THE HOUSE OF A THOUSAND CANDLES

CHAPTER XXII.—Continued.

She swung the lantern at arm's length back and forth so that its rays at every forward motion struck my face like a blow.

"It isn't exactly pleasant in this cavern. Unless you wish to turn me over to the lord high executioner, I will bid you good night."

"But the infamy of this—of coming in here to spy upon me—to help my enemy—the man who is seeking plunder—doesn't seem to trouble you."

"No. Not a particle!" she replied quietly, and then, with an impudent fling, "Oh, no!" she held up the lantern to look at the wick. "I'm really disappointed to find that you were a little ahead of me, Squire Glenarm. I didn't give you credit for such perseverance. But if you have the notes—"

"The notes!" He told you there were notes, did he? The coward sent you here to find them, after his other tools failed him!"

She laughed that low laugh of hers that was like the bubble of a spring.

"Of course no one would dare deny what the great Squire Glenarm says," she said wittingly.

"You can't know what your perfidy means to me," I said. "That night at the Armstrongs, I thrilled at the sight of you. As you came down the stairway I thought of you as my good angel and I belonged to you—all my life, the better future that I wished to make for your sake."

"Please don't!" she exclaimed sorrowfully, the mirth all gone. "I felt that my words had touched her; that there were regret and repentance in her tone and in the gesture with which she turned from me."

She hurried down the passage toward the chapel, swinging the lantern at her side, and I followed, still mystified, and angered by her composure. She even turned, with pretty courtesy, to hold the light for me at the crypt steps—a service that I accepted perforce and with joyless acquiescence in the irony of it.

"You seem to know a good deal about this place, and I suppose I can't object to your familiarizing yourself with your own property. And the notes—I'll give myself the pleasure of handing them to you to-morrow. You can cancel them and give them to Mr. Pickering—a fitting pledge between you!"

I thrust my hands into my pockets to give an impression of ease I did not possess.

"Yes," she remarked in a practical tone: "$320,000 dollars is no mean sum of money. Mr. Pickering will undoubtedly be delighted to have his debts canceled."

"In exchange for a life of devotion," I sneered. "So you knew the sum—the exact amount of these notes. He hasn't served you well. He should have told you that we found them to-day."

"You are not nice, are you, Squire Glenarm, when you are cross? But Mr. Pickering wasn't kind not to tell me. Why, I might catch a dreadful cold down here!"

She was like Olivia now. I felt the utter futility of attempting to reason with a woman who could become a child at will. She walked up the steps and out into the church vestibule. Then before the outer door she spoke with decision.

"We part here, if you please! And—I have not the slightest intention of trying to explain my errand into that passage. You have jumped to your own conclusion, which will have to serve you. I advise you not to think very much about it,—to the exclusion of more important business,—Squire Glenarm!"

She lifted the lantern to turn out its light, and it made a glory of her face, but she paused and held it toward me.

"Pardon me! You will need this to light you home."

"But you must not cross the park alone!"

"Good night! Please be sure to close the door to the passage when you go down. You are a dreadfully heedless person, Squire Glenarm."

She flung open the outer chapel door and ran along the path toward St. Agatha's. I watched her in the straight until a bend in the path hid her swift-moving figure.

Down through the passage I hastened, her lantern lighting my way. At the Door of Bewilderment I closed the opening, setting up the line of wall as we had left it in the afternoon, and then I went back to the library, freshened the fire and brooded before it until Bates came to relieve me at dawn.

CHAPTER XXIII.

Besieged.

It was nine o'clock. We had swallowed some breakfast, though I believe no one had manifested an appetite, and we were cheering ourselves with the faintest talk possible. Stoddard, who had been to the chapel for his usual seven o'clock service, was deep in the pocket Greek testament he always carried.

Bates ran in to report a summons at the outer wall, and Larry and I went together to answer it, sending Bates to keep watch toward the lake.

Our friend, the sheriff, with a deputy, was outside in a buggy. He stood up and talked to us over the wall.

"You gents understand that I'm only doing my duty. It's an unpleasant business, but the court orders me to eject all trespassers on the premises, and I've got to do it."

"The law is being used by an infamous scoundrel to protect himself. I don't intend to give in. We can hold out here for three months, if necessary, and I advise you to keep away and not act as a tool for a man like Pickering."

The sheriff listened respectfully, resting his arms on top of the wall.

"You ought to understand, Mr. Glenarm, that I ain't the court; I'm the sheriff, and it's not for me to pass on these questions. I've got my orders and I've got to enforce 'em, and I hope you will not make it necessary for me to use violence. The judge said to me, 'We deplore violence in such cases.' Those were his honor's very words."

"You may give his honor my compliments and tell him that we are sorry not to see things his way, but there are points involved in this business that he doesn't know anything about, and we, unfortunately, have no time to lay them before him."

The sheriff's seeming satisfaction with his position on the wall and his disposition to parley had begun to arouse my suspicions, and Larry several times exclaimed impatiently at the absurdity of discussing my affairs with a person whom he insisted on calling a constable, to the sheriff's evident annoyance.

"Move If You Dare, and I'll Plug You with Your Own Gun."

"You, sir,—we've got our eye on you, and you'd better come along peacefully. Laurence Donovan; the descriptions fits you to a 't'."

"You could buy a nice farm with that reward, couldn't you?" began Larry, but at that moment Bates ran toward us calling loudly.

"They're coming across the lake, sir," he reported, and instantly the sheriff's head disappeared, and as we ran toward the house we heard his horse pounding down the road toward St. Agatha's.

"The law be damned. They don't intend to come in here by the front door as a matter of law," said Larry. "Pickering's merely using the sheriff to give respectability to his maneuvers."

It was no time for a discussion of motives. We ran across the meadow past the water tower and down to the boat-house. Far out on the lake we saw half a dozen men approaching the Glenarm grounds. They advanced steadily over the light snow that lay upon the ice, one man slightly in advance and evidently the leader.

"It's Morgan," exclaimed Bates. "And there's Ferguson."

Larry chuckled and slapped his thigh.

"Observe that stocky little devil just behind the leader. He's my friend from Scotland Yard. Lads! this is really an international affair."

"Bates, go back to the house and call at any sign of attack," I ordered. "The sheriff's loose somewhere."

"And Pickering is directing his forces from afar," remarked Stoddard. "I count ten men in Morgan's line," said Larry, "and the sheriff and his deputy make two more. That's 12, not counting Pickering, that we know of on the other side."

"Warn them away before they get much nearer," suggested Stoddard. "We don't want to hurt people if we can help it,"—and at this I went to the end of the pier. Morgan and his men were now quite near, and there was no mistaking their intentions. Most of them carried guns, the others revolvers and long ice hooks.

"Morgan," I called, holding up my hands for a truce, "we wish you no harm, but if you enter these grounds you do so at your peril."

They had paused at a word from Morgan and listened silently.

"We're all sworn deputy sheriffs, called the caretaker smoothly. "We've got the law behind us."

"That must be why you're coming in the back way," I replied.

The thickest man whom Larry had identified as the English detective now came closer and addressed me in a high key.

"You're harboring a bad man, Mr. Glenarm. You'd better give him up. I've got my papers and the American law supports me. You'll get yourself into trouble if you protect that man. You may not understand, sir, that he's a very dangerous character."

"Thanks, Davidson!" called Larry. "You'd better keep out of this. You now I'm a bad man with the shillalah!"

"That you are, you blackguard!" yelled the officer, so spitefully that we all laughed.

I drew back to the boat-house.

"They are not going to kill anybody if they can help it," remarked Stoddard. "Any more than we are. Even deputy sheriffs are not turned loose to do murder, and the Wabana county court wouldn't, if it hadn't been imposed on by Pickering, lend itself to a game like this. And this business here is only a private affair between Pickering and the sheriff."

"Now we're in for it," yelled Larry; and the 12 men, in close order, came running across the ice toward the shore.

"Open order, and fall back slowly toward the house," I commanded. And we deployed from the boat-house, while the attacking party still clung together,—a strategic error on their side, as Larry assured us.

"Stay together, lads. Don't separate; you'll get lost if you do," he yelled derisively to the enemy.

Stoddard bade him keep still, and we soon had our hands full with a

FOR THE BOUDOIR

PINCUSHION AND NEEDLE CASE IS PRETTY.

Can Be Made by Any Woman Fond of Fine Needlework—Attractive Occupation for the Summer Days.

The woman who is fond of doing fine hand needlework can often make very pretty and dainty little things without much outlay for material, and this sort of work is quite easy, furnishing attractive occupation for long summer days. The article pictured on this page has the added virtue of being useful.

One's favorite flower may be used as decoration for the odd little pincushion shown in the drawing. The cushion may be made of pink satin with wild roses, green satin with almost any flower, violet satin with pansies, or any desired combination.

The body of the cushion was in the form of a sack, having a heavy cardboard base, covered with the satin, and the sack neatly stuffed and sewed up at the top. The flowers for the top were cut from satin ribbon, the petals being tinted in the natural tints of the flower, the stamens and centers being taken from artificial flowers. If intended for a gift, the cushion may be stuck full of pins with fancy heads, forming symmetrical designs.

In the same picture with the pincushion is another article to be made by the fancy-worker. It is a needle-and-pin case, made of fine French cretonne, decorated with pink flowers and green foliage in natural shades, green ribbon being used for binding. The case has a pocket for tapes, elastic, thread, etc., and was provided with pinked flannel pieces for the needles and pins. The flap has rounded corners and fastens with a glove clasp.

LIGHT TRIMMINGS ON HATS.

