MEETING OF CREDITORS.

Creditors of F. P. Glazier Met Monday Afternoon.

The creditors of F. P. Glazier met in the offices of Harlow P. Davock, referee
in bankruptcy, at Detroit, Monday afternoon, and after acting upon some important business, adjourned until August 11th.

The creditors acted upon two matters.
They unanimously elected the Security
Trust company, which has been acting
as receiver in bankruptcy, as trustee
in bankruptcy, and they unanimously
authorized the trustee to issue trustee's
certificates to the amount of $20,000
with which to finish the construction of the Glazier building in Ann Arbor. The trust company has already arranged to sell the certificates, and the work of completing the building will be pushed immediately.

This building, which Glazier mort-
gaged for $80,000 has already cost $126,000, in addition to the $32,000 of mechanics liens still due, and the $10,000 or more it is estimated will be needed to complete it, bringing the total cost of the building up to nearly $175,000.

The money to finish it was voted on
the belief that the property will be easier to handle than in its present condition, and it is expressly stipulated
that the trustee's certificates shall be a first lien on all the Glazier assets second only to the mortgage, if the latter is held valid, and the mechanics' lien.

Attorney Walter C. McNeil, representing the Security Trust company, made a report of all of Glazier's assets that the company has been able to find up to date, and it makes a very small showing. In round figures he estimated the total net value of the real estate, outside of the Glazier building and the Blodgett terrace, at not to exceed $30,000, and Mrs. Glazier has a dower
interest in all this property, amounting
to a life lease of one-third of it. Negotiations are pending to settle with her
on a basis of something less than she would get according to the strict letter
of the law, she to take a clear title to the homestead in Chelsea as part of her payment.

"Booster's Pledge."

The "booster's pledge" is going the
rounds of the press, which are exhorting the readers to accept it as their own and practice it in their daily walk.
"On my word and honor, I here and now desire that so long as I remain a resident of this community it will be my constant aim to boost it all the time and every time."

"I will do all I can for public work
that has the good of the community for
its object."

"I will submit to the majority rule
and won't knock and howl my head off if things are not always my way. I realize that if this community is good enough
to make my money in, it is the proper place to spend it again. I am resolved that I will buy everything at home and that I can and will never go farther
than is necessary."

"I will always try and say something good about my town and my people or keep my bawdy shut, excepting, of course, in case of public nuisance."

Annual Gathering.

A very pleasant event took place at North Lake last Saturday when Mr. and Mrs. O. C. Burkhardt entertained as a picnic party, several of the directors,
and their wives of the Washtenaw Mutual Fire Insurance Co., and a number of their friends in this vicinity.

This event has been observed for several years and the annual gathering is looked forward to with considerable pleasure by all those who participate in the reunion.

Dinner was served to thirty-two and
the party spent the day in boating and
fishing and all reported a very enjoyable occasion.

Those from out of town were Mr. and Mrs. John Spafford, of Manchester, Mr.
and Mrs. J. Laraway, of Northfield, and
Mr. and Mrs. A. R. Graves, of Ypsilanti.

WRECK ON THE ELECTRIC ROAD

LIMITED AND LOCAL MEET HEAD-
ON FRIDAY MORNING.

AIR BRAKE FAILED TO WORK

One Man Killed and Several Injured—
A Former Chelsea Boy Motorman
on the Local Car.

While running at the rate of about
five miles an hour the limited passenger car, No. 7794, telescoped with local passenger car No. 31 on the Detroit, Jackson & Chicago electric road about a mile and a half east of Jackson Friday morning about 7 o'clock causing the death of Edward A. Stewart of Jackson,
and injuring several.

The limited car left Jackson at 7 o'clock en route to Detroit. The local was due to arrive at Jackson from Detroit at 7:28. In charge of the limited were Conductor H. O. Woodbury of Yp-santi and Motorman Jack Feinle of Ann Arbor. On the local were Conductor Palmer of Ypsilanti and Motor-
man Charles Fisk formerly of Chelsea,
and a son of Mrs. Elva Fisk of this place.

It was learned from one of the crew
that the limited was to have stopped on
the siding at the gravel pit and permitted the local to pass. The local car had arrived at a few feet east of the switch. When Motorman Fisk saw that the limited was not going to stop he at once reversed his motor and began backing away. This action on the part of Mr. Fisk saved a most disastrous wreck. Although the motorman on the limited had applied his brakes, his car
bore down upon the slowly backward-
moving local, and telescoped it about a hundred feet east of the switch. The passengers, seeing that an accident
could not be averted, rushed to the rear ends of the cars. They had time to do this while the limited was chasing
the local down hill, although some of the passengers were knocked down and trampled.

It was in jumping from the cars that caused the most injuries. Mr. Stewart
was thrown against an iron switch pole
as he leaped, and sustained a fractured
skull over the right temple, a bad gash
in his scalp, and a terrible blow across the chest. One of the conductors stated that if none of the passengers had jumped they would not have been hurt, except the motormen, who certainly would have been killed had they not leaped.

After the two cars collided they traveled down the grade to the east together a distance of some 300 feet before they stopped.

There were about twenty-five passengers on the limited going east, and about fifteen on the westbound. They all went to Jackson after the wreck.

Among the injured was Charles Samp-
who resides about four miles west of Chelsea. He sustained a sprained ankle
and some minor bruises, and was the only
one on the local car who was injured.
He was taken to the hospital and when
interviewed said:

"I was sitting there looking out of the window, viewing the country as we passed along and I didn't notice that there was anything wrong until the splinters began to fly. I rushed out on the rear platform, and as I went out the door a lady was just ahead of me. She looked first one way and then the other
as if undecided which way she should
jump, or if she had better jump at all.
I jumped, and when I came to I found myself lying on the ground. About the first person I saw was this woman. She asked me if I was hurt. Instead of jumping like I did she remained on the car and escaped injury entirely. I wish I had done the same."

Henry Hague of Jackson, a well-known travelling man, was among the injured. Mr. Hague states that this is the fourth wreck on this line that he has been in.

John Turner.

John Turner was born in New York, June 22, 1818, and died at the home of his son, Andrew J. Turner, in this place, Friday morning, July 24, 1908.

Mr. Turner was married at the age of 21, and for many years was a farmer in Webster. For the last nine years he has been a resident of Chelsea. The deceased is survived by several children.

The funeral was held from his late
home at 9 o'clock Monday morning,
Rev. F. E. Arnold officiating. Interment

A BIG DRAIN

Mill Creek Drain Will Benefit 50,000
Acres of Land.

Through the townships of Sylvan,
Lyndon, Lima, Sharon, Dexter, Freedom
and Lodi are a net-work of drains
having their outlet in the vicinity of Jerusalem, which lies near the intersection of Lima, Sylvan and Freedom
townships, but for all these, it has been
realized that an inadequate capacity
for running off the water exists, and now Commissioner Jarvis has in hand a work of considerable magnitude which will relieve this situation. The work contemplated will be known as the Mill Creek drain and will be about five or six miles in length with a twenty foot
bottom and hence of course the work
must be done with a dredge. The drain or canal, as it might more properly be called, will have Mill Creek as an outlet, and that, fortunately has sufficient capacity to carry the waters from the
connecting drains and the Mill Creek,
into the Huron river. As all these drains leading to the contemplated Mill Creek canal are fed from innumerable springs which abound in the various
townships named, it is easy to perceive that in due time this larger body of water which Mill Creek will afford,
may easily become the home of great
schools of many varieties of fish and thereby make of the new enterprise a fishing resort of incalculable value.

The most important feature, however,
of the new project, is the thousands of
acres of land lying in the several townships, which will be benefited by the new drain, which will make possible the running off of the water through the drains which have been heretofore constructed, but have been practically
clogged at Jerusalem for want of an outlet. While the Mill Creek drain will be short in length it will, as suggested,
prove of inestimable value to something
over 50,000 acres of land in the seven
townships named and the assessment
will be made accordingly.

The right of way has been secured by Mr. Jarvis, indicating that in the special work required to deal with so many people and with apparent satisfaction
he is a diplomat of no mean quality.
The contract will be soon let and then
the work will go on with vigor. Ann Arbor News.

A Strange Case.

Ten years ago, David Porter and Henry Allmendinger were in the confectionery
business in Ann Arbor. They decided to sell out and Porter shipped his household goods and family to Detroit, while he went to Cuba to see if a fortune could not be made. Luck did not come his way
at first, and he got work on a sailing vessel, off the east coast. He wrote repeatedly to his wife, but received no reply. Discouraged, he finally decided to stop writing.

Recently his longing to see his wife
and four children was too strong to resist it longer, and he came to the United States a few weeks ago. Going to Detroit he learned that his wife, never
hearing from him after he left Detroit,
had given him up, and five years ago
obtained a divorce. Four years ago she married again, and two children were born of the second marriage.

Sunday, Mr. Porter was in Ann Arbor
for a couple of hours. So far he has not been able to clear up the mystery as to why none of his letters to his wife were never received. When asked what he should do regarding the unfortunate affair, he answered, "Nothing at all. I find the man my wife married to be an excellent man, who is exceedingly kind to her and to my children. I cannot attempt to break up the family circle.
They are well cared for and happy. I shall stay and get acquainted with my children for a few weeks, and go back to Cuba the last of August. It was a queer prank of fortune, mighty cruel to me."

Mr. Porter will spend most of the four weeks in Detroit.

To Resuscitate the Drowned.

Here is a simple and effective way to restore a drowning person:

The man should be stood on his head
in order that all the water possible be gotten from his lungs. The old method
of rolling him on a barrel is not a bad
one for the same purpose.

Then an effort should be made to induce artificial respiration. To this end put the person flat on his back and let some one catch hold of his arms just at the elbow.

Then raise the arms above the head
and bring them down.

As they reach the body press in on the
ribs to force out the air gained by lifting the arms.

Keep this up at the rate of 18 times a minute.

Then try to get the heart to move by giving a stimulant like liquor or a hypo-
dermic injection.

