MODERN OFFICE QUARTERS

FOR THE STANDARD-HERALD.

Will be Located in the Building Known as the Bank Drug Store—Alterations Nearly Completed.

The building known as the Bank Drug Store is being fitted up as a modern office for The Standard-Herald. The new location is one of the most prominent business corners in Chelsea and it will make quarters for The Standard-Herald second to none in the county as a newspaper and job printing establishment. Two large windows have been placed on the south side of the building which makes the light in the room perfect in every way.

The interior of the new quarters is being so arranged that the mechanical department will have ample room to handle a large amount of work. Several new faces of type have been purchased for the plant and the machinery in the job department is all the latest design.

The carpenters, masons and painters will probably finish their part of the work this week and the work of moving from the present to the new quarters will be started as soon as possible.

The Chelsea Real Estate & Improvement Co., will occupy the rooms that The Standard-Herald vacate, as their business headquarters.

SILVER ANNIVERSARY.

Rev. Paul Irion Ordained Twenty-five Years Ago—Bethel Church Held Celebration.

On Wednesday, September 25, Rev. Paul Irion, pastor of Bethel church, Freedom, celebrated the twenty-fifth anniversary of his ordination and of his work among the members of Bethel church. The church had been tastefully decorated for the occasion, and when at 10:30 a. m. the bell rang, an audience which completely filled the spacious edifice awaited the arrival of the procession, which entered the church in the following order: Rev. and Mrs. Irion and children and other relatives present, the ministers of the Ann Arbor conference, ten in number, with their ladies and other friends; Rev. A. Schoen of Chelsea, a former pupil of Rev. Irion, was master of ceremonies.

Short addresses were delivered by Revs. C. Spatheff of Owosso, H. Alber of Jackson, J. B. Meister of Dexter, B. Schrieber of Grand Rapids and Dr. F. Mayer of Detroit. Revs. Otto Papendorf of Seline, Eugene Spatheff of Lansing, J. Reichert of Rogers' Corners, were also present. At the close of the service Gottlieb Mann presented Rev. Irion, on behalf of the congregation with a beautiful silver plate, upon which a number of golden pieces had been placed, and an elegant silver teapot to Mrs. Irion. The ministers present and their ladies also gave appropriate gifts. In a feeling manner Rev. Irion accepted these tokens of love and esteem in which he was held and thanked the donors in a neat speech, which contained a brief resume of his labors during the quarter of a century ended.

He has officiated at 399 baptisms 151 weddings, confirmed 404 children, and officiated at 253 funerals. Mr. Irion holds the enviable record of not having missed a single Sunday in twenty-five years on account of ill health. Three congregations—St. John's, of Rogers' Corners; St. James, Saline township, and St. Paul's, Saline village, have been founded by him. Through this, as well as by his long residence in Freedom, he is probably the best known German minister in Washtenaw county.

In the orchard adjoining the church the ladies of the church had prepared dinner for all, which, although the day was exceedingly raw and chilly, was enjoyed by about 500, which lingered yet for some time, until the approaching dusk brought to end a day memorable to both the pastor and his flock.

Elected Officers.

The Washtenaw County Fair Association held a meeting in Ann Arbor last Friday and elected the following officers for the year: President, John Heinemann; vice president, Dan Sutton; treasurer, E. D. Hisecock; secretary, Leo Gruner; board of managers—William Clemens, Saline; William April sr., Seio; John Weston, Ypsilanti; Smith Botsford, Geddes; Volney Chapin, Henry Richards, H. H. Andrews, F. J. Haas, William Purfield, Andrew Reule, W. N. Salisburg, A. J. Paul, R. E. Atkinson, H. S. Dean, Frank Wood, Wm. Clancy, J. E. Harkins, Wm. Rehlfuss Ann Arbor; John Kappler, Ann Arbor town.

Taming School Bullies.

The following was taken from the Detroit Journal of Tuesday: "Dwight C. Marion, of Chelsea, professional tamer of unruly scholars, has gone to the troublesome Lee township district school in Calhoun county, and those who know Marion predict that in a short time the dove of peace will find a quiet abode there. The school is the one Claire Scherhorn, of Battle Creek, gave up in disgust because the stalwart but disobedient scholars insisted on running the school.

"The school supervisors held a meeting in a hurry and a call went forth for Marion, who makes the taming of big boy pupils his specialty in the teaching line. Weighing about 200 pounds and over six feet in height, Marion presents a figure sufficient to strike terror to a dozen school bullies. And though well past the 50s he is as stalwart and strong as he was when 30.

"If Marion ever used his strength in subduing pupils, he does not mention it. But it is known that whenever he takes charge of a school, he leaves a few months later, meek and obedient classes and takes away a good-sized check from a grateful school board."

THE PIPE ORGAN RECITAL

LAST MONDAY EVENING.

A Large Audience Attended the Concert held in the First Congregational Church.

The pipe organ recital given in the Congregational church Monday evening, under the direction of Prof. R. H. Kempf, of Ann Arbor, was one of the best of its kind ever given in Chelsea.

Every number on the program was an excellent one, and each was heartily enjoyed. The recitations given by Mrs. Maude Freer-Tuttle of Jackson, a former Chelsea resident, was highly appreciated by her many Chelsea friends.

The church was filled to its utmost capacity and the society will realize about $75 as their part of the evening's proceeds.

AUSTIN PARKER.

A Resident of Sylvan Since 1846—Assisted in Building the Michigan Central Railroad.

Austin Parker died at the home of his daughter Monday morning, September 30, 1907. The deceased was born in Oswego county, New York, September 10, 1820.

Mr. Parker came to Michigan in 1833 and settled with his parents in Seio. He became a resident of Sylvan Center in 1846 and resided there until three years ago when he became a resident of Chelsea, making his home with his daughter. He was united in marriage with Miss Olive Loomis in 1851. Mrs. Parker passed away in December 1897.

The deceased assisted in building the M. C. railroad when it was constructed by the state. He is survived by one son, Bernard Parker, of Lansing, and one daughter, Mrs. Geo. Beckwith, of Chelsea. The funeral was held from the home of his daughter Wednesday afternoon. Rev. D. H. Glass, pastor of the M. E. church officiating. Interment at Maple Grove cemetery, Sylvan Center.

Two-Cent Railway Rate.

In compliance with the law passed by the last legislature the railroads of Michigan put into effect the rate of two cents a mile on September 27 at midnight. The new rate will effect quite a saving to that part of the traveling public which heretofore has not purchased mileage books. It is expected by the friends of the law that the increase in travel will, within a reasonable time, make good to the railroads the amount lost by the reduction.

It is understood that all "reduced rates" to various gatherings, fairs or celebrations about the state will be cut out and that everything will go on the flat two-cent rate.

It is probable that the Sunday excursion business will be continued as formerly.

New Postal Rule.

The new postal rule went into effect October 1st gives a new rate for mail to countries outside the United States except Canada, Mexico, Cuba and the republic of Panama. For letters five cents for the first ounce and three cents for each additional ounce or fractional ounce. For postal cards, single, two cents, double four cents each. For commercial papers five cents for the first ten ounces or less and one cent for each additional two ounces or fraction thereof. The change in the letter rate will be of benefit to writers to the old country as the old postage was five cents for each half ounce or fraction thereof, while now one ounce can be mailed for five cents with a rate of three cents for each additional ounce.

If taken patiently and persistently will relieve the most obstinate cases of indigestion, constipation, bad blood, bad liver no matter how long standing. That's what Hollister's Rocky Mountain Tea will do. 35 cents, Tea or Tablets. Freeman & Cummings Co.

To feel strong, have good appetite and digestion, sleep soundly and enjoy life, use Burdock Blood Bitters, the great system tonic and builder.

COMMISSION ORGANIZES

NEW RAILWAY BOARD.

Commissioners Glasgow, Cramton and Bice Held Meeting in Lansing Monday—Circular No. 1, Issued.

Michigan's new railway commission was organized Monday at a meeting of the commissioners held in Lansing. Commissioner C. L. Glasgow was elected chairman of the commission, L. C. Cramton, of Lapeer, secretary, and Jas. Bice, inspecting engineer.

Circular No. 1, was promptly issued by the commission, stating that it had been organized, and informing the common carriers of the state that at an early date rules will be adopted and published to govern the proceedings before the commission. The attention of transportation companies is directed to that portion of the railway commission act relating to interstate tariff, and the announcement made that a circular will shortly be issued determining and prescribing the arrangements of the tariff schedules required to be filed. The commission requests carriers to defer filing schedules until the issuance of an order by which they will be guided.

The commission announces that it "will be glad to arrange at as early date as possible for conferences with freight and passenger traffic managers to the end that the requirements of the law may be mutually better understood." It is also stated that "the shipping interests of the state we desire shall at all times feel the greatest freedom in consulting with us personally or by correspondence in order that the purposes of the law may be accomplished to the fullest extent possible."

National Protective Legion.

Many people in this vicinity are greatly exercised over reports being made concerning the National Protective Legion and the action taken in its last biennial convention. It is currently stated that the cash dividend of the organization payable each five years, will be materially reduced. An authoritative statement concerning this society so well known in our place, is to the effect that the cash dividend in the future will be declared upon a purely mathematical basis and that the amount to be paid each year, will not be known until an actuary shall have made computations to determine it. In future the dividends will vary each and every year, and the amount paid on each full rate certificate, will be changed to such sum as is the actual increment upon the certificates issued during the year, five years previous thereto.

