THE PROPOSITION CARRIED

FOR NEW SCHOOL HOUSE SITE.

The Largest Vote That Was Ever Cast in the School District—534 Voted for the Site and 214 Against It.

The special election held last Saturday resulted in an overwhelming victory for the progressive residents of this school district.

The polls opened at 8 o'clock in the morning and closed at 8 o'clock in the evening. The vote was the largest ever cast at any school meeting held in the district. Many of the ladies voted and were very enthusiastic.

The "knockers", calamity-howlers and obstructionists, as usual, put in their appearance at the voting place and were present all day, but their cheap talk, bluffs and howls did not have any particular influence with the choice of the progressive and intelligent voters of the school district.

The site chosen by the electors is on the corner of Wilkinson and Chandler streets, and the new school house will be on a high and slightly piece of ground. The new building will be surrounded by three streets—one on the east, one on the west, one on the north, and on the south is the electric line. The new high school building will in less than five years be in the center of the population of Chelsea, as this part of the town is fast being built up and the property is being constantly improved.

The result of the election was as follows:
Whole number of votes cast..... 750
Defective ballots..... 2
For the new site..... 534
Against the new site..... 214

Majority in favor of the new site over the necessary two-thirds vote required by law..... 106

The election board rejected three ballots; thirty-six were challenged, every one of whom took the necessary oath, their votes were marked and deposited in the ballot box.

After the recent legal hold-up, this result must be all the more gratifying to the board of education, as it is the consensus of opinion of the total voters of the district and not the result of a factional majority, seven hundred and fifty voters taking part and the proposition carrying by a five-seventh vote.

A Well Qualified Man.

John F. Lawrence, of Ann Arbor, is one of the gentlemen, who is a candidate for the nomination by the republicans, as a delegate to the constitutional convention, and the voters of Washtenaw and Jackson counties will have an opportunity to confer a benefit upon the state by casting their ballots for Mr. Lawrence at the primary election on Tuesday, August 13.

Broad gauged, all-round men are needed to fill the position and no mistake will be made in the selection of Mr. Lawrence, who is a gentleman well qualified to fill the important position. Mr. Lawrence has practiced law in this county for many years and with his experience as a lawyer he would be a valued member of the convention which will meet in October to revise the state constitution.

The electors of this district will do well to cast their ballots for Mr. Lawrence for his experience is a desirable asset to the state.

Mrs. Emory Chipman.

Francis Elmina Chipman, eldest daughter of the late Elbridge Cooper, was born in Lima township, April 23rd, 1850, and passed over to the other world July 31st, 1907.

Her death was not unexpected, as she had been sick a long time and struggled heroically against the relentless disease. Yet patiently she suffered until God called, "Come home."

She was married to Emory Chipman, October 8th, 1874. This home was a stronghold of piety and large and cheerful hospitality. She was always looking to the comforts of others, regardless of self. This, with her sympathy with the sufferings of others, was a notable feature of her Christian character.

Having no children of her own, she became as a mother to her little niece, who in her death loses a second mother. She with the brother and sister and the bereaved husband have the sympathy of the entire community.

Another Severe Pest.

A new worm has done great havoc in the gardens within the past week. They are said to be the dreaded gypsy moth worm that has cost Massachusetts so many thousand dollars to fight. They are similar to a cut worm, only brown instead of gray. In one tomato patch several bushels of half-grown tomatoes have been ruined, as the worms bored into the fruit and riddled it. They bore into the stems of dahlias, one man having found 113 worms in the earth around the roots of one plant. They also strip the beet leaves, and the flower beds have also been stripped by them. They can be found on the sidewalks, so that evidently the trees are infested. Every one should hunt for and kill all these worms that can be found, for they will soon strip the gardens. Hellebore ought to kill them where it can be used without danger of the poison getting into food.—Ypsilantian.

MACCABEES EXCURSION

To Detroit Next Wednesday, August 14, via the D. J. & C. Electric Line—Big Baseball Game That Day.

The Chelsea Maccabees have completed arrangements with the managers of the D. J. & C. electric line for an excursion to Detroit next Wednesday.

Four cars have been engaged. They will leave the Chelsea electric waiting-room between 7:30 and 8 o'clock Wednesday morning, and will be run through to Belle Isle park bridge, thus giving all, who care to do so, an opportunity to visit the beautiful park owned by the city.

The committee in charge of the arrangements have been informed that if a carload desire to return home early in the evening, the company will start a car from the city at 5 o'clock in the afternoon.

If four carloads—200 passengers—can be secured, the fare for the round trip will be 50 cents; but if a less number of tickets are sold, the rate for the round-trip will in no case exceed 90 cents.

Those who go to Detroit next Wednesday will have an opportunity to witness a game of baseball between the Philadelphia and Detroit teams.

Geo. E. Jackson, T. G. Speer and Frank Leach have charge of the arrangements, and will be pleased to give you any information desired regarding the day's outing given under the auspices of the Chelsea Maccabees.

Constitutional Delegates.

Whom shall we nominate for constitutional delegates August 13th? We should nominate men of mature judgment with experience in state affairs who will bring to the work of revision their most careful thought, broad-minded men who are competent to revise the constitution of a great commonwealth.

John K. Campbell, of Augusta township, who is a candidate for the nomination of delegate to the constitutional convention, is well known in Washtenaw county and the state at large. He is by occupation a farmer; in politics a Republican; received his primary education in the district school, then entered the State Normal College from which he graduated, completing a four years' course. He then entered the University of Michigan, where he was a student for a short time.

Mr. Campbell has experience in state affairs. He served his district in the state legislature acceptably to his constituency. The Ypsilanti Sentinel—democratic—said of him: "Mr. Campbell made a good representative. His record is free from partisanship and a political opponent was sure of fair treatment at his hands. In local matters he sought the interests of the people and, so far as he was able to ascertain them, acted for the majority of his constituents regardless of their party affiliations." The Ypsilanti—republican—said of him: "He is a truly representative man and no flaw can be found in his record." In a recent issue, speaking of his fitness for a constitutional delegate, the Ypsilantian said, "exceptionally well fitted by study and experience and natural gifts for this important work," and quoting the report of the Grange committee endorsing him: "They recommend Mr. Campbell to the electors of the tenth senatorial district as a man of indisputable ability and integrity, whose legislative record proves him in sympathy with the people."

Mr. Campbell has been honored outside of his state. He gave an address before the Farmers' National Congress at Macon, Georgia, on "Reciprocity, How It May Affect Agricultural Interests." The Farmers' National Congress report said: "Mr. Campbell's speech elicited close attention and at intervals was greeted with applause."

The "Country Gentleman," Albany, New York, spoke of him as "a close student, a clear thinker, and a convincing speaker."

At the present time Mr. Campbell is a member of the executive committee of the State Grange and also vice-president for Michigan of the Farmers' National Congress.

The law governing the primary election, August 13th, says: "Every qualified elector shall have the right to receive from the inspectors, and vote, the party he prefers, without regard to any party enrollment," thus permitting each voter his choice of candidates without reference to his party affiliation.

Evidently, then, it is the privilege of all voters to make a special effort to go to the polls and vote for the nomination of John K. Campbell at the primary election, August 13th, 1907.

WAS A FATAL ACCIDENT

LAST FRIDAY EVENING

Mrs. Levi Palmer of Jackson Was Killed in the Collision—A Former Resident of Waterloo.

An automobile accident, frightful in its consequences, occurred Friday evening shortly before 8 o'clock, three miles east of the city of Jackson, when the touring car owned and driven by R. A. Oliver was struck by a D. Y. A. A. & J. electric car at the Sutton road crossing, near Michigan Centre. As the result of the shocking tragedy three persons are dead and two are severely injured, but with prospects for recovery.

The dead: Mrs. Emily Palmer, aged 60 years. Mrs. Levi Palmer, aged 45 years. Bernice Oliver, aged 5 years. The injured: R. A. Oliver, seriously. Mrs. R. A. Oliver, seriously.

The vehicle in which the appalling fatality happened is a mass of unshapable junk, showing the awful impact of the collision. How the accident occurred may be learned to some extent at the inquest, but at present there are not more than two persons who can explain anything, they being the motor-man, William Martin, who insists he gave his warning whistle, and this is corroborated by his conductor, Bert Lake, who was in charge of the car from Detroit to Jackson.

Mrs. Palmer was the daughter of the late John J. Baldwin, a pioneer resident of Waterloo. A half-brother of the deceased, John J. Baldwin, resides on the Matt Jensen farm in Sylvan, she was also a sister-in-law of Dr. G. W. Palmer of Chelsea.

Two of the daughters of Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Rafferty, Ruth and Phyllis, were passengers on the car that struck the auto and while they were not injured the young ladies were considerably frightened.

The funeral of Mrs. Palmer was held Tuesday and her remains were taken to Waterloo for burial.

SERIAL STORY

THE HOUSE OF A THOUSAND CANDLES

CHAPTER XX.—Continued.

