The Old People's Home Which was Dedicated Thursday of Last Week.

Thursday was a festal day in the church life of Chelsea and the surrounding community. The Old People's Home is regarded as the most commendable enterprise of the Detroit Conference. In fact it is the only distinctively conference enterprise of a local character.

The day was every way gratifying. Friends from Detroit came in a chartered car and arrived at 11:30. The ritual services were held in the Home, and were pronounced as being strikingly appropriate and impressive. After the ritual exercises, the visitors were shown through the building which is commodious, comfortable and convenient. At noon the ladies served dinner in the Methodist church to 200 guests. Many articles, useful and ornamental, were attractively displayed in booths and offered for sale by the ladies of the Home and church. The proceeds of the dinner and sales, amounting to about $200, were given to the Home.

At two o'clock the people assembled in the auditorium of the church for the afternoon program. In the absence of Hon. F. P. Glazier, necessitated by his own and Mrs. Glazier's illness, Rev. D. H. Glass presided. Addresses were given by Rev. F. D. Leete and Rev. C. W. Baldwin, of Detroit, and Rev. Wm. Dawe, of Ann Arbor. The Aria Quartette, of Detroit, furnished the music which was the feature of the day.

One year ago work was begun on the grounds and building. As the plant now stands, it is valued at $40,000. There are forty rooms, twenty-four of which are single and sixteen double rooms. The gift of $500 entitles the donor to name a single room, and $1000 will name a double room. Already twenty-three of the twenty-four small rooms and nine of the sixteen large ones have been named. The naming of the remaining rooms will cancel all debt on the building and leave an endowment fund of $10,000. But the real problem will be the maintenance of the Home. The current expenses are necessarily heavy and will need to be met by voluntary contributions of the friends of the Home. There are now twelve permanent and six transient residents; and a more congenial and contented family could not be found. Before many months there will be fifty people living in the building. To maintain so large a family will require very generous gifts from churches throughout the Conference. It will be a rare pleasure to the people of Chelsea and contiguous country to frequently visit the Home and cultivate the acquaintance of these delightful people.

A SOCIAL EVENT

Given by the Lady Maccabees Last Thursday Evening—About 150 in Attendance.

The hallowe'en social given by the Chelsea Lady Maccabees in their hall last Thursday evening was one of the best and most enjoyable ones ever given by that organization.

There were all kinds of stunts and games present and as each guest arrived they were accorded a warm reception. One of the pleasant features of the evening was the grand march by the ladies of the order. Every movement by the members of the exhibition team was perfect and they were the recipients of many encores.

The ladies also disposed of a fine raffle and Mrs. Chas. Kellogg was the lucky lady to draw the prize. There were about 150 present and the ladies cleared up a neat sum for their evening's entertainment. Light refreshments were served and games of various kinds were played during the evening.

Mme. Johanna Galski.

In addition to her concert work under London Carlton's direction, Mme. Johanna Galski, who is to be heard in University Hall, Ann Arbor, Monday evening, November 11, is now one of the leading prima donnas of the Metropolitan Opera Company. When in New York, Mme. Galski lives at an uptown hotel, for with constant rehearsing she has little time for domesticity. But in Berlin she has her own charming home with its many spacious rooms, all lavishly provided with beautiful furniture and hangings. There are many rare works of art, while plants and flowers are everywhere.

In this beautiful home, where she spends her summers with her husband and little daughter, Galski forgets the exigencies of artist life, except for a certain number of hours a day which she faithfully devotes to practice and study. Mme. Galski constantly enlarging her repertoire, for she is an inveterate worker and her own severest critic.

The results of Galski's summer study are shown in her concert programs, which invariably show a number of novelties in addition to the great arias and lieder for whose rendition she is famed.

Pomona Grange.

The next meeting of Washtenaw County Pomona Grange will be held at Macomb Hall, Ann Arbor, Tuesday, November 12. A picnic dinner will be enjoyed. On this occasion the third annual products' contest will be held. All kinds of farm products will be on exhibition and any family with a member belonging to the grange can make entries. W. S. Raven, of Brooklyn, an institute worker and corn expert, will judge the corn and give a talk on corn. All farmers who are raising this product are especially invited. Several fine premiums well worth striving for are offered.

Saturday of this week the institute society of the county grange, composed of a president and secretary and vice president from each township, will hold a meeting at the court house in Ann Arbor and arrange for a series of four county institutes.

Box Social.

The young ladies of the parish of Our Lady of the Sacred Heart will hold a box social at St. Mary's hall on Wednesday, November 13, for the benefit of the parochial school. The social is in charge of the Misses Helen Burg, Mary Clark, Lena Miller, Anna Eisele, Nellie Savage and Genevieve Hummel. The coffee table will be in charge of Mrs. Burg and Mrs. Spinnagle, assisted by Misses Mary Corey and Mary Ross. Handsome prizes will be given for the best decorated boxes. The ladies extend a most cordial invitation to their friends to attend. Progressive podro and a musical will be features of the entertainment. Prof. Gallup will be auctioneer, and he is a good one. Come and have a good time.

Supper, Concert and Fair.

A supper, concert and fair will be given by the German St. Andrew's church of Dexter in the opera house of that place Wednesday and Thursday, November 13 and 14. Supper commencing at 5 o'clock standard time. The guests coming from Chelsea on the electric line with the 6:08 car will be taken from Dexter road station to Dexter, and the Ann Arbor friends not wishing to go home with the 9:16 express will be taken to the Dexter road station. Everybody is cordially invited to come and get a fine supper, hear good music and have a pleasant time. Admission to supper, concert and fair 25 cents, for children under 12 years 15 cents.

Indian Opera Powhatan.

