THE NEW FLOUR MILL.

HAS A CAPACITY OF 125 BARRELS.

The Machinery is All Placed in Position—A Modern Flour Mill in Every Respect.

The new flour mill of the White Milling Co., is fast nearing completion, and from present indications the mill will undoubtedly be ready to start next week. The machinery is all placed in position and the millwrights are waiting for the belting which is expected to reach here today. The new mill has a flour grinding capacity of 125 barrels per day and the machinery is all of the most modern make.

The new mill is one of the best in Washtenaw county, and Manager White informs The Standard-Herald that when the mill is started its product will find a ready market as he has had considerable correspondence with some of the largest flour dealers in the United States during the past month.

One of the most important features of the mill is the manner in which the grain and its products will be handled. The wheat is placed in a hopper on the outside of the mill which leads to a receiving bin in the basement, from which it is elevated to a cleaning separator on the second floor where it is thoroughly cleaned. From the separator it goes to the scales on the first floor where it is weighed and every farmer gets good clean wheat for his flour. The flour stuff is sacked and the producer can take it home with him if he desires. From the time the wheat is delivered in the hopper on the outside of the mill until it is sacked for delivery, the work is all done by machinery, and so far as human hands are concerned, they do not come in direct contact with the flour during the entire process of manufacture.

On first floor is located the business office; five double stands of roller mills; a wheat steamer; a Columbia feed governor which regulates the amount of wheat that is fed to the rolls; a blender for spring wheat; three sets of scales; a large roller feed grinding mill, which has a capacity of 80 to 100 bushels of mixed feed, or 50 to 75 bushels of family corn meal per hour; three flour packers and a number of other machines used in the manufacture of flour for domestic purposes.

On the second floor is five large galvanized iron tanks which are used for feeding the grain to the rolls and for the storage of flour, they are so constructed that they are absolutely dust and insect proof; four middling purifiers; one bran finisher; a flour separator. From the tanks and separators a number of galvanized iron spouts lead to the dust collector on the third floor. The roller mills are also connected with the dust collector, by which means all dust and hot air is removed from the machinery. A tank feed roll; bins for 150 tons of bran and middling and a number of other machines.

On the third floor is a shake shoe that is used for cleaning feed grists; two wheat scouring and polishing machines; Eureka milling separator; three square flour sifters, each containing 30 screens; wheat mixing garner; 28 stands of elevators and conveyors; the dust collector and several other pieces of milling machinery.

The basement is occupied by three receiving bins; a corn sheller; shafting and the heads of the elevators and conveyors.

The power plant is located in a separate building. The engine is rated at 77-horse power and the boiler will carry a steam pressure of 90 pounds to the square inch. Both the boiler and engine have been equipped with all the latest appliances.

The mill has been wired and will be lighted with electricity. It will also be heated with steam. A bin of 5,000 bushels capacity runs from the basement to the roof, and another one of similar capacity is in the course of construction. When the mill is started it will require 125 bushels of wheat to charge the machinery before any flour will be delivered in the sack or bins.

THE FOOT BALL GAME.

Chelsea vs. Stockbridge Last Saturday—Score 6 to 5 in Favor of the Home Team.

The local football season was opened last Saturday when the local high school team stacked up against the Stockbridge team in a game. With only a few weeks practice, Coach McLaren "135 pounds" put it all over the Stockbridge team, whose average weight is 160 and whose team has been coached by Case, an old Beloit college star.

The local team with a handicap of 25 pounds to a man went into the game with a determination to win and with Quarterback Prudden directing the plays with an eye of a veteran scored a touchdown in the first five minutes of play, Carpenter carrying the ball over and Prudden kicking the ball over and the ball rolling back of the goal line. Stockbridge was allowed to fall on it by Chelsea and a touchdown resulted. They failed at goal and the score stood 6-5 with Chelsea on the long end.

Prudden received a bad kick in the eye on the next play and was forced to retire. The substitution of Bacon made Chelsea's offense weaker and no more scoring resulted although the Chelsea team had the ball in Stockbridge territory nearly all the time. To pick out the stars would be to name the whole team. The coach made no secret of the fact that the local lads put up a fine game and was well pleased with their work.

A Newspaper of Character.

In its eighth birthday number, published the first of the month, The Detroit Times emphasizes its strict advertising policy by putting out over ninety columns of advertising without an objectionable line in them. The Times has always made it a point to stand for the things worth while in civic and industrial affairs, and it takes strong position against advertising filth and frauds on the ground that a public journal should practise what it preaches in line with a "square deal." The Times begins its eighth year with 40,000 circulation, surpassing any record ever made in Detroit within a like period.

PROVED A FINE SUCCESS.

AN EXCELLENT ATTENDANCE.

Instructive and Interesting Lecture—Prof. Henderson of the U. of M. Had Charge of the Institute.

The first of the series of county inspiration teachers' institutes was held in Chelsea last Friday evening and Saturday and it was a success in every sense of the word.

Seventy-nine teachers were enrolled and one hundred and twelve attended the sessions which were held in the high school building Saturday. This is considered a remarkably good showing by County School Commissioner Essery, who was highly pleased with the results of the institute.

There is to be five more institutes held in this county and the next one will be held in Milan, November 12, with Prof. N. A. Harvey in charge. The round-up of the institutes will be held in Ann Arbor.

Prof. Henderson of the U. of M. had charge of the Chelsea institute, and all the teachers present expressed themselves as greatly benefited by his lectures and the work of the institute will be of material aid to them in their school duties.

Supt. Gallup delivered an interesting lecture on Agriculture and had charge of the local arrangement for this meeting of both city and rural school instructors.

A good musical program was also carried out and all of the lectures were very instructive and entertaining. All parts of the county was represented and every teacher returned to his or her home well pleased with the results of the institute work.

The Lady Macabees served an excellent dinner in their hall which was liberally patronized by the visiting teachers.

THE CIRCUIT COURT.

Docket Shows Twenty-two Criminal Cases to be Tried before Judge Kinzie, this Term of Court.

The October term of the circuit court opened in Ann Arbor, Monday. The docket shows a list of 22 criminal and 80 civil cases to be tried this term of court.

The criminal cases include two for larceny, The People vs. Frank Shetterly and John Kearney; two burglary and larceny, John Finletter and Chas. Perrine; eight violation liquor law, Wm. Koebnick, Theodore Sibe, Nicholas Seng-er, John Kross, Robert Mahrie, William and Frank Sloat, William Lehr and Fred Dietle; two horse stealing, John Kearney and Will Pemberton; two immoral offence, Victor Strong and Lynn Crosby; one assault with intent to do great bodily harm, Albert Koch; one assault with intent to kill, Lewis Davis; one drunk and tipping, third offence, John Schumaker; one attempting to furnish liquor to prisoner in jail, Sherman Baldwin and Patrick Morgan, and one unlawfully bringing liquor into jail, Henry Rahr.

On the docket of civil cases are 50 issues of fact, 10 chancery first class and 20 chancery fourth class, including 18 divorce cases.

Contesting the Claims.