The piano pounding continued and I waited for what seemed an interminable time. It was growing dark and a maid brought lamps. I took a book from the table. It was "The Life of Benvenuto Cellini" and Marian Devereux was written on the fly leaf, by unmistakably the same hand that had penned the apology for Olivia's performances. I saw in the clear, flowing lines of the signature, in their lack of superfluity, her own ease, grace and charm; and, in the deeper stroke with which the "x" was crossed, I felt a challenge, a readiness to abide by consequences once her word was given. Then my own inclination to think well of her angered me, and I dropped the book impatiently as she crossed the threshold.

"I am sorry to have kept you waiting, Mr. Glenarm. But this is my busy hour."

"I shall not detain you long, I come," I hesitated, not knowing why I had come.

She took a chair near the open door and bent forward with an air of attention that was disquieting. She wore black—perhaps to fit her the better into the house of a somber Sisterhood. I seemed suddenly to remember her from a time long gone, and the effort of memory threw me off guard. Stoddard had said there were several Olivia Armstrongs; there were certainly many Marian Devereuxs. The silence grew intolerable; she was waiting for me to speak, and I blurted:

"I suppose you have come to take charge of the property."

"Do you?" she asked.

"And you came back with the executor to facilitate matters. I'm glad to see that you lose no time."

"Oh!" she said lingeringly, as though she were finding with difficulty the note in which I wished to pitch the conversation. Her calmness was maddening.

"I suppose you thought it unwise to wait for the bluebird when you had beguiled me into breaking a promise, when I was trapped, defeated."

Her elbow on the arm of the chair, her hand resting against her cheek, the light rippling goldenly in her hair, her eyes bent upon me inquiringly, mournfully, mournfully, as I had seen them—where?—once before! My heart leaped in that moment, with that thought.

"I remember now the first time," I said, more angry than I had ever been before in my life.

"That is quite remarkable," she said, and nodded her head ironically.

"It was at Sherry's; you were with Pickering—you dropped your fan and he picked it up, and you turned toward me for a moment. You were in black that night; it was the unhappiness in your face, in your eyes, that made me remember."

I was intent upon the recollection, eager to fix and establish it.

"You are quite right. It was at Sherry's. I was wearing black then; many things made me unhappy that night."

Her forehead contracted slightly and she pressed her lips together.

"I suppose that even then the conspiracy was thoroughly arranged," I said tauntingly, laughing a little perhaps, in my brutal impulse to wound her, to take vengeance upon her.

She rose and stood by her chair, one hand resting upon it. I faced her; her eyes were like violet seas. She spoke very quietly.

"Mr. Glenarm, has it occurred to you that when I talked to you there in the park, when I risked unpleasant gossip in receiving you in a house where you had no possible right to be, that I was counting upon something—foolishly and stupidly—yet counting upon it?"

"You probably thought I was a fool," I retorted.

"No," she smiled slightly. "I thought—I believe I have said this to you before!—that you were a gentleman. I really did, Mr. Glenarm. I must say it to justify myself. I relied upon your chivalry—I even thought, when I played being Olivia,—that you had a sense of humor. But you are not the one and you haven't the other. I even went so far, after you know perfectly well who I was, to try to help you—to encourage you to prove yourself the man your grandfather wished you to be. And now you come to me in a shocking bad humor—I really think you would like to be insulting, Mr. Glenarm, if you could."

"But Pickering—you came back with him; he is here and he is going to stay! And now that the property belongs to you, there is not the slightest reason why we should make any pretense of anything but enmity. When you and Arthur Pickering stand together I take the other side of the barricade! I suppose chivalry would require me to vacate, so that you may enjoy at once the spoils of war," I roared with growing heat.

"I fancy it would not be very difficult to eliminate you as a factor in the situation," she remarked lily.

"And I suppose, after the business-ful efforts of Mr. Pickering's allies to assassinate me, as a mild form of elimination, one would naturally expect me to sit calmly down and wait to be shot in the back. But you may tell Mr. Pickering that I throw myself upon your mercy. I have no other home than this shell over the way, and I beg to be allowed to remain until—at least—the bluebirds come."

"I quite sympathize with your reluctance to deliver the message yourself," she said. "Is this all you came to say?"

"I came to tell you that you could have the house, and everything in its hideous walls," I snapped; "to tell you that my chivalry is enough for some situations and that I don't intend to fight a woman. I had accepted your own renunciation of the legacy in good part, but now, please believe me, it shall be yours to-morrow. I'll yield possession to you whenever you ask it,—but never to Arthur Pickering! As against him and his treasure-hunters and assassins I will hold out for a dozen years!"

"Nobly spoken, Mr. Glenarm! Yours is really an admirable, though somewhat complex character."

"My character is my own, whatever it is," I blurted.

"I shouldn't call that a debatable proposition," she replied, and I was angry to find how the mirth I had loved in her could suddenly become so hateful. She half-turned away so that I might not see her face. The thought that she should countenance Pickering in any way tore me with jealous rage.

"Mr. Glenarm, you are what I have heard called a quitter, defined in common Americanese as one who quits! Your blustering can hardly conceal the fact of your failures. I had hoped you would really be of some help to Sister Theresa, and incidentally to me, but we both sadly misjudged you."

Her tone, changing from amused indifference to severest disdain, stung me into self-pity for my stupidity in having sought her. My anger was not against her, but against Pickering, who had persuaded myself, always blocked my path. She went on.

"Mr. Pickering is decidedly more than a match for you, Mr. Glenarm,—even in humor."

She drew herself up with tragic scorn in every line of her figure, then relaxed, laughed and was Olivia again; and as I watched her,—wondering, perplexed, chagrined,—she turned swiftly away and ran—I am sure she ran—from the room.

She left me so quickly, so softly, that I stood staring like a fool at the spot where she had been, and then I went gloomily back to Glenarm House, angry, ashamed and crestfallen.

While we were waiting for dinner I made a clean breast of my acquaintance with her to Larry, omitting nothing,—rejoicing even to paint my own conduct as black as possible.

"You may remember her," I concluded,—she was the girl we saw at Sherry's that night we dined there. She was with Pickering, and you noticed her,—spoke of her, as she went out?"

"That little girl who seemed so bored, or tired or sick? Bless me, why her eyes haunted me for days. Lord, man, do you mean to say—"

A look of utter scorn came into his face, and he eyed me contemptuously.

"Of course I mean it!" I thundered at him.

He took the pipe from his mouth, pressed the tobacco viciously into the bowl, and swore steadily in Gaelic until I was ready to choke him.

"Stop!" I bawled. "Do you think that's helping me? And to have you curse in your backguardy Irish dialect! I wanted a little Anglo-Saxon sympathy, you fool! I didn't mean for you to invoke your infamous gods against the girl!"

"Don't be violent, lad. Violence is reprehensible," he admonished with maddening sweetness and patience. "What I was trying to intimate very mildly was the fact, borne in upon me through years of acquaintance, that you are,—to be bold, my lad, to be bold,—a good deal of a damned fool."

The trailing of his r's was like the whirring rise of a covey of quail.

"Dinner is served," announced Bates, and Larry led the way, mockingly chanting an Irish love-song.

CHAPTER XXI.

The Door of Bewilderment.

We had established the practice of barring all the gates and doors at nightfall. There was no way of guarding against an attack from the lake, whose frozen surface increased the danger from without; but we counted on our night patrol to prevent a surprise from that quarter. I was well aware that I must prepare to resist the militant arm of the law, which Pickering would no doubt invoke to aid him, but I intended to exhaust the possibilities in searching for the lost treasure before I yielded. Pickering might, if he would, transfer the estate of John Marshall Glenarm to Marian Devereux and make the most he could of that service, but he should not drive me forth until I had satisfied myself of the exact character of my grandfather's fortune.

The phrase, "The Door of Bewilderment," had never ceased to reiterate itself in my mind; there was a certain fascination and charm in it. We discussed a thousand explanations of it as I had pondered over the scrap of paper I had found in the library, and every bit of the house was examined in the search for further clues.

The passage between the house and the chapel seemed to fascinate Larry. He held that it must have some par-

"I Quite Sympathize With Your Reluctance to Deliver the Message Yourself," She Said.

He came up at noon—it was the 29th of December—with grimy face and hands and a grin on his face. I had spent my morning in the towers to no purpose and was in no mood for the ready acceptance of new theories.

"I've found something," he said, filling his pipe.

"Not soap, evidently!"

"No, but I'm going to say the last word on the tunnel, and within an hour. Give me a glass of beer and a piece of bread, and we'll go back and see whether we're sold again or not."

"Go ahead and let us be done with it. Wait till I tell Stoddard where we're going."

The chaplain was trying the second floor walls, and I asked him to eat some luncheon and stand guard while Larry and I went to the tunnel.

We took with us an iron bar, an ax and a couple of hammers. Larry went ahead with a lantern.

"You see," he explained, as we dropped through the trap into the passage, "I've tried a compass on this tunnel and find that we've been working on the wrong theory. The passage itself runs a straight line from the house under the gate to the crypt; the ravine is a rough crescent-shape and for a short distance the tunnel touches it. How deep does that ravine average—about 30 feet?"

"Yes; it's shallowest where the house stands. It drops sharply from there on to the lake."