Fashion's Frown Set on Anything Too Elaborate.

The white hats are many of them made of chip, but others again are made of crin and not a few of tulle, but whatever the material, the trimmings are light and airy, flimsy and suggestive of light weight which is essential to summer comfort. One of the latest Parisian fads is for the use of skeletonized flowers, but those of slightly more definite form are preferred on this side of the sea. A very lovely example of a recent hat of chip is of the rather large, modified mushroom sort and is trimmed extensively with princess lace and great masses of white morning glories. These last flowers are favorites at the present time, both in white and in color. A second hat, which also is of the fine French chip, is faced with moire and is trimmed with big bows of wide moire ribbon and large white roses, but in this instance there is a touch of color found in the foliage, which is of the natural green. One of the prettiest of the crin hats that yet has been noted is trimmed with condor plumage but is worn with such a big enveloping veil that the details are entirely of a secondary nature. As distinct a novelty as anything the season has brought forth is of pure white straw trimmed with a mass of flowers and their foliage, which are all made of white batiste. The flat has apparently gone forth that the lighter and more flimsy the hat the more fashionable and attractive it is.

To Shorten Thin Dresses.

A simple way to shorten wash linen or crash skirts that have a deep hem at the bottom is to take up a tuck on the inside of the hem. This need not be stitched on a machine or very particularly sewn, as the starch used in the laundry will hold it in position, and it can be more easily ripped if the washing shrinks the material.

Music a Structure.

As statues are made of clay, marble or bronze, and paintings of colors; as houses are made of bricks and stone, so music is built up of sounds, of sound on top of sound, sound against sound, sound woven in and through sound.—The Delineator.

CORD FOR THE PURSE.

Simple Contrivance That Will Insure Against Loss.

Perhaps one of the most simple and effective ways of attaching a safety cord to a purse is illustrated by the accompanying sketch. It merely consists of a piece of silk cord and a large china bead or a small key-ring. The bead or ring is knotted on to one side of the cord, and the other end passed through it to form a loop to go over the wrist. The two ends are then sewn firmly on to either side of the purse. When the hand is placed through the loop, the loose end of the cord can be pulled through the bead, thus tightening the cord on the wrist, and thereby rendering the loss of the purse almost impossible. If this little precaution were always taken, it would save many a purse from being laid down and forgotten, lost, or perhaps snatched in the street, and as the cord may be attached to any purse in a few moments, the little trouble of doing it may save us the annoyance of losing our purse and its contents.

SATIN ON SHEER FABRICS.

Favorite Decoration Seen Upon the Summer Gowns.

Soft satin is more extensively used than ever for trimming sheer summer fabrics, and looks especially well against a background of fresh, crisp organdy. One of the models of the week along the Rue de la Paix is an old yellow organdy, the skirt weighted with bands of yellow satin. This hangs from under a girdle of the same material, embroidered on the upper edge with yellow silk.

The Roumanian, Breton, Chinese and Japanese embroideries in all their brutality of color are also favorite trimmings for summer stuffs, and add charming touches to the soft materials of lustrous finish used for embellishments. When well handled they are gay, with a certain elegance that goes well with the summer months.

Tinted flit lace is used upon many charming summer gowns.

Ankle Corsets.

When everybody is leaving for the country with the children to take long walks and look for rosy cheeks, it is well to make provision for those who have weak ankles, says the Chicago News. Until now mothers have thought a flannel band sufficient, but there is little value in this practice. The flannel band often works loose and if fastened tightly enough to prevent this is apt to induce a painful swelling above and below it. The demand for something to take the place of this has brought out the "ankle corset." These are thin bands of leather, covering the heel and the lower part of the leg and lacing in front like a boot. The foot in this little covering is well protected in all its movements and little ankles run no risk.

Materials for the Waist.

In selecting materials for waist with the circular tucked yoke, a plain fabric without stripe or figure is most suitable as the tucked yoke does not develop prettily in other than plain material. If made up in striped material, the lines of the stripes would be all broken up and irregular. In a fabric with figures or flowers scattered over it the effect would not be quite so bad. At the same time, however, the tucks would not show so nearly as much advantage as when plain material is used.

Ventilate to Avoid Germs.

Give the dining-room a good airing every day, winter as well as summer. Germs are in dust everywhere, but in the dining-room they get into the food and thence into our bodies. The dining-room, above all rooms, must be kept clean and well aired. Ventilate the halls. The stale odor of cooking, which too often greets one coming in out of the fresh air, savors of a third-rate boarding house.

Music a Structure.

As statues are made of clay, marble or bronze, and paintings of colors; as houses are made of bricks and stone, so music is built up of sounds, of sound on top of sound, sound against sound, sound woven in and through sound.—The Delineator.

ALL LIKED THE TEA

SPECIAL BREW LIVENED UP TEMPERANCE MEETING.

But There Would Be an Awful Rum-pus if the Ladies Knew Just What Made the Beverage So Good.

The half dozen or more elderly women who compose a select little temperance society met at the home of an East End member the other day for one of their semi-soften discussions of ways and means and such like.

It so happens that one of the members is rather feeble in consequence of her advanced years and is accustomed to lie down every afternoon. She was going to occupy a lounge while the other blue-ribboned members went on with their talk.

The hostess suggested that maybe a cup of tea would help some, and acting upon her own suggestion hustled out and came back with the teapot steaming.

The woman who had planned to lie down during the session brightened up after taking the tea.

"That's certainly the best tea I ever tasted," she said. "I don't believe I'll lie down."

The others, too, agreed that the tea came pretty near to being just the thing. It braced them up so that their meeting was the liveliest they had had for these many weeks.

Now, a day or so before the temperance session, the head of the household at which the meeting was held, and who may be known as John H. Isnot, because that isn't it, had been advised by his physician to take a certain kind of bitters in whiskey.

He was ordinarily a total abstainer from the drop of the hat, but he got the bitters and a half pint of the whiskey. After he had fixed up enough for a dose or two he wondered what to do with the bottle containing the rest of the stuff, for he knew how his wife stood on the temperance plank and that no physician's recommendation squared the rum thing with her. Then he noticed an old teapot that they seldom used.

A day or so after the meeting of the temperance society—husbands and daughters of the members came to Mr. Isnot's home one by one to learn how he came by such excellent tea. "My wife never has got through talking about that tea she got over here," said one man. "She felt better for two or three days."

"A friend of mine in the tea business gave me two or three pounds of that," said Isnot. "I doubt if I can get hold of any more of it."

"Mother'll give $3 a pound for it," said a young woman who had just arrived.

But Isnot is a conscientious man and has thus far refused to take any of their money.—Cleveland Plain Dealer Told of Eccentric Author.

There has been a revival of interest in Germany in all that pertains to Vischer, the eccentric author, due to the celebration of the one hundredth anniversary of his birth. One of the stories told of him is of his adventure with an American girl. He was busy with his treatise on esthetics, which afterward became famous, when the girl secured the next room to his, and played on the piano for hours at a time. He begged for quiet, but was told that if he did not like his room he could leave. He had occupied his apartments for 14 years, and was loath to change, so one day he burst from his room, foaming and yelling like a madman, and so scared the pianist that she moved the next day. It was Vischer, too, who, while in Italy, became angered at a waiter in a cafe, and, being short on Italian phrases, held the waiter by the coat tail, while with the other hand he searched a pocket dictionary for the Italian word meaning scoundrel. As a centenary gift Vischer's letter from Italy has been printed by his son.

Magnate's Rise to Riches.

From a small barefooted boy on a tramp steamship to the owner of a mansion on one of the handsomest residence streets in the world is the advancement made by James Corriggan, Cleveland, ore magnate. He went into the oil business and sold out to the Standard Oil company. He then went to Austria and made a fortune in the refining industry. Returning to this country he became interested in the ore and vessel business. The Corriggan-McKinney company, of which he is president, is one of the biggest shipping concerns on the lakes and owns a big fleet of boats.

Wanted New Ones.

A traveler putting up at a fifth-class hotel, brought the "Boots" up with his angry storming.

"Want your room changed, sir? What's the matter, sir?"

"The room's all right," fumed the guest; scornfully. "It's the fleas I object to, that's all."

"Mrs. Blobs!" bawled the "Boots" in an uninterested sort of voice. "The gent in No. 8 is satisfied with his room; but he wants the fleas changed."—Illustrated Bits.

Willing to "Beat It."

"And have you a trade?" asked the lady at the back door.

"Yes'm," replied the seedy-looking one. "I'm a gold-beater, ma'am."

"I don't believe you."

"Well, let me get my hands on some gold and you'll see me 'beat it, ma'am!'"

Chicken Curry.

Cut a three-pound chicken in pieces for serving. Put butter in a hot frying pan and cook the chicken ten minutes, then add the liver and giblets, and cook ten minutes longer. Use one-third of a cup of butter. Cut two onions in thin slices and add to the chicken with one tablespoonful of curry powder and two teaspoonfuls of salt. Add enough boiling water to cover and simmer until chicken is tender. Remove the chicken, strain and thicken the liquor with flour, pour gravy over the chicken and serve with a border of rice.

Imitation Buckwheat Cakes.

These are delicious to serve with maple sirup, and, best of all, perfectly hygienic. In the evening mix four cups whole wheat flour, one-half cup cornmeal, one cup wheat flour, and one-half yeast cake dissolved in lukewarm water. Add enough milk and water to make a thick batter and pour into a hot skillet. Cook on each side for half an hour. In the morning add a half level teaspoonful soda dissolved in enough milk to make batter of the right consistency. Bake on a well-greased, hot griddle, and serve once.