Sometimes a slight fluttering of the heart is sufficient to get back life.

Get a physician as soon as possible.

Ice Made in Home Kitchen.

The problem of producing ice in small quantities quickly and cheaply has apparently been solved by a French inventor, who has perfected a machine which is cheap, simple of operation, practically everlasting, and thoroughly practical. It may be operated by a belt connected with a steam engine, by a small electric motor, or by hand cranks. The invention is a rotative compression and automatic machine, regulating itself to all speeds, whatever may be the temperature of the condensing water used. The important feature is a cylinder in which the chemicals are sealed—the latter not requiring renewal and lasting as long as the machine itself—and which, revolving in water, produces the ice. It can also produce cold air. The machine has no joint piece, no pressure gauge, no suction or regulating valve. It will work in water reaching even 113 degrees Fahrenheit, and saves 98 per cent of cooling water, and 70 per cent of motive power as compared with any other freezing machine known. The Germans have also a new freezing device especially adapted to household and field hospital use, says the Technical World Magazine. It is very simple, and could be manufactured for about one dollar. It consists merely of a double wall tin vessel with a capacity of five gallons. The hollow space between the two walls is about an inch across. By the gradual admission of carbonic acid into this hollow space through an opening at the bottom, and from there to the vessel proper through a cross arm tube, it is claimed that water may be converted into ice in the space of 60 seconds, and that meats, fruits, and beverages, such as beer or wine, may be chilled or frozen in a few seconds. This effect is produced by the sudden great reduction of temperature caused by the rapid expansion of the carbonic acid, which is admitted from an ordinary carbonic acid reservoir.

Wings Like a Dove.

Man long since ceased sighing for wings like a dove, that he might fly to the uttermost parts of the earth, and began practical experimentation in imitating nature's handiwork. Overcoming the law of gravitation was least difficult. The problem of propulsion was easily solved. The problem of adequate control and reliable power of direction has been the challenge to the aviators. Even that is being successfully met, and the day of the airship is at hand. The announcement that Count Zeppelin has sustained flight for two hours, during which his airship was manipulated in the most complicated maneuvers, indicates that the reward of success has come to his persistent effort and expenditure. From possibility to practicability may be but a step, remarks the Boston Herald. Inventive genius which has made the impossible possible will not hesitate at the task of rendering it practical and usable.

An official statement of wheat exports for a week in June is significant as illustrating the fact repeatedly mentioned of late—that big shipments are going by way of Canada because of the railroad and canal facilities, with low freight rates, provided in that quarter. It appears that the total receipts at all Atlantic and Gulf ports were 1,974,304 bushels, the exports being 1,655,823 bushels. These exports by cities were as follows: New York, 519,347 bushels; Boston, 119,418 bushels; Philadelphia, 144,000 bushels; Baltimore, 60,400 bushels; and Montreal, 794,058 bushels. Thus, Montreal leads the procession. Of course later there will be heavier shipments from American ports, including New York, but the figures tell their own story of the advantage Montreal possesses at present. And Canada thus presents an object lesson as to the value of cheap and ample transportation.

The decision of the British admiralty court that the cruiser Gladiator was alone to blame for the collision with the American liner St. Paul off the Isle of Wight during a snowstorm last April is a complete exoneration of the officers and crew of the American ship. There had been intimations that the testimony would be the basis for such a finding, but the formal verdict is conclusive and gratifying. The affair, resulting in the loss of over a score of lives, was most lamentable, but the decision of the court shows that American seamanship was in no wise at fault.

Louis Honore Frechette, who died recently, was the unofficial poet laureate of Canada. He wrote in French, and his work has been crowned by the French Academy. Longfellow hailed him as the "pathfinder of a new land of song." As a poet he was born, so to speak, in two nations. One of his poems, "Le Drapeau Anglais"—"The English Flag"—suggests his allegiance to the British flag and his affection for that other flag, the flag of France, which, as a French poet, he kissed on bended knee.

LATEST NEWS OF MICHIGAN

ENRAGED BY A DIVORCE SUIT A MONROE FARMER KILLS WIFE AND HIMSELF.

NOT KILLED BY OFFICERS

Violence by Men Causes Several Deaths and by Cyclone the Destruction of Several Homes.

Lying in wait for his wife, in Redford township, near the Michigan-Ohio line, after they had reached a divorce agreement, William Fox shot and killed his wife, wounded John Heath, who pursued him, and then killed himself. Heath's wound is not serious. The Fox family formerly lived on a farm near Grand Rapids. They had been married 15 years, but last March Mrs. Fox left her husband because of his brutality. She brought her five children to the farm of Heath in Redford township and Fox knew nothing of her whereabouts until she brought suit for divorce in the Monroe courts.

Mrs. Fox proposed to keep four of the children and permit Fox to have Rosalie, one of the girls. Monday they had a conference in the office of Prosecuting Attorney Kiley, who was Mrs. Fox's attorney. Kiley said they left the office apparently satisfied. Fox left first and went to a point near the Heath farm, apparently premeditating the murder. Mrs. Fox and Mrs. Heath went to Toledo and took the Toledo & Western to Tiffin, from where they started to drive home. As his wife was about to step from the vehicle, Fox shot, saying, "Here's the only kind of divorce you'll ever get, you!" The woman fell and died a few minutes later.

"For God's sake, Fox, what have you done?" shouted Heath, who was nearby.

"I've fixed her and I'll fix you if you touch me," replied Fox as he ran.

Heath pursued and had almost overtaken him when Fox turned and fired. The bullet glanced from a suspender clasp, inflicting a deep gash across Heath's breast. Heath gave up the chase. Sheriff Briggs was notified and started for the scene, after ordering a description of the murderer telephoned to surrounding towns.

Farmer neighbors had in the meantime started a hunt for Fox. His body was found in the shadows of a church in the vicinity with a bullet in his head.

Fox had recently obtained work on a farm near the Heath place, saying he wanted to be near the children. He bought the revolver in Toledo last week. Mrs. Fox in her divorce petition charged that her husband had repeatedly beaten and otherwise abused her.

Brothers Self-Slain.

The coroner's jury in returning a verdict in the deaths of Fred and August Gross, the maniac brothers who died last week in a battle with the sheriff's posse in Pipestone township, says:

"Fred Gross came to his death in Pipestone township on July 14 by shooting himself in the head after he had been wounded. We further believe Fred Gross took his own life through fear of falling into the hands of the sheriff's force."

The general belief is that the younger of the two brothers could have been taken without losing his life. The jury found August Gross came to his death "while resisting arrest." It is understood relatives of the dead boys are preparing to bring action against the responsible parties.

Summer Resort Damaged.

In a 10-minute cyclone at Higgins' lake Saturday night, cottages were crushed under the fall of trees, many persons had narrow escapes from death and the fleet of sail boats and launches was capsized. The cottage of Lloyd Harmon, of Bay City, occupied by Alexander Taggart, of Indianapolis, his wife and two children, was demolished by a falling tree. Three big pines crushed the cottage of the Hickey family of Detroit at Lakeside. The Huntington pavilion, also owned by Detroiters, was likewise crushed. Miss Mershon, of Saginaw, fled just before it collapsed. Other cottages were badly damaged. Most of the refugees fled from the buildings when the storm started.

Five-Year-Old Hero.

Chummy's hero, five-year-old son of Mother Remy of Traverse City, is the hero of Old Mission. Graham, his 2-year-old brother, fell from Remy's private dock into the water over Chummy's head, but the boy quickly sprang into the water and brought the baby ashore. Graham was unconscious, but was resuscitated. A number of older persons saw the child fall in, but Chummy had him out before they could act.

And He Got Nothing.

Michael Malley, the Muskegon township farmer who herded 17 cattle in his barn and refused to let the owners have them until they paid him for damages done to his corn field, capitulated when the sheriff's deputies arrived with revolvers and took the cattle from him. Malley would have received a small sum from each farmer for less than $5 a head, but he held out for $85 damages.

Noble Cummings, who got in a defeat a few hours after his marriage in Kalamazoo, was sent back to Jackson for three years. He broke his parole by getting drunk.

Employers in the upper peninsula are experiencing considerable difficulty in obtaining laborers owing to the large number of foreigners in Europe. Representatives of a Minneapolis firm spent several days at Ishpeming last week vainly trying to secure men. Farmers complain that they cannot obtain help at $2.50 a day.

Discovering a man stretched on the floor of his room in the early morning Miss Georgia Leonard, of Port Huron, drove him out with a revolver.

The bones of a woman were discovered by sewer excavators in South Niagara street, Saginaw. They are believed to be those of an Indian.

Edward Erb, night clerk of the Elkhart house, Sturgis, is missing and officers are looking for him because of a robbery of the cash drawer.

Every alternate residence on Sycamore street, Lansing, for a distance of two blocks was entered by burglars. Generally the telephone wires were cut first.

Exertion brought on by her work to give a dinner party for her husband on his 79th birthday caused the death of Mrs. D. W. Richards, aged 71, of Flint, from heart failure.

The unknown man injured when John M. Child, of Charlotte, was killed on a Lansing & St. Johns trestle, was identified as Edward McNeill, a Massachusetts man. He will recover.

James Buckelow, an alleged abusive and intemperate husband, was killed by a Kalamazoo car while on a spree. It is said his wife refused to receive the body or have anything to do with the burial.

Wants Two Conventions. Saginaw will go after both the Republican and Democratic state conventions this fall and expects to land them. It is practically assured the Democratic gathering, and received encouragement from members of the Republican state central committee for the holding of their convention, provided the new auditorium in process of construction can be completed in time. The Democrats have wanted to hold their state convention in Saginaw the last several campaigns.