"Very good; but the ravine is all on the Glenarm side of the wall, isn't it? Now when we get under the wall I'll show you something."

"Here we are," said Larry, as the cold air blew in through the hollow posts. "Now we're pretty near that sharp curve of the ravine that dips away from the wall. Take the lantern while I get out the compass. What do you think that C on the piece of paper means? Why, chapel, of course. I have measured the distance from the house, the point of departure, we may assume, to the chapel, and three-fourths of it brings us under those beautiful posts. The directions are as plain as daylight. The passage itself is your N. W., as the compass proves, and the ravine cuts close in here; therefore, our business is to explore the wall on the ravine side."

PURELY FEMININE

CARE OF THE HAIR

DRESSING "MY LADY'S" TRESSES AN ACKNOWLEDGED ART.

Careful Manicuring and Brushing Are Vital to Proper Appearance—Check May Be Put on Signs of Age.

Dressing the hair to-day is more of an art than it has been for some seasons past, the arrangement of waves, puffs, and curls reminding one somewhat of Gainsboro pictures. Speaking of curls, was there ever such a riot of them seen before? The drooping mushroom and flaring cloche hat require curls in abundance to fill in their generous curves, in greater abundance, in fact, than nature is willing to supply, and art must of necessity come to the rescue. Well, luckily, one can buy curls of all shades, singly or in clusters and wreaths, little tight ones and big fat ones, and no head need go unadorned. "So are those crisped and snaky golden locks, which make such wanton gambols with the wind. Upon supposed fairness often known To be the dowry of a second head," said Shakespeare, and like most of his comments on human nature and customs it is just as true to-day as when he uttered it.

Waved hair still remains the mode, and there are a number of pretty ways in which a becoming undulation may be arranged. The Marcel at present is possible only in the hands of the expert, but a number of simple devices are sold on which the hair may be done at night for a pretty wave next day.

While waves are modish, it is smooth, shining ones that are smartest. Glossy hair is the mark of the well groomed woman as much as careful manicuring, and the gloss is only obtainable with care and patience. Shampooing with the best of shampoo soaps or liquid preparations is the first step toward obtaining this fashionable gloss, a little oil being rubbed into the scalp after the shampoo if the hair seems too dry. If you will use a little oil on the scalp as directed you will never be obliged to complain that you washed your hair yesterday and just can't do a thing with it. Hair oils, brillantines, etc., impart a softness and the sheen of satin to "my lady's" tresses and are always quite harmless if not distinctly beneficial. Many of the best hair tonics and dandruff cures also produce a wonderful shine and pliability.

Unless one's hair is very short and thin and easily managed it is a mistake to attempt to shampoo it at home, as so much better results are obtained at beauty parlors or baths.

HEAD CUSHION FOR CHAIR. Intended Primarily for Wicker Porch Furniture.

Comfortable and delightful in many ways as wicker armchairs undoubtedly are, they have one serious drawback. As headrests they leave much to be desired, since the hard wicker border is anything but restful when one is anxious, perhaps, to enjoy the luxury of an after-dinner nap.

A soft cushion tied securely to the back of the chair, so that it fits comfortably between the wicker border and the head, makes all the difference in the world; and we give a sketch of one of these cushions, showing very clearly how it should be made, which should prove of interest to our readers.

In shape, the cushion somewhat resembles an inverted tea-cosy. It is covered with soft serge or silk, and daily embroidered in a floral design. The long ribbons at the top are used to tie the cushion firmly to the frame of the chair, while the other bows are simply ornamental. A hem-stitched frill in soft silk gives a pretty finish to this useful head cushion.

"LEGHORN" NOW THE THING. Old-Time Millinery Favorite Seen in Many Shapes.

In millinery, that perennial favorite, the leghorn, is chosen for a large number of the prettiest flower-trimmed French models, and whether from long association or innate correspondence with the laws of the where a thorough cleansing is assured and every possible mechanical aid at hand for careful drying and untangling. Brushing is, as every one knows, highly beneficial to the hair, and should not be neglected night and morning. Electrical treatments are also excellent for stimulating growth and curbing a tendency to produce. These have been known to produce results where everything else seemed to have failed.

Scalp foods, tonics, and electrical treatments with scientific care of the scalp will often, if the matter is taken in time, check turning gray and restore to the hair roots that vigor which produces a natural color. "An ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure," however, and anyone who desires to retain their youth should begin the care of hair and complexion before youth has begun to wane.

COLLARS OF BITS OF LACE.

Dresses for Little Girls Are Finished with Dainty Berthas.

For the mother who has many children, the berth collar has many advantages, and the illustrated group of patterns on this page may give you an idea for using up some of the bits. Although the models are here shown as cut in one piece, they could all be made with seams on the shoulders and, if need be, in the front and back. Here is a chance to utilize some small bits of lace, lawn and embroidery. If you have two medallions instead of four, put them on the shoulders and leave the front and back of the square collar plain, or it may be that you have two of two different kinds.

One of the marks of this season's fashions is that several different fabrics and trimmings are used on one garment. A dress, for instance, will often be trimmed with tulle and Val lace, and batiste embroidery. The collar with the points could be made with every point of all-over embroidery or lace and every other one of plain material, then strapped with narrow lace as shown in the illustration.

eternal fitness of things, leghorn seems peculiarly suited for ribbon and floral adornment.

The wide soft silken scarfs and huge bows so popular with the designers adapt themselves admirably to the graceful leghorn shapes which are sometimes variations upon the cloche or mushroom shapes and sometimes picturesque shapes with wide drooping brim at the back and at one side, while the other side is turned up sharply from the hair.

Or perhaps the new leghorn takes on the aureole lines, a wide brim drooping low at the back, but rolled back slightly in the front, exposing the front hair and giving an aureole effect from a front view. On the whole, this hat, rolling back from the face, is one of the most becoming of the new modes. It has the new lines, the backward tilt, the droop of wide back brim, but it does not, as so many of the cloche models do, look as though about to settle down and snuff out the face below it.

Try This for Neuralgia.

If the neuralgia is located on the right side of the face the left hand and wrist should be placed for ten or 15 minutes in a basin of water as hot as can comfortably be borne. If the left side is the one afflicted the right hand and wrist should be placed in the hot bath.

The treatment can be repeated if the first does not relieve the pain. The explanation given by physicians for this peculiar treatment is that the two nerves which have the greatest number of tactile nerve endings are the fifth and medial nerves. As the fibers of these two nerves cross any impulse carried to the left hand affects the right side of the face, or, if applied to the right, the effect will be the reverse. This is caused by the crossing of the cords.

Frayed Curtains.

Oftentimes your curtains become worn at the bottom, especially when they touch the floor. Cut off as much as is necessary to make the ends even. Sew a narrow hem and crochet scallops, the size of the original, from one end to the other. After the curtains have been washed and stretched you practically have new ones.

SPAIN FAR BEHIND NATIONS.

Illiteracy Prevails There to a Most Amazing Extent.

Of the 20,000,000 people inhabiting Spain, only about 35 per cent. can read and write; another two and one-half per cent. of the population can read without being able to write, but the remaining 62½ per cent. are absolute illiterates. In the south of Spain it is impossible to get a servant who can read and write, and many of the postmen are unable to tell to whom the letters they carry are addressed. They bring a bundle of letters to a house and the owner looks through them and takes those which are (or which he thinks are) addressed to him. The Spanish postmen are not paid by the state; the recipient of the letters have to remunerate them according to the amount of their correspondence, and each letter costs the addressee at least one cent. It is a joke among the easy-going Spaniards that he who treats the postmen best receives the most letters—whether they are intended for him or not.

THE NEW YORK LIFE'S PROGRAM.

Economy, Publicity and the Paramount Interest of Policyholders.

President Kingsley, of the New York Life Insurance Company, says, in an address to the policyholders, that his plan of administration involves these points:

"First: Strict economy; second, the widest, fairest and fullest publicity; third, the continuance of the New York Life as a world-wide institution; fourth, such an amount of new business under the law as we can secure while practicing intelligent economy, and enforcing the idea that the interest of the policy-holder is paramount."

Too Much Exposure.

Elsie is a laundress of color. She is well past youth, wears a paternal smile and sports a single front tooth of much prominence. Recently she missed one of her visits to a patron, and when she next put in an appearance she was suffering from a bad cold. When asked how she took such a serious cold she said:

"During the recent festivities our club gave a ball. The gentleman what's paying attention to me is very particular, so I had to go in full evening dress, and I had to leave off a few pieces, and it got me."

Watching the Knife Play.

"There is an awful fascination about seeing people eat with their knives," said he who has just spent a week on the farm for his health, with a retrospective look in his eyes. "A knife is such an unexpected instrument. You never know just where it is going to strike. You can't keep your eyes off. You are afraid to look for fear it might slip and cut the mouth half in two, and you are afraid if you don't look it might happen and you won't get to see it."

Took Exception.

"Remember, brothers!" shouted the orator of the strenuous life, "I haven't any use for mollycoddles." The very old gentleman who was sitting in the last row removed his pipe and retorted:

"Wal, by heck, mister, even if you haven't any use for Molly Coddles yeou needn't stand thar and talk behind her back, seem' that she is not present to defend herself."