Chop Suey.

For two people use one pound round steak cut for beef tea, in one round cut out of water, half teaspoon salt, and let it come to a boil in salt water. Add one-quarter of an onion or about three-quarters of an onion, add one large onion cut in two, add medium potatoes, cut in squares; boil quickly until potatoes are done.

CARE OF SILK HANDKERCHIEFS.

Precautions Necessary During the Process of Washing.

In washing silk handkerchiefs care should be taken to prevent their turning yellow. A silk handkerchief should never be boiled, nor have any soap rubbed upon it.

Make a lather of finely shredded white soap and water, wash and squeeze the handkerchief in it, press out all the moisture, and dry quickly in the sun; ironing them while they are still damp, but not wet.

White silk handkerchiefs used as neckties are sometimes cleaned very well with dried and powdered starch in which a little powdered blue has been mixed.

The handkerchief is spread over a clean white cloth, and with a pad of clean white linen the powder is rubbed over the silk, then dusted out, after which, with a moderately hot iron and two folds of slightly damp linen laid over the silk on the right side, the handkerchief is ironed, which brightens it considerably.

SERVING UP COLD MUTTON.

Fashioned Into Croquettes It Is an Appetizing Dish.

Take a pound of cold mutton, chop it very fine, and mix it well with rather more than tablespoonful of flour.

Chop an onion small and boil it in a cupful of broth and add it to the meat and flour, flavoring with pepper, salt and nutmeg, boil for five minutes.

Pour the mixture on a plate and set it aside to cool, then divide it into small portions, making each in croquettes. Egg and crumb them twice over, and fry in hot lard which should entirely cover the croquettes.

Drain well and serve hot, garnished with sprigs of parsley.

If the mince should be too stiff, add a little more broth or boiling water.

Housework and Physical Culture.

There are plenty of women who scorn housework, but are devoted to gymnastics. Now, the best of all around, indoor exercise is to be found in the manifold duties of housekeeping. Dusting, even cooking, bring more than one set of muscles into play, and none of them is more destructive to the beauty of the hands than gymnasium work and outdoor games. We are not advocating the performing of all of the household duties, without assistance of any kind, but of parts of them. Of course, if you have a liking for the work, and the strength, do it all if you want to, but this is not advisable unless lack of money is the inducement. There are so many ways in which time can be profitably spent.—What-to-Eat.

Left Over Steak.

When you have a small piece of cooked steak on hand, hardly enough to serve alone, try this plan: Moisten with hot water and reheat in a hot oven. Cut in long, thin pieces, finger lengths first. Make as many pieces of toast as you have pieces of steak, cutting the bread in the same shape. Make a gravy as follows: Cream together in the frying pan a small piece of butter and a spoonful of flour. Add gradually soup stock or any gravy until the mixture is smooth. Add one small onion, finely chopped, a few capers, and shreds of celery if wished. Put the bits of steak on the toast and pour the gravy over all.

Jellied Chicken.

Cut up a four-pound fowl, put in a stew pan with two slices of onion, cover with boiling water and cook slowly until the meat falls from the bones. When half cooked add a tablespoonful of salt. When chicken is tender remove and reduce the stock by cooking to three-fourths of a cupful, strain and remove fat. Decorate a mold with parsley and hard-cooked eggs, sliced. Pack in the meat freed from skin and bone and well seasoned. Pour over the hot stock and place until firm. In warm weather a teaspoonful of gelatin may be added to make the jelly firm.

Chicken Curry.

Cut a three-pound chicken in pieces for serving. Put butter in a hot frying pan and cook the chicken ten minutes, then add the liver and giblets, and cook ten minutes longer. Use one-third of a cup of butter. Cut two onions in thin slices and add to the chicken with one tablespoonful of curry powder and two teaspoonfuls of salt. Add enough boiling water to cover and simmer until chicken is tender. Remove the chicken, strain and thicken the liquor with flour, pour gravy over the chicken and serve with a border of rice.

MAN-A-LIN Is An Excellent Remedy for Constipation

There are many ailments directly dependent upon constipation, such as biliousness, discolored and pimply skin, inactive liver, dyspepsia, overworked kidneys and headache.

Remove constipation and all of these ailments disappear.

MAN-A-LIN can be relied upon to produce a gentle action of the bowels, making pills and drastic cathartics entirely unnecessary.

A dose or two of Man-a-lin is advisable in slight febrile attacks, in grippe, colds and influenza.

Deaths from X-Rays.

The death of Dr. Weigel, a surgeon of Rochester, from a disease due to the constant use of the X-rays makes the fourth who has lost his life from this cause, says the Christian Advocate.

The others were an assistant of Thomas Edison, a Boston physician and a woman of San Francisco named Fleischman. In the case of Dr. Weigel since 1904, when his right hand and all but the thumb and a finger of the left hand were removed, there had been four operations in trying to save his life. The first removed a part of the right shoulder; then a part of the muscles covering the right breast.

Mystery completely envelops the cause of death, the disease being unknown to medical science, though it is believed to have some great principle of life. Dr. Weigel was president of the Rochester Academy of Medicine and the American Orthopedic society.

The Revised Psalm.

The father's peroration was superb. "And departing, leave behind you," he concluded, "footprints on the sands of—"

But here the son rudely interrupted.

"Footprints?" he sneered. "Who wants to leave footprints?"

"Then what would you leave, my son?" the old man inquired.

"Tracks," said the youth, haughtily. Tracks of my 90-horse power racer, to be sure. Am I a dog or a working-man that I should leave mere footprints?"

Late one afternoon I reached Fred's home. The family were assembled to greet me, his mother and Great-

Well, I do not swear, but I never came so near it in my life as I did then—it was "The Beast," his sister. If the floor had opened I would have willingly been swallowed up; if I could have rushed out of the house, but no, I must stay and face them all.

I felt as if I had forfeited all right to my friend's hospitality by my outrageous talk, when he saw the pictures. I wildly wondered whether the mother and the girl herself knew. I tried to hope that it were possible that even Fred had not recognized the likeness. But no, the little camera had been too true for that, and there it stood out there in the hall with my valise, truly a detective marking me as a criminal.

Well, I lived through it; one could hardly live living and being happy in so charming a place as that home, no matter what his past misdeeds might be. And since I had to live, and had to stay, all I could do to make amends was to be as polite to them all as I could; and make myself as agreeable as possible. I did not see how they could be so kind to me. I had not been in the house a week, before I felt as if I had known them all my life, and I was truly sorry when the time came for us to start on our mountain trip. There were ten of us in the party, a gentleman and a lady who lived next door, two of our college friends, Mrs. and Miss Barnes, Fred and myself.

Four of us had cameras, and we were expected to do great things in the picture line, especially so, as one of our friends was an artist. He did beautiful work with his pencil and brush, and was also almost a professional photographer, so we hoped to learn much from him both in regard

"Beauty" and "The Beast"

By DR. JOHN

(Copyright, by Joseph B. Bowles.)

About a year and a half ago I invested in a detective camera, and although I made the purchase with many doubts as to the merits of these machines, I candidly confess to-day that it has served me well. I look at it almost with reverence; it has not won me fame, but it has made my fortune.

And this is how it came about: I was attending medical lectures, and had a short railroad journey to and from the city every day. My train down in the morning, coming from away up north, was often late, so I sometimes took my camera with me and amused myself while waiting by photographing many an unsuspecting victim on the depot platform. One week in particular, I had unusually good success, and I found when I came to develop my plates that I had three fine negatives, so after I had printed my proofs, I carried them triumphantly down to the parlor to show "the girls," as the two misses, my sisters, were usually called.

One of my pictures was the likeness of a young lady. I think it was one of the prettiest faces I have ever seen; nor was I alone in my admiration; all agreed that she was charming, such beautiful features, a sweet expression, such an intelligent face.

Picture No. 2 was the round chubby face of a little, ragged urchin, whom I occasionally saw around the depot.

Picture No. 3 we all pronounced the homeliest girl we had ever seen. I photographed her for that very reason; because she looked so placidly, contentedly ugly, resigned to her fate. We named the picture "Beauty" and "The Beast." It was a shame, was it not, for who would not be handsome if it were possible?

My sisters loved to tease, and it was long before I heard the last of those pictures. It was a long time before I felt the last of them; I could not get that sweet face out of my mind. I watched day after day on the train, eagerly hoping for another glimpse of it; but I was again and again disappointed. Why should I care so much for a stranger, whom I had never met? I was thoroughly provoked with myself, yet I was obstinately determined that I must and would see her again. To judge whether my likeness was true? But the boy or "The Beast" would have done as well for that.

About that time a friend, Fred Barnes, came to spend a night with me, and of course I showed him my pictures. He merely glanced at that favorite face and threw it aside. I could have shaken him. He took more interest in the homely one, and when he said that he did not think she was ugly, we made all manner of fun of him.

"If you call that good-looking," I remarked, "I truly pity an ugly woman."

Well, the term of lectures came to an end, examinations and the crowning time, when I found myself a doctor of medicine.

All these important events, so much to fill my head and hands, and yet they had not crowded out that old nagging memory. Every day I used to get out that picture and gaze at it. I hate sentimental youth, and could have kicked myself every time I did it, and yet I kept right on. Was fate driving me? I was not to begin my regular professional work until autumn. It was arranged that I was to spend a week with my friend, Fred Barnes, and then join a party going to the mountains.