Attorney General Bird advised the officers of the Republican state central committee that county conventions throughout the state cannot be held until after the general primary, on September 1. In many instances, it is said, county conventions have been held and delegates to the various district conventions and also delegates to the state convention, have been selected. The attorney general holds that such county conventions are premature, and that the selection of district or state delegates thereat is void. Delegates to district conventions and to a state convention, to be called for the purpose of selecting candidates for state offices, must be selected at the county convention, which cannot be held until subsequent to the September primary. The attorney general holds that delegates must be selected at the county conventions which will be held after the September primaries.

News Notes from Lansing

Interesting Happenings at the State Capital of Michigan.

Lansing.—With the boating and bathing season in Michigan well over, the appalling record of 126 already drowned is shown in records of the secretary of state. For the months of May and June all records in the history of the state were broken and July has made a flying start toward surpassing either of the two previous months. Despite the fact that May was a fairly cool month—at least the first half—34 lost their lives in the water that month. In June 56 were drowned, according to the department's record, and with July a little more than half gone 36 have been drowned, with additional reports coming in every day. In the first ten days of the present month 22 lost their lives in the waters. About half of these went to their deaths on the Fourth. The state board of health has recognized the waters as a greater menace to life than the deer-hunting season and this year began an active campaign to try and save some of those who fall victims to the annual harvest of the waters. Cards giving detailed instructions have been distributed throughout the state and practically every summer resort and pleasure spot on the waters has them tacked up in prominent places. Illustrations showing the methods to be used are printed on them.

Rural Carriers Hold Convention.

Three hundred letter carriers from every city and hamlet of Michigan spent a day seeing the sights at Jackson including the prison, inspecting automobiles designed especially for the work of the letter carriers in the country, and completing the preliminary organization of the seventh annual convention of the Michigan rural letter carriers. Forty-one counties were represented in the Michigan branch of the association of more than 600 members and the national association has a membership of 29,331. Besides the rural carrier delegates, a number of notables connected with the post office department attended, including F. A. Kittredge, inspector of Chicago, who came in the place of and with a message from Superintendent W. H. Spillman of Washington, head of the department, who was unable to keep an engagement to be present. Postmasters Homer Warren of Detroit, Willard Holt of Bellevue, Milo Curtis of Battle Creek and W. N. Lester of Ypsilanti and Paul Lindsay of Tucker Ga., president of the National association. The usual addresses of welcome and appointment of committees comprised the work of the business meeting.

Big Peach Crop Sure.

A careful resume of the agricultural conditions through Muskegon, Oceana and Newaygo counties finds excellent prospects for fruits and farm products, with Oceana county about to yield as heavy a peach and general fruit crop as the banner year of 1907 offered. Peaches are coming along fine, and with light crops in other sections of the state, Oceana county farmers are banking on another golden year. The year 1907 made Oceana county a rich county for prices were high and fruit was scarce and the middle west looked to the county where "Jim" Flood resides to supply the luscious peach and the faith was not lacking. Muskegon county is just now afraid of its celery crop for the repeated rains washed away little dams and huge volumes of water are rushing pell-mell over the bottom lands. If present conditions are maintained and heavy rains continue the entire celery crop amounting to more than $100,000, will be ruined.

Few Aliens to Michigan.

Cold figures show in a striking manner the effective work of the division of information of the bureau of immigration and naturalization in diverting hundreds of poor aliens from the crowded centers of the country to fertile farms and other places where there is a big demand for that class of laborers. The method employed is to send out cards to all persons unable to secure necessary help. Whatever kind of help is needed is indicated by the replies on the return postal cards. About 900,000 cards have been scattered broadcast over the country and it is estimated that altogether about 4,000,000 cards will be sent out in the near future. From the first of February last until the close of June nearly 1,000 aliens and others had been sent in response to applications to various parts of the country. Michigan has received only 18 of these aliens.

Tubers in Plenty: Have to Buy.

One dollar and 80 cents for a bushel of potatoes at Traverse City. And Traverse City is in the heart of the potato region with acres and acres planted last year and more than ever planted this year. But the potatoes that sell for $1.80 are new potatoes and the residents are forced to buy them whether or no, as the old ones are all gone. Potatoes sold all season for 50 to 60 cents, but as the crop diminished they suddenly jumped to 80 cents and this caused every available bushel to be sold for shipping. With the old potatoes all gone, new potatoes were shipped in and the high prices prevailed until the Grand Traverse crop is dug, which will be in a short time now.

Kelley Petition Is Filed.

The first petition for the nomination of Patrick H. Kelley for lieutenant governor has been received by the secretary of state. Up to this time no one has taken the field against Kelley. No petition for any Democrat has been filed with the secretary of state for any office.

Ionis Squares Account.

The school district of the city of Ionis has returned to the state, $1,378, which is the amount which State Superintendent of Public Instruction L. L. Wright reported the state had lost through the padding of the school census rolls of the city during the past four years.

May Insure Against the Stork.

Insurance Commissioner Barry received an inquiry from a citizen of the state, who wishes to organize a company to pay benefits to persons who may lose their position and wishing to know if it could be considered as insurance. Mr. Barry rules that it comes under the head of casualty insurance. Still, another inquiry has been received from a party who wishes to pay benefits in cases of marriages or births. The commissioner holds that this can also be considered under the head of casualty insurance.

May Be Called Off Stump.

During the past few weeks there has been considerable discussion at the capital of just how far state officers and employees may go in speaking a good word for any of the candidates for governor or lieutenant governor. The new primary law contains the provision that it shall be a misdemeanor for a state officer or any employee of the state, directly or indirectly, to solicit votes for any candidate for governor or United States senator on primary election day or any time prior thereto. Attorneys have been inclined to construe this provision of law as preventing public speaking by another state officer or employee in the interest of any candidate for the offices named. They assert that the purpose is to solicit the votes of the people, and that it is none the less solicitation because the votes are solicited collectively instead of separately. The subject has been discussed quite extensively in capital circles and it is not unlikely that Attorney General Bird will be called upon to give an opinion deciding the question. Should it be held that public speaking is prohibited by state officers or employees in the interest of gubernatorial candidates several prominent persons may have to be called off the stump.

Big Matches for Detroit.

The adjutant general's office issued orders for the biggest rifle competition in the history of the Michigan National Guard. The contests were scheduled on the Detroit range and participated in by fully 350 officers and men, August 48 inclusive. Contestants are required to be on the ground early and it is expected a week will be consumed in the completion of the matches. The commanding officers of the First, Second and Third regiments of infantry and of the Naval brigade are directed to detail a team of 14 men each, a team captain who may or may not be a member of the team, a team coach and a team spotter. Each company of infantry, troop of cavalry, division of the Naval brigade and company of signal corps will also detail one team captain and six men to take part in the company team match. A man detailed on the regimental team may shoot on his company team and vice versa. In every instance the team captain must be a commissioned officer.

Holds Early Conventions Void.

In many instances, it is said, county conventions have been held and delegates to the various district conventions and also delegates to the state convention, have been selected. CHAPTER I.

I never quite knew how it was that I took Vincent with me, except that we both needed a holiday at the same time and the same kind of holiday appealed to us both. Vincent's whole name and title is Lord Wilfred Vincent, for he is the younger son of the old duke of Totten. Men of his own age call him "Freddie," but I call him Vincent or Wilfred, because I consider curtailed appellations undignified. Vincent is an artist—that is, he calls himself one; his friends call him "a dabbler in art." He doesn't really go in for it seriously, you know, but he does little sketches of cows and that sort of thing rather well, I fancy. So we agreed that our aim was to find a little old village, far away from London, and get rooms in some old farmhouse. My idea was that Vincent would go out and paint the cows while I would lie in the hammock and the old lady would bring me buttermilk. Wilfred had an idea that he, too, would like to spend a good bit of his time in a hammock, but with this difference, that the old lady's beautiful daughter was to bring him lemonade. But I pointed out to him that the chief reason that I was running away from town was to get rid of the debutantes, and therefore he'd have to leave the fair ones out of our air circle.

Our plan was just to bask in Nature, and we had six weeks to bask in. The foreign office doesn't seem to require much of Wilfred's time and he doesn't do anything else except "dabble." Of course, being a younger son, he hasn't a shilling of his own, but the old duke makes him a comfortable allowance, because he dotes on Wilfred as much as he detests his eldest son, Edmund, the heir to the dukedom. So, when Vincent complained of feeling "all run down" it was easy for him to get six weeks off, although, as I tell him, he has been getting "six weeks off" ever since he left Oxford, two years ago. He isn't 24 yet.

Nevertheless, Vincent is one of the best little chaps in the world. I don't mean that he is undersized, for he stands six feet two. In his stockings; but is so good natured, so jolly and amiable and straight—well—just naturally nice, don't you know—that everybody is "just crazy about him," as the Americans say. I met him last summer used to say, and all the men, young and old, like, have gotten to calling him "little Vincent" or "Freddie" from his boy days, just by way of endearment. Of course, I'm much older than Vincent—to be more exact, there's a matter of 12 or 15 years between us—but I must say I can't help being drawn to him. I've known him ever since he was born, and then, you see, we're both Oxford men, belong to the same clubs, and, of course, Terhune is as old a name as Vincent, even if it hasn't any handle to it, and, if I do say it, there's never a dinner given in London town that Archibald Terhune is not invited. But, somehow, in this, my tenth season, I became utterly weary of the limelight, the dinners, the balls, the match-making mamma (for I am a "eligible bachelor"), and, most of all, the debutantes, with their educated smiles and cultivated stares. I felt that I must flee from London to escape, and thus, as Vincent is always ready for a holiday, we found ourselves one fine day well started on our journey. We had taken the noon train for Kingsbridge, and changing there were to go on to Cuppstone, which an artist friend of Vincent's had recommended to us as just the place we were looking for.

"Jolly lark this," said Vincent, after we had been some time on our way. "Only hope Cuppstone and Damer's farm will be what we want. Graham cracked it up to the skies."

"That's the trouble," I complained; "when a thing's talked up too much it's sure to disappoint one."