Samuel Conby and Harriet S. Conby of Pittsfield have sued the Washtenaw Mutual Fire Ins. Co. for $1,800, which they charge the company refuses to pay on the loss of their house, June 26, of this year, that being the amount of their insurance. The company alleges in defense of their claim that the Canbys increased the risk after the house was insured by cutting a hole through the roof of the kitchen and staking a stovepipe through the hole without protection and that the fire started from this stovepipe.

It is also claimed that in the application the Canbys claimed to own the property while in the suit they only allege an interest in the property.

County Sunday School Convention.
The annual convention of the Washtenaw County Sunday School Association will be held at the Baptist church in Salom, Tuesday and Wednesday, October 29 and 30.

It is hoped that every Sunday school in the county may be represented by one or more delegates. A program is in preparation and it is desired to make this one of the best conventions that has ever been held in the county.

SERIAL STORY

Mr. Barnes, American

By Archibald Clavering Gunter

A Sequel to Mr. Barnes of New York

Author of "Mr. Barnes of New York," "Mr. Potter of Texas," "That Frenchman," Etc.

Copyright, 1917, Dodd Mead & Co., N. Y.

CHAPTER I.

The Shock in the Marseilles Depot.

"I wonder if I can head off those cursed Corsican murder enthusiasts?" mutters Mr. Barnes, of New York, as he stands on the deck of the French steamer with Marseilles looming up in the heat mist ahead of him on a May morning of 1883, after the escape of the bride party from Corsica.

There are very few passengers. Barnes' gold having sent the steamer back on her return voyage to Marseilles within two hours after her arrival at Ajaccio.

His glance is turned contemplative beyond the whirling, eddying wake of the propeller's foam toward that curious island of a semi-medieval race, 200 miles behind him, whose rugged mountain slopes and chestnut valleys are the home of that undying revenge that the Corsicans think is noble; that they worship, idealize and call "the Vendetta."

The representative of New York fashion, American sportsmanship and modern materialism, who has flitted to the island and plucked not only the young English lieutenant, Edwin Gerard Anstruther, but his bride, Marina, the daughter of the Paolis, from the meshes and entanglements of a feud that only ends with death, notwithstanding his reward is to be the hand of the beautiful girl he loves, emits a low, contemplative, melancholy whistle.

He mentally glances back and sees the house of Musso Danella in the moonlit chestnut groves of Bocognano, and Marina in her bride's gown, her sensitive, passionate face filled with that weird mixture of undying love and unending horror as she shuddered from the arms of the man she had just sworn to cleave to through life and mutter: "Antonio's murderer!"

Next he remembers the strange plot that brought back the wild happiness to the bride's face as she learned there was no taint of her brother's blood on Edwin Anstruther, her husband; that her horrible belief was due to circumstantial evidence and the jealous and crafty plot of Musso Danella, her guardian, the man lying dead upon the floor of the bridal chamber, Tomasso's dagger in his heart; and then had fallen fainting into her bridegroom's arms.

With this, the mind of Mr. Barnes reverts to his desperate efforts to get the whole party to Ajaccio before the natives of the little commune of Bocognano learned they had now another to avenge, and to the death of Marina's brother on the beach in the duello had been added that of Danella, their old-time friend, and to his peasants their kind maestro and proprietor.

Additional concern makes the face of the American even more grave as he mentally hears the distant ringing of the rifles on the mountain side as the carabinieri shot old Tomasso Mondaldi, who having become an assassin, had fled as a bandit, as the party made their weird ride to the Corsican seaport.

"If no deaths had followed the appearance of Marina's husband and me in the island, perhaps the accused affair might have slumbered and died out," reflects Barnes, gloomily; "as it is, there's no telling where the devilish thing may end. If they have money enough to pursue us, holy poker, they may even include me in the scrimmage."

A little, delicately gloved hand laid upon his arm interrupts his meditation. Miss Enid Anstruther, standing beside him, looking like a joyous fashion-plate in a light Parisian traveling dress, whispers archly: "Thinking of me?" then suddenly ejaculates in almost frightened tone: "Oh, I hope not! Your face is so moody, dear." Blushes spring upon the sensitive face, and his young English fiancée whispers with a piquant pout: "Gloomy, and going to marry me in three days? That's not very complimentary, Burton."

"No, in two, if we can make quick connections for London," answers Burton, tapturously. "One day is past. But I wasn't thinking of you, young lady," he continues, tenderly, giving her delicate cheek a caressing, proprietary pinch: "I was thinking of—"

"What we left behind us," shudders his vivacious betrothed. "Don't let us think of that weird horror, when—when—" The radiance of her blue eyes and the blushes on her fair cheeks suggest the rest.

"When our wedding day is so near," whispers Burton, tenderly. "I would be very happy, too, if our Corsican friends would only forget it." He checks himself, biting his lip and adds: "However, the modern world is before us. I can see the Pharos light-house and the Ile des Perdues."

"Why, we are nearly at Marseilles," ejaculates Enid.

"Yes, only breakfast between us and every-day France," returns her escort. "Now just run down and direct Thompson to get your traps together and then tell Edwin to hurry Marina. They should be on deck. You know as soon as landed, we'll get right on to London. We can probably catch the morning train."

Miss Anstruther's answer makes Burton chew his moustache; she says: "If Marina is strong enough."

"Strong enough? She's got to be strong enough. We must get out of France. The further we are away from Corsica, the better. In France they don't need a reciprocity treaty to take us back to that medieval island. There is no telling what devilish, complexions the natives of Bocognano may put upon the two dead men we left behind us. I don't want to alarm you—I wouldn't say this to Edwin or his bride—but the sooner we are out of France, the better."

"And you think that will be the end of the matter?" asks his fiancée, clinging closely to his arm as if Mr. Barnes were potent to save her from the whole Corsican race.

"Well, I think it would have been had we got away without old Tomasso killing Count Danella and the French carabinieri shooting old Tomasso. As it is—Barnes pauses suddenly and asks abruptly: "Did poor old Tomasso Mondaldi have any close relatives? Not so very close, either. Cousins, even to the second and third degree often take a hand in these barbaric feuds."

"I believe while I was there," answers Miss Anstruther, "I heard a daughter spoken of. Etheria, she was called—the betrothed, I understand, of that medieval young cavalier who acted as bridesman and made that awful Smollet speech to Marina. Young Bernardo Sallotti, a member of the local governing body, ambitious to be elected to represent Corsica in the French chamber of deputies."

"Humph, a young Corsican swell betrothed to the daughter of the man killed on the mountain. Besides, I've heard the dead Musso speak of a half-brother, Corsican on the mother's side—one Correggio Cipriano Danella. De Belloc mentioned him as we rode down the mountain. Correggio lives most of the time in southern France, but has the damnable ethics of his island," mutters Burton, then he suddenly checks himself, for Edwin Anstruther is bringing his bride up the companionway to the deck.

"And You Think That Will Be the End of the Matter?"

Every time her eye lights on her bridegroom, the flush of happiness transforms the bride's face into a dream of passionate loveliness. Each time she touches the arm of Edwin Anstruther, Barnes notes that her slight fingers cling to the young Englishman's stout muscles as if to be certain a living husband is beside her and she is not bereft. Still there is a confidence in the young Corsican lady's bearing that makes the American, who now considers himself as her physician, more hopeful of her physical strength.