Late one afternoon I reached Fred's home. The family were assembled to greet me, his mother and Great-

Well, I do not swear, but I never came so near it in my life as I did then—it was "The Beast," his sister. If the floor had opened I would have willingly been swallowed up; if I could have rushed out of the house, but no, I must stay and face them all.

I felt as if I had forfeited all right to my friend's hospitality by my outrageous talk, when he saw the pictures. I wildly wondered whether the mother and the girl herself knew. I tried to hope that it were possible that even Fred had not recognized the likeness. But no, the little camera had been too true for that, and there it stood out there in the hall with my valise, truly a detective marking me as a criminal.

Well, I lived through it; one could hardly live living and being happy in so charming a place as that home, no matter what his past misdeeds might be. And since I had to live, and had to stay, all I could do to make amends was to be as polite to them all as I could; and make myself as agreeable as possible. I did not see how they could be so kind to me. I had not been in the house a week, before I felt as if I had known them all my life, and I was truly sorry when the time came for us to start on our mountain trip. There were ten of us in the party, a gentleman and a lady who lived next door, two of our college friends, Mrs. and Miss Barnes, Fred and myself.

Four of us had cameras, and we were expected to do great things in the picture line, especially so, as one of our friends was an artist. He did beautiful work with his pencil and brush, and was also almost a professional photographer, so we hoped to learn much from him both in regard to finding the picturesque in nature, arranging our groups, etc., and also about extending the work.

The young ladies had promised their services if figures were wanted in our landscapes, so altogether, we anticipated having a profitable as well as a most enjoyable time.

I was no lady's-man, and would have been better pleased not to have so many in my party, still whether I liked or not, I was determined to do all in my power for Miss Barnes, to make amends.

Of course I never could find out whether she was aware of how I had talked about her; but I knew, and that was enough. She had mentioned a friend who lived near my home, thus explaining what had brought her to our town, and in range of my camera.

When we reached our journey's end everything exceeded our expectations. The place was grand, and the prospect for the next two months delightful.

Nor were we disappointed; it proved a glorious summer, the happiest of my life, childhood days excepted, when I was unconsciously happy.

But we were not without our troubles. Two days after our arrival, Mrs. Barnes was taken seriously ill. The physician of the nearest village was away, so I was alone responsible. My first patient! The symptoms were at first alarming, and I was much worried. Miss Barnes proved an excellent nurse, and I am willing to give her more than half the glory of the cure.

Perhaps the others did not know how anxious we were. It seemed to amuse them greatly that I made six or eight professional calls a day, and the better my patient grew the oftener I went there.

Fred scolded because I would not go on some of the long excursions and let him stay with his mother and sister; but I preferred to be close at hand.

Besides, when it became known that I was a physician, I had numerous calls for professional work from the people around, and I was becoming an inherited tendency.

A Cleveland society woman gave a party to nine friends of her young son, aged six. To add to the pleasure of the occasion she had the ice frozen in the form of a hen and ten chickens. Each child was allowed to select his chicken as it was served. Finally she came to the son of a prominent politician.

"Which chicken will you have, Bertie?" she asked.

"If you please, Mrs. H., I think I'll take the mamma hen," was the polite reply.—Lippincott's.

Impudence of Hoi Polloi.

A noted English artist was standing at the edge of the road, waiting for his horse, and he was dressed in his usual peculiar style—mustard-colored riding suit, vivid waistcoat and bright red tie. A man, who had evidently been reveling, happened to lurch round the corner of the street. He stared at the famous artist for a minute in silence, then he touched his cap and asked in a tone of deep commiseration, "Beg pardon, guv'nor, was you in mourning for anybody?"

No Peace Conference.

"Are you going to strike, ma?" asked the little boy, as he tremblingly gazed upon the uplifted shingle.

"That's just what I'm going to do."

"Can't we arbitrate, ma, before you strike?"

"I am just going to arbitrate," she said, as the shingle descended and raised a cloud of dust from the seat of a pair of pantaloons—"I am just going to arbitrate, my son, and this shingle is the board of arbitration."

BAD DREAMS

Frequently Due to Coffee Drinking.

One of the common symptoms of coffee poisoning is the bad dreams that spoil what should be restful sleep. A man who found the reason says:

"Formerly I was a slave to coffee. I was like a morphia fiend, could not sleep at night, would roll and toss in my bed and when I did get to sleep was disturbed by dreams and hobbobins, would wake up with headaches and feel bad all day, so nervous I could not attend to business. My writing looked like bird tracks, I had sour belchings from the stomach, in digestion, heartburn and palpitation of the heart, constipation, irregularity of the kidneys, etc."

"Indeed, I began to feel I had all the troubles that human flesh could suffer, but when a friend advised me to leave off coffee I felt as if he had insulted me. I could not bear the idea, it had such a hold on me and I refused to believe it the cause."

"But it turned out that no advice was ever given at a more needed time for I finally consented to try Postum and with the going of coffee and the coming of Postum all my troubles have gone and health has returned. I eat and sleep well now, nerves steadied down and I write a fair hand (as you can see), can attend to business again and rejoice that I am free from the monster coffee."

Ten days' trial of Postum in place of coffee will bring sound, restful, refreshing sleep. "There's a Reason." Read "The Road to Wellville," in pkgs. Some physicians call it "a little health classic."

THIRST WAS PAIN (I THOUGHT).

Familiar Sound Cause of Young Man's Bad Break.

John C. Hickey, of Detroit, at the New York convention of the International Society of Hotel and Restaurant Employees—a convention notable for its condemnation of the tipping system—said to a reporter:

"The public thinks that we waiters get rich off our tips. The public is very ignorant in this matter. When I think of its dense ignorance I am reminded of a political meeting I attended last April. There was a chap at this meeting who knew nothing of parliamentary procedure, and besides that, he was half full. Well, in the course of the meeting there was a lot of excitement and shouting. It grew worse and worse. The chairman, in the end, had to hammer on the table and yell:

"Order! Order!"

"Beer for me," said the ignorant young man."

VERY BAD FORM OF ECZEMA.

Suffered Three Years—Physicians Did No Good—Perfectly Well After Using Cuticura Remedies.

"I take great pleasure in informing you that I was a sufferer of eczema in a very bad form for the past three years. I consulted and treated with a number of physicians in Chicago, but to no avail. I commenced using the Cuticura Remedies, consisting of Cuticura Soap, Ointment and Pills, three months ago, and to-day I am perfectly well, the disease having left me entirely. I cannot recommend the Cuticura Remedies too highly to anyone suffering with the disease that I have had. Mrs. Florence E. Atwood, 18 Crilly Place, Chicago, Ill., October 2, 1905. Witness: L. S. Berger."

Stopped "Seeing Things."

Enthusiastic Nature Lover (to Reformed Tramp)—Ah, my friend, how well you must know the face of nature, and know it in all its moods. Have you ever seen the sun sinking in such a glare of glory that it swallows up the whole horizon with its passionate fire? Have you seen the mist gliding like a specter down the shrinking hillside, or the pale moon struggling to shake off the grip of the ragged storm cloud?

Reformed Tramp—No, sir; not since I signed the pledge.

WHAT THE WOMEN WORE.

Of Course, the Story Teller Didn't Really Mean Just That.

A gentleman recently returned from that quiet little Maryland resort, Ocean City, has a tale to tell of conditions that are really sensational. And the worst of it was that he did not know they were sensational at all. He was out calling the other evening, and the conversation started with the shirtwaist man, who, he returned wanderer said, was to be found in great quantities at the summer resort. Then he told about the habit everybody down there had contracted of going without hats. This is the way he told it to an interested company:

"You see everybody down there going about just the same. The men never wear coats; they go about in just their shirts and trousers, and the women are just like them."

A Different Loaf.

"Why," exclaimed little Johnny, when he heard his father telling about somebody who was looking after the leaves and fishes, "that's just what mamma says about Uncle Henry!"

"Says about Uncle Henry?" repeated his father, in astonishment. "What do you mean?"

"Why, pa, don't you know," said Johnny, "mamma says Uncle Henry only loafs and fishes."

Horrible Example.

"My dear," said Mrs. Strongmind, "I want you to accompany me to the town hall to-morrow evening."

"What for?" queried the meek and lowly other half of the combine.

"I am to lecture on the 'Dark Side of Married Life,'" explained Mrs. S., "and I want you to sit on the platform and pose as one of the illustrations."

The Limit of Life.
The most eminent medical scientists are unanimous in the conclusion that the generally accepted limitation of human life is many years below the attainment possible with the advanced knowledge of which the race is now possessed. The critical period, that determines its duration, seems to be between 50 and 60; the proper care of the body during this decade cannot be too strongly urged; carelessness then being fatal to longevity. Nature's best helper

Birds as Air-Ship Models.

The explanation of bird-flight that occurs to the casual observer is that these winged creatures fly by flapping their wings. But all birds do not do so. In fact, the birds that fly the best and most fearlessly can proceed for hours and sometimes for a whole day, and not infrequently against the force of a storm, without making the slightest perceptible movement of their wings. Although the secret of flight on motionless wings is at present beyond the solution of science, the principle involved gives promise of being the one that would be most successfully applied by man in aerial travel. It is true that nearly all insects and most of the small birds proceed by beating their wings, sometimes with almost incredible velocity. Possibly the air-ships of the future, particularly those designed for short trips, may proceed by this method. But the present tendency is toward sailing flight. The most common theory in explanation of flight on motionless wings is that the birds take advantage of air-currents. However, a fact that weakens the air-current idea is that birds of prey will dart instantly in any direction, quite regardless of air-currents, when a victim appears. This theory of necessary air-currents, remarks a writer in Everybody's, may have been as serious a hindrance to the progress of aeronautics as has been the fallacy that, in order to sail, a ship must be lighter than air. But the fact that there is among the myriad of bird species a number that wing their way without effort in either calm or storm, some of them sailing on motionless pinions, furnishes the hope and possibility that man may also become absolute master of the air.