"Wait till you see it, old pessimist!" said Vincent, with a cheerful grin. "It's got cows which provide butter-milk and art, and I've got some lemonade in my grip for the lemonade. The only thing that troubles me is the landlady's beautiful daughter. I'm afraid she'll be a minus quantity."

Then he put his feet across on my side of the carriage and lit a nasty, smelly, old pipe. That's the worst of Vincent; he's so young he doesn't think how a thing like that may get on one's nerves. But I wouldn't hurt his feelings for anything, and so I had to let him smoke.

About three o'clock in the afternoon, when we had left the comfortable carriages of the main line for the ramshackle ones of the branch line, we came to a sudden stop in the center of a big stretch of meadow land. A few miles away we could see the spires and roofs of a little village, and, what was more noticeable, a big castle, that stood on higher ground some distance above the town, but not far from where the train had stopped. I asked the guard what the trouble was, and he told me that something was wrong with the engine and it might be a couple of hours before we could go ahead.

Just as he finished his explanation Vincent, who had been looking out of the window with great interest, sprang to his feet and shook my shoulder excitedly. "Look there! Do you see them?" he cried, pointing at the beautiful meadows with their winding stream and gentle slopes.

"See what?" I demanded somewhat testily, adjusting my glasses and surveying the landscape without perceiving anything of unusual interest.

But Vincent, in a fever of haste, was kneeling and unstrapping his golf clubs. "Hooray," he cried, "Terhune, a golf course as I'm a sinner. Come on, we'll have some sport. The old train's due to wait an hour, anyhow."

I looked again, and, sure enough, I saw that at intervals the close-cropped grass was dotted with little red flags like sparks of fire on a carpet of green velvet. Vincent has many fads, but I think he is keener on golf than anything else. I was disgusted with him. "Vincent," I said with decision, "this is nonsense. You can wait till we get to Cuppstone to play golf. Graham said there were public links there."

"Yes, and he also said that it was the rottenest course he ever played over," said Vincent with some heat. "I made him admit it. And this one is a beauty. A private one, I'll wager. Look at that turf. It is just like velvet, my dear fellow—like velvet, and he swept a practiced eye over the wide green slopes."

Now, I am fond of the game myself within reason, and certainly the prospect was inviting, for I was tired of the confinement of the carriage, and Vincent was most persuasive. I knew it was a foolish thing to do; the train might not stay so long as we expected.

Wilfred had an idea that he, too, would like to spend a good bit of his time in a hammock, but with this difference, that the old lady's beautiful daughter was to bring him lemonade. But I pointed out to him that the chief reason that I was running away from town was to get rid of the debutantes, and therefore he'd have to leave the fair ones out of our air circle.

Our plan was just to bask in Nature, and we had six weeks to bask in. The foreign office doesn't seem to require much of Wilfred's time and he doesn't do anything else except "dabble." "That's the trouble," I complained; "when a thing's talked up too much it's sure to disappoint one."

"Wait till you see it, old pessimist!" said Vincent, with a cheerful grin. "It's got cows which provide butter-milk and art, and I've got some lemonade in my grip for the lemonade. The only thing that troubles me is the landlady's beautiful daughter. I'm afraid she'll be a minus quantity."

Then he put his feet across on my side of the carriage and lit a nasty, smelly, old pipe. That's the worst of Vincent; he's so young he doesn't think how a thing like that may get on one's nerves. But I wouldn't hurt his feelings for anything, and so I had to let him smoke.

About three o'clock in the afternoon, when we had left the comfortable carriages of the main line for the ramshackle ones of the branch

he's playing golf. "Boosh!" he said; "I'd rather play on her links than see her. If she saw us she might put us off. I'll bet she's a crabbed old maid. I'm surprised at you, Terhune, with your romantic notions. I thought you'd left all that sort of thing behind you in London."

I felt myself reddening slightly, though I knew Vincent didn't mean anything, and was about to make some retort when he drove off unexpectedly, and I stopped in admiration of the clean, fast shot he made. It just cleared a natural bunker and sped on beyond.

At that instant a discordant mixture of sound burst upon our ears, as that of a dog yelping and a vigorous scolding in a high but sweet feminine voice. With one accord we rushed up the gentle rise, and in the depression beyond we beheld one of the handsomest girls I had ever seen in my life. She was bending over a setter puppy and scolding him. The dog's yelps had subsided to a whimper and he was holding up one of his paws as if he had been hurt. "I told you not to come, Rudolph," she was saying, "and I told you to keep out of the way, and I told you you'd get hurt if you didn't."

She was a tall girl, but beautifully proportioned, and wore no hat on her mass of dark hair. When we got nearer we saw that her eyes were big and black, her profile perfect, and her coloring delightful.

Vincent capitulated at once and I let him make his impression first. He's the younger and it always seems a shame not to give such a promising boy a chance.

"I beg your pardon," he said, advancing and baring his head, so that the gold in his brown hair caught the sunlight, "but would you tell me if these are private links and to whom they belong? I fear we are trespassing." He said this just as if I hadn't told him all about it.

The girl turned to him uncertainly; then she smiled a wide, jolly smile of good fellowship. I knew she would—they all do that at Vincent.

"Was that your ball?" she said, not heeding his question. "I'm very sorry. It hit my dog."

Vincent was all concern in a moment. "What a shame," he said. "Did it hurt him?" and he knelt down to examine the dog's paw.

"Oh, no, Rudolph's all right," she answered; "but it spoiled your drive, and I'm sorry for that, and then she, too, knelt on the grass beside the dog.

I felt that it was time to step forward. "My dear young lady," I said—she couldn't have been more than 20, so I did not hesitate to address her thus—"My dear young lady, will you please tell us whether we are trespassing in using this court? To whom does it belong?" You see, I had to pretend ignorance to get more information. I have many of the intuitions that go to make up a great detective, and I had a presentiment that this girl was none other than the Honorable Agatha Wyckhoff herself.

"LEAVES THEIR TIME TO FALL." "Mr. Dooley's" Discourse as to the Everlasting Foe.

"Th' most per'ous iv human occupations are usually th' lowest paid. An' why is this so? Is it because we're not afraid iv death? Faith, no, but because we don't know anything about it. We don't appreciate it. If our simple minds cud grasp th' sub'ject th' bravest man in th' wurld wud be found under th' bed sobbing. It's there but it isn't there. It happens to iv'rybody but ye can't see it happen to ye'self. Ye walk briskly up to it or maybe ye even run. Ye never see it till it's too late an' th' thin 'tis too late to recognize it. 'Tis no good runnin' away fr'm it. Manny a man dodgin' a throlley car has been run over by an autyomobill. Ye hide fr'm th' lightning an' a mickrreak lands ye. Ye avoid railroad trains an' boats an' scratch ye'r thumb with a carpet tack an' 'tis all over. Ye expect it fr'm w' side iv th' athreet an' it comes fr'm th' other. Ye think that must be it in th' block ahead an' ye make up ye'r mind to walk slow whin it steps up behind ye, slaps ye on th' back an' says: 'Ye're wanted at headquarters. Ye'd better come along peaceable.' To becher, havin' no reply, ye will slash the deep fold in several places, and round off every corner, she will be able to wear this up-to-date style most successfully.

Only a small detail, but a most important one.

Decidedly it is not when the wearer is short or unduly stout, as it cuts the height, the wearer's height apparently ending where the fold begins. If, however, she will slash the deep fold in several places, and round off every corner, she will be able to wear this up-to-date style most successfully.

Only a small detail, but a most important one.

New Color Combinations. Orange and gray is one of the newest combinations. A superb gown of gray mousseline de sole is made over an underdress of orange satin—satin as soft as the mousseline. The skirt is closely gathered and plaited back and front, falling loosely from the belt posed unusually high. The plaits are, however, fastened extremely close, freed only below the knees. A wide band of silver embroidery, done in gray flit in relief, breaks the line of the skirt; from back and front the band of embroidery meets on the sides and mounts to the belt line. The corsage is composed of the embroidery.

Coat of Black Silk Muslin. A stunning long coat is made of black silk muslin, braided all over with white. Wide white silk braids outline the edges, forms odd strappings and finishes the elbow sleeves with quaint bows. The back is very short-waisted and is finished with big gold buttons.

Stockings with Tan Shoes. Nowadays if one wants to be ultra smart one must have dark blue stockings with one's tan shoes. This fashion was first adopted by the men, but women have embraced it enthusiastically and now every smart girl numbers among her belongings several pairs of such hosiery.

The Elusive Thought. A little girl who was trying to tell a friend how absent-minded her grandfather was, said: "He walks around thinking about nothing, and when he remembers it he then forgets that what he thought of was something entirely different from what he wanted to remember."

WALKING COSTUMES

The illustration to the left shows a very smart costume that would look well made up in a dull elephant gray cloth.

The skirt is high-waisted, and has a train, it is trimmed with gray satin ribbon to simulate an over-skirt.

The coat is fastened with a single button under a rosette of the ribbon just on the bust, it then slopes off to the back; the collar and cuffs are of pale gray cloth, trimmed with ribbon. The sleeve is plain, but has an epaulette on the top.

Touque of gray crinoline, trimmed with a shaded feather.

The other neat little costume is made up in royal blue Venetian cloth. The skirt consists of thirteen gores, the seams of which are wrapped.

The coat is a semi-fitting sack, reaching just below the hips, a piece of silk is let in between the side and front seam; tabs of the material are placed over it, in the point of each tab a silk-covered button is sewn, the waistcoat reaches down just to the waist, and is fastened by silk-covered buttons; the collar also is of silk. The plain coat sleeve set into a silk cuff at the wrist.

MRS. BRYAN AT HOME

WIFE OF DEMOCRATIC CANDIDATE FOR PRESIDENT.

Has Been of Great Help to Famous Nebraska—Has Studied Law and Been Admitted to Bar—Her Home Life.

Lincoln, Neb.—Mrs. Bryan, the wife of William Jennings Bryan, Democratic candidate for president of the United States, shares every confidence, and is on all occasions a most reliable helpmeet by her husband's side. The home life of Mr. and Mrs. Bryan truthfully demonstrates the old adage: "The twain are one."