"Ah, Marseilles is ahead of us, dear Dr. Barnes," she says, her dark eyes lighting up in their enthusiastic southern way. "Tomorrow, Paris; the next day, London, where, Edwin tells me, you hope to be happy, happy as—"

"As I am," interjects Anstruther. "Enid has promised to make you so, hasn't she, my boy? And I'll see that she does it. No delays for trousseau; minister to the mast and sentence executed at once on that young lady who is putting her head over the taffrail to hide her blushes, which she'll pretend come from the sea air."

"Please attend to Marina's blushes, Edwin; they're enough for any man to take care of," laughs Miss Anstruther.

"Yes, and take Mrs. Anstruther in to breakfast," commands Barnes, deftly giving Marina her English name, thinking it will impress upon her that she is no more a Corsican.

"Breakfast!" says Mr. Anstruther, promptly, and leads his bride into the dining salon.

"Though I am not married, I am hungry also," remarks Enid, suggestively.

"All right; step in quick," returns Burton, but pausing at the cabin door, he whispers: "Excuse me a moment. I see an old friend forward."

"What you are not going to sit by my side?" pouts his fiancée.

"In a minute. Order my breakfast for me."

A minute later he is standing among the few third-class passengers in the extreme bow of the boat, addressing an old Corsican, who, costumed in his best broad-brimmed sombrero and silver-buttoned coat, is seated upon a hen-coop and economically eating some hard-boiled eggs and roasted chestnuts he has produced from his pockets.

"You don't remember me, old Mateo," remarks Barnes, gazing at the ancient innkeeper of the auberge il Pescatori.

"By the blessings of the saints, I do, honored Signore Barnes, of New York," replies the representative of old Corsica, his eyes lighting up with a lurid glow. "A grand duel that we arranged on the beach a year ago! All Ajaccio has been out to see where Antonio died and Marina took the oath of the vendetta. It helped business grandly. Has she killed yet?" The old man's tone is moodily eager.

"Not yet," answers Barnes, sententiously.

"Per Baccio, I saw her with another English officer in the stern a few minutes since. They say she's wedded to him. Hasn't found the man who slew her brother, but given her beauty to another of his accursed race. 'Tis shame on Corsica!" mutters the old vendettaist, disgustedly.

"I believe on the morning of that duel," interjects Burton, "you were kind enough, Mateo, to give me quite a little history of the vendetta on your side, a fisherman, fell in one, and you drowned the man who killed your father."

"Ah, that memory is a pleasant one, Signore. I can always sleep in peace; my enemy had no relatives or descendants."

"But where there are relatives and descendants, the feud goes on?" The American knocks the ashes from his cigar.

"Until there are no more left, of course! Even to all who bear the name or have a drop of the blood in their veins if they are men and Corsicans," answers old Mateo, stoutly.

"Ah, but you seem quite an authority on the subject. But are these feuds ever permitted to include women as victims?" asks the American, his eyes very anxious.

"Maladetto, why not? Women produce two-thirds of the vendettas," mutters the old man, sardonically.

Mr. Barnes turns moodily away from this cruel aspect of the infernal passion of undying revenge. As he enters the dining salon and seats himself beside Miss Enid, he mutters to himself: "By Jove, am I losing my nerve?" for the thought that his delicate fiancée may possibly be drawn into the horrible blood feud has produced a new sensation in his veins.

Half an hour afterward the Ajaccio boat is pulled up alongside of the Quai Jollette in Marseilles and is discharging its few passengers and little freight into that bustling artery of modern commerce full of moving wagons, shrieking cabmen and the other ectectas of a great commercial port.

The ladies are below getting their little baggage together, assisted by Edwin. Barnes, who has already sent a waiter on foot to bring a carriage, with an after-breakfast cigar between his teeth, is pacing the deck of the vessel.

A bright, smart little telegraph boy flies up the gangplank. After asking directions of the first officer, he steps to Mr. Barnes and hands him a blue envelope.

DIDN'T PURCHASE THE MINE.

Prospective Owners Knew Not Where to Get Pack-Train Needed.

The secretary of an eastern company that some time ago was anxious to purchase a silver-lead mine in the northwest tells of an amusing incident in the negotiations for its purchase. As the ore assayed well and everything looked propitious, a mining expert was sent to examine the mine. His report was favorable, too favorable, in fact, and aroused the suspicions of the would-be purchaser; so it was determined to investigate more closely. At this point a well-known mining man of Butte recommended that a certain rough-and-ready genius should be sent to look at the mine. "You can depend upon his judgment," the mining man said. "You can trust to his report, which in all probability, will be brief and very much to the point." The advice was followed. As predicted, the report was short and pithy. It read substantially as follows: "Gents: I have made an examination of the X— mine, and report that the ore is there as represented; that it assays high; that it is there in plenty; but to get your supplies in and your ore out, you will need a pack-train of bald eagles."—Harper's Weekly.

Foe to Race Suicide.

The problem of race suicide will be simplified by the better housing of working people. As the result of an experiment—costing $1,500,000—by an English manufacturer, a garden colony for employees is reported to have a birth rate of 56 and a death rate of only nine per 1,000; while the children of seven are three inches taller and seven pounds heavier and those of 11 years are five and one-half inches taller and 20 pounds heavier, than the average of children of the same ages among the laboring classes of Liverpool.

Oldest Tunnel in the World.

Glenfield tunnel, on the Leicester & Swannington railway, in England, is the oldest tunnel in the world. It is about a mile long, and is the oldest section of the Midland company's system. Only four passenger trains pass through the tunnel each week day, and from Saturday night until Monday morning the tunnel is closed by a padlocked door at either end.

WOMAN'S INTERESTS

BEST CORSET COVER

STYLES MUST BE SELECTED TO SUIT FIGURE.

For the Stout Woman the Low-Busted Garment is the Best—No Loops or Bows for the Shoulders.

For stout figures having small busts, as is often the case, the rather low-busted corset should be worn, and the bust should be thrown out as much as possible, to balance the rest of the figure.

To confine a too fleshy bust with the old style corset top there are various corset covers, to be drawn tightly over the chest, which give firmness to and confine too-rotund outlines. One of these is shown in one of the cuts accompanying this text. The tie ends may be drawn as tightly as one pleases, but instead of being pulled crosswise one end should be drawn up toward the chin and the other toward the ties, and when the cover is tight enough the final tie may be given.

The ends going around the waist have ties of either silk or linen sewn on them, so that there is no unnecessary bulk. The back is seamless and on the bias, and the fronts are also cut bias.

One cover may be procured at a moderate price at the shop, but it lies on the shoulder with tapes, the lace edges extending across each end. This is a mistake. There should never be any loops or bows on top of the shoulders. The top of the shoulders should be as flat as possible. The object of the tapes being left is that the cover may be adjusted to fit both long and short waisted figures. One can, however, put these garments on and have these tied so that they are made to fit as one wishes, and then have the tapes and one or both lace edges removed, laying the front end over the back, and have a flat strap seam. This fits them smoothly.