This action was in accordance with demands made by the Insurance Department of nearly every state in the union where the Legion does business and it was largely a compulsory charge. However, the change seems an admirable one inasmuch as it assures the perpetuity of the society and removes all obstacles exercised by the various Insurance Departments and other officials in authority. Furthermore, it removes all criticism so freely passed by old line companies. From its National officers we gather information, that they earnestly approved the measure, and of its assurance of equity and justice to all the membership. To the public we will also state that 925 representatives were in at the meeting and voted unanimously to adopt the change that was made. From the standpoint of one who carefully reviews the conditions as presented, good judgment indicates that correct action was taken.

Mrs. Clarissa Lowry.

Mrs. Clarissa Lowry, a pioneer resident of this community, died at the home of her son, Thursday, September 26, 1907, aged 83 years, 1 month and 20 days.

The deceased was born in the state of New York, and was a resident of Lodi for a few years, but for the past thirty years she has made her home with her son, M. A. Lowry, of Chelsea. The deceased is survived by one son, and one daughter, Mrs. Sylvia St. Johns, who resides in California.

The funeral was held from her late home last Saturday afternoon. Rev. M. Lee Grant, officiating. Interment Oak Grove cemetery, Chelsea.

JOHN FARRELL.

A Significant Nickname.

The unfeeling frankness of youth does not stop at unpleasant truth-telling. Even the gentle sex may suffer at the hands of its brothers. It is dangerous for a girl—at least for a girl at a coeducational school—to echo Burn's wish,

"O wad some Pow'r the giftie gie us To see oursel's as others see us! lest her desire be realized with unexpected fulness. For—could mind of women ever think it?—the boys of these schools have nicknamed their sister students "fussers!" Was the name born of the numerous sofa pillows and footstools with which the maidens fill their rooms, the chafing-dishes and teatables and hatpin-cases and ring-boxes and alpenstocks and rocking chairs which make dangerous a hasty progress through the feminine study? At all events, the combination of these feminine acquisitions has embodied itself in the crisp, masculine epithet, "fusser." Perhaps the phrase is a comment on a state of mind as well as on a method of house-keeping. In the opinion of the college boy, Maid Marian "fusses" about lessons, about "marks," about "committees," about what faculty or classmate think of her. She lacks his cheerful fatalism, and he tags her with the epithet which, he thinks, fits her conscience and her mind, as well as her room and her wardrobe. The modern girl, says Youth's Companion, must find a way to free herself of impediments, both physical and intellectual, if she would induce her critics to drop the objectionable nickname and grant her rank as an artist in the pleasant business of living.

All the iron furnaces in the world produced less iron in 1894 than will be turned out of the furnaces in the United States during the current year, if the rate of production for the first six months is maintained. This fact indicates a marvelous expansion in the iron business. No more convincing proof of the solid foundation of the national prosperity could be afforded than this, for it is well known that a nation's consumption of iron is an index to its business condition. This is not because there is any mysterious virtue in iron, but because iron is used extensively only in prosperous times. Nearly 13,500,000 tons of pigiron were turned out from January till June. This is more than the total yearly output for any 12 months prior to 1893, and more than either Germany or England have ever made in any full year. There are no indications of a falling off in the American production. On June 30 29 new furnaces were under construction, and 43 more were projected. The United States produces more iron and more cotton than any other country. It exports the greater part of the cotton, but uses nearly all of the iron in its own industries.

The scarabaeus, the sacred beetle of Egypt, was an object of worship in olden days, and was most carefully embalmed at death. The ancient Egyptians believed the heart to be the center of intellect as well as the source of life, and removed his organ when the embalming process took place, a model of the scarabaeus being put in its place. There are many varieties of this sacred beetle, as the monuments in Egypt show. The scarab was the favorite insignia of both men and women, and was worn as a charm to protect from harm and insure desirable qualities to make them attractive. Many hard stones were used for these models, and turquoise matrix, lapis-lazuli, jasper, amethyst, agate and onyx being much in favor. Some of the ancient ones are cleverly cut and were used as coin of the realm. The finest are found with the mummies in old tombs.

What a pity it would have been had the Bastille been taken in the winter, rather than in the summer. No doubt those who participated in that famous victory found it full hot enough at the time, but those who now recall their doughty achievements with feast and dance would have found far less incentive from a French winter than from a French summer. In this way does a kindly fate look heedfully to the future. The perspiring and powdered fighters of the Place de la Bastille a hundred years ago little thought how much their descendants would appreciate the July weather which is an established part of the great national fête.

In mottoes and similar inscriptions, appropriateness is as important as sentiment. During Boston's recent "Old Home Week" a conspicuous part of the decorations in one of the suburbs was "Welcome," displayed in large letters, over the door of the police station.

Knabenshue's airship bumped into a schoolhouse in Toronto with unpleasant results for the operator. The airship may have been aware that its early education had been neglected.

LATEST NEWS OF MICHIGAN

CUT THROAT OF HIS SIX YEARS OLD SON BECAUSE HE WAS A CRIPPLE.

TRIED TO KILL HIMSELF

The Man Who Committed the Horrible Crime Seems To Be Sane and May Recover.

Fiendish Work.

Lying at the point of death, with chances favoring the latter, John E. Jones, a well-to-do farmer, is in his home at Bear Lake, Pleasanton township, with a jagged gash in his throat. His little 6-year-old crippled son, victim of a crazed father, lays dead in an adjoining room.

Fiendish care was exercised in committing the fearful deed. Taking his son to a room in the second story of the farm house, Jones locked the door and there made the sacrifice. The child's throat was cut so that death must have been almost instantaneous. Jones was not so successful in his next attempt. He gashed his throat and then his hand failed him. He was found a few minutes later by a member of the family lying on the floor in a welter of blood. Jones's daughter, running to the road to get a neighbor, saw Dr. Norconk and hurried him to the death chamber.

"He may yet live," was the doctor's opinion after a hasty examination. Apparently Jones heard and understood for at that instant he made another savage slash at his throat with the razor, which he had kept concealed to that time. The second cut made his condition much worse.

Jones's appearance lately has not indicated ill health, though his nervous condition has been such that he could do no work on the farm this season. Members of his family say that he acted a little strangely for a few days preceding the tragedy but they had no occasion to feel alarmed. He undoubtedly brooded over the condition of the child which was crippled and was also mentally deranged.

Jones is about 48 years of age. He had many friends and was known as a genial, good natured man with more than the usual fondness for his children.

Queer Antics These.

When lightning tore a hole in the roof of the residence of William Money the bolt caused damage in bath room and kitchen and went crashing into the shed at the rear of the latter. Here it attacked a large cupboard and tore it to pieces. In the cupboard were four baking powder cans with tops on and filled with herbs. The tops were removed, the contents taken out and the cans filled with cloths. As from a basket which stood near the cupboard. The ring was melted off the dustpan in the kitchen and the paper in the cupboard and on the wall was torn as if by mice. While the family was frightened, no one was shocked except Mrs. Money, both of whose thumbs were affected.

A Scathing Rebuke.

Wellington Taylor, of Fenton, who was arrested for neglecting to provide for his wife, who is dying of consumption at the home of her sister was rebuked in scathing terms by the court when arraigned before Justice Halsey. In adjudging the case for four weeks the court rounded out his denunciation of the accused by admonishing him to hasten to the bedside of his wife and make her as comfortable as possible in her last hours.

"If you go over there and say one unkind word to your poor wife," the court added by way of a parting warning, "you will be sorry for it when you come before this court again."

Taylor, who is able-bodied and capable of earning good wages, was profuse in his promises to do what he could to make amends for his neglect of his wife in her helpless and pitiable condition, and the local authorities will see to it that he fulfills them to the letter.

Man Slept, Horse Wandered.

Falling asleep in the carriage after driving from Flint to Flushing, where he attended the fair, Edward Hartwell was awakened by water about his knees. The horse had wandered into the river, and was making his way upstream in a direction opposite to that which Hartwell had been going. The banks are very steep, and although Hartwell was at last able to get to the shore himself, he was unable to find a place where the rig could be gotten out. It was a matter of several hours before the outfit with the assistance of several who happened to be in that vicinity, was hoisted back into the roadway.

Followed Her Lover.

Lucretia Johns, "the woman in the case" in connection with the suicide of A. Lamont Fogg, the Battle Creek society and singer, was found dead in bed Monday night at the home of H. H. Maatsch, on Lake avenue, where she boarded. A brief note stated that she had committed suicide, but made no mention of the reason. It directed the disposal of her personal property, and gave the address of her father, E. L. Johns, of Port Huron.

The Detroit, Grand Haven & Milwaukee railroad refuses to file a report of the value of its property, claiming that its special charter exempts it from ad valorem taxation. H. M. Lons's Sons, of Au Sable, who bought the Au Sable & Northwestern, refuse a report on the ground that the road is now private property.

From the State Capital
Information and Gossip Furnished by Special Correspondent at Lansing.

Lansing.—Two Michigan railroads have refused to file reports and other information regarding the value of their properties with the state tax commission, which is now preparing to make the annual assessment. The Detroit, Grand Haven & Milwaukee railway refuses to report for the reason that it claims its property is exempt from ad valorem taxation by the terms of its special charter, but the attorney general is contesting the company's contention in the courts. The Au Sable & Northwestern Railway company has been dissolved and the property is now owned by H. M. Lons's Sons, of Au Sable who assert that it is private property, assessable locally, and is not within the jurisdiction of the tax commission. On this account it refuses to file a report. As the dissolution of the corporate existence of the company was not effected until after June 30, the tax commission will place the property on the rolls and leave the collection of the tax to the courts. Complaints that a number of coal mines in the vicinity of Bay City are under-assessed are being investigated by the state tax commission. A review of the rolls has been fixed for Oct. 2, and witnesses subpoenaed for the hearing.

