yellow crayon, write the word "cards" and outline the letters with white thread. Then, using a stiff glue, fasten the cardboard to the velvet by carefully creasing the edges over and gluing in place; crease the edges of the velvet, so they stay in place; wet the edges of the cardboard where the velvet is turned over, and lay the velvet on, pressing softly into smooth place. Keep under gentle pressure until dry, which will be the following day. Success of this work depends on the exactness and neatness with which it is done.

ODD JEWELRY AGAIN REVIVED

Fad for It Seemed to Have Waned Lately, But Just Now Is Regaining Its Popularity.

Old cameos can be utilized easily now. One of the most effective methods of setting them is in the shape of a dog collar.

One young woman who discovered in the family jewel box a lot of old cameos, belonging to her mother had them arranged in this fashion. The largest cameo, the brooch of the set, was set in front, with the earrings on either side and the smaller stones reaching around to the clasp at the back; the cameos fastened together with three rows of tiny flat-linked chains.

While mythological characters are used largely in the designs in cameos there is an old custom which is being revived today of having the features of some dear friend or member of the family carved thereon. One woman whose first child died shortly after birth had its likeness carved in a large breastpin, which she still wears in lieu of any other jewelry.

Broad gold bracelets are popular with young folks and meet a want long felt by those wearing short or elbow sleeves. One favorite style frequently seen is the book chain bracelet and consists of many overlapping pieces of thin gold. These are usually about an inch in width, while the neck chains to match are not more than a third as broad.

Carbuncles framed in settings of old yellow gold are effective, and amethysts, cut oblong and set in flat settings of chased gold, are equally beautiful.

One of the developments of the old jewelry fad is the fancy of collecting watch bridges, which are small circular pieces of gold or silver cut out in openwork fashion and covered with fine chasing. They are used alone to form bracelets, necklaces or belt buckles, or are used to join semi-precious stones in the form of a necklace. One dog collar recently seen showed alternate watch bridges and cornellians. No two of these bridges are alike, for the reason that they were all made by hand.

DON'T LET CHILDREN.

Read at dusk or by firelight. Read ill-printed books, nor one in small type.

Have a light too near the eyes, the heat and glare being injurious.

Stoop over a book. Bad positions in sitting are a fruitful cause of curvature of the spine.

Suffer with imperfect sight. At the first sign of trouble have the eyes seen to.

Be treated by incompetent oculists. Take the child to the best you can afford.

To Roast a Bird.

Roast a bird with the breast down the greater part of the time; the flesh will then remain more juicy.

ESSENTIALS OF TRUE POPULARITY.

First, remember that a good voice is essential to self-possession, as good ideas are essential to fluent language. The voice should be carefully trained and developed. A full, clear, flexible voice is one of the surest indications of good breeding.

Second, remember that one may be witty without being agreeable, voluble without being agreeable, a great talker, and yet a great bore.

Third, be sincere. One who habitually sneers at everything not only renders herself disagreeable to others, but will soon cease to find pleasure in life.

Fourth, be frank. A frank, open countenance, and a clear, cheery laugh are worth far more even socially than pedantry in a stiff cravat.

Fifth, be amiable. You may hide a vindictive nature under a polite exterior for a time, as a cat masks its sharp claws in velvet fur, but the least provocation brings out one as quickly as the other, and ill-natured people are always disliked.

Sixth, be sensible. Society never lacks for fools, and what you may consider very entertaining nonsense may soon be looked upon as very tiresome folly.

Seventh, be cheerful. You have no right to render other people miserable by your long face and dolorous tones. If you do you will be generally avoided.

Eighth, above all, be careful and systematic. True cordiality and sympathy unite all the other qualities enumerated, and are certain to secure the popularity so dear to every one.

THE GIRL NO MAN WANTS.

The kind of girl who expects her path to be strewn with bouquets, chocolates, theater tickets and treats generally will find her popularity short lived, no matter how charming she may be.

The average young man's pocket cannot stand the strain long, and he will turn to some other girl, less attractive perhaps, but who will be content with the attentions he can afford to bestow on her.

It is a girl's place, says Health, to see that the expenses a young man incurs for her pleasure shall not exceed what he can easily afford.

To Kill Roaches.

Put a mixture of four and plaster of paris in places infested by cockroaches. The creatures will eat it greedily. The plaster of paris "sets" after they have eaten it and kills them.

THE SEWING CIRCLE

A strip of crepe paper of the color suited to the room, with its edges ruffled between the fingers, looks very pretty under a lace or muslin bureau scarf and when soiled can easily be replaced.

To remove rust from steel beads let them stand a little while in a bowl filled with coal oil, then rub them in a soft cloth, wash thoroughly in warm soapy water several times and dry by rubbing with a cloth.

Stuff the cushion used for hatpins with rice. Pack it in very tightly and cover the cushion with plush. This will stand firmly, even when full of heavy pins, and the plush will show pin holes less than other materials.

A handsome embroidered waist apparently ruined by contact with the contents of an ink well was put in a kerosene bath and all the ink spots rubbed well with common yellow soap. At the end of half an hour it was washed with soap and water, and the result was an immaculate white waist without a trace of the ink.