This style of corset cover can be procured attached to a glove-fitting skirt, but these have to be ordered.

The Toilet Table

A ripe tomato cut and rubbed on the face tones and refreshes the skin and in some cases will remove yellow spots, including freckles.

Nothing makes a face so insipid as too scant eyebrows. The growth may be thickened by rubbing into them once a day some red vaseline. The white has been so refined that it has less strength.

Cucumber juice is the best of all bleaches for the skin. When cucumber cannot be obtained, fresh ripe grape fruit will be found a good substitute. Cut open and rubbed on the face, it is a tonic as well as a bleach.

A rational diet, regular meals, plenty of exercise in the open air, copious draughts of pure water between meals, with frequent and regular breathing exercises, constitute a treatment for dyspepsia that will in time enable the dyspeptic to toss about and pills out of the window.

When cold cream is found to disagree with the skin, as sometimes happens, try rubbing a little almond oil perfumed with a few drops of bergamot. Wash the face well first and then rub in the oil, using the massage movements. Wipe off carefully all superfluous oil.

Lace Fichu Kimono.

The lace fichu draped in kimono fashion that came out late will be seen more during the fall without doubt. It is of generous length, put on so that it falls well down over the shoulders and tops of the arms and is held at the waist line by the girdle under which it passes. The ends should reach nearly to the hem of the skirt. It is one of the new fancies to dye scarfs of this color the same shade as the skirt with which they are to be worn and wear them over a white lingerie or lace waist.

TO MARK THE KERCHIEF.

Use of Small Indelible Stamp is the Best Method.

Marking handkerchiefs with a simple initial is extremely confusing, especially when the washing is sent to the laundress outside of the house. A good plan to avoid this is to mark with both or all three initials, or, better still, with the entire name. This, however, is unpleasantly conspicuous.

A better way is to secure a small indelible stamp of the name, and to stamp the center of each handkerchief so that the marking is never in sight except when it is needed.

Another plan, adopted in a family of three daughters is to use a system of eyelets in the corner—one eyelet for the eldest daughter, two for the second, three for the third. The plan works like a charm, for the family initial on the parents' handkerchiefs are, of course, easily recognizable from the difference between the size of men's and women's handkerchiefs.

Finally, one girl who boards alone marks each of her handkerchiefs with large and plain X, confident that no one else will claim that initial.

The Newest Fabrics.

New and fashionable colors being displayed on the silk and velvet counters reflect hues of precious and semi-precious stones. Among the attractive mineral colors are malachite (deep blue), azurite (blue and green), rhodonite (pink or flesh red) and zoisite (deep rose); this last hue is sometimes described as thule, and is an exquisite shade of rose that looks particularly well in face cloth and soft velvets such as are being used for toilettes. Going over the list of unusual new shades one would think creators of new fabrics had made a tour of a museum of natural history and culled out all the beautiful colorings nature has given her gems. In other words, mineral colors have never entered so largely into fancy materials as at the present time. Some of the handsomest gowns shown are composed of several contrasting mineral colors so cleverly put together that one marvels at the designers' ability to produce such fascinating results in the realm of colors.

Colors of Autumn Street Gowns.

That very dark shades of blue, brown green and red are to be the smart colorings of late autumn and winter street costumes in cloths of various kinds, is no longer to be questioned, so assured is the fact. Velvets and silks follow suit and millinery assumes the same color character, in trimmings as well, whether of plumage or flowers, for both are to be the vogue. Those who are prepared to cast away their light cloth costumes have the dyer to resort to if economy is urgent. It is wise to wait for what fashion will decree later concerning visiting or afternoon dress before one gives herself any anxiety about the loss of costumes in light cloths or other fabrics.—Vogue.

Does Away with Much Work.

The New Idea gives practical hints that are of great service to mothers. It says a prevailing fashion that is a boon to college girls as a time-saving device is that of having all tub dresses made in one piece, or rather with the skirt and waist joined together, and the joining covered by a belt matching the trimming of the dress. It does away with the problem of hooks and eyes and safety pins, and assures neatness as well as comfort.

Vogue of False Braid.

The new fashion of crowning the head with a thick plait is very useful in forming a firm basis to the hat. In nine cases out of ten it is a plait of false hair and one may expect to see it shortly sold with the hat, as were the bunches of false curls.

LITTLE GIRL'S PLAID SUIT.

The jacket has a sailor collar effect in the back, the plain goods being cut off square just below the shoulders. Under the jacket the princess dress is buttoned in front and extends over the shoulders in narrow straps, which are ornamented with ecru lace en applique.

A MATTER OF TRAINING.

Briton and Scot Have Bootless Argument About Boyhood Dishes.

Two men had just come from the dining room of one of the downtown hotels, says the Kansas City Star. Sitting down and lighting a pair of black cigars, each was prepared to convince himself at least that the other didn't know much about good things to eat.

"Well," said the one with the florid countenance, blowing a cloud of smoke toward his right eye, "I've eaten in pretty nearly every good hotel in this country, but I've never found anything to compare with the grub my mother used to set us back home."

It was evident from the man's accent that "back home" was somewhere in England.

"Yes," said the other man, who had mutton chop whiskers and tousled gray hair, "and the chances are the grub your mother pleased you with wouldn't go at all with me."

"I guess you never sat down to a dinner of Macclesfield bacon, Cheshire cheese and a treacle pudding to put on top. You know the forest fed bacon of Macclesfield is famous the world over."

"But what of that? I wouldn't give a dish of haggis like my aunt in Glasgow used to make for all the bacon in Chester—and the cheese and Cheshire cats thrown in."

"But, man, you have never tasted the real thing, and—"

"And the scones my aunt could bake would melt—"

"Oh, forget it," said the Englishman, throwing away his half-smoked cigar, viciously, missing the mark two feet. "Come on, Scotty, let's see if we can agree on what's good to drink."

Fighting for Mud.

Mud seems to be the latest commodity which has been cornered. The monopolist is the well-known Bohemian watering place Franzenbad, whose wonderful healing mud baths are famous throughout the world. The news of Franzenbad's business enterprise has just become known in the course of a lawsuit at Eger between the Saxony government and the municipality of Franzenbad.

Saxony has a watering place also with mud baths, Bad Elster. Some time ago Bad Elster entered into negotiations to buy a large area of ground containing mineral mud deposits near Franzenbad.

When the Bohemian town heard what was going on they promptly decided to head off their Saxon rivals and stepped in and bought up the land themselves. The Saxons were greatly aggrieved and carried the matter into the Bohemian courts, which decided against them.

During the trial it was stated that although Franzenbad already possessed an inexhaustible supply of this precious mud the town had spent more than a million crowns in buying up all the mud lands in the surrounding country in order to secure exclusive possession for all time of this valuable healing remedy.

Horse Dentists Needed.

A bright young woman who attends the horse shows remarked that she believed many horses indicated suffering from diseased teeth by restlessness and other forms of "bad manners." On giving the subject consideration one is led to the conviction that this is not only true, but that there is also room for much improvement in veterinary dentistry.