From Newsboy to Legislator.
From former Detroit newsboy and later page in the house of representatives, Alex. Cohen will pass to a seat in the legislature. Cohen was elected a member from the Lansing district to fill the vacancy created by the resignation of Representative S. D. Montgomery, winning by a majority of 22 over John E. Crotty, Democrat.

Cohen was appointed page by the late Gov. Pingree, when the latter told the Detroit newsboys he would appoint any one of their number chosen by them as page. He later became chief clerk in the state department and retired to start a coal business, which has become a prosperous enterprise.

Taxation Must Cease.

School district No. 4, in Colfax township, Wexford county, has been levying school taxes for six or seven years without conducting a school and has accumulated a fund of about $600. An investigation has been made by the department of public instruction, and the district has been directed to establish a school or cease levying taxes. A suit has been brought by a lumber company paying most of the taxes to compel the school board to refund the taxes collected, and it will probably be required to do so by the court, as districts are prohibited by the constitution from levying taxes under such circumstances.

Israelites Get Scared.

A lawyer representing the House of Israel at Benton Harbor had a conference with Deputy Attorney General Chase in regard to the commencement of proceedings to dissolve the corporation under which the Israelitish colony is doing business. It was agreed that if the colony ceases to transact a commercial business as a church or organization the information in the case will not be filed.

Eleventh Cavalry at Albion.

The twenty-second annual reunion of the Eleventh Michigan cavalry came to a close at Albion after a two days' meeting. Over 100 veterans were present from all parts of the state. An interesting program of addresses and music was rendered.

State's First Agricultural School.

The cornerstone of the new agricultural school, at Menominee, the first building of its kind in the state, was laid with impressive ceremony. The building is to cost $25,000 and will be completed by Dec. 15.

New State Militia Inspector.

Notification has been received by the state military department that the war department at Washington has detailed Capt. J. C. Irvine, retired, as inspector of the organized militia of the state of Michigan.

Judge Parker Again.
"Despite ex-Judge Alton B. Parker's assertion that he is not a candidate for the Democratic presidential nomination, his friends, both in New York and in other cities, are quietly at work in his behalf," says the Tribune.
"The present plan of campaign of the Parker men seems to be to have the ex-judge as often as practicable sound the issue of state's rights as against federal encroachment, citing the speeches of the president and of Secretary Root as proof that the fight next year will be on the shibboleth of anti-bellum days."
"One of Judge Parker's friends in discussing the subject said: 'Certainly, the friends of Judge Parker are working for his nomination at the next Democratic national convention. Who else have we? Bryan cannot be elected. Hearst is out of the question. Parker stands for conservatism, and the wave of radicalism in both parties is beginning to recede, making it extremely probable that Judge Parker, by the end of this year, will be the most available man for the Democrats to name.'"

Flagler is Ill.
Henry M. Flagler, vice president of the Standard Oil Co., is seriously ill in the Mt. Washington hotel, Britton Woods, N. H. His condition is understood to be serious.

Mr. Flagler's illness is attributed to the effects of an attack of the grip, from which he suffered while he was in St. Augustine, Fla., last April. At that time he was much weakened by overwork incident to the Key West railroad. He did not recover rapidly and his physician advised his removal to a cooler climate. Early in the summer he was brought to his summer home in Mamaroneck, West Chester county.

Symptoms of a general nervous breakdown appeared and about a month ago he was taken to the White mountains. Every possible effort is being made to keep his mind from his business affairs, and it is not considered probable that he can testify in the government's suit against the Standard Oil Co., now in progress here.

Indorse Taft.

Secretary Taft was indorsed by the Republican convention of Nebraska, as follows: "We recognize in William Taft, of Ohio, a man whose personal character and whose long public service mark him as pre-eminently the man under whose leadership the policies of Roosevelt may be perpetuated and the Republican party may again merit and receive the approval of the national electorate."

Other platform declarations favor an amendment to the federal constitution prohibiting writs of injunction by federal courts against state officers engaged in enforcing state laws, by providing that all corporations engaged in interstate commerce and especially those exercising eminent domain are citizens of those states where they are required to file articles of incorporation.

A Cuban Rebellion.

War department officials discredit the probability of any uprising against the provisional government of the island.

The negro population, composing 90 per cent of the people who opposed Palma's government, claim they have not been fairly treated. A continuation of this agitation, it is admitted, might have a serious effect in driving some of the malcontents to attempted uprisings in isolated places, but Gov. Macagoon is said to be prepared to nip in the bud anything like an insurrection. Gov. Macagoon is keeping the war department advised of the situation and is consulting freely with Gen. Barry and other military officers in command of the army of Cuban pacification.

Life and Property Lost.

Unprecedented rains in Andalusia, Spain, have caused immense destruction of life and property. The Guadalquivir river has been converted into a raging torrent three miles wide, and entire villages have been swept away. Considering the extent of the flood the loss of life has not been great. Thirty persons were drowned at Malaga, 23 at Velez de Benamargosa, 13 at Coleman, and about 100 elsewhere.

Railroad communication has been destroyed. The governor has appealed for assistance from the government, fearing that the decaying carcasses of animals drowned will create an epidemic.

Now They Can Merge.

The granting of immunity to the Chicago & Alton railroad for paying rebates to the Standard Oil Co. removes the only obstacle in the way of ratification of the sale of the Rock Island railroad of a controlling interest in the Alton to the Toledo, St. Louis & Western, or Clover Leaf railroad, and the consolidation ultimately of the Alton, Clover Leaf, Minneapolis & St. Louis, and Iowa Central railroads. As soon as the necessary financial details are adjusted a reorganization of the four roads will be effected, but the independent organizations of each may be maintained for some time, and the combination deferred until it is certain that no legal complications will result.

More Than 600 Perish.

Advices of a terrible disaster due to great floods prevailing in Japan have been received. The overflow of the River Otonashigawa, running through the town of Fukuchiyama, near Kyoto, caused the loss of more than 600 lives, the river rising more than 50 feet.

Southern Michigan was visited by a severe frost and late corn and vegetables ruined in some sections.

Under advice of their counsel, Conductor William Ross and Motorman Thomas Ellis, of Detroit, crew of the car which collided with an Ann Arbor car, killing Motorman Bert Robinson, refuse to testify at the inquest.

Pleading guilty to taking her daughter to a Grand Rapids resort, the mother of Laura Babcock, aged 15, explained that she wanted the girl to have a good time. Laura was sent to the Adrian school and the mother is held in jail.

The University of Michigan Sociology club will gather a carload of clothes and ship them to the Franklin street settlement in Detroit at Thanksgiving time.

NEWS OF THE NATION
VICE - PRESIDENT FAIRBANKS' COCKTAILS CAUSED HIS DEFEAT.
A NATIONAL CAMPAIGN

The Story of Cocktails and Wine Was Effective—The Majority Fight in Cleveland a Key-Note.

Fairbanks Defeated.
Chas. W. Fairbanks, vice-president of the United States, was defeated in Columbus for delegate to the quadrennial conference of the M. E. church. The temperance laymen refused to condone what they regard as an unpardonable offense against temperance, and the distinguished candidate went down because of having served cocktails and three kinds of wine at the dinner given to President Roosevelt on Memorial day at the Fairbanks home.

There were 18 candidates for the seven places, but it was fully believed that the vice-president would head the delegation by being selected by acclamation. Just before the voting, however, a decided change of feeling was shown and temperance laymen insisted on all the names being voted on. This was decided on. Considerable feeling was manifested over the effort of some of the vice-president's friends to put responsibility for the cocktails upon President Roosevelt. It required 97 votes to elect and on the first ballot two candidates were chosen. Mr. Fairbanks received but 79 votes. His support dwindled away and after the fifth ballot his friends withdrew his name.

Tom Johnson's Campaign.

A national campaign is being fought out within the narrow confines of twenty-six wards in Cleveland this fall. Victory for Tom L. Johnson will make him the largest figure in the national Democratic party, next to William J. Bryan; defeat may relegate him to the political graveyard. Victory for Congressman Theodore E. Burton will wonderfully increase his already great prestige among the national Republican figures at Washington; defeat will send him back to the house stung and crippled by a rebuke given him by the people who know him best. A congressman who cannot carry his own city for mayor, when that city normally belongs to his own party anyway, cannot be considered senatorial size, house-speaker size or even cabinet-size.

So everything is at stake and every means is being used to win the stake.

San Francisco Trainers.

The inner workings of the confessed hoodlums who formerly administered the affairs of San Francisco as a board of supervisors were laid bare during the trial of Tiley L. Ford, chief counsel for the United Railways, on a charge of bribery. Thomas F. Loneragan, former supervisor, told on the stand of receiving $4,000 with the understanding that it was to be paid to influence his vote upon the application of the United Railways for an overhead trolley franchise.

James F. Gallagher, former chairman of the board, related how he had received the sum of $3,000 from Arthur Reuf after the latter had requested and urged him to ascertain how the 18 members of the board stood with regard to the application for such a franchise and directed him to learn the price for which each member would return a favorable vote.

Beavers Is Out.

Geo. W. Beavers, formerly superintendent of the salary and allowances bureau of the postoffice department, sentenced to prison two years ago for postoffice frauds, was released from the penitentiary at Moundsville, W. Va., Tuesday night, and it is presumed that he departed at once for his home. Beavers is the man Machen accused of the limit for new in perpetrating frauds on the government, because he asked the former superintendent of rural free delivery to buy an operating table for a physician friend and charge it to the free delivery department.