Chelsea musical talent will perform the Indian opera "Powhatan" at the opera house on Friday and Saturday nights, November 15 and 16 under the direction of Wm. A. Baker of Chicago, who is here in charge of the rehearsals. He has produced the opera in several Michigan cities, Kalamazoo, Battle Creek, Lansing, Jackson, Hillsdale and Benton Harbor, and there is abundance of talent here if it is brought together. The opera deals with the historical subject of Pocahontas and Captain John Smith and will be richly costumed in aboriginal fashion. About one hundred will appear in the piece and Mr. Baker is highly pleased with the outlook for a capital production.

Church Circles.

M. E. CHURCH.

Rev. D. H. Glass, Pastor.

Preaching service at ten o'clock next Sunday morning. Theme, "We Can Do It If We Will." The aim of the sermon will be to show the possibilities of great results by consecrated and intelligent effort in church work. Discouraged workers are invited. Evening subject "The Story of Eden." The narrative of the temptation and fall will be treated in a plain and practical manner. Persons who regard the story as a myth will be interested in the sermon.

Prayermeeting Thursday evening. Topic, "The Babe in the Manger." The regular meeting of the official board will be held after the prayermeeting. The men's bible class extend a cordial invitation to men to visit the class after the preaching service Sunday morning. And the union meeting for men will be held at two o'clock Sunday afternoon. This service is informal and restful as well as inspiring. You will enjoy the cordiality of the men.

The Epworth League meeting is held at six o'clock. This is the young people's hour and they are making it very attractive. Miss Nellie Hall will lead the meeting.

CONGREGATIONAL.

Rev. M. L. Grant, Pastor.

"The Value of a Memory" will be the morning subject next Sunday. The sacrament of the Lord's supper will be celebrated.

At the evening service the minister will begin a series of addresses on "Representative Living Americans." "Up from Slavery" a study of the life of Booker T. Washington, the foremost representative of the negro race, is the first of the series.

ST. PAUL'S CHURCH.

Rev. A. A. Schoon, Pastor.

Services at the usual hour next Sunday morning. The subject will be "Serving God."

The Young People's meeting will be held in the evening at 7:30 o'clock Sunday.

BAPTIST CHURCH.

Rev. T. D. Denman, Pastor.

Services as usual morning and evening.

Junior meeting at the same hour of the morning service.

Sunday school at 11:30 and B. Y. P. U. at six o'clock.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE.

The Christian Science Society will meet in the O. A. R. hall at the usual hour next Sunday, November 10. Subject: Mortals and Immortals. Golden text, "Whilst we are at home in the body, we are absent from the Lord."

SERIAL STORY

Mr. Barnes, American

By Archibald Clavering Gunter
A Sequel to Mr. Barnes of New York

Author of "Mr. Barnes of New York," "Mr. Potter of Texas," "That Frenchman," Etc.

Copyright, 1917, Dodd Mead & Co., N. Y.

SYNOPSIS.

Burton H. Barnes, a wealthy American touring Corsica, rescues the young English lieutenant, Edward Gerard Anstruther, and his Corsican bride, Marina, daughter of the Paolis, from the murderous vendetta, understanding that his reward is to be the hand of the girl he loves, Enid Anstruther, sister of the English lieutenant. The four fly from Ajaccio to Marseilles on board the French steamer Constantine. The vendetta pursues and as the quartet are about to board the train for London at Marseilles, Marina is handed a mysterious note which causes her to collapse and necessitates a postponement of the journey. Barnes gets part of the mysterious note and receives letters which inform him that he is marked by the vendetta. He employs an American detective and plans to beat the vendetta at their own game. For the purpose of securing the safety of the women Barnes arranges to have Lady Chartist lease a secluded villa at Nice to which the party is to be taken in a yacht. Suspicion is created that Marina is in league with the Corsicans. A man, believed to be Correggio Danella, is seen passing the house and Marina is thought to have given him a sign.

CHAPTER III.—Continued.

"Yes, I've got the schooner Seagull, Mr. William Jameson, Glasgow, chartered for three weeks. Jameson is returning to Scotland and is very willing to lease the boat. We have cleared her for Naples. Crew of six men and mate, all Scotch. The captain, as I told you before, has gone to England, so your naval lieutenant must act as your navigator. She is found as to stores for crew, but as you have suggested, I have put ice and cabin supplies on board, according to the memorandum you gave me."

"Then I think we'll be able to live very comfortably for a couple of weeks," observes Barnes, meditatively, lighting a cigar.

"The Seagull has already dropped out of the Vieux port, where she was laying and she will be off the Corniche road as you directed. I'll have a boat on shore at the Roucas Blanc."

"Then the next thing is to get the ladies on board, and that, of course, we cannot do until after dark," remarks Burton. "You had best not be seen about here any more, Emory, but you had better be on board the Seagull when we arrive there, so as to turn the vessel over to me. See who arrives on the next steamer from either Bastia or Ajaccio, and if this Bernardo Salcedi turns up, notify me if there is any meeting between him and Danella."

"Yes, I'll shadow everything, even you," chuckles the sleuth, grimly. "By the by, here's Perrier's address in Nice. He is quite often there. You will find him, for a French mouchard, perfectly reliable."

"Engage two trustworthy men," said Barnes, "to follow our carriage on horseback this evening. I must take no chances with the ladies in our company." Then Barnes goes off to Lady Chartist's parlor to make some necessary financial arrangements with that lady.

Mr. Barnes has scarcely finished these and Lady Chartist has carried away his check delighted, when Maud bounces in upon him, her eyes big with excitement and mystery. "Gee, Marina is a case!" she whispers.

"Why?" asks Burton, glancing sharply at her.

"Why, getting a note from a man the second day she was married and crazy with fear her 48 hours' bridegroom will drop out her little game."

Barnes gazes upon the infant prodigy and emits a low whistle. "You are certainly a hummer, Maudie," he remarks, solemnly.