About the only treatment prescribed by the ordinary veterinarian and sometimes practiced by the coachman or groom, is "floating" or filing the teeth which become worn down on one side and leave the higher side sharp and sometimes jagged. But we never hear anything about filling the teeth, or otherwise treating them, especially if they or the gums be ulcerated, beyond pulling them out. As the young woman referred to also remarked, "What excruciating pain it must be to have a cold steel bit put on a sensitive tooth, possibly on a nerve exposed!"

There are many reasons for a horse's misbehavior, adds the Rider and Driver, aside from his "bad temper."

Serious Young English Woman.

Mrs. Gladstone, wife of the home secretary of England, was brought up in the opposite political camp, for she was Miss Dorothy Paget, daughter of Sir Richard Paget, for many years a conservative member for Somerset. Her marriage to the youngest son of the great liberal statesman took place nearly six years ago. Though she has given no notable entertainments, this bright, pretty woman often receives the more serious—one might almost say learned—members of the liberal party, and also those who share her husband's devotion to the royal and ancient game of golf. She is thoroughly well read, takes an interest in politics and to a certain extent shares in Mr. Gladstone's love of outdoor life. But it was music that drew them together in the first place. She is very musical and he is specially fond of part singing. And while singing together they mutually fell in love.

The Whole Thing.

"It's called a 'loving cup,' you say? My! what a big cup it is! What's it for?"

"The rum punch and things like that."

"But why is it called a loving cup?" "Because its for people loving rum punch and things like that."

SAID TO BE SIMPLE

EASILY MIXED RECIPE FOR KIDNEYS AND BLADDER.

Tells Readers How to Prepare the Home-Made Mixture to Cure the Kidneys and Bladder and Rheumatism.

Get from any prescription pharmacist the following:

Fluid Extract Dandelion, one ounce; Compound Kargon, one ounce; Compound Syrup Sarsaparilla, three ounces.

Shake well in a bottle and take a teaspoonful dose after each meal at bedtime.

The above is considered by an eminent authority, who writes in a New York daily paper, as the finest prescription ever written to relieve Backache, Kidney Trouble, Weak Bladder and all forms of Urinary difficulties. This mixture acts promptly on the eliminative tissues of the kidneys, enabling them to filter and strain the uric acid and other waste matter from the blood which causes Rheumatism.

Some persons who suffer with the affections may not feel inclined to place much confidence in this simple mixture, yet those who have tried say the results are simply surprising, the relief being effected without the slightest injury to the stomach or other organs.

Mix some and give it a trial. It is certainly much highly recommended. It is the prescription of an eminent authority, whose entire reputation, it is said, was established by it.

HIS MEMORY WAS GOOD.

Commodore Vanderbilt Had Not Forgotten Old Days.

The coming of age of Miss Gladys Vanderbilt and the payment to her of some twelve millions of dollars inheritance has brought out a new crop of anecdotes about the Vanderbilt fortune. One of the latest illustrates the democratic spirit of the old commodore.

Sitting on the porch of a fashionable hotel at a fashionable resort on one occasion, it is related, the commodore saw a lady acquainted with whom he was conversing. His wife and daughter, who recognized her, could scarcely contain their anger when he arose and politely addressed her.

"Don't you know," said the daughter after she had gone, "that horrid woman used to sell poultry to us?"

"Yes," responded the old millionaire, "and I remember when your mother sold root beer and I peddled oysters in New Jersey."

A Ventilation Test.

It is very hard to make an impression on those people who defend their possessions on all occasions. A lady was explaining to a visitor the many advantages of concrete hollow-block construction, of which the walls of her new home were built.

"The air spaces in the walls afford insulation against heat in summer and cold in winter," she explained. "Besides, such walls afford ventilation and insure a more healthful house."

The visitor reflected a moment, and replied:

"Our frame house must be quite as well built. Every night we lock the cat in the cellar, and have to let her out of the attic in the morning."—Youth's Companion.

All Explained.

There is a little story going round the house of commons about a certain member who abstained from voting on the deceased wife's sister bill. Questioned by one of his friends as to the reason for his abstention, he replied: "Well, my dear fellow, it's just like this—my wife has a sister."

Chiropodist's Prescription.

A lotion and powder for tender and swollen feet: One teaspoonful of boracic acid to one pint of grain alcohol. After bathing the feet in lukewarm water, spray them with the lotion, used in an atomizer, and fan until dry. The effect is delightful. Then rub over the foot this powder, or put it on the stocking:

Powdered starch, 35 grains, oil of lavender, ten drops; oil of lavender, 15 drops; Mix well, and pass through a sieve. Excellent.—National Magazine.

TRANSFORMATIONS.

Curious Results When Coffee Drinking Is Abandoned.

It is almost as hard for an old coffee lover to quit the use of coffee as it is to quit the use of tobacco. To break off, except that the coffee user can quit coffee and take up Postum without any feeling of a loss of the more potent beverage, for when Postum is well boiled and served with cream, it is really better in point of flavor than most of the coffee served nowadays, and to the taste of fine, mild Java.

A great transformation takes place in the body within ten days or two weeks after coffee is left off. The Postum used, for the reason that it has been discontinued, and in its place taken a liquid food that contains the most powerful elements of nourishment.

It is easy to make this test. Prove these statements by changing from coffee to Postum. Read "The Road to Wellville," in page "The Reason."

Everybody Wants

the best, if it can be shown that the best is a real economy. A horse that costs a few dollars more, and gives three or four times the service, is cheaper. So of a paint that costs a few pennies more.

TESTED AND PROVEN.

There is a Heap of Solace in Being Able to Depend Upon a Well Back.

For months Michigan readers have seen the constant expression of praise for Doan's Kidney Pills, and read about the good work they have done in this locality. Not another remedy ever produced such convincing proof of merit.

A. Douglass, living at 10 Budlong St.,

Hillsdale, Mich., says: "I have been a great sufferer from kidney troubles.

My back ached constantly and any stooping or over exertion always aggravated the trouble. If I took cold it would always settle in my kidneys and at these times the pain and annoyance would be most severe. My kidneys were much disordered, the secretions being very frequent in action, containing a sediment, of an offensive odor and much discolored. I used many remedies, but nothing gave relief until I procured

Doan's Kidney Pills. They positively cured me from every sign of kidney trouble." (From statement given December 26, 1901.)

CURED TO STAY CURED.

On December 1, 1906, Mr. Douglass confirmed above statement saying: "I cheerfully re-endorse statement I made recommending Doan's Kidney Pills in 1901. The cure has been a permanent one and I have not suffered the slightest symptoms of kidney trouble since."

Deafness Cannot be Cured

By local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear.

There is only one way to cure deafness,

and that is by constitutional remedies.

Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for particulars free.

Herman L. Foster.

A most promising and bright young life was cut short in the death of Herman L. Foster, which occurred Monday,

October 7, 1907, at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Foster.

Herman was born January 16, 1885, graduating from the Chelsea Public Schools with the class of 1902. The following two years he acted in the capacity of circulating agent for the Detroit

Journal. In 1905 he entered the Literary department of the U. of M. but in the second year of his work he was compelled to give up his studies on account of ill health, particularly his eyesight which was greatly impaired after an attack of small pox contracted while in college.