Bubonic Plague.

At a meeting of the California board of health, Gov. Gillett presiding, it was decided to appropriate $1,500 to fight the plague in San Francisco. Steps were also taken to establish a barge in the bay to fumigate bay and river craft. The totals in the bubonic plague situation at San Francisco to date are as follows: Cases verified, 43; deaths, 26; death percentage, 60.04; suspects under observation, 22.

Canada Wants Exclusion.

A monster petition signed by hundreds of British Columbians is on its way to the premier, Sir Wilfrid Laurier. It prays that, regardless of foreign countries and all sentimental and political considerations, the government immediately pass such legislation as may be requisite to insure the absolute exclusion of orientals from the dominion of Canada. So far the Japanese government has made no claim on the dominion government for damages on account of the Vancouver troubles.

Frank Kukookeski, of Gaylord, who got into a slashing scrawl, drew 50 days in the Detroit house of correction.

The Salvation Army plans to build a $10,000 citadel in Flint. Capt. Claude Ford has been transferred to Charleston, S. C., and Mrs. Stewart McKay, of Port Wayne, Ind., will take charge of the work.

Wealthy residents of the Lake Shore drive, St. Joseph, adopted resolutions, saying county officials were unable to cope with the criminals, and they have decided to employ detectives to guard their residences.

Be Charitable.

Never pass final judgment on any one from first impressions. We are all such creatures in limitation. Eyes are faulty, and the elements of character which include us, often more than compensate for the faults we see.

Look again, look deeper. You will be surprised at the number of stars in the night sky if you look long enough.

Most people have more virtues than are seen by snap vision. Be charitable and patient. Do not spoil your world by peeping it with imaginary beings.

Welcome the good in humankind, and the good in others will reward your quest.

Name Spelled Familiar.

I was turning over the leaves of a magazine one afternoon and my little brother, three years old, happened to be standing near. As I turned one page I gazed on a lovely painting of Joan of Arc. "Do you know who this is, Ralph?" I asked. He looked at it for a second and then he said, "Oh, yes, I know, that's—that's—oh, you know," he stammered, "she's the one who swallowed the whale." He had confounded the two names of Jonah and Joan.—Exchange.

Golden text: "Fear thou not, O my servant Jacob, saith the Lord; neither be dismayed, O Israel: for, lo, I will save thee from afar, and thy seed from the land of their captivity." Jeremiah 30:10.

"Look at All the Ugly Men!" Senator Charles W. Fulton of Oregon was a stumper whose methods were as effective as Dolliver's. He would begin something like this: "Well, I must say I'm disappointed at this crowd! Look at all the ugly men! Not a good-looking man in the whole convention! How does it happen that such a lot of misshapen features on the masculine side have been able to attract so many beautiful female partners? Here I've been a bachelor for 40 years; but if I had known your fellows could do as well as you've done I'd never been a bachelor for 15 minutes," etc. By this heart-to-heart method he placed himself on the best of terms with his hearers, and then took a dive into politics. The joke of it all was, according to an article in Appleton's, that his wife was probably sitting in the audience listening to his remarks.

Nicknames of American Cities.

A purely western designation is that of Duluth as the Zenith City of the Unsalted Seas, given to it from its situation at the head of the waters of Lake Superior. Another city which derives its name from its situation is North Adams, Mass., called the Tunnel City, from the fact that it is at one end of that "great bore," the Hoosac tunnel, which was so many years in course of construction until its length of about four miles was completed. Pekin, Ill., rejoices in the title of the Celestial City, from the fact that it was named for the capital of the Chinese empire. Racine, Wis., is known as the Bell City, from the nature of the articles made there. The Shoe City is Lowell, Mass., for a like reason, as is Holyoke, in the same state, the Paper City.

The Simple Life.

A man is simple when his chief care is the wish to be what he ought to be; that is, honestly and naturally human. We may compare existence to raw material. What it is, matters less than what is made of it; as the value of a work of art lies in the flowering of a workman's skill. The life is possible in social conditions—most diverse, and with natural gifts the most unequal. It is not fortune, or personal advantage, but our turning them to account, that constitutes the value of life. Fame adds no more than does length of days; quality is the thing.—Charles Wagner.

CHAPTER XXVII.—Continued.

Then they were silent and I heard him furtively striking a match, when suddenly the lantern fell, its wires rattling as it struck the ground, and the two exclaimed with renewed merriment upon their misfortune.

"If you will allow me," I called out, fumbling in my pocket for my own matchbox.

I have sometimes thought that there is really some sort of decent courtesy to me. An old man caught in a rough path that was none too good at best! And a girl, even though my enemy! But these were not, I fancy, the reflections that crossed my mind at the moment.

"Ah, it's Jack," exclaimed my grandfather. "Marian was showing me the way to the gate and our light went out."

"Miss Devereux," I murmured. I have, I hope, an icy tone for persons who have incurred my displeasure, and I employed it then and there with, no doubt, its fullest value.

She and my grandfather were groping in the dark for the lost lantern, and I, putting out my hand, touched her unglazed fingers.

"I beg your pardon," she murmured frostily.

Then I found and grasped the lantern.

"One moment," I said, "and I'll see what's the trouble."

I thought my grandfather took it, but the flame of my wax match showed her fingers clapping the wire frame. The cloak slipped away, showing her arm's soft curve, the blue and white of her bodice, the purple blur of violets; and for a second I saw her face, with a smile quivering about her lips. My grandfather was beating the ground impatiently with his stick, urging us to leave the lantern and go on.

"Let it alone," he said. "I'll go down through the chapel; there's a lantern in there somewhere."

"I'm awfully sorry," she said, "but I recently lost my best lantern!"

To be sure she had! I was angry that she should so brazenly recall the light I found her looking for Pickering's notes in the passage at the Door of Bewilderment!

She had lifted the lantern now, and I was striving to touch the wax taper to the wick, with imminent danger to my bare fingers.

"They don't really light well when the oil's out," she observed, with an exasperating air of wisdom.

I took it from her hand and shook it close to my ear.

"Yes; of course, it's empty," I muttered disdainfully, and threw it from me.

"Oh, Mr. Glenarm!" she cried, turning away toward my grandfather.

I heard his stick beating the rough path several yards away. He was hastening toward Glenarm House.

"I think Mr. Glenarm has gone home."

"Oh, that is too bad!" she exclaimed.

"Thank you! He's probably at the chapel by this time. If you will permit me—"

"Not at all!"

A man in the sixties should not tax his arteries too severely. I was quite sure that my grandfather ran up the chapel steps; I could hear his stick beating hurriedly on the stones.

"If you wish to go farther"—I began.

I was indignant at my grandfather's conduct; he had deliberately run off, leaving me alone with a young woman whom I had resolved never to see again.

"Thank you; I shall go back now. I was merely walking to the gate with Mr. Glenarm. It is so fine to have him back again, so unbelievable!"

It was just such a polite murmur as one might employ in speaking to an old foe at a friend's table.

She listened a moment for his step; then, apparently satisfied, turned back toward St. Agatha's. I followed, uncertain, hesitating, marking her definite onward flight. From the folds of her cloak stole the faint perfume of violets. The sight of her, the sound of her voice, combined to create—and to destroy!—a mood with every step.

I was seeking some colorless thing to say when she spoke over her shoulder:

"You are very kind, but I am not the least afraid, Mr. Glenarm."

"But there is something I wish to say to you, now that we have met. I should like—"

"Yes."

"I am going away."

"Yes; of course; you are going away."

Her tone implied that this was something that had been ordained from the beginning of time, and did not matter.

"And I wish to say a word about Mr. Pickering," I added.

She paused and faced me abruptly. We were at the edge of the wood, and the school lay quite near. She caught the cloak closer about her and gave her head a little toss I remembered well, as a trick compelled by the vagaries of woman's headdress.

"I can't talk to you here, Mr. Glenarm; I had no intention of ever seeing you again; but I must say this to you—"

"Those notes of Pickering's—I shall ask Mr. Glenarm to give them to you—as a mark of esteem from me."

She stepped backward as though I had struck her.

"You risked much for them—and for him—I went on."

"Mr. Glenarm, I have no intention of discussing that, or any other matter with you—"

"It is better so—"

"But your accusations, the things you imply, are unjust, infamous!" The quaver in her voice shook my resolution to deal harshly with her.

"If I had not myself been a witness—I began."

"Yes; you have the conceit of your own wisdom, I dare say."

"But that challenge to follow you, to break my pledge; my running away, only to find that Pickering was close at my heels; your visit to the tunnel in search of those notes—don't you know that those things were a blow that hurt? You had been the spirit of this wood and to me. Through all these months, from the hour I watched you paddle off into the sunset in your canoe, the thought of you made the days brighter—steadied and cheered me, and awakened ambitions that I had forgotten—abandoned—long ago. And this hideous struggle here—it seems so idle, so worse than useless now! But I'm glad I followed you—I'm glad neither fortune nor duty kept me back. And now I want you to know that Pickering shall not suffer for anything that has happened. I shall not punish him; for your sake he shall go free."

A sigh so deep that it was like a sob came from her. She thrust forth her hand entreatingly.

"Why don't you go to him with your generosity? You are so ready to believe ill of me! And I shall not defend myself; but I will say these things to you, Mr. Glenarm: I had no idea, no thought of seeing him at the Armstrong's—it was a surprise to me—and to them—when he telegraphed he was coming. And when I went into the tunnel there under the wall that night, I had a purpose—a purpose—"

"Yes!" She paused and I bent forward, earnestly waiting for her words, knowing that here lay her great offending.