The Sad Sea.

The thin, pale man in the large bathing suit, standing knee-deep in the water, sighed.

"Why," we asked, "are you so sad?"

"Alas," he answered, "the sea is the grave of my first wife."

Our lips curled superciliously.

"But you married again," we murmured.

"Yes," said he, "and my second wife won't go near the water."

SOAKED IN COFFEE

Until Too Stiff to Bend Over.

"When I drank coffee I often had sick headaches, nervousness and biliousness much of the time, but when I went to visit a friend I got in the habit of drinking Postum."

"I gave up coffee entirely and the result has been that I have been entirely relieved of all my stomach and nervous trouble."

"My mother was just the same way. We all drink Postum now, and with-out coffee in the house for 2 years, we are all well."

"A neighbor of mine, a great coffee drinker, was troubled with pains in her side for years and was an invalid. She was not able to do her work and could not even mend clothes or do anything at all where she would have to bend forward. If she tried to do a little hard work she would get such pains that she would have to lie down for the rest of the day."

"At last I persuaded her to stop drinking coffee and try Postum Food Coffee and she did so and has used Postum ever since; the result has been that she can now do her work, can sit for a whole day and mend and can sew on the machine and she never feels the least bit of pain in her side, in fact, she has got well and it shows coffee was the cause of the whole trouble."

"I could also tell you about several other neighbors who have been cured by quitting coffee and using Postum in its place." "There's a Reason." Look in pkg. for the famous little book, "The Road to Wellville."

BACK TO LONG AGO

OLD-TIME SCENE RECALLED BY MR. PAROKEYAL.

And Understanding, He No Longer Felt Aggrieved That He Had Sacrificed His Evening Smoke.—Willing Victim.

"One evening at dinner in the latter part of May," said Mr. Parokeyal, "the wife asked me if I wouldn't like to go to the May services at church that evening—with her, of course. I caught her exchanging a glance across the table with our eldest boy, a tyke of ten, when she made the suggestion to me. Therefore said I to myself right away, it was a put up job."

"But there I was. No way to get out of it. I thought a bit aggrievedly of the comfortable, lolling smokes I miss if I went, and I experienced just a teeny touch of resentment over the rather smooth and serene way I was being chiseled out of 'em. But there was no way out."

"Why, certainly, mother, I'll go—glad to," said I, as hearty as I could make it, and then again I caught that significant exchange of glances between the boy and his mother, just as if they'd achieved some kind of a victory or other.

"Well, the boy executed his usual disappearance soon after dinner, and then, allowing me to burn up just one cigar, my wife began to bustle and bustle me around, and presently we were on our way to the May services. I had to grin a bit sheepishly as we drew nigh the portal."

"Fine work for you, little lady," said I to the boy's mother. "Do you know how many years it's been since I attended May evening services?"

"Please don't tell me," said she. "I don't want to hear. And don't ever say anything like that before the children—you know how they notice these chance remarks, and with that we were inside the cool, fragrant church and on our way up the cester aisle to the pew."

"Well, well, what a long stretch of years that fragrance took me back across—that mingled fragrance of roses and drifting incense. Noticed it the minute I set foot within the church—first the smell of the roses that were heaped up on the main altar and on the side altar, and then, as we got inside, that other aroma of the incense. I declare that those two fused fragrances—and they got mighty well together, if you've ever noticed—just clean picked me up and set me back on the road a good 30 years, and a good bit of that road right hard going at that."

"The wife and I sat down in the pew, and I was listening to some of the old familiar May evening music, full of dim reminiscences, when the mother gave me a slight nudge.

"I turned and looked at her, and her eyes were shining mighty bright, sure enough. And she was nodding in the direction of the altar. I thought that she meant that she wanted me to stop looking around at the decorations and things and to pay attention to what was going on at the altar, and so I followed her gaze."

"Well, then I understood the meaning of that put up job between the boy and his mother."

"For there was the boy on the altar in surplice and cassock, at the right hand of the priest, at that. I understood, all right."

"When I turned to her again her eyes were still shining away like as if they'd—but when it comes to that, I couldn't see her very well myself, for it all came a-romping back to me in an instant that she looked just exactly for all the world, like my own little mother had looked, away back yonder over the crazy path of the years, when she'd seen me diked out in cassock and surplice for the first time—for all the world and to the life! Same shining, starry eyes, same trembling around the corner of the mouth, same speaking pride of the features—the joy of the mother-woman when she sees one of her own taking part for the first time in a rite at any kind of shrine!"

"That's why she'd got me out of my armchair to attend the May evening services. The conspiracy between her and the boy stood revealed. But I didn't feel aggrieved about those sacrificed smokes any longer!"

New Cure for Baldness.

For his curious theory that baldness is due to lack of upper chest breathing, Dr. Delos M. Parker, of the Detroit College of Medicine, claims verification by thousands of observations during many years. No victim of common baldness was found who breathed properly. The lungs being imperfectly filled and emptied, it is supposed that residual air is left in the upper passages, and develops a soluble poison. This poison specially affects the scalp, where the skin is practically bloodless, and, therefore, of low vitality. Persistent return to correct breathing has been followed by disappearance of dandruff in one week and beginning of a new growth of hair in six weeks and a fresh covering has been developed on a head that had been bald 20 years.

"You're tipsy!" he exclaimed.

COMFORTING WORDS.
Many a Michigan Household Will Find Them So.

To have the pains and aches of a bad back removed, to be entirely free from annoying, dangerous urinary disorders is enough to make any kidney sufferer grateful. To tell how this great change can be brought about will prove comforting words to hundreds of Michigan

Mrs. E. J. Cherry, 126 Litch St., Lansing, Mich., says: "Mr. Cherry suffered severely for a long while from bladder and kidney trouble. His back was very weak and lame and he could not stoop or lift anything without suffering pain.
The trouble was always aggravated if he took cold. His kidneys were very weak and the secretions were frequent and too profuse. He was also annoyed by headaches. Having read of many people who had been cured of this trouble, he procured a box of Doan's Kidney Pills.
He was greatly relieved and he continued using them until cured."

The Limit of Life.
The most eminent medical scientists are unanimous in the conclusion that the generally accepted limitation of human life is many years below the attainment possible with the advanced knowledge of which the race is now possessed. The critical period, that determines its duration, seems to be between 50 and 60; the proper care of the body during this decade cannot be too strongly urged; carelessness then being fatal to longevity. Nature's best helper after 50 is Electric Bitters, the scientific tonic medicine that revitalizes every organ of the body. Guaranteed at

FREAK STATUARY TO ORDER.
Sculptor Tells of Queer Orders Given Him by His Patrons.

A sculptor was talking about freak statuary. "I turn out a lot of it," he said. "Not that I like to. I have to.
So many of our millionaires have uncouth tastes. I made last fall portrait busts of a western millionaire and his wife. The wife wears spectacles, and nothing would do but I must put spectacles on her bust. I argued, but in vain. That bust stands in the millionaire's spacious library to-day and spectacles rest on its nose. I did last month a bust in colors, a bust of a young girl. The marble hair I gilded, the marble eyes I painted blue, and the marble lips and cheeks I flecked with red. A hideous thing, yet the family was immensely pleased. The freakiest of my freak statues stands in a Boston garden. It is the statue of the owner's grandfather, an old Presbyterian divine. The aged man stands in the center of a bed of pug-nills, and out of the top of his plug hat a jet of water spurts, falling into a marble basin that he holds in his hands, a basin wherein swim half a dozen goldfish. The idea of treating one's grandfather like that!"

many friends in Chelsea and our sur-

EXHIBITS FOR STATE FAIR.

Machinery and Implement Department Will Be a Hummer.

One of the most interesting exhibits at the State Fair, Aug. 29th to Sept. 6th, will be the machinery and implement department. This is in charge of Vincent V. Green, of De-

VINCENT V. GREEN
WHO IS BOOKING MANY NEW FEATURES FOR STATE FAIR

troit. Mr. Green is Secretary and Treasurer of the Michigan Transfer and Storage Company and has spent years in the implement business, selling the jobbers and retailers, and his knowledge of the business will be of special value to the State Fair.
Last year there were about fifty-three exhibitors in this department, and this year, ten days in advance of the opening of the fair, there were eighty-three applications for space, and no doubt the number will reach double that one year ago. The perplexing problem is where to find space to place them all.

Supt. Green has arranged with the Andrus Fence Co., of Detroit, to operate one of their power fence weaving machines on the grounds.

A new exhibit will be that of lightning rods. Two concerns will show by static machines, the action of lightning, and how to prevent damage from same.
Another exhibit which has never before been shown which will interest the potato grower, is the potato-bug annihilator, which catches the bugs and kills them. This takes the place of the boy with a stick and tin pan and the Paris green.

Potato diggers, gasoline-power engines, cement block machines, threshers, traction engines, wind mills, shredders, corn huskers, ensilage cutters, sugar beet machinery, and hundreds of interesting labor saving devices for the farm will be shown.