"You bet!" assents Miss Chartist, who has just stepped in from an exciting interview with Marina that has run about in this way:

The beautiful Corsican bride, apparently having recovered from the first shock of the letter in the Marseilles depot, being dressed, at Enid's request, for her carriage excursion, seems now full of an excited yet morbid anxiety. Obtaining opportunity when Miss Chartist has entered her bedroom to give her a kiss, tender her condolences and get into the affair "with both feet," as the adolescent intrigante expresses it to herself, Marina whispers, a strange pathos in her eyes: "Maud, dear, you have come to give me that letter you picked up—the one I dropped on the floor of the railroad depot when I was overcome with the heat this morning."

"Jinks, that's a nice way of putting it—overcome with the heat? It was the letter knocked you," returns the Chartist infant, with a knowing wink.

"No matter what it was affected me," whispers the young Corsican lady, intensely. "The letter—I must have it at once! He—he must not see it!"

"I didn't pick it up!" mutters Maud, doggedly.

"I saw you! Even when my eyes were closing, I saw you! Give me the letter, child, or I shall have to ask your mother to get it from you for me!"

The horrible possibilities of such a demand impress themselves on Maud with distressing effect; she snivels: "Don't tell ma, she'd skin me."

"Then, the letter!" ejaculates Marina, wildly.

"Well, if you must know, I sold it to Barnes for two boxes of marrons glacés."

"Sold that letter? Ay de mi, if he shows it to my husband!" And Marina paces the floor in agitated dread.

"Don't torture me, miserable! I have brought too much misfortune on him already." Tears dim the orbs of the Corsican girl. "Tell dear Mr. Barnes that I must see him; that it is very important."

"Why, sure I'll do it, though I don't think he'll help you put up any job on you—"

"Put up any job? Another base insinuation from your childish lips and I'll tell your mother you had that letter concealed! Away!" Looking like a frenzied goddess, Marina opens her door and Maud speeds from it.

"Gee," remarks the young lady to herself, as she flits along the hotel passageway and notes Anstruther keeping watch outside his wife's door.

Her eyes are still big with suspected intrigue as she continues her conversation with Mr. Barnes by suddenly interjecting: "She wants to see you!"

"Who?"

"Marina, the bride, of course. She wants to give you a hint not to let the cat out of the bag to Edwin about the man whose letter made her faint."

Here, Miss Chartist, who has suddenly looked out of the window, trying to hide a telltale face from the piercing glance of her companion, ejaculates almost tremblingly: "Holy poker!"

"What's the matter?"

"Why, there's the man walking up the street who gave me the note that knocked Marina out of time—the one way and keeping his watch upon his wife's chamber, Burton quite shortly states he has a suggestion or two as regards their yachting trip to make to Marina.

The consequence is that her husband soon after brings her into the parlor the party has secured for their general use. As he does so, Barnes notices something in the bride's manner to her husband that increases his alarm for her. In the morning, though Marina's eyes showed traces of the sufferings their owner had undergone, they were full of hope as they rested on her bridegroom. Now despair appears to have taken its place as her beautiful orbs linger lovingly yet sadly on the man she adores, and then seem to turn from him agitated by some hidden determination.

A moment after Anstruther says, in a loud tone intended for his bride's ears: "Take care of her while I do my packing," adding in a cautious whisper to Barnes: "See if you can find out what is really the matter with my darling. Some devilish thing must have happened to her at the railroad depot. She won't tell me. You discover."

Under these circumstances, Barnes is very eager to learn the balance of the note which had shattered the bride's nerves.

"Glad you're looking so fit, Marina," he remarks, lightly, for they have grown into the habit of addressing each other with the familiarity of coming relatives. "Maud told me you wished to speak to me."

"Why, certainly, Burton, I—you— you have read the letter that struck me down in the railroad station. I must beg you not to be cruel enough to even hint to my husband its contents."

"Why, of course. 'Tis best for Edwin, at present, at all events, to be in the dark," returns Barnes, groping darkly himself; adding assuringly: "You must pick up courage, my dear girl. You faced a greater trial only two days ago."

Her answer confuses and astounds her interrogator. "Faced a greater trial?" she says piteously. "Perhaps in one way." After this she gasps for a moment and suddenly cries: "Then you haven't read the letter."

"Read it—most of it. A portion of it hasn't come into my hands yet. Maud said you tore it up."

"Ah, thank God, you missed the last part. Then you might have told my husband and I could never have done it."

"Never have done what?"

"What you will not know till it is done!"

"You'd better tell it to me so that I may advise you," he suggests.

But the beautiful bride pacing the chamber, her hands pressed to her brow, suddenly pauses in front of him and says: "No, I'll be my own counselor in this matter. I'll fight the dread fight out with myself. I'll try and—"

Her distracted manner adds to Barnes' fear, not of her love and devotion to Edwin, but of her judgment in some project she keeps concealed. He says, imperatively: "You must tell me."

"No, 'tis between my conscience, my God and my husband. Only tell Edwin, tell him, in case—"

"In case what?"

"Oh, you know the cruel things that may happen in such a blood feud which is again revived, now worse than ever. In case I pass from my husband's sight, tell him that I always loved him; that—that I didn't believe. Should I do something he regrets, he condemns, ask him to forgive me; it was because I loved him better than—than my own soul!"

62,000 TONS OF CURRANTS.
Britons Seem to Be Exceptionally Fond of This Fruit.

Our great-grandmothers, although they had to pay a very high price for dried currants, considered them quite indispensable to the compounding of those pies, puddings and florentines which were the pride of every housewife. Domestic catering must have been an arduous undertaking in those days, for currants and other dried fruits were not to be procured out of London except once a year, at the annual fair of the local market town. The royal dish of plum porridge, which it was the privilege of the archbishop of Canterbury to serve to a newly crowned sovereign, was composed largely of currants, the fruit being stewed in strong beef soup enriched with red wine and red sack. Now that the order has changed and simplicity is the keynote of the highest class cookery, we Britons have trebled our appreciation of the homely and wholesome currant; and although florentines and plum porridge are dishes of the past, no less than 62,000 tons of currants go every year to the making of bread cakes, pastries and puddings to tempt the British appetite.—Ladies' Pictorial.