"I was afraid—I was afraid that Mr. Glenarm might not come in time; that you might be dispossessed—lose the fight, and I came back with Mr. Pickering because—that was the easiest and quickest way—and I thought some dreadful thing might happen here to you—"

She turned and ran from me with the speed of the wind, the cloak fluttering out darkly about her. At the door, under the light of the lamp, I was close upon her. Her hand was on the vestibule latch.

"But how should I have known?" I cried, "when you had taunted me with my imprisonment at Glenarm; you had dared me to follow you. If you can tell me—if there is an answer to that—"

"I shall never tell you anything—more! You were so eager to think ill of me—to accuse me!"

"It was because I love you; it was my jealousy of that man, my boyhood enemy, that made me catch at any doubt! You are so beautiful—you are so much a part of the peace, the charm of all this! I had hoped for spring—for you and the spring together!"

"Oh, please—"

Her flight had shaken the toque to an unwonted angle; her breath came quick and hard as she tugged at the latch eagerly. The light from overhead was full upon us, but I could not go with hope and belief struggling unsatisfied in my heart. I seized her hands and sought to look into her eyes.

"But you challenged me—to follow you! I want to know why you did that!"

She drew away, struggling to free herself.

"Why was it, Marian?"

"Because I wanted—"

"Yes?"

"I wanted you to come, Squire Glenarm!"

My history of the affair at Glenarm has overrun the bounds I had set for it, and these, I submit, are not days for the desk and pen. Marian is turning over the sheets of manuscript that lie at my left elbow and demanding that I quit work for a walk abroad. My grandfather is pacing the terrace outside, planning, no doubt, those changes in the grounds that are his constant delight.

Of some of the persons concerned in this winter's tale let me say a word more. The prisoner whom Larry left behind me discharged after several days with all the honors of war, and (I may add without breach of confidence) a comfortable indemnity. Larry has made a reputation by his book on Russia—a searching study into the conditions of the Czar's empire, and, having squeezed that lemon, he is now in Tibet. His father has secured from the British government a promise of immunity for Larry, so long as that amiable adventurer keeps away from Ireland. My friend's latest letters to me contain, I note, no reference to The Sod.

Bates is in California conducting a fruit ranch, and when he visited us last Christmas he bore all the marks of a gentleman whom the world uses well. Stoddard's life has known many remarkable changes in the three years that have passed, but they must wait for another day, and, perhaps, another historian. Suffice it to say that it was he who married us—Marian and me—in the little chapel by the wall.

broke from her. She thrust forth her hand entreatingly.

"Why don't you go to him with your generosity? You are so ready to believe ill of me! And I shall not defend myself; but I will say these things to you, Mr. Glenarm: I had no idea, no thought of seeing him at the Armstrong's—it was a surprise to me—and to them—when he telegraphed he was coming. Her flight had shaken the toque to an unwonted angle; her breath came quick and hard as she tugged at the latch eagerly. The light from overhead was full upon us, but I could not go with hope and belief struggling unsatisfied in my heart. I seized her hands and sought to look into her eyes.

and that when he comes now and then to visit us, we renew our impression of him as a man large of body and of soul. Sister Theresa continues at the head of St. Agatha's, and she and the other Sisters of her brown-clad company are delightful neighbors. Pickering's failure and subsequent disappearance were described sufficiently in the newspapers, and his name is never mentioned at Glenarm.

As for myself—Marian is tapping the floor restlessly with her boot and I must hasten—I may say that I am no idler. It was I who carried on the work of finishing Glenarm House, and I manage the farms which my grandfather has lately acquired in this neighborhood. But better still, from my own point of view, I maintain in Chicago an office as consulting engineer, and I have already had several important commissions.

Glenarm House is now what my grandfather had wished to make it, a beautiful and dignified mansion. He insisted on filling up the tunnel, so that the Door of Bewilderment is no more. The passage in the wall and the strong box in the paneling of the chimney-breast remain, though the latter we use now as a hiding place for certain prized bottles of rare whisky which John Marshall Glenarm, ordains shall be taken down only on Christmas Eve's, to drink the health of Olivia Gladys Armstrong. That young woman, I may add, is now a belle in her own city, and of the scores of youngsters all the way from Pittsburg to New Orleans who lay siege to her heart, my word is, may the best man win!

Marian—the most patient of women—is walking toward the door, eager for the sunshine, the free airs of spring, the blue vistas lakeward, and at last I am ready to go.

The End.

IN VOGUE

FINE DAMASK LINEN

PLEA FOR THE HAND-LOOM WEAVERS OF IRELAND.

Distinguishing Mark—Would Show Product is the True Example of This Exquisitely Beautiful Fabric—Highly Prized.

Writing in the National Printers' Journalist, Mr. James White of Chicago has this to say on the subject of Irish hand-woven linen damask:

This richest form into which flax is woven was first introduced into Ireland from continental countries at the close of the seventeenth century by a Samuel Waring, who brought over a colony of weavers and settled them in what is now the village of Warrington, county Down. This village is still the center of what is left of the hand-loom industry.

Up to the present time there has been no distinguishing mark used by the weavers, that would inform the purchaser whether the goods offered for sale were hand or steam-power woven, but just now the weavers are endeavoring to bring about a change, and are asking the privilege of weaving in each tablecloth and napkin, the words, "Irish Hand-Woven Linen Damask," in small unobtrusive letters in the margin. This reproduction illustrates what they want:

The cause of this desired change is the lessened demand for their product, as the steam or power-loom goods have for over 50 years steadily supplanted the hand-woven article.

It was the hand-loom weavers of Ireland, who, by their untiring energy and industry, created the sentiment that surrounds Irish linen, that sentiment which always attaches to the best of any hand-produced article, whether it be engraving, printing, sculpture, lace or other luxury of life.

This sentiment has been used to the limit in pushing the sale of power-loom damask all over the world, even, it is said, to the extent of substitution, the second-class machine article for the superior hand-loom first.

As this country takes more than half of the Irish linen exports, it is advanced as an argument by the power-loom people, in this matter, that the buyers of the United States, would, if told that they could not get the hand-woven article without these words, tell the Irish selling agent to pack up his samples and get out.

This is a strange situation in these days of pure fact, pure drug and pure business laws and rules, when a buyer will object to the proof of an article's superiority being put in it at the point of manufacture, and by the man who by skill and hand-power made it.

Even with enough of a demand for the marked goods to insure the weavers' success, it will probably be Christ-mas-time before the ladies of America can have the opportunity of buying sets of this prized fabric, which lasts with care through several generations. In the meantime, the weavers should not be discouraged in their desire and effort to be allowed to make their handiwork tell regarding itself—no matter where displayed—"the truth, the whole truth and nothing but the truth."

The Toilet Table

A reddish brown veil is the best protection against the sun's rays. White and blue veils are no good whatever, since the sun's rays pass directly through them.

A simple remedy for freckles and tan. Ten grains of borax, 2 oz. lime-water, 2 oz. oil of sweet almonds.

Bright green or light chestnut suits the red-haired woman to perfection, whilst another shade in which she always looks well is that which exactly tones with the color of her hair, and must be unrelieved except for touches of white.

An excellent health rule for bright eyes and a clear skin is to take the juice of a lemon in a glass of water with a dash of salt added every morning before breakfast. This acts directly on the liver, which has more to do with good looks than people imagine.

Brunettes are wise if they adhere to soft ivory shades and eschew pure whites. A brilliant complexion, coupled with dark brown hair and eyes, can stand the bright rose pinks and Saxe blues which would be impossible if the coloring were less vivid. Unrelieved black is never a successful choice on the part of the dark-haired woman; grey is advisable, but fawn and biscuit color are, with few exceptions, the colors of the blonde.

Striped Serges in Favor.

Material Has Strong Hold on the Leaders of Fashion.

There is every safety in assuring readers that striped serges will be de rigueur and with self-colored coats they are sure to be extremely smart.

There is an almost rigid conventionality about the coat of a costume designed by a Rue Royale couturiere, for it follows with more faithful exactitude a man's cutaway than any of the modes thus far shown. The required feminine touch is added, however, in a dainty blouse of linen, hand-embroidered, but finished with a standing collar and fussy little bow tie of fluted linen, edged with Valenciennes edging. The skirt is laid in wide plaits and quite covers the ankles. The costume is tremendously businesslike and admirably suited to morning detours of the shops.

Dainty Ribbon Work.

Dainty things in ribbon work are becoming more captivating, both as regards the coloring, the fashioning of the flowers and the variety of materials used as backgrounds. Many of these articles are still further beautified by addition of frills in either gauze or muslin, bordered with one or two rows of bebe ribbon, sewed quite straight at the top of the ruffle in a contrasting tint.

Fad for Pure White Flowers.

There is a fad for pure white flowers and foliage leaf, flower and stem all dead, frosty white.

Huge roses of this type are used on large hats of white tulle and felt and are used, too, upon hats of palest pink.

IN THE NEW WORSTEDS.

Suggestion for Model for Wear in the Early Autumn.

For early autumn wear a striking model might be carried out in the new striped worsted, the skirt being laid in plaits all around the waist line, with the front panel in one very broad box plait. At the bottom there is a five-inch "false" tuck, stitched on as a trimming, and appearing at the top of this is a fold of dull gray ribbon velvet. A narrower fold of the dress material shows above the tuck, and this, too, is piped with velvet.