Easily Adjusted.

lic, sir, about those old dark blue cars.
Everybody says they bump so frightfully in comparison with the new light blue ones, which, of course, run very smooth.' 'Humph,' said the president at once. 'Have all the old cars painted light blue immediately.'" not only have headquarters on the ground, but will operate a hospital for those who may become sick while attending the Fair, and will have 12

Fair closes. They are also trying to arrange for a Diamond Medal Orator-stand in the grove during some day of the Fair. This will naturally attract some of the brightest young or-

THE BEST LAXATIVE FOR CHILDREN.

Parents should see to it that their children have only natural, easy movement of the bowels each day.
Do not dose the child with salts or griping pills.
Their little limbs will suffer in effect, and literally tear themselves to pieces, leaving the bowels weakened and less able to act naturally than before.
Give them a few of these little pills, and strengthen their activity. Chocolate coated tablets, easy to take, have gripes or nausea. 10c. 25c. and 50c.

HEAVILY FINED MORE IN SIGHT

JUDGE LANDIS FINES STANDARD OIL CO. THE MAXIMUM AMOUNT WITH SOME CAUSTIC COMMENTS.

A MATTER OF $29,240,000 IS THE NAMED ASSESSMENT AND STILL MORE MAY BE ADDED ON SEVEN INDICTMENTS STILL PENDING.

KENESAW M. LANDIS.

Judge Kenesaw M. Landis in the United States district court, Chicago, fined the Standard Oil Co. of Indiana $29,240,000 for violations of the law against accepting rebates from railroads. The fine is the largest ever assessed against any individual or any corporation in the history of American criminal jurisprudence, and is slightly more than 131 times as great as the amount received by the company through its rebating operations.

"We may as well look at this situation squarely. The men who thus deliberately violate this law wound society more deeply than does he who counterfeits the coin or steals letters from the mails."

He viewed the facts in the case, took up the arguments of the attorneys for the defense and answered them, and then passed judgment on the company which he declared violated the law for the sole purpose of swelling its dividends. He also held that the railroads have no more right to make a secret rate for a shipper than a board of assessors would have to make a secret assessment of any particular piece of property.

Judge Landis expressed regret that the law failed to provide more serious punishment than a fine, but insisted that the penalty should be sufficiently large to act as a deterrent and not of such a size as to encourage the offender to persist in lawlessness.

At the conclusion of his opinion, and after announcing the amount of the fine, Judge Landis directed that a special grand jury be called for the purpose of inquiring into the acts of the Chicago & Alton Railroad Co., it having proved in the case just closed that the oil company accepted rebates from that corporation. This jury is summoned for August 14.

This caustic reference to the rebate system of the oil company was received with applause: "When after all the circumstances of the trial have been brought out and the defendant persistently maintains that the constitution of the United States guarantees to it the right to make a private contract for a railroad rate, this court is obliged to confess that he is un-

From the State Capital

Information and Gossip Furnished by Special Correspondent at Lansing.

Lansing.—Railroad managers examine their employees as to their eyesight and hearing," said Railroad Commissioner Glasgow, "but they utterly fail to examine their 'bump of emotion', which is far more important. A man's hearing may be acute and his eyesight unerring, but if he is a reckless, careless man, he is an unsafe employe for a railroad company. In my judgment it is a far more important qualification that a railroad employe have a quickened sense of responsibility than it is that he have some of the other qualifications required." This was the comment of the railroad commissioner after close observations of several weeks of the employes of several railroad systems he has been inspecting. He has been surprised to find many employes careless about leaving switches unlocked, and doing other things that are a menace to the safety of property and passengers. So deeply impressed has he become with the conditions discovered that he recently issued a letter to all railroad companies asking for a closer examination and care of railroad switches.

New State Oil Inspector.
Gov. Warner announced the appointment of Frank S. Neal of Northville as state oil inspector to succeed Charles L. Benjamin, of Saginaw. The appointment does not take effect until September 1. Mr. Neal is 45 years old and has lived 27 years in Michigan. He has been engaged in newspaper work as proprietor and editor of the Northville Record, since 1881. He represented the Third district of Wayne county in the legislature of 1901 and 1903, preceding Representative Cassius K. Benton. In the sessions of 1905 and 1907 he acted as executive clerk to Gov. Warner, and is also clerk of the state court of mediation and arbitration. Neal has long been a favorite in the governor's official family. Benjamin has served four years as oil inspector, succeeding William Judson, of Washington.

Far Acts Are Unconstitutional.
Other acts of the legislature besides the Mount Pleasant Normal college appropriation bill, the binder twine plant bill and the juvenile court act, which have been declared unconstitutional, have been submitted to the attorney general for his opinion as to their legality, and it is not unlikely that several will be found fatally defective. A class of bills making appropriations of state money for purposes not directly connected with state government are under scrutiny and there is a strong feeling that some of these will fall under the attorney general's objections. One bill makes an appropriation of $500 to the "corn association." So far as can be learned no such association exists. It was intended to provide money to conduct excursions.

Test Binder Twine Act.
Gov. Warner will confer with Attorney General Bird in regard to the commencement of an amicable suit to determine the legality of the new binder twine act in which an error has been discovered which the attorney general thinks nullifies it. A delay in letting contracts for machinery will result and it is doubtful if the plant can be gotten in shape in time to supply twine for the market next year. For this reason the governor says he hopes to get the question involved before the supreme court for a hearing in August. Gov. Warner goes to Jackson to confer with the prison authorities on the subject.

Urges More Safeguards.
Railway Commissioner Glasgow, after an investigation of the Sebawa and Webbville wrecks on Pere Marquette, has called the attention of the railroads to the need of better regulations for the control of switches and switchlocks. Deputy Commissioner Crampton attributes the Sebawa accident, in which two men were killed, to the lack of a light at the interlocking switch. He obtained copies of the correspondence from the railroad to the men in charge of the lights, in which they were told to mind their own business and the lights would be cared for.

New Livingston County Agent.
William M. Horton, of Fowlerville, has been appointed by Gov. Warner as county agent for Livingston county, to succeed Frederick Kuhn, resigned.

Glasgow After Traffic Managers.
A meeting of the traffic managers of a number of railroads will be held at the Railroad Commissioner Glasgow's office here August 26, for the purpose of fixing a satisfactory rate for the transportation of railroad ties, it having been alleged that certain companies were charging 21 cents per hundred freight on ties from Omer to Monroe when they were giving a ten-cent rate from the same shipping point to Toledo. It is expected the matter will be arranged.

Saved Governor Trouble.
In writing the word "unconstitutional" across the act providing for the creation of juvenile courts in Michigan, Attorney General Bird has rendered it unnecessary for Gov. Warner to reappoint all the county agents of the state, as would have been necessary had the law been sustained. Attorney General Bird's opinion holding the law unconstitutional has been sent to all the probate judges of the state as well as to the county agents and prosecuting attorneys. It cites a number of reasons why the law will not stand. The attorney general says that if the law is construed as providing a new court it is unconstitutional for the reason that the constitution vests the judicial power in the supreme court, circuit and probate courts and justices of the peace. On the other hand if it provides for extending the jurisdiction of probate courts it is unconstitutional because it provides for a fine of $25 and a trial before a jury of six persons, the constitution guaranteeing the citizens the right to trial in criminal cases in courts of record by a jury of twelve. Probate courts are courts of record. The title of the act takes away the jurisdiction of probate courts over children that may be sent to the Coldwater state public school, while the body of the act confers upon the probate courts jurisdiction in such cases. The effect of the act is to take away from probate courts jurisdiction over all children from one to 12 years of age. The act also provides for an increase in the salaries of judges of probate and this provision is held not to be within the scope of the title. Other provisions of the law are found to be unworkable. Judges of probate are advised by the attorney general not to attempt to proceed under the act.

Allege Railroad Discrimination.
Several complaints of discriminations in freight rates have been made to the state railroad department recently, and considerable correspondence has been had with railway officials regarding them. Up to this time, however, the results of the correspondence have not been satisfactory, and Railroad Commissioner Glasgow will try other methods of coming to an understanding with the roads. The principal complaint comes from the Sterling Bros. Co., of Monroe, large shippers of railroad ties, who say rates in the state were advanced. So far as learned only the Detroit & Mackinac, Michigan Central and G. R. & I railroads have made discriminatory rates. Sterling Bros. assert that the purpose of the higher rate is to compel them to sell their ties to the railroad companies instead of shipping them to the best market, and that the rate is prohibitory. An effort is being made to get the Grand Trunk railway company to give a rate on gravel to a New Hudson dealer who wishes to ship to Detroit equal to the rate given dealers at Armada and other places at an equal distance from the city. Grand Trunk officials assert that when the New Hudson man is ready to ship gravel they will make him special rates, but refuse to give the rate to be charged. As an investment of perhaps $20,000 will be required to install the proper machinery for handling the gravel at New Hudson the dealer is anxious that the exact rate to be given be quoted now.