Early Proof.
The head of a printing establishment in Richmond, Va., was called upon not long ago by a clergyman, bearing the manuscript of a sermon. "I would like to have the proofs of this by to-morrow," said the divine. The printer answered that the time allowed was insufficient. "You must give us a few days longer," he said. "No; I must have it to-morrow," insisted the minister. "I must deliver this sermon to-morrow—not the day after, or the next day—but to-morrow. It's a special sermon, suitable only for to-morrow. I wrote it ten years ago, and now I can't make out a word of it."

Good Memory and Bad.
Customer—Cigar-smoking is said to have a deleterious effect on the memory. Are you aware of that?
Gluckstein—I can quite believe it. For instance, you have not yet paid for that box of cigars you had last Christmas.

Old-Fashioned.
He—Mrs. Hopper's reception was quite an old-fashioned affair.
She—Indeed.
He—Yes, why, the refreshments served were actually good to eat.—Chicago News.

A Dakota Ad.
For sale, on easy payments, 100 choice lots. Well-drained, rich soil. Good grounds for divorce.—Judge.

THE ART OF CONVERSATION.

She—I saw you on Desbrosses' street this morning.

He—You saw me on Desbrosses' street this morning?

"Yes; I saw you on Desbrosses' street this morning."

"Who? Me?"

"Yes, you."

"On Desbrosses' street?"

"Yes, sir, on Desbrosses' street."

"This morning?"

"This morning."

"Oh, come now! Do you mean to say you saw me on Desbrosses' street?"

"To be! Yes, I did."

"You did?"

"I certainly did see you on Desbrosses' street."

"Go 'way! You didn't see me on Desbrosses' street, did you?"

FAIRFAX NOW A BRITON

IS NATURALIZED AND CAN SIT IN HOUSE OF LORDS.

New York Bank Clerk, Head of Family Descended from Scotch Peerage, Gets Social Aspirations.

London.—Albert Kirby Fairfax, twelfth Baron Fairfax of Cameron in the peerage of Scotland, has taken out naturalization papers as a British citizen and now will be entitled to sit in the house of lords. Lord Fairfax was born in Maryland in 1870. He is the son of John Contee Fairfax, M. D., and Mary, Baroness Fairfax, a daughter of Col. Edmund Kirby of the United States army.

Until a half dozen years ago Lord Fairfax resided in the United States. His family had been connected in times past with that of George Washington by ties of marriage. Possessing a Scotch peerage, he disdained to make use of it, preferring his birthright as an American. He was thus not only from an American but likewise from a European point of view a far more distinguished personage than an impoverished Scotch peer, living in London, with no land in Scotland, no castle, no seat in the house of lords, no powerful relations, and compelled to work for his living, with nothing but his barren title by way of capital.

The Fairfax peerage was created in 1627, and the fifth Lord Fairfax left his home and estates in Scotland in 1722 for America, because he was disappointed in love and, as he believed, badly treated by the members of his family. By an arrangement with the crown he secured a patent for a tract of over 5,000,000 acres of land in Virginia, and was the richest man in all the colonies in his day. He was the friend of Washington and employed the future father of his country in surveying. His manor house was near Mount Vernon. Lord Fairfax, however, died without children, and his property was inherited by his brother, William Fairfax, who married Sir John Cary, the "Lowland beauty," who jilted Washington.

They had no children and when William Fairfax died Robert, the younger brother, came into the title and estate. From him the Fairfaxes of the United States are descended. During the revolutionary war the title

TOP OF VOLCANO BLOWN OFF.

Mount Colima, in Mexico, After the Eruption of March, 1903.

Washington.—It was said until recently that Mount Colima, which displays more volcanic activity than all the other volcanoes of Mexico together, was one of the three of four finest and most regular mountain cones in the world. It is nearer to the ocean than any other volcano in Mexico and is an imposing object from the sea, for its entire height of nearly 13,000 feet is revealed.

No one until 1903 had ever looked into Colima's crater, for it was merely a great chimney, the top of which was the point of the cone. No one had climbed the mountain, and the crater was not visible from the plain below.

No lava was ever known to overflow the lip of the crater. The eruptive forces sent columns of black volcanic dust miles into the air, but did not seem to be sufficiently powerful to lift the lava quite up to the top of the cone. The symmetry of the mountain therefore was not destroyed by outpourings of molten rock.

The accompanying picture, from a photograph published by the meteorological observatory of Mexico, shows that a great change in the appearance of Colima has taken place. The picture was taken in 1903 after the eruption of March 2 of that year.

The blast coming out of the crater simply tore the top of the mountain to pieces. The crater was enlarged to many times its former size.

All one side of the upper part of the cone was torn away. The rim of the crater is now about a mile around and presents an irregular border on all sides with projecting points in the form of a crown.

This is the latest example in America of volcanic energy so tremendously powerful as to carry away the upper part of a mountain and make a great and permanent change in its appearance.

The Brute.

"Such an angel of a hat," chirped the vain woman as she twirled before the mirror. "Yellow and white. What does it remind you of, my dear?"

The big man in the embroidered slippers looked up from his paper.

"Yellow and white?" he repeated. "Well, now, on the level, it reminds me of a fried egg."

was held by the Rev. Bryan Fairfax, who was rector of Christ's church, Alexandria, of which Washington was a vestryman. He sympathized with the colonies, was intimate with Washington, and contributed money as well as prayers for the cause of the rebels. From him after two generations was descended John Fairfax, who was entitled to a place in the English peerage, but did not care to claim it. He lived in Washington, where he practiced medicine and was high in professional reputation until the civil war broke out, when his sympathies with the confederacy caused him to be ostracized. He lost his patients and his friends, and picking up what money he had bought a secluded plantation in Maryland and lived there until 1900, when he was called to his last account. Dr. Fairfax left two sons and several daughters. Albert, the older, became a clerk in a banking house in New York city, and having social aspirations, recovered for the benefit of himself and his posterity the title and privileges that belong to the British peerage. It was from the Fairfax family's settlement in Virginia that Thackeray drew the inspiration for his novels, "Henry Esmond" and "The Virginians."