The bodice is quite plain, but smartly so. The neck is cut out in round effect, then revers of bronze silk stitched with gray braid are set inside over a yoke of all-over lace. The silk is a grayish bronze and the combination is unusually odd. Japanese sleeves droop over the shoulder and have a deep facing of the silk like the revers, and the braid appears again on the sleeves.

Elbow puffs of the worsted finished with a cuff of heavy lace and braid form the under sleeves.

A light satin felt hat accompanies the dress. This is in bronze gray, trimmed with gray velvet roses and green foliage. Parisiennes always affect the very light-weight satin finished felts early in August, although they are by no means considered authoritative autumn styles. If anything, they are simply launched as trials.

The Tartan Vogue.

There seems always to be some subtle connection between traveling gowns and wraps and fabrics of plaid, or rather tartan design, though it is difficult to discover any reason why checks rather than stripes or spots should be associated with long journeys by sea or land. Still, the fact remains, and it is a picturesque one enough, and the mode for wearing tartans generally more curiously still seems to appeal not only to some of us who claim Scotch descent, but also in quite a remarkable degree to those fair Parisiennes who as surely as the spring and the autumn seasons come round find some excuse for indulging in one or two tartan gowns and cloaks.

Nut Brown Bread.

Recently a recipe was given me for a most delicious and easily prepared brown bread. Mix together three-quarters cup each of white flour and graham with one teaspoon of baking powder and one-eighth of a teaspoon of salt. Then add one-quarter cup each of molasses and chopped English walnut meats. Mix to a batter with milk—it will require about three-quarters of a cup—and bake in a moderate oven. The nut meats add an indescribable richness of flavor—Good Housekeeping.

Red Vegetable Salad.

One cupful of cold boiled potatoes, chopped; one cupful of pickled beets, cut fine; one cupful of uncooked red cabbage, chopped fine. Add three tablespoonsful of oil, four tablespoonsful of vinegar in which the beets have been pickled, one-half a teaspoonful of salt, half as much pepper. Mix together lightly, let stand one hour in a cool place and serve.

IN THE LUNCH BASKET.

Care in Preparation of Contents is Well Worth While.

If the child goes to school so far from home that a basket lunch is necessary no less care should be taken in preparing this makeshift for a meal. It should be put up daintily, the various kinds of food being neatly wrapped in oiled paper. To send a child to school with a lunch composed of "any old thing," arranged in a haphazard manner is to invite all kinds of ills to take possession of the little stomach.

The first thing, of course, is to be sure that the lunchbox or basket is absolutely clean. Then cut several pieces of oiled paper. In one you may put a number of small sandwiches. Thinly sliced whole-wheat bread, with some sensible filling makes the best sandwiches, but there should be enough of them to assuage the cravings of hunger.

In another packet place some tasty sweet. Avoid pie assiduously, but any cake that is not too rich and that has only a plain icing will answer the purpose nicely. Fruit, too, should be added, with some crisp cookies or ginger wafers, but do not be tempted to insert any candy unless you chance to have a supply of absolutely pure maple sugar.

TO PAPER A PAINTED WALL.

Homemade Solution Will Completely Remove the Paint.

Occasionally a housekeeper wants to paper a room that has previously had the walls painted.

This is not easily done, nor one that is by any means cheap, if men must be hired by the day or hour to do it. Any enterprising woman who is willing to take the time and trouble can get the paint off herself.

Mix in a bucket of hot water enough potash to make a strong solution, and scrub the walls with a stiff brush dipped in it. Wash off in cold water and finish with dry flannel.

If the paint is very old it should be covered with a wash of three parts quicklime slaked in water to which has been added one part of potash. Allow this coating to remain on over night and the paint may be easily scraped off.

Peach Preserves.

Pare peaches and add to every pound of fruit a pound and a quarter of granulated sugar. Put in a kettle and boil five minutes. Turn out in a large bowl, cover with a thin cloth, put in sun and stir every day until perfectly transparent. Put in jars and cover with thick paper.

Pickled peaches—Ten pounds of peaches pared, five pounds sugar, one quart vinegar, mace, cinnamon and cloves to taste. Lay the peaches in the sugar for one hour, drain off the sirup and put on the fire; add one cup of water. Boil until scum ceases to rise, skim, put the peaches in and boil five minutes. Take out the peaches and spread upon dishes to cool. Add vinegar and spices to the sirup, boil 15 minutes longer and then put in the peaches again and when they come to a boil can them.

Mustard Pickles.

Take an equal quantity of small cucumbers, green tomatoes, sliced cauliflower, picked up small, small button onions. Mix together and cover with strongly salted water, a pint of coarse salt to six quarts boiling water, boiled, skimmed and cooled before using. After 24 hours, scald the brine and dissolve in it alum size of nutmeg. When cold, drain very thoroughly, prepare enough vinegar to cover. To one quart of vinegar add one cupful brown sugar, one-half cupful flour, one fourth pound ground mustard. Boil sugar and vinegar, mix flour and mustard, stir boiling vinegar into it, when smooth pour over pickles. Put small piece of horse radish in bottle to keep from molding. Melted paraffin may be poured over the top.

Green Corn, Country Style.

Material—eight ears of corn, one tablespoonful salt, two quarts cold water, two tablespoonfuls sugar, melted butter, pepper, salt.

Way of Preparing—Husk the corn and remove all silk, leaving one layer of husk next to the kernels. Put cold water in a deep kettle, put in your corn, bring to the boiling point and boil ten minutes. Add the salt and sugar and boil six minutes longer. More than this will cause the corn to lose its sweetness.

Heap the corn on a platter, serve to each person one ear, accompanied by a small sauceboat of melted butter, pepper and salt.

TIRED BACKS.

The kidneys have a great work to do in keeping the blood pure.

It causes backache, headache, dizziness, languor and distressing urinary troubles. Keep the kidneys well and all these sufferings will be saved you. Mrs. S. A. Moore, proprietor of a restaurant at Watertown, Mo., says:

"Before using Doan's Kidney Pills I suffered everything from kidney troubles for a year and a half. I had pain in the back and head, and almost continuous in the joints and felt weary all the time. A few doses of Doan's Kidney Pills brought great relief, and I kept on taking them until in a short time I was cured. I think Doan's Kidney Pills are wonderful."

HAD A FELLOW FEELING.

Aunt Susan's Heart Went Out to "Pore Missus Astor."

Uncle Eli felt he knew the metropolis pretty well. Had he not been there three times in four years—and twice he had ridden on the elevated. When he brought Aunt Susan with him (on the fourth trip) he naturally assumed the role of guide.

She marvelled at everything they sat down for luncheon. They had gone into the Astor house for the meal, but all its other marvels seemed lost on the visiting country hostess, as she looked open-eyed at the crowd that filled not only the corridors but the restaurants. Scarcely had they found seats, when this amazement took definite shape.

"Eli," said she in a staccato whisper, "I can't set here an' eat peaceably. Jes' must go downstairs an' help pore Missus Astor with the cookin' an' dishes."—Bohemian.

When the Orator Sored.

In the course of an address extolling the virtues of the medical profession, Dr. L. B. McBrayer of Asheville, N.C. used the following characteristic southern language:

"Could I borrow from the sun his cheery smile, from the moon her golden beams of light, from the south-ern zephyrs their softness, from the rose its fragrance, from the rainbow its celestial beauty, from the haddock its laughter and song, from the sea its awe and wonder, from the valley its serenity, and from the mountains their majesty and put these down upon a piece of azure blue sky with comets for commas and planets for periods, I might then paint for you what the practice of medicine is like."

On Wit and Humor.

Man is the only animal that laughs and weeps, for he is the only animal that is struck with the difference between what things are and what they ought to be. We weep at what thwarts or exceeds our desires in serious matters; we laugh at what disappoints our expectations in trifles. We shed tears from sympathy with real and necessary distress; as we burst into laughter from want of sympathy with that which is unreasonable and unnecessary, the absurdity of which provokes our spleen or mirth rather than serious reflections on it.—William Hazlitt.

NELLIE'S LESSON

By VIVIAN CLAUDE

(Copyright, by Joseph B. Bowles.)

She gets up that morning with a headache, a miserable sense of stress and nervous unrest, com- enough, doubtless, to young ones who have not yet succeeded adjusting their endurance to the burdens of life.

She goes out into the pleasant, kitchen; Charley has already the fire in the range, and has on into the large shed room call his "work-shop," where he occupies his spare hours in con- structing a set of furniture, from patterns, for a spare bed.

Nellie is planning to arrange, well, he may feel fresh and lively like working," thinks Nellie, half-ly, as she listens to the cheer- mellow whistle with which he time to the music of his tools. sleep like a rock all night. I don't ore he ever guesses how little or rest I got—or cares, either, he."

Which last is clearly unjust; and Charley Burt is one of the best hus- in the whole world, as Nellie oft is often heard to say.

He goes mechanically about her duties, preparing the break- fast, knows Charley likes best, putting up a dainty dinner in his lunch-basket—for he does not home till night—all the time against hope that baby will

When she gets some of the peaceful work done. The very sunshine fails to cheer with its brightness.

Breakfast over, he says cheerfully: "I wish you'd sew a button on my coat; I've missed some day or so."

That tone is the furthest possible hint of fault-finding.

He says: "Yes, Charley," very dry; but lifts the offending garment. She brings in the man she loves.

With a spiteful jerk; and goes to the bedroom to select from their work-table some suitable and the wherewithal to apply.

But just as she turns away full hands, those wicked buttons from her hold, and with the perversion that animates all some days, they cease not their till they have bestowed them far under the dressing-case, beyond reach. A hasty excla-she springs to her lips, but is repressed, while the vexed deepens. Losing temper and once together, she puts forth all strength and lifts the dressing- case away from the wall, rolling while she picks up the fugi- tions.