Prepare for Two-Cent Fares.
Railroad Commissioner Glasgow said that he had received a large number of replies from letters addressed to railroad managers in Michigan, stating that they are making new schedules to give effect to the new two-cent fare law that takes effect September 27, and that he has not received a single letter from a railroad company refusing to comply with the law. Nevertheless, it is understood that the state authorities expect that the Pere Marquette and possibly one or two other lines will contest the law and preparations are being made to defend the enactments in the courts if necessary.

JOHNSON DEFINES RIGHTS

MINNESOTA GOVERNOR ISSUES STRIKE PROCLAMATION.
Order Gives Workmen Access to Public Roads, But Forbids Trespassing.
St. Paul, Minn. — Gov. John A. Johnson has issued a proclamation defining the rights of the contending parties to the iron miners' strike and warning all to preserve the peace. The proclamation which was issued upon the recommendation of the commission which the governor sent to investigate conditions on the iron range embodies the agreement which the commissioners made with the strikers and the officials of the steel corporation. It prohibits the marching of large bodies of strikers and forbids trespass upon private property. The strikers are to be protected in their right to peacefully assemble in their halls and the public roads are to be open to them in small groups. Both Petriella and Acting President Mahoney, on behalf of the strikers, agreed to have their men keep strictly within the limits laid down in the proclamation, and the peace officers were instructed not to interfere with the meetings of the strikers. Commissioner T. D. O'Brien stated that he believed the crisis had now been passed on the iron range, and that trouble which was threatened because of over-zealous peace officers had been averted.

What further steps, if any, are contemplated have not been made public. Slight delay and embarrassment in meeting the situation are caused by the absence of Premier Clemenceau, who is at Karisbad taking the cure. STEPHENSON IS DEAD.

A Strong Man and His Work That Was Well Done.
Following a fall as he stepped from a carriage, Samuel M. Stephenson, ex-congressman and multi-millionaire lumberman, died in Menominee Wednesday. He was a brother of United States Senator Isaac Stephenson, of Marinette, Wis.

The deceased was born in New Brunswick in 1831 in the environment of the lumber industry. When a boy he came to the lumber district of the upper peninsula and worked in lumber camps for years. He was enterprising and thrifty, and from his savings he established a lumber business in a small way. It later became one of the largest in the world and yielded immense profits. He was a member of the fifty-first, fifty-second, fifty-third and fifty-fourth congresses and as a member of the rivers and harbors committee promoted many improvements of the channels of the great lakes and connecting rivers. Before going to congress he served as state senator and representative and at one time was prominently mentioned for a United States senatorship.

The school house education that the brothers received was meager, but both were men of striking personality and force who were never known to duck a fight, physically, financially or politically, from the days they began as red-shirted lumber jacks in the districts where they won their fortunes on through their entire careers. Sam was a man of his word and liked good companionship. Underneath his harsh, uncultured surface his colleagues in congress saw a real diamond and that's why they liked him. After a bitter fight that was carried to the courts he was defeated in 1898 by Carl Sheldon, of Houghton, for nomination for a fifth term. After that he was not active in politics.

Care of Shade Trees.
While shade trees are very desirable along sidewalks and roads, unless they are kept well trimmed they become much of a nuisance, preventing evaporation of rains and helping make muddy streets. It is well for citizens of every town to look after the trimming of shade trees, and the planting of shade trees where they are needed.

FIXING OF THE COST

THE FACTORS IN PRICES OF COMMODITIES.
PRODUCTION AND DISTRIBUTION
Equity in Division of Profits to All Engaged in Producing, Manufacturing and Selling.

Were the masses of people better informed as to principles underlying business transactions and commerce in general there would be less cause for complaint as to matters pertaining to buying and selling of commodities. One of the faults, if it may be so termed, is the inclination of the people to complain about prices they must pay for goods required for domestic and other uses. There can be no doubt but that in many districts retail merchants exact exorbitant prices, this to an extent is the fault of the people who are little acquainted with real values. There are three important things to be considered in the fixing of the selling price of all commodities. These factors are the cost of the raw materials, the expense of manufacturing and the expense of distribution. From commercial transactions neither of these basic elements can be eliminated. The farmer who is the grower of corn, wheat and other cereals that comprises food stuffs, receives compensation for his product in accordance with the laws of supply and demand, and the values that may regulate the monetary markets of the world. The producer of cotton in the southern states, must receive for his product compensation that is based upon the cost of labor, manufacture and what finished articles in the cotton line may bring in the markets of the world. The producer of the raw materials must pay for his labor, and for his investment in farm lands and farm equipment. The manufacturer who buys the raw products must take into consideration the expense of labor, the maintenance of his manufacturing plant, the interest upon the amount invested, and also various other items, and the sum of these with what he can secure for his finished product, regulates the price that he pays for the raw material. In the distribution of goods the middle man plays an important part. He is the go-between the producer of the raw material the manufacturer, and the consumer. He cannot well be eliminated from commercial transactions. He performs a service that neither the producer of the raw material or the manufacturer can more economically perform. The middle men are the jobbers, the commission agents and the retailers; each performing his special service in the matter of distribution. The consumer is the end of the chain, the final buyer of commodities who utilizes them for his own use and the uses of his family. There should be a margin of profit in each of the different transactions that will allow equitable compensation to each and every one interested in the production of a finished article. All goods have a real value and this value is determined solely by the elements referred to herein. The consumer must expect to contribute his mite towards the support of all engaged in commerce. He is the beginning link, as well as the ending link of every transaction. The farmer who grows wheat, when he forces the grocer from whom he buys his flour to sell the flour at a low rate, indirectly has an influence in lowering the market for the wheat that he produces. When the consumer demands that goods be sold at a price below the cost of production, he invites substitution of inferior goods, adulteration of the articles and encourages a system that is unwholesome.

The people should understand that they never receive something for nothing, or receive anything of value for less than its value unless under some abnormal circumstance. Of late years there has been a system grown up of offering great bargains in various kinds of goods by catalogue sent through the mails, and presenting attractive and illusive advertising that goods are being sold at less than cost. The intelligent man or woman will carefully consider all the circumstances relative to such offers, and will be guided accordingly. It is evident that when special bargains are made there are conditions that justify such bargains; that goods are not of standard grade, are stale, or deteriorated in some manner. Also there is a system of offering "free premiums" grown up that is unwholesome, and to an extent an imposition upon the people as the system compels them to pay for articles that are not essential for them to have. The man who buys sugar does not care to be forced under the guise of paying for sugar to pay for a paper of pins or a package of needles, even though these may be a "free premium." It is well to bear these points in mind, and a little study into business economics and principles will be highly advantageous to the one who desires to know about the proper value of goods he must buy.

Care of Shade Trees.
While shade trees are very desirable along sidewalks and roads, unless they are kept well trimmed they become much of a nuisance, preventing evaporation of rains and helping make muddy streets. It is well for citizens of every town to look after the trimming of shade trees, and the planting of shade trees where they are needed.

SCHEMES TO DEFAUD.

Some of the Plans to Secure Money Without Adequate Compensation.
Plans to secure money from the people without giving adequate returns are numerous. Not alone are the residents of country districts made the victims of schemes, but city people as well are now and then humbugged by shrewd fakirs. Within the past year or two it was announced in the columns of magazines and the farm papers of a seedless apple being evolved. A few months later seedless apple trees were widely advertised from different parts of the country. One concern which started in to operate on an extensive plan organized seedless apple companies in different states of the western country. Within a few months hundreds of thousands of dollars were taken from the pockets of the people for seedless apple trees. These trees were just the ordinary kind, and poor stock at that. So bold were the operations of the seedless apple tree schemers that the secretary of agriculture found it necessary to issue a bulletin warning the people of the fraud, and later the post office department issued fraud orders against those engaged in the nefarious business. There are nurseries located in nearly every state. It is a good plan for the residents of farming and fruit growing districts to carefully investigate concerns selling fruit trees and similar lines before they are given patronage.

A number of petty grafts have lately been worked throughout the country. One of the common ones is the hiring of agents to sell soaps, perfumes and other commodities on the premium plan. The concerns which operate games of this class generally have their headquarters in some large city and through advertising secure the names of people desiring employment as canvassers and agents. To such they send letters holding out extraordinary inducements. Those who agree to act as agents sign a contract which is an agreement to pay for such goods as may be sent to them on consignment. The sample outfits which are forwarded, or the small stock of goods, are billed in such a way as to allow the concern an exorbitant profit. If the agent succeeds in selling the goods and remits promptly there is not likelihood of being any trouble, but generally the goods are so poor in quality that they remain dead stock in the hands of the canvasser, and he will find that the agreement he has signed will hold him to pay for the goods.

One of the humbugs that is perpetrated upon the people of many communities is the selling of stock in cooperative mercantile companies. During the past three or four years the residents of many small towns and agricultural districts have lost hundreds of thousands of dollars, if not millions, through the buying of stock in alleged cooperative establishments in large cities. One company with headquarters in Chicago, doing a mail order business, sold stock in excess of $1,000,000, and when the concern went into the hands of a receiver about a year ago there was not ten per cent. of assets to return to stockholders. Other alleged cooperative deals involve what is termed a profit sharing plan. This plan does not require the purchase of stock, but the cooperative part is purely a scheme devised for the securing of a trade.