LORD FAIRFAX.

RHEUMATISM

BADLY CRIPPLES A BALDWIN-
VILLE FARMER.

URIC-O QUICKLY CURED HIM

Treated Two Years with a High-Priced
Physician with No Success.

Mr. Frank Howe, a prominent farmer in the town of Van Buren, says: "I visited the best physician in this country, who treated me for about two years for rheumatism. I spent in that time several hundred dollars and seemed to grow worse instead of better each day. Being on crutches and forced to drive to the train and hobbling to the doctor's office became very discouraging, let alone the sleepless nights and fearful hours of pain. Being advised by a friend I purchased Smith's Uric-O prescription, took it home and used it that day as directed.
"Those fearful aching pains left me, my blood seemed to let loose and flow freely
I felt different and knew the next morning I had found a cure, as I slept and rested well all that night, something I had not done before in two years. I used in all six bottles of Uric-O and have never felt a return of the disease, had no use for crutches or cane since the first day's treatment.

"I have since recommended Uric-O to hundreds of friends and acquaintances and in every instance it gave remarkable relief. To every person who suffers from rheumatism I say, take Uric-O at once and your suffering will soon end."
Frank Howe, Baldwinville, N. Y.

Anyone who doubts Mr. Howe's experience is invited to write him for further details.
The manufacturers have so much confidence in the remedy that they will gladly give a large 75c bottle of Uric-O free to all rheumatics who have never used it and are looking for a permanent lasting cure for this most distressing disease. Address for free trial:
Drug Co., 311 Smith Bldg., Syracuse, N. Y.

Uric-O is sold and personally recommended in Chelsea by Freeman & Cummings Co.

The special election held in Howell
Monday of last week, the proposition to bond that village for a sewer system was defeated, 258 voted in favor of the proposition and 271
voted against it.

We learn that John Gieske had 13
sheep wounded and 4 killed by dogs one day last week. It was found lost stock from gunshot wounds.

Hunters should be more careful.

unknown and the parties holding contracts with them are on the anxious seat.—Homer Vidette.

In the suit of the People's bank

Schaible testified that he was told that the note "was a bluff and only to be used by the bank to show the bank examiner," when he gave the note to the Manchester Canning & Packing company. The jury held that the bank had no cause of action.

WHY SO WEAK?

Kidney Troubles May be Sapping Your Life Away. Michigan People Have Learned This Fact.

When a healthy man or woman begins to run down without apparent cause, becomes weak, languid, depressed, suffers backache, headache, dizzy spells and urinary disorders, look to the kidneys for the cause of it all. Keep the kidneys well and they will keep you well.
Doan's Kidney Pills cure sick kidneys and keep them well. Here is a Michigan testimony to prove it.

James Pountain, machinist, of 621 Park street, Kalamazoo, Mich., says: "I had enjoyed good health up to three years ago when I began to suffer from my kidneys. My back ached a great deal and grew so weak that I was unable to lift even the slightest weight. At times, there would be sharp piercing pains through my loins and kidneys which would always be more severe if I attempted to stoop or straighten after stooping. My work, as machinist causes me to bend over a great deal and consequently, I was very much handicapped. I consulted physicians but received very little relief from their medicines. I was telling a friend of my sufferings and he advised me to procure Doan's Kidney Pills. I felt from the first was very great. I continued using them, and my back was soon as strong as ever, in fact I was well in every way.
I do not hesitate to recommend Doan's Kidney Pills."

The Best Laxative for Children.
Parents should see to it that their children have no natural, easy movement of the bowels each day. Do not dose the child with salts or gripe pills, as they are too powerful for an effect, and finally wear out the little system, leaving the child weak and unable to act naturally. Laxative Freemen's Tablets are a different matter. They are the most powerful laxative, yet they are not violent, and are able to act naturally, leaving the bowels and stimulate all the little organs of the bowels and nerves, giving them strength and vigor to do their work properly and naturally. The best laxative for children, the best laxative for the elderly, the best laxative for the sick, the best laxative for the weak, the best laxative for the nervous, the best laxative for the constipated, the best laxative for the diseased, the best laxative for the suffering, the best laxative for the dying, the best laxative for the living, the best laxative for the whole world. # Historic Canonchet, "House of Tragedy," Will No Longer Be Home of Spragues

OR SALE. — A HIGHLY IMPROVED estate at Narragansett Pier, R. I., consisting of 300 acres of land, with a beautifully furnished mansion, upon which and the surrounding green-houses and other buildings about $1,000,000 have been expended. This property is historically known as "Canonchet," the palatial home which Kate Chase Sprague (daughter of Salmon P. Chase) built about 25 years ago at the height of her fortune.

So runs the circular—the house of tragedy goes under the hammer! Who wants to buy it?

You may have it, with the story of the loves and hates of men and women of a half century ago. With it go memories of other days; of duels and divorce; of elopements, suicides, scandals and law suits without number.

Here Roscoe Conkling was once an honored guest; and here law, diplomacy and political strategy were made and unmade. Blaine, Garfield, Beecher, Tilden, Ben Butler, Greeley, Dana, Grant were all honored guests here. Its rooms and halls are redolent with memory to-day as they were three decades ago.

Who wants to buy? Name your price.

Canonchet, once the handsomest estate on the Atlantic coast, is for sale to the highest bidder. It is on the market because a girl chose to defy her parents—Inez Sprague has eloped with the son of her grandfather's bitterest enemy.

As last of the direct line of the Spragues, she was to have inherited this baronial estate, worth at least $1,000,000 to-day. But she broke her engagement with J. Harold Winpenny, of Philadelphia, stayed in seclusion a year and then eloped with Harry Williams Stiness, son of Judge Stiness, associate justice of the supreme court of Rhode Island.