"Nell, hold on there," calls he, observing this exploit the open door. "Why don't let me help you? You ought not such things; you know you'll yourself."

"Well, it doesn't matter," she says, desperately. "I'm sure to be to death, somehow; it may be one thing as another."

A moment honest Charley looks a young wife with eyes and open; never has he heard such from her before. In that mo- ment seems to dawn upon him for time how much sharper is the outline of the still pretty face, pale the once pink cheeks, what lines under the blue eyes, how a look about the child-like

He sits down suddenly, in completeness of the shock.

"He says, presently, 'If you working too hard, why don't you a young girl to help, or put out the washing, for instance? It absolutely necessary that you do everything; you mustn't work, if we don't make up that payment this year.'"

He doesn't all my own work—un- sick—until we are quite out and have laid something by," he reply—she is somewhat

"Didn't I agree to, when you don't unless you are able, Nell; I'm taking you over-work; you are looking very well, it seems to course I am able," stubbornly, struggling to keep back the weak at these words of sympathy.

"I am well; what should all me? And as for what I do, you never see me doing much, do you?" with somewhat bitter emphasis.

She gives him the coat, proceeds to clear away the breakfast things, but just then baby Carl's shrill notes ascend.

"That baby!" she exclaims, with no very tender infection; and dropping cups and saucers, she hastens to relieve his sufferings. Charley has his coat on by this time, and is about to start; he has a 15-minutes' ride to his work. He steps into the bedroom and stoops over little Carl.

"Come, Nell, my girl," he calls, cheerily, "fetch us the good-by kiss."

"Oh, I'm busy," replies Nell, tartly, from the depths of the closet where she is selecting baby's clothes, "kiss Carl instead, that will do as well. I don't doubt you think a good deal more of him than you do of me any way," with perversely bitter intonation. If she thinks he will hasten to her and coax her out of her pet, she is greatly mistaken; he is not used to any such moods in his bright little helpmate, so does not know how to take them. There is a sudden silence, then she faces round just in time to see him give baby Carl one long kiss, and he turns away mute and hurt, and is gone. She hesitates a moment, too proud to call to him even then, till at last her heart conquers and she runs after him; but it is too late; he has passed out of the side-door, gone down the walk and is just step- ping on board the waiting horse-car.

How heavily the day passes after this, only a tender-hearted woman mastered by the same failing can know. Never before has she spoken such words to the husband she loves so dearly; never before since their wedding-day have they parted for even a few hours without a kiss and a loving word.

There has been a very happy mar- riage, too, having in it all the elements of prosperity and content. Charley Burt is a house-carpenter by trade, a first-rate mechanic, sober, in- dustry, earning good wages and constantly advancing at his work. They have a cozy little home, a pretty cottage in the suburbs.

Today she goes about the pretty rooms tidying everything as usual, and for the first time takes no pride or pleasure in them.

She gets through her routine-work somehow, doing all she thinks of or finds time for, because to leave anything undone would only add to the suffering of a mind ill at ease; but there is a heavy weight of misery at her heart.

Will night ever come—and bring her Charley home? At last every- thing is done; she has prepared a most inviting supper for her "good man," saying to herself:

"I'll take baby Carl and run down to the gate and meet him when he comes—then we'll kiss and make up."

Still he does not come, and it is quite past his usual hour. She sits patiently holding her boy, her face growing all the time more white and drawn and anxious.

"Oh, how I wish I had said good-by just as ever to-day!" she whispers for the twentieth time; then as the slow minutes creep along, "I am afraid—oh, so afraid something has hap- pened," for though he is sometimes a little late, it is very seldom that his time of coming varies a half-hour— and now it is two hours, and her vague presentiments of evil are grow- ing to a dreadful certainty.

She gets up and walks the floor, tired out as she is; another hour passes, and in the extremity of her distress and terror she is about to run across to her nearest neighbor, when a muffled tramping approaches and stops—"the feet of them that bear him are at his gates."

It seems to Nellie Burt that she dies a dozen deaths in that moment, while she stands rooted to the spot and sees them bring in the man she loves, senseless, bleeding, broken; then she rouses herself, and it is her ready hand that arranges the bed and smooths the pillow under the poor unconscious head.

"Not dead—no—that would have been a punishment greater than poor Nellie deserves, and more than she could bear; but there has been an accident—a scaffolding has fallen, and among the half-dozen men killed or injured Charley Burt has fared best of any—only a broken arm, a disloca- ted shoulder, and some cuts and bruises. He has been well cared for, too, and only conveyed to his home when the attending surgeon has de- cided that there are no internal injuries, and that he can safely be moved."

But the dread "might have been" stands out before her then so clear and plain that it leaves its impress on her very soul; and in all the rest of her life it helps to teach her the great lesson of patience and self-control.

So matters might have been much worse, after all; as it is, Nellie Burt's bad day ends with a perfect recon- ciliation between husband and wife, and a most grateful thanksgiving to God from one tender heart that she has been spared that sharpest pang of all—the utter misery of knowing that for this world her penitence has come too late.

HOME-MADE REMEDY

INEXPENSIVE AND EASILY PRE- PARED BY ANYONE.

Is Said to Promptly Relieve Backache and Overcome Kidney Trouble and Bladder Weakness Though Harm- less and Pleasant to Take.

What will appear very interesting to many people here is the article taken from a New York daily paper, giving a simple prescription, as formulated by a noted authority, who claims that he has found a positive remedy to cure almost any case of back- ache or kidney or bladder derange- ment, in the following simple prescrip- tion, it taken before the stage of Bright's disease:

Fluid Extract Dandelion, one-half ounce; Compound Kargon, one ounce; Compound Syrup Sarsaparilla, three ounces. Shake well in a bottle and take in teaspoonful doses after each meal and again at bedtime.

A well-known authority, when asked regarding this prescription, stated that the ingredients are all harmless, and can be obtained at a small cost from any good prescription pharmacy, or the mixture would be put up if asked to do so. He further stated that while this prescription is often pre- scribed in rheumatic afflictions with splendid results, he could see no rea- son why it would not be a splendid remedy for kidney and urinary troubles and backache, as it has a peculiar action upon the kidney structure, cleansing these most important or- gans and helping them to sift and filter from the blood the foul acids and waste matter which cause sick- ness and suffering. Those who suffer can make no mistake in giving it a trial.

NO NEED FOR WORDS.

Brief Pantomime Told Everything to the Onlooker.

Harrison Grey Fiske discussed, at a dinner in New York, the art of act- ing.

"I believe," said Mr. Fiske, "in sub- tlety and restraint. A nod, a shake of the head, a silent pause—these things are often more effective than the most violent yelling and ranting."

"Life is like that, subtle and silent. What, for instance, could be more ex- pressive than this scene, a scene without a spoken word, that I once witnessed in the country?"

"An undertaker stood on a corner near a noble mansion. He elevated his brows hopefully and inquiringly as a physician came from the house. The physician, compressing his lips, shook his head decidedly and hurried to his carriage. Then the undertaker with a sigh passed on."

FURIOUS HUMOR ON CHILD.

Itching, Bleeding Sores Covered Body—Nothing Helped Her—Cuticura Cures Her in Five Days.

"After my granddaughter of about seven years had been cured of the measles, she was attacked about a fortnight later by a furious itching and painful eruption—all over her body, especially the upper part of it, forming watery and bleeding sores, especially under the arms, of considerable size. She suffered a great deal and for three weeks we nursed her every night, using all the remedies we could think of. Nothing would help. We tried the Cuticura Remedies and after twenty-four hours we noted considerable im- provement, and after using only one complete set of the Cuticura Remedies, in five consecutive days the little one, much to our joy, had been entirely cured, and has been well for a long time. Mrs. F. Ruefenacht, R. F. D. No. 3, Bakersfield, Cal., June 25 and July 20, 1906."

A Point of View.

The new steamer City of —, was laid up for repairs and one of the rickety old-timers of the line was sailing in her place. A passenger who was somewhat irritated by the fact remarked to another, an Irishman, by the way: "The City of — always gets in at two in the morning and this old tub never gets in before six."

The Irishman thought for a moment and replied: "It's all right. The dis- tance is just the same and we get a longer sail for the money."

Full of Knots.

The lanky tramp removed his tat- tered hat and displayed his intellect- ual brow. "Ah, lady," he confided, "I have brains to burn. There is nothing I like better than to tackle knotty prob- lems."

The busy housewife reached for the ax.

"Indeed!" she said. "Well, go down to the woodpile. You will find that last load the most knotty prob- lem you ever tackled during your career."

PROLIFIC GARDEN

ENGLISHMAN'S FIRST AND suc- CESSFUL ATTEMPTS IN MANI- TOBA—SOIL PRODUCES STRIKING RESULTS.

The Winnipeg (Canada) Free Press of a few days since contains account of the success that followed the ef- forts of William Knowles, an English- man who located near Winnipeg, Man- itoba. This is but one of many let- ters giving experiences of settlers, and should be encouraging to those who are looking about for a new home in which they may better their conditions. The following is a copy of the article referred to:

William Knowles, who cultivates some twelve acres of land just below Middlechurch ferry on east side of the Red River has probably as fine a dis- play of horticultural products as any in Manitoba. The whole of his hold- ing is in a high state of cultivation and literally crowded with splendid vegetable specimens, which have for- tunately escaped damage by hail, al- though heavy storms have more than once occurred within a few miles. The potatoes are a wonderful crop, and he expects to raise 1,500 bushels from his patch of 4½ acres. A half dozen of tubers selected yesterday average more than a pound each. Adjoining the potatoes may be seen a marvelous collection of tomatoes. There are 600 plants, all growing under an enor- mous weight of fruit. One single stock picked yesterday contained eighteen tomatoes and weighed four pounds. This extraordinary example of marvelous growth, together with some of the potatoes were sent to the Free Press office.