Mrs. Bryan is not only a homemaker, but a home-keeper, and manages the daily routine at Fairview with utmost system. Whatever interruptions are crowded into the day, the household machinery remains unchanged and Mrs. Bryan always maintains a calm exterior.

It always has been Mrs. Bryan's fervent ambition to keep abreast with her husband's intellectual progress. This she has accomplished, and in doing so gives example by precept, for she has studied side by side with Mr. Bryan in every phase of life's problem in which he has at any time been interested. When Mr. Bryan decided upon law as his profession, then it was that he took one step in advance of Mrs. Bryan, but it was not to be for long, for when Mrs. Bryan came to Lincoln she immediately began a course of law studies, and after graduating was admitted to practice in all courts of the state. When asked why she studied such a dry, dusty subject as "law," she modestly declared it was just because she did not want Mr. Bryan to become conversant with a subject of which she was ignorant. She said the course was really easy and any woman who has the time could do as she has done.

Mrs. Bryan leads a very active and busy life, but having everything so well systematized, manages to keep ahead of her work. She has for a number of years had entire charge of Mr. Bryan's personal correspondence and has been what he calls his "confidential secretary." Just now Mr. Bryan's official stenographer, who has helped in previous campaigns, is a resident at Fairview, but this does not relieve Mrs. Bryan from looking after Mr. Bryan's private correspondence. She takes up the consideration of the mail immediately after breakfast, which, by the way, is a very early meal for Mrs. Bryan, as she is usually about the house planning various lines of work and outlining her duties for the day at five o'clock in the morning. Mr. Bryan dictates his letters to Mrs. Bryan and as a rule his editorials. Mrs. Bryan did not attempt to learn any defined system of shorthand when first undertaking this work, but immediately arranged a contracted system of her own, which she has found to be adequate in every way. About five years ago she began using the typewriter and now has become such a rapid operator she frequently takes dictation direct on the machine.

Mr. Bryan's mail does not comprise all that is received at Fairview, for Mrs. Bryan herself daily receives more letters than any other woman in the land, unless it should be the wife of President Roosevelt. Everybody who has any sort of a question to ask, concludes at once Mrs. Bryan is the proper person to whom to apply.

Mrs. Bryan is an ardent church worker, giving according to her means, and always lending her influence to the smaller organizations where it is most needed. When she moved to Fairview she attended the little church at Normal, but lately a mission church was established in South Lincoln and she and her husband severed their connection with the fashionable First church of the city and placed their names on the membership roll of the new organization, known as Westminster church.

Mrs. Bryan is dearly loved by all who serve her, and though often troubled in securing competent help, she is always able to retain her household servants.

She has a masterful personality, the influence of which is far-reaching. She possesses a large degree of tactfulness, which is not assumed, for Mrs. Bryan is always perfectly natural, and one always sees her as she really is. Her manner is cordial, and when conversing her face lights up with a smile which makes her at once seem a friend.

Buffalo Bill's Wild West.

It is announced that Buffalo Bill has prepared an entirely new exhibition for his home-coming tour, after four years abroad. He will exhibit at Jackson Saturday, August 8th. While, of course, the general style of the exhibition will be the same, there will be a change of scenic features, differing from any that have been seen with the show during the twenty-five years it has been before the public. Col. Wm. F. Cody, the last of the great scouts, will appear in the saddle at every performance, leading his congress of Rough Riders in some remarkable exhibitions of expert horsemanship. The chief scenic feature will be The Battle of Summit Springs, a reproduction of one of the deciding conflicts in Indian warfare; a battle in which Col. Cody participated and in which he shot and killed Chief Tall Bull. Another pantomime melodrama will be The Great Train Hold-Up, in which will be depicted the robbery of a train; a practical engine, cars and a realistic and true-to-life representation of one of the many scenes of lawlessness which the west has known. In a Holiday at T-E Ranch will be pictured the pleasures and pastimes of the plainsmen, cow-boy sports and a dance upon the green. The contrast to this scene of peaceful revelry will be shown in a sudden attack by Indians. The Rough Riders contingent will display themselves in difficult feats of horsemanship, hazardous exhibitions of skill and a diverting and exhilarating routine of equestrian expertness and daring. In short there is no other entertainment like Buffalo Bill's Wild West and after twenty-five years before the public it is more popular than ever, and is in every way better equipped than it has ever been before.

Pulpit in Railroad Station.

Travelers who enter Shrewsbury by the Albany Foregate station can scarcely fail to observe one of the most remarkable features to be seen at any railroad station in the world, says London Tit-Bits. This is a pulpit. It stands prominently above the coal wagons and miscellaneous goods trucks of the station yard, an ancient stone structure, to which access is gained by an equally ancient flight of stone steps. This pulpit is the only remaining fragment of the domestic buildings of the once great and powerful abbey of Shrewsbury.

In the olden days it stood in the monks' refectory and was used for preaching from and for reading the lessons, while the monks ate their frugal meals.

The Erie Barge Canal.

While the Erie barge canal will cost $101,000,000, about one-third of the estimated cost of the Panama canal, the magnitude of the work exceeds that at Panama. The present Erie canal is about 345 miles long, and of this distance the barge canal follows the old route for only 24 per cent., or 84 miles. For the other 260 odd miles the canal is laid out on what is practically another other route, following the rivers and lakes, an old route of travel by water, which was used by the pioneers who settled the western part of the state.

Lizards That Break In Two. Some kind of lizards break in two when suddenly startled. In the bush in Australia the traveler often comes across a number of these little silvery reptiles basking on a log or piece of old bark. As soon as they perceive the invader there is a great commotion; they dart hither and thither so quickly that the eye can scarcely follow their movements. The effects of the shock are evident from the quantity of wriggling tails lying about which have been cast off in the hurry, while the mutilated owners may be seen scurrying away to safety still wagging the stumps that remain.

Accidents will happen, but the best-regulated families keep Dr. Thomas' Electric Oil for such emergencies. It subdues the pain and heals the hurt.

Farmers state that the prospects for a big bean crop in this section this year are very bright. It is said that the Michigan farmer is beginning to learn the value of a bean crop as a plant food restorer of the soil. It is claimed there is no better crop to place in rotation with other products than the bean. It takes little from the soil that other plants need and manufactures its nitrogen products directly from the air, thus leaving considerable plant foods in the soil for other crops.

The picnic that was to have been given by the Church of Our Lady of the Sacred Heart, at Freeman's grove, Cavanaugh Lake, has been changed to Taylor's grove, just north of the village. Commerford, of Pinekey as speakers of the day. A program of music and sports is being arranged and the ladies of the church will serve a dinner.

The loss of farmers of their stock by lightning has been pretty severe this season and many who have been investigating the matter attribute much of the disaster to wire fences. It is claimed that the lightning will run along these fences for a long distance, and that during a storm stock will gather along the fence thus putting themselves in peril. It is also claimed that the danger can be largely avoided by grounding the wire, that is by stapling a wire from the top wire down the post into the ground at reasonable intervals and that in this manner much of the danger can be thus avoided.—Pawtucket Review.

FERGUSON'S BEAT

By F. D. BENNETT

(Copyright, by Shortstory Pub. Co.)

Every eye in the courtroom was fixed upon Richard Ferguson, reporter for the Morning Post. The young journalist stood facing the judge in silence.

It was the second time in a single day that Ferguson had emerged conspicuously from the ranks of his profession. The first occasion was in the morning when he scored a "beat" for his paper on the conviction of an accused millionaire, the events of whose sensational trial had filled columns of the press for many days. The jury had deliberated for three days and two nights and the defendant's fate had not been decided until the early hours of the morning.

The verdict was sealed and the envelope containing it had been left in the court vault. Yet the judge had read in his morning paper, two hours before he appeared in his chambers, the result of the jury's deliberation, the number of ballots taken and the way the jurors stood at each vote.

So positive had been the announcement in Ferguson's paper that there was no room for belief that he had made a lucky guess. His report was so accurate that it made the reading of the real verdict a farce. The judge looked sternly at the reporter, whom he had known for years.

"Did you write that article?" asked the court.

"I did, your honor."

"I shall demand a full explanation of you, and perhaps of other persons,"—the judge was severe now—"for there is something radically wrong here. I cannot cite you for contempt until I know more of the case. Do you object to replying to my questions?"

"Not in the least," replied Ferguson, in the best of spirits.

Representatives of the other papers had permitted admiration to take the place of envy and they crowded closer, in anticipation of hearing something interesting. The jury was present,

"Did You Write That?" Demanded the Judge.

all of the court officers were on hand, and even the night janitor had come in response to a hasty summons.

"What has occurred this morning," began the judge, slowly, "is an imposition on this tribunal. These 12 gentlemen, pledged to secrecy by their oath, the bailiff in charge of the jury, and the officers who guarded the jury room are under a pall of suspicion."

"In some manner a representative of the press has obtained information from the sacred precincts of the jury room. Some person or persons must be guilty of contempt, if not a more serious charge."

"A point arises here which it has been my fortune never to have encountered personally before. There are limits to the latitude which newspapers can demand. Mr. Ferguson has expressed his willingness to answer truthfully the questions which I shall put to him."

The silence was oppressive, and the crowd surged against the rail, leaning over to catch every word that was uttered.

"Mr. Ferguson," the judge began again, "I know that you did not guess at this verdict?"

"I did not."

"Will you read the marked portion of this newspaper clipping and tell us if these are the words you wrote?" Ferguson picked up the paper and read: "The first ballot was eight for conviction and four for acquittal; the second ballot was ten for conviction and two for acquittal; the third was the same, and at the fourth Juror Stephenson alone held out against capital punishment. Not until the fifth ballot did the jury agree to send the accused millionaire to the gallows."

"Did you write that?" demanded the judge, leaning far over the bench until he could look squarely into Ferguson's face.

"I did."

"When did you learn of these facts?"