A pretty hair receiver or a receptacle for pins may be made from a crookneck gourd. Cut a hole in the gourd and line it with bright-colored silk. Run a ribbon from one side of the top to the end of the "neck" to hang it by, fastening the ends under pretty bows. Varnish the gourd and often appeared.

preserve its natural appearance or paint it if preferred.

A very useful and pretty waist protector is made from a yard of silkoline or flowered dimity. Hem or feather-stitch the edges, then cut a small hole in the center of the cloth and bind the edge with ribbon. Put the waist on a hanger and let the hook come up through the opening. Put a ribbon rosette on each corner of the cover and let two or three sachet bags filled with a favorite but not strong perfume hang from the ends of narrow ribbon fastened to the opening in the center.

The antique "thunder and lightning" patterns derived from old Italian and Hungarian work are being improved by the modern needlewomen, who find it difficult, though, to produce harmonious shades of color in keeping with the quaintness of the designs. Great help in that direction is given in seeing the best canvas embroidery, which contains conceals of the wavy and yet spiky clusters of formal stitches adapted to slippers, mats, photograph frames, covers for sofa cushions, pincushions and showing, above all, the great innovation of managing the long upright silken tassels to delineate the corners. Several patterns of this characteristic type, whether under the name of Bargello or Florentine, and copied from the antique, have often appeared.

JUST HATS

Five Unique and Odd Models for Your Midsummer Headgear.

"THESE hats are certainly beautiful," said the lady, with a critical glance, "and you seem to have so many more models and shapes than there were in vogue last season, but, oh my! what 'outlandish' prices you have on even the most plain models."

So said a lady, a few days since in a noted millinery establishment of a large eastern city, that makes a specialty of keeping "to the dot" on the very latest Parisian fashions in hats, and, in fact, is a branch house of a large millinery concern in Paris. The same could be said in every millinery house of any large reputation, and the prime reason is because of the wealth of new models that the "hat thinkers" have been designing of late, and the uniqueness of shapes, but of course the very greatest reason is because there is much finer material used than heretofore, and the great popularity of large plumes, which are very expensive.

On this page you will find some exact reproductions of some of the very latest midsummer models, just from Paris, and if you will study them carefully with the description that is underneath each model you will be enabled to get a real Parisian hat, by purchasing all the materials from your nearest drygoods man, and if you are at all adept in the use of your needle and, etc., your hat will indeed win the admiration of all your friends, but their greatest source of wonderment would be if you should mention the price, for it would seem so trifling in comparison to the regular.

THE LIVING ROOM.

If the family sitting room must be furnished with the discarded drawing room furniture, much will be added to the attractiveness of the room if cretonne in pretty flower effects is bought, and a slip cover made for each article of furniture.

An old haircloth set of chairs and sofas was by this means converted into a very charming living room set; the slips completely disguising the native ugliness of the chairs.

Cretonne of the same pattern was used for window valances and hangings.

In the room mentioned the wall paper and floor coverings were plain in tone. When these are figured it is scarcely possible to introduce figured furniture, coverings and hangings. The effect is too confusing. It will be found possible, however, to dye old carpets and rugs the color of the tone prevailing in the chairs.

Saving Paraffin.

Housekeepers should keep a box where the paraffin which is removed from the top of home-made jellies may be placed. This paraffin serves usually to throw away, but it saved, washed and melted it can be used on the jelly glasses in fall.

That was the limit of Pinkie's cash.
When all preparations were made,
Business was started out with the cry,
"O, lemonade! Fresh lemonade!"

Quickly the customers flocked around;
But, — few had the pennies to buy.
Those who had, in their pockets them held;
For, first they must sample and try.

Sampling and trying they all kept up
To such an alarming extent,
Almost exhausted was Pinkie's stock;
And not yet had come in one cent.

Strolling along towards the close of day,
With 'leven cents came Newsie Jim.
Paid for a glass! And ten glasses more!
And "sold out" was Miss Pinkie Prim.

Wolf in Italian Town.

It is not often that European eyes witness the spectacle of a wolf trotting leisurely through the streets in broad daylight, and with little apparent concern. Such an incident happened recently in the Italian town of Anzeano. The wolf went sniffling first in the direction of one house and then of another as he went along. Passing by the hospital, an attendant of sporting instincts saw the game, and, rushing for a gun, gave chase. Before long he got a chance for a shot, which he took, and, following this up with another, the beast was slain. Its presence in the town is accounted for by the theory that the beast had been hunting over night away from his haunts, and after eating to satiety and sleeping through the night, was making his way back to his lair.

Walking That Pays.

The man who walks a couple of miles every morning on his way to business has a big pull over the man who has been driven to within a short distance of his office door.—Field.

Properly Sized Up.

"William," said an Oil City woman to her husband, "I gave away an old pair of your trousers to-day." "You did? What color were they?" "Blue, I think." "Great Scott! Woman, do you know what you've done?" "Why—no—William, I don't. Was there any money in them?" "Was there any money in them? There happened to be $50 in them which I intended handing you for a present." "William," said the woman, quietly, "I believe you are lying." Which he was, of course. —Oil City Blitzard.

A BANK ACCOUNT

will do more to help a man's credit than any other one thing, and a checking account is indispensable to the business man. It enables him to keep his funds far more securely than in his office safe, and it places at his disposal all the facilities of the bank for handling his financial affairs without risk and annoyance of making payments in currency.