The proprietor was the first in town with several specimens, includ- ing green corn. The season has been favorable for onions, and one square patch of nearly an acre is looking re- markably healthy. In addition there are good crops of cabbages, cauliflower, turnips, parsnips, carrots, pump- kins, marrows, cucumbers, celery, peas, lettuce, rhubarb, etc. The floral de- partment has not been neglected and a charming display of all the well known blooms were shown, including a specially choice lot of asters.

Mr. Knowles, who gained most of his gardening experience in England, is loud in his praise of Manitoba soil for vegetable raising, and is gratified with the result of his first attempt at extensive horticulture.

Beaten.

Hereupon the widows and orphans, whom we had plundered, proceeded to call down the customary curses upon our heads.

"And upon your children and your children's children, unto the fourth generation!" they cried.

We gave them a rude stare and burst out laughing.

"Ever hear of a family as rich as we are now become having any children?" we sneered, and you should have seen how beaten they looked.—Puck.

Miss Ascum—Why didn't you scream?

Miss Koy—I didn't want to scare the poor fellow.

Women Avoid Operations

When a woman suffering from female trouble is told that an operation is necessary, it, of course, frightens her.

The very thought of the hospital, the operating table and the knife strikes terror to her heart.

It is quite true that these troubles may reach a stage where an operation is the only resource, but a great many women have been cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound after an operation has been decided upon as the only cure.

The strongest and most grateful statements possible to make come from women who by taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound made from native roots and herbs, have escaped serious operations, as evidenced by Miss Rose Moore's case, of 307 W. 26th St., N. Y. She writes:

"Dear Mrs. Pinkham:—Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has cured me of the very worst form of female trouble and I wish to express to you my deepest gratitude. I suffered intensely for two years so that I was unable to attend to my duties and was a burden to my family. I doctored and doctored with only temporary relief and constantly objecting to an operation which I was advised to undergo. I decided to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound; it cured me of the terrible trouble and I am now in better health than I have been for many years."

This and other such cases should encourage every woman to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound before she submits to an operation. Mrs. Pinkham's Standing Invitation to Women

Pure Food.

The pure food law does not prohibit the sale of Cream of Tartar Baking Powders because Cream of Tartar is as pure as Alum—but it is a well known fact that a baking powder in which Alum is used instead of Cream of Tartar is less injurious. Dr. Herman Reinhold, the expert German chemist, in a recent official report concerning Baking Powders, declares that a pure Alum baking powder is better and less injurious than the so-called Cream of Tartar powders. He says that if the quantity of alum contained in a suf- ficient quantity of baking powder for a batch of bread or cakes for an ordi- nary family, be concentrated to one mouthful of food, and taken into the stomach of any one person, no matter how delicate, it could do no harm.

Where He Had Best of It.

John and Willie are twins. Their best friend and playfellow is Archie, who is gifted with red hair and a hot temper. One day they quarreled and Archie started home in a huff. The unsympathetic twins called after him "red head, red head." Archie seemed not to hear until the insult was re- peated, then he turned and called back, "Don't care if I am red headed. I ain't twins and folks can tell me apart."—Frank Fords Press.

As to the Scorchers.

"Do many endurance race" autos pass here?" asked the city boarder, peering down the road. "Yes, stran- ger," replied the old farmer. "They are all endurance racers to us." "To you?" "Sure. It is an endurance test of patience to keep from blazing away at them every time they run over a cow or scare a horse."

New and Liberal Homestead Regulations in WESTERN CANADA

New Districts Now Opened for Settlement

SOME of the choicest lands in the grain growing belts of Saskatchewan and Alberta have recently been opened for settlement under the Revised Homestead Regulations of Canada. The lands are of some 160 acres each and are now available. The new regulations make it possible for entry to be made by proxy, the opportunity that many in the United States have been waiting for. Any member of a family may make entry for any other member of the family who may be entitled to make entry for himself or herself. Entry may now be made before the Agent of Sub- Agency of the District by proxy, (in certain condi- tions) by the father, mother, son, daughter, brother or sister of intending homesteader.

By even numbered section of Dominion Land Act, 1872, and 1880, not reserved, may be homesteaded by any person the sole head of a family, or male over 16 years of age, to the extent of one-quarter section, of 160 acres, more or less.

The fee in each case will be $10.00. Churches, schools and market convenient. Healthy climate, splendid crops and good laws. Grain-growing and cattle raising principal industries. For further particulars as to rates, routes, best time to go and where to locate, apply to

TESTED AND PROVEN.

There is a Heap of Solace in Being Able to Depend Upon a Well Back.

For months Michigan readers have seen the constant expression of praise for Doan's Kidney Pills, and read about the good work they have done in this locality. Not another remedy ever produced such convincing proof of merit.
A. Douglass, living at 10 Badling St., Hillside, Mich., says: "I have been a great sufferer from kidney troubles.
My back ached constantly and any stooping or over exertion always aggravated the trouble. If I took cold it would always settle in my kidneys and at these times the pain and annoyance would be most severe. My kidneys were much disordered, the secretions being very frequent in action, containing a sediment, of an offensive odor and much discolored. I used many remedies, but nothing gave relief until I procured Doan's Kidney Pills. They positively cured me from every sign of kidney trouble." (From statement given December 26, 1901.)

FOR SALE TO STAY CURED.
On December 1, 1906, Mr. Douglass confirmed above statement saying: "I cheerfully re-endorse statement I made recommending Doan's Kidney Pills in 1901. The cure has been a permanent one and I have not suffered the slightest symptoms of kidney trouble since."

Deafness Cannot be Cured
By local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear.
There is only one way to cure deafness,
and that is by constitutional remedies.
Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, deafness is the result, and if closed the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for particulars free.

It is rumored that there is a scarcity of school teachers in the county at the present time, as some of the district schools have been unable to secure teachers. Possibly the small wages offered has more to do with it than anything else.—Living-

Early-nine Baptist pastors in eastern Michigan were voted 10 per cent increase in salary by the Detroit Baptist association at its annual meeting recently. No pastor shall receive less than $750 a year.
Increased cost of living and the difficulties with which ministers in small churches provide for themselves and families on salaries of $400 and $500 a year are causes for the raise.

SCHOOL NOTES.

Mary Weber and Mary McKune of the class of '07 visited school last Thursday.

The athletic association has amended its constitution, making the membership fee twenty-five cents.

Our coach is continuing to do good work with the football team. The first game is with Stockbridge high school next Saturday.

The Lady Maccabees will serve the dinner for the institute at their hall, instead of the seniors at the school house as was previously announced.
Everyone is invited to the dinner which is twenty-five cents.

The fourth and fifth grades have had to be closed this week on account of the cold weather. These grades will convene again next Monday. We hope the steam radiators will be here and put in place by that time. It is very unfortunate for these grades to be broken up in their work this year.

The lecture Friday night by Prof.
Henderson will be free. The state pays the expense of this institute. The institute at the school house all day Saturday is also free. We hope our citizens will manifest their loyalty and interest in the school by being present at the lecture Friday night and the program Saturday.

Mr. Sink, secretary of University School of Music has sent Supt. Gallup tickets for the Choral Union and May these tickets for $2.85 to the people of Chelsea, giving them the benefit of the 5 per cent commission for selling. An attempt will be made to give Chelsea people special car service to and from these concerts this year.

The housewife who has been wont to survey well-stocked shelves of canned fruit, preserves, jellies and pickles, finds this year that the supply is just about a minus quantity.
The raw material has been either impossible to obtain or so high in price as to be prohibitive. The oldest inhabitant can hardly recall the time when fruit, garden stuff and eatables of all kind brought the high prices that prevail today.

EVERY RHEUMATIC

INVITED TODAY

TO TEST URIC-O FREE!

75-Cent Bottle Given Free to All Who Apply

If there are still any sufferers from Rheumatism in this county or wherever this paper reaches, that have not yet tried the wonderful Rheumatic Remedy URIC-O, we want them to try it now at our expense. We firmly believe that there is not a case of Rheumatism in the world that will not yield to the wonderful effects of URIC-O, and we want to prove it to every sufferer beyond all possibility. The best way to do this is to give a large trial bottle of this remedy outright to every sufferer and let him test and try it to his own satisfaction. If you or any of your family suffer from Rheumatism, no matter what form, just cut this notice out of the paper and send it together with your name and address, also the name of your druggist, to the Smith D. Og Co., 311 Smith Bldg., Syracuse, N. Y., and they will send you by return mail a liberal trial package free of all expense. There is no reservation to this offer. You take the remedy home and use it according to directions until thoroughly satisfied of its merits.

We could not afford to do this if we did not know that after you are freed from this dreaded disease that you will recommend it to all your friends who have rheumatism. We know from experience that personal recommendation from one person to another is the most valuable advertising, and that is the way we intend to acquaint the world with URIC-O. Don't put off writing because this offer will soon expire, and then it will be too late. Do it today and start on a self upon the highway to perfect health and happiness. Send URIC-O, no matter where you live. It is sold by druggists all over this country, and we want you to have a bottle free.

URIC-O is sold and personally recommended in Chelsea by Freeman & Cummings Co.

So far as the votes of the people