A Bird-Flight Fallacy.

There have been decades of dispute over the value of the hollow bones and the air-sacs in many species of birds. It has been contended that inasmuch as the temperature of birds is higher than that of any other creature, this network of air chambers, becoming filled with air warmer than the surrounding atmosphere, enables the bird to rise. It is true, says Everybody's Magazine, that the canary, the pigeon, the pelican, the bat, and other flying birds are equipped with air chambers, but the Australian emu, which flies, when at all, with the greatest difficulty, as well as the ostrich and the apteryx, which cannot fly at all, are also provided with these air cells—and so, too, is the orang-utan! Moreover, notably good fliers—swifts, martins, snipes, the gloss starling, the spotted flycatcher, the wood-wren and the black-headed bunting, have bones destitute of air, some of them, in fact, being filled with marrow. No fallacy has been more difficult to puncture than this air cell or balloon theory of flight.

Among the newest societies is that founded in France, called the Confederation of Cripples. One of its objects is to secure a repeal of the law which forbids the halt and the lame to beg. In Paris, a man who lost both legs in a railroad accident is organizing a branch of the confederation. At present he goes about on two wooden legs and attracts public attention by playing a hand organ. He received orders from the chief of the league in Marseilles to establish a society in the capital. It is proposed to found branches in all the French towns, with the hope that charitable people may contribute in aid of members who are unable to work. Perhaps the most extraordinary item of news about this new brotherhood is that its Marseilles delegation went to Paris on foot!

Northern peoples are all given to free and independent ways, as has been shown from the days of the ancient Scandinavians and Norsemen to the present time. Even the hardy leaders of viking days were selected by their followers, and no king could rule without the consent of the people. King Frederick of Denmark, himself a liberal constitutional monarch, in visiting Iceland, a part of his dominion, has assured the Icelanders that they shall remain free and cooperate with him in making laws that will be satisfactory to them. And that wise and tactful procedure will probably make the Icelanders more faithful and devoted subjects than before.

Gov. Magoon is taking stern measures to put a stop to dueling in Cuba. In this he is right. No country can hope to be ranked among truly progressive and civilized communities if it adheres to the barbarous and antiquated practice of fighting duels.

The fossil of a lizard 314 feet long has been found out in Wyoming. When some prehistoric giant stepped on the tip of his tail, we wonder, exclaims the Boston Globe, how long it was before its head discovered it.

LATEST NEWS OF MICHIGAN

STRUCK A BLOW THAT KILLED HIS FRIEND AND IS NOW IN JAIL.

COLONEL MARCH IS DEAD.

Bits of News Gathered Here and There About the State Briefly Noted.

Using all his strength, Abraham Freeman, a negro, struck Robert Kesheski, a Pole, a blow with his fist on the left temple at Cedar City, crushing in the man's skull. The injured man lingered until morning. Kesheski, with three companions, left Cedar City in the evening with a keg of beer for a resort conducted by a square named Mary Blacksmith. The men knocked on the door and were told that Mary was away and that there was no one in the house but one of the women, who was talking, and she refused to admit them. The Pole went to another door and broke it in. Freeman was waiting for him and struck the blow just as the man fell through the broken door, not seeing who it was. Without a sound Kesheski sank to the floor, and on looking at his face the negro saw that he had terribly injured a friend. Medical assistance was summoned and thought the man but slightly injured. He never regained consciousness, however.

Col. March Passes Away.

Col. E. J. March, editor of the Hillsdale Leader since it was founded twenty-five years ago, died Saturday afternoon at 4 o'clock at his cottage at Baw Beese lake. He was 73 years old. Col. March served as postmaster under President Harrison and for eight years under McKinley and Roosevelt. Edwin J. March went out as captain in the Twenty-seventh infantry, being promoted lieutenant-colonel April 1, 1864. He was wounded in action near Petersburg, Va., June 18, 1864, promoted to colonel September 30, 1864, and resigned as lieutenant-colonel, April 17, 1865.

Died of Lockjaw.

A slight wound in his foot, caused by a rusty nail ten days ago, proved fatal to Hugh W. Black, a painter, and he died in Bay City at Mercy hospital after a brief but terrible illness with lockjaw. The first symptoms came Thursday night, when Black's neck stiffened. He thought it due to a cold, however, and did not see a physician until yesterday morning. He was taken to the hospital this morning, merely for palliative treatment. He was single.

Railroad Workmen Killed.

While at work on a construction pile driver on the Grand Trunk railroad at Attica, Ernest Arndt, of Imlay City, met a horrible death. Arndt was standing on the pile driver and placed his head between the guides while the heavy hammer was suspended in the air. In some manner the hammer fell. Arndt attempted to escape but the weight caught one side of his head and crushed it to a pulp. He died shortly afterward.

While loading railroad rails upon a flat car in Bay City Stephen Konieczny, 54 years old, was caught under a falling rail and almost instantly killed. His back was broken and his neck dislocated, the rail falling across his body at an angle. Konieczny was on the flat car when an engine coupled to the train, it is alleged, without warning to the men. The rail rested with one end on the car and the other on the ground. Konieczny lost his balance and fell off backwards, the movement of the train dislodging the rail so that it fell. Konieczny is survived by a widow and six children.

A Delayed Death Message.

Mrs. Elizabeth Greer, who was summoned to Seattle, Wash., by the serious illness of her daughter, and who did not get the later message telling of her death, was reached by a telegram near Denver, Colo., but not until after she had passed the body of her daughter, being sent by express to Northville.

Mrs. Clemmer, who was Irene Greer, was married two months ago to a Seattle business man. After an illness of short duration she died. A telegram had been sent calling her mother to her bedside, but it was delayed by the telegraphers' strike. When it arrived Mrs. Greer at once started for Seattle, but shortly afterward another message arrived, telling of the daughter's death.

Page, aged 25, is under arrest in Kalamazoo, and has confessed to stealing linen and lace worth $100 from the residence of W. O. Chamberlain, where she was a domestic. Harry Burlingame, who says he lives at Brantford, Ont., came to Lapeer to marry a girl with whom he had corresponded for two years. Burlingame says instead he found a letter from the girl stating that although she loved him, she had found another fellow and gone to Detroit to be married.

By the overturning of a canoe, Morris Jeffe, aged 22, and Elsie Huegel, aged 17, daughter of William F. Huegel, were drowned in the Saginaw river. There were no witnesses to the drowning, but screams were heard by people in the vicinity of the river, and the overturned craft was found next morning.

A. T. Tutman, a Maple Rapids farmer, came to St. Johns with his wife and two children and purchased a wagonload of furniture for a new house he has just built. The family started home and Tutman lit a cigar. The flames were unnoticed until close to the people. The horses were cut from the wagon. None of the load was saved.

Exhausted but game, Tom Robinson, the Holland youth who has undertaken the task of walking from his native city to Detroit, in time for Children's day at the state fair, staggered into Flint Thursday afternoon. Robinson still has a long walk ahead of him and has just a week to make Lapeer, Port Huron, Imlay City, back to Pontiac and then Detroit. He says he will make good, nevertheless.

Lansing.—Prof. Bogue of the Agricultural college died from a severe attack of appendicitis. He had been sick for a week and complications set in which caused him to fall steadily till the end came. Prof. Bogue graduated from Ohio State university in 1894. From 1896 to 1900 he was professor of botany and entomology at Oklahoma Agricultural college. In 1900 he came to Michigan Agricultural college as professor of forestry. He labored to improve the course in forestry offered by the college and succeeded in making the forestry course at Michigan Agricultural college equalled by no other college of its kind in the United States. He leaves a widow and one child. In accordance with a wish expressed just before he died, the body will be taken to Orwell, O., for burial.

Storms Disturb Encampment.

Another of those wind and rain storms that seem to have become a regular feature of the annual encampments of the Michigan National guard descended on camp McGurrah Monday afternoon. For several hours it rained steadily and at times so vigorously that it was difficult to see across the parade ground. Nearly the whole of the brigade was out on the post problem when the first of the cloudburst occurred and it was a very bedraggled body of officers and men that waded back to camp. About the only consoling feature of the day's doings was that the wind was considered enough not to blow down many tents, so the soldiers were able on their return from the maneuvers to mitigate war horrors to the extent of donning dry clothing. It has been suggested that if future encampments are to be marked by the same sort of weather as this year's tour of duty, rubber boots and umbrellas be made part of the uniform. The weather man's unnecessary liberality with his dampness made it necessary to postpone the Thielmann and military order of foreign wars—pistol matches. Dr. F. W. Schumway, secretary of the state board of health, inspected the camp and pronounced the sanitary arrangements excellent. He concurred in some recommendations made by Lieut. Col. Henkel, chief surgeon, for betterment along certain lines, particularly in the water supply. Owing to the inclemency of the weather, Gov. Warner did not come to camp, but was met by Cois. Stewart, Morgan and Watson, his personal aides and escorted to the Stearns hotel in Ludington, where accommodations had been reserved for him. The governor was guest of honor at a reception given by the citizens of Ludington in the evening and this reception was followed by a military ball at the Stearns. Both reception and ball were largely attended by officers of the National guard and civilians.

Boxers Not Bothered.