In the spring of 1906 he left for the west in hopes of regaining his health and traveled in the interests of the Los Angeles Times. While in New Mexico

the climatic conditions of that country

coupled with his inability to adapt himself to the style of food characteristic of that section, caused him to contract

a malignant form of malarial fever, the poison from which impregnated his entire system, and resulted in his death.

He was a young man of exemplary habits and won the respect and good will of all with whom he came in contact. During his last sickness he exhibited the same pluck in his heroic fight for life, which characterized him in all his undertakings. Though the ravages of the malady with which he was afflicted had reduced him to a skeleton, he insisted on getting about and would not be confined to his bed.

The funeral services were held this morning from the Church of Our Lady of the Sacred Heart, Rev. Fr. Considine officiating. His college classmates of

'07 acting as pallbearers. Interment at Mount Olivet cemetery, Chelsea.

SCHOOL NOTES.

The basket ball team began practice
this week.

More people have visited the schools the first six weeks of this year than in the first six months of last year.

The high school and the grades that have been in session regularly are doing better work than last year at this time
the report cards show very few failures
this first month.

Our high school football team won the game with Stockbridge last Saturday, the score being six to five. The only mar upon the game was a cut upon Myrl Prudden's brow.

We were disappointed again last Monday morning by not having the heating plant ready for the fourth and fifth grades. We have been promised that everything will be ready next Monday morning.

The old barn that stood about four feet from the third grade room, and helped to form our local "Jungle," has been moved. The teachers and pupils are much pleased with the better lighting that results from the removal.

The Teachers' Institute was well attended last Saturday by teachers, parents and high school pupils. Professor Henderson delighted and instructed us all in his discussions, and will receive a cordial welcome if he comes Chelsea again.

Mr. Sink, secretary and manager of the University School of Music, has sent Supt. Gallup Choral Union and May Festival tickets for the convenience of Chelsea people who wish to buy season tickets. Mr. Gallup will sell these tickets to Chelsea people for $2.85, giving them the benefit of the 15 cents commission. The first concert is Friday night, October 18.

URIC-O, we want them to try it now at no expense. We firmly believe that there is not a case of Rheumatism in the world that will not yield to the wonderful effects of URIC-O, and we want to prove it to every doubter beyond all possibility. The best way to do this is to give a large trial bottle of this remedy outright to every sufferer and let him test and try it to his own satisfaction. If you or any of your family suffer from Rheumatism, no matter what form, just cut this notice out of the paper and send it

ROOSEVELT PAYS TRIBUTE TO MEMORY OF M'KINLEY

President Speaks at Dedication of Mausoleum at Canton—Draws Lesson to Nation from Life of the Martyred Statesman.

Monument Hill, Canton, O. — The McKinley mausoleum, the tribute and gift of a nation to the memory of the martyred president, William McKinley, was dedicated Monday afternoon in the presence of hundreds of distinguished men from all parts of the United States, in the presence of representatives of foreign countries, and in the presence of a crowd of approximately 50,000 gathered from all parts of the country.

A feature of the dedication was the presence of the president of the United States, Theodore Roosevelt; Vice President Fairbanks, members of the president's cabinet, United States senators and governors of several states.

Addresses were delivered by President Roosevelt, Justice William R. Day, McKinley's secretary of state, and Governor Andrew L. Harris of Ohio.

The president of the day was Gov. Harris, who was introduced by Justice Day. The introduction of the president of the day was followed by an invocation by Rev. Dr. Frank M. Bristol, pastor of the Metropolitan Methodist Episcopal church of Washington, D. C.

The opening address was then given by Justice Day. This was followed by the singing of the "Star Spangled Banner" by the Grand Army band of Canton, the Canton Singers' club and the entire assemblage led by Mr. Reinhardt.

Gov. Harris then delivered an address, which was followed by the unveiling of the bronze statue of William McKinley by Miss Helen McKinley of Cleveland, the only sister of the late president.

Miss McKinley Pulls Veil. Miss Helen McKinley of Cleveland, a sister of the martyred president, unveiled the statue. James Whitcomb Riley had a place upon the dedication programme, reading a poem written for the occasion. The dedication ceremonies began at about 2 p. m.

In the course of his remarks President Roosevelt said:

"We have gathered together to-day to pay our meed of respect and affection to the memory of William McKinley, who as president won a place in the hearts of the American people such as but three or four of all the presidents of this country have ever won. He was of singular uprightness and purity of character, alike in public and in private life; a citizen who loved peace, he did his duty faithfully and well for four years of war when the honor of the nation called him to arms. As congressman, as governor of his state, and finally as president, he rose to the foremost place among our statesmen, reaching a position which would satisfy the keenest ambition; but he never lost that simple and thoughtful kindness toward every human being, great or small, lofty or humble, with whom he was brought in contact, which endeared him to our people. He had to grapple with more serious and complex problems than any president since Lincoln, and yet, while meeting every demand of statesmanship, he continued to live a beautiful and touching family life, a life very healthy for this nation to see in its foremost citizen; and now the woman who walked in the shadow ever after his death, the wife to whom his loss was a calamity more crushing than it could be to any other human being, lies beside him here in the same sepulcher.

Appropriateness of Inscription.

There is a singular appropriateness in the inscription on his monument. Mr. Cortelyou, whose relations with him were of such close intimacy, gives me the following information about it: On the president's trip to the Pacific slope in the spring of 1901 President Wheeler of the University of California conferred the degree of LL.D. upon him in words so well chosen that they struck the fastidious taste of John Hay, then Secretary of State, who wrote and asked for a copy of them from President Wheeler. On the receipt of this copy he sent the following letter to President McKinley, a letter which now seems filled with a strange and unconscious prescience:

Dear Mr. President: President Wheeler sent me the enclosed request. You will have the words in more permanent shape. They seem to me remarkably chosen, and stately and dignified enough to serve—long hence, please God—as your epitaph.

Yours faithfully,
JOHN HAY,
University of California,
Office of the President.

"By authority vested in me by the regents of the University of California, I confer the degree of Doctor of Laws upon William McKinley, President of the United States, a statesman singularly gifted to unite the discordant forces of the Government and mold the diverse purposes of men toward progressive and salutary action, a magistrate whose poise of judgment has been tested and vindicated in a succession of national emergencies; good citizen, brave soldier, wise executive, helper and leader of men, exemplar to his people of the virtues that build and conserve the state, society, and the home.

"Berkeley, May 15, 1901."
After paying a glowing tribute to the character and achievements of his predecessor in the white house, President Roosevelt drew a lesson from McKinley's life in the nation's duty to the republics to the south of us.

of these republics," said the president, "have prospered greatly; but there are certain ones that have lagged far behind, that still continue in a condition of material poverty, of social and political unrest and confusion. Without exception the republics of the former class are those in which honest industry has been assured of reward and protection; those where cordial welcome has been extended to the kind of enterprise which benefits the whole country while incidentally, as is right and proper, giving substantial rewards to those who manifest it. On the other hand, the poor and backward republics, the republics in which the lot of the average citizen is least desirable, and the lot of the laboring man worst of all, are precisely those republics in which industry has been killed because wealth exposed its owner to spoliation. To these communities foreign capital now rarely comes, because it has been found important as the discouragement of a spirit of envy and hostility toward honest business men, toward honest men of means; this is the discouragement of dishonest business men, the war upon the chicanery and wrongdoing which are peculiarly repulsive, peculiarly noxious, when exhibited by men who have no excuse of want, of poverty, of ignorance, for their crimes. Men of means, and above all men of great wealth, can exist in safety under the peaceful protection of the state, only in orderly societies, where liberty manifests itself through and under the law."