COSTLY LESSONS IN ECONOMY.
It is Not Always a Matter of Saving to Buy Cheap Goods.
Almost every rural community has within its confines people who have paid well for experience and have learned costly lessons as to buying of goods.

Not long ago in a western town a citizen desired to buy a kitchen range. A visit to the local hardware store was made and the prices asked by the dealer were not satisfactory to the prospective purchaser, who by the way had his attention attracted by the advertising in his farm paper of "a bargain" in a kitchen range. The range was advertised as equal to those costing "twice the money at the local store." The citizen sent a money order to the concern advertising the range, and in the course of a few weeks he was notified by the railroad agent that the range had arrived. In removing it from the station to the farm house, in some inexplicable way part of it was broken. The broken pieces were taken to the local hardware store but could not be duplicated. A letter was written to the range company and in the course of a few weeks a duplicate of the broken part was received, but it was discovered that it would not fit the stove. It had to be returned and a few weeks later another piece was sent; then the stove was placed in use. Within six months the top had become so warped that it interfered seriously with the drafts. At the end of the year the stove was burned out and ready for the junk heap. The purchaser of the stove then determined that he would secure another range from the home dealer. He paid the home dealer the price he was asked which was about one-third more than the poor range cost, and after a few years the range was found to be as good almost as when first bought.

This is one illustration of how economy wrongfully practiced is expensive. It is not always wise to seek the bargain counters when good articles are wanted. Neither is it a wise idea to buy goods before you have an opportunity to carefully examine them and determine their value.

Get your handkerchiefs ready: A burglar stole a watch from the home of a Chicago woman. On the case was inscribed "From Mother." The burglar sent the watch back when he noticed the inscription, with a note to the effect that he had once had a mother, too, and also a sister, an aunt and a grandmother, and when he read "From Mother," it so affected him that he could not content himself until the watch was returned. Courage and Dandyism. There still exists in many minds the ridiculous notion that the man cannot be manly who pays more than the ordinary amount of attention to the adornment of his body. There is no greater mistake made than to believe that well dressed men must be effeminate. Courage and dandyism can go hand in hand just as comfortably as courage and dowdiness—if not more comfortably.—London Gentlewoman. Healthfulness of Laundry Work. Laundry work is one of the most healthy forms of labor, and especially female labor, that can be found, and we challenge any one claiming the contrary to produce anywhere in any industry a finer and healthier class of girls than are to be seen any day of the week in a modern sanitary laundry.—Laundry Record. Preserving Forests. Precautions are now being taken to preserve the forests which were once destroyed so ruthlessly. A telephone system is to be installed in one of the government forest reserves in the state of Wyoming, so that if forest fires break out men can be quickly summoned from any other part of the reserve to fight the fire. Knew Little of Geography. In South Africa a Chinese laborer is undergoing imprisonment for theft and desertion from the Johannesburg mines. During his trial he informed the magistrate that he left his work with the intention of walking home from Africa to China, and that he hoped to reach it by following the railway line. Economizing. Every now and then a man feels that it is absolutely necessary for him to economize, and immediately looks around to see what unnecessary expenditures his wife is making. An old cheap bureau or dresser can be made to look like expensive mahogany, oak or walnut with one coat of Perw-Lac. Try it. For sale by F. E. Storms & Co.

The board of county auditors have refused to allow the claim of L. D. Watkins for damages, amounting to about $3,100, for injury done to his 300-acre farm in Sharon by water from the Freedom drain. This drain was recently enlarged, and it is claimed that the water from it spread over the Watkins farm. A telegram from Lansing to the daily papers yesterday says: "Railroad Commissioner Glasgow has received a letter from the Michigan Central railroad saying that the schedules of the Lake Shore line were being reconstructed and that the two-cent fare rate would be put into effect without contest. The Wash-bash is also preparing to comply. The commissioner has replied formally to the letter of the Pere Marquette, stating that he believed its ready compliance will be good for the road and the new law a profitable thing for it." What Women Should Know

LATEST SLEEVES AND BELT PINS

FROM FASHIONDOM

Newest and Latest Hints From the Fashion Centers.

Cross-over fichu effects trim many of the newest bodices.

A great many brown and ecru hats appear in spring millinery.

China ribbons will be worn a good deal, and they are very pretty.

Pale ponce color and putty shades seem to be favorites for spring.

Variety in millinery is as pronounced as in dressmaking this season.

Black and white effects in summer fabrics are to be fashionable.

Frogs and cabochons are found even on the linen suits this season.

A soft suede tint and a deep amber are two of the favored yellows.

Drap souple of a silky weave made in the kimono order makes a graceful evening wrap.

There is a new yellow-green that resembles a pale lettuce shade. It seems to be gaining in the popular fancy.

The touch of gold in tailored suits is so carefully handled that it is not so inappropriate as one might think.

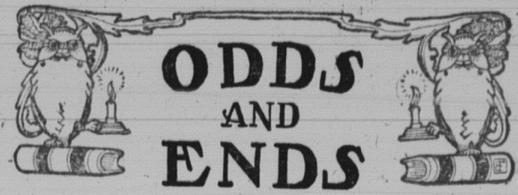

Pongees in natural color showing double linked ring spots of blue, red, green or brown are worthy of attention.

The bolero has a dangerous rival in a jaunty little coat which is cut away over the hips and has a waist-coat. This coat is particularly effective trimmed with braid in the style dubbed military.

A stylish hat to accompany a tailor suit is of rough straw in royal blue, trimmed with a parrot with a fine tail and two "arrab" quilts. The drapery of brick red silk matches the color of the bird's tail.

Gloves are attached to the sleeve invisibly by jeweled knobs, which fasten to a button on the glove itself. Some of these are in tortoiseshell, with a diamond trefol in the center, some of smoked pearl, with gold fleur-de-lis; some in amethyst and pearl.

Miss Maria Christensen, a young Swedish woman, earns her living by exercising the pet dogs of the rich. She lives in New York City.

ODDS AND ENDS

Medicinal Vegetables.
Watercress is an excellent blood purifier. Tomatoes are good for a torpid liver, but should be avoided by gouty people. Lettuce has a soothing effect on the nerves, and is excellent for sufferers from insomnia. It also acts as a sedative upon the human frame, owing to the opium it contains. Celery is a nerve tonic, so are onions. Spinach has great aperient qualities, and is far better than medicine for sufferers from constipation.

For Ants.
When ants are troublesome sprinkle sugar through a small piece of sponge and leave these about the pantry shelves. In a short time the ants will be holding a high carnival. Plunge the sponge in boiling water and set again.

Washing Glasses.
Wash new glasses for the first time in cold water; this will give them a brighter look than if hot water is used. Glasses that have been used for milk should also

TO BE A WELCOME GUEST

Everyone knows that to be a successful hostess, making one's visitors have a good time and be at ease, is a talent, but we are quite sure that to be a successful guest requires more tact and art. There are painfully few persons whose departure is regretted from the house in which they have been visiting, and it is all because the stranger within the gate has taxed either the nerves, resources, pocketbook or patience, and, alas! sometimes all of these.

The visitor has not done it purposely, of course, but simply through stupidity, selfishness or thoughtlessness. Whichever the cause, if she wishes to be popular among her friends at a distance she will do well to remedy the fault, else they will ask her only at such times as they must not to have ill-feeling.

To be a perfect guest, we should say, consists in putting one's self thoroughly in touch with the habits of the household, conforming to the hours and ways, adding to the pleasure of the household by being agreeable and appreciative and at the same time not making one's self too much a "member of the family."

This is the error that guests who don't wish "to be a bit of trouble" are likely to fall into, and it is quite as bad as upsetting the machinery in another way by not doing one's share. There is decidedly such a thing as being too informal for a guest, going into rooms where the hostess would prefer one did not, and by being constantly in evidence, knowing too much of the ways and means of managing.

Punctuality at meals is one of the requisites of being a successful guest. In houses where the servants are limited to two, or even one, tardiness in serving meals will upset the whole domestic machinery, and make all hard for mistress and maids.

If a visitor doesn't like to have an early breakfast, for instance, and her hostess has the first meal served at 7:30, the guest must be willing to be ready for it, or she should give up visiting in that house. In other words, if one is not willing to do as the hostess, she should cut that house from her list in which to stay. It is grossly unfair and a tacit criticism not to do as the others in it.

A guest should never forget that a hostess will have many small matters pertaining to house-keeping and the like to look after, and should see that she relieves the housekeeper of the responsibility of her presence for a time that they may be looked after.

On the other hand, the hostess is to recollect that the guest will have letters to write, trifling mending to do, or will have found a book she would like to run through, and in her desire to give her friend a good time the housekeeper should not absorb her time so that the other has no chance for any of these. Flatly each should have a little while to themselves every day.

BEAUTIFUL SLEEVE DESIGNS

Do Your Sleeves Suit You?