Can Never Forgive Her.

"He did his utmost to accomplish my financial ruin," declared William Sprague, who was war governor of Rhode Island when the north and south decided to discuss their differences at the cannon's mouth. "I can never forgive her."

The governor and Mrs. Sprague, his second wife, retired to Canonchet to make their plans. In order to gain time they said not a word when it was asserted that they had forgiven the elopist bride and that she and the bridegroom would be welcomed there, and that eventually she would inherit the house of tragedy, the home of a thousand memories of bygone days.

But their silence did not mean consent. For when all their plans had been formulated, Gov. and Mrs. Sprague instructed their lawyer, Henry Wellington Wack, of New York, to arrange for the sale of the historic estate, just as it now stands. A great inheritance has been forfeited because a young girl saw fit to make a shopping trip to Providence and then suddenly make up her mind to get married.

Full back 44 years and march along with the events of the time, a time when Lincoln had that able and am-direct poverty. Her only son lies in a suicide's grave. Her daughters tried the stage, but did nothing of consequence. But the life of "Gov." Sprague, as they call him still in Rhode Island, is as eventful to-day as it was in the times of war.

William Sprague's membership in the A. & W. Sprague Manufacturing company, doing business in all parts of New England in the sixties, afforded him in wealth the power which made him at the age of 23 the governor of Rhode Island. This was in 1860. His advent as such and as commander-in-chief of the Rhode Island soldiery, put him into the eye of the country as a subject altogether out of the ordinary.

The civil war was on. Sprague was a mere youth, and one of the heads of business enterprises involving the employment of 22,000 workmen. His shops, mills and foundries beclouded the sky with their industry, until it was said, "Whenever you see smoke in Rhode, it belongs to the Spragues."

He was governor—the youngest war governor. As chief in command of the state's military forces he insisted on taking the field in person. He was always dashing and brave; so said his soldiers. The masses hailed him as their hero; others looked on in wonder.

He went to the United States senate in 1863 and served 12 years.

Brilliant Kate Chase.

While United States senator he married Katherine Chase, famed as Kate Chase, the beautiful daughter of Salmon P. Chase, Lincoln's secretary of the treasury. With this brilliant marriage began the social career which sent the name of Chase-Sprague to the greater salons of Europe and America.

Kate Chase in that day was accounted the most brilliant woman in the society of her own country. She was beautiful, she was a diplomat of marvelous methods, the homage of the greatest statesmen of that time was hers, she was the queenly leader of Washington's social and official life.

And what was her quest? The older generation will recall the plot and the interplotting of those years to make United States. The fact that this great ambition of a daughter was never gratified was probably the precursor of that adverse fate which has relentlessly pursued and gnawed the heart of every Sprague ambition felt since that time.

Early in her married life Kate Chase Sprague built Canonchet, on an estate of 350 acres at Narragansett pier. The house was at that time the grandest mansion on the coast. It stands on the favorite camping ground of Canonchet, chief of the Narragansett tribe of Indians. It cost a million dollars. Its furnishings were brought from the stores of many countries. It is a palace within, a labyrinth of halls, nooks, salons, episode, which culminated in Conkling's flight from the governor's gun by way of a window and a barred and bolted boudoir door.

Sprague's Business Downfall.

It was in 1873 that the political and social forces at work to ruin Senator Sprague succeeded in accomplishing their design. It soon became evident that the fate of the A. & W. Sprague concerns, estimated to be worth $60,000,000, would be destruction. The Spragues had been ambushed. When the concerns failed in 1873, with more than $30,000,000 in actual assets and less than $11,000,000 of indebtedness, the state of Rhode Island was almost prostrated. Z. Chaffee was appointed trustee of the estate. The courts wrestled with it for more than 20 years, and enterprises which once involved all of Rhode Island were laid waste.

Domestic discord and estrangement now intervened to madden the principals in this drama. The three daughters of Gov. Sprague and Kate Chase were being educated abroad. "Willie" Sprague, as he was called, the only son, a strange composite of genius and impulsive youth, was still at home.

Robert Thompson had been appointed trustee for the personal estate of ling its crystals to the idle after-dinner chat of a surfeited company.

It was October, 1890, and the night was chill when this self-absorbed party suddenly learned the news of Willie Sprague's death. He had shot himself in a laborer's tent in the suburbs of Tacoma. The sign of blood was again upon the house of tragedy. A few days thereafter, when the poor boy's wasted body was being brought home, a final letter which he had addressed to his father came to light. It had been written in a tent assigned to young Sprague as one of a gang of road laborers. In it he recited some of his hardships. The boy complained of the coarse quality of his breakfast that day. Here the letter abruptly terminated. His body was found beside the barrel on which he had written his farewell.

Fate's Relentless Pursuit.

A few years after this, Ethel Sprague, one of the daughters of Kate Chase, adopted the stage. After a short time she quit the profession and, marrying, went to live in Baltimore. Meantime, Canonchet had again been startled by an elopement.

In the autumn of 1897 Mrs. Inez Sprague, having studied grand opera with some of the best French and Italian masters, appeared in Boston his mother. On November 6, 1883 Willie was arrested for shooting at Thompson as he attempted to visit Canonchet. The boy was largely given to impulse all his life. A court inquiry resulted in his discharge.

Separated by Divorce.

Meantime, Kate Chase brought her sensational suit for divorce. Gov. Sprague filed counter charges. Society glugged itself with gossip of the case. A compromise was finally effected by which both these charges were withdrawn and a charge of cruelty interposed. On May 27, 1882, Kate Chase-Sprague got the decree divorcing her and giving her the right to resume her maiden name and the custody of the three daughters, Ethel, Portia and Kitty.

On March 8, 1883, the governor married his present wife. She was Dora Inez Weed, of Virginia. She was then 25 and Gov. Sprague 53. They immediately went to Canonchet, where Mrs. Sprague has since reigned as its chateau.