Memorial Is Work of Art.

Canton, O. — The McKinley mausoleum stands on an eminence to which has been given the name of Monument Hill, about two miles due west of the McKinley home in the city of Canton. It is not an ornate affair, but its simplicity is relieved by insufficient artistic embellishment to make it an object of beauty, as well as one of massive proportions and breadth of design.

Four states have contributed a share of the material which has been used in the building of the memorial. The granite used in the approaches and the mausoleum proper is from the quarries of Milford, Mass. Tennessee has furnished the gray marble for the interior of the tomb, while the sarcophagi which now hold the bronze caskets in which lie the bodies of President and Mrs. McKinley are of dark green granite from Windsor, Vt. The base upon which the sarcophagi rest is black granite from Berlin, Wis.

Total Height 163 Feet 6 Inches.
From the first step of the approach to the memorial to the actual top of the structure is 163 feet 6 inches, the mausoleum itself being 98 feet 6 inches high above the summit of the mound. The top of the dome has an oculus 15 feet in diameter, through which comes a softened light, which adds greatly to the beauty of the interior.

The mausoleum is 78 feet 9 inches in diameter. In the center of the floor beneath the dome stand the sarcophagi containing the bodies of the president and Mrs. McKinley, and the only children Ida and Mary, who died in infancy.

Roosevelt Views Tomb.
Immediately upon the close of the programme President Roosevelt and party visited the interior of the tomb. This was followed by a visit by the invited guests and then the general public was admitted. Thousands passed through the tomb.

Life Insurance Men Drop Out.
New York. — The big life insurance companies are soon to hold their annual elections under the Armstrong insurance law. The administration ticket of the New York Life shows that ten of the twelve men whose terms expire in 1908 have been renominated. The two who are to drop out are Alexander E. Orr and Clarence H. Mackay.

Converted to Mohammedanism.

Dr. Ewald Falls, a well known Egyptologist and excavator, has embraced Islam. While at the head of an excavating expedition in the Nile delta he became so convinced of the virtues of Mohammedanism that he confessed the faith and was received at the mosque of Mariout.

Bath tubs are as useful on a farm as anywhere else, only some folks don't seem to think so.

ROMANCE.

They sat on the beach where the wavelets came up and tried to touch their feet.

"Why are you so silent?" she asked. "I have been thinking," he replied. "I see the clouds reflected in the lake, and they remind me of my hopes. They are beautiful, but they dissolve, one after another. I see the far-off hills, and they remind me of the ambitions I have had. From afar they seem rich and beautiful, but if we were to approach them we should find them full of ruts and rocks and there would be many barren places. It is all but a mirror of life. We hope, we dream, we strive, and when we gain the things for which we have labored and denied ourselves we find that they are disappointing—that they have lost the glory which they seemed to possess when we viewed them from afar."

"But why do you talk so sadly? Am I not here at your side?"
"Yes, you are here at my side. Let's go back to the hotel."—Chicago Record-Herald.

SYMPATHY.

"Hullo, old chap, you are looking bad."
"Yes, I've just got over the influenza, and it's really left me too weak to crawl."
"What do you want to crawl for? It's much better to walk."

The Future of the Horse.
"In the course of time," said the motorist, "the automobile will have completely superseded the horse."
"Maybe so," answered Farmer Corn-tassel. "But it's my guess that there'll allus be enough horses kep' around to tote folks back home when the machinery breaks or the gasoline gives out."—Washington Star.

Complete Popularity Impossible.

A square built house plastered on the outside is shown in this design. In some sections of the country these houses are becoming very popular. The idea is not new, in fact it dates back hundreds of years, but it has been recently revived because we have found out how to use cement to advantage in construction work of this kind. The modern outside cement plaster coat bears no relation to the old English rough-cast, which used to peel off in irregular patches and spoil the appearance of the house forever.

Another invention that has a great deal to do with modern cement plaster work is the different kinds of expansion metal lath. Until cement mortar was troweled onto, and into sheet metal lath it was impossible to provide against expansion and contraction. It is difficult even now to explain why cement plaster on good metal lath will dry and hang free of cracks when the same mixture spread on wooden lath will spider-leg in every direction. But probably the why is not so important as the fact that we are only just beginning to understand the use of cement. Human knowledge comes very slowly. We often hear some one say that the Romans knew as much about cement as we do, but that is nonsense. They knew how to make a clstern or a tank and a few other simple things, but we know more about the general application of cement to more kinds of important work than the Romans ever dreamed of. Still we find it necessary to hammer out each improvement slowly and laboriously with the and corners. The final dressing of course is given to and with the last coat and there are a number of styles of finish to choose from, such as rough-cast, pebbled or smooth, and these may be made in any shade or color that the owner may desire. Before deciding on the style of finish it is a good plan to have the mason design a few panels, all different, to show what he can do in this line.

Still another great advantage in outside finish of this kind when compared with wood is a saving in paint and the cost of painting in after years. We all know that wooden houses need painting frequently, and most of us know by experience that it is an expensive annoyance because outside painting must be done at the proper season when the weather is neither too warm nor too cold, and when there is no dust blowing and no flies to stick fast in the fresh paint. A good many prefer a cement plaster house to a solid cement wall or solid cement blocks for the reason sweat of our brow in the laboratory, and afterwards in practical construction.

Second Floor Plan

It is no longer necessary to use expensive building materials because we are afraid to trust cement. In the hands of good workmen cement is the best building material we have, and we are no longer confined to any one mode of construction. We have learned how to combine cement with other materials and to save expense and at the same time to turn out a job that looks well and that will last forever, and answer for street paving material afterwards.

One great advantage in outside plastering is the ease with which it is fit-that the wall that is plastered both outside and in is the very best to regulate moisture. Dampness can't penetrate such a wall. Perhaps it is a misnomer to say that dampness can penetrate any good cement wall, but our experience is very much in favor of a hollow construction. We all know that beads of moisture during certain kinds of weather, will stand on the inside of a solid wall. We may not go into the subject deep enough to determine whether the moisture is there because the wall is colder than the air or because we have not provided proper ventilation for the rooms inclosed. It is enough for us to know that the dampness is there, and we know very well that we seldom see dampness on the inside of a wall that is constructed with a hollow space in the center.

This is a well finished house without unnecessary expense. It can be built under favorable circumstances for about $3,000, as the plans show. It contains seven rooms besides a bath room and a reception hall. It is so compact that one chimney answers for the kitchen, for the furnace and for the grate in the living room. It is difficult to find any fault with this plan. For a seven-room house it contains all the essentials for comfort, and there is accommodation sufficient for quite a large family.