Are your sleeves bothering you because they look out of date? If so, just note some of the fashion plates and see what you can do with a little ingenuity. First, if they are of that variety worn comparatively recently, "baggy" at the hand and small at the top, turn them upside down and add a modern cuff or band. They may need a little piecing right at the seams, top and bottom, but, well done, this need never show. If they are merely tight, insertion or vertical bands will remedy the evil. Or, possibly, they may be tucked or gathered in somewhere. If so, let all this out and press well so that the old stitchings will not show, and try cutting a new sleeve. Don't feel distressed if the under side is not quite so straight with good as you would like to have it, if it comes out better that way. Make the rest of your sleeve carefully and give it a good touch. No one will notice the under side, and the sooner you yourself forget it the better off you will be.

FLIES.

To prevent flies from settling on picture frames and chandeliers, hold three or four onions in a pan of water and apply the water with a soft brush. In many city homes or where houses are to be closed for the summer common unbleached cheesecloth is used to protect pictures and frames from flies. Cut a piece of cloth large enough to go all around the picture. Let the picture face down on this, put the cloth around and baste up at the back. A glazed tarlatan that is transparent makes a still better covering.

Never twist the hair in a towel to dry it. Instead let the air and sunshine remove the moisture.

After Eating Heartily.
To go to bed immediately after eating a large meal is a mistake. The digestive organs are busy then and their activity has a certain effect upon the brain. It is the tired state, produces unpleasant, restless dreams.

For Headache.
To relieve a bad headache try a cloth wrung out in hot water and vinegar and laid across the forehead as hot as can be borne. It is an excellent remedy. Another good plan is to bathe the nape of the neck with hot water and cologne.

Hair Grower.
A simple hair grower and one that is very effective, is made by combining one ounce of pure castor oil, two ounces of pure olive oil, and two ounces of pure sweet almond oil. Part the hair with a comb and rub in the liquid with the fingers, ending parting the hair over and over again until the preparation has been distributed over the entire scalp.

A Neat Coiffure.
Here is a suggestion for a neat and attractive coiffure for young girls. The hair should be parted in the center or slightly to one side, wavy on the side and combed back in a soft puff and held with combs. It is then parted in the back and braided into two braids, moderately loose. The end

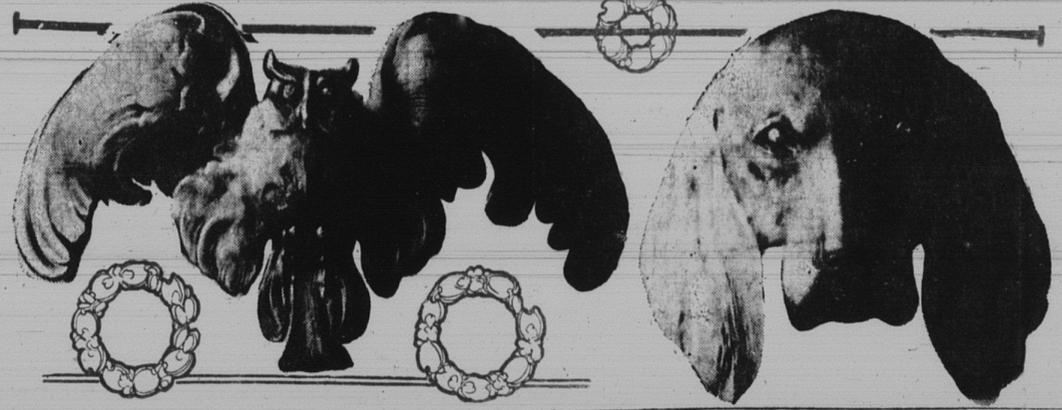

FOR THE NURSERY

The walls of the nursery are given a picture book nowadays, and the small occupant dwells in a land of pictorial fairy tales, Mother Goose stories and all sorts of quaint fancies, ranging from rabbits to stories of the crusades. The variety of subjects now to be procured for nursery wall papers is so tempting that it is difficult to make a choice. One of the newest designs shows as a base a wooden fence, with all most life-size children peeping through, with a background full of all sorts of interesting pictures to amuse the little people. If one does not care for such a pattern to cover the walls entirely, which in the case of a bedroom would not, perhaps, be particularly judicious, the border may be allegorical and the side walls of plain-colored moire.

BURNT VEGETABLES.

If a cereal or vegetable burns while cooking the usual course of action is to pour the contents of the burned pan into a clean kettle and continue the cooking. Even if this is done the food will often have a burnt taste. If the first vessel is plunged into cold water and allowed to remain for a few minutes before pouring the food into the second receptacle there will be none of this disagreeable flavor.

The sunny-hearted, sweet tempered people are the ones who hold their friends. Bitterness and gloom will drive every one away from you.

BELT BUCKLES ARE OUT

Belt Pins in Many Novel Designs Are the Very Latest Creations.

One really can't tell, from the outside, whether a buckle or a pin fastens the belt. They have the same appearance. But the buckle never, in its wildest flights of fancy, assumed the bizarre and startling effect that the pin has taken into itself.

And the pin is the latest conceit. The buckle has been relegated to a secondary place in the favor of the feminine world. In the realm of fashion one can never be sure that any object has come to stay. So the reign of the belt pin may be short or long, according to the fancy of the fair wearers.

The majority of these pins are of extravagant design. Enormous dog heads, owls and other figures of animals are used for the decorations. Then there are jewels in great profusion, onyx being very popular. These pins are large in the long way, not up and down. On a tall, graceful woman one can imagine that they would be very handsome, but how comical some of them will appear on small women!

It must not be supposed, however, that these new and conspicuous pins offer the only choice. By no means. There are as dainty, pretty patterns as the most delicate taste could wish. In fact, no other season has ever offered such a variety of choice, in both pins and buckles as the present one has brought forth.

There are few plain pins, the majority being made ornate with stones. There is a fancy for the jade settings, and some of them are handsomely mounted.

There is a fancy for pins and buckles that match; at least, the well-dressed woman seeks to preserve an affinity between her buckles, belts and gowns. Nowadays no woman contents herself with a single pin. She makes a collection and wears a different one with each gown.

FOR PAINT SPOTS.

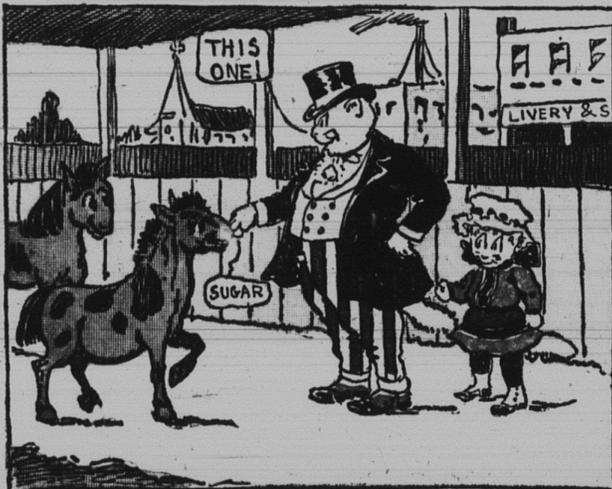

Where a house is being done up paint is not infrequently split on doorsteps, and it is sometimes found difficult to remove. In that case make a strong solution of potash and wash the steps, simply leaving the solution to soak it. In a short time the paint will become soft and then can be washed off with soap and water. Then use cold water. Paint which has been left for some time will yield to this treatment.

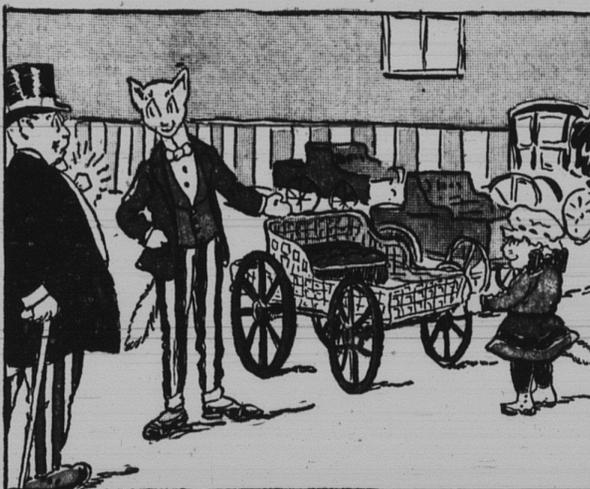

O-O-H, LOOKY! WHAT PITY ITTY URMS!

FOR PINKIE PRIM, FROM UNCLE TIM

The smallest Shetland pony, —
The smallest to be had,
Uncle Tim bought Pinkie Prim.
I guess that wasn't bad!

Bought her, too, a runabout;
A cute one, — wicker-work, —
With running-gear ball-bearing,
So smooth, there was no jerk.

To the Park drove Pinkie then; —
Nor e'en once used the whip;
On the way passed Newsie Jim,
Who deftly doffed his "dip".

"Outing Day" for poor kids 'twas;
And lots of them were there!
Running, romping in the Park,
And drinking in fresh air.

All of them she gave a ride,
But each time — ONLY ONE —
"Pulling" poor kids round the Park,
For Shetlands is no fun!

And, all who've Shetland ponies,
Should do as Pinkie did;
Give 'em all a ride a-piece!
But, each time JUST ONE KID!