Boxer difficulties having disappeared for a time at least, Dr. and Mrs. Harry Carrington, Battle Creek missionaries at Chentu, West China, have settled down to their work on broader plans than ever. The boxer uprising upset many of their plans as their hospital was partially destroyed, some of their leading helpers murdered, and they escaped death themselves only by hiding in an attic for several days while the murderous Chinese hunted for them. Dr. Carrington has charge of a large new hospital at Chentu, 2,600 miles up the Yellow river, where the Carringtons have spent 15 years, during which four children have been born. In one day recently Dr. Carrington gave treatment to 101 patients.

Inspector Is Economical.

State Oil Inspector Benjamin, who is soon to be succeeded by Frank T. Neal, of Northville, probably holds the record for economical management of the office. His personal expenses for a quarter of a year are generally not to exceed $15 or $20. This includes stationery, postage, traveling expenses, express, telephoning, telegraphing, etc. During the last quarter he expended $3.66 for traveling expenses. With this sum he purchased a railroad ticket to Lansing and return, and expended 50 cents for two lunches while in the city. There was no street car fare, hack or hotel bill for the inspector during the quarter.

Michigan's Internal Revenue.

According to the annual report of the commissioner of internal revenue which has just been made public, there were collected in the state of Michigan from internal revenue receipts during the fiscal year ended June 30, 1907, $5,334,808.52. Of which amount $4,531,997.21 was received by Collector David Magnin in the First district, and $802,811.31 was collected by Samuel M. Lemon in the Fourth district.

Articles of incorporation were filed with the secretary of state by the following corporations: J. Fellman & Co., Detroit, $3,000; Tillamook Yellow Pine Company, Boyne City, $1,600,000; Schwarzhild & Sulzberger company, Detroit, $45,000. The Packard Motor Car company of Warren, O., and Detroit, increased its capital from $1,000,000 to $1,500,000, and the Lee Manufacturing company, of Port Huron, from $40,000 to $75,000.

The tip is being passed around here that Judge R. H. Person is likely to land the appointment as the democratic member of the state railroad commission. Gov. Warner probably will announce the appointment within the next two weeks.

Julia Moross Writ Granted.

Justice Hooker, of the supreme court, granted a writ of certiorari in the case brought by Julia V. Moross and others against the board of education of the city of Detroit, which involves the right of the board of education of that city to condemn land for school purposes. The case will be heard at the October term of the supreme court. The condemnation proceedings were instituted in order to secure more ground for the Washington school buildings.

POWDER MILL EXPLOSION HAS WRECKED A CALIFORNIA TOWN.

POPE IS SERIOUSLY ILL.

To Dissolve Standard Oil Co.—The Shareholders Who Have Not Met—Various Notes.

A Giant Explosion.

Several persons were killed and scores injured and the city of Glant, Cal., wrecked as the result of a terrific explosion in one of the huge powder mills there. The city is situated just across the bay from San Francisco. So terrific was the explosion that the ground shook for miles about. People thought an earthquake had occurred and were thrown into a panic. In a canning factory, five miles away from the explosion, workmen made a wild dash for exits down narrow stairways. Men, women and children fought in a stampede to escape and the weaker went down. Seven, at least, were fatally hurt and nearly a hundred injured. This stampede was typical of other scenes of terror. In Glant itself it is thought that scores at least must be dead, the powder factory that was blown up being one of the largest in the world.

Plux X. Is Ill.

It is current rumor in Vatican circles that the pope is seriously ill, having been affected by despondency over the anti-clerical outbreaks in Rome and throughout Italy. It is certain that his consulting physician, Dr. Petacci, was called to the vatican in a hurry twice during the condition of Plux X. is in any way alarming. But he is known to be earnest and sincere in his efforts to do the best possible for the church which he rules, and the shock of the anti-clerical demonstrations was a severe one. Dr. Petacci has ordered that the pope should have absolute rest from care and trouble, and an official note, published in the Osservatore Romano, informs the public that all audiences and receptions are to be suspended for several weeks.

A Dissolving View.

Frank B. Kellogg, special counsel for the interstate commerce commission, will begin taking testimony September 3 in New York in the suit filed in the federal court in St. Louis to dissolve the Standard Oil Co. He was in consultation with Atty-General Bonaparte and the government officials Thursday. Mr. Kellogg, as special counsel for the government, conducted the investigation into the Hariman roads last winter.

Blames the Central.

The explosion of dynamite which wrecked the town of Essex, Ontario, has been investigated by the coroner and a jury, which returned this verdict: "We find gross carelessness on the part of the Michigan Central Railroad Co. in not shipping the dynamite in a car properly prepared for the purpose, in using a way or line on car which other freight was being shipped, and in permitting the car to be delayed and shunted around in transit."

Taft to Resign.

The story that William H. Taft will resign as secretary of war on his return from the Philippines is revived in Washington. The Washington Herald, which is usually in close touch with the plans of the members of the cabinet, says editorially that there is good reason for believing that after Taft has performed his duty toward the Philippine assembly, his resignation as secretary of war will be announced. Thereafter, continues the Herald's editorial, Taft, private citizen and presidential candidate, will have a free hand and with or without the support of President Roosevelt, will make his own appeal to the country.

Lester Engadine, the Battle Creek young man, who was accidentally killed at Brevoort, died to death on the morning car just as the car ferry was making the Mackinaw City wharf. A passing berry picker took Engadine down from the tree and with under-shirt bound up the wound so he could be removed to St. Ignace. The hemorrhage started again shortly after the ferry left. St. Ignace and attempts to stop it failed.

Supreme Court Justice W. L. C. O. is not a candidate for governor, active or receptive. The announcement is made definitely in a letter received from the judge by one of his close friends. While declaring himself appreciative of the compliment implied in the suggestion, his name be considered, Judge O. C. "I don't think it, couldn't get it, not fitted for it, and would not let it under any circumstances," he declares frankly.

He Shot Well.

Lieut. This is the first match ever won by a Michigan sportsman at the National Rifle association matches.

Phillips is a battalion adjutant of the Third regiment, and city editor of the Press-American, Orono. Awakened by piercing screams for help, Clark Fuller, of Grand Rapids, rushed from his house to find the home of his father-in-law, Nicholas Sadler, aged 70 years, a few doors distant, in flames. Both were frightfully burned, however, and physicians say they will die. The origin of the fire is not known. The house was destroyed.

The suit of equity brought by so-called "next friends," for an accounting of the property of Mrs. Mary Baker Eddy, head of the Christian Science church, has been withdrawn as a result of an agreement reached out of court. Wm. E. Despite the secrecy observed, there has been received from two sources a confirmation of the report that the president of a pool of eight Japanese bankers had assured Berlin bankers during negotiations for a government loan that an effort would be made to gain possession of the Philippine islands by "peaceful conquest." OUR GOOD ROADS.

Law for Building and Repairing the Highways.

Should the highway or highways or bridges directly adjacent to any property taxed, be in good condition so that no repairs are necessary thereon, then the tax raised on such property may be expended by the highway commissioner on other highways or bridges in the township where it may be needed. Provided, if there be a surplus after the highway or highways or bridges directly adjacent to the property taxed have been repaired and put in good condition, such surplus may be expended by the highway commissioner on other highways and bridges in the township wherever any improvement may be needed. Provided further, That upon complaint in writing to the township board by any ten or more resident taxpayers or by any other person, the township board may direct the expenditure of such road repair fund, or the manner of performing such work. Section 12. Work to be paid for from the road repair fund shall be completed on or before the first day of September in each year. Provided: That not exceeding one-quarter of the amount of such tax may be kept by the highway commissioner for later necessary expenses, or for plowing, rolling or removing snow in winter.

Section 13. There shall be but one road district in each organized township except that in townships consisting of more than one surveyed township, each surveyed township may be a road district, and at each annual township meeting on the first Monday following the passage of this act in April after the annual township meeting and at each annual township meeting thereafter, there shall be elected in each organized township one or more township highway commissioners. Emergency repairs to an amount not exceeding ten dollars may be made by such overseer of highways without consulting with the highway commissioner, and if the take charge of the sick, or of highways or any other reason, the overseer of highways shall have and in such case warrants drawn by him and countersigned by the township clerk shall be paid by the township treasurer. Section 16. All work hereafter done upon roads and bridges, except such work as may be required for repairs, shall have in view the permanent improvement of such roads and bridges. Before any such permanent improvement on any highway, a survey of the highway shall be made by a competent surveyor and a profile of such survey shall be made and placed on file with the township clerk. This profile shall show the grade lines of the center of the highway and the bottom of the ditches, and there shall be indicated upon the profile a line showing cuts and fills, which, in the opinion of the surveyor, should be made in order to establish a good grade. All turning shall be done according to this profile before putting gravel or stone on the highway, unless it can be clearly shown to the township board, and agreed to by the board, that the grade established on such profile will be impracticable and inadvisable when completed, in which case a new grade shall be indicated on the profile, which grade shall be satisfactory to said board. Before proceeding to permanently improve any highway, the commissioner shall set grade stakes not more than one hundred feet apart, on the side of the highway to be improved, to which the grade shall be made to conform. The highway shall be constructed in such a manner as to form a turnpike, sufficiently crowning to shed water, with gutters or ditches adequate for drainage. The width of the turnpike shall be not less than eighteen feet between side ditches.

Section 17. After any such turnpike shall be filed for one year, the turnpike shall be filed, after which it shall be graded or macadamized in cases where gravel or crushed stone can conveniently be obtained. If it be advisable to put on gravel or stone when grading has been completed, the turnpike shall first be thoroughly compacted. In grading or macadamizing any highway, the gravel or stone shall be placed on the center thereof, in a mass not less than nine feet wide, and not less than six nor more than twelve inches deep, in the discretion of the highway commissioner.