"About 2:25 this morning. I barely had time to reach the office and write it for the last edition of the paper."

"Did any of the jurymen tell you what had transpired in their room?"

"No, your honor."

"Did you contrive to overhear their deliberations and arguments?"

"That would have been impossible through an ante-room and three doors. I did not learn it in that way."

"Did any of the bailiffs give you information?"

"No, sir."

"Did you tamper with the envelope?"

"I did not."

"Who told you, then?"

"No one."

The judge was perplexed. He knew that Ferguson told the truth, and that he was endeavoring to keep the source of his information a secret. Suddenly an inspiration came to him and he smiled because he had not thought of it before.

"Did somebody write you the information?" The court was sure that this would bring the desired result.

"No one wrote it for me," replied Ferguson, "and no human being gave me the information."

A stir went through the courtroom at this announcement and the judge seemed completely baffled.

"Would you so state under oath?"

"Under oath, yes, sir," echoed Ferguson. "No one knew those details at that hour but the jurymen and myself, and I may add that I have not exchanged a word, letter or signal with any of these 12 gentlemen."

The foreman of the jury was called before the bar.

"Mr. Tillotson," said the judge, pointing at Ferguson, "Have you seen this man before?"

"Yes, your honor, during the trial."

"Did you speak or communicate with him since the verdict was agreed upon or sealed?"

"I did not, and I can safely vouch for my colleagues, also."

"Well, then, Mr. Ferguson," said the judge, turning to the reporter, "will you kindly explain how you came into possession of this information?"

"I could refuse to answer on constitutional grounds—on the plea that I might incriminate myself," replied Ferguson. "I will not do that, but I have a favor to ask. May I put to the janitor of the courthouse three questions?"

Certainly," assented the astonished judge, and he called the janitor before him.

"When did you clean out the jury room?" asked Ferguson.

"As soon as the jury left it—about 2:20 this morning," was the response.

"Where did you empty the waste basket containing the jury's ballot slips?"

"In the alley, sir." The janitor looked apprehensive, as if he feared that he was about to get into trouble.

"Did you see a man out there?"

"I did."

"What did he look like?"

"Very much like you, sir."

"That's all," replied Ferguson, triumphantly.

MORE THAN HE DESERVED.

Careless Husband Tells of Experience with Wife's Money.

Frank J. Reed, general passenger agent at Chicago of the Monon railroad, was in Indianapolis the other day, telling a good story on himself. It had to do with his wife's bank account. "A couple of months ago," he said, "I was about to leave the house when my wife handed me her bankbook with $300 to deposit for her. I promised to attend to the matter promptly."

"I went down to my office and forgot all about the errand I had promised to perform. Three weeks later Mrs. Reed said to me that she had some more money to put in the bank, and inquired what I had done with her book. My mind was a blank on the subject, but I lamely suggested that perhaps I had left it at the bank to be balanced. With fear and trembling I hurried off to the bank to find the book and was startled to learn that it was not there."

"All that I had ever heard about lost letters and careless husbands and such things flashed across my mind. I realized that I would have to make good in some way. Thinking the bankbook and money might be in my desk, I tore off to the office. In throwing off my overcoat I felt a package in one of the pockets. I had the contents of that pocket in my lap in a jiffy. It was my wife's bankbook and her $300 just as snug and safe as if it had been on deposit with the trust company."

What Women Have Done.
Mrs. M. F. Johnston of Richmond, Ind., gave an interesting account at the Boston biennial of the G. F. W. C. of the Art association of that city, which is ten years old. Five hundred dollars is appropriated each year for the purchase of a picture, and the council gives $100 for the annual exhibition. The standard in pictures and crafts has changed, she says, and in the next few years much is expected that will give the children the opportunity of greater culture and knowledge of art.

Decollete.
"Did you see Mrs. Locutite at the hop last night?" asked Mrs. Gaddie. "Yes," replied her husband. "This morning's paper says she was dressed entirely in black. Is that so?" "Well—or—no. I wouldn't say that she was dressed entirely."—Philadelphia Press.

A Sample?
"I found a hardwood splinter in this jam." "Hum. I've often heard of these forest preserves."

Regular Burial Place.
A well-known English bishop some time since lost his third wife. A clergyman who had known the first wife returned from Africa and wanted to see the grave. He called at the cathedral and saw the verger. "Can you tell me where the bishop's wife is buried?" "Well, sir," replied the verger, "I don't know for certain, but he mostly buries 'em at Brompton."

Pigeon Joins Recessional.
A little fellow who sings in the choir of a Long Island village church is the happy possessor of tame pigeons. One of them follows him to the pretty vine covered place of worship and during the sermon coos and flutters among the crimson ramblers at the open window. One recent Sunday when the recessional began the bird flew in and circled about the little fellow's head until he reached the choir room door. It then flew out and waited to escort its small owner home.

The Spoiled Child.
"No," growled little Willie, "I don't want that big pink necktie on." "It doesn't matter what you want," replied his mother, "you must have it on." "Well, if you put it on me I'll cry all over it and that'll spoil it."—Philadelphia Press.

Hiram Center, 518 South Oak Street, Lake City, Minn., says: "I was so bad with kidney trouble that I could not straighten up after stooping without sharp pains shooting through my back. A Sensible Literary Chap.
"I'm not runnin' a ten-acre farm in connection with the literary business," says the Sweet Singer of southwest Georgia, "and so, the outlook is more cheerful. I hope to make enough cotton to have my poems published in a book and enough corn to feed the family while I'm waitin' for the public to buy the book. I also take contracts for the digging of wells, and these little side issues will enable me to show American literature just what I can do!"—Atlanta Constitution.

No Vast Stillness There.
"Do you enjoy the vast stillness of the sea?" asked the poetic person.
"Vast stillness!" echoed Mr. Sirius Barker. "I never yet went on an excursion when they didn't keep the fog horn blowing or the band playing the whole trip."

A SURGICAL OPERATION.
If there is any one thing that a woman dreads more than another it is a surgical operation.
We can state without fear of a contradiction that there are hundreds, yes, thousands, of operations performed upon women in our hospitals which are entirely unnecessary and many have been avoided by LYDIA E. PINKHAM'S VEGETABLE COMPOUND.
For proof of this statement read the following letters.
Mrs. Barbara Base, of Kingman, Kansas, writes to Mrs. Pinkham: "For eight years I suffered from the most severe form of female troubles and was told that an operation was my only hope of recovery. I wrote Mrs. Pinkham for advice, and took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and it has saved my life and made me a well woman."
Mrs. Arthur R. House, of Church Road, Moorestown, N. J., writes: "I feel it is my duty to let people know what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done for me. I had suffered from female troubles, and last March my physician decided that an operation was necessary. My husband objected, and urged me to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and to-day I am well and strong."
FACTS FOR SICK WOMEN.
For thirty years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from roots and herbs, has been the standard remedy for female ills, and has positively cured thousands of women who have been troubled with displacements, inflammation, ulceration, fibroid tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, and backache.
Mrs. Pinkham invites all sick women to write her for advice. She has guided thousands to health. Address, Lynn, Mass.

HAY STACKING DEVICE.
Handy Device That Will Do Good Work Anywhere.
This handy device for stacking hay in the field can be set up anywhere in a very short time. It consists of two telegraph poles, two guy ropes, and an iron rod of cable, on which runs a carrier. By this method, says the Prairie Farmer, one can build as large a stack as he wishes, and do it quicker and better.

Plan of Hay Stacking Derrick.

OYSTER SHELL BARK LOUSE.
It is a Hard Pest to Fight, But Keep at It—Destroys Shade Trees.

The oyster shell bark louse is a hard customer. Last season two neighbors called my attention to the shade trees in front of their residences. They were seven black ash trees of 15 to 20 years' growth. Three trees were covered with the louse on the trunk and out to the extreme end of the branches. Many of the limbs had died, and two trees had been cut down two years previous, having been killed by the scale.

These trees, explains the writer in Farm and Home, I soon discovered, needed radical treatment in order to be saved in one season, so I decided on one careful application. Making a kerosene emulsion of one to seven strength, arming myself with scrub brushes, a ladder and saw, I started to work as soon as the scales began to lift, which was the first of June. All limbs that were dead or quite sure to die were sawed out to be burned, and the remainder, with the trunk, were scrubbed with the emulsion until all scales were rubbed off.

The work was out of the ordinary method for large trees, but had the desired effect. They started at once into new growth and now are in a very promising condition. The owners were well satisfied to pay for the work. The kerosene emulsion was made of one gallon kerosene, two gallons boiling water and half pound soap, then agitated while hot for ten minutes with a foot pump. By adding five gallons water I had sufficient mixture to go over the seven trees.

PRACTICAL POINTS.

Treat your own family as politely as you do your neighbor Jones. You live a good deal nearer to them.
If rats are bothering your corn get some wire netting of half-inch mesh and line the corn crib while it is empty.

The man who persists in growing noxious weeds will never sit in the legislature or win prizes at the county fair.

The "man with the hoe" is no longer typical of the farmer. He rides in an auto and plows with one if he wishes.

Sweet clover has some value for pasture, but little for hay. It is of some good as fertilizer or to plow under in thin lands. It grows well on waste lands and is a good thing to hold near hillsides from excessive washing.

Varieties of Soil.
There are more than 500 varieties of soil, and each variety needs just a little different treatment from any other variety of soil. Also each variety has in it a different combination of fertilizers from any other variety. Therefore we have before us a problem worthy of the efforts of the wisest men. The man that best understands the various soils with which he has to work is the man that will generally succeed best in the cultivation of his land. The tendency is to dodge the study of the soil because it is a difficult study.

THE HAY CROP.
Some Suggestions for the Stacking in the Field.

Now that we have an unusually heavy crop of hay to secure, one farmer will be obliged to stack some of it. A foundation can be made of rails or poles laid close enough to hold the hay up from the ground and allow the circulation of air underneath to prevent the hay at the bottom gathering moisture from the ground and spoiling.