For a while this romance seemed to work revival of the governor's olden power. The independent state convention nominated him for governor on March 14, 1883, a few days after he had come north with his bride. On March 21, the Democrats also nominated him, and it looked as if the little war governor would retrieve his former place.

Soon after the governor married his present wife, his son, Willie, married her sister, Alice Weed, of Wilmington, Del. The governor then became his son's brother-in-law, and Willie's wife was at the same time his sister-in-law and his daughter-in-law, and the governor's wife was Willie's sister-in-law and stepmother. Meantime, Kate Chase had retired to Washington with her three daughters.

There was a hot campaign. But the old-time war governor was not reelected. It almost broke his heart—he, governor of Rhode Island in the civil war, leader of her troops, United States senator for two terms, defeated.

Unfortunate Willie Sprague.

After a few silent and pathetic years down there by the sea, the household of Sprague was again disrupted. Willie Sprague had again come under the influence of his mother. He became a reporter on a Washington paper, then shifted to a similar position in New York. A beautiful girl was born to his wife—Inez Sprague—and the present Mrs. Sprague became at once an aunt and a grandmother.

Willie's wife procured a divorce from him and married Gerrit S. Wheaton, a welcome guest at Canonchet for three years. Wheaton was a millionaire; at times exceptionally brilliant, always in impulsive, loving and affectionate.

Canonchet was having its house parties and the halls were aglow with the splendor of the Florentine fountain off the dining-room was trick-and made her debut with the Boston Symphony orchestra. Among other numbers she sang the suicide aria from the opera "Gloconda." Boston critics caused Mrs. Sprague to quit her proposed tour and return to France. Defeat lay in ambush wherever a Sprague ventured forth. That same year Mrs. Kate Chase died in poverty in Washington.

There was, for instance, the case of Orestes Alford Weed, brother of Mrs. Inez Sprague and her sister Mrs. Gerrit S. Wheaton, who, in 1903 eloped with Miss Katherine D. de Roulhac, of New York. Last year young Weed was found dead at the Grand Union hotel in New York from morphine poisoning. His young widow and two handsome children are all that remain of his little household—a household in which young Weed was the debonair hero.

Five years ago Gerrit S. Wheaton died and left his large interest in Standard Oil to his young widow, sister of Mrs. Inez Sprague, one time wife of Willie Sprague, and mother of Inez Sprague the second. And she has just blasted the great hopes of the "little war governor" and his wife, by eloping with Harry Williams Stiness, son of Chief Justice John H. Stiness, Sprague's implacable enemy in the Rhode Island supreme court, between whose family and the clan Sprague a feud has existed since 1874.

Marriage Promised Much.

Many had courted the girl. Finally last year, when she was 21, she became engaged to young Winpenny, member of a prominent Pennsylvania family. By this marriage, the Wheaton fortune, coupled with Canonchet and its acres, might yet make the score even between the Spragues and their enemies.

But fate was against it.

One day last spring Miss Inez announced the breaking of her engagement to Mr. Winpenny. On a day in June she left Canonchet to go shopping in Providence. There on June 21, at St. Stephen's church, she married Harry Williams Stiness without previous announcement. Rev. Herbert Barker performed the ceremony. W. C. Rhoades and Wurst White were witnesses. The spirited young lady was not to be bothered with the forms and frills of a conventional marriage. It is merely a matter of theory that the acquisition of a husband on her shopping tour was the item of chief concern to Miss Inez. There was a new hat, for instance.

And because of it Canonchet goes under the hammer at once. The Spragues are to quit Rhode Island and America forever.

Pay Women Small Wages.

About 80 tons of woolen rags are collected annually at Smyrna and shipped chiefly to England and France. They are sorted in Smyrna by women, who get 23 to 30 cents a day working from dawn to sunset.

Interesting Bits of News Picked Up
Here and There at the National Capital

MUCH TRAVELING DONE BY MEMBERS OF THE CABINET

WASHINGTON.—During the summer months just closed the nine members of President Roosevelt's cabinet have spent more than 600 days away from their desks, and their vacation journeyings and business trips have covered thousands of miles over land and sea.

Of the nine, Secretary of War Taft is the greatest traveler. Already he has been away from his department more than 80 days, and, as he now is on his way around the world, he has traveled, including his vacation journeying and his official trip of the orient, something like 10,000 miles, with much more yet to come.

Next to Secretary Taft, Secretary of State Root remained from the capital longer than any other official, and, including his trip to Mexico, he will have been away so long that it will be hopeless for any other cabinet officer to attempt to equal his record.

Until Secretary Taft returns, Secretary Straus will hold the palm for long over-seas journeying. Leaving Washington on June 29, he went first to Montreal, on one of the longest inspection tours ever undertaken by a cabinet officer. He visited immigration stations along the Canadian line from Montreal to Winnipeg and Vancouver, going thence to Seattle and San Francisco and sailing from that port on July 25 for Honolulu, where he arrived on July 31. On his return he visited the Yellowstone National park, but this part of the trip was entirely one of pleasure, and was at the secretary's personal expense.

On this trip he was accompanied by his wife, son, daughter and private secretary, only Secretary Straus' own expenses, of course, being borne by the government. It is estimated at the department of commerce and labor that Secretary Straus' trip cost the government not more than $1,800. And it is claimed for it that it was of immense business benefit to the department.

SOME MEMBERS ABSENT ON GOVERNMENT BUSINESS

SECRETARY WILSON is another of the cabinet to have put in some strenuous traveling while inspecting conditions in his department in the west. He looked into the big timber reserves, and Secretary Garfield investigated while absent the public lands, Indian questions, etc., forming an important part of the work of the interior department. He spent only two weeks' actual vacation at his home in Ohio.

The vacations of the other cabinet officers were entirely for recuperative purposes. Secretary of the Treasury Cortelyou spent the summer on his farm on Long Island, near the president's home at Oyster Bay, and only an hour's ride from New York. Hence he was able to keep in close touch with the financial situation, and his actual presence here was not essential.