The little things, such as pantries, china closets, vestibule with a place for the ice-box, linen closets and plenty of clothes closets and other minor details have been worked out very carefully. These things always appeal to a person after the house is occupied and the housekeeper has become acquainted with them. The lack of such accommodations in a house is very noticeable and very annoying. The expense at the time of building is not much more. It all hinges on forethought in selecting the proper plan to commence with.

MANY HAVE SOUGHT

AND NONE FOUND, PERFECT SYSTEM OF SHORTHAND.

Desire Was As Ardent in the Days of the Romans as in Our Own Time
—Fortune Awaits the Discoverer.

Sir Edward Clarke, in joining the ranks of the inventors of systems of shorthand, has yielded to a temptation common to great men of all ages. The learned Egyptian who first got tired of writing out a complete hieroglyphic, and took to suggesting part of it only, was on the way not only to an alphabet, but toward the goal reached by Sir Edward himself. Since that dim period we have all been doing our best to find a royal road to expression, and have achieved the gramophone. Even Herbert Spencer, whose father invented a "Lucid Shorthand," was bitten with the desire to conquer time, and he tells us that an examination of his father's system left him in no doubt whatever that it was the best of all.

The fatality of all systems, however, is that what seems easy to the eye of filial piety may be terribly difficult to the cold gaze of the stranger. Of the innumerable systems of shorthand that were in vogue a century ago how many survive today? In spite of Pitman, fame and fortune still await the man or woman who can invent a system that will appeal to the reader as effectively as to the original writer. Perhaps if we were to rediscover the lost shorthand writing of the ancient Romans we might feel ourselves on the road toward a solution of the problem.

For the Romans were on affectionate terms with shorthand. Did not Suetonius, speaking of Calligula, express surprise that an emperor of so many promising parts should, nevertheless, be an ignoramus in shorthand; and did not Titus Vespasianus pride himself on his facility in the use of stenography both for business and amusement? So fond was he of the sport that he delighted to gather his amanuenses around him in order that they should tilt against each other in the stenographic field. It may be that but for the rediscovery of the art in our own country toward the end of the sixteenth century the curious Pepsys would not have been moved to write his Diary, says the London Chronicle.

The first impulse to the rediscovery and cultivation of shorthand in modern times may probably be traced to the desire, at the time of the Reformation, of preserving the discourses of the preachers of the new doctrines. "To write as fast as a man speaketh," treatable," the Elizabethan writing master and stenographer, Peter Bales, declared to be "in effect very easy." The shortness whereof is attained by memory, and swiftness by practice, and sweetness by industry. But the early systems were very inefficient, and this has been considered by critics to be one of the causes of the corrupt readings of the text of some of Shakespeare's plays. Contemporary opinion on the subject may be gathered from the "Pleasant Dialogues and Drammas" of Thomas Heywood (1637), who says that his play of "Queen Elizabeth"

"Did throng the seats, the boxes and the stage
So much so that some by stenography drew
A plot, put it in print, scarce one word true."

The Age of the Earth.

Although it is not considered polite to inquire too closely into the age of a lady, the scientists will keep bothering Mother Earth about hers. Dr. R. F. Scharff of the Dublin museum believes that the oldest and most permanent forms of the earth's surface can be ascertained by a study of the distribution of the present forms of animal life. He finds that animals found east of the Rockies were comparatively unknown on the western slopes until modern times. But all identical forms are found in Europe—Austria particularly.

This leads to the belief that at some time this continent had been connected with Europe by a strip of land and that the part of North America now west of the Rocky mountains had been submerged. He also declares it proven that North and South America were not joined together until the middle of the tertiary period, many thousands of years ago, but geologically speaking, very recently.

Try Mental Prism Habit.

As the gulf stream leaves a warm, soft climate in its wake as it flows through the colder waters of the ocean on its way from the gulf to the north pole, so a happy, joyous sunny nature leaves a warm trail of sunshine wherever it goes through the cold, practical, selfish world.

Lydia Maria Child used to say: "I think cheerfulness in every possible way. I hang prisms in my window to fill the room with rainbows." This is the right kind of philosophy—the philosophy of good cheer, the greatest medicine for the mind, the best tonic for the body, the greatest health food known.

Easy After All.
"I suppose," said the friend, the day after the wedding, "it was rather hard to lose your daughter."
"Well, no," replied the bride's father. "It did seem as if it was going to be hard at one time, but she landed this fellow just as we were beginning to lose all hope."

Kimes was born in Baltimore, Md., October 18, 1826, and was married in 1846 to John McElowney, who had then just entered the ministry. She was an efficient helper in his work at various appointments including Tabernacle church, Detroit, Flint, Port Huron, Saginaw, Bay City, St. Clair and Ashbury church, Detroit. Since the death of Dr. McElowney in 1901, she had made her home with her son and her granddaughter, Mrs. J. H. VanTassel, of Newberry. The funeral service was conducted by Dr. Dawe in the Tabernacle church, Detroit. Interment at Woodmere cemetery.

A Reception.

On Monday evening the home of Miss Rica Kalmbach was the scene of a very pleasant gathering. While Rev. Lenz and wife and Rev. Beal were being entertained at tea by Miss Kalmbach, about seventy-five friends of the pastor quietly entered the front of the house, later when the folding doors were opened the look of surprise upon the faces of the victim was genuine. After a very pleasant social hour Mrs. Herman Kruse in behalf of their friends presented Rev. Lenz and wife with a gift as a slight token of esteem in which they were held. Refreshments were served and after many a God speed to the departing pastor and a warm welcome to Rev. Beal all returned to their homes feeling well repaid for their efforts at a surprise.

Seats for Football Game.

In a letter from Charles Baird, director of athletics at the U. of M. by Wirt S. McLaren, regarding seats for the Pennsylvania game at Ann Arbor, November 17, the former says: "I am well aware of the interest in Chelsea in our athletic contests and we are desirous of taking good care of our Chelsea friends." In about two weeks we shall send you an application blank which you can fill out and return to us. One person may order as many tickets as he sees fit and thus yourself and friends may all order on one application blank. Anyone desiring to secure tickets may give their names to you and thus secure good seats without making a trip to Ann Arbor."

It is claimed that the cotton crop now maturing will bring the southern states over nine hundred million dollars.

BABY WANT A DINK O' WAH-WAH?

Mrs. Maddox got a message,—
Her dearest friend was ill.
How on earth could she leave Baby?
Impossible!— But,— still,

Maybe she could borrow Pinkie.
And Mrs. Prim said, "Yes".
Would Pinkie be so kind enough?
Well,— she should rather guess!

Left alone with Baby Maddox, Completely all she knew
To keep the dear from crying, was Gone through with, through and through

Still the Baby's lip kept quiv'ring;
At length there came the bawl!
Pinkie searched for pins all over;
No "Stickers" found at all!

Laid the Baby on its "tummie";
And slapped it on its back.
Little Sufferer kept crying,
Till face was nearly black.

"I b'lieve a dink o' wah-wah is
The proper thing for you!",
Pinkie said; and went and got it.
The Maddox Babe said, "Goo!"