Begin the stack at the bottom considerably smaller than you intend to have the body of the stack. Lay the hay in the middle first and pack it very firmly and work outward until you get the size of the bottom. Carry it up a little ways and then begin to lay out a little at each course. Keep the middle fullest and pressed down, but do not walk close to the side while laying the outer course. I usually keep away from the edge three or four feet.

When you have enlarged the stack as much as you intend to, says the Orange Judd Farmer, carry it up evenly on the outside until you have fully two-thirds of the hay in that you intend to put in that stack, and then prepare to draw it in to top out. Keep the middle fullest and well packed and draw gradually until you have completed the top. Put a cap of marsh hay on, and put on hangers, as good hay is too valuable to be wasted by exposing it to the storms.

Keep in mind from the beginning, that if you keep the middle of the stack the fullest and well packed, and the outer course looser, the hay will drop on the outside and shade the rains perfectly from top to bottom of stack. A man who has a mechanical turn of mind can make a stack that looks well and in which the hay will keep as well as in the barn. Hay for stacking needs to be perfectly cured before it is hauled.

DON'T MUTILATE THE ROOTS.
Careless Methods Will Reduce the Amount of the Yield.

In the cultivation of any farm crop, do not mutilate the roots. Carelessness in this regard has caused the loss of more in the way of farm crops than almost any other thing unless it be weeds. Take note of how long a tree stands still in its growth after it has been set out. What is because the roots have been mutilated and are making repairs before the growth of the tree can be resumed.

In the cultivation of a field crop, says the Farmers' Review, the result of destroying a part of the roots is not so obvious, because the roots have not been mutilated to the same degree as in the case of the tree, and also because the crop was growing so rapidly that the result is only in a lessened speed of growth. But the result is along the same line and exists even if it be not so noticeable.

Yet the speed of growth counts for a great deal in the development of a crop, and nothing should be done that will lessen that speed of development. A loss of 5 to 10 per cent may be caused and the farmer not suspect it, because he has no standard by which to judge it.

Before entering on the cultivation of any fast-growing crop, the farmer should make a careful estimate as to where the roots are likely to be in the soil and avoid them. To leave the roots undisturbed is to leave them in the very best condition for growing, as the cultivation has broken up the crust above them and let in the air, which plays a large part in the preparation of plant food.

CRIMSON CLOVER.
A Good Plant for Localities Not Too Far North.

This is sometimes called Italian clover and German clover. It is hardy enough for locations south of the Ohio river, but winter kills it in the north. It is a beautiful plant, and a mass of crimson clover has a pleasing effect

Crimson Clover.

In the flower garden. In the south a big field of crimson clover is a pleasant sight.

On the Atlantic seaboard it has been grown successfully as far north as Delaware. As a green crop for plowing under it is excellent.

Lettuce Good for Geese.
Lettuce is an excellent food for young geese and ducks. Usually there is more in the garden than the family uses. This can be fed with profit. It pays to raise it for young waterfowl, and all kinds of poultry like it.

TABLE DELICACIES.
DISHES THAT ARE WORTH ADDING TO THE DAILY MENU.

Gooseberry Pudding a Splendid Dessert—Brown Chicken Fricassee—Flounders in a New Way.

Green Gooseberry Pudding.—Boil a pint of green gooseberries till soft, and sweeten to taste. When quite cold mix in thoroughly four well-beaten eggs and one ounce of butter. Butter a mold and sprinkle it thickly with equal parts of sugar and fine bread crumbs, then pour in the gooseberry puree, being careful not to disturb the casing; cover the top nearly half an inch thick with crumbs and sugar, and bake for an hour. When taken from the oven cover with a cloth, and only turn out when wanted. Serve with clotted or whipped cream.

Mushrooms Stewed with Cream.—This is a favorite recipe. Prepare a pound of mushrooms by paring off the ends. Clean and wash well and if very large cut in halves. Drain and place in a saucepan with three ounces of butter. Season with salt and pepper and cook five minutes. Add two tablespoonfuls of the white sauce made from a tablespoonful butter and one of flour, blended, then cooked with three-fourths cup milk to a smooth cream. Add also a half cup of sweet cream in the mushrooms, cook three minutes longer and serve in a hot dish with eight heart-shaped bread croutons for garnish.

Sauce for Mushrooms.—Put three tablespoonfuls olive oil in a saucepan with one teaspoonful each of minced parsley and anchovies and a clove of crushed garlic. Heat five minutes, add to mushrooms that have been stewed in oil and serve.

Sauce for Stewed Mushrooms.—Peel and remove the stalks from some large mushrooms, wash and cut in halves. Put two tablespoonfuls butter in a saucepan with two tablespoonfuls flour. When blended add a cup and a half hot milk and stir until smooth and thickened. Add the mushrooms, season with salt, pepper and a little powdered meat, and simmer gently until the mushrooms are tender. When cooked, turn on a hot dish, garnish with fried croutons or bread and serve.

Brown Chicken Fricassee.—For a brown chicken fricassee, Creole style, cut up the chicken in the usual way and fry in equal quantities lard and butter until nearly tender and brown. Dredge a little flour into the gravy and brown. Add a pint of boiling water, a small onion minced, a quart of potatoes and a small bunch of parsley. Simmer gently an hour or until very tender, and serve with rice. If preferred the rice may be added and cooked with the stew.

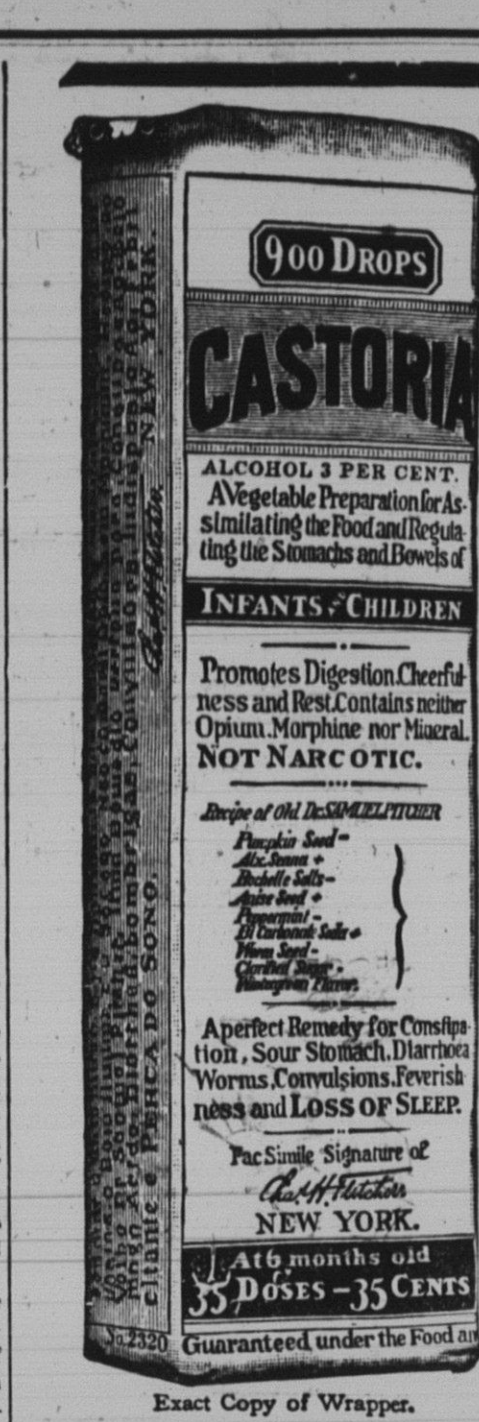

Flounders in a New Way.—Flounders are good fried in the ordinary way in crumbs or in flour, and especially nice if melted butter seasoned with lemon juice and chopped parsley is passed with them; but here is quite a new way of cooking them: Wash the flounder and wipe it dry; lay it in a roasting-pan on top of two tablespoonfuls of minced onion, and sprinkle it with salt and pepper and a tablespoonful of chopped parsley; put it into a very hot oven and baste with half a cup of boiling water mixed with a tablespoonful of melted butter; when brown put the fish on a hot platter and put a teaspoonful of flour and a small half-cup of hot water into the pan, and stir and scrape over the fire till there is a nice brown gravy, adding a little kitchen bouquet to darken and season it; strain and pour this over the fish, and serve at once. —Harper's Bazar.

Le. Over Eggs.
Eggs that have been hard boiled and sent to the table and untouched can be sliced and dressed with mayonnaise. Fried eggs can be run through a food chopper, mixed with potato and cooked in potato balls. Poached eggs should be reheated and cooked done and run through a ricer to add to salads. Boiled or fried eggs if run through a ricer and mixed with finely chopped meat make good croquettes. If the yolk of an egg is used and the white is left, beat it and stir into apple sauce. A broken egg can be covered with water, placed in the refrigerator and will keep for several days.

Cherry Pudding.
Put into a saucepan two tablespoonfuls of butter with two tablespoonfuls of flour; blend well together over a gentle fire; add one pint of milk very gradually and stir until boiling; pour over a quarter pound of bread crumbs; add grated rind of one lemon, four tablespoonfuls of sugar, one teaspoonful of vanilla extract, quarter pound of cherries cut in halves and three well-beaten eggs. Pour into a mold well greased and decorated with cherries at the bottom. Cover with buttered paper and steam two hours.

Changing the Bed Linen.
Arrange to change the bed linen on the day you sweep your bedrooms. The soiled sheets may thus be drawn over the newly made beds to keep the dust from the spread and pillows. It will take but a few moments to remove these sheets and shake out of doors before consigning them to the clothes hamper.

Nut Candy.
Boil one quart of sirup, three cups granulated sugar, butter half size of egg, two tablespoonfuls of vinegar until it is hard when dropped in water, add half teaspoon soda the last thing; spread nut meats in tins. Pour candy in thin sheets over the nuts.