Section 18. The work specified in section sixteen and section seventeen of this act shall be continued until all the highways in the township are made equal to the requirements of said sections.

Section 19. Whenever any person or persons interested in any highway wish to improve the same by grading, graveling, macadamizing or paving, they may do so at their own expense, and in such manner as may be approved by the highway commissioner; and when sufficient means shall be provided by such party or parties to make the improvement desired, the highway commissioner shall furnish a grade for such highway and direct the manner in which it shall be graded, and his permission while so employed, shall be paid by the township as though the township were making the improvement. The highway commissioner shall, if requested to do so by the party or parties making the improvement, supervise and direct the grading, macadamizing or paving, and his permission while so employed shall be paid by the township as though the township were making the improvement. Provided, That no highway commissioner or any other township officer shall be awarded any contract for any labor to be performed under any provisions of this act, and any such contract, so awarded, shall be void.

Section 20. Materials for making improvements under any provision of this act, may be taken from any property set aside for highway purposes in the township.

Wm. A. Radford

EDITOR

Mr. William A. Radford will answer questions and give advice FREE OF COST on all subjects pertaining to the subject of building for the readers of this paper. On account of his wide experience as Editor, Author and Manufacturer, he is, without doubt, the highest authority on all these subjects. Address all inquiries to William A. Radford, No. 10 Fifth Ave., Chicago, Ill., and will enclose two-cent stamp for reply.

A very neat five-room cottage complete with the necessary closets and a good bathroom is shown in this plan. It is 24 feet wide through the dining-room section and it is 48 feet long exclusive of porches. It has a cellar the full size of the house and a convenient stairway to go down to it from the corner of the kitchen nearest the dining-room. Besides three fair-sized living rooms we have two comfortable bedrooms with a bathroom between so well arranged that there is not a foot of waste room. It is quite an art to fit five comfortable rooms into a space of this size, as many builders have found out.

Only recently have cottage houses as small as this received careful attention at the hands of good architects. Formerly the rooms were strung along as the carpenter could best work them in as the building progressed. When the little house was finally finished it usually was necessary to pass through one room to get to another, sometimes two rooms to get to the third, but in this plan the dining-room takes the place of a hall and is the room around which everything centers.

The grate in the parlor is not only very pleasant when the evenings are cold in the spring and fall, but it is sufficient to warm the room except in extreme cold weather, because there will be a good heating stove in the dining-room and a good deal of heat will pass through into the parlor.

Such houses are made very comfortable by having a coal range in the kitchen and a good heating stove in the dining-room. It doesn't cost very much to heat a house in this way. The fuel bill with careful management is very light and the house may be made cozy and comfortable in all kinds of weather.

This house should face toward the west or north. If it should build from this plan facing either east or south it ing-room and a good deal of heat will pass through into the parlor. Such houses are made very comfortable by having a coal range in the kitchen and a good heating stove in the dining-room. whole distance. Make the corners the same way. This will make a tank that won't leak until the metal rusts through. It will never leak at the joints.

Place the house near the east or north line of the lot, make a pleasant lawn at the side and a good garden occupying the whole back end of the lot with only just a strip of grass wide enough to spread under the clothes-line reaching from the back door to two good solid posts at the foot of the garden. Put rails against the house under cover to wind up the lines when not in use, to keep them clean. Make the reels good and solid, each one with a pall and ratchet so the lines may be tightened by turning the different cranks after the loops on the other ends have been hitched to pins or hooks on the posts. Keep the strip of grass neatly cut with a lawn mower.

If the lines are long make a few clothes-poles long enough to be of service and light enough to be handled easily. Have them smoothed with sand paper so there are no splinters, and arrange a place to keep them out of the wet. Then notice the smile of your wife wears on wash days instead of the frown you have been accustomed to.

I have seen just such gardens as this that supplied all the fruit the family could use, besides such vegetables as lettuce, radishes, tomatoes, peaplant and a good many other things that may be easily raised after the ground is put in proper condition. The garden will offer many hours of pleasure and the work is well calculated to help a man appreciate home as he never did before. It is not the house so much as the finishing touches that make a good home possible. The house should be considered more as a nucleus around which to build the many requisites that go to make up the sum of home comfort.

What Health Means.

Health means happiness, happiness means beauty, or at least the reverse state of affairs is true.

Poor health means fretfulness and discontent, merging into absolute unhappiness and this in turn robs the face of all its beauty.

The complexion gets sallow, the eyes get dull, the mouth gets lines around it, dragged and tired, and the hair becomes dulled and brittle and harsh.

The most beautiful woman cannot hope to keep her beauty if she is ill and unhappy, and the moderately good looking woman becomes absolutely plain.

The quality and quantity of blood is the main factor in health and beauty. First then watch health, take notice of the general tone, supposing, of course, there is no actual disease or combat.

Healthy Appetite.

He was a little mite of a chappy who grew weary if he lugged his cane six blocks.

"Darling," he whispered, as they wandered through the moonlit park. "I love you. Let me be your bread winner for life."

And the great big girl, who wore several medals for skill in the college gymnasium, laughed long and loud.

"My dear boy," she answered, "I could never substat on bread. I would have to accept some one who could be a beefsteak winner."

And the little chappy never said a word the rest of the evening.

Wins Wager; Marries Prince.

About three months ago Mlle. Mullinoff, one of the most fascinating actresses in Russia, accepted a wager that she would not cross the continent from St. Petersburg to Irkutsk, in a ramshackle sleigh which cost but 40 rubles. Mlle. Mullinoff, after many adventures, succeeded in her undertaking, and now has secured not only her bet of 10,000 rubles, but a husband in the person of the sporting prince who made the wager.

Rock Crushed Underground.

In the Smuggler mine, at Telluride, Colo., the rock is crushed underground. This is done to effect an economy in the cost of the ore handling. There are two crushers and they are driven by motors.

Millions Stolen.

James M. Schumaker, former superintendent of public buildings and grounds at Harrisburg, who is implicated by the reports of the capitol investigation commission, has declared that he will make a full confession of all he knows in connection with the capitol scandal. He claims that the manipulation of funds was engineered by a high official of the state at Harrisburg to cover up a shortage in the state treasury and save the name of a former United States senator from Pennsylvania who is now dead.

Schumaker lives at Johnstown, and when he was subpoenaed to appear before the capitol investigation commission to tell what he knew he pleaded illness and remained secluded in his house. Now he is apparently ready to divulge important secrets when the trial begins in September.

President's Message.

Now that the president has outlined in a general way in three speeches—Jamestown, Indianapolis and Provincetown—his ideas as to additional corporation legislation which should be enacted at the coming session of congress, he will soon get to work on his December message, which will, it is taken for granted, take his somewhat general observations of the summer and put them in the form of specific recommendations.

Members of congress say they are not yet quite clear as to just what the president will ask congress to do at the coming session. They will, therefore, look forward with the keenest interest to his message. They realize that he intends to push legislation which will give the federal government control over all corporations doing an interstate business.

Where is it?

One thousand government inspectors, secret service agents and officers of all kinds are battling with the most baffling and most gigantic mail robbery in the history of the postoffice department.

Up to the present there is absolutely no clue to indicate at what point the theft of three pouches containing $250,000 of registered mail occurred. The mail pouches are gone—that is officially admitted by the postal authorities—but how, when or where is still a mystery.

"Everybody Should Know"
Says C. G. Hays, a prominent business man of Bluff, Mo., that Bucklen's Arnica Salve is the quickest and surest healing salve ever applied to a sore, burn or wound, or to a case of piles. "I've used it and know what I'm talking about." Guaranteed at Freeman & Cummings Co., 25c.

"Generally debilitated for years. Had sick headaches, lacked ambition, was worn-out and all run-down. Burdock Blood Bitters made me a well woman." Mrs. Chas. Freitoy, Moosup, Conn.

A Hair Dressing

If you wish a high-class hair dressing, we are sure Ayer's Hair Vigor, new improved formula, will greatly please you. It keeps the hair soft and smooth, makes it look rich and luxuriant, prevents splitting at the ends. And it keeps the scalp free from dandruff. Does not change the color of the hair.

Formula with each bottle show it to your doctor. Ask him about it, then do as he says.

At the same time the new Ayer's Hair Vigor is a strong hair tonic, promoting the growth of the hair, keeping all the tissues of the hair and scalp in a healthy condition. The hair stops falling, dandruff disappears. A splendid dressing.

Made by the J. C. Ayer Co., Lowell, Mass.

INTERESTING FOR WOMEN

JUST FROM FASHIONDOM

Many of the Season's Latest Ideas of Dress Are Discussed.

Shoes in colors matching the dresses are all the rage. The colored shoes are somewhat less popular. The elastic belt, imitating pompadour, is a novelty. The pink with flowers in dull pastel tints particularly lovely, especially when worn with a gold buckle. The silk fichu in a contrasting color to the gown are worn folded over the shoulders with the ends tucked into the girdle. Wide scarves of tulle are draped in the way.

For the moment is a belt three inches wide in gray or black, embroidered or hand-knitted with roses, lilacs or pansies. Belts are of narrow striped and colored enameled leather, high buckle to match.

Knitting silk is being much trimmed with braid, either in comparatively plain, straight effects or in elaborate designs, so as to simulate embroidery. With frocks are worn enormous hats of straw or crinoline, surmounted by aigrettes or waving plumes.