Secretary of the Navy Metcalf went to California, his home state, and spent his entire vacation tramping through the mountains around Sacramento hunting small game, while Secretary Root, in addition to spending some time at his home in New York, took the now famous cure for several weeks at Muldoon's.

During his absence from Washington Postmaster General Meyer, with the exception of about ten days, when he was fishing in Canada, kept in close touch with the postal affairs in Washington, and Secretary Taft, while he was at Murray Bay, Canada, also found time to keep up with the more important matters requiring action by the head of the war department.

Attorney General Bonaparte, in addition to spending about a month at Lenox, was absent at different times during the summer at his home, near Baltimore, but he was at Washington every few days attending to important legal business of the government, so that it is hard to classify him.

STATESMEN TAKE UP THE ROLLER SKATING IDEA

ASSISTANT CHIEF CLERK THOMSON, proponent of the scheme for having postal employees skate to work, undertook to demonstrate the other day and arrived at his office much confused and concussed. In rounding a curve on Pennsylvania avenue he hit a "thank you, marm," and smote the asphalt with his nose. During the afternoon he was disposed to bark at folks who came in to ask him questions about the roller skate procession.

His ideas, however, will be taken up in higher circles. A well defined movement among leading statesmen is said to be under way for having senators and representatives skate to the capitol when the session begins. A large number of them have been detestful of skating to work for a long time, but each has hung back for fear of being thought singular. Now a considerable number have agreed to start the skating movement simultaneously, and a general movement on the capitol is announced for the first Monday in December.

PENSION ROLL OF THE GOVERNMENT ON DECLINE

NEW MEXICO. The amount paid from Topeka was $15,807,638.24, and the number of pensioners on the roll at that agency was 111,508, or 2,089 less than June 30, 1906. Missouri, at the end of the year had 49,335 pensioners, who received $6,990,729.74.

These figures and facts are contained in the annual report of Pension Commissioner Warner. The report shows that the pension roll reached the high-water mark January 30, 1905. An analysis of the pension roll on June 30, 1907, shows the interesting fact that there were at that time three daughters of soldiers of the revolution war still drawing pensions.

The names of 558 widows of the war of 1812 remained on the roll at the close of the last fiscal year.

If there were no deaths during the present fiscal year it would require $140,850,880 to pay Uncle Sam's pensioners. The average annual value of each pension is $145.60, this being an increase of $7.42 over last year.

Beware!

If your share you wouldn't double
In this world of care and trouble,
O' beware of things that bubble!
At the mention of them, stop!
If you have great men to dinner,
Pause to think, as you're a dinner,
That a cocktail's not a winner,
With a cherry on the top.

If you're on the water wagon,
Don't let your arder lag on,
Nor your war with fierce thirst drag on,
Never order even "pop";
Some think if you don't drink water,
You're no better than you oughter,
So for nothing send the porter,
That has cherries at the top.

When with great men of the nation,
Just drink in their inspiration,
Don't attempt more strong libation,
Or forget the moral cop;
For he's there to grab and snub you,
While your friends will turn and snub
you,
And forever that cocktail rag you,
With its cherry at the top.

Out of Sight. "Out of Sight, out of mind," is an old saying which applies with special force to a sore, burn or wound that has been treated with Bucklen's Arnica Salve. It's out of sight, out of mind and out of existence. Piles too and chilblains disappear under its healing influence. Guaranteed by Freeman & Cummings Co., Druggists, 25c.

The semi-annual apportionment of the primary school funds will be made next Monday, November 11. The state will distribute among the primary schools of Michigan $2,989,829, which will be apportioned at the rate of $4 per capita. The number of children of school age participating in the apportionment is 747,001.

It is deliciously palatable, agrees with the weakest stomach, contains the most soothing, healing, strengthening and curative elements. Makes you well and happy. Hollister's Rocky Mountain Tea, 35 cents, Tea or Tablets, Freeman & Cummings Co.

Can't Use State Funds.

No state money can be paid the Michigan Corn Improvement association under a decision of the supreme court Tuesday which held the act of 1907 appropriating $500 a year to this organization unconstitutional.

The corn association, of which various prominent men are members, sought to compel the auditor general to spread the tax. The court in denying the petition for a mandamus says that the case is ruled by the celebrated Salem case, the opinion in which was written by Justice Cooley, who said: "Discrimination by state between different classes of occupations and the favoring of one at the expense of the rest, whether that one be farming or banking, merchandising or milling, printing or rail-roading, is not legitimate legislation and is an invasion of that equality of right and privilege which is a maxim in state government."

The supreme court reiterated this doctrine in the beet sugar bounty cases. The Corn Improvement association was organized to improve the quality of the corn crop and increase the yield.

PINKIE PRIM

Widow Jones was called away
By sudden telegram,
And she forgot her Polly;
Who said, "Well, here I am!"

"Out here on the backyard porch,
With neither food nor drink,
Going on five hours now!
That's pretty tough, I think!"

Some other words he uttered,
And Pinkie stopped her ears.
"That Polly's pretty wicked!"
Thought she. "But still I've fears"

"Poor Polly's pretty hungry.
Of food he is in need.
And so she filled her apron
With rich, ripe sunflow'r seed."

She brought them to the Polly.
And then she brought him drink.
"Hip-Hip-Hooray!" cried Polly.
"Three cheers for Dandy Pink!"

"Yes, yes," responded Pinkie.
"But, — Polly, you just swore!"
"Excuse me," answered Polly.
"I'll never do it more!"

Most Value
Into Their
Clothes for Young Men

YOU can expect more and get more in these garments, because there is all the difference between superior and inferior tailoring; and tailoring is nine-tenths of clothes-making.

Ederheimer-Stein clothes are produced by hand in new, clean, modern tailor shops. It's the latest method of making clothes, and confined to few manufacturers. This accounts for the better finish of the garments, more perfect fit, snap and smartness of the style. Select the