NOT ONLY COULD, BUT DID.
Mr. Grandon Able to Bear Testimony to Wife's Accomplishments.

Sometimes there is a drop of regret in the cup of joy served by fate to the husband of a brilliant talker. "I should think it would be a privilege to sit at the table with your wife three times a day," said one of Mrs. Grandon's ardent feminine admirers. "Only twice a day," said Mr. Grandon, with a bow. "I do not go home at noon."

"Too bad!" said the admirer. "We could not get on without her at club I'm sure. Why, I believe she could talk intelligently on a thousand topics!"

"She can—and does," said Mr. Grandon, and with another bow he slipped out just as his wife appeared. —Youths' Companion.

What Women Have Done.
Mrs. M. F. Johnston of Richmond, Ind., gave an interesting account at the Boston biennial of the G. F. W. C. of the Art association of that city, which is ten years old. Five hundred dollars is appropriated each year for the purchase of a picture, and the council gives $100 for the annual exhibition. The standard in pictures and crafts has changed, she says, and in the next few years much is expected that will give the children the opportunity of greater culture and knowledge of art.

But It Was All Right.
The poor but proud duke decided to play a safe game, so instead of bearding the dear girl's father in his lair he wrote as follows: "I want your daughter—the flower of your family."
By return mail came the old man's reply: "Your orthography seems to have a flat wheel. What you want is doubtless the flour in connection with my dough and if my girl wants you I suppose I'll have to give up."

Woman Wins Scholastic Honor.
Miss Stella Schaffer delivered the valedictory address for the graduating class of the Eclectic Medical college of the city of New York at the recent commencement exercises. It is the first time in more than ten years that such an honor has fallen to a woman. Miss Schaffer was also the winner of the electro-therapeutic prize.

HEALTH AND INCOME.
Both Kept Up on Scientific Food.

Good sturdy health helps one a lot to make money.
With the loss of health one's income is liable to shrink, if not entirely dwindle away.
When a young lady has to make her own living, good health is her best asset.

"I am alone in the world," writes a Chicago girl, "dependent on my own efforts for my living. I am a clerk, and about two years ago through close application to work and a boarding house diet, I became a nervous invalid, and got so bad off it was almost impossible for me to stay in the office a half day at a time."
"A friend suggested to me the idea of trying Grape-Nuts, which I did, making this food a large part of at least two meals a day."
"Today I am free from brain-tire, dyspepsia, and all the ills of an overworked and improperly nourished brain and body. To Grape-Nuts I owe the recovery of my health, and the ability to retain my position and income." "There's a Reason."

CUTICURA CURED FOUR
Southern Woman Suffered with Itching, Burning Rash—Three Little Babies Had Skin Troubles.

"My baby had a running sore on his neck and nothing that I did for it took effect until I used Cuticura. My face was nearly full of tetter or some similar skin disease. It would itch and burn so that I could hardly stand it. Two cakes of Cuticura Soap and a box of Cuticura Ointment cured me. Two years after it broke out on my hands and wrists. Sometimes I would go nearly crazy for it itched so badly. I went back to my old stand-by, that had never failed me—one set of Cuticura Remedies did the work. One set also cured my uncle's baby whose head was a cke of sores, and another baby who was in the same fix. Mrs. Lillie Wilcher, 770 Eleventh St., Chattanooga, Tenn., Feb. 16, 1907."

No Waits.
"I suppose you wait for the divine spark?" inquired the lady visitor.
"Heavens, no!" replied the bard. "If I did I would be waiting yet!"

Pigeon Joins Recessional.

A little fellow who sings in the choir of a Long Island village church is the happy possessor of tame pigeons. One of them follows him to the pretty vine covered place of worship and during the sermon coos and flutters among the crimson ramblers at the open window. One recent Sunday when the recessional began the bird flew in and circled about the little fellow's head until he reached the choir room door. It then flew out and waited to escort its small owner home.

came off one night last week when
the store was entered and a large

Fremont Ward, superintendent of construction of the new federal build-

received a letter from the supervising architect at Washington that has made glad the hearts of the Ann Arborites, for it says that, after all,
the new postoffice is to have the im-
posing front entrance designed for it;
also the other entrances not upon
the original plans, but gained through the efforts of Postmaster Pretzman.
The working room is to be increased
and additional distributing

Mabel Fowsey and Helen Butler,
nurses of the state industrial
school at Adrian escaped Thursday
night by climbing the rear wall.
The girls had more freedom than other inmates, as they worked in the kitchen. Early in the evening
they got away and took the Detroit,
Toledo and Ironton train to Tecumseh. There, however, they were found by Nightwatchman William Bennett, and the authorities were notified at Adrian. Bennett took them over to Adrian Friday morning and received $50 reward.

Jacob Rothfuss, of Bridgewater,
met death suddenly last Thursday
when starting out to assist Henry Armbruster in hauling his grain.
Something gave away about the wagon or harness, and the men were thrown out. When Mr. Armbruster
went to assist Mr. Rothfuss, he found him just about to breathe his last.
On examination it was found he had
sustained many injuries, fractured
ribs, cuts about the face, bruises, etc.
There was evidence that the wagon
wheels had passed over him, and that in falling he had struck against a stone which was probably the agent
of his death. The funeral services were held from the Freedom Bethel
church. Rev. Meyer officiating.

Speaking of one's own vine and fig
tree, Dr. E. A. Clark can make a literal claim to the same, for already
he has plucked the first crop of figs
from the tree which stands in the back yard. This was just a few days ago and the tree bore abundantly.
The fig tree was formerly the property of Mrs. Ainsworth, of the Ainsworth hotel. Although the doctor
did not speak with enthusiasm of the lusciousness of the fruit, some of his friends did.—Ann Arbor News.

Three attempts at burglary were made at Ann Arbor Monday morning about 3 o'clock. The first was the Delta Tau Delta fraternity house. While the premises were being searched there came a call
from a lady, who was staying in a house on Oakland avenue, about a block away, while the family is away
for the summer. Burglars were trying to effect an entrance to the rear door there. While the man was being chased in that locality, another
call came to police headquarters
from the residence of Prof. Edward Kraus, still further up on Oakland avenue.

Mary A. VanTyne.

Mary A. VanTyne passed away at her home on the morning of July 21st, after an illness of a few months. With a mind
at peace and trusting in her Saviour,
she entered the Silent Land. She was born in the state of New York, but
after her parents moved to Michigan,
she attended the Chelsea Union School,
also later at the Ypsilanti Seminary,
being a faithful student and enthusiastic
worker. After completing her studies,
she began teaching, devoting her entire life to her much-loved profession. She was a pains-taking and careful teacher,
willing to devote time and energy to those under her charge. She was a pleasant helper and sincere friend to
her pupils, who regarded her with love
and high esteem.

She was an admirable disciplinarian,
forceful and clear, accurate and inspiring, a most faithful, earnest and conscientious instructor. Her work was over of the most efficient and satisfactory character, and she had few equals as a teacher. Requiring rest,
she resigned her position as a teacher
in the Chelsea Union school three years
ago with regret, feeling that her life
work was perhaps ended.

She was a member of the Congregational church, and a sincere Christian,
with a strong faith in God. She was a teacher in the Sunday school for many years, always interested and progressive and exerting an influence for the elevation of all around her.

She possessed sound judgment and
always took a broad view of matters
under consideration. Her departure leaves a vacancy hard to fill. She will be sadly missed by a large circle of friends. God in his infinite wisdom removed from our companionship a loved
one, upon whom we bestowed our affectionate devotion. Those hours of sweet association are now but a memory
to be renewed when our loved one welcomes us on the shining shores of the Beautiful Land. The sorrow of our hearts is softened by the assurance that she is free from grief and this world's cares, and has gained the heavenly mansions to dwell forever in happiness.

She leaves a brother Mr. A. A. Van-
Tyne, and two sisters Mrs. H. C.
Northrop and Sarah E. VanTyne to mourn her loss. Funeral services were held from the Congregational church on Thursday at 2 o'clock, Rev. M. L. Grant officiating.

"Desert" Now Greatest Corn Belt.

Congressman Olcott of New York
was chatting with Congressman "Pete" Hepburn of Iowa. "Hoh-wah," with the accent on the second syllable, is the way Olcott referred to the home
of the chairman of the committee on interstate and foreign commerce.
"Hoh-way," with the accent on last syllable, Col. Hepburn corrected. "I remember when it was spelled that way,"
and when Wisconsin was written Ouiscon-
sin. I have in my possession an atlas, Olney's atlas, printed in 1830, in which
that spelling occurs. And that atlas,
by the way," the Iowa statesman continued, "shows the limits of what was then called the Great American Desert."
It covered all of Kansas and
parts of Nebraska, Iowa and Missouri. Just think of it, a "Great American Desert," where now is to be found the greatest corn producing belt the world
has ever known.—Chicago Letter to the Unsuccessful London Dailies.

The death rate among the London
dailies has been very great. During the past 12 years 12 such papers have ceased publication and two others,

recent suspension was the London Tribune, upon which $1,250,000 was spent, which leaves the Manchester

paper in England.

CRYING FOR HELP.

The kidneys cry for help.
Not an organ in the whole body so

Not one so important to health.
The kidneys are the filters of the

When they fail the blood becomes

There can be no health where there is

Backache is one of the first indications

It is the kidney's cry for help. Heed

Doan's Kidney Pills are what is want-

Are just what overworked kidneys

They strengthen and invigorate the kidneys; help them to do their work;
never fail to cure any case of kidney disease.
Mrs. Chas. Klager, 408 Hill St., Ann Arbor, Mich., says: "About eight years ago I was a victim of kidney trouble. The pain in my back were so severe at times that I could hardly get about and
though I doctored with several physicians, none of them seemed to help me
in the least. When I first arose in the morning, I would often be seized with dizzy spells and a general languid feeling. Seeing Doan's Kidney Pills advertised, I decided to try them and procured a box. They brought me prompt relief and I continued taking them until cured. I will always speak a good word
for them."