Ornamentations are much used on the ends of the long straight coats so much worn by Parisiennes, also in the long coats with long narrow openings on a front of plaited stripes are always made vertically.

On the opinions expressed by the designers in the cloak and houses novelties are to play a part this fall in the supplementary offerings to be made in suits and cloaks. By purchasing novelties, the cutting-up has given a definite significance to the call for these products by the designers. On striped broadcloths, velvets, etamines and mohairs are extreme novelties in silks and velvets it is seen that the trade is preparing for a change in styles from last year's staples. It does not follow, however, that the yardage on staple fabrics for dresses and cloaks has been held down.

TWEEDS

There seems to be a renewed demand for light-colored tweeds for summer wear, and the newest weaves are those which show the most delicate markings in self and contrasting colorings. Brilliant homespun, though suggesting two different materials, belongs to the tweed family and is a great favorite because it is soft and graceful and has a high, satin finish.

The skirt of a charming light gray tweed is made in circular effect with two groups of tucks about the bottom. In the first group there are six tucks, and these are separated from the second group by a distance of four inches. Stretched upon the space between is a Greek design in very narrow silk soutache braid.

The jacket closes in surprise fashion just like a close-fitting bodice, and, indeed, one could regard the gown as a two-piece suit were it not for the deep girdle of gray silk. There are broad revers of embroidered gray silk, merging into a deep shoulder collar of the same material.

Wash the coffee pot with a solution of a tablespoonful of sal soda and boiling water. It will not be necessary to boil the pot if this solution is used for washing it.

The very latest in hats resembles in shape the Devonshire harvest-woman's bonnet. The Parisienne looks very coquettish... one of these novel hear-coverings, as she wears it well at the back of her head tilted over a mass of small curls. Usually these hats are in neutral tints. One of the prettiest yet seen was worn with a tailor gown of dark gray striped cloth. It was a subdued shade of violet, covered with small wood violets.

Some Beautiful Lingerie of Embroidery, Ribbon and Lace, Made Especially for One's Own Use Are Greatly Liked.

BEWITCHING LINGERIE

Made Especially for You. Can Be Made in Many Novel Patterns Just to Suit the Taste.

The shops are full of bargains. Great quantities of muslin underwear are displayed at such ridiculously low prices that it seems a waste of time to try to make one's own garments. But to many women no lingerie is half so nice as that made especially for themselves. With a good sewing woman—she need be no more than that—to carry out your ideas, one can have the loveliest things made out of the finest of muslin or Persian lawn, and trimmed with the prettiest of laces, at a far less expenditure than one would suppose, and then one has the knowledge that the things were made for herself.

The latest model of chemises is shaped very much from the waist down, or else it is a combination garment of short petticoat or drawers, the latter awfully full, but fitting snugly over the hips. One rarely wears simply a corset cover nowadays.

Some of the newest ones are made with the crosspiece from the front around to the back, with longish ends that you pull forward, and the tighter you pull the more it reduces the bust. Then the waist piece is flat, and a yoke intervenes between that and the lower part which ever garment it is. Monograms are still used, small ones, and there can be no such thing as too great an excess of ornamentation, for one can have as much as one's laundress will stand and still be "good form."

SWEEPING AND DUSTING

Unhygienic ways of sweeping and dusting are unquestionably responsible for many different illnesses, for germs are in dust and dirt.

When you sweep a room raise as little dust as possible, because this dust, when breathed, irritates the nose and throat and may set up catarrh.

To prevent making a great dust in sweeping use moist sawdust on bare floors. When the room is carpeted, moisten a newspaper and tear it into small scraps and scatter upon the carpet when you begin sweeping.

As you sweep brush the papers along by the broom; they will catch most of the dust and hold it fast, just as the sawdust does on bare floors.

In dusting a room do not use a feather duster, because this does not remove the dust from the room, but only brushes it into the air. Use soft, dry cloths to dust with, and shake them frequently out of the window, or use slightly moistened cloths and rinse them out in water when you have finished.

Mayonnaise dressing is less tiresome to make when beaten with a rotary egg beater instead of stirring with a spoon.

THE HAT; FINISHING TOUCH TO DRESS

Always Use Hand Mirror and Study Back View as Well as the Front.

LAUGH AND GROW YOUNG

If we laughed more we should all be happier and healthier. True, we are a busy and a very practical people, and most of us probably find more in this life to bring the frown than the smile, but, nevertheless, it is a pity that we do not laugh more—that we do not bring ourselves to the laugh if need be. For we all agree that a good laugh is the best medicine in the world.

Physicians have said that no other feelings work so much good to the entire human body as that of merriment. As a digestive it is unexcelled; as a means of expanding the lungs there is nothing better.

It keeps the heart and face young. It is the best of all tonics to the spirits. It is, too, the most enjoyable of all sensations.

A good laugh makes us better friends with ourselves and everybody around us, and puts us into closer touch with what is best and brightest in our lot in life. It is to be regretted, then, that such a potent agency for personal good is not more often used. It costs nothing. All other medicines are more or less expensive.

"Why," said an old doctor, not long ago, "if people fully realized what it meant to themselves to laugh, and they laughed as they should, 90 per cent of the doctors would have to go out of business."

Probably when we get a little less busy we shall laugh more. For, after all, the difference between gloom and laughter is but a step. And if more of us took a step aside oftener than we do, and rested more, we would laugh more. By laughing we do not mean the silly giggle indulged in by some women and so many girls.

There is no outward mark which demonstrates the woman of shallow mind so unmistakably as that of giggling. There is no sense in the giggle, no benefit to be derived from it.

It makes a fool of the person herself and renders everyone about her uncomfortable, but just as the giggle is the outcome of a small mind, the hearty laugh is the reflection of a healthy nature. What we want is more good laughter in the world—not more giggles.

Black kid gloves that have become worn and white at the finger tips may be made to look almost as good as new by using a few drops of sweet oil and black ink, equal parts, well mixed and applied with a camel's-hair brush.

ODDS AND ENDS

Worth Knowing.

To cover the pan in which fish is cooking will make the flesh soft.

Never mix a French dressing until ready to use. The vinegar and oil will separate.

To prevent pastry from burning set a pan of water in the oven while it is baking.

Petroleum oilment stains are very obstinate and the best thing for them is to soak in kerosene.

A sponging with a solution of one part ammonia to ten parts of water is said to brighten the colors in a faded carpet.

The days are at hand when a few drops of sassafras oil will need to be sprinkled about the house to keep the flies away.

A delightful new sweetmeat is a chocolate-covered fig, that can easily be prepared at home with sweetened chocolate.

Don't Raise Dust.

Procure a few squares of outing flannel, wring out of cold water, lay on upholstered articles. With a beater beat out the dust, which will adhere to the wet cloth. Rinse out when soiled, and proceed as before. Draperies, carpets and even oriental rugs may be cleaned in this way without injury to color or texture, and is a good substitute for compressed air. For carpets and rugs use a clean, damp cloth to take up any remaining dust.

For Doors.

Bind a heavy piece of carpet five inches long by three inches wide with carpet binding, leaving ends of the binding about eight inches long at the center of both ends of carpet. With these ends tie the carpet to the door knob on each side and when the door is closed there will be no clicking or jarring noise and the carpet will hold the door shut. Of course, it will be necessary to unfasten it from one side to lock the door.

Pattern Marker.

When tracing marks do not show in goods, or you do not wish to soil by pencil or chalk marks, pin pattern on the goods; take needle and thread and knot one stitch through perforations; clip thread; raise pattern; turn down one fold of goods (if cut double), and baste along the line of knotted marks on each fold of goods separately. Clip knots, and both are marked perfectly.

Mildew.

Mildew, if not of too long standing, can be removed by the use of raw tomato and salt. Rub the stains with tomato, sprinkle thickly with salt and lay in the sun. It may be necessary to repeat the process two or three times.

For Ants.

Put one tablespoon of water and one of paragon in a small saucer on the cupboard shelves, or any place infested by the ants. They will all leave. Strips of blotting paper saturated with the paragon placed on the refrigerator shelves will exterminate the little red ants.

Coal Substitute.

Here is a way to obtain a fire for cooking in the summer time without the use of coal—Obtain a soft brick, saturate it with kerosene, place in stove and light same and you will obtain a fine fire which will last long enough to cook a dinner at a moderate cost.

Keeping Eggs.

When eggs are low in price lay in a supply. Dip each egg into melted pork lard, rubbing it into the shell with the fingers; pack them in bran, oatmeal or sawdust, standing them upright, with small end down. This will preserve them for an indefinite period of time.

RESTING THE HAIR.

To let down the hair for an hour daily is one of the best and easiest methods of encouraging it to grow, and is one which is both practically possible to everyone and at the same time costs nothing. Fresh air flowing freely through the hair stimulates the roots, while sunlight cannot be beaten as a color and tone restorer.

Township Pays the Bill.

Outbreaks of rabies in various parts of the state, in consequence of which numbers have been bitten, has caused inquiry of the state health department as to whether there is any provision for the payment of the expenses of taking the Pasteur treatment at Ann Arbor for persons without money who may be bitten. The department therefore calls attention to a law passed May 14, 1903, which provides that the expenses of the Pasteur treatment for indigent persons shall be borne by the township, city or village in which they reside.
There is also a law which requires that all cases of rabies shall be reported to the state board of health, but it is not always promptly complied with.

Hartford claims the oldest school in the country. It was founded in 1638 by William Gibbins, and was partly supported by the town and partly by tuition fees. It received bequests in 1655, 1659, 1664 and 1680, and continued under the care of the town until 1847, when it was merged with the classical department of the
